Vast Panorarna of Boats Stretches Across Mediterranean from Africa.

By JOSEPH MORTON

AN ALLIED AIR BASE IN NORTH AFRICA, July 11—(AP) One of the few American airmen to get a complete picture of the invasion of Sicily told today of witnessing assault by two great groups of Allied warships without a sign of an Italian vessel around.

One group was figting off an attack of enemy bombers and the other was shelling the shore so heavily that the warships themselves seemed to blaze.

Landing Operations Continue

Meanwhile the landing operations were seen to be continuing with a thick pall of smoke hanging over the beach in one sector possibly indicating a heavy artillery action, the flier reported.

He said he saw fires burning at a number of points along the 100-mile coastline captured by the Allies and great strings of blazes extended across central Sicily.

The pilot, Lieut. Col. Frank L. Dunn, San Antonio, Texas, holder of the Distinguished Cross for a low level reconnaissance flight over Cagliari last March, said, "The whole thing spread out before me as I came in yesterday afternoon about six miles up in the air."

"It was a wonderful clear day. I could see all of Sicily, Malta, Pantelleria and the tip of Italy."

"Our ships were the greatest collection of naval strength I have ever seen. And there seemed to be thousands of landing craft with their noses firmly planted on the beach.

"On the east side of Sicily I saw pretty much the same thing with men still coming ashore.

"On land I couldn't see much fighting anywhere but there was considerable smoke at one point on the southern coast and the roads leading to it. Over the east side there was a big cloud of smoke hanging over a long stretch of beach.

"Warships were firing at the shore and from the air they looked ablaze. They certainly were going full blast.

Sees Bombs Falling

"I saw bombs being dropped on one group of warships but I was unable to spot the planes that were attacking. I actually counted three strings of bombs fall.

"The warships were taking evasive action, swishing around and even going in circles and scattering fast. The whole area was bathed in flame from ack-ack batteries.

"Looking over the entire island I must have seen hundreds of fires with one chain stretching from east to west right across the middle. They appeared to be airports but it was impossible to tell definitely.

"The biggest single fire was at a city on the east coast from which billowed black smoke five to ten thousand feet. Three of the fires across the island also were tremendous. I also saw a lot of our vessels returning from the operations."

Another flier, Second Lieut. Marion E. Legendre, Long Beach, Calif., over Sicily today reported landings still were continuing and many fires were burning.

"Ships, barges and lighters off the southern coast looked like a bunch of water beetles the way they were whipping around," he said. "From my grandstand seat in the air it looked like we were having things all our own way."

JUL 12 1943

"Like Clusters of Islands"

Captain James H. Macia jr., of Tucson, Ariz., said he was riding along on a bombing mission as an observer and noted that the whitecaps on the windy sea seemed to be very uniform.

"I took another look, then realized I was seeing an invasion force," he said.

"There were many medium-sized ships in the first group and behind them large landing craft. Destroyers and cruisers were grouped all around on the outside for protection. It was an amazing sight—just like a cluster of islands in the sea.

"We went back over the same area again today and saw two big forces unloading. There was a lot of movement among naval craft but no oil slick or any evidence of sunken ships. Small landing craft were taking the men ashore in an orderly manner just like practicing on some Virginia beach."

Canadian Units Take Pachino Area 'in Walk'

JUL 12 1943

Sicilian Peninsula Easy Prey—Many Italians Surrender

By ROSS MUNRO

Canadian Press War Correspondent

(Distributed by the Associated Press)

WITH CANADIAN TROOPS IN SICILY, July 10 (Delayed)—Behind an enormous naval and air night bombardment the Canadians practically walked into Sicily today, meeting little determined resistance on their beaches four miles southwest of Pachino on the southeast tip of the island.

(Muro's story was the first eyewitness account received from any correspondents attached to the invasion forces.)

SMASH DEFENSES

The Canadians smashed through beach defenses as soon as they were set ashore and the infantry attacked inland, establishing an extensive divisional bridgehead which was the Canadians' initial task in the Eighth Army invasion plan.

Some stubborn resistance has been put up by the Italians north and west of Pachino, and along other sectors of the front there were heated engagements.

Big battles probably will come before long, but meanwhile, large numbers of prisoners are being captured. They have been coming back from the front since dawn in batches of 50 or 100 guarded by one or two Canadians.

So far, Canadian casualties appear to be very light. On one beach where two assault units landed there were only half a dozen men wounded.

SCARCELY SHOT FIRED

I landed at 5:15 A. M. this morning from a naval launch which guided the assault infantry to the beach. There has been scarcely a shot fired as the troops infiltrated into the countryside.

Two companies had got in shortly ahead of us on our beach and they and some sappers seemed to have a sharp engagement but broke through the weak beach defenses in about 15 minutes.

From about midnight, airforces plastered the Pachino peninsula with a terrific series of bomb explosions and the lights of burning Pachino fired by the RAF helped to guide us in.

The big warships of the fleet stood offshore a few miles and added to the din with tremendous salvos that shattered the night.

It was the most fantastic spectacle to see and hear. Two assault units stormed the left sector. So far I have been unable to find out how the westerners did, but from a cliff top near the main beach where I am writing this, with the fleet nearby and landing ships and warships spread out in the bay, I can see smoke and hear gunfire some miles inland on their front.

Apparently they are gaining ground steadily with naval bombardment support still going on. Other units from Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Quebec landed during the morning and afternoon.

The bridgehead had been established by the time they were sent in and they began to march to the front. A supporting group landed shortly after the assault units.

All day long our fleet of landing ships, cargo vessels, and royal navy ships has been in the bay disembarking men by the thousands and discharging vehicles, guns and supplies.

It is now 5 in the afternoon and there hasn't been an air attack. It seems incredible that we aren't bombed but RAF planes are continually in our area. The Canadian attack is linked closely with British formations.

35,000-Foot Jump Saves Flyer

AN ADVANCED ALLIED AIR BASE, Tunisia, July 10 (Delayed). —A 35,000-foot parachute jump, 10,000 feet of it with his chute closed, recently saved the life of Spitfire Pilot Lieutenant Robert Emile Armstrong, of Knoxville, Tenn., after a stratosphere duel with a Junkers 88 which he shot down, although he was wounded and his own plane was damaged.

No Heroics, Boasts or Doubts Mark Paratroopers' Takeoff

Grim, but Confident Invaders, Step Into Ships Cool in Face of Acid Test

By SERGT. JACK FOISIE

Correspondent for Stars and Stripes. Distributed by The Associated Press.

AN ADVANCE AIR FIELD IN NORTH AFRICA, July 9 (Delayed) —American parachute troopers who will be landing amid the enemy in Sicily less than an hour from now are ready.

This is the moment they have long awaited. One year of concentrated training is behind them.

Many of them will now get their first taste of war—the toughest kind —invasion of Europe.

They're lounging in the shadows of the wings of the big transports which will carry them over the black-shadowed Mediterranean to carefully designated dropping zones.

NO HEROICS

The paratroopers have known for several days what they were going to do. They had studied maps, memorized orders and completed coordinated plans.

But not until this morning were they told that "tonight is it."

They cheered that announcement and at least one good crack came from the ranks—"Hurray, no more 'C' rations." (Men carry "B" and "K" ration packages into battle.)

Throughout the day the men checked and packed their gear and equipment. Each of the many pockets in their jumping suits were utilized. Their natty jumping boots —the trademark of their profession —were laced with extra tightness.

The bivouac atmosphere remained business-like and grim. No horseplay, no heroics, no boasts, no doubts.

The Yanks were ready and confident. The tenseness mounted as the time grew short.

Last chow was served at 3:30 P. M.

BATTLE PLANS

Now the sun was going down from behind the Tunisian jebels where just two months ago the foe fought his last round in North Africa. The evening breeze was picking up sand off the runway, enveloping the field in a brown haze.

A colonel who would lead the combat team into action was giving last-minute briefing to enlisted men, officers and one war correspondent who would ride with him and jump with him.

It was a kind of a sacred huddle—this briefing. The general's staff officers who came to wish them luck stook off to the side. It was a strange, fascinating sight—men with faces blackened and American flags freshly sewed on their sleeves gathered at the feet of their commander.

The colonel, tallest of them all and his face more liberally smudged with blackening until he was darkest of them all, spoke his final commands: stowing of equipment, no smoking while in flight, the appointed rendezvous, time of departure, time of replacing "Mae West" life jacket with 'chute, time over drop of water and a little talk.

HOW IT FEELS

He outlined their procedure after hitting the ground. His words were calm, cool and direct. The time for pep talks had passed. The operations had started.

"You'd better do it in a hurry," the colonel added, "for there are going to be a lot of itchy trigger fingers."

The briefing ended. The men had a few minutes for a smoke, a drink of awter and a little talk.

I asked some of the enlisted men going in the lead plane the same question, "How do you feel about it?"

This is how they answered:

Cpl. Nickolas Kastrantas of Pittsburgh, Pa., said, "I feel better than I have for a long time. You see this is taking me closer to home." He paused, then added, "Say, can you put my nickname, 'Baby,' in there? That's the first English word I learned."

Pvt. David McKeown of Philadelphia said "I'm r'arin' to go. I'm all on edge and my nickname if you want to use it is Dandy Dan."

Pvt. Robert C. Bue of Dayton, O., said "I'm certainly glad to leave Africa."

Private John Noncak, of Fulton, N. Y., said, "I feel just like the rest of the boys."

Private Louis Mendieta, who has no home town, said, "I can live anywhere in a free land. I might some day want to live in Sicily. So I figure we'd better get going."

Sergeant Jack Gavin, of Lincoln, Neb., operations man of a combat team: "We are going in with the colonel so everything is going to be all right."

Private Francis Dogget, of Dayton, Ohio: "I feel pretty good right now."

Private Nalty R. Keen, of Brookhaven, Mass.: "I've been waiting twelve months for this. Say, will the folks back in the States read your story? If something does happen I'd like them to know."

Corporal Doug Gabriel, of Richmond, Calif.: "I want to get it over with—the quicker the better."

Private Willie Snowden, of Miami, Ariz.: "I don't know how I feel, but I will when I jump."

Private Robert N. Lowry, of Indianapolis, said, "I feel damn good. Of course, I've felt better.

Sergeant Bob Gillette, of Lewiston, Idaho, celebrated his twenty-third birthday today. "We will give him Sicily for a birthday present," chuckled some of the others.

These were some of the enlisted men who would jump with the colonel. Other officers in the commander's plane included Lt.-Col. William T. Ryder, "father of American paratroopers," who was going along as an observer; Maj. Benjamin Vandevoort, combat executive officer, and Capt. A. W. Ireland, adjutant.

Jack Thompson, correspondent for the Chicago Tribune, who had jumped in the early Tunisian campaign, also was in the plane.

"OK, load," ordered the colonel. The men drew the last puff of smoke, tightened the chin straps on their helmets and climbed aboard. One by one they disappeared into the cabin. Thir commander saluted an assembled group, then he too climbed inside, taking the seat nearest the door since he would be the first to jump.

PLANES FILL SKY

The plane was piloted by Col. Jerome C. McCauley of Denton, Tex. The co-pilot was Capt. Albert Fahy of Rome, Ga. Upon their skill depended the initial success of the mission.

The motors roared to life. All over the field motors of many transports filled with Yank paratroopers began roaring and the roar resounded over many other fields in North Africa.

It was dusk and the wind still blew. From darkening corners taxied the transports.

The colonel's plane rose gracefully like a bird and one by one the others nosed through the dust clouds and rose into the night air in smart formations of three each. Fighters hovered above them and above the fighters passed wave after wave of bombers.

The sky was filled with planes as far as the eye could see.

The liberation of Europe had begun.

AXIS' SULPHUR SUPPLY MENACED BY ALLIES

Sicily Source of Component of Food and Munitions

WITH AMERICAN INVASION TROOPS, July 10 (Delayed) (AP)— As Allied troops smashed across the beaches of Sicily they menaced one of the Axis' most valuable sources of food and war materials—sulphur.

Sicily's mines have been Germany's and Italy's greatest source of sulphur for munitions. Until the turn of the century Sicilian sulphur mines enjoyed a virtual world monopoly. But then the United States entered the market with improved and more efficient mining methods and soon became a strong competitor of the Sicilian sulphur industry.

Sicilian sulphur mines were having a difficult time trying to compete with American industry until an accord was reached whereby the industry received a virtual monopoly over the European market. With this non-competitive area in which to sell and by adopting American efficiency methods to cut costs, the sulphur industry flourished once again.

While agriculture and fishing are the two major industries, sulphur mining is important — more perhaps as a source of munitions and raw materials than for the revenue derived.

STRATEGIC POSITION OCCUPIED BY GELA

Fine Roads Lead From Harbor Where Americans Landed

Gela, the city on the south coast of Sicily where American invasion forces landed, is of strategic importance to the Allies because of its fine open roadstead, the coastal railway that passes through it and the highways leading to the interior.

The city stands astride a sandhill some 150 feet high, and in 1931 had a population of 30,000. Most of the inhabitants are dependent upon farming for a living, with wheat, cotton and cork as the principal crops. The mild, equable climate is typical of the extreme south of Europe.

Gela is roughly rectangular in shape with two main highways, one running north and south and the other east and west, bisecting it at a square in the center of the city. A fine eighteenth century cathedral stands there, and in peacetime housed several notable works of art, including "The Transit of the Virgin," by Vincenzo da Pavia, a pupil of Raphael, and "The Marriage of Canaan," by an artist of the Novelli school. Several other churches and a tower dating back to the thirteenth century are among other points of interest on the square.

Riddled Fortress Fells 9 of 25 Nazi Fighters

'Wabbit Tracks' Limps Home From France, Crew Unhurt

LONDON, July 11 (AP).—The Flying Fortress Wabbit Tracks shot down nine German fighters out of a swarm of twenty-five which riddled it full of holes in a running half-hour battle Saturday in the American raid on France. Wabbit Tracks limped back to its base without a single crewman hurt, the 8th United States Air Force disclosed tonight.

The Fortress was piloted by Captain Walter E. Flagg, of Susanville, Calif. It was forced to fight it out with a Focke-Wulf when its No. 1 engine failed four miles above France, compelling it to turn away from its targets.

The dogfights continued across the Channel almost to the English coast and Flagg brought in the ship with more than 500 bullet holes in its wings, fuselage, tail and engines.

Montgomery Veterans May Be in Sicily Battle

LONDON, July 11 (AP)—A hint that Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's famed British Eighth Army, which booted the Axis out of the Middle East in one of history's most brilliant military campaigns, may be participating in the invasion of Sicily came today in the first press dispatch from the Sicilian landings.

A story written by Ross Munro, Canadian press staff writer who accompanied Canadian troops on their invasion assault, suggested strongly that the battle-tired Eighth Army veterans were actually taking part in the new offensive.

Without elaboration Munro wrote that the Canadians established "an extensive bridgehead which was the Canadians' initial task in the Eighth Army invasion plan."

TOKYO SITUATION

LONDON, July 11 — (AP) Tokyo radio has warned the Japanese people that the situation in Italy is "extremely grave." The broadcast was recorded by the Associated Press.

The broadcast was of an editorial appearing in "Jimiuri Hoke," Tokyo newspaper.

"Mussolini is imposing iron discipline not only on his people but also on all functionaries of the party and the regime," the broadcast said. "The situation in our beloved Italy is extremely grave."

ITALIANS IN CHARGE

LISBON, July 11 — (AP) A DNB, German news agency, dispatch from Berlin, quoted a Wilhelmstrasse spokesman today as saying the defense of Italian territory is in Italian hands.

BIG ALLIED ARMY REPORTED IN SYRIA

Nazis Say Million Men Stand Ready for Balkan Venture

JUL 12 1943

LONDON, July 11—(AP) Four Allied bridgeheads have been established on Sicily, the German radio said tonight, and Axis sources were quoted in a Bern, Switzerland, broadcast as saying the United Nations had massed a 1,000,000-man army in Syria.

The Germans said the bridgeheads were near Gela, near Licata, near Cape Passero and south of Syracuse. The report was recorded by the Associated Press.

Other Allied landings north of Syracuse and northeast of Marsala were declared by Berlin to have been driven off by coastal defenses. All Allied parachutists except a small group west of Ragusa were reported wiped out.

Allied Advance Reported

American troops were said to be advancing cautiously from their landings near Gela and Licata toward the mountains north of Gela bay but "were soon held up as heavy fighting ensued." The report asserted that in the early stages, only light coastal defenses forces met the invaders but "since dawn today, prepared reserves have started to counter-attack."

The report of massed might in Syria was attributed by Bern to both Berlin and Rome sources. It suggested an operation against the Italian Dodecanese islands off Turkey, the big Greek island of Crete or the Balkan peninsula itself. The troops were said to have been shifted from North African bases. The report had no substantiation in Allied accounts.

If true, the force probably would comprise the British Ninth, Tenth and possibly the Eighth armies. The Eighth, which chased Marshal Erwin Rommel 1,600 miles across African desert sands to his final defeat in Tunisia, has been reported removed to the Syrian region before by Axis sources.

Broadcast Battle Reports

Axis communiques, broadcast from Berlin and Rome were grim about the battle for Sicily.

Berlin said:

"Heavy fighting is in progress at the southeast coast of Sicily between German-Italian troops and landed enemy forces." The Germans said 64 Allied planes and two transports totalling 13,000 tons had been destroyed; that three Allied cruisers and numerous transports and landing boats were damaged heavily.

Rome said officially:

"A bitter battle is in progress along the coastal strip of southeastern Sicily. Italian and German troops are energetically engaging the enemy forces that have landed and are holding them. Opposing air forces are intensely active."

The Italians claimed only 31 Allied planes destroyed. The transports were reported sunk by Italian torpedo boats. Three cruisers, "numerous other merchant ships," seven transports and many landing craft were declared damaged so heavily "their sinking was considered probable."

Two hours before the Germans admitted bridgeheads had been established on Sicily, the German overseas radio had asserted flatly that none were established and added:

"On the contrary, the British and American advance detachments on the island, insofar as they have not been encircled and annihilated, are having the greatest difficulty in holding their own against German and Italian troops."

The abrupt change in the propaganda theme suggested that the Germans were preparing the home front for loss of the island which guards the Italian mainland's south flank.

Rome boasted that invading parachute troops came down in "well garrisoned" areas and were given "the right receeption." The sky troops were declared "splendidly equipped."

"Many enemy paratroop detachments were decimated as they came down," Radio Rome added. "Others were immediately sighted, were localized, rapidly surrounded and made prisoner.

A communiquqe from Allied headquarters in North Africa, however, said parachute and glider-borne troops achieved success with "negligible losses."

A gloomy Axis account came from the Vichy radio, quoting an Italian spokesman: "the enemy is attacking with a superior force after preparing the ground with continuous, overwhelming air attacks. This is a difficult hour for us. The Allies have immense air fleets . . . covering and assisting the operations."

STIMSON IN BRITAIN FOR WAR MEETING

U.S. Official Interrupts Plane Trip to Visit Troops in Iceland.

JUL 12 1943

LONDON, July 11 (AP) Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson arrived today from Washington less than 48 hours after the invasion of Sicily began, and the assumption here was that his flying visit was connected with coming moves against the Axis in Europe.

He will confer with top military and civilian authorities in Britain, particularly with the American commander in the European theater of operations, Lieut. Gen. Jacob L. Devers. The general and other ranking officers met the secretary at an undisclosed airport.

William L. Harriman, expediter of Lease-Lend to Britain, was among those greeting Stimson.

It was the secretary's first visit to a theater of operations since the United States entered the war.

With him were Brig. Gen. Alexander D. Surles; Harvey H. Bundy, a special assistant; Lieut. Col. William H. S. Wright; Lieut. Gordon Grand of Millbrook, N. Y., Secretary Stimson's aide de camp; and a clerk, Corp. William Ford.

A Reykjavik dispatch disclosed that Secretary Stimson had visited Iceland and its American garrison Saturday. He told a press conference there:

"I am here to visit my own troops who were the first to leave home in the defense of freedom. My privilege and duty is to bring a word of good cheer to the troops."

Fighter Command Typhoons, Mustangs and Spitfires attacked targets in Belgium and France today, destroying or damaging locomotives, tugs, barges, canal locks and two gasoline trucks. Two fighters were lost in these sweeps, it was stated authoritatively.

Forts Score Telling Hits

Films Show Damage To French Airfields

LONDON, July 11 (AP)—Flying Fortresses scored numerous direct hits on the key German airdromes at French fields in Caen and Abbeville, the 8th United States air force announced tonight after studying photographs.

A large concentration of bombs hit administration buildings and barracks at Caen in a raid yesterday. Numerous bombs were dumped on the storage area and a direct hit was made on an adjacent railway. One or two anti-aircraft positions were hit at Caen.

Similar damage was reported at Abbeville, where a whole string of bombs splattered across the landing area.

Many of the big bombers encountered bad weather and one large formation, following instructions to avoid indiscriminate bombing, returned to its bases with three full loads of explosives. Three fortresses were lost.

British Boston bombers attacked several French powerhouses near Bethune this afternoon, the air ministry said. The electric plants were serving German war industry. One bomber reported planting four hits in the center of the objective. Pilots encountered considerable anti-aircraft fire but only one crew reported seeing German fighters and these did not attack.

Overnight, British coastal Beaufighters set afire an Axis escort vessel off Norway, leaving it settling, the air ministry said. One RAF plane was lost.

COMPLETES TOUR OF FRANCE

LONDON, July 11 — (AP) The German-controlled Paris radio reported today that Field Marshal Karl von Runstedt, commander of Nazi troops in western Europe, has completed a tour of German fortifications in western France. The broadcast, recorded by the Associated Press, added that he had assisted at maneuvers of German armored divisions.

Alexander Praises Seamen

LONDON, July 11 (AP)—A. V. Alexander, First Lord of the Admiralty, praised Allied seamen tonight for "the wonderful feat" in taking "the largest armada of merchant ships and naval craft" across the Mediterranean.

"This is a great occasion for saying 'Thank You,'" Mr. Alexander said in an appeal for contributions to King George's fund for sailors.

BRITISH SINK GERMAN BOAT OFF FRENCH COAST

LONDON, July 11.—(AP) Light British and Norwegian naval forces heavily damaged and probably sank an Axis torpedo boat and an escorting "R" boat off the French coast 45 miles northeast of Ushant a half hour after midnight Saturday, an Admiralty communique said tonight.

Three enemy torpedo boats and an undisclosed number of "R" boats were in the Axis group. All Allied ships returned safely, although a small number of casualties were reported.

Possibly referring to the same action, the Berlin radio said light German naval units sank a British destroyer and two torpedo boats in a 25-minute skirmish off Brest. The Germans said other ships were damaged and that one German ship was abandoned as unseaworthy.

Berlin Reports Three Sinkings

LONDON, July 11 (AP).—D. N. B., the German official news agency, said today in a broadcast from Berlin recorded by The Associated Press that Axis torpedo planes had sunk three Allied ships in the Mediterranean. The broadcast did not give the date of the sinkings.

ENEMY SHIP SET AFIRE

LONDON, July 11.—(AP) R.A.F. coastal command Beaufighters attacked an enemy escort vessel off the Norwegian coast last night, setting it afire and leaving it settling by the stern, the Air Ministry news service reported today.

Plot Against Duce Reported

LONDON, July 12 (Monday) (AP).—A Tass (Soviet official news agency) broadcast from Moscow early today reported that mass arrests had been made among Fascist party members in Taranto Province in southeastern Italy after discovery of a plot against Premier Mussolini. The Russian agency quoted an Istanbul dispatch saying that the federal secretary for Taranto, a Dr. Perrone, was among those arrested.

The broadcast, recorded by the Soviet monitor at London, added that General Galbiati, identified as chief of the Fascist militia, had gone to the province to suppress the conspiracy.

JUL 12 1943

MUSSOLINI PRESIDES AT CABINET SESSION

BERN, Switzerland, July 11—(AP) Private reports from Italy tonight said that Premier Mussolini presided at a cabinet meeting this morning, that Fascist party expulsions were continuing, and that Germany had taken no steps to send reserves into Sicily.

A dispatch published here also said that Mussolini and King Vittorio Emanuele had made a point of being seen publicly in Rome where "the atmosphere was heavy."

None of this information could be confirmed. The situation inside Italy, as given in dispatches passed by Italian censors, largely was implied by the correspondents' use of words. One Rome report said the Allied attack on Sicily had "changed nothing in everyday appearances," but that "there is the greatest imaginable tension."

I. R. A. Hunger Strike Fails

DUBLIN, July 11 (AP).—Three Irish Republican Army internees at the Curragh camp ended today a forty-nine-day hunger strike without obtaining their object—unconditional release.

Latvians Wreck Troop Train

STOCKHOLM, July 11 (AP).—Latvian partisans wrecked a German troop train near Latgale, killing "hundreds" of soldiers, the newspaper "Aftontidningen" reported today. Some Germans who escaped death were captured and others were reported to have been recruited by the partisans, the account added.

London Reports Soviets Attacking 20-Mile Nazi Wedge Toward Kursk

By The Associated Press

LONDON, July 12 (Monday).—A 400-tank German assault, perhaps the greatest of the war, failed to budge the Red Army from its positions on the Orel-Kursk front on Sunday, and the Russians were able to throw the disorganized mechanized masses from two populated places in that sector to climax the first week of the great summer offensive, Moscow announced early today.

Nowhere along the 165-mile Kursk salient from Orel to Belgorod could the Germans achieve anything resembling a breakthrough, a Russian midnight communique said, adding that throughout the day Red Army troops continued to beat off massed enemy tank and infantry assaults.

[A London broadcast recorded by the Columbia Broadcasting System said that in a week's fighting the Germans had driven a twenty-mile wedge north of Belgorod up the railway toward Russian-held Kursk but that the Russians were counter-attacking at both the tip and the base of the wedge.]

165 Tanks Lost by Nazis

A German broadcast heard by The Associated Press said Russian losses in the Belgorod sector were "enormous" and made the assertion that "at no other time in the whole war" had the Russians suffered such heavy casualties.

During Sunday's fighting, Moscow said, 165 more German tanks were destroyed or disabled and thirty-one planes were brought down for a week's total of 2,500 tanks and 1,068 planes.

"In the Orel-Kursk area," said the midnight communique, which was recorded by the Soviet monitor at London from a Moscow broadcast, "the enemy, having so far achieved no successes in his offensive, again tried to break Soviet defenses using large forces. The Germans sent about 400 tanks and large numbers of infantry into battle.

"Red Army men of one formation beat off the fierce enemy attacks. All subsequent attacks of the Hitlerites failed. By the end of the day the enemy was hurled back to his former position, leaving many disabled and burned-out tanks on the battlefield."

Foe Battered From Air

A large group of Soviet planes pounced on a German tank division forming for an early morning attack on the Orel-Kursk front, smashed "several dozens" of them and dispersed two regiments of enemy infantry. Afterward Soviet ground forces attacked "and dislodged them from two populated places."

Stiff battles were acknowledged in the Belgorod area, where the Germans shelled Russian positions heavily and sent tank and infantry attacks against them from several directions. One column of 100 tanks was engaged by Soviet defenses, which destroyed thirty-four tanks, three armored cars and fourteen guns.

An air communique declared that Russian aircraft bombed the railway junction at Belgorod, where a large concentration of enemy trains was observed the night of July 10. Large numbers of fires and explosions resulted, the communique said.

Front-line dispatches continued to assert flatly at Moscow that the German offensive had been halted and the Nazis confined to small gains.

"The German wedges are exposed to the continuous mass fire of our artillery, tanks and aviation and to incessant attacks from the flanks and the rear," declared "Red Star," army newspaper. It added that the German offensive had "obviously not been the success expected by the German command."

Tell of Soviet Losses

The Associated Press heard a broadcast by the International Information Bureau, a German propaganda agency, saying the Russians had lost 1,197 planes and 1,709 tanks in six days of fighting, asserting this meant that Russian tank reserves had been so depleted as to be considered a total loss. The agency declared the Germans had advanced on both ends of the Kursk salient and that "tank units advanced considerably in the wood north of belgorod on the eastern bank of the Donets."

West of Rostov, on the southern front, a company of enemy infantry was shelled and partly destroyed and in another sector Soviet scouts blew up three blockhouses, the Russian midnight communique said.

Northeast of Novorossisk in the Caucasus, two German companies attempting a reconnaissance retreated under Russian rifle and machine-gun fire, leaving fifty dead. Artillery and mortar fire on the Leningrad front demolished twenty-two German blockhouses, it was said.

[The German high command, in a broadcast recorded Sunday by The Associated Press, reported: "The great battle in the east continues with unabated violence. In the course of bitter fighting our troops gained further ground and destroyed 193 Soviet tanks."]

Axis Reinforces Spain-to-Italy Coast Defenses

Freighters Rush Troops to Sardinia and Corsica From Ports in France

MADRID, July 11 (AP).—Frontier reports said tonight that Axis European garrison forces had been shifted to strengthen further the coastal defenses from France's Gulf of Lion, near Spain, eastward to Italy. Coastal freighters were said to be plying from French ports, taking reinforcements to Sardinia and Corsica.

Both islands were reported in a state of alarm since Sicily was invaded. The alarm arose from estimates of Allied strength in the Mediterranean, which observers here and elsewhere said was sufficient for other landings besides those in Sicily.

Madrid newspaper correspondents in Rome devoted their first dispatches on the Sicilian battle to assertions that the Italians were not surprised; that the Allies have tremendous forces of naval, supply and troop ships and men engaged in the operations, and that the Germans and Italians were cooperating closely in Sicily. The Spanish reports from Rome declared Sicily was independent of supplies from the Italian mainland.

Even if Sicily should fall, the Spanish correspondents wrote, it "will not be the decisive battle for Europe" because, they said, the Allies may have to prepare for months before their next major move.

"One sector of the Sicilian front is held by Italian units and right next to it is a German unit," one Spaniard wrote from Rome. "So it goes everywhere in Sicily."

Frontier reports indicated that even the Atlantic fortifications of France were being drained of some of their troops to strengthen the Axis position in the Mediterranean.

Rome dispatches suggested that the main axis defense problem at the moment was to provide an air cover for the defending forces.

Axis Bolsters Balkan Line

ISTANBUL, Turkey, July 10 (AP).—The Axis was reported moving new men and materials south through the Balkans today to meet a possible landing threat there.

A month ago one region in Greece was said to be lightly defended by Italian forces. Today, it was learned here, at least one German motorized division has been stationed in that area under direction of German officers. Italian garrisons were said to have been moved to new strategic positions along the south coast of Greece.

Allies Press Air Offensive Against Burma Japanese

U. S. Fighter Bombers Blast Sumprabum and Maungkan

NEW DELHI, India, July 11 (AP).—American fighter bombers pursued their offensive yesterday against the Japanese in Burma, bombing Sumprabum and Maungkan, 110 miles west of Kamaing. A 10th Air Force communique said today that three large buildings were hit at Sumprabum and that all bombs hit the target area at Maungkan.

Japanese installations were strafed and set on fire at Tamanthi, ninety-two miles southwest of Kamaing. All planes and crews returned safely.

British bombers and fighters hit the Japanese on Akyab Island, strafed river craft on the Irrawaddy and shot up trucks on the Prome-Yaungup Road, a Royal Air Force communique said.

TWO JAP AIR BASES BLASTED BY BOMBS

Munda, Kahili Airdromes in Solomons Hit by Divebombers.

JUL 12 1943

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Monday, July 12 — (AP) Allied bombers struck new heavy blows at Japan's major bases in the southwest Pacific Sunday, hurling 52 tons of bombs on Munda and 40 tons on Kahili airdrome, a major enemy air operating base on Bougainville island.

Avengers and Dauntless bombers pounded enemy anti-aircraft positions and bivouac areas on Bibelo hill in the Munda area with heavy bombs. Results of the attack were not observed, however.

Munda's Primary Objective

The raid on this key Japanese base in the central Solomons raised to 119 tons the weight of bombs dropped there in two days. Munda is the primary initial objective of the powerful new offensive launched by General Douglas MacArthur less than two weeks ago.

Other planes searching for enemy warships last reported in the vicinity of New Georgia, found a small force of cruisers and destroyers headed northwest in the direction of Faisi in the northern Solomons.

There was no report of any contact by our surface vessels with a Japanese naval force on which our bombers scored two direct hits with 500-pound bombs Saturday near the mouth of Kula gulf. The last report on this force, a headquarters spokesman said, was of a reconnaissance plane which sighted it sailing northwestward Saturday under cover of a story front. It was then 15 miles north of Kolombangara island.

In addition to the raids on the two large enemy air bases in the Solomons, the Allied attack extended also all the way from Rabaul, New Britain, to Koepang on Dutch Timor.

Thirty-five tons of bombs were dropped on the runway and dispersal areas of Vunakanau airdrome at Rabaul, starting five large fires and many smaller ones which were followed by a number of heavy explosions. One of the large blazes was believed to have been a fuel dump.

In direct support of ground forces in the Salamaua area of New Guinea, medium bombers attacked enemy positions on Bobdubi ridge and at Kela and Missions points, dropping 49 tons of bombs. Fighters escorting the bombers shot down five Zeros and probably destroyed two more at the cost of two of our fighters missing.

There was no mention of progress of the ground fighting in the Salamaua area.

Allies Raid Munda Anew, Blast Harbor at Rabaul

New Georgia Base Is Battered for Second Day; Five Zeros Are Felled in Battle Over Salamaua; Japanese Fleet Near Kolombangara Flees

By The Associated Press

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, July 12 (Monday). — Fifty-two tons of bombs were dropped Sunday on the Japanese air base at Munda, New Georgia, General Douglas MacArthur's headquarters announced today in a communique.

Other Allied heavy bombers pounded Rabaul, enemy harbor and air base in New Britain, and struck also at the Buinfaisi area in the northern Solomons sector.

Five Japanese Zeros were shot down by American Lightnings in a battle over Salamaua, New Guinea, the communique said. Elsewhere over New Guinea, Liberator bombers downed four Zeros.

Japanese warships which had been sighted in the vicinity of Kolombangara Island headed for the Kula Gulf escaped without contact with American surface vessels and headed for Faisi, the communique said.

The ground position at Munda, where American troops are closing in from the east and from the north, was reported unchanged.

The bombs dropped Sunday on the Munda area raised to 119 tons the weight scattered there in the last two days.

Penfoei Airdrome at Koepang, Timor, scene of repeated Allied attacks, was bombed again in a night raid. Fires were started.

Two-engined bombers on night patrol over the Aroe Islands, 500 miles north of Darwin, Australia, machine-gunned the enemy seaplane base at Taberfane. Hits were scored on three float planes and on a flying boat.

Allied four-engined bombers made a daylight attack on Babo, on MacClure Gulf, Dutch New Guinea, scoring many hits in the airdrome supply dump and dispersal locations. The communique said "extensive fires" were started in the building area.

Ten enemy fighters intercepted the Allied heavyweights and four of them were shot down and another one probably destroyed and still another damaged. "We lost one plane in combat," the communique said of that engagement.

The attack in the Rabaul area was directed at Vunakanau airdrome, where thirty-five tons of bombs were dropped in a pre-dawn raid. The explosives fell on the runway and dispersal areas and five large fires were started, one apparently a fuel dump.

LONDON IS CAUTIOUS ON SICILIAN SUCCESS

Military Commentators Warn of Hard Fighting Ahead

LONDON, Monday, July 12 (AP)—The rapidity with which the early successes in Sicily were accomplished was hailed in the London press today, but comment was tempered with caution regarding the days of battle to come. Military analysts voiced surprise at the comparative ease with which the initial stage was completed and cautioned against belief that the next step would be so easy.

Some quarters suggested that the absence of determined counter-attacks might indicate the Axis had decided to permit the invaders to become deeply committed before unfolding its own moves.

The quickness with which the Allied landings were effected was regarded as ample proof that Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower planned not to allow the enemy to gain the initiative.

"This attack must be put in its proper setting," said The Telegraph. "Though the blow has been delivered at Sicily, the enemy is very far from being able to denude other vulnerable points in order to repel it, for official communiqués clearly indicate nothing like the whole force available in the Mediterranean is being used for this invasion."

The News Chronicle said, "We don't believe the people of the United States or the people of the British Empire are under any illusion about the grimness of the task which lies immediately ahead."

U.S. AIRPORT WORK IN FOREIGN LANDS WILL BE PROBED

Truman Committee Members to Study Terms of Agreements.

POST-WAR USE SOUGHT

Senators on World Trip to Visit Projects Built by American Funds.

WASHINGTON, July 11 — (AP) The Truman war investigating committee has ordered an inquiry into contracts which members provide for turning over hundreds of American-built military airports to foreign nations six months after the war ends.

Chairman Truman (D.-Mo.) said Senators Mead (D.-N.Y.) and Brewster (R.-Me.) had been instructed to look into the terms of foreign airport agreements on an aerial trip they will start late this month with three other senators to inspect American troops and equipment in far corners of the world.

Will Make Recommendations

Senator Mead told reporters that he and Senator Brewster hope to bring back recommendations which will aid this government in establishing a policy which at least would permit post-war use by American planes of the landing fields built with War department and lend-lease funds along the aerial highways all over the globe. The two senators are holding conferences with Army, Navy, Lend-Lease and Board of Economic Warfare officials preliminary to the aerial trip, Senator Mead said.

"It is our understanding that hundreds of fine airports have been built and are being built with American money in foreign areas and that these fields will revert to the countries in which they are located six months after the war ends," Senator Mead said.

"If there is anything in Lend-Lease in reverse, we certainly should have some concessions which would permit our commercial planes to land on the fields and use their facilities in the post-war era."

Britain Interested in Air

The New York Senator said he had been told that representatives of the British government already have begun discussions with American officials looking to an agreement for "the right of innocent passage" for British planes over American territory, as well as the use of American landing fields after the war. Any reciprocal agreement would give American planes the same rights in British territory.

"Of course," he said, "the right of innocent passage eventually means the right to pick up and discharge passengers and freight. Certainly the biggest transportation developments after the war are coming in aviation and we ought to be working out some policy for this country to follow."

A special aviation committee lead by Senator Clark (D.-Mo.) already has begun an inquiry into post-war plans of private airlines to expand their services to foreign countries but Senator Clark said discussion with airline executives thus far had been on general policies.

Senator Mead said the Truman committee had been informed that the military fields constructed by the armed forces and in Lend-Lease operations range in size from small, temporary airports to at least one of the most expensive type, which he said cost upwards of $100,000,000.

Such an airport, he added, is equipped with long permanent landing strips, tremendous hangars and large dispersal areas, and contains machine shops which can repair, rebuild or alter planes as the necessities of military combat demand.

ITALIANS REVERSE VIEWS ON AIR RAIDS

Now Denounce Bombings Which They Approved When They Picked Targets.

JUL 12 1943

WASHINGTON, July 11. — (AP) The record shows that Italian Fascist leaders have made a complete about-face on the matter of air bombing since they have been on the receiving end.

Noting that Italian propaganda now denounces Allied bombings of Italy as "vile and useless barbarism," the Office of War Information produced these excerpts today from speeches and publications by Fascist leaders and their press in other days:

Mussolini addressing the Italian Senate on March 25, 1939—"War from above must be conducted in a manner to disorganize the enemy positions, to dominate the sky, to fracture the morale of the people."

Robert Farinacci, former general secretary of the Fascist party, speaking in 1940 when the German Luftwaffe was demolishing cities of the low countries and France—"It is useless to hide our exultation over what is happening these days."

An article appearing in the Italian publication Resto del Carlino in 1940—"Well then hurrah for brutality! We Italians also ought to be and we will know how to be brutal, for there is no other way of salvation."

Japanese Voice Resentment at Arkansas Camp

Evacuees Criticize Food and Crowding; Some Profess Loyalty to U. S.

ROHWER, Ark., July 11 (AP).—Japanese at this relocation center are restless, resentful, bewildered. . . . There is mingled loyalty to the United States . . . There are complaints about the food, against crowded conditions. . . . There is a juvenile delinquency problem.

These are some of the things disclosed during a two-day "open house" conducted by the War Relocation Authority. All censorship was lifted and reporters were permitted to talk freely with the evacues.

There are 7,703 persons at the center, 64 per cent of them American citizens. E. B. Whitaker, regional W. R. A. chief, estimates 500 adults and their children—about 1,500 in all—retain allegiance to Japan.

Oriental medicine is retarding the task of identifying this group, even the loyal Japanese-Americans showing reluctance to name them.

About fifty Japanese leave the center each month after they have obtained jobs elsewhere. If the Federal Bureau of Investigation has no record on them, and if the evacuee has a good character and work record at the center, he is granted indefinite leave.

The bitterness of seven evacuees interviewed was tempered by resignation and hope that they would be permitted to relocate in the North or Mid-west. Their one desire was to take up their lives where they left off last year when Japanese were scooped up into West Coast assembly centers.

As a twenty-nine-year old former California produce broker put it:

"We want a chance to prove we're Americans. We want to be treated as people, not as Japanese."

Only one of the Japanese interviewed indicated loyalty to Japan. Twenty-two-year old Shiuro Nakashita, leader of the camp's young Buddhist club. He said he was born in Japan and came to this country at the age of three. When I asked who he would like to see win the war, his lips closed tightly.

"Do you want America to win?" he was asked.

"I'd rather not say," he said.

George Tominaga, twenty-nine, a native-born Californian who holds a medical discharge from the United States Army, said conditions "make us feel we are in a concentration camp," but added "it is only to our advantage to make the best of it."

Tominaga, whose Army discharge came two months before the evacuation, said: "I know no other country besides America. I'd give anything to be back in the Army. Something like this is bound to make a person bitter."

Then there was Tom Tsutsumi, a Nisei, who owned a ten-acre walnut grove near Lodi, Calif., and cash-rented 250 adjoining acres of farmland. His only child, a ten-month-old boy, died last April, and he felt the relocation was responsible for the child's death.

"But I'm an American citizen," he said. "If our children can be assured they'll grow up without being discriminated against, I guess in the long run this will be a small price to pay."

The Japanese complain of the high starch content in their diet. In the mess hall where reporters ate—a huge room, well ventilated and screened, but infested by flies—the noon meal was composed of masses of soggy rice, hard spaghetti, an ear of corn, heaped on one plate, with a salad, bread and choice of water, tea or milk. My Japanese companion said "this is supposed to be an extra good meal."

Asked why, with the garden season at its peak, the evacuees were fed a diet so high in starch, Whitaker said "it takes a lot of vegetables to feed 7,000 folks, and you can't make all of them go around."

Evacuees are housed in long, tar-papered barracks, one room to the family. The low buildings, spread in orderly rows across one square mile of cut-over Arkansas delta land, are divided into thirty-three blocks, each of which has a communal mess-hall, toilet and washroom.

Housewives have made the best of the crowded quarters. The rooms, most of which have two windows, were partially furnished by W. R. A., and evacuees have added half-partitions and rude furniture made of scrap lumber. They were allowed to bring a few possessions with them.

The juvenile delinquency problem is traced to weakening of the patriarchal tradition. One evacuee, who has two sons seventeen and nineteen, and who used to provide "fairly well" for them on his earnings from a retail shoe store in Stockton, Calif., put it this way:

"I no longer provide the bread for their table and the roof over their heads. So, they say, 'why should I respect what you say and obey your word?'"

There are approximately 2,028 children enrolled in nursery, kindergarten, elementary and secondary schools on the Rohwer project, and attendance is regular.

U. S. Bankers See End Of Nazis by Fall, 1944

CHICAGO, July 11 (AP).—A poll of presidents of the nation's 100 largest banks, conducted by the trade magazine "Finance," disclosed today that most bankers believe the European phase of the war will be over by the autumn of 1944 and the war with Japan will last an additional six months to three years.

In making public the results of its survey, the publication said October, 1944, was the most popular choice as the month in which Germany would be knocked out of the conflict. November, 1943, was the second popular choice.

The magazine said many of those answering "Finance's" questionnaire have talked with members of the President's Cabinet and military leaders.

671 CARGO VESSELS SUNK IN ATLANTIC

British Ship Destroyed, Entire Crew Reaches Brazil.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

By the Associated Press—5 1-2 pt

The sinking of the British merchant ship Vernon City last June 28 brought to 671 the Asociated Press total of announced losses of Allied and neutral merchantmen in the western Atlantic since Pearl Harbor.

The destruction of the Vernon City in the south Atlantic was disclosed last week when the entire crew of 53 arrived in three life boats at a Brazilian port.

The Navy, which announced no losses during the past seven days, has reported only one other Allied merchant sinking in June. A joint British-American statement declared that losses to submarine attacks last month were the lowest since the United States entered the war.

This presented a complete turnabout from the situation that prevailed in June, 1942, when 111 Allied and neutral cargo carriers were reported sunk in western Atlantic waters alone.

What's Behind The War News

By HAMILTON W. FARON

Spectacular landings of Allied forces on the shores of Sicily are the "beginning of the end" of Axis power, but it is well to remember that a long road stretches ahead marked with bitter battling and heavy casualties before the end itself is victoriously attained.

Even complete conquest of the big island off the toe of the Italian boot—and that remains to be accomplished — will be but a step down that road.

Immediately, of course, the principal problem on Sicily is vanquishing the estimated 300,000 Axis troops stationed there who can hardly be expected to give up without a fight.

Then there is the less spectacular but equally important problem of reinforcing Allied troops and providing supplies and equipment. That major undertaking must come in the face of Axis aerial opposition, and possibly of a concentration of enemy submarines in the Mediterranean to repel invasion movements.

Originally American, Canadian and British forces moved onto the island with comparatively minor opposition. But, Sicily isn't another Pantelleria or Lampedusa. Its size is such that coastal defenses necessarily were light to ring the entire island, and it can be assumed that Allied intelligence reports pointed the first landings at the most vulnerable point in light lines.

Initial thrusts, it has been learned in other invasion moves, always throw the defending forces back. But that can be expected to last only for a day or two. Then comes the test when the invading force attempts to move forward to complete occupation. On Sicily it cannot be assumed that the Axis armies will lie down.

Strategically, Sicily is of first-rank importance in the overall Mediterranean picture. Briefly, reasons for its importance to the Allied drive, might be summarized as:

1. It provides some 20 airfields from which bombing raids might be launched on all of Italy to force that nation out of the war.

2. It could be a base for land operations against the Italian peninsula.

3. It could be the stepping-off place for a pincers movement against the Greek peninsula with the other arm reaching from the Middle East.

4. It is part of a group of islands, including Sardinia, which could be stepping stones to southern France.

5. Control of Sicily would provide domination of shipping in the Mediterranean.

Assuming that the drive continues from Sicily into Italy and up the peninsula it would open two routes. One would be westward into southern France. Such a thrust would carry out pledges of President Roosevelt that the people of France shall be freed from Axis domination. Too, General Henri Giraud has said that French forces in North Africa number 300,000 men ready to strike when supplied with American arms. The other would be across the Adriatic and thence north, cutting off vitally needed oil for the German war machine. Also, conquest of northern Italy would provide airdromes much closer to the heart of Germany for bombers blasting Nazi industry.

Crete—already stung by Commando raids — and Greece, where the Axis is reported concentrating Italian troops under German officers, would be another Mediterranean route. It has advantages in that the people there could be expected to welcome the coming of Allied armies.

The cross-channel route striking at the western shores of Europe, remains a strong possibility despite the fact that heavy fortifications would have to be surmounted. It is short, the element of surprise would be easy to maintain and it can be given a complete umbrella of air protection throughout the move.

INVASION GENERAL HEINZERLING

LONDON, JULY 11-(AP)-THE FIRST EYEWITNESS DISPATCH FROM A NEWSPAPER CORRESPONDENT WITH THE ALLIED INVASION FORCES IN SICILY REPORTED TODAY THAT CANADIANS HIT THE COAST AT PACHINO "IN THE EIGHTH ARMY INVASION PLAN."

THE DISPATCH WAS WRITTEN BY ROSS MUNRO, CANADIAN PRESS WAR CORRESPONDENT.

JUL 12 1943

PACHINO, A FISHING TOWN WITH A NORMAL POPULATION OF ABOUT 15,000, WAS THE FIRST PLACE NAMED IN ANY ACCOUNT AS A SITE OF INVASION. IT IS LOCATED ON THE EXTREME SOUTHEASTERN CORNER OF THE TRIANGULAR ISLAND.

MUNRO'S DISPATCH DID NOT AMPLIFY HIS REFERENCE TO "THE EIGHTH ARMY INVASION ARMY". THIS NOTED BRITISH ARMY, WHICH DROVE MARSHAL ROMMEL WESTWARD ACROSS AFRICA, HAS BEEN RECENTLY REPORTED, WITHOUT CONFIRMATION, TO HAVE GONE TO THE MIDDLE EAST AFTER THE ALLIED TUNISIA VICTORY.)

MUNRO SAID THE CANADIAN TROOPS PARTICIPATING IN THE ALLIED ASSAULT FOUGHT THEIR WAY TO THE BEACHES AGAINST VERY LIGHT RESISTANCE AND ALREADY HAVE CAPTURED MANY PRISONERS.

JUL 12 1943

THE CANADIANS, THE DISPATCH REPORTED, LANDED FOUR MILES SOUTHWEST OF PACHINO AND WHILE THE FIRST RESISTANCE WAS LIGHT A MORE STUBBORN DEFENSE WAS SAID TO BE IN PROGRESS BY THE ITALIANS NORTH AND WEST OF THE TOWN.

MUNRO'S DISPATCH COVERED THE PERIOD FROM THE TIME OF THE PRE-DAWN LANDING UNTIL LATE AFTERNOON.

THE ITALIANS, IN A COMMUNIQUE BROADCAST FROM ROME AND RECORDED BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS , CLAIMED THAT 31 ALLIED PLANES HAD BEEN SHOT DOWN IN THE AIR BATTLE OVER SICILY. NINE OF THE PLANES WERE HIT BY ANTI-AIRCRAFT FIRE AND 22 WERE SHOT DOWN IN COMBAT, IT WAS SAID.

THE AXIS ALSO SAID THAT ITALIAN TORPEDO PLANES HAD "REPEATEDLY" ATTACKED ALLIED CONVOYS, SINKING TWO SHIPS TOTALLING 13,000 TONS AND DAMAGING TWO CRUISERS AND "NUMEROUS" OTHER MERCHANT SHIPS WHICH THEY SAID WERE SET AFIRE. THE COMMUNIQUE ADDED THAT A LIGHT CRUISER AND SEVEN LARGE AND MEDIUM TRANSPORTS WERE HIT BY GERMAN PLANES AND THEIR SINKING WAS "PROBABLE."

ON LAND, THE COMMUNIQUE SAID, ITALIAN AND GERMAN TROOPS WERE "ENERGETICALLY" ENGAGING THE ALLIED FORCES AND HAD HELD THEM.

THE ASSERTIONS OF THE GERMAN AIR FORCE WERE MORE ENTHUSIASTIC THAN THOSE OF THE ITALIANS. IN A BERLIN BROADCAST RECORDED BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS THE GERMANS SAID THEY HAD SHOT DOWN 64 ALLIED PLANES

ADMITTING THAT THE PICTURE OF THE FIGHTING WAS CONFUSED, THE BROADCAST SAID IT WAS CLEAR THAT HEAVY FIGHTING WAS GOING ON AT THE NUMEROUS BEACHES. "THE ALLIES HAVE IMMENSE AIR FLEETS X X X COVERING AND ASSISTING THE OPERATIONS," THE BROADCAST ADDED.

LONDON ADD explan

THIS INITIAL NEWS, RECEIVED 10 HOURS BEFORE ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA ANNOUNCED THAT CANADIAN AND BRITISH TROOPS HAD FORMED A JUNCTION ACROSS CAPE PASSERO AND WERE IN FULL POSSESSION OF THE AREA, WAS WELCOMED IN BRITAIN.

FOR SECURITY REASONS, THE STRENGTH AND COMPOSITION OF THE CANADIAN FORMATIONS MUNRO ACCOMPANIED FROM ENGLAND TO SICILY WERE NOT REVEALED--BUT IT IS SAFE TO ASSUME THAT THEY ARE IN GREATER NUMBER THAN AT DIEPPE LAST AUGUST WHEN TWO INFANTRY BRIGADES AND PART OF ONE ARMY TANK BRIGADE WERE USED.

IT WAS ONCE THOUGHT THAT WHEN THE CANADIANS WENT INTO BATTLE THEY WOULD GO AS AN ARMY, BUT THE TERM "ARMY" HAS CHANGED IN MEANING SINCE THE BEGINNING OF THE NORTH AFRICAN CAMPAIGN. TASK FORCES ASSIGNED TO SPECIAL JOBS AND EXTREMELY FLEXIBLE IN THEIR COMPOSITION ARE THE ARMIES OF TODAY.

WHILE THE BATTLE OF SICILY IS IN ITS INITIAL STAGES AT LEAST, THE CANADIANS MAY BE USED TO SUPPLEMENT THESE TASK FORCES JUST AS AUSTRALIAN AND NEW ZEALAND DIVISIONS FOUGHT AT ONE TIME OR ANOTHER DURING THE LIBYAN AND TUNISIAN CAMPAIGNS WITH THE EIGHTH ARMY.

MONTGOMERY AND THE CANADIANS ARE WELL ACQUAINTED, FOR THE FIRST CANADIANS REACHING ENGLAND IN LATE 1939 AND EARLY ORP SERVED UNDER THE ULSTER-BORN GENERAL WHEN HE WAS COMMANDING THE SOUTHEASTERN COMMAND.

MUNRO'S STORY MENTIONED "WESTERNERS" AND UNITS FROM NOVA SCOTIA, NEW BRUNSWICK AND QUEBEC, GOOD INDICATIONS THAT WESTERN CANADA AND THE TWO MARITIME PROVINCES ARE WELL REPRESENTED IN THE SOUTHEASTERN CORNER OF SICILY.

THE CANADIANS AND THEIR BRITISH COMRADES-IN-ARMS FOR THE EASTERN WING OF THE INVASION FORCES THAT WENT INTO SICILY'S COASTLINE AT SEVERAL POINTS.

"I GUESS THOSE JERRIES WERE WAITING FOR EASY MEAT LIKE US TO SHOW UP," FLAGG SAID AS HE CLIMBED OUT OF THE SIEVE, "WITH THAT AMOUNT OF LEAD COMING OUR WAY, I JUST SORT OF FIGURED FRANCE WAS A GOOD PLACE TO GET THE HELL OUT OF."

CROSSING THE CHANNEL ON THE WAY HOME, THE PILOT KEPT THE BOMBER JUST ABOVE THE WATER SO THE ENEMY FIGHTERS, COMING AT HIM FROM ALL SIDES, COULD NOT GET A SHOT IN FROM BELOW.

SEVEN MEMBERS OF THE "WABBIT TRACKS" CREW WERE CREDITED WITH

SERGT.BUDD R.SCHMIDT OF BREWSTER, WASH., TAIL GUNNER, AND SERGT. WILLIAM E.MORGAN OF FLINT, MICH., RADIO OPERATOR, EACH GOT TWO FOCKE-WULFS.

LONDON, MONDAY, JULY 12-(AP)-THE OPPOSITION, WHICH PROVED SURPRISINGLY INEFFECTIVE IN THE EARLY STAGES OF THE LANDING ON SICILY, APPEARED TODAY TO BE STIFFENING AS ALLIED FORCES BEGAN TO MOVE INLAND FOR THE SECOND PHASE OF THE INVASION.

THE RAPIDITY WITH WHICH THE EARLY SUCCESSES WERE ACCOMPLISHED WAS HAILED IN THE LONDON PRESS BUT COMMENT WAS TEMPERED WITH CAUTION REGARDING THE DAYS OF BATTLE TO COME.

FEWER THAN 40 HOURS AFTER THE GIANT OPERATION STARTED THE ALLIED INVADERS HAD CAPTURED THREE AIRDROMES AND OVERCOME ENEMY RESISTANCE ALONG A 100-MILE COASTAL FRONT. MILITARY ANALYSTS IN LONDON FRANKLY VOICED SURPRISE AT THE COMPARATIVE EASE WITH WHICH THE INITIAL STAGE WAS COMPLETED AND CAUTIONED AGAINST BELIEF THAT THE NEXT STEP WOULD BE SO EASY.

SOME QUARTERS SUGGESTED THAT THE ABSENCE OF DETERMINED COUNTER-ATTACKS MIGHT INDICATE THE AXIS HAD DECIDED TO PERMIT THE INVADERS TO BECOME DEEPLY COMMITTED BEFORE UNFOLDING ITS OWN COUNTER-MOVES.

THESE MOVES ARE EXPECTED MOMENTARILY.

SPEED IS A VITAL FACTOR BUT THE QUICKNESS WITH WHICH THE LANDINGS

WERE EFFECTED IS REGARDED AS AMPLE PROOF THAT GENERAL EISENHOWER DOES NOT PLAN TO ALLOW THE ENEMY TO GAIN THE INITIATIVE.

SO FAR MEAGER BATTLE REPORTS HAVE FAILED TO MENTION TANKS BUT IT IS STILL TOO EARLY IN THE FIGHTING FOR MANEUVERING BIG VEHICLES. A CLASH OF TANKS MAY NOT COME UNTIL THE ALLIED HAVE FORCED THEIR WAY TO THE PLAIN OF CATANIA, WHICH IS THE KEY TO THE WHOLE ISLAND.

"THIS ATTACK MUST BE PUT IN ITS PROPER SETTING," SAID THE TELEGRAPH. "THOUGH THE BLOW HAS BEEN DELIVERED AT SICILY, THE ENEMY IS VERY FAR FROM BEING ABLE TO DENUDE OTHER VULNERABLE POINTS IN ORDER TO REPEL IT FOR OFFICIAL COMMUNIQUES CLEARLY INDICATE NOTHING LIKE THE WHOLE FORCE AVAILABLE IN THE MEDITERRANEAN IS BEING USED FOR THIS INVASION.

AN RAF AIR-SEA RESCUE STATION ON BRITISH SOUTHEAST COAST, MONDAY, JULY 12-(AP)-THE SHEPHERDING ARM OF BRITAIN'S AIR-SEA RESCUE SERVICE REACHED INTO THE CHANNEL AND PULLED OUT 33 AMERICAN AIRMEN IN A STIRRING EPIC OF WARTIME LIFESAVING THAT FOLLOWED A RECENT FLYING FORTRESS RAID ON THE NAZI SUBMARINE BASE AT ST.NAZAIRE IN FRANCE.

ALMOST BEFORE THEY GOT THEIR FEET WET THE AMERICAN FLIERS WERE CLAMBERING INTO RESCUE CRAFT. SOME WERE PICKED UP LESS THAN 20 MINUTES AFTER THEY WERE FORCED TO ABANDON THEIR BANGED-UP SHIPS. WITHIN 24 HOURS ALL 33 HAD BEEN HAULED FROM THE ROUGH CHANNEL WATERS.

AMONG THEM WERE ENTIRE CREWS TAKEN FROM TOSSING, ORANGE-COLORED DINGHIES. OTHERS WHOSE DINGHIES HAD BEEN SHOT TO PIECES WERE

THRESHING ABOUT, SUPPORTED ONLY BY THEIR LIFEBELTS. MANY WERE WOUNDED OR SUFFERING FROM SHOCK.

IT WAS A RECORD WORKOUT FOR MEN OF THE SERVICE THAT IS DEVOTED ENTIRELY TO SUCCORING SHOT-DOWN AIRMEN. THE RAF SQUADRON STATIONED HERE ALONE HAS PARTICIPATED IN RESCUING MORE THAN 100 ALLIED FLIERS--MOSTLY AMERICANS--IN THE PAST THREE MONTHS.

SQUADRON LEADER RONNIE HAMLIN, 29-YEAR-OLD RAF VETERAN WHO LED THE RESCUE OF THE ST. NAZAIRE RAIDERS, SAID THAT AMERICAN BOMBER CREWS HAVE AN ALMOST 100 PERCENT CHANCE OF BEING RESCUED IF THEY LAND IN CHANNEL WATERS.

"HERE'S HOW WE WORK," HE EXPLAINED. "THE MOMENT A DISABLED PLANE SIGNALS IT IS GOING DOWN WE GET A FIX ON ITS POSITION THROUGH RADIO. SPITFIRE PATROL PLANES GO TO THE SPOT TO SIZE UP THE SITUATION.

"IF THE CREW HAS BEEN UNABLE TO GET OUT ITS OWN DINGHIES, THE SPITFIRE DROPS ONE WHICH AUTOMATICALLY INFLATES BEFORE IT HITS THE WATER. AT THE SAME TIME IT RELEASED A CONTAINER OF FOOD, CIGARETTES, FLARES AND FIRST AID EQUIPMENT.

"EVEN IF A PLANE IS UNABLE TO SEND OUT A DISTRESS CALL BEFORE HITTING THE WATER THERE STILL IS BETTER THAN AN EVEN CHANCE WE WILL FIND ITS CREW."

THE AMERICAN FLIERS HAVE SOME HANDY GADGETS OF THEIR OWN. THE LIFE PRESERVER EVERY MAN WEARS CONTAINS WATERPROOF FLARES THAT ARE FIRED WITH THE PULL OF A CORD, AS WELL AS A CONTAINER OF DYE WHICH DISSOLVES SLOWLY AND SPREADS OUT ON THE WATER IN AN EASILY-SPOTTED YELLOWISH PATCH.

THE DINGHIES THEMSELVES ARE EQUIPPED WITH "COFFEE GRINDER" RADIO SETS WHICH SEND OUT AUTOMATIC SIGNALS TO BE HEARD BY THEIR RESCUERS.

AT A U.S. BOMBER BASE IN ENGLAND, JULY 11-(AP)-THE FLYING FORTRESS "WE THE PEOPLE" WHICH LED YESTERDAY'S RAID ON CAEN, ALTHOUGH ONCE THOUGHT A JINX PLANE, HAS TURNED INTO A "MIRACLE SHIP" WITH A SAFETY RECORD UNEQUALLED IN THIS TOUGHEST AIR THEATER.

ON 32 BOMBING RAIDS AGAINST EUROPE--A NEAR RECORD IN ITSELF FOR A SINGLE FORTRESS--SHE NEVER HAS HAD A MAN WOUNDED ABOARD HER AND HAS NEVER SUSTAINED ANY WORSE DAMAGE THAN A MOTOR KNOCKED OUT AND A WING SHOT UP.

THAT RECORD IS A REMARKABLE TESTIMONIAL BOTH TO THE GROUND CREW WHO HAVE KEPT HER IN CONDITION FOR NINE MONTHS AND ALSO TO A GOOD MANY OF THE FLIERS AT THIS BASE BECAUSE SHE NEVER HAS BEEN FLOWN TWICE WITH EXACTLY THE SAME TEN MEN IN HER CREW. ALTOGETHER SHE HAS CARRIED 114 DIFFERENT MEN.

SHE BEGAN ACTING LIKE A TEMPERAMENTAL JINX SHIP AS SOON AS SHE WAS CHRISTENED THE "SNAFU" AT THE SYRACUSE, N.Y., AIRBASE ON SEPT. 30, 1942 BY HER ORIGINAL CREW HEADED BY LIEUT.CLIFTON PYLE OF MARSHALL, TEXAS., WHO PILOTED HER ON 18 OF HER MISSIONS AND WHO NOW IS A MAJOR AND EN ROUTE BACK TO THE UNITED STATES.

ON HER FIRST RAID LAST NOVEMBER "SNAFU" DIDN'T GET OFF THE GROUND BECAUSE HER NUMBER THREE ENGINE WOULDN'T START.

ON THE SECOND RAID SHE HAD TO TURN BACK AFTER A HALF HOUR BECAUSE HER TURRETS WOULDN'T WORK.

ON THE THIRD RAID, NOV. 22 SHE HAD TO BRING HOME HER BOMBS BECAUSE THE CREW COULDN'T SEE THE TARGET AT ST.NAZAIRE.

ON THE FOURTH SALLY NEXT DAY, ALSO AGAINST ST.NAZAIRE, SHE SUSTAINED HER FIRST DAMAGE AND HER SQUADRON COMMANDER, MAJOR JERRAT

D.PRICE OF ESTES PARK, COL., RECALLED TODAY, "SHE GOT MAD, X X X ACTED UP AND CAUSED TROUBLE ON THE LINE AND EVERYONE HATED HER GUTS."

BUT SHE'S BEEN GOING LIKE A STREAK EVER SINCE--ESPECIALLY AFTER PYLE, IN AN EFFORT TO CHANGE HER DISPOSITION, RENAMED HER "WE THE PEOPLE" IN HONOR OF AN AMERICAN RADIO PROGRAM ON WHICH ONE OF HER OBSERVER PASSENGERS IN THE RAF, WING COMMANDER JOHN BARNES, APPEARED.

IN 30 RAIDS SHE HAS SUSTAINED ONLY 50 SIZEABLE HOLES ALONG WITH A COUPLE OF OTHER SMALL ONES--HER NOSE IS PATCHED IN SEVERAL PLACES WITH ENGLISH PENNIES RIVETED TOGETHER--AND HER ONLY MAJOR REPLACEMENTS IN 196 HOURS AND TEN MINUTES COMBAT TIME HAVE BEEN FIVE NEW ENGINES, FOUR SUPERCHARGERS, ONE WING, TWO STABILIZERS AND AN AILERON.

THE GROUND CREW THAT HAS KEPT UP THIS REMARKABLE MAINTENANCE ARE MASTER SGT.T.LYNCH, 2020 UNIVERSITY AVE., MORGANTOWN, W.VA.; SGTS. DAVID K.BALL, FARMERSVILLE, TEX., FLOYD O.WOODHOUSE, SARCOXIE, MO., WILLIAM R.BORCHARD, GREENE, IOWA.

OTHER MEMBERS OF THE ORIGINAL CREW WHICH FLEW HER ACROSS THE ATLANTIC AND HAVE MADE MANY RAIDS ON HER ARE CO-PILOT LIEUT.EUGENE GWYER, RED BANK, N.J.; NAVIGATOR LIEUT.RUSSEL K.WELLER, PLEASANT VALLEY RD., POUGHKEEPSIE, N.Y.; BOMBARDIER LIEUT.JOHN B.MULVANA, BAKERSFIELD, CALIF.; SGTS.VERNON D.MYRIN, THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINN.; TOP TURRET GUNNER HAROLD J.FEDORA, 3848 PEERY AVE., ROBBINSDALE, MINN.; RADIO GUNNER JAMES A.BURGESS, 1245 EAST MINNESOTA ST., MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.; BALL TURRET GUNNER L.G.MCCOY, WEBB CITY, MO.; WAIST GUNNER ARTHUR LASKOWSKI, 2223 EAST VOLLMER AVE., MILWAUKEE, WIS.

THE FLIERS ARE BEGINNING TO THINK THE "WE THE PEOPLE" HAS A SPECIAL GOOD LUCK CHARM BECAUSE OF HER 114 "ALUMNI." ONLY 28 HAVE BEEN SHOT DOWN ABOARD OTHER SHIPS AND MOST OF THEM HAVE BEEN ACCOUNTED FOR AS PRISONERS OF WAR. ONLY TWO HAVE BEEN KILLED.

STOCKHOLM, JULY 11-(AP)-ALLIED LANDING PARTIES STORMED ASHORE AT SEVEN POINTS ON SICILY'S SOUTHEASTERN COAST SATURDAY MORNING WHILE SWARMS OF ALLIED PLANES SMASHED THE ISLAND'S COMMUNICATIONS WITH THE ITALIAN MAINLAND IN THE GREATEST AMPHIBIOUS AND COMBINED OPERATION EVER ATTEMPTED, CORRESPONDENTS OF STOCKHOLM NEWSPAPERS REPORTED TODAY FROM BERLIN.

DISPATCHES SAID THE GERMANS REPORTED THE FIRST LANDINGS WERE MADE AT CANICATTI, ARAGONA, LICATA AND SYRACUSE AND THAT BITTER FIGHTING WAS RAGING LATE YESTERDAY AROUND RAGUSA, A POINT WELL INLAND FROM THE COAST NEAR THE SOUTHEASTERN TIP OF THE TRIANGULAR ISLAND.

(CANICATTI IS 15 MILES INLAND FROM THE COAST WEST OF LICATA AND ARAGONA IS TEN MILES INLAND, INDICATING THAT ALLIED TROOPS HAVE PENETRATED THIS FAR FROM THE SEA OR THAT PARACHUTE AND GLIDER TROOPS OCCUPIED THESE AREAS.)

THE BERLIN CORRESPONDENT OF AFTONBLADET QUOTED A WILHELMSTRASSE SPOKESMAN AS DECLARING THAT ALL ALLIED PARACHUTISTS WHO LANDED IN ADVANCE OF THE SEABORNE INVASION HAD BEEN ")81788-338" AND THAT THE ALLIES HAD LOST "A VERY GREAT NUMBER OF TRANSPORTS LOADED WITH MEN, SUPPLIES AND WEAPONS."

JUL 12 1943

A DISPATCH TO SOCIAL DEMOKRATEN SAID THE NAZIS ACKNOWLEDGED THAT ALLIED AIR POWER HAD PLAYED A BIG PART IN THE SUCCESS OF THE INITIAL LANDINGS, NOT ONLY BLOCKING SEA TRANSPORT BETWEEN SICILY AND THE

JUL 12 1943

MAINLAND BUT ALSO SMASHING CABLE AND PHONE COMMUNICATIONS.

GERMAN MILITARY OBSERVERS WERE REPORTED AGREED THAT SICILY WAS ADEQUATELY FORTIFIED AND THAT TERRIFIC FIGHTING COULD BE EXPECTED. THE ELITE HERMANN GOERING DIVISION WAS SAID TO BE AMONG FORCES DEFENDING THE ISLAND. FIELD MARSHAL GEN. ALBERT KESSELRING WAS REPORTED TO HAVE 30,000 GERMAN ANTI-AIRCRAFT GUNNERS IN HIS COMMAND.

THE SVENSKA DAGBLADET QUOTED BERLIN MILITARY COMMENTATORS AS SAYING THEY HAD INFORMATION THAT THE ATTACK ON SICILY WAS MADE BEFORE THE ALLIES WERE READY, BECAUSE OF AN ULTIMATUM FROM MOSCOW DEMANDING A SECOND FRONT IMMEDIATELY.

THEY COMPARED THE PRESENT OPERATION TO THE ATTACK BY BRITISH AND ANZAC FORCES AGAINST GALLIPOLI IN THE OTHER WORLD WAR--A CAMPAIGN WHICH ENDED IN DISASTER.

STOCKHOLM'S TIDNINGEN QUOTED AN ARTICLE FROM THE GIORNALE D'ITALIA IN WHICH THE ROME NEWSPAPER DEPRECIATED THE IMPORTANCE OF THE ATTACK ON SICILY, SAYING IT WAS MADE AT "THE WEAKEST PLACE IN THE MEDITERRANEAN, AND THE ISLAND IS NOT THE MOST SUITABLE PLACE FOR A SECOND FRONT."

XM153PEW

LISBON, JULY 11-(AP)-A DNB, GERMAN NEWS AGENCY, DISPATCH FROM BERLIN, QUOTED A WILHELMSTRASSE SPOKESMAN TODAY AS SAYING THE DEFENSE OF ITALIAN TERRITORY IS IN ITALIAN HANDS.

(SIMILAR COMMENT CAME FROM BERLIN IN THE CLOSING DAYS OF THE TUNISIAN CAMPAIGN WHEN THE GERMANS ATTEMPTED TO PICTURE THE ITALIANS AS RUNNING THE SHOW IN THAT FINAL NORTH AFRICAN CAMPAIGN.)

GERMAN SOURCES SAID THE AXIS HAD HAD AN OPPORTUNITY TO PREPARE STRONG DEFENSIVE POSITIONS IN THE ISLAND AND THAT STRONG REINFORCEMENTS WERE SENT TO SICILY A FEW DAYS BEFORE THE INVASIONS.

WILHELMSTRASSE POLITICAL SOURCES MAINTAINED SILENCE ON DEVELOPMENTS IN SICILY, THE BERLIN CORRESPONDENT OF TIDNINGEN OF STOCKHOLM, REPORTED.

MOSCOW, JULY 11-(AP)-FROM THE SWIRL OF MIGHTY TANK BATTLES ON THE BELGOROD-OREL FRONT CAME SOVIET DISPATCHES TODAY DECLARING FLATLY THAT THE NEW GERMAN OFFENSIVE, LAUNCHED A WEEK AGO, HAD BEEN HALTED AND THE NAZIS CONFINED TO THE SMALL GAINS THEY MADE ALMOST AT THE OUTSET.

"THE GERMAN WEDGES ARE EXPOSED TO THE CONTINUOUS MASS FIRE OF OUR ARTILLERY, TANKS AND AVIATION AND TO INCESSANT ATTACKS FROM THE FLANKS AND THE REAR," DECLARED RED STAR, ARMY NEWSPAPER. IT ADDED THAT THE OFFENSIVE HAD "OBVIOUSLY NOT BEEN THE SUCCESS EXPECTED BY THE GERMAN COMMAND."

(THE INTERNATIONAL INFORMATION BUREAU, A GERMAN PROPAGANDA AGENCY, REPORTED IN A BROADCAST RECORDED BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS THAT THE RUSSIANS LOST 1,197 PLANES AND 1,709 TANKS IN SIX DAYS FIGHTING IN THE KURSK SALIENT AND "THIS MEANS THAT THEIR TANK UNITS, WHICH HAD BEEN PREPARING FOR AN ATTACK ON KIEV AND THEIR FURTHER TANK RESERVES, CAN BE CONSIDERED A TOTAL LOSS."

JUL 12 1943

(THE AGENCY ASSERTED THAT THE GERMANS HAD ADVANCED ON BOTH ENDS OF THE SALIENT AND THAT "TANK UNITS ADVANCED CONSIDERABLY IN THE WOOD NORTH OF BELGOROD ON THE EASTERN BANK OF THE DONETS."

30.24-5927

(THE GERMAN HIGH COMMAND, IN A BROADCAST RECORDED BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS, REPORTED THAT "THE GREAT BATTLE IN THE EAST CONTINUES WITH UNABATED VIOLENCE. IN THE COURSE OF BITTER FIGHTING OUR TROOPS GAINED FURTHER GROUND AND DESTROYED 193 SOVIET TANKS.")

THE EXTENT OF THE GAINS THE GERMAN TANK-LED BATTERING RAMS HAD MADE WERE UNDISCLOSED, BUT THE RUSSIANS INSISTED THE PENETRATIONS WERE ON ONLY A NARROW STRETCH OF THE 165-MILE FRONT AND OF "INSIGNIFICANT DEPTH."

JUL 12 1943

A SEVERE HEAT WAVE HAD SETTLED DOWN OVER THE GREAT BATTLEFIELD WHERE IN SIX FURIOUS DAYS, ACCORDING TO SOVIET COMMUNIQUES, THE NAZIS HAD LOST 2,338 TANKS, 1,037 PLANES AND TENS OF THOUSANDS OF MEN IN A LAST SUPREME BID FOR VICTORY IN THE EAST.

THE HEAVIEST FIGHTING WAS CENTERED AROUND THE BELGOROD END OF THE LINE, TO WHICH THE NAZIS SWITCHED THEIR MAIN ASSAULT TWO DAYS AGO AFTER BEING FOUGHT TO A STANDSTILL IN THE OREL-KURSK SECTOR. RUSSIAN DISPATCHES SAID THE NAZIS BROKE INTO ONE POPULATED PLACE NEAR BELGOROD YESTERDAY, BUT WERE THROWN OUT BEFORE NIGHT BY A SOVIET COUNTERATTACK.

IMPORTANT POINTS WERE REPORTED CHANGING HANDS FREQUENTLY AS THE DESPERATE BATTLE SWAYED BACK AND FORTH. DISPATCHES SAID THE GREATEST AIR BATTLES OF THE PRESENT OFFENSIVE OCCURRED OVER THE BELGOROD SECTOR YESTERDAY, WITH 900 WARPLANES IN THE AIR AT ONE TIME. THE RUSSIANS SAID THE GERMAN AIR FORCE STILL WAS CARRYING ITS FULL WEIGHT IN THE FIGHTING, DESPITE THE LOSS OF 1,037 PLANES IN THE PAST SIX DAYS. SOVIET PILOTS, HOWEVER, REPORTED THAT THE NAZIS WERE EMPLOYING SEVERAL OBSOLESCENT TYPES OF AIRCRAFT IN THEIR UNSUCCESSFUL EFFORT TO GAIN AERIAL DOMINATION.

(A STOCKHOLM DISPATCH RELAYED AN UNCONFIRMED REPORT THAT THE GERMANS WERE THROWING SQUADRONS OF NEW "LEOPARD" SUPER-TANKS INTO THE GROUND FIGHTING. THE LEOPARD WAS DESCRIBED AS LARGER THAN THE NAZIS' FAMED 60-TON TIGER TANK AND WITH MORE EFFICIENT FIREPOWER.)

RUSSIAN INFANTRY WAS REPORTED TO HAVE RESORTED TO HAND-TO-HAND FIGHTING TO DISLODGE GERMAN UNITS THAT BROKE INTO SOVIET TRENCHES AT ONE POINT. ONE OF THE BITTEREST ACTIONS YESTERDAY OCCURRED AT A POINT NEAR A RAILWAY LINE IN THE OREL-KURSK SECTOR, WHERE THE GERMANS WERE SAID TO HAVE BEEN THROWN BACK WITH SERIOUS LOSSES.

THE NAZIS WERE REPORTED TO HAVE THROWN 500 TANKS INTO THE FIGHTING IN ONE NARROW SECTOR, ONLY TO SEE THEM HURLED BACK WHEN SOVIET TANKS COUNTER-ATTACKED AT THE END OF A THREE-HOUR BATTLE.

THE RUSSIANS REPORTED CONTINUED SUCCESS AGAINST THE HEAVY TIGER TANKS WHICH THE NAZIS THREW SO LAVISHLY INTO THEIR PRESENT PUSH. ONE RUSSIAN 50-TON "KV" TANK WAS CREDITED WITH DESTROYING SIX TIGERS.

(THE GERMAN TRANSOCEAN NEWS AGENCY QUOTED MILITARY QUARTERS IN BERLIN AS DECLARING THAT NAZI COUNTERATTACKS YESTERDAY "BROKE FAR INTO THE RUSSIAN SYSTEM OF FORTIFICATIONS" AT ONE POINT AND CAPTURED SEVERAL IMPORTANT HEIGHTS. THE BROADCAST WAS RECORDED BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

XM123RPEW

MOSCOW, JULY 11-(AP)-THE RED ARMY HAS HALTED THE GERMAN OFFENSIVE ON THE BELGOROD-KURSK-OREL FRONT, CONFINING THE NAZIS TO THE SMALL GAINS MADE FOUR DAYS AGO, THE RED ARMY NEWSPAPER, RED STAR, SAID TODAY.

COMMENTING ON THE GERMAN EFFORT, THE PAPER SAID THAT THE OFFENSIVE

HAD "OBVIOUSLY NOT BEEN THE SUCCESS EXPECTED BY THE GERMAN COMMAND."

"THE NARROW WIDTH OF THE WEDGE AND THE INSIGNIFICANT DEPTH LEAVES CONSIDERABLE FREEDOM OF OPERATIONS TO OUR TROOPS," RED STAR ADDED. "THE GERMAN WEDGES ARE EXPOSED TO THE CONTINUOUS MASS FIRE OF OUR ARTILLERY, TANKS AND AVIATION AND TO INCESSANT ATTACKS FROM THE FLANKS AND THE REAR."

(THE BERLIN RADIO, IN A BROADCAST RECORDED BY ASSOCIATED PRESS IN LONDON, ISSUED A COMMUNIQUE ANNOUNCING THAT THE RUSSIAN ARMY HAD CONTINUED ITS COUNTERATTACKS IN THE BELGOROD-OREL AREA BUT HAD GAINED NO GROUND DESPITE HEAVY LOSSES.

(THE COMMUNIQUE ADDED THAT THE ATTACKS WERE SUPPORTED BY TANKS, PLANES AND HEAVY ARTILLERY. FIFTY RUSSIAN TANKS WERE DISABLED IN ONE SECTOR, THE GERMANS SAID.)

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, JULY 11-(AP)-HITLER'S FORMULA FOR VICTORY--BLOOD, IRON AND SCIENCE--WAS USED BY THE UNITED STATES AND BRITAIN TO CAPTURE THEIR EUROPEAN BRIDGEHEAD ON THE SOUTHEASTERN CORNER OF SICILY.

EVERY INNOVATION OF WARFARE WHICH THE GERMAN LUFTWAFFE AND THE WEHRMACHT DEVELOPED SINCE 1939 WAS USED BY THE ALLIES IN THEIR EPIC INVASION IN A MORE PERFECTED AND POWERFUL FORM.

GLIDERS PACKED WITH HIGHLY TRAINED TROOPS AND ARMED SURPRISINGLY HEAVILY CUT LOOSE FROM YANKEE TRANSPORTS AND SLID GENTLY THROUGH A HEAVY MIST TO SICILIAN SOIL AT 10:10 P.M. FRIDAY.

THE INVASION WAS UNDERWAY.

AT 11:20 P.M. PARATROOPS DROPPED ON THEIR OBJECTIVES.

BEFORE AND AFTER THIS CURTAIN RAISING ACTION ON THE SECOND EUROPEAN FRONT MANY HUNDREDS OF ALLIED PLANES PUT A NEW EXPLOSIVE MEANING IN THE GERMAN TERM--BLITZ.

THE AMERICANS SENT OVER NEW A-36S WHICH HAD BEEN CAREFULLY HELD BACK DURING THE AFRICAN CAMPAIGN. WHEN THEY DROP THEIR BOMBS THEY ARE DIVING AT MUCH GREATER SPEED THAN THE GERMAN STUKA AND WHEN THEY LEVEL OUT A FORMIDABLE ARRAY OF MACHINEGUNS IS BLASTING AT THE ENEMY ON THE GROUND. AS FAST, MANEUVERABLE AND HEAVILY ARMED AS A FIRST LINE FIGHTER, A-36S MAKE A STUKA LOOK LIKE A ONE-HORSE SHAY.

AS AN AMPHIBIOUS OPERATION THE SICILIAN INVASION WAS FAR BEYOND ANYTHING THE GERMANS DREAMED OF DOING. THEIR NORWEGIAN "TROJAN HORSE" CONQUEST FOR EXAMPLE WAS RUN ON A SHOE STRING COMPARED WITH THE HUGE FORCE CARRIED OVER WATER BY THE ALLIED FLEET AND LANDED SECURELY WITH OFFICIALLY SLIGHT LOSSES.

WHEN THE ALLIED TROOPS GOT ASHORE THEY CARRIED EQUIPMENT FOR COPING WITH ALL EVENTUALITIES.

THEY SWEPT CLEAN 100 MILES OF SICILIAN COAST WITHIN 24 HOURS AND THIS ORIGINAL ATTACK OF SEEMINGLY GREAT DISPERSION TURNED OUT TO BE A CONCENTRATED BLOW.

GETTING RONTROL OF AIRFIELDS FOR THE SUPPORT OF FIGHTING TROOPS IS AMONG THE MOST IMPORTANT OF THE BASIC PRINCIPLES OF MODERN WAR. AT LEAST THREE WERE IN AMERICAN AND BRITISH HANDS INSIDE OF ONE DAY IN SOUTHEASTERN SICILY.

THE ATTACK ON SICILY MAY HAVE BEEN A TACTICAL SURPRISE BUT IT WAS NOT A STRATEGICAL SURPRISE, OBSERVERS AGREED. THE STRATEGY OF AN ULTIMATE VICTORY IN THE EUROPEAN WAR DICTATED AN INVASION OF THIS WATER-RINGED CONTINUATION OF THE ITALIAN PENINSULA AND THE AXIS REALIZED THIS MUCH AS THE ALLIED "TELEGRAPHED" THEIR INTENTION BY

JUL 12 1943

ROUND-THE-CLOCK AIR ASSAULTS AND BY MASSING AN INVASION ARMADA.

THE AXIS COULD SEE THE INVASION COMING WITH TERRIFIC FORCE. IT WAS AS INEVITABLE AS DOOMSDAY.

HITLER'S FORMULA HAS BECOME A BOOMERANG.

THREE LIGHTNING PILOTS KNOCKED DOWN FIVE MESSERSCHMITT 109S OUT OF LARGE PACK ENCOUNTERED ON THE SOUTH COAST. LIEUTENANTS MILOW J. LEIKNESS OF DANVILLE, ILL., AND WAYNE M.MANLOVE OF MILTON, IND., WERE CREDITED WITH TWO EACH WHILE THE FIFTH WENT TO LIEUT.LOTHROP F.ELLIS OF GERMANTOWN, PA.

THIS BATTLE OCCURRED AFTER THE LIGHTNINGS HAD GONE DOWN LOW TO LOOK AT "WHAT LOOKED LIKE THE REMAINS OF A BATTLE," LEIKNESS SAID.

"WE WERE HUNTING TARGETS OVER THE ISLAND FOR ABOUT 45 MINUTES," HE SAID. "I SAW A BATTLE OR THE REMAINS OF IT. THERE WAS SMOKE ALL ALONG THE COAST. I THEN SAW A COLUMN OF ABOUT 25 TRUCKS AND TOLD MY WINGMAN, LIEUTENANT MANLOVE, TO GO DOWN AND SEE WHO IT WAS.

"MANLOVE REPLIED OVER THE RADIO, 'BROTHER, THEY'RE SHOOTING AT US; THEY'RE NOT OURS.'

JUL 12 1943

"SO WE DROPPED DOWN TO 45 OR 50 FEET ABOVE THEM AND THEN WE CAME AROUND AND LET OUR BOMBS GO. I GOT A DIRECT HIT ON THE FIRST OR SECOND TRUCK AND THE OTHER BOMBS ALL LANDED ON OR NEAR THE ROAD. THE CONVOY HAD STOPPED AND MOST OF THE MEN WERE RUNNING FOR THE COUNTRY.

"AFTER WE DROPPED OUR BOMBS WE MADE TWO PASSES. THEY FIRED AT US AS WE CAME IN CLOSE. THE SECOND TIME THEY GOT ME IN THE NOSE AND KNOCKED OUT ONE OF MY GUNS."

AMERICAN WARHAWKS ESCORTING MITCHELL BOMBERS IN ATTACKS ON TRAPANI, MILO AND SCIATTA AIR FIELDS IN NORTHWESTERN SICILY RAN INTO 40 MESSERSCHMITTS AND MACCHI 202S AND SHOT DOWN FOUR.

VICTORIES WERE SCORED BY LIEUT.W.B.WALKER OF 23 AULDWOOD ROAD, STAMFORD, CONN., LIEUT.FRANK S.COLLINS OF BRECKENRIDGE, TEX., AND CAPT.RALPH G.TAYLOR OF 51 HALLOWAY ST., DURHAM, N.C.

ALLIED HEAVY AND MEDIUM BOMBERS BATTERED GERBINI, SYRACUSE AND CATANIA AS WELL AS SCORES OF TARGETS IN WEST AND SOUTHWEST SICILY WHILE THE INVASION WAS GOING FULL BLAST. IN THE LATTER AREA LIGHTNINGS MET A LARGE FORMATION OF JUNKERS, FOCKE-WULFS, MACCHIS AND MESSERSCHMITTS. THEY SHOT DOWN TEN.

CREWMEN OF FLYING FORTRESSES COMING BACK FROM GERBINI HAD A GRANDSTAND SEAT FOR THE LANDINGS. LIEUT.RALPH J.LINDLY OF 646 S.38TH ST., LOUISVILLE, KY., SAID "OUR BOYS ALREADY SEEMED TO HAVE THE SITUATION WELL IN HAND AND THEY WERE STREAMING NORTH. INLAND THERE WERE NUMEROUS FIRES."

MAJ.JAMES B.HILLIARD, ALSO OF LOUISVILLE, A WING OFFICER, SAID "AT CAPE PASSERO WE SAW A TREMENDOUS FIRE BLAZING INSIDE CATANIA. THERE WERE FOUR BIG COLUMNS OF SMOKE RISING. WE SAW THE TROOPS LANDING AND BOATS WERE FERRYING BACK AND FORTH FROM SHIPS OFFSHORE."

PARAPHRASING THE RENOWNED SONG OF THE U.S. MARINES, SERGT.WALTER G.PALMORE OF 3011 BRIGHTON ST., BALTIMORE, MD., SAID "THOSE GUYS IN THE INVASION BARGES WERE WRITING A NEW TITLE FOR AN OLD SONG WHEN WE SAW THEM--'FROM THE PORTS OF LAMPEDUSA TO THE SHORES OF SICILY.'"

LIEUT.JULES B.GOLDENBERG OF 2246 OCEAN AVE., BROOKLYN, N.Y., SAID "OUR LANDING BARGES COVERED THE BEACHES AS THICKLY AS DRIFTWOOD."

SERGT.CHARLES T.STREAM OF 5185 PERRY AVE., LONG BEACH, CALIF.,

JUL 12 1943

CALLED IT "THE MOST IMPRESSIVE SIGHT I EVER SAW. THERE WERE EXPLOSIONS AND FIRES ALL THE WAY INLAND."

ONE OF THE FORTRESS CREWMEN, ROBERT PROTHRO OF 1302 TENTH ST., WICHITA FALLS, TEX., COMPLETED HIS 50TH MISSION IN THE BOMBING OF SICILY. AT THE MOMENT OF THE INVASION HE SAID "I ALMOST HATE TO GO HOME JUST NOW."

FLIGHT OFFICER RAYMOND POXON OF 1942 JEAN ST., HOUSTON, TEX., SAID "THE BEACHES WERE JAMMED WITH MEN. EVERYWHERE I LOOKED HELL SEEMED TO BE BREAKING LOOSE."

JUL 12 1943

LIEUT.SCOTT J.WARNER OF HELENA, OKLA., SAID "THERE WERE SHIPS STRETCHED FROM THE SHORE TO THE HORIZON. WE COULDN'T COUNT THEM AT ALL. THE MOST IMPRESSIVE PART WAS WHEN OUR WARSHIPS OPENED FIRE AND A STREAM OF FLAMES WENT DOWN OVER THE BEACHES."

LIEUT.MURRAY MEYEROWITZ OF 1406 AVENUE I, BROOKLYN, N.Y., DESCRIBED IT AS "A CELEBRATION AT PROSPECT PARK. THE BOATS REMINDED ME OF A LOT OF CORKS BOBBING AROUND DOWN THERE."

A MITCHELL CREWMAN, LIEUT.JOHN W.COBY OF VINITA, OKLA., SAID "I DIDN'T SEE ANY ENEMY WARSHIPS. OUR DESTROYERS WERE THROWING BROADSIDES INTO THE ISLAND'S DEFENSES BUT I DIDN'T SEE ANY RETURN FIRE."

THEN LIEUT.KEITH EVANS OF COTTER, ARK., SUMMARIZED THE ATTITUDE OF THE AIRMEN THIS WAY; "THE AIRFORCES ARE CARRYING THE BALANCE. WE KNEW THAT MOST OF OUR WORK WOULD BE TO SOFTEN UP THE AXIS FOR THE OPENING OF THE SECOND FRONT. NOW IT'S DONE AND NOBODY IS HAPPIER THAN WE ARE."

WITH AMERICAN INVASION TROOPS (DELAYED), JULY 10-(AP)-AS ALLIED TROOPS SMASH THEIR WAY ACROSS THE BEACHES OF SICILY IN THE FIRST GREAT ALLIED INVASION DRIVE TOWARD THE CONTINENT, THEY MENACE ONE OF THE AXIS' MOST VALUABLE SOURCES OF FOOD AND WAR--VITAL SULPHUR.

THIS TRIANGULAR SHAPED ISLAND AT THE TOE OF FASCIST ITALY'S BOOT IS IMPORTANT TO THE AXIS NOT ONLY MILITARILY BUT ECONOMICALLY AND POLITICALLY AS WELL.

IT WAS FROM AIRFIELDS ON SICILY AND ITS SATELLITE ISLANDS THAT AXIS PLANES ATTACKED ALLIED SHIPPING IN THE MEDITERRANEAN AND HARASSED ALLIED ARMIES ON THE MAINLAND BY BOMBING RAIDS. IT IS FROM SICILY THAT SUPPLIES POURED ACROSS THE STRAIT TO THE ARMIES OF FIELD MARSHAL ERWIN ROMMEL AND THE NOW CAPTURED COL.GEN.JURGEN VON ARNIM BEFORE THEY WERE CRUSHED ON CAP BON BY BRITISH AND AMERICAN TROOPS.

SICILY'S FERTILE COASTAL PLAINS SLOPING TO THE SEA FROM THE ROCKY, RUGGED, VOLCANIC MOUNTAINS OF THE INTERIOR PRODUCED ABUNDANT HARVESTS OF GRAIN, OLIVES, NUTS, FRUITS AND VEGETABLES TO FEED AXIS TROOPS.

THOUSANDS OF TONS OF FISH ARE TAKEN FROM THE SEA BY ISLAND FISHERMEN EACH YEAR. THE MINES WERE GERMANY'S AND ITALY'S GREATEST SOURCE OF SULPHUR FOR MUNITIONS MAKING.

ALMOST 4,000,000 PEOTLE--ABOUT ONE-ELEVENTH OF THE ITALIAN POPULATION--LIVE ON THE ISLAND WHICH FIGURED PROMINENTLY IN MEDITERRANEAN HISTORY FOR MANY CENTURIES.

UNTIL THE TURN OF THE CENTURY SICILIAN SULPHUR MINES ENJOYED A VIRTUAL WORLD MONOPOLY. BUT THEN THE UNITED STATES ENTERED THE MARKET WITH IMPROVED AND MORE EFFICIENT MINING METHODS AND SOON BECAME A STRONG COMPETITOR OF THE SICILIAN SULPHUR INDUSTRY.

SICILIANTSULPHUR MINES WERE HAVING A DIFFICULT TIME TRYING TO COMPETE WITH AMERICAN INDUSTRY UNTIL AN ACCORD WAS REACHED WHEREBY INDUSTRY WAS GIVEN A VIRTUAL MONOPOLY OVER THE EUROPEAN MARKET.

WITH THIS NON-COMPETITIVE AREA IN WHICH TO SELL AND BY ADOPTING AMERICAN EFFICIENCY METHODS TO CUT COSTS, THE SULPHUR INDUSTRY FLOURISHED ONCE AGAIN.

JUL 12 1943

WHILE AGRICULTURE AND FISHING ARE THE TWO MAJOR INDUSTRIES, MINING IS IMPORTANT--MORE PERHAPS AS A SOURCE OF MUNITIONS AND RAW MATERIALS THAN FOR THE REVENUE DERIVED.

BUT THE INVASION OF SICILY NOT ONLY SHUT OFF THIS VITAL RAW MATERIAL TO THE AXIS, IT ALSO PLACED ALLIED TROOPS WITHIN STRIKING DISTANCE OF THE HEART OF IL DUCE'S FAST DWINDLING EMPIRE. THE NORTHEASTERN TIP OF THE ISLAND IS LESS THAN TWO MILES FROM THE TOE OF THE ITALIAN BOOT.

SICILY IS THE LARGEST OF THE MEDITERRANEAN ISLANDS WITH AN AREA OF APPROXIMATELY 15,275 SQUARE MILES. THE SOUTHERN SHORELINE, SLOPING GENTLY FROM THE SEA, OFFERED THE EASIEST APPROACHES FOR SHALLOW DRAFT INVASION CRAFT. THE OTHER SIDES ARE RUGGED AND GENERALLY PRECIPITOUS.

THE CLOSE PROXIMITY OF THE ISLAND TO THE ITALIAN MAINLAND MAKES IT EASY TO PUT SUPPLIES ACROSS THE NARROW STRAIT. BUT THE ALLIES CAN BE GLAD INDUSTRIAL PRESSURE GROUPS, INTERESTED IN MAINTAINING THE FERRY SERVICE, BLOCKED PLANS FOR A BRIDGE OR TUNNEL TO LINK SICILY WITH THE MAINLAND.

ALLIED FORCE COMMAND POST, JULY 10-(DELAYED)-(AP)-TROOP LANDINGS BY THE AMERICAN AND BRITISH FORCES ALL ACCORDING TO PLAN AND IN THE FACE OF HARD RESISTANCE HAVE BEEN MADE ON THE SOUTH AND EAST COAST OF SICILY, IT WAS ANNOUNCED BY THE HIGH COMMAND LATE TODAY.

THERE IS FIERCE FIGHTING WHICH CONTINUES BUT THE ALLIES THUS FAR ARE FORTUNATELY AVOIDING SERIOUS LOSS.

JUL 12 1943

ACCORDING TO THE OFFICIAL COMMUNIQUE SEVERAL BEACHES AND LANDING PLACES FOR ASSAULT TROOPS HAVE BEEN EXTENDED 100 MILES ALONG THE COAST, COVERED BY HEAVY FIRE FROM BOTH THE BRITISH AND AMERICAN NAVAL FORCES AS WELL AS THOSE OF THE ROYAL INDIAN, DUTCH, GREEK AND POLISH NAVIES.

APPARENTLY THE SICILIAN INVASION ARMADA COMPARED WITH THE ONE WHICH EIGHT MONTHS PREVIOUSLY ALMOST TO THE DAY, LANDED AMERICAN AND BRITISH TROOPS IN NORTH AFRICA.

NORTH AFRICAN AIR FORCE PILOTS RETURNING FROM FLIGHTS OVER THE ISLAND REPORTED THAT THE SHIPS WERE STRUNG OUT FOR MILES ON THE EARLY MORNING OF SATURDAY.

"IT WAS THE BIGGEST FLEET I EVER SAW," SAID LIEUTENANT NATHANIEL ROBINS OF WAPPINGER FALLS, N.Y.

ON THE EDGES WE SAW DESTROYERS AND IN THE MIDDLE INVASION BARGES WITH MERCHANT SHIPS ON THE OUTSIDE AND IN THE REAR.

"THE MASS OF BOATS AND THEIR WAKES MADE A PRETTY SPECTACLE," HE SAID.

OUR SHIP HAD LED OFF THE FIELD. MAJOR BARROW, A NATIVE OF NEW IBERIA, LA., IS NOT ONLY A SPLENDID PILOT BUT A SOLDIER. WEARYING OF STAFF WORK IN ENGLAND WHEN HE WANTED TO PILOT A COMBAT PLANE, HE ASKED FOR A TRANSFER, AND FLEW A P-34 PURSUIT FROM GREAT BRITAIN TO AFRICA AFTER A SINGLE DAY'S INSTRUCTION. HE WAS A B-17 BOMBER PILOT BUT HAS FLOWN NEARLY ALL TYPES, AND IS NOW A CONTENTED TRANSPORT MAN GETTING IN HIS SHARE OF ACTION.

BESIDE ME, BARROW HAD AS A PASSENGER-OBSERVER COLONEL GLYNNE M. JONES, HIS FORMER INSTRUCTOR IN AVIATION FROM LAFAYETTE, LA., AND NEW ORLEANS, NOW TROOPS CARRIER'S OPERATIONS CHIEF WHO HELPED THE COMMANDING GENERAL MAKE THIS FIRST BIG ASSIGNMENT SUCH A SUCCESS. HE KIDDED HIS OLD TEACHER AS WE GOT IN, RECALLING THEIR EARLY DAYS IN THE EVANGELINE COUNTRY.

"COLONEL, I SHOULD CHARGE YOU THE SAME $1.50 FOR THIS RIDE THAT YOU ALWAYS TAXED FOR THAT TEN-MINUTE HOP BACK HOME," HE SAID.

THEN LIEUTENANTS BILL PEARSON OF ALBANY, GA., AND BOB GALLOWAY OF LAWTON, OKLA., CLIMBED IN AND THE RADIO MAN, FRANK KEEL, LOCKED THE DOOR. I STARED AT THE SPREAD OF LIFE RAFTS, THE MAE WEST JACKETS AND PARACHUTES, AND THOUGHT HARD ON THE GENERAL'S LAST-MINUTE FIGHT TALK.

"I WANT TO CONGRATULATE YOU ON BEING LEADERS IN THE GREATEST SHOW YET BEGUN AGAINST THE AXIS BY AMERICAN FORCES," HE SAID. "NOT A THING WE CAN DO HAS BEEN OVERLOOKED. GO OUT THERE NOW--IT'S A CINCH."

JUL 12 1943

THIS WAS THE FIRST COMBAT TRIP THE SHIP HAD EVER TAKEN. THE SAME WAS TRUE FOR THE CREW, PEARSON TOLD ME WHEN HE CAME AFT, RELINQUISHING HIS CO-PILOT'S SEAT TO THE COLONEL.

"THEY SAY THERE ARE EASIER WAYS TO EARN A LIVING," HE MURMURED, "ONLY WE HAVEN'T ANY SAY IN THIS. BUT I'M GLAD FOR THE CHANCE TO GO. IT'S SORT OF HISTORIC, ISN'T IT?" HE SMILED FAINTLY AS WE CIRCLED THE FIELD, WAITING FOR THE OTHERS TO GET UP. THEN HE ADDED, "BUT I'LL SETTLE RIGHT NOW FOR TOMORROW MORNING."

SERGEANT JOHN C.JOHNSON COMES FROM QUEEN CITY, MO., AND IS NO OSCAR WILDE FOR CONVERSATION. BUT HE KNOWS THE SOIL AND EVERY DAY PROBLEMS AND HE NEVER THOUGHT HE'D SPEND PART OF HIS YOUTH ON THE NIGHT GLIDER RUN TO SICILY.

"WHAT DO YOU SUPPOSE THE LIMEYS BACK THERE THINK ABOUT?"

JOHNSON CUT IN ON THE TELEPHONE AND INQUIRED. THE GLIDER PILOT REPORTED LITTLE DISCUSSION EXCEPT THE WEATHER WHICH, FOR A SEA JOURNEY, WAS EXTREMELY ROUGH.

"THEY DON'T COMPLAIN MUCH, THE BRITISH. FUNNY GUYS," JOHNSON SAID.

STRUNG OVER THE SEA WITH THE SUNSET BEHIND, THE FLIGHT MADE A REMARKABLE PICTURE. THERE WAS SOMETHING OF THE WITCH-AND-BROOMSTICK ABOUT THOSE GLIDERS SILHOUETTES. A HEX FOR BENITO, PERHAPS.

THEN CAME THE PORT CITY. THERE WAS HEAVY GROUND FIRE FROM THE ENVIRONS WITH THAT FIERY NECKLACE OF LOW TRACERS. BIG STUFF CRACKLED HIGHER UP, AND WE WERE CLIMBING SHARPLY NOW.

OUR SHIP BORE AROUND, HAVING MISSED THE EXACT SPOT BY A LITTLE. THIS TIME THE PILOT COMPLETED A BIG HORSESHOW AND THEN CUT STRAIGHT INTO LAND. LATER HE ADMITTED HIS NECK FELT PRICKLY.

"I THOUGHT SURE IT WAS A TRAP, THAT DARK SPACE BETWEEN THE GUNS, AND THAT IT WOULD CUT LOOSE ANY SECOND. BUT THAT WAS OUR SPOT AND IN WE WENT."

WE WERE LOW ENOUGH TO SEE THE TERRAIN.

"THEY'VE GONE," I HEARD JOHNSON SAY. "WE'RE TURNING OUT."

I COULD SEE NO MORE OF THE GLIDER. HAVING NO MOTOR THEY DON'T REGISTER ON RADIO RANGE-FINDERS, SO WE FELT BETTER.

MOTORS WIDE, WE RACED DOWN THE PRESCRIBED ALLEY FOR HOME. EVERYONE RELAXED NOW THE JOB WAS DONE.

BUT OUR TRIP WASN'T YET OVER. NOT WITH SO MANY SHIPS CROWDING THE AIR. IT WAS STAY IN YOUR LANE, BROTHER, OR THE NAVIES WOULD SHOOT

ONCE IT SEEMED THEY HAD. CHALLENGED OFF MALTA, THE CO-PILOT FIRED A FLARE AND IT FELL SHORT ON THE WING. THERE WAS AN AWFUL CRASH OF METAL AND RED FIRE SPREAD ALL OVER THE WING.

I HAD MY 'CHUTE ON. THE COLONEL GRABBED TO RECOVER HIS. WE TRIED

NIGHT LEAD MRS.CHIANG
BY SPENCER MOOSA

CHUNGKING, JULY 10-(AP)-MRS.CHIANG KAI-SHEK SAID TODAY HER PLANE STRAYED ON ONE LEG OF HER JOURNEY HOME FROM AMERICA A WEEK AGO AND, BUT FOR A HUNCH OF THE PILOT, "WE WOULD TODAY HAVE BEEN THE STATE GUESTS OF THE IMPERIAL JAPANESE GOVERNMENT."

THE PETITE FIRST LADY OF CHINA TOLD A PRESS CONFERENCE THE AIRCRAFT ACCIDENTALLY PICKED UP THE RADIO BEAM OF A JAPANESE AIR FIELD IN BURMA WHILE IT WAS GROPING TOWARD A BASE IN INDIA (CORRECT) AND ALMOST LANDED ON ENEMY-OCCUPIED TERRITORY.

BUT THE PILOT SUDDENLY DECIDED SOMETHING WAS WRONG AND PULLED AWAY.

MRS.CHIANG SAID SEVEN HOURS OF FLYING AT 24,000 FEET HAD HER IN SUCH A STATE SHE DIDN'T CARE AT THE TIME WHERE SHE LANDED.

"I WAS SO ILL I COULDN'T MOVE," SHE SAID.

IT WAS HER FIRST PRESS CONFERENCE SINCE HER RETURN TO CHUNGKING AFTER SEVEN AND A HALF MONTHS IN THE UNITED STATES AND CANADA.

SHE TOUCHED UPON TOPICS RANGING FROM AID FOR CHINA TO THE UNITED STATES' HAIRPIN SHORTAGE.

"YOU HAVE NO IDEA HOW HARD IT IS TO GET SOME THINGS, FOR EXAMPLE HAIRPINS OR ELASTIC," SHE SAID.

"HOW ABOUT GIRDLES?" INQUIRED A WOMAN CORRESPONDENT.

JUL 12 1943

"I DON'T WEAR ANY," MRS.CHIANG REPLIED.

THE WIFE OF CHINA'S GENERALISSIMO WAS ATTIRED IN A BLUE POLKA DOT DRESS AND WHITE SHOES WITH WHITE BOWS.

SHE REFERRED REPEATEDLY TO EXPRESSIONS OF SYMPATHY FOR THE CHINESE PEOPLE BY AMERICANS.

"THEY ARE ALL FOR GIVING MORE AID TO CHINA," SHE SAID. "ALL AMERICANS, EVEN THE SO-CALLED ISOLATIONISTS, ARE FOR SENDING MORE HELP TO THE PACIFIC AND AGAIN AND AGAIN THEY TOLD ME HOW ASHAMED THEY FELT THAT CHINA WAS NOT GETTING MORE AID.

"I THINK THE PRESIDENT AND THE ADMINISTRATION AGREE THAT MORE AID SHOULD BE GIVEN CHINA--THIS IS ALREADY BEING TRANSLATED INTO ACTION."

SHE SAID SHE FOUND AMERICANS, CONSIDERING HOW FAR AWAY THEY WERE, REMARKABLY WELL INFORMED ABOUT CHINA, "THOUGH SOMETIMES THEIR IDEAS ARE MORE THEORETICAL THAN PRACTICAL."

SHE SAID A REMARKABLE NUMBER OF WOMEN WERE WORKING IN WAR PLANTS "AND THEY DO AS WELL IF NOT BETTER THAN MEN IN SOME TYPES OF WORK."

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, JULY 11-(AP)-CUT OFF FROM ITS SUPPLY PORT, POUNDED BY BOMBERS, BLASTED BY ARTILLERY AND MENACED FROM TWO DIRECTIONS BY UNITED STATES TROOPS, JAPAN'S AIR BASE GARRISON AT MUNDA ON NEW GEORGIA APPEARED TODAY TO BE FACED WITH ULTIMATE ANNIHILATION.

THE LATEST IN A CONTINUING SERIES OF BLOWS WAS THE ERECTION OF A WELL-GUNNED BARRIER ACROSS THE JUNGLE TRACK OVER WHICH JAPANESE TROOPS AT MUNDA MOVE THEIR SUPPLIES DOWN FROM BAIROKO ANCHORAGE ON THE KULA GULF. BAIROKO ITSELF HAS BEEN POUNDED BY UNITED STATES WARSHIPS AND BOMBERS AND THE JAPANESE GARRISONING IT VERY PROBABLY HAVE BEEN ISOLATED BY THE LATEST DEVELOPMENTS.

SUNDAY'S COMMUNIQUE FROM GEN. DOUGLAS MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS LISTED THESE NEW MOVES TO TIGHTEN THE NOOSE ON MUNDA:

1. THE ERECTION OF THE ROADBLOCK AND THE KILLING OF 60 JAPANESE AMONG THE FIRST TWO GROUPS TRYING TO BREAK THROUGH IT.

2. THE BOMBING BY LIBERATORS OF JAPANESE CRUISERS AND DESTROYERS SEEN STEAMING NEAR KOLOMBANGARA TOWARD THE KULA GULF ENTRANCE, WITH 500 POUND BOMBS SCORING TWO DIRECT HITS. DARKNESS PREVENTED FURTHER OBSERVATION AND WHEREABOUTS OF THESE SHIPS HAVE SINCE BEEN UNREPORTED.

3. THE UNLOADING OF 67 MORE TONS OF HIGH EXPLOSIVES ON GROUND BATTERIES, CAMP AND SUPPLY INSTALLATION AREAS IN THE PERIMETER OF MUNDA'S DEFENSES.

KIRIWINA ISLAND, TROBRIAND GROUP, JULY 11-(AP)-THE STRANGEST ANIMAL ON THIS PACIFIC ISLAND OUTPOST IS A MASCOT NAMED "SPEEDY," A HONEY BEAR BROUGHT HERE BY THE AMERICAN OCCUPATION FORCE.

SPEEDY WAS A FEW WEEKS OLD, JUST BIG ENOUGH TO HOLD IN A MAN'S HAND, WHEN SGT.LON HARRALL, CASA GRANDE, ARIZ., GOT HIM A YEAR AGO.

BLOND, GOOD LOOKING HARRALL FED THE BABY HONEYBEAR THROUGH A NIPPLE AND LATER TAUGHT IT TO EAT REGULAR ARY FOOD.

CAPT.THOMAS COGAN, CHARLESTON, W.VA., SAID, "WE SMUGGLED SPEEDY ABOARD THE TRANSPORT SHIP TO AUSTRALIA AND IN THE LANDING BOAT TO KIRIWINA. HE'S HAD ALL THE INOCULATIONS ANY SOLDIER GETS--TYPHUS, TETANUS, ETC.--AND HE IS T

SPEEDY NOW IS THE SIZE OF A SMALL DOG, WITH A LONG RUBBERY NOSE LIKE AN ANT EATER AND A THICK TAIL OVER TWICE THE LENGTH OF HIS BODY. HE SLEEPS ON TOP OF HARRALL'S MOSQUITO NETTING.

JUL 12 1943

WITHIN TWO HOURS PRIVATE FIRST CLASS BENTON, STARTING WITH A STAKE OF $10 AND A 50-CENT JACKKNIFE, TRADED HIMSELF INTO A 17-JEWEL WRIST WATCH, CONSERVATIVELY VALUED AT $45, $5 IN CASH AND A POCKET WATCH.

HERE'S HOW TO DO IT, A LA BENTON;

HE BOUGHT A WRIST WATCH FROM A SEABEE WITH THE $10, THEN, SOLD IT FOR $15 AND A $2 POCKET WATCH.

HE THEN TRADED A 50-CENT JACKKNIFE AND THE $15 FOR ANOTHER WRIST WATCH, AND SOLD THIS WRIST WATCH FOR $30.

NEXT HE BOUGHT STILL ANOTHER WRIST WATCH FOR $25 AND TRADED IT FOR THE AFORESAID WATCH WORTH $45.

WHEN ASKED WHY HIS TRADING VENTURES WERE SO SUCCESSFUL PRIVATE FIRST CLASS BENTON INNOCENTLY REPLIED, "OH, I NEVER LET THEM THINK THEY ARE CHEATING ME UNLESS I CAN MAKE A PROFIT ON THE DEAL."

THE CHUBBY AND DECEPTIVELY INNOCENT YOUTH IS NOW SEARCHING FOR A MAN WHO WANTS A BARGAIN HIM OUT OF THE POCKET WATCH AND THE $5 LEFT OVER FROM HIS PREVIOUS SERIES OF TRADES.

CAIRO, JULY 11-(AP)-AERIAL RECONNAISSANCE YESTERDAY AFTERNOON SHOWED THAT SEVERAL VITAL SICILIAN AIRDROMES HAVE BEEN MADE UNSERVICEABLE AS A RESULT OF HEAVY POUNDING FROM UNITED NATIONS AIR FORCES, IT WAS STATED HERE TODAY.

HEAVIEST BLOWS WERE DELIVERED BY LIBERATORS FROM THE NINTH UNITED STATES AIR FORCE WHICH ATTACKED CATANIA IN SICILY AND THE VIBO VALENTIA AIRFIELD ON THE ITALIAN MAINLAND IN DAYLIGHT YESTERDAY, AN AMERICAN COMMUNIQUE SAID.

AT CATANIA 150,000 POUNDS OF HIGH EXPLOSIVES WERE DROPPED ON THE RAILWAY MARSHALLING YARDS. WIDESPREAD DAMAGE WAS REPORTED.

BURSTS WERE SEEN IN THE CENTER OF THE LANDING FIELD AT VIBO VALENTIA AND HITS WERE SCORED ON HANGARS. GROUNDED AIRCRAFT WERE ALSO SET AFIRE.

THE RAIDS WERE CARRIED OUT WITHOUT THE LOSS OF AN AMERICAN PLANE.

(ADVANCE)..SOMEWHERE IN NEW GUINEA, JULY 2-(DELAYED)-(AP)-IF YOU EVER HAVE WONDERED HOW A GROUNDED OFFICER IN THE AIR CORPS FEELS WHILE ALL HIS MATES ARE KITING AROUND, DROPPING BOMBS ON RABAUL AND SHOOTING JAPS OVER WEWAK, THIS IS IT.

ITS AUTHOR IS A 1941 DARTMOUTH GRADUATE AND 1942 GRADUATE OF THE ARMY AIR FORCES SCHOOL AT CHANUTE FIELD, ILL.; A NEW YORKER (HIS FAMILY LIVES AT 41 WALWORTH AVE., SCARSDALE), AND ON THE STAFF OF A TROOP CARRIER OUTFIT WHICH HAULS ESSENTIAL MEN AND MATERIEL OVER THE OWEN STANLEY MOUNTAINS.

HIS NAME IS RICHARD KROLIK, HIS RANK SECOND LIEUTENANT. HERE GOES:

"THEY ALSO SERVE, WHO ONLY SIT AND SHUFFLE PAPERS.

"NO ARMY AT WAR IS COMPOSED SOLELY OF THE GLORY BOYS, LEAN AND HARDENED FIGHTERS WHO SOAR INTO THE CLOUDS AT THE FLICK OF A RED ALERT, AND THE AIR CORPS IN NEW GUINEA IS NO EXCEPTION. FOR EVERY AIRMAN SERVING LIEUT. GEN. GEORGE C.KENNEY IN THIS DUSTY ISLAND, THERE IS A GROUNDED OFFICER SERVING JUST AS DILIGENTLY, JUST AS FAR AWAY FROM HIS WIFE AND FAMILY, JUST AS LIABLE TO DIRECT HITS WHICH TOJO CARRIES OVER FROM RABAUL.

"THE GROUND OFFICERS IN A FIGHTER SQUADRON DON'T FIGHT, IN A BOMBER SQUADRON DON'T BOMB, AND IN A TROOP CARRIER SQUADRON DON'T CARRY TROOPS. THEY SIT AT THEIR DESKS, SIGN THEIR NAMES, WRITE THEIR ORDERS AND MEMORANDA AND OFFICIAL CORRESPONDENCE, AND TRY TO EXPLAIN IN THEIR LETTERS HOME JUST WHAT THEIR PART IN THE WAR EFFORT IS.

"THE COMMANDING OFFICER'S STAFF IN ANY ARMY UNIT, THE AIR CORPS NOT EXCEPTED, CONSISTS OF FOUR DIVISIONS: A-1, A2, A-3, AND A-4. OF THE FOUR ONLY A-3, OPERATIONS, INCLUDES FLYING OFFICERS. A-1 IS PERSONNEL, A-2 IS INTELLIGENCE, AND A-4 IS SUPPLY--ALL IMPORTANT JOBS, ALL WITHOUT THRILLS.

"A-1 PICKS THE MEN WHO WILL GO ON MISSIONS, A-2 NOTES THEIR EXPERIENCES, A-3 ASSIGNS PARTICULAR MEN TO PARTICULAR PLANES, AND A-4 SEES THAT THEY HAVE THE CORRECT EQUIPMENT. THE PLANES TAKE OFF, THE PILOTS AND THE NAMIGATORS AND THE BO BARDIERS AND THE GUNNERS AND THE CREW CHIEFS AND THE RADIO OPERATORS SEE THE ACTION...AND THE GROUND PERSONNEL SITS ON THE GROUND.

"AN OFFICE IS AN OFFICE, WHETHER IT BE 65 STORIES UP IN RADIO CITY AND FILLED WITH THICK RUGS AND ALLURING RECEPTIONISTS, OR IN A MOSQUITO-INFESTED TENT WITH BOXES FOR SEATS AND PACKING CASES FOR DECKS. NO ONE SEEMS TO HAVE FIGURED OUT THE RATE ON COMBAT FATIGUE FOR PAPER-SHUFFLERS IN THE COMBAT ZONE--THEY COME, AND THEY STAY.

"GROUNDED PILOTS ARE THE BEST LOBBYISTS FOR WEAK-VOICED GROUND OFFICERS. THEY KNOW HOW NERVE-WRACKING IS THE DAILY ROUTINE OF SITTING AND SHUFFLING. MOST ANY PILOT WOULD RATHER FLY EIGHT HOURS A DAY THAN SIT AT A DESK FOR EIGHT MINUTES. DOING IT, HE OFTEN REVISES HIS CONTEMPTUOUS OPINION OF THE 'SOFT LIFE' OF A GROUND OFFICER.

"THERE IS LITTLE GLORY IN FORWARDING A LETTER, COMPILING A STATISTIC, SIGNING A REPORT--BUT THAT'S WHY GROUND OFFICERS WERE BORN. IT'S ALL RIGHT, BECAUSE THEY DON'T MIND STICKING IT OUT ON THIS LINE.

"BUT THE QUESTION THEY'RE ALL FEARING IS THE PIPING OF A CHILDISH VOICE:

JUL 12 1943

"WHAT DID YOU DO IN THE WAR, DADDY?'"

P.S.--LT.KROLIK HAS PASSED THE PHYSICAL EXAMINATION FOR FLYING CADET TRAINING.

"NO NEWS" PAPERS
THRIVE IN ALASKA

ARMY BOYS FILL 'EM
UP WITH GAGS

BY WILLIAM L.WORDEN

HEADQUARTERS, ALASKA DEFENSE COMMAND--(AP)-THRIVING ON SCARCITY, THE ARMY NEWSPAPER HAS REACHED A NEW HIGH IN THE WILD AND WOOLY POSTS OF ALASKA, WHERE IN MANY CASES THE ONLY OTHER NEWS COMES FROM SQUEAKY RADIOS OR MONTH-OLD HOME TOWN WEEKLIES.

FROM BRITISH COLUMBIA TO THE ARCTIC SHORES, FEW POSTS ARE SO SMALL OR SO ISOLATED THAT THEY DO NOT HAVE SOME SORT OF PUBLICATION, RANGING ALL THE WAY FROM THE FLASHY AND WIDELY-QUOTED KODIAK BEAR TO SUCH MODEST PUBLICATIONS AS THE "MUSH", CANDID AND MIMEOGRAPHED PUBLICATION OF TROOPS AT GULKANA.

OTHER SOLDIER-WRITTEN, SOLDIER-PUBLISHED PAPERS INCLUDE THE SOURDOUGH SENTINEL, THE HUSKIE HERALD, THE MIDNIGHT SUN, THE ALEUTIAN AND THE DAILY POLARIS. A FEW ARE PRINTED, MORE MIMEOGRAPHED. MOST OF THEM FEATURE WHATEVER BATHING BEAUTIES THEY CAN FIND AND SOME GIVE DISTRIBUTION TO LOCAL NUDE CARTOONING (IF THE PAPER IS ONE OF THOSE WHICH CANNOT BE SENT HOME UNDER ARMY REGULATIONS.)

SUBJECT MATTER FOR THE EDITORS VARIES FROM SERIOUS WAR DISCUSSIONS TO POST GOSSIP, BUT BY AND LARGE IT IS TREATED WITH A BREEZY PEN.

EXCEPTING ONLY COMMANDING OFFICERS, THE EDITORS AREN'T AFRAID OF ANYBODY---ESPECIALLY ADVERTISERS. WITNESS THIS MOVIE REVIEW FROM THE "MUSH":

WHOEVER NAMED THAT PICTURE SHOULD BE ARRESTED FOR FALSE ADVERTISING. THE WAY ERROL FLYNN, RONALD REAGAN, ALAN HALE AND THEIR BUDDIES WENT THROUGH GERMANY WASN'T DANGEROUS, IT WAS A PICNIC. WE ARE HAPPY TO SEE THAT NO KRAUT CAN STAND MORE THAN ONE PUNCH, EVEN IF YOU HIT THEM IN THE HELMET."

THE WEATHER, IN PRINT AS IN CONVERSATION, TAKES UP A LOT OF TIME. SAYS THE ALASKA COMMUNICATIONS SYSTEM BULLETIN:

"FORT RANDALL---IT WAS WITH TEARS IN THEIR EYES AND SADNESS IN THEIR HEARTS THAT RANDALLITES SAW THEIR LAST SNOW FALL ON MAY 6, ALMOST SEVEN MONTHS TO THE DAY THAT THE LITTLE WHITE FLAKES FIRST CAME TO COLD BAY ON OCTOBER 7. FOR THE NEXT FIVE MONTHS THEY'LL HAVE MUD--FROM SIX INCHES TO THREE FEET DEEP. BUT ALL YEAR LONG--COME SNOW, COME RAIN, COME SLEET--THERE'LL BE WIND, FROM 20 (AN AVERAGE DAY) TO 92 MILES AN HOUR (LAST SUMMER'S RECORD.)"

THE SAME PUBLICATION GIVES RULES FOR BEHAVIOR IN ALASKA:

"ANCHORAGE---THIS IS INSTALLMENT TWO OF AN UNOFFICIAL MEMORANDUM DESIGNED TO COVER PROCEDURE NOT DEALT WITH IN OFFICIAL WAR DEPARTMENT CIRCULARS.

"1. SOLDIERS SHOULD ALWAYS USE CORRECT COLLOQUIALISMS. YOU DON'T SAY THAT YOU ARE GOING BACK TO THE STATES.---YOU SAY YOU ARE GOING 'OUTSIDE'. IF YOU WISH, YOU CAN SAY YOU ARE GOING BACK TO THE STATES, BUT MORE THAN LIKELY NO ONE WILL BELIEVE YOU.

JUL 12 1943

"2. YOU NEVER CALL ANYBODY CRAZY. YOU GIVE THEM A WIDE-EYED LOOK, RUB THE FOREFINGER BRISKLY OVER THE LIPS, MAKING A PURRING SOUND, AND SAY, 'YOU'VE BEEN IN ALASKA TOO LONG'. AFTER THIS PERFORMANCE, THERE IS SOME QUESTION AS TO WHO HAS BEEN IN ALASKA TOO LONG."

THE PERSONAL ITEM IS NATURALLY THE BACKBONE OF THE PAPERS---NOT ALWAYS TREATED WITH GREAT RESPECT.

JUL 12 1943

SAYS ONE PAPER, "SERGEANT FRED CHANDLER OF THE SIGNAL CORPS IS SURELY EMBARRASSED AS HE WROTE HIS WIFE TELLING HER HE MISSES THOSE BIG BLUE EYES---THEY ARE BROWN."

IN THE MIDNIGHT SUN AT FAIRBANKS, NO NAME IS SACRED. UNDER A HEADING "SZEWCZYKOWSKI, GLENN MILLER CPLS." A STORY IS CARRIED TO THE EFFECT THAT THE GLENN MILLER IS IN THE COLD KNOWS DETACHMENT AND DOES NOT LEAD A BAND, THAT SZEWCZYKOWSKI'S FIRST NAME IS THOMAS, AND THAT THE POST HAS A NEW RECRUIT NAMED ARFST ARFSTEIN.

THE MIDNIGHT SUN ALSO CARRIES ITEMS WHICH COULD BE SERIOUS--UNTIL THE LAST FEW LINES. FOR EXAMPLE:

"A BARBER KIT IS BEING ISSUED TO MEN ON DUTY OVERSEAS AT STATIONS WHERE THE SERVICES OF PROFFESIONAL BARBERS ARE NOT AVAILABLE. DEVELOPED BY THE QUARTERMASTER CORPS, THE KITS GOING TO TROOPS IN THIS REGION WILL INCLUDE CLIPPERS TO PREVENT FORMATION OF ICE ON THE MEN'S WHISKERS."

THERE IS IN THE ALEUTIAN, OF DUTCH HARBOR, THE INEVITABLE STORY ABOUT A SAFETY PRECAUTIONS EXPERT, ONE SERGEANT ROBERT SIMMS. DETAILED TO INSTRUCT A GROUP OF MEN IN THE PROPER METHOD OF HANDLING A RIFLE, THE STORY SAYS, THE SERGEANT WORKED HARD, RETURNED TO HIS QUARTERS, STARTED TO CLEAN HIS OWN RIFLE, SHOT HIMSELF IN THE FOOT.

THE SAME PAPER CARRIES ONE REAL NEWS ITEM--DUTCH HARBOR'S FIRST WEDDING IN EIGHT MONTHS. THE BRIDE WAS AN ARMY NURSE, LIEUT.ANNE M.KIRSTING, OF MARTINSVILLE, MO., THE GROOM CAPT.OWEN A.DALY, NEW SMYRNA, FLA.

JUL 12 1943

MOST OF THE PAPERS HAVE NO SUCH NEWS BREAKS--BUT THEY ALL HAVE WANT ADS. EXAMPLE A---"NAKNEK--FOUND--ONE SMALL FIELD FIRST AID KIT OPENED, BOTTLE MARKED QUOTE FOR EXTERNAL USE ONLY UNQUOTE MISSING."

EXAMPLE B---"WANTED: SMALL, GAS-OPERATED MOTOR OR A NEW SET OF LEGS...TO BE USED ON A BICYCLE. PFC.J.V.FLOWERS."

THE GREAT LIGHTS SAY

"YOU CAN'T GET AWAY"

TO BOMBER OVER CANAL (750)

BY VAUGHN M.BRYANT

PANAMA CANAL ZONE, -(AP)-WE HAVE JUST LANDED FROM A FLIGHT AN ENEMY FLIER WOULD GIVE ANYTHING TO MAKE -- A NIGHT "BOMBING RAID" OVER THE PANAMA CANAL, ITS LOCKS AND PACIFIC ENTRANCE.

THEORETICALLY, WE SHOULD NEVER HAVE RETURNED. IN FACT, WE SHOULD NEVER HAVE GOTTEN OVER THE CANAL AND LOCKS IN THE FIRST PLACE IN THIS BRISTLING SECTOR OF ANTI-AIRCRAFT FIRE AND GIANT SEARCHLIGHTS, FAR-FLUNG INTERCEPTOR PATROLS AND RADIO LISTENING POSTS.

BUT TONIGHT IT WAS ALL JUST PART OF A SEARCHLIGHT DRILL -- A ROUTINE TRACK", AS THEY CALL IT, HIGH UP IN AN INKY, MOONLESS SKY

THAT WASN'T INKY LONG. NOT WITH THE SEARCHLIGHT SHARPSHOOTERS SPOT-LIGHTING THE SHIP LIKE A PRIMA DONNA AT THE METROPOLITAN.

THE SPEED AND ACCURACY OF THESE LADS AT OUTPOST SEARCHLIGHT POSITIONS IN THE DENSE AND MATTED JUNGLE IS A TRIBUTE TO THEIR COMMAND -- THE PANAMA COAST ARTILLERY. AND THEIR FIRE IS JUST AS ACCURATE, THOUGH THAT WASN'T ON TONIGHT'S DEMONSTRATION.

SOME TIME AGO I VISITED SOME OF THESE SEARCHLIGHT "JUNGLE MUDDERS". THE LIGHT OF SGT.MALVERN TAYLOR OF BLADENBORO, N.C., FOR INSTANCE, LIES BACK OFF THE ROAD ON A MOUNTAIN SLOPE. WITH HIM I WATCHED WHILE HIS LIGHT AND OTHERS IN THE PLATOON OF LIEUT.D.E.WENGER (PORT ALLEGHANY, PA.), WENT INTO ACTION AND MADE THE TRACKING BOMBER CONSPICUOUS.

TONIGHT, UP IN THAT SAME PLANE, I HAD A TASTE OF THE BLINDING GLARE THESE MYRIAD LIGHTS ARE READY TO THROW UP AT ANY APPROACHING ENEMY.

ONLY ARMY AND NAVY PLANES OPERATE HERE WITHOUT BLACKING OUT THEIR WINDOWS. EVEN THEY DON'T FLY OVER THE CANAL ITSELF EXCEPT ON SPECIAL MANEUVERS. SO THIS WAS A RARE SIGHT--AND A BEAUTIFUL ONE.

THE CANAL LAY GREY, SMALL AND HAZY BELOW. TWO SHIPS WERE SLOWLY MOVING ALONG AFTER NEGOTIATING THE PEDRO MIGUEL AND MIRAFLORES LOCKS--WHICH APPEARED MIGHTY SMALL TO BE SUCH ULTRA-VITAL WAR ADJUNCTS.

AS WE CLIMBED, THE BIG DITCH INSIGNIFICANTLY STRETCHED ITSELF LAZILY INTO THE HILLS BEYOND TO WHERE A GOLDEN RED SUNSET TINGED THE SKY OVER THE CANAL'S ATLANTIC TERMINUS. IT SOUNDS CRAZY, AND ONE NEVER GETS USED TO IT. BUT THE ATLANTIC SIDE DOES LIE WEST OF THE PACIFIC ENTRANCE.

LIGHTS WERE SPRINGING UP DOWN THERE NOW--THE LIGHTS OF EARLY DARKNESS BEFORE THE ENTIRE AREA GOES INTO ITS NIGHTLY DIMOUT. PANAMA CITY LAY LIKE A TWINKLING, SPARKLING CLUSTER. I DON'T KNOW IF OUR PILOTS NOTICED. LIEUTENANTS HAROLD H.ROBERTS (TALLAHASSEE, FLA.) AND W.W.ARNOLD (ABILENE, TEXAS) WERE INTERESTED MAINLY IN THEIR MISSION.

THEN RADIO OPERATOR SGT.JACK SPROULE (6742 SO.ABERDEEN, CHICAGO) RECEIVED OUR INSTRUCTIONS--TO HEAD OUT, CIRCLE, AND COME BACK IN OVER THE VITAL AREAS AND LET THE SEARCHLIGHTS DO THEIR JOB. SO WE STARTED THE "TRACK."

IT WAS COLD UP THERE IN THE BOMBER'S NOSE WATCHING THE BLACKNESS BENEATH AND THEN, SUDDENLY, A BRILLIANT, BLUISH-WHITE LIGHT LASHED UP THROUGH THE NIGHT AND GROPED THE AREA ABOUT US. I FORGOT THE COLD AND WATCHED FASCINATED AS ANOTHER AND ANOTHER FORMED A WEAVING, SILVERY SEARCHING NETWORK.

THEN THEY HAD US! ONE LIGHT SMACKED US ON THE NOSE AND IN A FLASH THE REST WERE OVER AND CONVERGED ON IT IN A BLINDING GLARE. I GLANCED DOWN THROUGH THE NOSE AND THAT GLARE BLACKING OUT EVERYTHING--LIKE AN ONCOMING MOTORIST'S LIGHTS ON THE HIGHWAY, ONLY MORE SO.

YET WE WERE STILL MILES FROM THE CANAL. THESE WERE JUST THE OUTER RING OF LIGHTS. THEY REACHED UP OUT OF THE BRUSH COUNTRY AND SPOTTED US WITH THEIR SOUND EQUIPMENT, AND WERE NOW PASSING US ALONG TO OTHER LIGHTS. FOR, ONCE YOU'RE IN THEM, YOU DON'T GET OUT TILL YOU'RE SHOT OUT.

I REMEMBERED MY VISIT TO SGT.TAYLOR'S POSITION AND RECALLED HOW HE ON THE SPOTTER, TECHNICIAN FRANK TRIPODI (10 EASTERN AVE., PITTSBURGH, PA.) ON THE POWER PLANT, PVT.JOHN C.GALLAGHER (129 W. 78TH ST., N.Y.) ON THE LAMP AND PVT.LEO GORDON (98 THAYER ST., N.Y.) ON THE TELEPHONE HAD WAITED FOR THE OUTER RING TO FIND THE PLANE THAT NIGHT.

THEN, AS THE LIGHTS PASSED IT ALONG TAYLOR PUT HIS SPOTTER ON IT, GALLAGHER'S LAMP MOVED SIMULTANEOUSLY BY SYNCHRONISED MECHANISM, TRIPODI'S POWER PLANT SNAPPED ON AND THE POSITION SHOT UP A SILVER LADDER TO THE PLANE. THEY HAD HELD IT, FOLLOWED IT, AND THEN SNAPPED OFF AS IT MOVED OVERHEAD AND OTHER LIGHTS PICKED IT UP.

A FEW MINUTES AGO WE GOT OUR ORDERS TO GO DOWN. DURING THE DESCENT CAPT.LESTER GAYLORD (PHOENIX, ARIZ.) AND CREW CHIEF L.STEPHENS (13221 EXCHANGE, CHICAGO) SHOWED ME THE ROUTES WE HAD FOLLOWED.

THE HILLS THAT A SHORT WHILE AGO WERE SPROUTING THOSE DEADLY SEARCHLIGHTS ARE AGAIN IN A STYGIAN BLACKOUT. BUT THERE ARE HUNDREDS OF MEN LIKE TAYLOR, TRIPODI, GORDON, GALLAGHER, GERALD NAVARRO (1812 NOGALITOS, SAN ANTONIO, TEXAS) AND PVT.ELSWORTH BUSH (2148 15TH ST., AKRON) OUT THERE IN THAT BLACKNESS.

THEY'RE THERE AND THEY, OR OTHERS LIKE THEM, WILL ALWAYS BE THERE AS LONG AS THIS OCEAN-LINKING WATERWAY IS THREATENED. AND IF THESE BOYS HAVE ANYTHING TO DO WITH IT, THAT'S ALL AN ATTACK WOULD BE--JUST A THREAT. THE ENEMY CAN'T SNEAK BY THOSE SPOTLIGHTS.

BIMINI

BY E.V.W.JONES

(ADVANCE) BIMINI, BAHAMAS, JULY 9-(AP)-BIMINI HAS THE NAME AND SETTING OF A TROPICAL PARADISE, BUT BITING INSECTS AND A WATER SUPPLY THAT INFLICTS DYSENTERY ON THE UNWARY ROB IT OF THAT IDEAL STATE OF BEING.

IT IS, NEVERTHELESS, A TINY, STRANGE WORLD JUST OUTSIDE THE THRESHOLD OF THE UNITED STATES. ONLY 45 MILES ACROSS THE GULF STREAM FROM MIAMI, FLA., THERE ARE MANY AMONG BIMINI'S 700 NEGRO POPULATION AND 20 OR SO WHITES WHO NEVER HAVE SEEN AN AUTOMOBILE, BICYCLE, HORSE OR WHEELBARROW.

FEW AMERICANS OTHER THAN DEEP SEA SPORTS FISHERMEN AND RUM RUNNERS OF PROHIBITION DAYS EVER HEARD OF BIMINI. WE WILL HEAR MORE OF IT FROM NOW ON, FOR THIS TINY ISLAND IS THE KEY THAT WILL UNLOCK THE TREASURE CHEST OF THE GREAT BAHAMA BANK TO COEAL FISHING.

TREASURE CHEST OF THE GREAT BAHAMA BANK TO COMMERCIAL FISHING.

THESE OPERATIONS BEGAN THIS SUMMER. THE COAST GUARD ASSIGNED TWO MEN, WARRANT OFFICER TOMMY GIFFORD AND BOATSWAIN'S MATE KENNETH FOSTER, WORLD-FAMED FISHING GUIDES, TO TEACH NATIVES HOW TO HOOK AND BOAT SEA GIANTS SUCH AS TUNA, MARLIN AND SHARKS. THE COMMERCIAL OPERATION IS CONDUCTED BY GENERAL SEAFOODS (BAHAMAS), LTD., SUBSIDIARY OF GENERAL SEAFOODS OF BOSTON.

WE SAILED TO BIMINI ON A COAST GUARD VESSEL, THE SIGHT OF WHICH WOULD HAVE CREATED GREAT EXCITEMENT AMONG CERTAIN FURTIVE SPEED BOAT OWNERS DURING THE DRY AND ROARING 1920'S. OUR TRIM GREY CRAFT SAILED BLANKLY AROUND THE TRICKY SANDBAR AT THE ENTRANCE TO BIMINI BAY, WHICH SEPARATES THE TWIN ISLANDS OF NORTH AND SOUTH BIMINI. DOZENS OF NEGROES DASHED TO THE PIE. TO GREET US AND "HOWDY, BOSS MAN," WAS SPOKEN A HUNDRED TIMES.

"HOW'S FISHING?" WE INQUIRED.

"JESS FAIR, BOSSMAN. TUNA AIN'T RUNNIN' SO GOOD, BUT SHA-A-AK BITE AND THEY PLENTY SCALE FISH."

"SHA-A-AK" IS THE BIMINI PRONUNCIATION OF SHARK, AND SCALE FISH ARE THE 100-ODD VARIETIES OF SCALE-BEARING EDIBLE FISH FOUND IN THESE WATERS.

WE STEP ASHORE AND APPOINT A CAPTAIN (PRONOUNCED KOP-TAIN) TO LOOK AFTER OUR LUGGAGE. HE IN TURN APPOINTS A BEARER FOR EACH PIECE, LARGE AND SMALL, RESERVING A SMALL ONE FOR HIMSELF. OFF WE GO LIKE A SMALL MOB TO A HOTEL WHICH, ODDLY, IS CLOSED FOR THE SUMMER BUT OPEN TO VISITORS, A CARETAKER IN CHARGE.

WE PASS BETHEL'S FOUNTAIN OF YOUTH, ONE OF THE MOST TORRID OF HOT SPOTS IN THE ROARING 1920'S. ITS ROOF IS GONE, LONG AGO COLLAPSED FROM LACK OF REPAIR AND CARRIED (NOT CARTED, FOR THERE ARE NO CARTS) AWAY FOR FIREWOOD.

OUR HOTEL'S ROOF LEAKS, WE LEARN FROM A THUNDERSQUALL. WE ARE THANKFUL FOR A SQUIRT GUN ON OUR BEDSIDE TABLE FOR WITH DARKNESS FIERCE MOSQUITOES AND AGGRAVATING, ITCHY SAND FLIES ATTEMPT TO TAKE OVER. HOUSE FLIES AND OTHER CREEPING, CRAWLING OR FLYING INSECTS COME WITH DAYLIGHT.

COMMISSIONER R.E. MALONE IS THE GOVERNMENT ON BIMINI AND CAT CAY, A FEW MILES DOWN THE GREAT BAHAMA BANK. ALSO IN HIS DISTRICT, DRIVEN HARD ON A REEF, IS THE CONCRETE SHIP. BUILT DURING THE WORLD WAR, THE VESSEL WENT INTO PRIVATE HANDS AFTER THAT CONFLICT AND, RESIDENTS SAID, BECAME A LOADING SPOT FOR RUM RUNNERS DURING PROHIBITION DAYS. NOW, LIKE BETHEL'S FOUNTAIN OF YOUTH, IT IS A DECADENT RELIC OF A DEAD ERA.

THE GOVERNMENT BUILDING ON BIMINI IS A WOODEN STRUCTURE WITH A JAIL ON THE FIRST FLOOR AND AN OUTSIDE STAIRWAY LEADING TO OFFICES ON HE SECOND FLOOR. TO THE LEFT ON THE PORCH AT THE TOP OF THE STAIRS S A DOOR MARKED "POST OFFICE." STRAIGHT AHEAD IS A DOOR MARKED OMMISSIONER'S OFFICE." BOTH DOORS OPEN INTO THE SAME ROOM, WHICH SYMBOLIC, SINCE MALONE IS POSTMASTER, JUDGE AND GENERAL FUNCTIONARY.

THERE ARE MANY HOMES ON BIMINI, THE MORE PRETENTIOUS ONES FACING KING'S HIGHWAY, A PAVED, NARROW STREET THAT NEVER HEARD THE PURR OF

AN AUTOMOBILE ENGINE OR THE CLATTER OF A HORSE'S HOOF. ALSO FACING THE HIGHWAY ARE SEVERAL STORES, ALL UNPRETENTIOUS.

AMONG THE BUSINESS HOUSES ARE TWO BARS. IN CONTRAST TO THE DAYS WHEN SHIPLOADS OF LIQUOR FOUND THEIR WAY HERE AND THEN BY DEVIOUS MEANS INTO DRY AMERICA, THE STOCK OF THESE TWO BARS POSSIBLY WOULD FILL A WHEELBARROW, IF THERE WERE A WHEELBARROW ON BIMINI.

BUT COMMERCIAL FISHING HAS COME TO THIS LITTLE ISLAND OUTPOST NOW. IT PROMISES BIG THINGS, FOR FINALLY THE ISLAND IS GLIMPSING A SUBSTANTIAL ECONOMY.

JUL 12 1943

"BIMINI," SAID COMMISSIONER MALONE, VIEWING HIS LITTLE DOMAIN FROM HIS OFFICE PORCH, "HAS ALWAYS BEEN LUCKY."

SICILIAN TRAVELOGUE

BY RICHARD G.MASSOCK

JUL 12 1943

FORMER CHIEF OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS BUREAU IN ROME

WASHINGTON,JULY 11-(AP)-BOMBARDMENT OF ITALIAN MILITARY HEADQUARTERS IN THE SAN DOMENICO HOTEL AT TAORMINA MUST EVOKE IDYLLIC MEMORIES IN A LOT OF AMERICAN TOURIST MINDS.

A LOT OF TOURISTS HAVE STAYED THERE AT ONE TIME OR ANOTHER, FOR THE SAN DOMENICO WAS TO SICILY WHAT THE MIAMI BILTMORE IS TO FLORIDA, THE HOMESTEAD TO HOT SPRINGS,VA., THE DEL MONTE TO CALIFORNIA, THE PRINCESS TO BERMUDA AND THE CHATEAU FRONTENAC TO QUEBEC.

A PALATIAL LUXURY HOTEL ON A MOUNTAIN OVERLOOKING THE SEA ON ONE SIDE AND A VALLEY, WITH MT.ETNA IN THE DISTANCE, ON THE OTHER SIDE, THE SAN DOMENICO WAS THE SCENE OF STRANGE ACTIVITY IN MAY, 1940.

THE LAST LINGERING TOURISTS OBSERVED THAT THE FURNISHINGS WERE BEING TAKEN OUT OF THE ROOMS AS THEY WERE VACATED. SMART ONES SAID TO THEMSELVES, "AHA! ITALY IS GOING TO ENTER THE WAR AND THIS IS GOING TO BE A MILITARY HOSPITAL, SO LET'S GET OUT OF HERE."

ITALY DID GO INTO THE WAR WITHIN A MONTH, BUT THE HOTEL BECAME MILITARY HEADQUARTERS FOR SICILY. ONLY WE DIDN'T KNOW IT IN ROME.

SICILY HAD BEEN A TOURIST SPOT, OF COURSE, SINCE THE GREEKS GRABBED IT ONCE A LONG TIME AGO AND SAPPHO, PYTHAGORAS, PLATO, AESCHYLUS AND HOMER WENT THERE FOR SIGHTSEEING. HOMER MADE IT A PORT OF CALL FOR ULYSSES AND A LOT OF OTHER MYTHS WERE LAID THERE, SUCH AS PLUTO'S KIDNAPING OF PERSEPHONE. THERE ARE GREEK RUINS IN THE LUSH FLOWERLAND OF TAORMINA.

NOW AMERICAN TROOPS ARE FIGHTING FOR A CHANCE, AMONG OTHER THINGS, TO SEE WHAT SICILY HAS TO OFFER.

THEY PROBABLY WOULD BE GLAD TO KNOW THAT THERE ARE BOTH BRUNETTES AND BLONDES. FOR THE SICILIANS ARE A MIXTURE OF MANY RACES--ARABS, GREEKS, GOTHS, VANDALS, ROMANS, TEUTONS, FRENCH, SPANIARDS, LOMBARDS.

THERE'S A HIGH PERCENTAGE OF BEAUTY AMONG THE GIRLS, BUT THE BOYS WILL HAVE TO WATCH OUT, FOR THE SICILIANS ARE JEALOUS GUARDIANS OF THEIR WOMENFOLK. WITH THEIR PRIMITIVE EMOTIONS OF LOVE, BETRAYALS AND STABBINGS ARE COUPLED LIKE DRUNKS AND HANGOVERS.

THE GIRLS ARE SOMEWHAT LESS SECLUDED THAN THEY USED TO BE, HOWEVER. IN THE PORT CITIES, AFTER THE WAR BEGAN, ITALIAN SAILORS FLOCKED TO THE DIME STORES OF THE UPIM CHAIN TO DATE THE HANDSOME AND USUALLY BUXOM SALESGIRLS.

NOR DO THE SICILIAN WOMEN WEAR THE FANCY PEASANT DRESS, WITH LONG FULL SKIRTS, HIGH NECKED BLOUSES, APRONS AND KERCHIEFS, GAUDY AS THEY WERE NEAT, OF THE OLD PICTURE POSTCARDS. THEY USED TO GO BARE-FOOTED AND MANY STILL DO IN THE VILLAGES, BUT IN THE CITIES THEY WEAR SHOES AND DRESS MUCH AS WOMEN DO ANYWHERE THESE DAYS. SLACKS ARE FORBIDDEN, HOWEVER, BY THE FASCIST AUTHORITIES.

PRIVATE JOE DOAKES WILL FIND LITTLE HARD LIKKER IN SICILY, BUT PLENTY OF SWEET WINE OF THE MARSALA-TYPE, ESPECIALLY IF HE GETS TO MARSALA ITSELF TO OCCUPY THE SEAPLANE BASE.

HIS AMERICAN CIGARETTES PROBABLY WILL BE ACCEPTED GRATEFULLY BY MAN SICILIANS, FOR ITALY WAS RUNNING SHORT OF CIGARETTES A YEAR AGO. THE SICILIANS ALSO WOULD APPRECIATE ANY FOOD THAT HE MIGHT HAVE TO SPARE.

INTERPRETING THE WAR NEWS
BY KIRKE L.SIMPSON

SURGING FORWARD AT LONG LAST FROM THEIR HARD WON NORTH AFRICAN SPRINGBOARDS, AMERICAN, CANADIAN AND BRITISH TROOPS ARE LOCKED IN CRUCIAL BATTLE WITH THEIR FOES ON SICILY--STABBING SAVAGELY AT THE SOFT UNDERBELLY OF THE AXIS IN EUROPE.

THE ALLIED ASSAULT ACROSS THE CENTRAL MEDITERRANEAN NARROWS CLIMAXED A WEEK ALREADY FILLED WITH CRISIS FOR THE ILL-OMENED GERMAN, ITALIAN, JAPANESE WAR FELLOWSHIP. NORTH, SOUTH, EAST AND WEST, AROUND THE WORLD, THE ROARING GUNS OF FREEDOM HAVE BEEN LOOSED IN A MIGHTY AND EVER-SWELLING CHORUS.

AFLOAT, ASHORE AND IN THE AIR THE STORY OF THAT RED-LETTER WEEK OF THE WAR WHICH BEGAN WITH A DROWSY SABBATH FOURTH OF JULY FOR AMERICANS AT HOME IS THE SAME. THE AXIS IS BEING BROUGHT TO BOOK AT LAST FOR ITS CRIMES. THE "END OF THE BEGINNING" THAT PRIME MINISTER CHURCHILL NOTED LAST FALL HAS BECOME "THE BEGINNING OF THE END" IN PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S PHRASE.

EVERYWHERE BUT IN STILL MONSOON-DRENCHED BURMA THE ANTI-AXIS LEGIONS ARE ON THE MOVE, CLOSING IN FOR THE KILL. IN RUSSIA AND IN CHINA, IN THE FAR SOUTH PACIFIC, AND FROM THE FRIGID, FOG-BOUND ALEUTIANS TO THE U-BOAT INNESTED ATLANTIC DEFEAT IS STALKING THE FOE, AND TOMORROW OR TOMORROW'S TOMORROW MAY SEE NEW ALLIED ATTACK FRONTS OPEN.

BUT EVEN THE THRILL OF ALLIED LANDINGS IN SICILY TO BEGIN THE BUSINESS OF BUILDING THAT FIRST LONG DREAMED OF SECOND FRONT IN EUROPE CAN NOT ALTER THE FACT THAT THE CRUX OF THE STRUGGLE STILL IS IN RUSSIA. AND THERE, AFTER SIX DAYS OF TRANSCENDENT BATTLE AROUND THE

KURSK BULGE, RUSSIAN ARMIES, BLOODIED BUT UNBOWED, SEEM HOLDING, AS THEY HELD BEFORE MOSCOW TWO YEARS AGO AND AT STALINGRAD LAST YEAR, AGAINST A FRENZIED, ELVENTH HOUR NAZI MASS ATTACK BORN OF DESPERATION.

IT IS STILL TOO SOON TO APPRAISE THE PROGRESS OF THE BATTLE IN SICILY. ITS TACTICAL ASPECTS ARE AS YET UNREVEALED; BUT ITS STRATEGY AND ULTIMATE GOAL, ITS PLACE IN THE RAPIDLY UNFOLDING ALLIED PATTERN OF VICTORY, ARE QUITE CLEAR.

AND FIRST AMONG MAJOR OBJECTIVES AT THIS STAGE MUST STAND THE AID TO VALIANT RUSSIA THAT THE DEVELOPING SOUTHERN SECOND-FRONT OPERATION AFFORDS. ANGLO-AMERICAN TROOPS ARE CARVING THEIR WAY ASHORE IN BLOOD, SWEAT AND VALOR ON THE BIG ISLAND OFF THE TOE OF THE ITALIAN BOOT NOT ONLY ULTIMATELY TO FREE FRANCE AND OTHER NAZI CONQUERED CONTINENTAL PEOPLES, BUT TO TAKE WEIGHT NOW OFF RUSSIA. THEIR SUCCESS COULD BRING FINAL DISASTER UPON HITLER IN THE EAST BEFORE SNOW FLIES AGAIN IN RUSSIA.

D122WX

THERE ARE OTHER THINGS OF CRUCIAL IMPORTANCE AT STAKE NOW IN SICILY. THERE ON A GREATER SCALE THAN IN TUNISIA, THE TEAM-WORK OF GENERAL EISENHOWER'S COMMAND, AMERICAN, BRITISH AND FRENCH, GROUND, SEA AND AIR, IS BEING TESTED.

FROM RESULTS NOW IN THE MAKING IN SICILY WILL COMTE THE FORMULA THAT ONE DAY WILL GOVERN EVEN GREATER ALLIED ATTACKS UPON THE CONTINENT FROM THE WEST ACROSS THE NARROWER WATERS OF THE ENGLISH CHANNEL AND THE NORTH SEA. NOR CAN BERLIN REST EASY THAT A THIRD-FRONT ALLIED ACTION, AIMED AT THE NAZI HEART OF THE AXIS ITSELF, MAY NOT OPEN WITHIN WEEKS IF SICILY SUCCUMBS QUICKLY AND BRINGS TOTTERING ITALY TO THE BRINK OF COLLAPSE.

THIS MUCH IS CERTAIN. THE SICILIAN LANDINGS WERE COVERED BY THE WINGS OF THE MIGHTIEST AIR FORCE YET MOBILIZED. THE TIMING OF THE INVASION TENDS TO EXPLAIN A BRIEF LULL IN THE ANGLO-AMERICAN AIR POUNDING OF GERMAN AND CONTINENTAL TARGETS FROM BRITAIN. IT GOES WITHOUT SAYING THAT THOSE DAYS WERE USED TO GROOM BRITISH AND AMERICAN AIR FLEETS FOR STEPPED-UP ACTION FROM THE WEST TO PIN NAZI DEFENSIVE ARMADAS TO THAT FRONT AND KEEP THEM OUT OF ACTION OVER SICILY.

MAINLAND AXIS AIR BASES IN NORTHERN AND EVEN CENTRAL ITALY CAN BE REACHED BY LONG RANGE ALLIED BOMBERS FROM ENGLAND AS WELL AS FROM AFRICA. AN OVERLAPPING AIR ATTACK TO DESTROY AXIS PLANES AND FIELDS OR MINIMIZE AXIS CAPACITY FOR AIR INTERVENTION IN SICILY IS EXPECTABLE.

EVENTS IN RUSSIA, IN THE MEDITERRANEAN AND IN THE FAR NORTH AND SOUTH PACIFIC TENDED TO DISTRACT ATTENTION SOMEWHAT FROM DEVELOPMENTS OF THIS ALL-IMPORTANT WAR WEEK ON ANOTHER FRONT--PERHAPS EVEN MORE SIGNIFICANT. IT WAS DISCLOSED THAT IN JUNE A NEW LOW WAS RECORDED IN THE ATLANTIC FOR NAZI U-BOAT DEPREDATIONS SINCE THE UNITED STATES ENTERED THE WAR. TO THAT WAS ADDED A NEW HEAVY TOLL BY AMERICAN SUBMARINES AGAINST JAPANESE COMBAT AND CARGO SHIPPING.

SEAPOWER, AIR POWER AND LAND POWER ALL FORETELL AXIS DOOM SOON OR LATE ON ALL FRONTS.

MESSINA IS GOAL OF ALLIED SMASH ON EASTERN COAST

Montgomery Directs Veteran Eighth Army in Sicilian Attack.

TEN TOWNS CAPTURED

Invasion Force Firmly on Italian Isle Along 150-Mile Front.

6,000 PRISONERS SEIZED

Gen. Patton's American Units Move Inland from Gela, Licata.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 12.—(AP) Historic Syracuse and nine other major Sicilian towns have been captured by the famed British Eighth army and the newly formed American Seventh army and tonight the British were smashing northward along the coast toward Messina, key to the island's defenses.

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Allied commander-in-chief, visited Sicily during the day to confer with the battle-front generals, a dispatch from an Allied force command post said.

Montgomery Directs Drive

Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery was directing his veterans in a lightning move designed to seal up the cream of the Axis armies on the island and bring a quick end to the three-day old campaign.

Messina is only 90 miles from Syracuse and the British already had driven many miles beyond the latter.

On Gen. Montgomery's left flank bearing the brunt of German and Italian counter-attacks were the Americans of Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton's newly-formed Seventh army, who were battling above Gela Bay, apparently pinning down large Axis forces and threatening their flanks should they attempt to halt the British drive.

Allied Hold 150-Mile Front

That was the picture at the end of the third day of Sicilian fighting which found the tremendous Allied amphibious forces firmly holding along a 150-mile front these towns in addition to Syracuse: Licata, 50 miles west of Syracuse; Gela, on the south coast; Pachino, Avola, Noto, Scoglitti, Ipsica, Rosolini and Pozzallo. There were unconfirmed reports that both the airport at Catania, midway between Syracuse and Messina, and Florida had fallen to Allied arms.

Canadian troops were officially credited with the capture of Noto at 11:25 a.m. Saturday and Rosolini and Ispica earlier. The British conquered Syracuse at 9 o'clock Saturday night.

The extent of the Allied successes had increased their southeastern Sicilian beach-heads from 100 miles to 150—the distance between Licata, westernmost point on the flank held by the Americans, and Syracuse on Sicily's eastern shores.

Agrigento Under Fire

(Reuters reported that the Allies were attacking Agrigento, four miles west of Porto Empedocle, on the extreme left flank, and also roads and communications that fan out into the central Catania plain, on the Eighth army's front on the right.)

In the area of Agrigento the enemy's efforts to draw in support from the far west were stemmed by some of Gen. Patton's veteran Americans who were holding the bridgehead there and beating northward from Gela after smashing the heaviest of Axis counter-attacks.

Qualified military observers here said "more serious resistance is expected hourly on all fronts."

(The British news agency Reuters in a dispatch from Allied headquarters in North Africa observed that the first really great battle for Sicily might start "within the next few hours."

(It pointed out that the Germans attempting to rush east in the vicinity of Agrigento were menaced not only from the air but by the Americans at Licata, 20 miles away.

(Reuters reported that aside from the peril posed to the Axis by Gen. Patton's forces near the attempted route of German rescue from the west the Axis had been forced to give the gravest consideration to the British thrust by Gen. Montgomery through and beyond the Syracuse gateway to the north.

(It added that two Italian field divisions already had been thrust into the breach and that German troops attempting to come up were expected to be engaged momentarily.)

British Move Swiftly

Along an arc more than 100 miles, the Allied offensive was rushing on, Gen. Montgomery in particular was moving with dashing speed in his drive up the east coast upon Catania, a big Axis military base, and ultimately toward the Messina strait separating Sicily from the Italian mainland.

Available information indicated that at least 6,000 Axis prisoners were in hand by tonight—2,000 of them said by Allied headquarters to have been taken yesterday and 4,000 reported in front dispatches to have been seized Saturday.

The Americans are holding a long salient stretching from Licata on the westernmost flank along the whole curve of the Gela Bay.

American aviators flying the new A-36 fighter-bombers brought back information of Axis truck convoys hurrying along the road in the direction opposite of the main battle areas. The airmen said some of the trucks were filled with troops and others were carrying heavy artillery.

Whether this meant a retreat or a desperate effort to shift these forces from the Gela area to more northern ground where they might head off the British drive was not yet clear.

Axis Out-Generalled

In any case some of the outlines of the Allied High Command's strategy were becoming clearer and there was no further doubt that up to this point the German and Italian commanders had been out-generalled and taken completely by surprise.

However military advices from the rapidly-moving front continued to caution that enemy fighting strength may be brought to bear in tougher fashion than in the first two days of the invasion.

Only small detachments of Germans have as yet engaged Allied columns and if as much as a division were sent into battle the going could be expected to be slower than heretofore.

Sloppy delaying actions by the Italian Livorno and Napoli divisions augured further humiliation for other Italian field divisions which are believed to have been held until now in mobile reserve.

The British and Canadian armies landed and quickly seized the bridgehead on Cap Passero and began moving inland. The Americans took the Gela Bay sector.

Mountains in Between

Between the two armies is a cluster of mountains. This meant that the Axis command was forced to make a choice in the scene for a concerted counter-attack. It was impossible to strike at any central point.

It was officially disclosed that General Alfredo Guzzoni was in command of Italian military forces in Sicily.

Between 900 and 1,000 German and Italian prisoners were ferried from Sicily to Africa during the day.

All seemed in high spirits and most of them were smiling broadly when they stepped off big tank lighters. They were generally youths in their 'teens, unkempt in appearance, and dressed in seedy, badly worn uniforms. About 35 Italian officers were in the group.

The few Germans were kept apart from the Italians as a matter of routine but there was obvious ill feeling among them. When two Germans were asked by a photographer to pose with two Italians they refused. When the photographer pressed the request, they consented, then turned their backs as he snapped the picture.

Few Wounded Brought Back

A few wounded also were brought back, most of them suffering head injuries.

(A report put out by the Italian news agency said that Lieutenant General Enrico Francisci, commander of the 13th zone of blackshirt militia and liaison officer of the Italian armies in Sicily, was killed in action today. The report, recorded by Reuters, said he fought with the Italians in the Spanish civil war and also had been in Russia).

Between Gen. Montgomery on the east—whose seizure of Syracuse and thrust beyond had put him within 80 miles of Messina itself—and Gen. Patton on the west, the Canadians were beating forward at the center.

What the Italians and a sprinkling of Germans had done so far was to fight a delaying action, and additional enemy field divisions were expected to be thrown into the struggle soon.

Italians Make Poor Showing

It was agreed that the Italian coastal garrisons had made a miserable showing in the first action. They were composed of second-rate troops who were bored and rusty from long inactivity. In one case reported, such a coastal garrison appeared on the beach waving white flags almost immediately after the Allied landing and within a matter of hours the Italian prisoners thus taken were engaged in unloading Allied supplies.

Messina is the Achilles heel of the entire Axis defense of Sicily. Powerless to prevent the Allies from seizing a great bridgehead and consolidating it, the Italo-German command now was faced with the danger that the Sicilian front might fall to pieces by outflanking actions from the east coast.

Enemy efforts to speed reinforcements from the far west of the island were in part stemmed by relentless Allied air attacks.

Gen. Patton's men had met and mastered the main fury of the enemy's desperate counter-thrusts, firmly anchoring the Allied west flank on the coastal port and air field of Licata and thrusting in columns inland in that area.

Sicilian airfields seized in three days of Allied advances already were being used by the Allied squadrons thundering ceaselessly across Sicily.

Allied Navy Unchallenged

The Allied Mediterranean fleets, still unchallenged by the Italian navy, were discharging men and supplies upon the deep and wide bridgeheads.

"The Italian fleet," replied an observer to the inquiry as to what it was doing, "is still beating its way toward the Alps."

Word of Gen. Montgomery's swift push northward toward Catania, a push of extraordinary power, and of Gen. Patton's new successes on the left followed announcement in today's communique from Gen. Eisenhower's headquarters here that 10 major ports and towns had been overrun up to that time; that seven enemy counter-attacks had been crushed and that at least 2,000 prisoners had been taken.

"It can now be stated," the communique thus summed up, "that the following major towns and ports have been captured by our forces:

"Syracuse (population of 53,000), Pachino, Pozzallo, Scoglitti, Gela, Licata, Ispica, Rosolini and Noto."

While enemy losses in dead and wounded and in materiel were not mentioned in this bulletin, there were indications that they had been considerable.

Gen. Patton's troops above Gela, for example, in a single engagement threw back lunges by an entire Italian division—the Fourth Livorno—supported by 45 tanks.

The British in seizing Syracuse threw out another Italian division—the 54th Napoli—and in overrunning that important port and communications center, one of the biggest in Sicily, were declared by one observer to have met no great hostility from the civilian population.

"They seemed more pleased to see us than they had been to see the Huns," he remarked.

Licata-Gela area some eighty miles west of Syracuse and advanced northward of Gela.

Heading units of his famous British Eight Army, which fought in epic battles from El Alamein, Egypt, across North Africa, Gen. Montgomery plunged toward Messina and the strategic strait some eighty miles northward after securing firmly the advantageous port of Syracuse, a city of 53,000 and potential springboard for invasion of the Italian mainland.

[The Americans were holding a bridgehead twenty-five miles long and ten miles deep after taking Licata and Gela on the south coast, said a dispatch from the Allied command post by Edward Gilling, representing the combined British press. Their equipment already was being unloaded at these ports.

[Floridia, eight miles inland from Syracuse, already is in British hands, said another dispatch.]

Allied warplanes already were sweeping the skies from airfields captured in Sicily. They had left Catania, the next objective of the British march, aflame, and they had dive-bombed columns of Axis troops being brought up for counter-attacks, destroying 400 or more of the enemy's vehicles.

Reinforcements Pour In.

Allied naval forces, unhampered by the Italian fleet, continued to pour men and supplies into the bridgeheads stretching for 100 miles along Sicily's southeastern coast for the rapid push up Sicily's eastern shore, and hurled shells into the enemy's communications and defenses.

Not only was the Allied bridgehead completely secured, but all the conditions appeared favorable for a real lightning campaign for Sicily.

Licata, eighty miles to the west on the south coast; Gela; Pachino, on Cape Passero at the extreme southeastern tip of the island; Avola and Noto, midway between Syracuse and Pachino; Pozzallo, site of an important air base on the south coast; Scoglitti; Ispica, and Rosolini were among the places listed in today's Allied headquarters communique.

American troops in the Gela area beat off counter-attacks by the Italians' Fourth Livorno Division and forty-five tanks in the heaviest of all the seven enemy counter-blows.

The Fifty-fourth Napoli Division was driven out of Syracuse by the British—a lightning blow at the end of the second day of the Allied invasion which appeared to be a serious handicap to the enemy in bringing up reinforcements to meet a rapidly swelling penetration into the interior of the island.

The civilian population "seemed more pleased to see us than they had been to see the Huns," said one observer.

Casualties Appear Light.

Casualties among the Allies continued much less than might normally be expected in such a sweeping offensive, it was said at Allied headquarters, and a number of hospital ships were still waiting in reserve.

As a result of the swiftness of Allied action, it was said at headquarters that the enemy was being compelled to regroup his forces and most of his counter-attacks up to now had been comparatively weak. Most of the Italians, especially, were reported fighting poorly, and most of the 2,000 prisoners taken were Italians.

Between the wings of the Allied forces, buttressed at Licata on the west and Syracuse on the east, were the important towns of Ragusa and Modica.

[Algiers broadcasts said sharp fighting was taking place between Allied forces and 30,000 Germans, near Ragusa, a little more than ten miles inland and almost midway between Syracuse and Licata. The broadcast was repeated by the London radio, and recorded in New York.

[In their swift thrust up the strategic eastern coast line of Sicily the Allied forces were near Catania and only about eighty miles from Messina and the Italian mainland.

[The Morocco radio broadcast a report, recorded in London by Reuters, that the Allies had captured Catania.]

Syracuse Valuable Part.

Syracuse was aan invaluable prize for the Allies, for its splendid port is the best possible kind of base from which they might mount an invasion of Europe.

The naval forces also contributed powerfully to the co-ordinated push, bombarding defended areas near Pozzallo and the railway between Syracuse and Ragusa last night, while an Allied destroyer commander accepted the surrender of Pozzallo early yesterday afternoon.

The surrender of Pozzallo recalled the destroyer Nubian's capture of Linosa Island last month when 140 shaken Italian troops surrendered as soon as the warship appeared.

Reported using French tanks, the Italians were said to be fighting poorly in most cases, but the Germans were now going into action and resistance was likely to stiffen.

The enemy obviously was trying to build up forces for a counter-attack, for pilots reported heavy troop movements on many roads leading to southeastern Sicily.

Three Axis airfields are already in the hands of the invaders, two at Gela where American assault troops blasted their way ashore early Saturday and another at Pachino, captured by Canadian and British forces.

American parachutists and British glider troops who dropped from the Sicilian skies Friday night to attack coastal defenses from the rear were reported to have contacted the Allied seaborne landing parties after successfully carrying out their missions with negligible losses.

A British war correspondent, Edward Gilling, reported from an advanced post that the invasion armada totaled some 2,000 ships—more than double the record-breaking 850 used in the invasion of North Africa last November.

Military sources emphasized the early fighting involved only Italian coastal troops and that the main body of enemy defenders, known to include many Germans, still was to be mengaged.

rushing troops to strategic concentration areas in Sicily.

Filling the sky from dawn to dusk, the new Mustang A-36s, newest Allied air weapon, has piled roads high with the wreckage of Axis trucks speeding to danger points to which the Allies were driving inward from the sea. They attacked with dive-bombing and gliding tactics.

100 Trucks Destroyed

A formation led by First Lieut. Robert W. Hafer of Bedford, Pa. dropped bombs on an estimated chain of 200 enemy trucks, then machine-gunned the entire line leaving about 100 destroyed.

"There were plenty of targets," said Major D. B. Rathbun, Oakland, Calif., who lead a flight that knocked out at least 30 trucks of a big convoy, hit four tanks and a train depot.

A compilation of pilots' reports showed Sicily was crowded with enemy troops equipped to move swiftly in trucks, armored cars and trains and bolstered by tanks. But as was expected what the pilots found first were trucks and they bored through hailstorms of flak and small arms fire to get at the vehicles.

Mustang Flight Leader Capt. Justin C. Gunnison, San Raphael, Calif., told how his group demolished 30 trucks and Capt. Glenn Stoll, Shreveport, La., led his formation over a very big line of trucks, raking them with machine-gun fire after first bombing them. At least 100 were destroyed or damaged, he reported.

One unit of A-36s halted their attacks for a few moments to circle around an American pilot as he floated groundward, parachuting after flak knocked out his ship. They saw him land and sprint toward a grove of live trees.

At the same moment the men above saw enemy troops emerge from cover and attempt to capture the pilot. The planes instantly peeled off and sent the soldiers scattering under a blizzard of bullets. The grounded flier had disappeared in bushes by that time.

That American and British forces are still arriving on beachheads in large numbers was confirmed by Capt. Jonathan Routs, Abilene, Tex., Warhawk reconnaissance pilot.

"American landing craft were as busy as waterbugs landing men on the shore," he said when he returned from an early morning flight.

New U. S. Seventh Head Force

PARATROOPS FACE CAVALRY

'Chutist Unit Surprised When Italians Charge On Horses

[By the Associated Press]

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, July 12—Parachute troopers never know what to expect when they hit the ground, so they're seldom surprised—no matter what they meet.

But members of one group of the Allied "fighters from the skies" got the surprise of their lives at an unidentified objective in Sicily when they were charged by Italian cavalry.

Not Seen In This War

Cavalry—with horses instead of armored cars and tanks—hasn't been seen on the battlefield—except in Russia—since the earliest days of World War I, and it wasn't seen very often then. Machine guns outmoded this form of fighting.

This is what happened:

The parachute troopers had captured their objective but in too small a force to hold it. An orthodox counter-attack by infantry drove them out. They regrouped, and having contact with Allied infantry by that time, won the objective back.

Expected To Meet Armor

Then they settled down to await the enemy again, expecting to meet armor, submachine guns, hand grenades and the other weapons of modern warfare. Their brows wrinkled in perplexity as they heard the beat of horses' hoofs.

Suddenly, out of the gray dawn mists galloped a troop of Italian cavalrymen, replete with flashing sabers and flowing plumes.

The parachute troopers were startled, then broke up the attack.

7th and 8th Armies in Sicily

LONDON, July 12 (AP).—The American 7th Army and the British 8th Army were disclosed in correspondents' dispatches from North Africa today as making up the main forces engaged in the invasion of Sicily. Military sources at London, however, withheld comment on the composition of the invading force.

The American 7th Army, led by Lieutenant General George S. Patton jr., was believed to be made up largely of troops formerly known in Tunisian fighting as the American 2d Army Corps, plus some armored elements and other infantry and air-borne divisions.

The famouse British 8th Army, commanded by General Sir Bernard L. Montgomery, was believed here to have been reshuffled since its triumphs in Egypt, Libya and Tunisia. Many new units apparently have been added, while several older ones may be standing by for other jobs or in reserve.

Canadian troops are known to have been put under Montgomery's command, and presumably some British 1st Army units, commanded in Tunisia by Lieutenant General Kenneth A. N. Anderson, have been added as well.

Plans for Canadian participation with the 8th Army were believed to have been one of the main objects of Montgomery's secret visit to England immediately after the windup of the Tunisian campaign. His visit to England was a well kept secret until now.

The German International Information Bureau, a propaganda agency, in a broadcast recorded by The Associated Press, said today that American units landed in Sicily had been identified so far as the 1st, 3rd and 45th Infantry Divisions, plus detachments of the 2d Armored and 82d Air-borne divisions.

The same broadcast said the Canadian 1st Infantry Division and 2d Tank Brigade had come ashore, along with the British 5th and 51st Infantry and 6th Armored Divisions and parachute battalions.

U. S. Seventh Army in Sicily.

London, July 12 (A. P.).—Correspondents' dispatches from North Africa today identified the main forces invading Sicily as the American Seventh Army and the British Eighth Army.

The American Seventh, commanded by Lieut.-Gen. George S. Patton Jr., was believed to be made up largely of the troops previously known as the United States Second Army Corps which fought in Tunisia, plus some armor, and infantry and air-borne divisions. The famous British Eighth Army, commanded by Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery, was believed to have been considerably reshuffled, with many new units added and several older ones standing by in reserve.

CAPTURE OF SYRACUSE SHATTERS SIEGE RECORD

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 12 — (AP) British armies, by their speedy capture of Syracuse shattered every siege record of that city for the past 2,700 years.

The city has been besieged scores of times by foreign armies invading Sicily—but never before did it fail so quickly. It has held off armies of many different nations for long months and acquired a reputation through ancient and medieval eras as a tough nut to crack. This was partly due to its natural topographical barriers plus powerful fortifications.

Was Once Great Power.

Syracuse, captured in the Allied invasion of Sicily, was one of the greatest Helenic cities of antiquity and was founded by the Corinthians in the latter part of the eighth century B. C. Today it owes its importance chiefly to the fact that it has one of the finest harbors on the coast of Sicily, deep enough for the largest vessels.

The modern city (estimated population 53,000) covers but a small fraction of the site occupied by ancient Syracuse after it had risen to be the proud metropolis of the Western Hellenic world, with a population of hundreds of thousands.

Its narrow, crooked streets are lighted by electricity and it carries on an active trade in wine, oil and fruits, but its chief interest lies in its great historical background situated as it was on the main trade route between Greece and Italy and the western end of the Mediterranean. It is now the capital of a province of the same name and is situated on the east coast of the island, thirty-two miles south and east of Catania, which has far outstripped it in population and importance.

Syracuse's place in ancient Greek history, however, is unique. It was the chief Hellenic town of Sicily. Its rise was rapid. It became the dominant power on the island and at one time defied successfully the powerful Carthaginians, who sought to bring Sicily under their sway. The Athenians wanted it also, but the city fought them off in one of the greatest sieges of ancient times, lasting from 415 to 413 B. C.

AN ALLIED FORCE COMMAND POST, July 12 — (AP) Four hundred Axis convoy vehicles were destroyed or damaged on Sicily and 45 enemy planes were shot down in yesterday's intense air activity covering Allied invasion forces.

Nine Allied planes are missing.

Malta-based Spitfires shot down 24 enemy planes in patrols over the landing beaches while seven others were destroyed by Americans Flying Fortresses of which a strong force bombed Catania.

Germans Claim Heavy Toll

LONDON, July 12 (AP)—The German radio, in a broadcast recorded by Reuter, claimed today that an Allied battleship, which it said formed part of the invasion fleet sent against Sicily, had been damaged by bombs off the Sicilian coast. The report was without Allied confirmation.

The Axis communiqués asserted that several Allied transports and landing barges had been sunk by German and Italian planes, that three cruisers and forty-two transports had been damaged and that one 10,000-ton cruiser had been sunk by an Italian submarine.

A report from Berne, Switzerland, received here by way of Stockholm, quoted the Svenska Dagbladet as saying that part of the Italian fleet had steamed out of Spezia, Italy, and that Rome expected it to engage Allied warships.

STIFFER FIGHT IN SICILY SEEN

Canadians Meet Little Opposition During Advance To Hilly Country

JUL 13 1943

Casualties Are Called Light As Forces Push Northwest Of Pachino

By ROSS MUNRO

(Canadian Press War Correspondent)

[Distributed by the Associated Press]

With the Canadians in Southeast Sicily, July 11 (Delayed)—Slicing through Italian defenses in night and dawn landings on the long crescent beach, Canadian assault troops with a crack British formation on the right flank overran Pachino peninsula within twenty-four hours and established an invasion bridgehead.

The Canadians now have advanced into hilly country northwest and west of Pachino and major engagements are expected with probably more determined Italians than the coastal defenders who put up only a mild fight.

Canadian casualties for the first day were very light. The colonel who heads the divisional medical service said less than forty had been reported to him so far. During my trip around the battle zone I saw only three wounded soldiers, who had been hit cleaning out a pillbox just before each defense collapsed.

Defenses Fold Up

The Italian beach defenses which folded up like a concertina were merely barbed wire and some machine-gun posts which fired a few bursts and then gave up. On our beach the enemy evidently was counting on a sandbar fifteen feet offshore as a natural defense. But the Canadians surprised them completely by coming in in the heavy surf and battling ashore through water to their waist.

Coastal batteries shelled the boats but their firing was erratic. The Canucks went through the beach defenses in a matter of minutes, cleared the beach defenses and struck inland, mopping up groups of Italians en route.

700 Prisoners Captured

More than seven hundred prisoners, including fifteen officers, have been captured by the Canadians already. All day columns of prisoners poured down from the front, happy looking crowds guarded by one or two soldiers.

The Royal Navy has been giving the troops magnificent gun support and big and small warships lying close in to the shore bombard targets with thundering salvos that shake the peninsula. During the day we saw no enemy aircraft.

Bombers Attack

But last night bombers attacked troops near the beach and tried to hit ships under the glare of flares. The raid only lasted about thirty minutes and was not effective.

The troops were well dug in ashore and the bombers could not touch them except by direct hits.

The RAF has been giving us fighter protection and you hear the drone of Spitfires practically all the time during the day.

The ships have barrage balloons up and it looks like a part of London.

Thousands and thousands of troops poured in on the bridgehead after the successful assault and vehicles, guns, stores and ammunition have been rushed to the beaches.

Trained For Task

This was the stuff the men prepared for in intensive combined operations training in Britain. Immediately after the exercises a convoy carrying assault troops sailed for the Mediterranean and went right to the Sicilian beaches without being attacked by aircraft.

The day before the attack we started to head in the general direction of Sicily and everyone was keyed to a high pitch. In the morning the wind started to kick up whitecaps on the Mediterranean, which until then had been as calm as a millpond.

The wind rose steadily until by afternoon, when we could see Malta, it was of gale proportions. Our spirits sank for we thought the operation would be postponed. Our small boats could not have lived in that sea. Some waves were fifteen feet high and a heavy swell was running. But there was a bright sunshine and no message came telling us the job was off.

The wind rose steadily until by afternoon, when we could see Malta, it was of gale proportions. Our spirits sank, for we thought the operation would be postponed. Our small boats could not have lived in that sea. Some waves were fifteen feet figh and a heavy swell was running. But there was bright sunshine and no message came telling us the job was off. A colonel told us the attack was to go on. At last we were definitely on our way.

The officers met in the lounge and were addressed by their colonel. Similar meetings were held aboard the other ships as the dero hour approached.

"We are on the eve of a night in history that will never be forgotten," said the colonel. "We will look back on this night, and our children will. We will look back on it as the night we started to put the skids to the enemy."

A colonel told us the attack was to go on. There was quite a strong surface swell, though, and it wasn't going to be any sinecure landing on what everyone knew to be a tough beach with a sandbar stretched across the face of it.

Down in the mess decks the Canadians were preparing for the landing. They got their kits together, daubed a little more oil on their weapons, sorted out grenades and loaded up with ammunition.

In the sergeants' mess some non-commissioned officers were playing cards and drinking soda pop—our ship was dry all the way.

The officers met in the lounge and were addressed by their colonel. Similar meetings were held aboard the other ships as the zero hour approached.

Still No Air Attack

There was still no air attack. At midnight we saw great flashes in the distance where Sicily lay. Our bombers were hitting their targets. Tracers reached into the sky. There were some coastal searchlights playing over the sea. We were too far out then to be bothered with them.

Hundreds of other ships and warships were around us. There were ships as far as you could see. About 10 P. M. the wind suddenly dropped and the whitecaps disappeared. The gale had been one of those queer storms they get in the Mediterranean during the summer.

Then the big convoy broke up. The Americans headed off for the Gela beaches. We sailed right ahead under a first-quarter moon that gilded the ocean.

Enemy Shoots Flares

I could hear our bombers droning over toward Italy. Some flares shot up from the shore. They were unnerving and lingering. I was going in with the naval commander in a naval motor launch which was to guide the assault troops to the right beaches.

At 1 A. M. we went down the side of our ship in an assault landing craft. We rocked about and moved among the ships which now were anchored a number of miles off Pachino peninsula. Finally we located our motor launch and clambered aboard. Slowly the assault landing craft gathered around us for the run in. There were scores of these craft. Many of the troops were seasick.

To the left I saw tracer bullets and could hear machine guns. Troops were landing. We crept in closer until we could see the low, dark coastline of Sicily. Some red flares shot up. The enemy was doing some kind of signaling. Tremendous explosions boomed out. I think it must have been bombing far inland. We could see gigantic flashes.

Peninsula Shelled

On our right there were more flashes, but this time from seaward. Warships were shelling positions on the peninsula. The noise was earsplitting, though the ships were miles away. Tracers started to crisscross our beaches.

Some Royal Canadian engineers from Nova Scotia and two companies of an Ontario regiment were touching down ahead of us. There were spurts of machine-gun bullets at their boats. Then I heard our Bren guns.

Canadians were in action.

Dawn was creeping up as I transferred from the motor launch to a landing craft. Just then tank landing craft bringing up the first wave of an Ontario Regiment came up and in we went. Naval craft were laying a smoke screen for us, and gunfire from destroyers, a cruiser and a monitor dinned in our ears.

Some beach defenses were still pegging away. A coastal battery halfway between the beach and Pachino was firing with six-inch guns. Shells crashed around us.

Swarm Over Beach

Canadians were swarming over the beach and our craft leaped through the surf. The landing craft hit the sandbar and stopped short. We piled over the side and plunged into four feet of water.

We waded through the breakers and ran onto the beach. Troops swarmed off their craft and went through a gap in the wire defenses which had been cut by sappers. Infantrymen were already spreading out in the sand dunes on the other side of the wire.

Canadians were firing to the right and left and an occasional burst of enemy fire was heard from several hundred yards inland. The Canadians went for them. Beach organization now was being set up.

Scooped Out Sand

I cleared off down the beach with one thought in mind—digging in for dive-bombing which I thought was certain to come. I had no spade so I scooped out sand with my hands and my tin cup.

The sun now was up. Infantrymen with fixed bayonets were prodding bushes on the dunes. The first prisoner had been taken—a soldier in a pillbox.

Canadians moved up a hill to the right of the beach and occupied it. Others scouted north and west. There was some firing from farmhouses among the vineyards. There were stone walls around most of the fields.

200 More Surprised

Canadian infantrymen were racing up the road leading to Maucini, a mile and a half from the beach. Maucini served as an Italian barracks and ammunition dump. The troops surprised nearly 200 Italian soldiers there and captured the lot of them. Then infantrymen on to a coastal battery a mile farther north.

Attacking with grenades, the Canadians stormed the gun positions and knocked the battery out, taking more prisoners. On the right flank a British formation had equal success in landing and taking out beach defenses. They occupied the tip of the peninsula and then, I believe, captured Pachino town. (The capture of Pachino was confirmed Monday, some hours after Munro wrote this dispatch.)

Bren-gun carriers were ashore now and they clattered up gentle hills to the Pachino area. Long columns of troops marched along, following up the assault infantry.

Sees Prisoners

Just behind our beach were two salt marshes. They had dried out a little but the surface was still slimy. Here mosquitoes bred and we remembered our anti-malaria precautions. Four hundred yards from the beach I went around a sharp turn in the road and saw the first prisoners. They were six short, swarthy Italians. One carried a satchel with food and wine in it.

They were evidently quite content with their lot and as we passed they grinned, said hello in Italian and gave us a Fascist salute. There were also two horse-drawn Italian army ammunition carts, filled with ammunition, and the Canadians took them over immediately to cary mortar bombs.

There were still a few snipers around and we walked along the road cautiously. At Maucini a handful of Canadians were in charge. Outside the courtyard of the white stucco building were piles of Italian steel helmets, ammunition pouches, rifles and machine guns.

Some Opposition

The area around Maucini was quiet but ahead there was firing of small arms and we heard the deep crump of mortar bombs. The advancing troops had met some opposition. One Canadian commandeered an Italian army car and got it rolling and rushed his section to the front.

It was now 8 A. M. and I was three miles into Sicily already. The Canadians were attacking the Pachino airfield a mile ahead of us by now and the sounds of furious firing reached us.

I looked across into the next field and there were three tanks. They were moving in our direction. I yelled "German tanks" — they looked like Mark IV's at that distance—and scooted for cover. Then I got out my binoculars and identified them as British.

Farmers Poor

This is inhospitable-looking countryside here on the undulating ground about Pachino. Tenant farmers are poor and live in miserable shacks, scraping a living somehow from rocky soil. Vineyards predominate and melons are getting ripe. The troops ate them by the roadside during breathers in their march.

The tanks which had given us a scare crawled up the slope where mortar bombs were bursting and fired down into the valley beyond. They then disappeared in the direction of the airfield. Bren guns were firing at a dozen points as the regiment I went in with captured the airport and an Ontario regiment pressed north.

Canadian and British troops, in their tropical kit and wearing shorts, looked like veterans by noon, all covered with white dust. A frequent comment to us as we passed them was, "Say, where is the war?" This whole advance seemed so unreal and it was nothing like that the troops had expected.

Feeling Like Kings

They had got over the first hurdle in good style. Many had been in action, and they were feeling like the kings of Sicily. The prisoners they saw going down the line did not give them a very high impression of the Italian army.

By noon the heat was hard to take. I went back to the beach, looked for brigade headquarters. I never found it. Then I watched other units come ashore.

Troops in the beach area were saying "something is queer about this"—because there was no air attack. "Perhaps Italy is going to pack up," said one British officer.

During the morning Royal Navy ships poured shells on inland targets. They stood off about half a mile from shore and cannonaded Italian concentrations. Artillery officers with the front-line infantry were giving targets by wireless.

Naval Support

Naval support all day was most impressive.

In the evening I climbed to a slit trench I had dug with an Italian shovel in the cliff east of the main beach. As the sun went down I watched the country where the Canadians were fighting. To the north and west vehicles and guns were streaming to the front, kicking up white billows of dust.

With their initial success behind them now, Canadians were prepared to go into really tough battles.

They know they hit a soft spot in the Sicilian defenses. As I got ready to return to shore to try to get to one of the batties which might be developing, an officer on our headquarters ship came over and said, "You should have seen what I saw; there's a corporal on deck reading a Western thriller." And the headquarters ship was barely half a mile off the beaches with the battleground beyond.

Soldier Reads Thriller While Waiting to Land

Ross Munro, Canadian Press correspondent whose eye-witness story of the landing of Canadian soldiers on the coast of Sicily was distributed by The Associated Press, told this one in his dispatch:

"As I got ready to return to shore to try to get to one of the battles which might be developing, an officer on our headquarters ship came over and said, 'You should have seen what I saw; there's a corporal on deck reading a Western thriller'."

The headquarters ship was barely half a mile from the beaches where the invasion troops had landed.

EISENHOWER VISITS SICILY

Allied Chief Chats With Soldiers, Confers With Field Commanders

John Gunther tells the following dispatch of the trip to Sicily of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, the Allied commander in chief. The first part of the dispatch was lost in transmission from North Africa.

By JOHN GUNTHER

(Distributed by the Associated Press)

Somewhere in Sicily, July 12—Our first sight of Sicily came near Gela just before dawn after a quick, secret voyage across the Mediterranean.

When General Eisenhower stepped ashore astonished soldiers stared at him. We found an officer and Eisenhower said.

"How do you do? I am General Eisenhower."

Our first stop was the scene of great activity. Cruisers were firing on the invisible enemy behind the hills. Their guns cracked, echoes boomed across the beaches and yellow smoke slowly lifted.

Holds Breakfast Parley

Eisenhower watched the scene with close attention and then, assisted by his naval aide, Commander Harry Butcher, held a breakfast conference with Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton, Jr., Vice-Admiral Henry K. Hewitt, commander of the amphibious force of the Atlantic fleet, and other high-ranking officers.

We then steamed along the coast and made a landfall near the extreme southeastern end of Sicily. We passed various naval units, some of them American, and to all Eisenhower signaled the message: "Congratulations and good luck."

We saw black bomb bursts on the shore but could not tell what they were. For the most part the coastal villages looked peaceful and deserted.

Two aircraft were spotted far overhead and the crew took to their battle stations until the scare proved to be a false alarm. It was dawn patrol Spitfires.

Lands In Amphibious Jeep

The youthful commander of our destroyer, who was wearing a blue turtleneck sweater and white shorts, talked to Eisenhower on the bridge while the junior officers, most of them in long beards, watched.

Eisenhower was most eager to visit the Canadians and greet them and we disembarked near one of their beachheads. But the word disembarked doesn't give the right impression.

We left our destroyer in what is known as an "amphibious jeep" and had the rare experience of driving right through water and straight up on the beach.

The troops had no idea that Eisenhower was coming. Some were swimming off the beach, others were cooking, laying roads, building jetties or organizing watch posts and sentry boxes.

By Jeep To Front

The commander in chief walked through thick dust and found the beach commander, a British colonel, who said the Canadians were farther up. Eisenhower borrowed a jeep and we followed in our amphibious craft, which never had a rougher passage on water than on that Sicilian road.

Near a tomato patch I saw my first "enemy" Sicilian—a boy of 14 on a bicycle. He grinned and waved and wanted to have his picture taken. But one should not deduce from this that all Sicilians are friendly.

A boy of 14 on a bicycle, he grinned and waved and wanted to have his picture taken. But one should not deduce from this that all Sicilians are friendly.

Sentries Slain

Last night, three British soldiers on sentry duty had their throats cut.

The persistent Gen. Eisenhower found a Canadian captain, J. E. Moore of Vancouver, after a hot and dusty search. He gave Moore a message to transmit to the Canadian general ahead.

Snipers were active in this area. The general's agile jeep and our water wagon wheeled around, got separated and, roaring through the dust, found our way separately back to the beach.

Chats With Men

Gen. Eisenhower chatted with the men near the landing state and then said, pointing to our unnatural craft:

A naval officer grinned and replied:

"Are you prepared to set sail, sir?"

The general clambered aboard and we ground down to the beach and smoothly entered the water. It's a wonderful way to travel on both land and sea, and Gen. Eisenhower enjoyed being the guest of the Royal navy.

We then visited the headquarters ship of the British admiral, had drinks during two air raid alerts and finally got back to our destroyer.

General Patton and Admiral Hewitt and other officers gave Gen. Eisenhower the up-to-the-minute picture and filled him in on many picturesque details. For instance, the guns of one American cruiser broke up an Axis tank attack yesterday and destroyed several tanks single-handed, though many miles away. This must be one of the first recorded instances of a battle between a ship at sea and tanks on land.

American ships roam offshore like floating forts. Further up the coast one village was literally captured by two destroyers. I asked one officer when the Luftwaffe had been operating and he answered briefly: "Constantly."

Enemy action on this scale is more or less inevitable in the forward area where it is difficult to put our aircraft into action. The officer described the enemy technique:

"Those devils streak in from behind the hills and skim through the ravines. They fly so low they can't be spotted. Then they bomb and machine-gun the beaches before our Spitfires high up can get down."

We are encountering this technique by a steady advance on land.

Gen. Eisenhower was delighted to have personal confirmation from the men who partook that our forces "hit almost every beach on the button" in the initial phases of the operation.

In one sector four Italian lieutenant colonels walked up and surrendered and blandly explained that the reason they were "caught" was that they were making "personal first line reconnaissance."

Eisenhower Visits Sicily Front, Finds Everything Is Going Well

SOMEWHERE IN SICILY, July 12.—General Dwight D. Eisenhower, Allied commander in chief, landed in Sicily today from a British destroyer and drove to the front, where he visited Lieutenant General George S. Patton jr., commanding American invasion forces. General Eisenhower found, on the basis of reports, that all was going well.

As General Eisenhower's destroyer had skirted the coast of Sicily an Axis battery turned its guns on the ship, but its shells fell a mile astern.

General Eisenhower watched a big Allied cruiser shelling inland targets as his destroyer neared the coast and saw the blasts of the land guns dueling with enemy batteries. On landing, he made his way up a beach crowded with half-naked men loading supplies, and sped to the front along hastily built roads through the vineyards.

At General Patton's headquarters, General Eisenhower heard of the progress of American troops, was told how the Allied forces had taken 4,000 prisoners Saturday alone and had killed almost all of an Italian coastal regiment.

It was then that he said that he was quite satisfied with the progress made by the Allied troops and that all was going well.

During a drive of the front areas, General Eisenhower talked to Canadian officers and men, asking them their experiences in their assault landings. He asked Captain J. Moore, of Vancouver, B. C., to convey a message to the Canadian commander in chief welcoming the Canadians to his Allied command.

Then, in his sea-going jeep, he returned to his destroyer.

General Eisenhower made his trip to find out at first hand, as he had so often done in Tunisia, how things were going.

As the destroyer steamed across from Africa, General Eisenhower stood on the bridge, looking up at the planes which droned over, covered by hundreds of guns in the Allied fleet until they were identified as British Spitfire fighters.

The destroyer was approaching Licata, in the American zone on the south coast, when an Allied cruiser turned its guns on the land and started firing. Puffs of dust far inland told where the shells had landed. A small party of enemy troops were holding up troops who found it difficult to get their own guns in proper position, he was told, and the Navy took on the job of remedying the situation in another combined operation.

For many miles, as the destroyer moved westward toward the southeast corner of Sicily, General Eisenhower saw the puffs of smoke and dust from the shells exploding several miles inland where Allied artillery was engaged against the enemy guns.

On the Pachino Peninsula, near Cape Passero at the southeastern tip of Sicily, General Eisenhower climbed down the side of the destroyer into an amphibious jeep which took him across the harbor to the beach.

The jeep passed crowds of soldiers who were taking a swim after long hours on the dusty beach. On the beach groups of men, stripped to the waist, were unloading ammunition and piling it on trucks. Landing craft were still putting troops ashore, and tanks were rumbling on to the beach.

General Eisenhower chatted with a group of officers, watching the scene, after which a jeep took him on to the front.

At General Patton's headquarters, aside from hearing general reports, General Eisenhower was told how at some points enemy troops were trying to make small-scale counter-attacks.

He was told also how warships broke up an enemy tank attack Saturday. The enemy tank force was spotted approaching the Allied lines. The news was flashed to the warships, which opened fire on a crossroads just as the tanks approached. The big shells from the ships' guns smashed the tank column, destroying several tanks, and the remaining tanks quickly retired.

An Allied Command Post in the Mediterranean Area, July 11—(Delayed).—Allied planes were operating today from captured airfields in Sicily. German troops have been thrown in, in an endeavor to hold up our advance.

Last night when British troops entered Syracuse at 9 P. M. there was some fighting in the streets, and German troops tried to hold out in the barracks of the town but by dawn this morning fighting had ceased and the enemy was completely cleared from the town and port. Later in the day Allied minesweepers cleared the beach approaches of mines.

On the southern coast American troops have captured the ports of Licata and Gela and equipment already is being unloaded there. The bridgehead held by the Americans is twenty-five miles in length and ten miles deep.

Allies Fan Out.

Between them and the British Eighth Army on the right are the Canadians, who took a big part in the capture of Pachino Peninsula yesterday.

Today Allied troops were fanning out as they advanced inland and up to midday there was no sign of an enemy counterattack. Our troops are meeting only light opposition so far and the civilian population is reacting well to our landing and co-operating in every way.

One illustration of this occurred when an official of one town which our troops occupied without much trouble offered to go to a nearby town in which the enemy was resisting to advise them to surrender with the result that the town then surrendered.

Nazis Got News Late.

More than 4,000 prisoners were taken yesterday and an Italian coastal regiment was virtually wiped out. Included in the enemy tanks knocked out yesterday by the British were a number of French machines being used by the Italians.

Enemy air opposition throughout the whole of Saturday was practically negligible but today enemy aircraft is slightly more in evidence, which is another indication that the landing caught the enemy off balance.

Sicilians say that German troops on the island had the first warning of invasion at 1 A. M. Saturday, three hours after our first assault troops landed.

The first real clash with the Germans came this morning when units of the Eighth Army engaged them at Floridia, about eight miles west of Syracuse, and fierce fighting ensued.

An Allied Command Post in the Mediterranean Area, July 10 (Delayed).—Allied sources said today that enemy forces defending Sicily may consist of twelve divisions. (The total thus would range up to perhaps 144,000 men. London sources on Saturday placed the total Axis forces on Sicily as ranging upward to 400,000 men.)

Two of these probably are German, the remaining ten being five Italian coastal divisions and five Italian infantry divisions.

FLYER TELLS OF ACTION IN NEW BOMBER

Captain In Squadron Giving Support In Sicily Describes Mustang

Says Scream Of Plane's Dive Makes Stuka Sound Like Alley Cat

The first detailed story of the crack new American Mustang (A-36) dive-bomber in action against the Axis is told in the following dispatch written for the Associated Press by Capt. Roger L. Miller, of Salem, Ore., whose squadron has been assigned to give air support to the Allied troops fighting in Sicily.

By CAPT. ROGER L. MILLER

An Advanced Air Base In North Africa, July 12 (AP)—I hope our gang has as much luck against the enemy in Sicily in the future as it has had up to now.

We are flying the best plane for dive-bombing in the world and any German or Italian in action against us will probably back us up. The scream of this plane when it comes down with dive brakes on would shake any man. It's like fifteen Boris Karloff shows rolled into one. Compared to an A-36, a Stuka sounds like an alley cat.

Among Rugged Mountains

Operating in Sicily is far from easy. The country is mountainous and rugged, and where the altimeter may show a few thousand feet from the target it is usually much farther away down in a canyon or gorge. We always have one question: How about those hills?

The ships peel off to dive on the target in line dropping their bombs. Then the leader pulls out and clears a hill if he's lucky. Each succeeding plane gets lower and lower. When poor Rear End Charlie comes along he may be pretty low. One of our boys didn't make it the other day. But that doesn't mean we'll stop trying.

Our specialty is supposed to be "intruder" work. That means we range far behind the lines, if necessary smashing truck convoys, trains, bridges, lines of communication, power lines, radio stations and a hundred other things. Once we drop our bombs we become one of the best low-altitude fighters in the world.

Catch Up With Bullets

We don't dive as fast as most people think, but actually we have gone so fast that we have caught up with our own bullets ricocheted back. Not long ago we chased a Messerschmitt with a five-mile start and caught him within thirty-five miles. He looked up and must have been startled to death when he found us putting inside him. Our bullets broke him up at the top of a loop.

Normally we come over the target pretty high, say a small prayer and let her go straight down. The brakes hold down our speed and we keep sight on the target for several thousand feet. It's uncanny. You know you're really in a dive because your stomach wants to come straight up.

When we get to the bottom we just say a prayer for the Germans and Italians and push the button. Then we pull back on the stick and start looking for fighters or something to strafe. In other words, we change from the best dive-bombing plane in the world to a fighter in a few seconds.

"Your Turn Now"

When flying through heavy flak coming on the target and you have to look down on anti-aircraft guns, I always close my eyes and think, "well boys this is your turn now. Mine will come in a minute."

Most of us have our guns wide open way on down and seldom have to strafe afterward because one good dive wipes out the target. We missed only three targets recently that I know of, and not long ago we completely obliterated a locomotive. We came back afterward and there was no sign of it. You can have all the high-powered bomb sights in the world if you'll give me a good steep dive.

Before the war I was studying English literature at Williamette University, Salem. Now I'm flying one of the most proficient killers ever devised. I was thinking about the big difference only the other day. But it seems to boil down to one thing. They started it, didn't they?

ALLIED FLEET STRUCK AT BY AXIS PLANES

Repeated Air Attacks Made On Warship Off Sicily With Minor Damage

By PAUL KERN LEE

[Associated Press Correspondent]

Aboard a British Cruiser off Eastern Sicily, July 11 (Delayed)—Caught flat-footed by the Allied invasion of Sicily, the Germans bounced back, and since 4 P. M. yesterday have subjected this ship and other warships and the great assault convoy to violent and persistant air attacks.

These attacks are going on the moment that this is being written.

After sporadic hit-skip bombings, the first really determined blows were struck at 4 P. M. yesterday, when two waves of about twenty to twenty-four JU-88s plus a few stray strafers subjected us to high-level and dive bombing.

Two Bombers Shot Down

A barrage was thrown up by the convoy and the warships quickly made the whole bright afternoon sky a crazy quilt of black-and-white patches as the shells burst high and low.

Two bombers plummeted into the sea, one in a vertical dive from 10,000 feet, leaving only a small oil patch to mark its sea grave.

Apparently none of the ships was hit by bombs. Several disappeared momentarily beneath spray showering from misses, but emerged triumphantly with their guns still blazing.

Writers Notebook Entries

The first alarm was still progressing at 4.15 P. M., when messmen appeared with big cans of hot tea, which the thirsty men eagerly gulped at their action stations.

Thenceforth we scarcely had a quiet moment. These are typical of my notebook entries:

5.00 P. M.—Past forty minutes filled with reports of aircraft, though, fortunately, many were friendly.

5.44—Fired on by enemy aircraft again and again.

7.10—Attacked by eight or more dive bombers; drove them off.

7.20—Attacked again; drove them off again after some near-misses.

7.30—Engaged by enemy aircraft again.

As the sun set, the enemy tried to dart in and out of the sun to get atop us before being spotted, but alert lookouts and heavy barrage thwarted them.

Foe Drops Bombs Without Aiming

Our commanding officer, who is from Withby, Yorkshire, remarked at the height of the attack that these sundowners were not so determined as their predecessors because they dropped their bombs and skipped without apparent effort at aiming. They were mostly Focke-Wulf 190s.

From 8 to 10 we enjoyed a respite, but then we were subjected to heavy air attacks in the light of the half moon. Bombs fell asea and ashore. The enemy obviously was thrown off his aim by the fleet's tremendous barrage, which sprayed the whole starry sky with showers of red and white tracer fire. Bursts of heavier ack-ack reverberated like a dreadful thunder-storm.

Dive Bombers Back At Dawn

The all-clear came shortly before midnight and the crew managed to catch a few hours' sleep in the watches in preparation for the expected dawn attack.

These expectations were fulfilled when, at 4.45 A. M., the dive bombers started a determined hour onslaught ending only when the sun had peered fully above the horizon.

Again the fleet guns, large and small, spoke with authority and with a thrilling, theatrical effect impossible to duplicate. One German plane, racing along at a height of a couple of thousand feet, burst into yellow flame. He streaked across the sky horizontally, then looped down in a graceful curve like a crossing watchman's lantern and ended as a bonfire on the beach.

One bomb fell so close that its splinters rattled on the deck, wounding an officer. An hour and a half later when the sun was high enough to make gazing into it impossible, the enemy again attacked to drop its eggs and run. Bombers, swooping singly out of the sun, caused an alarm that lasted another thirty-five minutes, but Spitfires were quickly on the job and no more incidents occurred.

Allied Fighters On Hand

Alarms continued to sound throughout the morning and further attacks are to be expected at dusk tonight and by moonlight, but Allied fighters are proving a big help and ships' gunners have proved to the Germans that it is highly unhealthy to get within range of their curtaining fire.

The zoom of fighting and bombing planes, the screech of bombs and the boom and rattle of our guns has become so commonplace that something seems lacking when all are silent.

The principal objective was taken initially by a crew of fourteen men. When day came they fought their way through, with the aid of about seventy other men, and held the objective for fourteen hours against Italian opposition.

I was with this body of men as a spectator, and the full story which I am too exhausted to write at once, is one of the most magnificent episodes of this war.

Our force surrendered in mid-afternoon when the about thirty soldiers had been under concentrated fire from mortars and heavy machine guns for hours.

For fifteen hours we fought with almost no cover, and we left considerable numbers of enemy dead.

Within an hour of capture we all managed to escape—when a British reconnaissance unit began shooting at the guards.

Another unit of officers and nine enlisted men with whom we are linking up this morning captured the gun of a coastal battery in a fierce charge shortly after leaving their glider.

Throughout the night before the invasion I could hear little actions going on in the darkness as various units fought toward their pre-

In Sicily With the Air-Borne Force, July 11 (Delayed)—I landed with the first glider-borne force to touch Sicilian soil.

The men of this force fought magnificently during the night before the Allied invasion by sea.

Gliders were brought hundreds of miles in a wind which almost reached gale force, and landings were made in bad visibility under heavy ack-ack fire.

Although it was not possible for the force to fight together, its various units threw the countryside into a nightlong state of alarm.

arranged rendezvous. Since then I have learned blockhouses were captured, barracks shot up, patrols machine-gunned and wiped out, and most of the area on which seaborne enemy forces were destined to land was thrown into panic by these deadly attacks.

There can be no question that the relatively slight resistance met by some of our landing forces during early stages of the invasion was attributable to the work of glider-borne troops.

Axis Admits Allied Gains In Initial Fighting in Sicily

Germans Report Seven Divisions Already Landed in Invasion Thrust.

LONDON, July 12 — (AP) Axis broadcasts admitted today that Allied forces had won a coastal strip three to six miles deep stretching "almost without gap" 30 miles along eastern Sicily from Syracuse to Cape Passero, but insisted that American troops "have been able only to gain a foothold in a few bridgeheads" on the southern coast.

German troops buttressing the Italians halted the British advance on the east coast after the penetrations inland, "while the Americans were thrown back with considerable losses to their bridgeheads at Licata and Gela," Capt. Ludwig Sertorius, military correspondent of Transocean, asserted in a Berlin broadcast.

Capt. Sertorius said seven British, American and Canadian divisions thus far had been put ashore in Sicily and "General Eisenhower undoubtedly can, if he desires, double the forces already landed."

12 Enemy Divisions

Enemy forces defending Sicily were estimated at 12 divisions, ranging up to perhaps 144,000 men, by Allied sources in Africa. Two were said to be probably German, the others five Italian coastal divisions and five Italian infantry divisions.

This compared with a London estimate on Friday that the Axis had forces ranging up to as high as 400,000 men on Sicily.

The Italian communique, meanwhile, declared Axis troops had counter-attacked, compelling an Allied retreat in one sector, and another Berlin broadcast, also recorded by the Associated Press, stated that American troops had been driven by Italian reserves at one point and forced back into the sea in a neighboring area by a German charge.

In London, military observers were pleased by the swift, low-cost completion of the first phase of the conquest of the bastion island, but again cautioned that much hard fighting probably lay ahead.

"Of course, after the way the enemy collapsed when we put on pressure in Tunisia, I can't be surprised by anything," said one source, "but so far there is nothing to indicate any collapse of the Italian or German will to fight, and if that remains we will have a real battle.

"If counter-attacks fail to develop heavily in the next day or two, we may reason that we will have a relatively easy time all the way through, but any such guess would be foolish now."

Allies Superior in Air

The great Allied superiority in the air was seen as one factor making for a possible swift victory.

Noting that all the captured towns listed in today's Allied communique were on or near the coast, another officer said that the Axis "with not more than 300,000 ground troops available to watch 500 miles of coast obviously couldn't man all the beaches heavily enough to prevent landings—and there is some reason to believe that he was fooled into putting more strength into the Marsala (west Sicily) and Messina (northeast Sicily) corners than into the southeast.

"Thus with his forces grouped mainly in the interior he had wait until he saw where the ma Allied attacks were developing b fore he could start real counte thrusts. If he threw his forces us too soon, he might have four himself committed to attack on diversionary party while the ma blow fell elsewhere."

That this might have been t Allied strategy was indicated Capt. Sertorius, who reported a tempts were made Saturday to la at Marsala, but that they appear to be diversionary attempts.

Other German broadcasts pr ised "surprises" for the Allies. Italians said the United Nati had lost "the first round."

Gen. Patton a Striking Figure

World Knows Him as a Dashing Commander, but He Has Another Side Too.

JUL 13 1943 BOYLE

With the American Forces in the Mediterranean Theater (Delayed) (A. P.).—Lieut.-Gen. George S. Patton Jr., commander of the American forces invading Sicily, is the man who led the United States forces into French Morocco last November. He took command of the American Second Corps in Tunisia at the critical period after it had been slapped back sixty miles at Faid Pass to Kasserine Gap by Rommel's rampaging panzers. Explaining his new orders, an officer who had worked with the General long enough to know his military principles said:

"These troops have had a rough going over and naturally they are fighting mad at 'the old man' for telling them they have to dress up like parade troops, but that's just what the general wants—to make them fighting mad. He believes sloppy troops are sloppy fighters. His job is to jerk the American Army back on its feet."

He did his job. The troops groused and grumbled and hated him for a time because of his strict discipline but every day it wakened a new spirit in them. They were soon back on their toes and by March 17 they had retaken Gafsa on the long march to El Guettar, Mateur, Bizerte and complete victory.

But no troops hate him for long, because if he is rough on them he is infinitely rougher on his officers. If anything goes wrong he does not place the blame on the men; he calls the officers to task because he believes the men fail chiefly because of poor leadership.

Made Officers Wear Insignia.

When he took over in Tunisia one of the first things he did was to order his officers to wear their insignia on their helmets despite the danger that this would make them better targets for the enemy.

"That's part of your job of being an officer," said the General who tells his lieutenants and captains that they are expendable and must lead their men into battle, taking equal chances with the lowest buck private of being killed in action. He himself was seriously wounded in world war 1 and several times during the Tunisian campaign he has passed through artillery barrages and undergone Stuka bombings to get to the front line battle positions.

At 57 Gen. Patton is said to be the wealthiest career soldier in the American Army. He is perhaps the most widely publicized but the least understood General officer in uniform. He is something of a George Bernard Shaw, cocky, not above clowning sometimes in an effort to get his point across.

The public is familiar with Gen. Patton, the commanding figure with the high-pitched voice whose sulphurous expletives are unmatched in the Army, the pol-player, athlete, pistol champ who can shoot jack-rabbits from a command car, the self-designated "blood-thirsty mercenary" who has been reported as saying—although the men around him hold he never did—that he would like to settle the war with a personal tank duel between Rommel and himself.

Has Two Sides.

This picturesque personality—the "blood and guts" aspect of his nature—is the one which Patton, with his tongue in his cheek, turns toward the world. What the public is less familiar with is Patton the military scholar, poet, and philosopher. He is a deeply read man. He was published a number of military treatises, but he has written also a number of philosophical and poetical works which he wishes published, if at all, only after his death—and that he hopes will come in battle.

Because all his life he has preached the gospel that wars are won by attacking incessantly, he is sometimes pictured as a reckless devil-may-care commander. Nothing could be more incorrect. He does not waste troops in spectacular assault and when he orders an attack it is against objectives within the power of inspired men to captpre. He believes in military dash—and loves it—but he also teaches military caution.

Quick to Reward Merit.

Although he is a strict disciplinarian because the study of military history has convinced him that disciplined troops have fewer battle casualties, he is no martinet. He is quick to acknowledge and reward merit in his own officers and men and is proudest when they display exceptional qualities in exceptional situations.

Patton is a general with a strong sense of personal dignity, but he is witty and enjoys a reputation as one of the best raconteurs in the Army. At the same time he is aloof, has few close friends and was once described by an officer who served under him for a period of years as "the loneliest man I ever knew." He inspires intense loyalty rather than love among his subordinates, maintaining somewhat the same relation as that between an Old Testament father and his children. They are a little afraid of him, but they would obey him to their deaths.

Says Allies Landed 7 Divisions.

London, July 12 (A. P.).—The Berlin radio declared today that a total of seven British, American and Canadian divisions already landed in Sicily. Giving this figure in a broadcast recorded by the Ministry of Information, Capt. Ludwig Sertorius, Transocean military commentator, asserted that "Gen. Eisenhower undoubtedly can, if he desires, double the forces already landed."

Sertorious reported that a British army of four divisions was operating on the coasts between Cape Passero and Cape Croce (Augusta). The Allies have announced that the British already have taken Syracuse, main city of this strip.

An American force of two divisions, plus one Canadian division, is operating from Licata to Cape Scaramia, the broadcast said.

The Allied objective, Sertorius said, is to encircle German and Italian forces in the southeast Sicilian mountains or force them to retreat beyond Palma and Catania.

Allies Believed Over First Big Hurdle in Sicily

London Says Capture of Syracuse and Licata Will Speed Reinforcements

LONDON, July 12 (AP).—In capturing ten major ports and towns in Sicily, including the important harbor of Syracuse, the Allies have cleared the first big hurdle on the way to complete conquest of the island, London observers declared today.

Possession of Syracuse and of Licata, which has an anchorage capable of handling small ships, will permit the attackers to pour in reinforcements, heavy equipment, munitions and other supplies much faster than would be possible on the beaches alone. The occupation of the major towns give them a strong base for organizing and undertaking the next stage of the offensive.

Syracuse and Licata appear to be at opposite ends of the great arc of landings around the southeastern shores of Sicily, making it possible to pour in fresh strength from both ends of the front.

The taking of Rosolini showed that the forces which landed at the extreme southeast tip of the island and captured Pachino have already moved inland from ten to fifteen miles toward Ragusa.

The other six towns listed as captured are on or near the coast. Avola is about fifteen miles south of Syracuse. It has a minor port and airfield and is on a coastal rail line. Noto is an inland town a few miles from Avola and also has an airfield.

Ispica is another inland point a few miles south of Rosolini at a junction of the roads leading from Pachino and from Pozzallo, another captured coastal town about fifteen miles west of Pachino. Scoglitti is another small port a few miles east of Gela which has a good airfield and an anchorage, although no good harbor.

Licata, with a peace-time population of around 25,000, and Syracuse, with some 55,000 inhabitants, are two of the island's most important towns.

The capture of the Catania airdrome, reported by the Morocco radio, would mean the seizure of the main Axis bomber base on the the east coast. It might also herald a rapid thrust northward from Syracuse toward Messina, where the Sicilian shore reaches to within two miles of the Italian mainland. Catania is thirty miles north of Syracuse and the Catania airfield might have been captured by air-borne troops, if it has fallen.

The presence of Lieutenant General George S. Patton jr., in command of the Americans, announced in Malta, suggested that the Allies are preparing to use armor on the plain of Licata, which lies between Licata and Gela, the scene of the main American landings.

The 100-mile stretch of coast, with all harbors and airfields, was secured swiftly and apparently with minimum fighting, which suggested that the main body of enemy troops is still to be encountered.

Axis radio reports have been saying that the main defense forces are held in the interior of the island pending development of the Allied attack.

Axis Bulletins Claim 'Successful' Blows On Invaders of Sicily

Say Allies Have Failed to Enlarge Size of Isle's Occupied Coastal Area

JUL 13 1943

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 12.—The Italians asserted in a communique today that Axis forces in Sicily had counterattacked successfully against Allied invasion forces and that "fighting continued fierce and uninterrupted."

The communique, broadcast from Rome and recorded by the Associated Press, also said the Allied forces "vainly tried to increase the size of the occupied coastal areas."

"Italian and German troops decisively went over to counterattacks, beat at enemy units at several points, and in one sector compelled them to retreat," the war bulletin added.

Algiers advices reported mass air raids near Gela which inflicted heavy damage on airfields and communications. The attackers were said to have met heavy antiaircraft and fighter opposition. Troop concentrations were shelled intensely.

Fighting Near Gela.

The Morocco radio, in a broadcast recorded by the Associated Press, quoted pilots returning from flights over Sicily as confirming that "violent fighting now is in progress six and eight miles from Gela," in the sector invaded by American forces.

The Berlin radio declared that the fight for supremacy in the air over Sicily and the Mediterranean had not yet started, although the broadcast spoke of violent air encounters taking place over Sicily and surround waters yesterday and today.

"Anglo-American attacks against Axis airports in Sicily will not be able to paralyze German-Italian air activity," said the broadcast, recorded by the Associated Press.

The Rome announcement asserted four Allied cruisers were torpedoed, three by Italian planes and another, one of 10,000 tons, by a submarine. Of the one reported hit by the underseas craft, the communique said: "She blew up."

Other Craft Declared Hit.

Four other Allied craft were reported hit by the torpedo plane and two of them, both steamers were listed as sunk.

Italian and German air formations also were said to have sunk five steamers and several landing craft and the planes, the communique continued, "hit and set on fire more than 40 merchantmen and transports of various tonnages."

The fighting spirit of Italian and German units is very high," the communique continued. "The behavior of the population of the Island and that of the proud Sicilian soldiers, who in great numbers belong to our units, is superior to any praise."

The Rome bulletin asserted that Axis fighters had shot down 30 Allied planes and that 8 more crashed after being hit by antiaircraft fire. It admitted loss of 2[illegible] Axis planes in the last two days.

Meanwhile, a report from Bern, Switzerland, received here by way of Stockholm quoted the Svenska Bagbladet as saying part of the Italian fleet had steamed out of La Spezia, Italy, and that the people in Rome expect it to engage the Allied warships.

1,000 Allied Toll Claimed.

The Paris radio asserted in a broadcast recorded by the Associated Press that Axis forces had reconquered several of the bridgeheads in Sicily and that nearly 1,000 Allied soldiers had been killed or captured.

Earlier the German International Information Bureau, a propaganda agency, had asserted in a Berlin broadcast that Axis forces had driven American invasion columns in Sicily back to the coast.

Without giving a specific location for the reported engagements, the broadcast said Italians had halted Americans who advanced west of their bridgehead and that Germans met another force simultaneously to the east.

In another broadcast beamed overseas, the Berlin radio said Axis troops had "gone over to the counterattack" in Sicily this morning, but gave no further details.

The Rome radio reported in a broadcast heard by Reuters that the Allies have established artillery emplacements on Sicily and also have thrown tanks into the fighting.

Carriers Reported Aiding.

The Rome broadcast also said that Allied aicraft carriers were continuing to support the landing operations.

(There has been no mention from Allied sources that aicraft carriers were involved in the operations.)

An RAF observer, commenting on the capture of three enemy airfields in Sicily by Allied invasion forces, said one of two taken near Gela can accommodate a large number of bombers.

This field, he said, is large and well-equipped. At present, however, it lies too close to the front line for any effective use by heavier aircraft.

The other fields, at Salso in the Gela district and a Pachino, are small and suitable only for fighters, this source said.

Other observers said heavy counterattacks by Axis forces could be expected in the next day or two in the Licata-Gela and Syracuse-Avola areas.

At the same time the German-controlled Paris radio declared that Axis leaders were optimistic of the outcome, but acknowledged the difficulty of the operations facing them.

No Liberators Lost

CAIRO, Egypt, July 12 (AP)—American Liberators blasted southern Italian airdromes in daylight yesterday in support of the Allied storming of Sicily's defenses.

A communiqué announced today that their explosives had created "great damage" on the airfield at Reggio Calabria, a base for the aerial defense of the vital Sicilian ferry terminal. Striking from bases in the Middle East, the Liberators also attacked the airdrome at nearby Vibo Valentia, seriously damaging administration buildings, hangars and parked aircraft.

Although strong formations of enemy fighters attempted to intercept the attackers, all the American planes returned safely. Two enemy planes were destroyed and two others were damaged.

The communiqué said that many hits had been scored on hangars, barracks and motor transport at Reggio Calabria. "Disperal areas were well covered with bursts and a large number of planes were seen burning," the communiqué added.

At Vibo Valentia, airdrome

hangars and administration buildings were left blazing and a three-engined aircraft was destroyed. A Messerschmitt was shot out of the skies over this base, the bulletin added.

Light British bombers [redacted] a formation of Messerschmitt fighters southwest of Crete and shot one down in flames, the communiqué said. All the Allied planes returned safely.

Axis Fire on Sicily Was Heavy, But Glider-Tower Got Through

By IVAN H. PETERMAN,

Philadelphia Inquirer Correspondent Representing the Combined American Press. (Distributed by the Associated Press.)

ADVANCE AIR BASE, TUNISIA, July 10 (Delayed).—It was one hour before "D-Day," but already the advanced elements of Allied invasion, the long expected assault on the European fortress, dropped through the night to the well-lit shores of Sicily. Blazing with ack-ack and bombs, the coast sparkled from the southern tip of Cape Passero northward and along the other shore toward Point Bianco.

Air-borne blitzkrieg, proved on neighboring Crete but now perfected by the Americans and British, had come home to roost on the Axis doorstep.

Riding in an American transport plane, towing a glider filled with English Tommies, I accompanied the first flight—and had a grandstand seat amid the flak from which to see the opening attack.

On all sides were fires started by explosions, our medium and heavy bombers running a screen of inland interference. The fires spread as we watched, as fires will when there's nobody around to put them out. Flashes on the ground sometimes indicated ground fire as the first air-borne unit struck; then a gun would stop firing or another beacon would go dark.

Enemy Illumined Scene.

Strangest in blinking panorama were the regularly-spaced "street lights" the defenders put up, suspended star-like for as much as 15 minutes, reflecting from the water on the beaches. They extended for miles as searchlights probed between them, like a policeman's torch seeking intruders. It was like an offshore view of an American seaside city, before the dimout.

Crouched at a window in the squadron leader's ship, I watched the planes and their "trailers" climb to desired altitude ,and saw the gliders cast off. Behind us, flat to the Mediterranean as they crossed from the African mainland —a perfect formation which flew out of a red setting sun and streaked home into a hazy moon—scores of the United States troop carrier command's big transports brought American paratroopers to the opposite coast. We would be passing them on the return flight.

Most of the planes were American with American crews, but there were a few RAF aircraft mixed in. Paratroopers rode in the transports, weapons strapped to their sides and "chuting" with them. The British rode the gliders with English pilots, eager, laughing Tommies who could not wait to land on Mussolini's acres. They were the spearhead, and the American troop carrier pilots, long bored with the humdrum hauling jobs of warfare, were towing that spearhead in. This was the big parade.

The German invasion of Crete was nothing like it. The Nazis poured troops indiscriminately upon that island without regard to losses. This was timed to the minute, perfectly planned, brilliantly executed. Of all the ships engaged in the pooled transport and striking force, only a very small percentage were missing that first night. Some of them may yet report.

Italian Fire Wild.

Drifting noiselessly to earth, the glider boys rallied and went to work. Their's was the job of seizing a beachhead, striking the enemy from flank and rear, cutting communications and causing general consternation. I could sense it there in the plane as the first ones landed, the sudden darkening of lights, and cessation of antiaircraft fire in certain spots.

It was weird and exciting. To the right just 3 miles away the skies were red with ack-ack. As always, the Italians were firing furiously into the air, hoping to hit somebody.

It was exactly 11:22 p.m., North African time, when I heard Maj. Leonard Barrow speak into the interplane phone: "Calling glider, calling . . . Are you ready? I repeat, are you ready? We are casting off . . ." Then, before releasing the 300-foot towline, the major, who could fly a barndoor if it had an engine, added: "And lots of luck, fellows."

I jumped on the navigator's table and looked through the blister atop the Helen B. For a moment the glider seemed to follow, then its wings dipped and it slipped toward Sicily—its cargo of Britons braced and ready. Americans were coming the same way a few miles off.

"Flak" Missed Gliders.

Right and left it looked as if we were on top of Dante's inferno. The port was throwing up heavy, light and medium flak trying to clip the darting ships. Coast defenses chimed in as far as the eye could see. I watched flak coming at us: My face was wet with sweat.

Maj. Barrow pushed it to the fire wall, to use the pilot's term. We were doing 187 miles an hour and diving out to sea when a big shell exploded beyond the tail. I saw a stream of tracer diverting like a garden hose toward our trailer companions.

"Missed 'em, too," the sergeant breathed, dropping his earphones on the floor. Then the Helen B. banked into the darkness as Maj. Barrow poured on the coal, and one night's ride I'll never forget had passed the crisis.

Our ship had led off the field. Maj. Barrow, a native of New Iberia, La., is not only a splendid pilot but a soldier. Wearying of staff work in England when he wanted to pilot a combat plane, he asked for a transfer, and flew a P-34 pursuit from Great Britain to Africa after a single day's instruction. He was a B-17 bomber pilot but has flown nearly all types, and is now a contented transport man getting in his share of action.

Colonel Was Passenger.

Beside me, Maj. Barrow had as a passenger-observer Col. Glynne M. Jones, his former instructor in aviation, from Lafayette, La., and New Orleans, now troop carrier's operations chief who helped the commanding general make this first big assignment such a success. He kidded his old teacher as we got in, recalling their early days in the Evangeline country.

"Colonel, I should charge you the same $1.50 for this ride that you always taxed for that 10-minute hop back home," he said.

Then Lts. Bill Pearson of Albany, Ga., and Bob Galloway of Lawton, Okla., climbed in and the radioman, Frank Keel, locked the door. I stared at the spread of life rafts, the Mae West jackets and parachutes, and thought hard on the general's last-minute fight talk.

"I want to congratulate you on being leaders in the greatest show yet begun against the Axis by American forces," he said. "Not a thing we can do has been overlooked. Go out there now—it's a cinch."

First Combat Trip.

This was the first combat trip the ship had ever taken. The same was true for the crew. Lt. Pearson told me when he came aft, relinquishing his co-pilot's seat to the colonel.

"They say there are easier ways to earn a living," he murmured, "only we haven't any say in this. But I'm glad for the chance to go. It's sort of historic, isn't it " He smiled faintly as we circled the field, waiting for the others to get up. Then he added, "But I'll settle right now for tomorrow morning."

Strung over the sea with the sunset behind, the flight made a remarkable picture. There was something of the witch-and-broomstick about those gliders' silhouettes. A hex for Benito, perhaps. We would be over the target in a few minutes. Malta was far behind.

Then came the port city. There was heavy ground fire from the environs with that fiery necklace of low tracers. Big stuff cracked higher up and we were climbing sharply now.

Our ship bore around, having missed the exact spot by a little. This time the pilot completed a big horseshoe and then cut straight into land. Later he admitted his neck felt prickly.

Choose Right Spot.

"I thought sure it was a trap, that dark space between the guns and that it would cut loose any second. But that was our spot and in we went."

Motors wide, we raced down the prescribed alley for home. Every one relaxed now the job was done.

But our trip wasn't yet over. Not with so many ships crowding the air. It was stay in your lane, brother, or the navies would shoot.

Once it seemed they had. Challenged off Malta, the copilot fired a flare and it fell short on the wing. There was an awful crash of metal and red fire spread all over the wing.

I had my 'chute on. The colonel grabbed to recover his. We tried to find the door. Then the fire went out, the plane remained steady. My hair felt damp again, as it had over the target. That air force expression stems from truth. You do sweat it out.

Coming to the mainland the moon was down. Haze hung low over the plateau and the transports, green and red wing lights against the starlit background, made animated Christmas trees all over the skies.

It was a beautiful sight. Beautiful because they were home.

One by one they whirred down, ground crews rolling happily through the darkness to grasp each hand. A few were missing, that was expected.

How good the ground felt. The major knelt and kissed it.

BRITISH BOMBERS TRAVEL TO ITALY IN NIGHT ATTACK

JUL 13 1943

R.A.F. Carries Heavy Assault to Northern Part of Uneasy Nation.

SWISS FIRE ON PLANES

[redacted]le Service from [redacted] North Afri[redacted] Be in [redacted]

[redacted]ON, Tuesda[redacted]

(AP) A great force of heavy bombers was heard roaring across the channel early today in an hour-long parade and alerts in southern Switzerland a few hours later suggested the possibility that northern Italy was being bombed again.

Starting last night and continuing by moonlight until after midnight, Britain-based heavyweight bombers headed toward the continent in a steady stream which coastal residents, to whom the noise of hordes of planes has become familiar, said sounded like the heaviest force to go over in some time.

The last raid on Italy by British-based bombers was on May 18, when the naval base at Spezia was attacked. Now, with North Africa in Allied hands, it is possible for bombers from England to batter Italy and land in North Africa.

Such a shuttle service was tried successfully June 20 when Friedrichshaven in Germany was pounded.

The Vichy radio in a broadcast heard by the London Daily Herald said British and American planes flew over Bulgaria last night and ack-ack guns were in action.

Swiss dispatches said an alert also had sounded in Lugano in southern Switzerland during the early morning.

The Berlin radio, quoting a Geneva dispatch, said the air raid alarm was sounded "in large parts of western Switzerland" at about 1 a. m. today and that the droning of engines could be distinctly heard at various points. The Nazi broadcast, recorded by the Associated Press, said Swiss anti-aircraft guns went into action but apparently failed to hit any of the planes, "which were flying at a great altitude."

London Has Raid Alert

London had a brief alert after midnight. It was the first this city had undergone since June 27.

In their first such attack since June 24, German raiders appeared over Britain after dark last night and dropped high explosives and incendiary bombs on an east coast town. Although visits over Britain by the German air force have been infrequent and feeble of late, their last daylight raid—on July 9—resulted in heavy casualties when a bomb blasted a movie house.

In their unceasing pounding of Axis western European defenses, British aircraft yesterday blasted transport and industrial targets in northern France and an enemy minesweeper off the Dutch coast.

The Air ministry said last night that a number of locomotives and barges and the minesweepers were damaged in the raids and that a Royal Canadian Air force Mustang destroyed one enemy bomber.

Spitfires, Mustangs and Bostons took part in the action. Two of them were reported missing.

On Sunday British bombers and fighters smashed against German communications and war industries in France and Belgium, Boston bombers of the RAF attacking several powerhouses near Bethune, France, and scoring a number of direct hits. Simultaneously, Typhoons, Mustangs and Spitfires of the Fighter Command attacked railway lines in Belgium and Northern France, shooting up locomotives, tugboats, barges and lockgates. Two fighters were lost in the attacks.

United States Eighth Air Force headquarters announced that aerial reconnaissance photographs showed that American Flying Fortresses had scored a number of direct hits on administration buildings, hangars and barracks in assaults on German airdromes at Caen and Abbeville on Saturday. Three Fortresses were lost in the raids, which were carried out in such poor weather that some of the attackers, obeying orders about indiscriminate bombing, returned with full loads.

RAF Keeps Up Rain Of Bombs on Europe

U. S. Raids on France Revealed as Effective

JUL 13 1943

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 12.—British bombers and fighters blasted at German communications and war industries in France and Belgium yesterday to maintain a steady pressure on the western defenses of Adolf Hitler's European citadel.

Boston bombers of the RAF, the Air Ministry said, attacked several powerhouses near Bethune, France, scoring several direct hits.

At the same time, Typhoons, Mustangs and Spitfires of the Figrter Command attacked railway lines in both Belgium and Northern France, shooting up locomotives, tugs, barges and lock gates. Two fighters were lost in these attacks.

Headquarters of the United States 8th Air Force, meanwhile, announced that aerial reconnaissance photographs showed that Flying Fortresses had scored numerous direct hits on administration buildings, hangars and barracks in attacks on German airdromes at Caen and Abbeville Saturday.

Three Fortresses were lost in the raids, which were carried out in such bad weather that some of the planes, following orders against indiscriminate bombing, returned with their bombs still aboard.

There was no indication of large-scale activity over the continent last night and no enemy bombers were reported over Britain.

DAMAGED NAZI RAILS BAR FAST AID TO ITALY

Allied Bombings Pay Dividends —Troop Transfers Doubted

LONDON, July 12 (AP)—The inadequacy of Axis railroads, battered and disorganized from systematic poundings by Allied air fleets, was seen today by observers as an obstacle to German efforts to rush troops into Italy to prop up the weakest corner of the European fortress.

British military observers estimated that it would take at least five days to move four divisions—60,000 men—into Italy and some doubted that Germany would risk taking them from the Balkans with the ever-present threat of a new Allied blow.

The only other place reinforcements were available was in Germany itself, and there are only two main railways from Germany to the toe and heel of Italy. All key points on those lines are within range of Allied bombers.

Single track lines and differences of gauge on the secondary lines were considered an added factor of trouble for the Axis.

One railway feeds most of the Balkan invasion front—Budapest, Belgrade and Salonika.

A large number of Italian troops are believed concentrated in the Balkans, with estimates ranging from eight to thirty divisions. Withdrawal of any across the Adriatic to Italy would be complicated, however, by active sabotage of guerrilla forces that have made railroaads their favorite target.

Stimson, in London, To See Churchill

Secretary Also Plans Inspection of Troops

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 12.—Secretary of War Stimson, who arrived here yesterday by plane from the United States, spent a quiet day today "getting acquainted with some of the American Army officers and seeing a few other people," an announcement from his headquarters said.

Mr. Stimson was scheduled to meet later with Prime Minister Churchill for a conference on forthcoming moves against the Axis and also will inspect American troops based on the British Isles. He announced he would hold a press conference later in the week.

The Secretary's flight was broken by a stopover at Iceland, where he paused briefly to inspect American troops and installations. He was greeted on his arrival in Britain by Lt. Gen. Jacob L. Devers, American commander in the European theater; William Averill Harriman, lease-lend expediter, and other high officials. The trip was Mr. Stimson's first to a theater of operations since the war began.

In the Stimson party were Maj. Gen. Alexander D. Surles, Harvey H. Bundy, a special assistant; Lt. Col. William H. S. Wright, Lt. Gordon Grand, Mr. Stimson's aide de camp, and Corpl. William Ford, a clerk.

It was reported that Mr. Stimson had met with members of the British high command shortly after his arrival and that there would be further conferences with British military and civilian leaders as well as American officers.

Stimson Visits Devers, 'Looks Around a Bit'

Unified Command Is Believed Among Topics of Talks

LONDON, July 12 (AP).—Henry L. Stimson, Secretary of War, conferred with Lieutenant General Jacob L. Devers, commanding general of the United States forces in the European theater, at American Army headquarters today, preparatory to an extensive round of discussions expected to go far toward crystallizing plans for invasion blows against the Axis from Great Britain.

The question of the unification of the Allied command in any such operation was assumed to be among the subjects high on the list for discussion with British and American officers and officials.

Declining to hold an early press conference, Secretary Stimson explained that he would rather "look around a bit" in Great Britain before commenting on any phases of the war situation.

Montgomery Recently in England.

London, July 12 (A. P.).—Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery, who led the British forces in the invasion of Sicily, visited England recently, after his famous British Eighth Army had capped its great drive across North Africa with a share in the victory of Tunisia, it was disclosed only today.

BIRTHS CLIMB IN BRITAIN

LONDON, Tuesday, July 13—(AP) More births were registered in England and Wales during the first three months of 1943 than in any other quarter for the past 17 years, according to official returns made public today.

A total of 171,819 — 88,815 boys and 83,004 girls — represented a birthrate of 16.8 per thousand of population.

Deaths in England and Wales during the same period, including civilians, were 137,568. The death rate based on the 1939 population was 13.5 per thousand, compared with 14.8 per cent during the same period in 1942.

A total of 62,337 marriages during the first quarter of 1943 was the lowest for any quarter during the war, but was well above the pre-war level of first quarter marriages.

Veterans of Ruhr Battle Get British Flying Cross

LONDON, July 13 (Tuesday) (AP).—Three American bomber pilots in the Royal Air Force and the Royal Canadian Air Force, all veterans of the Battle of the Ruhr, received the British Distinguished Flying Cross today.

They are pilot officers Richard Seymour Clinton, of Whitney Point, N. Y., and Jerome Arthur Zee, of Jewett City, Conn., both of the Royal Canadian Air Force, and Pilot Officer William Sewell Treacy, who was born in Kentucky.

Churchill To Report On Sicily

London, Tuesday, July 13 (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill is expected in political quarters to make an early report to Parliament on the Sicilian fighting—possibly at the next sitting.

London, Tuesday, July 13 (AP). The Moscow radio said today in a broadcast recorded by the Soviet monitor that a Soviet state commission investigating German atrocities had found that the Nazis had slain more than 6,000 persons by poison gas in Krasnador.

NAZI DRIVE FADING, RUSSIANS DECLARE

Soviet Defenses Hold, Germans Begin to Dig In at Some Points.

LONDON, Tuesday, July 13—(AP) The great week-old German offensive in central Russia, after costing the Nazis "tremendous losses" in men and material, has begun to diminish in power, the Russians announced today.

All along the 165-mile Orel-Kursk-Belgorod front Monday the Nazis attempted repeatedly to smash through to new positions, but each time were ground down by rock-solid Soviet defenders, said the Russian midnight communique, recorded by the Soviet monitor.

Finally, at many points the attackers despaired of their hopes of crashing the Red lines and set about bolstering their initial positions, while the Russians lashed out in their own counter-offensives.

122 Nazi Tanks Smashed

The Russians said that in today's fighting, the Nazis lost 122 tanks, bringing to 2,622 the number of tanks the Reds destroyed since the offensive began. The total of German planes destroyed was put at 1,126, 18 shot down yesterday, and 40 additional craft accounted for on Sunday.

Red troops repulsed numerous Nazi attacks on the Orel-Kursk sector, the communique said, adding:

"The enemy launched his attacks with less strong forces than in preceding days."

Soviet counter-attacks, growing greater and greater in ferocity as the day wore on, were announced earlier by the Moscow radio, and then the Berlin radio in a broadcast recorded by the Associated Press reported that the Red army had thrown powerful masses of reserves, including crack guard units, into the counter-fight.

The Nazi broadcast described the counter-offensive as extending over a 60-mile front in the area of Belev, Kirov and Sukhinichi, midway between Orel and Smolensk, where the pressure to the southwest on the flank of the Nazi thrust might force the Germans to disseminate their forces and weaken their summer drive.

The reported limited wedge in the Belgorod sector was compared by observers in London with the Nazi 1942 summer offensive which started near Kursk, June 28, and by July 7 had penetrated almost 80 miles to the Voronezh region.

Nazi Hurled Back

The communique said that at one point enemy tanks and infantry several times tried to cut wedges into the defending lines but Soviet troops hurled them back to their initial positions.

About 1,000 [illegible] officers and men were slain at that point and 17 tanks, six big guns, 25 machine-guns and a mortar battery destroyed.

Fighting in the Belgorod area was described as especially fierce. Supported by artillery and aircraft, Nazi tanks and infantry tried to buck the staunch Russian defenders, only to be disappointed. At one point, the Nazis quit cold when their efforts failed, and transferred their attention to another section. One Red guard's unit smashed back two violent Nazi assaults and killed more than a battalion of Germans.

One Soviet tank unit dealt a sudden flanking blow at the onrushing Nazis and knocked out 46 tanks. About a regiment of German infantry and 30 tanks attacked one Red battalion position and for 12 hours bitter fighting raged—but 15 Nazi tanks were wrecked and more than 500 Nazis killed and the Germans withdrew.

On a sector of the Kalinin front, a reconnaissance group broke through Nazi minefields and rushed German trenches. Seventy Nazis were killed in hand-to-hand fighting and prisoners and materiel were taken by the Reds. On the Volkhov front the Soviets demolished 12 German blockhouses and sank eight boats with infantry.

VICHY INCREASES POLICE PATROLS

French Regime Fears Patriotic Outbreaks on Bastille Day, Wednesday.

JUL 13 1943

GENEVA, July 12—(AP) The Vichy government, fearful that demonstrations may break out on July 14—Bastille day—sent special police squadrons to the Haute Savoie today where numerous alleged leaders of Communists and Socialist groups have been arrested, Swiss dispatches reported.

For several days the number of people arrested has sharply increased in Annemasse, Annecy, Gaillard and along the entire border region, where the atmosphere since the Allied invasion of Sicily began has become "charged," said the Journal de Geneve. Those arrested have been taken to a concentration camp in the Haute Vienne.

Dispatches said the nervousness of the Laval government has been increased by renewed attacks in the Nazi press against the "incomprehension" of the French people regarding German aims.

La Sentinelle of La Chaux de Fonds, commenting on the situation inside France, said it forecast "terrible events" for the German occupying forces on the day the Allies landed—"a sort of Sicilian vespers."

New German Drive On Belgorod Front Stopped by Soviets

Nazis Continue to Hurl Immense Forces Against Unwavering Red Line

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, July 12.—The battle of the Belgorod breach continued with undiminished fury today, with the Russians insisting that they have effectively prevented German tanks from enlarging the wedge they drove into the Red Army lines five days ago.

Field Marshal Guenther von Kluge's armored columns also were smashing with fresh emphasis on the Orel-Kursk end of the Kursk salient, but here, too, the Russians claim, they were absorbing the best that the Nazis could give.

The Kursk sector blazed into more furious action as the second week of the German offensive began, but it was not yet clear whether Marshal von Kluge has shifted the main weight of his attack from Belgorod in a possible search for an easier spot to breach the unyielding Russian lines.

Nazis Claim Gains.

(A German communique, broadcast by Berlin radio and recorded by the Associated Press, said an important Russian force had been encircled and wiped out between Orel and Belgorod. Several thousand prisoners were taken, the communique said, and 129 Red tanks were destroyed. Numerous guns and other war material were captured.

(The communique claimed a total of 220 Russian tanks and 70 airplanes were destroyed on this sector and added that Red Army losses since July 5 totalled 28,000 prisoners, 1,640 tanks and 1,400 guns destroyed.)

In any event the Russians declared that the Germans were fighting in general on much the same ground as when they began their offensive, which has cost them 2,500 tanks and 1,068 planes in a single week.

German Attack Repelled.

There are few details available on the present situation in the Belgorod breach at the southern end of the 200-mile central front, but the Russians have reported that they repelled a Nazi attack by more than 100 tanks, including the new 60-ton Tigers. Red Army artillery and aviation protecting the Red infantry destroyed 34 tanks and dispersed the remainder, the Russians said.

Altogether the Russians say they have repelled 10 German attempts to advance on the Belgorod sector.

While still working hard to break through in the Belgorod area, the Germans attacked strongly in the Orel-Kursk sector at the northern end of the Kursk salient.

Up to 400 tanks and a large force of infantry attacked on one narrow sector. The Russians reported many tanks destroyed and more than 2,000 men killed. At another position on this front, Soviet aviation broke up a German attack before it could get under way and the Soviet infantry followed up in a counterattack which dislodged the enemy from two settlements.

Reds Ambush Tanks.

Soviet tanks, following their favorite tactics of digging themselves into the ground and fighting from ambush, accounted for a large number of the 162 tanks which the Germans were said to have lost yesterday. The Nazi air force lost only 31 planes yesterday, the smallest number since the offensive began.

Russian bombers struck at Belgorod last night in a continuation of the attacks on the German rear line positions.

On land the Soviet forces were grappling with such famous tank divisions as the "Death Head" and the "Adolf Hitler." These are the reorganized versions of original divisions and have been defeated in previous battles.

Armored columns which continue to be the backbone of the German offensive are constantly being reinforced and the Red artillery which remains the backbone of the Russian defense continues to knock them off as fast as they come.

Axis Chiefs Anxious Over Possibility of Other Allied Blows

Rome Reported Tense, With Mussolini Asking King to Address People

By the Associated Press.

BERN, July 12.—The entire fortress of Europe was on the alert today for new Allied thrusts as Axis leaders in Germany and Italy anxiously watched the progress of the battle for Sicily.

Dispatches reaching here today from Berlin and Rome conceded that the Allies had established at least four bridgeheads in Sicily and looked ahead glumly to a day not far distant when invasion barges may grate on other Mediterranean shores.

Of the two Axis capitals Berlin took the news of the invasion more calmly, pointing out that it had long been expected and declaring that advance Allied parachutists and airborne units had been annihilated or surrounded and captured.

There was mounting tension in Rome and on the mainland of Italy.

Italian Cabinet Meets.

One dispatch from Milan said Premier Mussolini and King Victor Emmanual had made a point of being seen publicly in Rome where the "atmosphere is heavy" and private sources revealed that Mussolini had presided over a cabinet meeting yesterday.

It was also reported that there had been further expulsions in the Fascist Party in an effort to bolster crumbling morale and that Italian newspapers were enlisted in a campaign to whip up enthusiasm for the fighting ahead.

(The London Daily Mail reported that Mussolini had appealed to the King to address the Italian people in an effort to ease the tension which followed reports of the Sicilian invasion.

(London advices also said many arrests had occurred in Naples, where Alfred Cucco, vice secretary of the Fascist party, broadcast an appeal to Sicilians and Italians. It was said that sharp measures were to be used to suppress rumors, speculation and defeatism.)

Food Problem Grows.

Another factor which appeared to weigh heavily in depressing the Italian state of mind as the crisis approached was a steadily worsening food problem, brought about by the relentless Allied air attacks on Italian railroads.

Il Giornale d'Italia pointed out that for more than a month American and British Air Forces have concentrated on railway lines in both Sicily and Sardinia and on the mainland. There was no indication of how many trains had been smashed, but the newspaper said 82 trainmen have been killed and 341 others wounded.

The Courrier de Geneve said there seemed to be no lack of fruit and vegetables in the producing areas of Italy, but that because of the "serious transport difficulty" there was no way to get them from the farms to the metropolitan areas.

The Germans also were well aware that on the transportation situation might well hinge the fate of Railroads Overtaxed.

There was ample evidence, how-ver, that the Italian railroad sys-em—a long, delicate spinal column linking the agricultural areas of the south to the industrial north—could not handle the normal needs of the civilian population, much less bear the added strain which the Sicilian invasion has imposed on it.

The colonel of a Swiss division pointed out that in addition to army and civilian supply lines the Italian coastal routes also bore a heavy share of the burden of defense against invasion. Italian defenses, he explained, included a number of armored trains equipped with long-range naval and anti-aircraft guns which can be shuttled up and down the coast to make up in part for the inadequacies of the navy. These, he said, were dependent on maintenance by the already harassed railways.

While private sources in Italy said the Italians had accused Germany of failure to send reserves to the Sicilian theater and were instead maintaining a guard at the northern frontier, the Nazis themselves were preparing for an attack in the Balkan area.

German leaders, pointing to the heavy bombing of Crete, suggested that the Balkans might be the next stop listed on the United Nations timetable.

Garrison Forces Shifted.

German newspapers have been filled with stories quoting the determination of the Italian people to resist the Allied advance, but they conceded there has been some damage to civilian morale in the fact that the landings have succeeded.

The Swiss paper Die Tag said:
"Since the German and Italian people until now have been given assurances that an Allied attack on the continent would fail, the success of the landing effort naturally brings about a drop in the morale barometer of public opinion."

(From Madrid came a report that Axis garrison forces have been shifted to strengthen defenses from the Gulf of Lyon near Spain east to Italy. Coastal freighters, the report said, were being used to ship troops from French ports to Sardinia and Corsica.)

Croat Partisans Form Their Own Legislature

Set Up Rebel Regime to Rule Land Wrested From Axis

BERN, Switzerland, July 12 (AP).
—Croatian partisans have formed their own legislature for administration of territory which they hold, reports reaching Yugoslav circles here said today. The legislature has taken the name Vetche, the pre-war Croatian Assembly, with participating parties including the Croat Peasant, Independent, Democrat and Communist, these circles declared.

The first session of the Assembly was said to have been held June 13 in the town of Otocac, when the poet Vladimir Nazor, seventy-six years old was elected President.

DETAILS OF BATTLE WITHHELD IN ROME

Italians Get No News on Progress of Fight in Sicily

JUL 13 1943

BERN, Switzerland, July 12—
(AP) The Italian people on the third day of the Allied invasion of Sicily still were without details as to the progress of the battle.

Instead, the Fascist press tried to turn their eyes to the east, which, said Premier Mussolini's Il
Popolo D'Italia, outweighed in importance "a geographically local conflict."

This new tack of prapaganda also was reported from the Italian-Swiss frontier, where Fascists were heard busily trying to sow the hope that the German armies would finish the war in Russia next month, after which the Axis would be able to turn its entire attention and power against the Americans and British.

Until the Allied attack on Sicily had begun, both the Fascist and Nazi press had insisted there would be no great campaign in the east; that Axis holding forces would meet any American-British thrust in the Mediterranean area.

Foreign observers wondered how long Italian morale would be able to stand up under a constantly shifting propaganda that had presented each successive Italian loss as unimportant to the ultimate outcome.

Tonight, the Italian newspaper la
Tribuna told the people that the Italian fleet and Royal Italian air force had entered battle against Allied convoys and were delivering heavy blows that might have decisive effects in the battle for Sicily.
But there was no comment on Allied capture on ten Sicilian cities, including Syracuse.

Vichy Regime Mocked

BERN, Switzerland, July 12 (AP).
—Signs insulting the Vichy regime are being painted in increasing numbers on homes in Mulhouse, a French community just across the Rhine from Germany, it was reported today. In a notice published in the local newspaper, the Mulhouse police chief appealed for co-operation and said that "because of the shortage of labor and cleaning materials it is difficult" to erase the signs.

Franco Aide Scores Monarchy Proposal

Madrid, July 12 (AP)—The Labor
Minister, Jose Antonio Giron, rejected yesterday the idea that Spain return to a monarchy, a suggestion fostered in recent months by partisans of Prince Juan.

Speaking at Manresa in the name of the Secretary General of Spain's lone party, the Falange, he said the Spanish Civil War was not fought for the return of old politicians and "infant prodigies." He said the nation could have no better chief than Generalissimo Francisco Franco.
His speech was released today.

He called on the party to oppose
"all intelligent new poses under whose camouflage old systems, which we innocently supposed were blocked forever, are trying to return.

Turkish Press Says Invasion Turns War Tide

Sure Allies Will Win Now, Reports Giraud's Army Poised to Land in France

O'BRIEN

ISTANBUL, July 11 (Delayed)
(AP).—Istanbul's fourteen newspapers, which circulate throughout Turkey, announced with banner headlines today the Allied invasion of Sicily and editorially termed the action the turning point in the war.

The news pushed everything else, even the battle in Russia, off the front pages, and commentators, including some who normally favor the Axis, told readers that the importance of the development could not be overestimated.

"Since 3 a. m. Saturday Italy has begun to reap the fruits of her alliance with Germany," proclaimed the pro-democratic "Yeni
Sabah." "The myth of discord between Russia and her Allies has disappeared."

Another leading daily headlined its commentary: "We are face to face with events which will determine the destiny of the war."

The popular anti-Axis paper
"Tan" said the Sicilian campaign was "the first step toward the invasion of Europe" and added that "the disappearance of Italy from the war would put both the Balkans and France in danger."

The normally pro-Axis "Tasviri
Efkar" declared: "We are living in one of the most important stages of this war—the turning point in history is about to be passed."

The semi-official "Aksham" said: "It is openly declared that the French Army is not participating in Sicily. The French Army is being held in reserve for bigger affairs—for a veritable second front which will be opened in France. That is why General
(Henri Honore) Giraud is in America.

FIERCE AXIS REPRISALS REPORTED FROM GREECE

CAIRO, Egypt, July 12 — (AP)
The Hellenic news agency reported today new ferocity in Axis reprisals against the population of occupied Greece—the bombing of villages in the Filiates district and northeast of Arta.

In the Filiates district Italian troops followed up the aerial bombing, the Greek agency said, killing a number of inhabitants and arresting 20 hostages before setting a village on fire.

It was believed that invasion fear had caused these serious outbreaks among the Italian occupation troops, accounting for at least some of the atrocities.

Nazi planes bombed and machine-gunned a mountain village for 90 minutes on June 23 in reprisal for guerrilla activities, it was said.

On the night of June 24-25, the agency added, the Italians were reported to have burned a village and 500 tons of standing wheat in northern Thessaly. This was in reprisal for the cutting of all telephone communications in the district. Guerrillas attacked again to avenge the attack on the village, according to later reports.

U.S. FLEET CATCHES ENEMY SQUADRON

IN KULA GULF AREA

Cruiser, Three Destroyers Sent to Bottom in Night Engagement.

JUL 13 1943

MUNDA BLASTED

McDANIEL

Planes Bomb Jap Base, American Warships Join in Bombardment.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Tuesday, July 13—(AP) Four Japanese warships—a cruiser and three destroyers—were sunk last night and early today in the second battle of the Kula gulf by United States naval units.

The battle may be still in progress, first preliminary reports announced today by Gen. Douglas MacArthur indicated.

Enemy Losses Mount

The latest enemy losses raised to at least 13 the number of cruisers and destroyers Japan has expended in frantic attempts to carry aid to its beleaguered garrison at the Munda air base on New Georgia island 12 miles below the gulf's coastline.

Two other destroyers were reported as probably sunk in the new flaming night engagement, according to advices which made no mention of any United States losses.
Enemy warships sunk might well total 17 for the two battles inasmuch as the reports after the battle of July 5-6 placed Japanese losses as at least nine and possibly 11 ships.

Advices received by General Mac-Arthur from South Pacific headquarters of Admiral William F. Halsey stated that the new force of enemy cruisers and destroyers was first attacked northwest and the northeast of Kolombangara island in the Kula gulf Monday night and early today.

The gulf is a narrow body of water 15 miles long and about eight miles across at its widest point.

More Attacks on Munda

At sea, on land and in the air, powerful blows were struck by the American invasion forces bidding for Munda, key air base in the central Solomons.

At sea, in addition to the latest achievements in the Kula gulf,
American warships bombarded
Munda itself.

On land, a garrison of Japanese, believed to have been in considerable force, was trapped and annihilated 10 miles northeast of Munda.

Zeros Beaten Off

In the air, American planes pounded Munda and its supply points in the northern Solomons and fought off the latest challenge of Zeros to our air supremacy over New Georgia.

The communique gave this terse account of the latest naval battle:

"During the night of July 12th-13th our naval surface forces engaged an enemy task force of cruisers and destroyers.

"Early fragmentary dispatches indicate only that one enemy light cruiser and three destroyers were sunk and two destroyers probably sunk."

No mention was made as to whether the United States units sustained any loss.

Jap Garrison Trapped

On the north New Georgia coast, which borders on the Kula gulf, a Japanese garrison trapped on the Dragon peninsula between Enogai inlet and Bairoko has been destroyed, a communique from Gen.
Douglas MacArthur reported.

Over the Japanese air base of Munda, on New Georgia, five out of 20 Zeros were shot down in an air battle.

United States warships made a night bombardment upon the Munda air base. They were followed in daylight by torpedo and dive bombers, escorted by fighters. The new raiders heavily bombed anti-aircraft positions and bivouac areas.

Supply Depot Raided

bangara, Munda's supply depot of Vila was raided by medium bombers. Their high explosives and incendiaries started several fires.

Above the northern Solomons at Rabaul, New Britain, air and shipping fortresses of the enemy, our bombers delivered the second heavy attack in as many days.

On northern New Guinea, at the other end of a 700-mile battle, patrol skirmishes with the Japanese have been intensified in the jungles near Mubo, which is 12 miles below Salamaua, air base objective of the Allies.

Over Rendova island, which Americans seized June 30, within artillery shelling distance of Munda, three Japanese fighters and a bomber were destroyed in another air battle. Six of our planes were lost but three pilots were saved.

The second naval engagement in the Kula gulf occurred as did the first July 5-6 in a narrow body of water between New Georgia and Kolombangara islands. The first battle took place as the Japanese tried to move aid by sea to Bairo-ko for overland transportation to Munda, 12 miles below.

In that battle at least nine Japanese cruisers and destroyers were sunk against the loss for the United States of the 9,700 ton cruiser Helena.

Sunday's communique had told of the sighting of Japanese cruisers and destroyers steaming near Ko-lombangara, presumably to make a second attempt to reach Bairoko.

But Bairoko already has been cut off as a supply source for Munda by a roadblock thrown by American invasion forces on New Georgia across the jungle trail connecting those two points and Munda now is in a virtual state of siege.

Rabaul Hit Again

Rabaul, which was pounded by thirty-five tons of bombs in a raid
Sunday, took twenty-five tons more Monday as our raiders pressed the job of keeping on the ground the swarms of enemy planes there which might be used against our Solomons invasion forces.

For nearly three hours, big fourengined American bombers were over the sector, attacking Rabaul itself and the airdromes of Lakunai and Rapopo.

Two large fires were started on the Rapopo airdrome. Smaller ones on the Lakunai airdrome were believed to be burning planes.

Fires in the town could be seen for sixty miles. One of our bombers was reported missing after the raid in which the Japanese opposition consisted of anti-aircraft fire and searchlight sweeps.

Kahili Attacked

The Kahili airdrome on the southern tip of Bougainville island, biggest potential source of air support for Japan's beleaguered
Munda garrison, was pounded anew by big four-engined bombers.

In the fighting on New Guinea, the increased activity in the Mubo sector was noted at Bitoi and Bui-gap creek. Enemy planes made "ineffective attacks" on Australian and American jungle positions in that area.

On Dutch New Guinea, the Japanese-held village of Keaukwa near Timika was bombed by two-engined Allied planes which were on reconnaissance.

GROUND POSITION UNCHANGED

Three Other Enemy Strongholds in Southwest Pacific Also Heavily Raided.

JUL 13 1943

Allied Headquarters in the Southwest Pacific, July 12 (A. P.).—American bombers pounded four widely separated Japanese bases in the Southwest Pacific yesterday, striking most heavily at Munda, the enemy's key defense point in the central Solomons. More than 176 tons of bombs were loosed on the Japanese strongholds and at least nine Zeros which attempted to interfere were shot down. One Liberator and two Allied fighters were lost.

Torpedo and dive bombers smashed at the anti-aircraft positions and bivouac areas near Munda with fifty-two tons of heavy bombs. Stormy weather hampered the Avengers and Dauntless bombers as they roared in over Munda in another of the series of raids intended to soften the sector for ground forces already gathering in the jungle to storm it. The communique from Gen. MacArthur's headquarters said that the results of the attack were unobserved, but the participating pilots were certain their bombs had found their intended marks.

Ground Position Unchanged.

A headquarters spokesman said the ground situation at Munda was unchanged. Latest official reports had said that the American forces there were closing in on the outer perimeter of defense, and that the nearest troops were only three miles from Munda.

Roar in Over Treetops.

Liberator bombers over Bougainville Island dropped forty tons of bombs on Kahili, the enemy's largest air base in the Solomons, where several large fires were started. Three Japanese night fighters attempted unsuccessfully to intercept.

Liberators and Flying Fortresses teamed up for a night assault against Vunakanau airdrome at Raboul. Their thirty-five tons of bombs started five large fires, two of which were visible sixty miles away. Many smaller fires, followed by a number of heavy explosions, also were observed.

In the Salamaua area, Mitchell bombers, escorted by Lightnings, dropped down almost to tree-top levels to deliver a devastating attack on villages along the trail from Mubo to Salamaua. Forty-nine tons of bombs were dropped and the Malolo village area was heavily strafed. Our Lightnings shot down five enemy fighters that attempted interception, but two of our own fighters are missing from this enterprise.

Five Fighters Downed.

In the Salamaua area Mitchell bombers, escorted by P-38's, dropped down almost to tree-top levels to deliver a devastating attack on villages along the trail from Mubo to Salamaua. Forty-nine tons of bombs were dropped and the Malolo village area was heavily strafed. American Lightnings shot down five enemy fighters which attempted interception, but two of our fighters were missing.

A Liberator bomber was lost in a daylight raid on the airdrome at Bobo, Dutch New Guinea, but others in the formation started extensive fires in the building area and shot down 4 of 10 Zeros which rose to intercept them. One other Zero was listed as a 'probable' and another was damaged.

Allied surface units—probably PT boats—intercepted and sank four loaded supply barges off Cape Gerhards, east of Lae on Huon Gulf.

There was no further report of enemy naval forces on which bombers scored two direct hits with 500-pound bombs near the mouth of Kula Gulf Saturday. They were believed to be heading for the Faisi area under cover of a storm.

CRUISER HELENA SET FIRING MARK AT END

Capt. Cecil Tells of Losing His Second Ship in South Seas

ALLIED SOUTH PACIFIC HEADQUARTERS, July 12 (AP)—Capt. Charles P. Cecil of Flat Rock, N. C., skipper of the light cruiser Helena, said today his ship was "keyed up" for her final battle in Kula Gulf early on the morning of July 6 and broke her own remarkable record for continuous rapid fire in helping to sink five enemy warships, two believed to have been cruisers.

"We were working on another," Captain Cecil said, when torpedoes sent the Helena to the bottom. The 9,700-ton cruiser was the only American vessel lost in the Kula Gulf engagement. Official reports said at least nine Japanese warships were destroyed.

Watching through oil-filled eyes after staying with his ship "nearly too long," Captain Cecil saw her go down on an even keel "with a great crunching of metal and a lot of sparks." Captain Cecil had commanded the Helena since November. The destroyer Porter was shot out from under him in the battle of Santa Cruz last October and he said today: "The Japs seem to have my number."

By J. NORMAN LODGE.

Off Munda Point, July 10 (Delayed) (A. P.).—Four tiny destroyers of the United States Navy today tackled the vital Munda air base by pouring many thousands of shells into the enemy positions. They rocked Munda Point, then steamed away proudly through Blanche Channel.

They carried out their mission gallantly, running the risk of attack from Japanese planes, shore batteries, submarines and torpedo boats. I had a battle station on a torpedo control tower, just above the bridge of one.

The first flashes of the gunfire nearly blinded us, but before we had fired our allotted quota of shells we were used to both the flame and the terrific noise. Our shore batteries on Rendova Island, some five miles away, joined in the bombardment, adding their thunder to the din.

Not a Single Casualty.

The Japanese land batteries were ineffectual, firing only twice. Either they were silenced by our hits or their crews took hasty cover.

The gunners on our destroyers worked like Trojans to get their shells out. Our bow was lighted by a flare dropped from above, and instantly our anti-aircraft guns sent burst after burst into the sky. They threw the Washing-Machine Charlies (Japanese patrol planes) into a hasty retreat.

And just then our commander gave the order to withdraw, our mission completed. Our four little ships did a 180 degree turn and leaped forward like stung kangaroos. Not a man was injured during the bombardment. Not one of our ships was hit. But the Japanese had plenty of high explosive fragments to comb out of their close-cropped hair.

Our destroyers were all veterans. One had fourteen tiny Japanese flags painted on her stack, for the planes she had shot down; another claimed the silencing of two short batteries and downing of four enemy bombers; the third had chalked up five bombers, three torpedo planes and one dive-bomber, and the fourth had credit for four surface craft, including a light cruiser, and four planes.

By the Associated Press.

A French Indo-China communique broadcast by the Berlin radio and recorded by the Associated Press said today that Haiphong and Hongay in French Indo-China were attacked Saturday by American Air Force bombers from China.

Twenty-one civilians were killed and 40 were wounded, said the communique, issued in Hanoi, capital of French Indo-China.

Mexican Ex-President To Pay U. S. First Visit

Mexico City, July 12 (AP)—Former President Lazaro Cardenas, now Defense Minister, will pay his first visit to the United States next week when he goes to Louisiana as a specially invited guest at the Third Army maneuvers.

The Defense Minister, announcing the forthcoming trip, said the Minister would leave the capital by plane July 16 and would stop at Monterrey. It gave no detailed itinerary and did not say how long he would be gone.

General Cardenas will be accompanied by Lieut. Col. Luis Rivas Lopez, head of the Mexican staff college for instructing officers in the higher commands, and by Lieut. Col. Jose de Jesus Clark, chief of the signal corps of the Mexican army.

U.S. To Give $2,500,000 To Mexican Health Plan

Mexico City, July 12 (AP)—Details of a public health campaign in Mexico, to be jointly financed and directed by experts of the United States and Mexican governments, were announced today by the Foreign Ministry.

The Ministry made public a letter from United States Ambassador George Messersmith in which he laid down the outlines of the cooperation.

Messersmith said the United States would give $2,500,000 to add to "the amounts the Mexican Government budgets and pays as an equitable share" to finance a program "for the betterment of sanitary conditions and the hygiene of Mexico."

CANADA JOINS FOR PEGGING MONEY

JUL 13 1943

Ottawa, July 12 (A. P.).—A new post-war currency plan designed to facilitate international trade was offered to the world today by Canadian monetary experts.

The plan submitted to the House of Commons by J. L. Ilsley, Canadian Finance Minister, calls for creation of an international exchange fund with initial capital of $8,000,000,000 and a potential capital of $12,000,000,000.

The Canadian suggestion follows similar plans advanced by American and British sources.

The American plan which appeared April 6 and had the backing of the Treasury, and the British plan, whose author was J. Maynard Keynes, noted economist, and was generally regarded as representing the views of the British exchequer, show important differences from as well as many similarities to the new Canadian proposals.

The Dominion experts envisage creation of a new international currency, so far designated only as "the unit" and equivalent in value to 137 1-7 grains of gold (around $1, American money).

The most important difference between the Canadian proposals and those offered by British and American experts, is in the matter of control.

The Canadian plan contemplates nearly all the important post-war decisions on monetary policy as being made by a majority vote of the members of the "clearing union," while the American plan puts most crucial decisions to a four-fifths vote, giving the big creditor countries, such as the United States and Great Britain, a virtual veto power.

War Contracts Near 9 Billion In Canada

Ottawa, July 12 (AP)—Contracts and commitments of the munitions department on Canadian, United Kingdom and other accounts approached $9,000,000,000 at the end of June, the department announced tonight.

Preliminary figures placed the grand total for the period July 14, 1939, to June 30, 1943, at $8,914,359,567, a figure which would be increased by "hundreds of millions of dollars" by contracts now being made, the department said.

port of the Exchequer, sets aside one of the important provisions of the American scheme—a virtual veto power of the creditor nations like the United States and Great Britain over any internationalized post-war monetary control body.

Proposes Credit Agency

But it proposes an international credit-granting agency which is designed to help some of the debtor nations — including, apparently, some of the present Axis enemies —over the after-war hump where they will need foreign currencies to buy goods abroad.

The Canadian experts called their proposed new monetary scheme a "clearing union."

It is designed, as were the British and American plans, as an international pool of foreign means of payment for the participating countries, a method of providing British and Peruvians, for instance, with dollars to pay for American machinery exports, and of making pounds or pesos available for Americans who want to buy British or Peruvian products.

The plan, which was called "provisional and tentative in character" by J. L. Ilsley, Canadian finance minister, as he presented it to the House of Commons at Ottawa, is regarded by the anonymous Canadian experts who collaborated on it as a compromise between the American and British plans.

Would Have Funds to Lend

It calls for an international lending agency with a capital of $8,000,000,000 originally and a possible $12,000,000,000 eventually, which will be designed not merely to take care of immediate post-war currency problems but to provide permanently better money machinery to facilitate trade between nations.

The clearing union, which proposes to create a new currency which so far is called merely "the unit," and will be equal in value to 137 1-7 grains of gold—about $10 U. S. currency—will be primarily an international foreign exchange control fund like those now operated independently by the United States, Great Britain, Canada, and the Axis countries.

Differs on Capital

Chief difference in the Canadian proposal and the earlier plans of Britain and the United States are the capital up to $12,000,000,000 compared with $5,000,000,000 in American scheme and as much as

Canada Offers New Plan On Post-War Money, Trade

Would Give Small Debtor Nations Greater Voting Power.

NEW YORK, July 12 — (AP) Canada joined the United States and Great Britain today as it put forth its own version of a post-war currency mechanism designed to make foreign trade easier in the years following the war.

This third set of proposals, coming on top of a U. S. Treasury version and one sponsored by J. M. Keynes, British economist, which was believed to have the sup-$25,000,000,000 in the British suggestion, and the stronger voting power of small debtor nations.

The two provisions are intertwined, since the voting power of the participating nations and their contribution to the capital of the union are to be based, under the Canadian plan, on an agreed "quota."

The Canadians fail to define exactly how these quotas are to be arrived at, except that they are to be based on the amount of foreign trade done by each of the member nations and their general economic position. Their plan merely provides that the quotas shall be agreed upon in advance by the participating countries.

Under the American plan most important decisions are to be made by a four-fifths vote, while the Canadians contemplate majority votes on most questions.

The American proposal thus gives big creditor nations, like ourselves and the British, a virtual veto power over actions which would affect post-war credit-granting schemes.

The Canadian proposal is so indefinite that the question of veto power can not be determined until the "quota" formula is more closely defined.

4 JAP SHIPS ARE ATTACKED

One Is Sunk, One Left Sinking, Others Damaged In Aleutians, Navy Says

JUL 13 1943

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, July 12—In an attack on four Japanese cargo ships stealing through the North Pacific fog toward the isolated enemy garrison at Kiska, United States bombers have sunk one of the vessels, left a second in a sinking condition and damaged the other two, the navy revealed today.

The ships presumably were bearing supplies to Kiska, and this indicated that the Japanese were determined to fight hard to retain that Aleutians island base.

Heretofore the Japanese have been depending upon submarines to run the gantlet of American planes and naval units to deliver food and other materials to the Kiska garrison.

Carry Heavier Equipment

Submarines, however, could not carry heavier equipment and it seemed likely that the cargo vessels were used in an attempt to move such equipment as anti-aircraft and artillery pieces to replace those knocked out by American planes and bombarding warships.

That bombardment also is continuing, the navy reported. A single warship stood offshore hurling shells onto Gertrude cove at Little Kiska without opposition Sunday.

The navy gave no indication of the size of the cargo vessels nor was any report made of enemy warship protection for the supply craft. This indicated that the Japanese may be seeking to take advantage of the fogs of the Aleutians in an endeavor to sneak into Kiska without detection.

Attacked Saturday

Heavy Liberator bombers accompanied by medium Mitchells and Catalinas located and attacked the cargo fleet on Saturday, 280 miles southwest of Holtz bay on Attu, on a direct sea line from Japan to Kiska.

The attack brought to seventeen the number of Japanese ships of all types sunk by American forces in the Aleutians. In addition, seven enemy ships probably have been sunk and thirty-six damaged there.

First Since March

The four cargo vessels were the first Japanese craft reported in the Aleutians area since March 26 when light United States forces engaged a fleet of enemy cruisers and destroyers near the tip of the Aleutians chain and drove them back toward Japan.

The navy also reported in its communique today the capture of four Japanese soldiers who had been hiding out on the rocky crags of Attu Island since the main enemy force there was eliminated after twenty days of battling.

MEDALS TO NEW YORKERS

Three Soldiers Decorated for Heroism on Transport

WASHINGTON, July 12 (AP)—Four enlisted men of the Army, including three New Yorkers, have received the Soldier's Medal for heroism aboard a United States Army transport, the War Department announced today. The transport was in a collision, but is now repaired and in service.

The New York recipients were Corp. Warren B. Humphrey, East Rochester; Tech. Fifth Grade Ralph D. M. Fawdry, Watertown, and Pfc. Charles P. Carpenter, 57-16 Fourth Avenue, Brooklyn.

Private Carpenter's citation reads, in part, as follows:

"By his actions in promptly arousing the men of the Medical Detachment, in rendering valuable aid and assistance in the evacuation and treatment of the injured and recovering badly needed supplies and equipment, in voluntarily and repeatedly entering the damaged and dangerous areas of the ship although believing the vessel to be in imminent danger of sinking, Private Carpenter contributed greatly to the successful treatment rendered to the injured by the medical officers. This heroic service was above and beyond the call of duty and merits high commendation."

New Fighter Bomber Is Dressed-Up Mustang

Washington, July 12 (AP)—The assault on Sicily has revealed a spectacular new American fighter-bomber and Axis forces who have felt its sting can start worrying about a high-flying stablemate still to be thrown into battle.

The new bomber, the North American A-36, made its battle debut by low-level attacks on troops, motor transport, railway yards and barracks.

Dispatches agreed on its effectiveness. Swarms of fighter-bombers, including the North American planes, were reported by Allied air headquarters to have destroyed or damaged some 400 Axis vehicles laden with troops and supplies. A single formation of the new fighter-bombers knocked out seven Sicilian locomotives.

In Brand-New Dress

In reality the A-36 is North America's Mustang P-51 in a brand-new dress.

To increase its versatility the Mustang was equipped with bomb racks and driving brakes. Thus, as the A-36, it became a triple-threat performer—fighter, level bomber or dive bomber. Primarily, however, the new plane is intended to cooperate with troops and as such is designated with an "A" for attack, instead of a "P" for pursuit.

The fighter-bomber is powered by an Allison liquid-cooled engine, the same as used by the Mustang fighter.

Halifax, Wife To Tour Pacific Northwest

Washington, July 12 (AP)—Viscount Halifax, British Ambassador, and Lady Halifax will leave tomorrow for a three-week tour of the Pacific Northwest, the British Embassy announced tonight.

They will visit army camps, war installations, shipyards and agricultural centers. At Vancouver, Wash., Lady Halifax will be the navy's sponsor at the launching of a new auxiliary aircraft carrier.

The tour will take them through Idaho, Oregon, Washington and British Columbia.

U. S. Army Band Now Playing In North Africa

Washington, July 12 (AP)—The United States Army band is now in North Africa.

The War Department, announcing this today, said the organization consisting of eighty-six musicians led by Capt. Thomas F. Darcy, Jr., had given concerts in North Africa at hospitals, in parks, over the radio, and had played at various army and Allied forces ceremonies.

12 MORE NAVY CASUALTIES

New Yorker Is Reported Among Missing in New List

WASHINGTON, July 12 (AP)—The Navy announced today twelve casualties, including five dead and seven missing. In addition, one name is listed whose status has changed from wounded to dead and five whose status has changed from missing to dead.

This brings to 27,091 the total of Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard casualties reported to next of kin since Dec. 7, 1941. The grand total includes 8,246 dead, 4,735 wounded, 10,525 missing and 3,585 prisoners.

The casualties announced today included Richard H. Anderson of 10 West 133d Street, New York, missing.

U. S. War Costs Of 265 Million A Day Expected

Treasury Thinks Spending Will Reach That Figure for Current Fiscal Year

WASHINGTON, July 12 (AP).—Uncle Sam's war expenditures, which for the last three years have averaged about $90,000,000 daily, are expected by the Treasury Department to reach the sum of $265,000,000 for every day during the fiscal year which started on July 1.

This was disclosed tonight by Clarence Cannon, Democrat, of Missouri, Chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, on the basis of a report from Daniel W. Bell, Under Secretary of the Treasury.

Actual expenditures on the war program during the three years from July 1, 1940, to July 1, 1943, Mr. Bell disclosed, were $104,421,000,000.

From a modest beginning of $6,301,000,000 spent during the fiscal year 1941, expenditures on the war-activities program mounted to $26,011,000,000 for 1942 and $72,109,000,000 for 1943.

During those three years, appropriations aggregated $212,000,000,000 for war purposes, the actual spending not keeping abreast of appropriations.

The Treasury Department estimated that actual spending during the current fiscal year will amount to $97,000,000,000 for war purposes, or about $10,000,000,000 less than actual appropriations.

Here's how the department figured the war-program money would be spent this year:

War Department, $62,000,000,000; Navy, $22,000,000,000; Agriculture Department, $1,367,000,000; Federal Security Agency, $157,000,000; Federal Works Agency, $191,000,000; National Housing Agency, $177,000,000; Treasury Department, $50,000,000; Maritime Commission, $1,300,000; War Shipping Administration, $2,758,000,000; Supplemental Items, $7,000,000,000.

For all the agencies except the Army, the Navy, the Federal Security Agency and the War Shipping Administration, this year's outlay is expected to be lower than last year's.

Non-war expenditures for the current year, the department estimated, would total $7,124,000,000.

'Palace Guard' Ouster Is Urged By Vandenberg

Calling for War Cabinet, He Says Roosevelt's Circle of Advisers Has to Go

WASHINGTON, July 12 (AP).—With the assertion that "the palace guard has got to be demobilized soon," Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, Republican, of Michigan, called today for establishment of a war cabinet to help President Roosevelt direct activities on the home front.

Forecasting further reorganizations in the administrative branch of government after Congress returns to work this fall, Senator Vandenberg told an interviewer that he believes there is a "relentless trend" under way in the country toward the formation of what he said "we loosely call a War Cabinet."

"We need something of that kind instead of the existing kitchen cabinet in which there is very little confidence," he declared, adding: "The palace guard has got to be demobilized soon."

By "palace guard" Senator Vandenberg said he meant the circle of advisers to Mr. Roosevelt, including Harry L. Hopkins, who the Republican Senator said appeared often to be highly influential in shaping policy decisions which were not always concurred in by the heads of departments and bureaus affected.

Urges "Fourth Term" Disavowal

Along with establishment of a war cabinet, Senator Vandenberg said he wished President Roosevelt would "separate himself from the fourth term," declaring that such action would go a long way toward smoothing out Mr. Roosevelt's difficulties with Congress.

Conceding that politics is likely to play an increasingly greater part in domestic decisions as the time for the 1944 campaign nears, Senator Vandenberg said he thought it "unfortunate" that partisan considerations could not be minimized during a war.

"The unfortunate part of it all is that politics will play an increasing part in what goes on," he said. "On the one hand will be the politics of the President and his fellow fourth-termers and on the other hand the bi-partisan politics of those who feel otherwise on the question.

Would "Simplify Perspective"

"If the President were to separate himself from the fourth term, it woud greatly simplify the entire governmental perspective, including the President's own."

Predicting that price controls and rationing would remain "a constant source of national irritation until they are simplified and justified," Senator Vandenberg said Congress can be expected to come back to Washington in September demanding some changes in the present system.

He forecast a renewed scrutiny of government bureaus, coupled with "a greater drive than ever for economy, both inside and outside war expenditures."

ROOSEVELT SIGNS BILL TO FINANCE 18 WAR AGENCIES

JUL 13 1943

Three Billion Dollar Measure Is One of Several Appropriation Acts.

WASHINGTON, July 12—(AP) A $2,911,697,224 appropriations measure to finance the work of 18 government war agencies, among them the Office of Price Administration and the Office of War Information, was signed into law today by President Roosevelt.

The President also signed bills appropriating $1,137,167,010 for the Labor department and the Federal Security agency for the new fiscal year, and $253,256,179 for supplemental expenses of a group of miscellaneous Federal agencies.

A measure providing $104,608,921 for the Interior department was the last of the huge 1944 fiscal year appropriations bills signed by the President. It embraces large sums for reclamation and irrigation projects in the west.

The OPA and OWI appropriation requests were sharply trimmed by Congress.

22 Millions Trimmed

OPA got $155,000,000 — approximately $22,000,000 less than the Budget bureau's estimate of its needs—as a result of a compromise in which the House and Senate split their differences. That agency received $120,000,000 for the last fiscal year.

OWI asked for a total of $447,342,000 for both its overseas and domestic branches, but received $33,222,504. Of that amount, $2,750,000 was earmarked for domestic operations in the contrast to the $8,865,906 it sought for home front functions.

Other activities for which the big war-agency bill carried funds included the Board of Economic Warfare, Office of Censorship, Office of Strategic Services, Office of Civilian Defense and the National War Labor board.

Deficiency Funds Voted

The President also signed the deficiency appropriation bill carrying $89,000,000 in reappropriations of Presidential emergency funds and $143,439,591 to meet deficiencies in previous appropriations of miscellaneous government agencies.

The legislation bore a rider providing for the dismissal of three Federal workers unless they have been nominated by the President and approved by the Senate before next Nov. 15. They are Goodwin Watson and William E. Dodd, Jr., Federal Communications commission employes, and Dr. Robert Morss Lovett, government secretary of the Virgin islands. The political philosophies of the trio had been questioned by Chairman Dies (D-Tex) of the House Committee on UnAmerican Activities.

The legislation also carried overtime pay for approximately 400,000 government workers and regular pay for 10,000 District of Columbia employes whose salaries had been held up by the congressional controversy.

Hull Says Sicily Is Step To Occupation of Europe

Declares Successful Start of Invasion Is No Surprise

WASHINGTON, July 12 (AP).—Cordell Hull, Secretary of State, said today that the Allied invasion of Sicily was the second great historic step toward invasion and occupation of Europe.

He told a press conference it was not surprising, but nevertheless a matter of great gratification, that the military operations on Sicily thus far had progressed favorably.

Asked if the State Department, through the office of foreign relief and rehabilitation operations, had formulated plans for feeding the inhabitants of Sicily, Mr. Hull replied that Herbert Lehman, its director, was co-operating with Army authorities, but that he was not in a position to discuss the details.

In reply to other questions, Mr. Hull said the interim commission created by the United Nations food conference at Hot Springs, Va., last month would hold its first meeting in the Archives Building here on July 15.

The interim commission's task is to draw up plans for a permanent international organization to deal with food and agricultural problems.

As for the forthcoming United Nations conference on relief problems, Mr. Hull said no date yet had been fixed.

ATLANTIC SAFER, SURVEY REVEALS

182 Allied Seamen Dead, 183 Missing in Past Three Months.

JUL 13 1943

NEW YORK, July 12—(AP) The western Atlantic ocean, on the basis of announced casualty figures for the past three months, has become safer for United Nations merchant seamen.

An Associated Press compilation made today showed 182 dead and 183 missing as the result of sinkings in the area since April 12. In the preceding three month period the submarine toll was reported to include at least 1,162 dead, 462 missing and 10 prisoners.

Announced merchant marine casualties in the western Atlantic since Pearl Harbor, including passengers, totalled 5,282 dead and 3,095 missing. Many of the missing have been presumed to be lost.

No lives were lost as the result of the sinking of a British merchant ship announced last week, raising the Associated Press tabulation of western Atlantic losses since December 7, 1941 to 671 cargo vessels.

Great Britain's post-Pearl Harbor losses in these waters now total 130 ships, eleven of which have been lost since the beginning of the year. The United States merchant fleet has sustained 269 losses in the western Atlantic since Pearl Harbor.

Giraud In New York; Army Men Greet Him

New York, July 12 (AP)—The War Department disclosed that Gen. Henri Honore Giraud, commander in chief of French forces in North Africa, arrived tonight at LaGuardia field aboard an army transport plane.

He was greeted by a number of high ranking army officials and was escorted from the field by a large detail of uniformed police and detectives.

Maryland Man Dies In Jap Prison Camp

Westminster, Md., July 12 (AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Harvey T. Beard, of near Westminster, have received word through the Red Cross of the death of their son, Lawrence Richard Beard, in a Japanese prison camp in the Philippine Islands.

Beard, who was inducted into the army in February, 1941, was reported missing on Corregidor in May of the following year. His parents were notified in January of this year that he was a prisoner of war.

VISITS PARATROOP SCHOOL

Giraud Also Inspects Infantry at Fort Benning

FORT BENNING, Ga., July 12 (AP)—Gen. Henri-Honoré Giraud, Commander in Chief of French forces in North Africa, inspected the Army Infantry School and the paratroop training center here today.

Accompanied by Brig. Gen. Lewis J. Fortier of the War Department, he was escorted through the infantry school by Maj. Gen. Leven C. Allen, commandant, and through the parachute school by Col. Ridgely Gaither, paratroop commandant.

At one point, after watching with lively interest a firing problem under battle conditions, General Giraud seized a microphone and spoke rapidly in French to members of an officer candidate class. He urged the group to have the strength and will to do as well in the field as the troops had done in their demonstration and to have the heart to go forward. An interpreter translated.

Concluding his inspection, General Giraud said he was impressed by the magnificent training being given American soldiers, adding he was struck by the fresh enthusiasm of the United States troops, compared to the war-weariness of Germans.

France, he said, would continue to fight by the side of the Allies after Germany was crushed "until the entire victory is won."

Soldier Killed, 6 Hurt in Race Clash at Camp

Negro Troops Are Victims After Firing Guns They Seized at Supply Post

SHENANGO, Pa., July 12 (AP).—One negro soldier, Private Norman Taylor, twenty years old of Rosedale, Kan., was killed and six other wounded in a clath between white and negro soldiers at Camp Shenango Sunday evening, the Army press relations office announced today.

The casualties occurred after an undetermined number of Negro soldiers forcibly entered a supply building and armed themselves with rifles and ammunition and began firing into an area occupied by white soldiers, it was announced.

A statement from the post said: "Friction between white and colored troops which developed at Shenango personnel replacement depot Sunday evening resulted in the death of one negro soldier and the wounding of six others. All the men are being treated at the station hospital.

"A board of inquiry has been appointed by Colonel Zim E. Lawhon, post commander, and is making an investigation.

"A dispute arose between white and colored soldiers at a post exchange about 9:30 p. m. Sunday. The troops were addressed by the post commander, who pointed out the serious consequence that might arise in such a situation.

"The soldiers involved in the controversy proceeded to their respective areas. As a precautionary measure, military police were alerted to control traffic and prevent further outbreaks.

"Later, an undetermined number of colored soldiers forcibly entered a supply building in their batallion area and armed themselves with rifles and ammunition and began firing into an area occupied by white soldiers.

"A colored soldier was wounded and died at 10:47 p. m. in the station hospital. Six other colored soldiers were admitted to the post hospital for treatment of gunshot wounds. Another soldier was treated for cuts and lacerations."

Dr. Hauck Flies to England

ORONO, Me., July 12 (AP).—Dr. Arthur A. Hauck, president of the University of Maine, has flown to England to view the United Kingdom in war time as a guest of the British Ministry of Information, it was announced today. Dr. Hauck, a student of international relations, has been instrumental in conducting conferences on Canadian-American relations and institutes of world affairs here.

Soviet Loud Speakers Tell Nazis of Invasion

The Russians have set up loud speakers along the eastern front to inform opposing German troops of the Allied invasion of Sicily, the British Broadcasting Corporation said Monday in a broadcast reported by American government monitors, according to The Associated Press.

The broadcast, directed to Germany in the German language, declared also that Soviet planes were dropping leaflets over the Nazi lines announcing the invasion, the Office of War Information said.

Nazis Now Admit Sinking Robin Moor, CBS Reports

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 12.—The Berlin radio acknowledged today that the American merchant ship Robin Moore, which was torpedoed and sunk in the South Atlantic on June 9, 1941, was sent to the bottom by a German submarine, the Columbia Broadcasting System reported.

The Germans previously had disclaimed all responsibility for the sinking and had refused to consider a claim for damages lodged by the United States Government. The ship was the first American vessel to be sunk in this war.

The torpedoing of the Robin Moor, a ship of about 5,000 tons, while bound for British and Portuguese ports in Africa with a general cargo, caused the United States Government to lodge a strong diplomatic protest with Berlin and was a factor in the rapid deterioration of relations between the two governments.

The owners of the vessel stated emphatically that she was not carrying munitions or other war materials.

What's Behind The War News

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

As the third and crucial day of the first phase of the Anglo-American invasion of Sicily drew to a close it was obvious that the brilliantly executed Allied attack had done far more than secure its essential beach heads on a 100-mile stretch.

It had overrun the whole coastal communication system, road and rail, from Licata in the southwest to captured Syracuse in the east, severing the southeastern foreland of the big Italian island. It also was aiming four distinct threats at the plains of Catania to the north where the main mobile reserve of the Nazi-Fascist defense forces presumably is concentrated.

Allied official announcements telling of capture of a half score cities or towns in the first rush dealt only with beach-head positions. They left little doubt, however, that the fight is raging now well inshore with good prospects that the whole southeastern bulge of the island can soon be cut off and cleared.

An early junction between American forces on the left flank of the widely-based drive and the Canadian and British on the right through capture of Palazzolo junction, Ragusa and Vittoria would complete the line from Syracuse to the [illegible] hill bar[illegible] southea[illegible] sition to counter a[illegible] front.

The forelan[illegible] Passero, is some[illegible] 30 deep. It appea[illegible] objective of the inv[illegible] cleared to the Syra[illegible]use-Gela li[illegible] would afford elbow room for establishing Allied advance air fields. The next vital step to that objective seems to be capture of Palazzolo, 20 miles west of Syracuse, and about the same distance northwest of Avola, just south of Syracuse, also in British hands.

There are road and rail connections between Palazzolo and Syracuse and a highway between Palazzolo and Avola. The first pitched battle beyond the beach heads seems shaping up about Palazzolo and Ragusa, just to the southwest, in a British-Canadian pincer movement.

American forces landed at Gela and Licata, however, probably are forging northward on the direct road and rail routes toward Caltanissetta, probable main enemy troop concentration point in the plains of Catania, less than 50 miles distant from American beach heads. That is the most direct Allied threat and American progress could cut the Caltanissetta-Palazzolo highway in rear of Palazzolo's defenders, forcing its evacuation. It is less than 20 miles from Gela to the intersection with the Caltanissetta-Palazzolo highway northwest of Caltagirone.

It seems clear that in mapping the attack General Eisenhower and his staff figured primarily on such wide based bridgeheads that there would be small danger of enemy flanking attacks impeding the work of getting the main armies ashore promptly. The southeastern foreland was picked for that reason. It lies between the Gulf of Noto to the east and the Gulf of Gela on the southwest.

Once it is firmly secured, quadruple routes for an advance into the plains of Cantania would be open. And military observers believe it is there, available for quick shuttling to any front on the island, north, south, east or west, that the bulk of the Axis troops in Sicily were posted.

North of Syracuse and close to the sea shore runs the rail route to the port of Catania from which may herald further landings there although British forces are reported already moving northward also along the railroad from Syracuse and along the Syracuse-Catania highway farther inshore. Lentini junction, halfway between Syracuse and Catania, appears the important next British objective on that front.

On the left or American flank, an inshore push is reported ten miles beyond Licata toward Canicatti, a rail and highway junction some 20 miles or less southwest of Caltanissetta. It is also a long step on the road to Palermo on the north coast. And from north Sicilian coastal fields Allied planes would be within shuttle-bombing distance of Naples and even Rome.

It appears obvious, however, that if the Allied initial attack is not quickly checked, the final and decisive battle for Sicily will develop in the plains of Cantania where General Eisenhower's planes are already blasting at enemy troops concentrations and truck movements to hamper their defensive deployment. Brought to action simultaneously on three or four fronts, which appears to be what is being attempted by the Allies, the enemy's plight could be serious and the battle of Sicily swiftly brought to an end.

OTHER GERMAN BROADCASTS PROMISED "SURPRISES" FOR THE ALLIES. THE ITALIANS SAID THE UNITED NATIONS HAD LOST "THE FIRST ROUND."

JUL 13 1943

THE AXIS COMMUNIQUES ASSERTED THAT SEVERAL ALLIED TRANSPORTS AND LANDING BARGES HAD BEEN SUNK BY GERMAN AND ITALIAN PLANES, THAT THREE CRUISERS AND 42 TRANSPORTS WERE DAMAGED, AND ONE 10,000-TON CRUISER WAS SUNK BY AN ITALIAN SUBMARINE. THEY ALSO SAID 38 ALLIED PLANES WERE DESTROYED SUNDAY.

FROM STOCKHOLM THROUGH SWITZERLAND CAME A REPORT THAT PART OF THE ITALIAN FLEET HAD SAILED FROM LA SPEZIA IN ITALY, PRESUMABLY TO FIGHT.

THE SWIFT CAPTURE OF 10 TOWNS, AND ESPECIALLY OF THE PORTS OF SYRACUSE AND LICATA, WAS SEEN BY SOME OBSERVERS AS THE JUMPING OF THE FIRST HURDLE, WITH THE ALLIES NOW ABLE TO BRING IN REINFORCEMENTS OF MEN AND SUPPLIES MUCH MORE QUICKLY. LICATA AND SYRACUSE ESPECIALLY GIVE THE ALLIES GOOD PORTS AND GOOD BASES.

THE DISRUPTION OF ITALIAN RAILROADS IN A FEARFUL PRE-INVASION AERIAL POUNDING ALSO WAS ANOTHER FACTOR AIDING THE ALLIES, FOR THE "AS UNABLE TO MOVE REINFORCEMENTS QUICKLY OVER THE BOMBED LINES.

IN ANOTHER BROADCAST RECORDED BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS, THE BERLIN RADIO CLAIMED THAT SOME OF THE ALLIED BRIDGEHEADS IN SICILY HAD BEEN WIPED OUT, AND SAID THE INVADING FORCES WERE ON THE DEFENSIVE NOW ON SEVERAL SECTORS. IT SAID:

"THE ENEMY ON THE BRIDGEHEAD ON THE SOUTHERN COAST WHICH HE HAD CLAIMED TO HAVE ESTABLISHED WAS LITERALLY DRIVEN TO THE SEA AND WIPED OUT. THE AREAS MENTIONED NOW ARE COMPLETELY CLEARED FROM THE ENEMY.

"INVESTIGATING THE SITUATION WITH A SOBER VIEW, ATTENTIVE OBSERVERS STATE THAT THE ANGLO-AMERICANS AFTER THREE DAYS OF BATTLE WERE ONLY ABLE TO HOLD A NARROW COASTAL STRIP ON THE SOUTHEASTERN SECTOR OF THE ISLAND."

THE NAZI BROADCAST SAID ALLIED PARACHUTE TROOPS "HAD TO EVACUATE ALL THEIR POSITIONS" AND THAT "THE ENEMY SUSTAINED HEAVY LOSSES... HIS DRIVE NOT ONLY HAS BEEN HALTED ON THE THIRD DAY BUT HAS ACTUALLY GROWN INTO A DESPERATE DEFENSE BY THE ALLIES."

LONDON, JULY 12-(AP)-GERMAN OCCUPATION AUTHORITIES IN POLAND HAVE FORCED SEVERAL HUNDRED THOUSAND ABLE-BODIED POLES TO REGISTER FOR SERVICE IN THE GERMAN ARMY AND POLISH CONTINGENTS ALREADY ARE BEING ABSORBED INTO THE NAZI ARMED FORCES, THE POLISH GOVERNMENT-IN-EXILE DECLARED TODAY.

QUOTING INFORMATION GIVEN BY POLES WHO HAD ESCAPED FROM GERMANY, THE EXILE GOVERNMENT SAID THE POLISH RECRUITS WERE BEING TRAINED NEAR FRANKFORT AM MAIN IN WESTERN GERMANY AND LATER WERE BEING SENT TO FRANCE FOR DUTY WITH SECOND LINE DEFENSE UNITS.

OTHER CONTINGENTS HAVE BEEN SENT TO THE FORMER UNOCCUPIED ZONE IN FRANCE AND SOME TO NORWAY, THESE SOURCES SAID. THE POLISH UNITS

JUL 13 1943

WERE SAID TO BE UNDER COMMAND OF POLISH-SPEAKING GERMAN OFFICERS.

THE POLISH MINISTRY OF DEFENSE DECLARED THAT CONSCRIPTION IN POLAND HAD BEEN UNDER WAY SINCE THE SPRING OF 1942, AND THAT IN THE DISTRICT OF POMERANIA ALONE APPROXIMATELY 100,000 MEN HAD BEEN INDUCTED.

JUL 13 1943

MOST OF THE CONSCRIPTS, THE MINISTRY SAID, COME FROM AREAS WHICH ADOLF HITLER HAS DECLARED "INCORPORATED INTO THE REICH," SUCH AS POMERANIA, SILESIA, POZNAN, LODZ AND THE REGION NORTHWEST OF WARSAW.

ALL MEN BORN BETWEEN 1900 AND 1925 WERE SAID TO HAVE BEEN ORDERED TO APPEAR AT INDUCTION STATINS FOR PHYSICAL EXAMINATIONS.

POLES WHO REFUSE TO JOIN UP ARE SENT TO CONCENTRATION CAMPS, WHERE FEW SURVIVE MORE THAN FOUR OR FIVE MONTHS, THE MINISTRY DECLARED. ALTHOUGH INDUCTED AS GERMANS, THE POLES TAKEN INTO THE ARMY DO NOT RECEIVE THE CIVIL RIGHTS ACCORDED SO-CALLED ARYAN GERMANS, IT WAS SAID.

SOME POLES SENT TO NORWAY WITH TROOP CONTINGENTS WERE REPORTED TO HAVE ESCAPED BY JUMPING FROM TRAINS WHILE TRAVELING THROUGH SWEDEN, WHERE THEY WERE INTERNED.

THE RUSSIAN PRESS OCCASIONALLY HAS MENTIONED THE CAPTURE OF POLES SERVING WITH THE GERMAN ARMY IN RUSSIA.

JUL 13 1943

IN A DISPATCH FROM ABOARD A BRITISH DESTROYER, IAN MUNRO, REUTERS SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT, DESCRIBED THE SCENE WHICH AT DAWN REVEALED "AN INCREDIBLE PANORAMA OF ALLIED POWER."

THE BATTLE FOR SYRACUSE BEGAN AT ONE O'CLOCK SATURDAY MORNING, HE SAID, AND AS THE MOON SANK BELOW THE HORIZON "WE CREPT STEALTHILY TOWARDS OUR ALLOTTED SECTOR--A SMALL BEACH SOME 20 MILES SOUTH OF THE PORT DIMLY DISCERNIBLE IN THE STARLIGHT."

"ALL AROUND US WERE THE DIM SILHOUETTES OF DESTROYERS AND BEHIND US WAITED A GIANT CONVOY READY TO DISEMBARK A HUGE NUMBER OF TROOPS AFTER THE INITIAL ASSAULT."

JUL 13 1943

TO THE STARBOARD, MUNRO CONTINUED, BRITISH BOMBERS COULD BE SEEN PLASTERING SYRACUSE AND COULD BE HEARD ROARING OVERHEAD AND DROPPING FLARES WHICH SWAYED GENTLY TO EARTH AMONG BURST OF RED FLAK.

"OUR IMMEDIATE JOB WAS TO EXTINGUISH ANY ENEMY SEARCHLIGHTS WHICH MIGHT REVEAL LANDING CRAFT," MUNRO WROTE. "THESE HAD ALREADY PASSED US AND WE HAD SLOWED DOWN ABOUT A MILE OFFSHORE WHEN SUDDENLY A SEARCH-LIGHT STABBED THE DARKNESS AND SWEPT SUSPICIOUSLY ALONG THE SURFACE OF THE SEA.

"OUR DESTROYER OPENED FIRE--THE FIRST SHOT IN THE BATTLE FOR SYRACUSE. THE SEARCHLIGHT WAS ABRUPTLY SHOT DOWN.

"ALL THOURH GHT NIGHT I STOOD ON THE BRIDGE WATCHING ASSAULT CRAFT GOING IN. DAWN BROKE WITH MOUNT ETNA DIMLY SILHOUETTED IN THE DISTANCE.

"THE ITALIANS APPEARED TO BE TAKEN COMPLETELY BY SURPRISE. BY 7:30 A.M. THE RESISTANCE WHICH APPEARED TO US AT SEA TO BE DISORGANIZED AND SPORADIC, HAD EVIDENTLY CEASED ENTIRELY."

DISPATCHES FROM ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA SAID THAT SYRACUSE WAS CONQUERED BY BRITISH FORCES AT 9 P.M. SATURDAY NIGHT.

london, tuesday, july 13-(ap)-following a british daylight attacks yesterday on northern france and off the dutch coast, the bern, switzerland, air raid alarm sounded early today, indicating that italy might be in for another pounding from the air.

in their first such attack since june 24, german raiders appeared over britain after dark last night and dropped incendiary bombs on an east coast town. although visits over britain by the german air force have been infrequent and feeble of late, their last daylight raid -- on july 9 -- resulted in heavy casualties when a bomb blasted a movie house.

in their unceasing pounding of axis western european defenses, british aircraft yesterday blasted transport and industrial targets in northern france and an enemy minesweeper off the dutch coast.

STOCKHOLM, JULY 12-(AP)-BRITISH AND AMERICAN PARACHUTE TROOPS ARE ENDANGERING AXIS DEFENSES IN SICILY BY OPERATING IN THEIR REAR, RESPONSIBLE ITALIAN LEADERS CONCEDED AS THEY BEGAN TO PREPARE THE ITALIAN PEOPLE FOR INVASION OF THE MAINLAND, ADVICES REACHING HERE FROM ITALY SSAID TODAY.

ALLIED PARACHUTISTS ARE PLAYING A VERY SPECIAL ROLE IN THE INVASION OF SICILY, FORMER PROPAGANDA MINISTER ALLESANDRO PAVOLINI WROTE IN THE ROME NREWSPAPERS "IL MESSAGERO", THE ROME CORRESPONDENT OF THE SWEDISH PAPER "DAGENS NYHETER" SAID.

"THERE IS SOME DANGER THEY MAY BE ABLE TO CUT COMMUNICATION LINES OF ITALIAN AND GERMAN DEFENSES FORCES AND PUT IMPORTANT CONTROL CENTRALS OUT OF ACTION," PAVOLINI WROTE.

PAVOLINI THUS GAVE THE LIE TO GERMAN REPORTS THAT ALLIED PARACHUTISTS HAD BEEN "LIQUIDATED" AND MADE IT PLAIN THEY HAD BECOME A MENACE TO AXIS DEFENSE PLANS.

ITALIANS WHO HAVE BECOME MORE EXPERIENCED AT READING BETWEEN THE LINES CANNOT FIND ANY OPTIMISM IN THE FASCIST PRESS. THE "DAGENS NYHETER" CORRESPONDENT SAID. THE PRESS SPEAKS OF THE ALLIES "CONCEN-TRATING ENORMOUS MASSES OF MEN AND MATERIEL" AND OF "CO-ORDINATING FLEET AIR AND GROUND FORCES IN A GREAT CONCENTRATED OFFENSIVE."

VIRGINIO GAYDA, WRITING IN "IL GIORNALE D'ITALIA," TOOK PAINS TO TELL THE ITALIANS THAT AFTER THE ALLIES HAVE COMPLETED THE "FIRST PERIOD" OF INVASION BY OBTAINING BRIDGEHEADS THE ITALIANS CAN EXPECT RAPID PENETRATION AND "WIDENING OF ACTION."

JUL 13 1943

"THE MOST IMPORTANT MOMENT IN THE HISTORY OF ITALY AND EUROPE HAS NOW ARRIVED," HE SAID. "AT THIS MOMENT THERE IS NO PLACE FOR ELOQUENCE AND AGONY BUT ON THE CONTRARY ONLY SERIOUSNESS AND FORCE, BECAUSE IN THESE DAYS THE FUTURE OF SEVERAL GENERATIONS OF ITALIANS WILL BE DECIDED."

THE IMPORTANCE OF ALL OF THIS IS CLEAR, THE "DAGENS NYHETER" CORRESPONDENT DECLARED. "AUTHORITATIVE ITALIANS EXPECT THE INVASION OF THE MAINLAND."

ALTHOUGH AXIS BROADCASTS SAID COUNTERATTACKS HAD BEEN MADE AGAINST THE ALLIED BRIDGEHEADS IN SICILY, BERLIN DISPATCHES TO STOCKHOLMS TIDNINGEN QUOTED GERMAN MILITARY COMMENTATORS AS DECLARING THE MAJOR GERMAN AND ITALIAN FORCES WERE STILL IN THE CENTER OF THE ISLAND WAITING FOR THE COMMANDERS TO DETERMINE HOW THE ALLIED INVASION WILL DEVELOP.

NEUTRAL CORRESPONDENTS SAID THE INVASION HAD CREATED TREMENDOUS INTEREST IN BERLIN WHILE LIFE IN ROME CONTINUED ALMOST AS USUAL, ALTHOUGH SOME WOMEN WITH RELATIVES IN SICILY CRIED IN THE STREET AS THEY LISTENED TO RADIO REPORTS OF THE ACTION.

FROM BERLIN, STOCKHOLM'S TIDNINGEN'S CORRESPONDENT SAID "WHAT HAPPENS NOW ON SICILY FOR THE ORDINARY GERMAN NO LONGER IS A WAR ON THE OUTSIDE OF EUROPE AS HE HAS BEEN TOLD BY PROPAGANDA MINISTER GOEBBELS."

JUL 13 1943

"THE ORDINARY GERMAN WILL LEARN IN THE DEFENSE OF SICILY WHETHER THE AXIS MILITARY BLOC IS A POWERFUL ONE," HE ADDED.

THE NEWSPAPER'S ROME CORRESPONDENT SAID THE FEELING AMONG ITALIANS WAS UNLIKE THE FEAR THE GERMANS HAVE OF THE RUSSIANS. THE AVERAGE ITALIAN KNOWS THE AMERICANS AND BRITISH AS TOURISTS AND FROM MOTION PICTURES AND HAS A GOOD OPINION OF THEM, HE EXPLAINED.

"THAT EXPLAINS WHY THE INVASION OF SICILY FAILED TO CREATE PANIC AMONG THE PEOPLE ALTHOUGH THEY FEAR THE WHOLE OF ITALY MAY BE A BATTLE-FIELD," HE ADDED.

CROATS AND SERBS LIVING IN CROATIA AND SLOVENES ARE INCLUDED IN THE MEMBERSHIP OF THE BODY WHICH IS A SUBSIDIARY OF TITO'S "NATIONAL COUNCIL OF LIBERATION," THE INFORMANTS ADDED.

MEANWHILE THE PARTISAN ARMY WAS REPUTED CONTINUING TO PUSH ITS RELENTLESS ATTACKS ON AXIS TROOPS AND BASES. GROUPS OPERATING IN NORTHWEST LJUBLJANA CLAIMED TO HAVE DESTROYED TWO AXIS ARMAMENT FACTORIES IN A NIGHT RAID ON THE TOWN OF BISTRICA.

INFORMATION REACHING YUGOSLAV CIRCLES SAID THAT A PLANT MAKING AIRPLANE MOTOR CHARGERS, AN ENLARGED SAWMILL CONVERTED TO WAR PURPOSES AND A HYDRAULIC POWER PLANT HAD BEEN SET AFIRE.

THE GARRISON OF LOCAL POLICE WAS REPORTED WIPED OUT AND 81

FRENCH AND RUSSIAN WAR PRISONERS WERE FREED AND JOINED THE PARTISANS.

THE REPORTS SAID THAT THE PARTISANS CELEBRATED THE RAID WITH LOCAL CITIZENS JOINING IN BEFORE RETURNING TO THEIR BASE WELL IN ADVANCE OF THE ARRIVAL OF AXIS RESERVES.

FIGHTING ALSO CONTINUED BETWEEN AXIS TROOPS AND INSURGENTS IN BOSNIA AND MONTENEGRO. AXIS DISPATCHES ANNOUNCED A WEEK AGO THAT TITO AND THE TROOPS OF GEN DRAJA MIKHAILOVIC HAD BEEN SMASHED BUT THE LATEST AXIS REPORTS MENTION "SEVERAL" INSURGENT FORCES DESTROYED WITH OPERATIONS CONTINUING AGAINST THOSE REMAINING. JUL 13 1943

BERN, SWITZERLAND, JULY 12-(AP)-- A GOVERNMENT COMMUNIQUE REVEALED TODAY THAT A MILITARY TRIBUNAL HAS SENTENCED SIX MEN AND ONE WOMAN TO SIX MONTHS TO TEN YEARS IMPRISONMENT FOR VIOLATION [redacted] OF MILITARY SECRETS A SWISS GOVERNMENT COMMUNIQUE [redacted] TODAY.

THREE OF THOSE SENTENCED WERE FOREIGNERS, THE COMMUNIQUE SAID. TWO OTHERS WERE DEPRIVED OF THEIR CIVIC RIGHTS FOR FIVE YEARS, IN ADDITION TO THEIR PRISON SENTENCES.

CAIRO, JULY 12-(AP)-COMPLETE AIR SUPREMACY HAS BEEN WON OVER SICILY AND IN DUE TIME MUSSOLINI'S "UNSINKABLE ISLAND CARRIER" SHOULD BE CONQUERED AND DEVELOPED INTO A BASE FOR FURTHER ASSAULTS AGAINST THE CONTINENT.

THIS IS THE CONVICTION OF LIBERATOR PILOTS, GUNNERS AND CREW MEMBERS WHO WERE IN ON THE ACTUAL INVASION AND WHO HAVE POUNDED AXIS TARGETS IN SICILY DAY AFTER DAY FOR THE LAST TWO MONTHS.

THEY SAID AXIS AIR OPPOSITION WHICH HAD GROWN IN RECENT WEEKS SLUMPED SHARPLY JULY 8, INDICATING FORCED WITHDRAWALS AS LANDING GROUNDS AND AIRDROMES FROM WHICH THEY OPERATED BEGAN TO CRUMBLE UNDER DAY AND NIGHT BOMBING. JUL 13 1943

RECONNAISSANCE SHOWED ALSO THAT A NUMBER OF GERMAN AND ITALIAN PLANES WERE DESTROYED ON THE GROUND AND IN REVETMENTS.

SOME PILOTS SAID THE GERMAN AIR FORCE SEEMED TO BE EVACUATING HEAVILY ATTACKED AREAS UNDER THE COVER OF DARKNESS.

"WE'D GO OVER ONE DAY AND MEET REAL FIGHTER RESISTANCE AND GO BACK THE NEXT DAY TO BOMB THE SAME TARGET AND HAVE EVERYTHING OUR WAY WITH NO SIGN OF FIGHTER OPPOSITION WHATEVER," THEY SAID.

THEY DECLARED THAT THE MOMENT OF THE INVASION HAD BEEN TIMED PERFECTLY AND CAUGHT THE AIR DEFENSES GROGGY AND ON THE DECLINE DUE TO THE SUPREMACY OF ALLIED AIR STRENGTH.

WHEN THE ISLAND FALLS THE ALLIED FORCES WILL HAVE 853 MILES OF STANDARD GAUGE AND 350 MILES OF NARROW GAUGE RAILWAY WHICH IS WORKED BY COAL-BURNING LOCOMOTIVES. THEY WILL HAVE 5,715 MILES OF ROADS FOR TRANSPORT AND COMMUNICATIONS. MORE THAN 2,000 MILES OF THESE ROADS ARE ASPHALT AND IN EXCELLENT CONDITION.

JUL 13 1943

JUL 13 1943

TROOPS PATROLLED NEARBY WATERS TODAY, WAITING FOR THE ITALIAN NAVY TO COME OUT OF HIDING.

JUL 13 1943

THE BRITISH WARSHIPS WERE PART OF THE GREAT FLOTILLA OF MORE THAN 2,000 VESSELS OF ALL TYPES WHICH PARTICIPATED IN THE GRAND ASSAULT.

FROM THEIR DECKS, NAVAL MEN SAW THE INVASION GET OFF TO A PROPITIOUS START. THEY WATCHED ASSAULT TROOPS SMASH AXIS DEFENSES, ALLIED PLANES CREATE HAVOC WITH EXPLOSIVES AND GROUPS OF ITALIANS WAVING WHITE FLAGS, EAGER TO SURRENDER.

THE ENEMY APPARENTLY WAS CAUGHT COMPLETELY BY SURPRISE BECAUSE THE OPPOSITION WAS FAR LESS THAN EXPECTED.

THE BRITISH NAVY PUT ASHORE VETERAN TROOPS OF THE EIGHTH ARMY UNDER GEN.SIR BERNARD L.MONTGOMERY AND CANADIAN AND UNITED KINGDOM FORCES FRESHLY ARRIVED FROM BRITAIN. THESE LANDINGS WERE ON THE SOUTH-EASTERN COAST OF EASTERN SICILY.

ON THE SOUTH COAST--AN ALL-UNITED STATES SHOW--THE AMERICAN NAVY LANDED U.S. ARMY FORCES UNDER COMMAND OF LIEUT.GEN.GEORGE S.PATTON, JR.

JUL 13 1943

OUT TO SEA, A POWERFUL FORCE OF BRITISH BATTLESHIPS, AIRCRAFT CARRIERS, DESTROYERS AND CRUISERS PATROLLED IN WAIT FOR THE ITALIAN FLEET IF IT SHOULD CHOOSE THIS MOMENT TO END ITS LONG STAY IN PORT.

THIS CRUISER, A 10,000-TON VESSEL OF THE COLONY CLASS, IS ONE OF THOSE THAT MADE UP THE STRONG FORCE ESCORTING THE GIGANTIC FLEET OF TRANSPORTS AND LANDING CRAFT OF ALL KINDS, CONSTITUTING A SPEARHEAD FORCE AT THIS MOMENT DRIVING RAPIDLY NORTHWARD ALONG THE EAST COAST.

THE SHOW BEGAN SHORTLY BEFORE MIDNIGHT LAST NIGHT WHEN A GREAT FLEET OF TROOP-CARRYING PLANES AND GLIDERS SOARED OVERHEAD AS WE WERE STILL AT SEA.

THESE LANDED FIRST AND WERE FOLLOWED A LITTLE LATER BY PICKED TROOPS.

THE REAL "ZERO HOUR" WAS AT 2:45 THIS MORNING WHEN TROOPS, TRANSSHIPPED FROM TRANSPORTS TO SMALL LANDING CRAFT, FIRST SPRANG ASHORE ON THE SICILIAN BEACHES.

JUL 13 1943

LARGE FIRES ALREADY WERE VISIBLE ASHORE AS ALLIED AIRCRAFT HAD MAINTAINED CONSTANT BOMBING UNTIL LESS THAN FIVE MINUTES BEFORE THE TROOPS ACTUALLY TOUCHED LAND. THROUGHOUT THE EARLY MORNING HOURS, THE ITALIAN GREE, RED AND WHITE ANTI-AIRCRAFT SHELLS AND BURSTS FROM BOMBS MADE A SPECTACLE, WHICH FROM THE SEA, RESEMBLED A FIREWORKS DISPLAY AT AMERICAN STATE FAIRS.

SO QUIET AND UNNOTICED WAS OUR APPROACH, THAT THIS SHIP MOVED IN AHEAD OF THE CONVOY AND CAME TO A DEAD STOP AT 12:23 A.M. BETWEEN THE CONVOY AND THE BEACH.

IT IS ALMOST INCREDIBLE BUT FOR HOURS, THIS SHIP HAS SAT THUS MOVING ONLY ENOUGH TO MAINTAIN ITS POSITION AGAINST THE CURRENTS AND WINDS.

TO SIT THUS A MILE OR TWO OFF THE ENEMY'S SHORES IS ONE OF THE STRANGEST EXPERIENCES OF WAR. I DID THE SAME OFF PANTELLERIA LAST MONTH BUT THIS EXPERIENCE OFF SICILY HAS NOW GONE ON FOR NEARLY 14 HOURS.

AS THE LANDINGS BEGAN, ENEMY SEARCHLIGHTS SWEPT OVER US SKYWARDS. EVERY MAN ABOARD HELD HIS BREATH BUT APPARENTLY THEY DID NOT SEE US AND DIRECTED THE LIGHTS MOSTLY SKYWARDS.

SO SPEEDY WAS THE FIRST SUCCESS THAT WHEN THE TROOPS LANDED AT

3:20 A.M., THE FIRST GROUP SIGNALLED "SUCCESSFUL."

SIMILAR REPORTS CONTINUED TO COME IN THROUGHOUT THE MORNING FROM ALL SECTORS WHILE A HEAVY SERIES OF ALMOST INTERRUPTED EXPLOSIONS ASHORE TOLD WHERE ALLIED PLANES AND GROUND DEMOLITION SQUADRONS WERE AT WORK ON ITALIAN AND GERMAN MUNITIONS AND FUEL STORES.

LATER IN THE MORNING THE ITALIANS APPARENTLY BEGAN FIRING THEIR OWN STORES TO PREVENT THEIR CAPTURE.

JUL 13 1943

IN THE DARKNESS WE HEARD LOUD CRIES FOR HELP IN THE WATER AROUND US AND, FINDING THE OPPOSITION SO NEGLIGIBLE, PROCEEDED TO PICK UP GLIDERMEN WHO HAD HIT THE WATER DUE TO STRONG CROSS-GUSTS OF WIND.

ALL BUT ONE OF THESE MEN WERE ABLE TO GO ASHORE WITHIN A FEW HOURS AFTER BEING DRIED AND FED.

THE PRIMARY ITALIAN OPPOSITION TO THE LANDINGS WAS THE SHELLING OF THEIR OWN BEACHES BY GUNS SET BACK IN THE HILLS AMONG LOVELY OLIVE AND CITRUS GROVES AND VINEYARDS.

OUR SHIP OPENED FIRE ON A SHORE BATTERY.

HERETOFORE SHE HAS BEEN IN NEARLY EVERY ACTIVE BATTLE ZONE, INCLUDING SINGAPORE, THE INDIAN OCEAN AND NORTH AND SOUTH ATLANTIC, BUT HAS BEEN A "LUCKY SHIP" WHOSE CONVOYS ALWAYS GOT THROUGH SAFELY AND WHOSE ENEMIES ALWAYS FIRED OUT OF RANGE.

HER LUCK STILL HOLDS, FOR HER FIRST BRIEF SHOTS AT THE SHORE BATTERY SILENCED IT.

JUL 13 1943

THE COMMANDING OFFICER, IN A SHORT TALK OUTLINING THE OPERATION YESTERDAY, HAD PRAISED THE CREW FOR FINE GUNNERY PRACTICE. THEY CERTAINLY LIVED UP TO THE CAPTAIN'S WORDS, WITH THE GUNNERY CHIEF, COMMANDER RICHARD A.SARELL, DSO, OF SUSSEX, GIVING THE ORDER, "SHOOT," AS IF CONVERSING WITH A FRIEND IN A QUIET PARLOR.

SARELL THROUGHOUT THE DAY HAS GIVEN THE GUN CREWS AND MEN BELOW DECKS INTERMITTENT "SITUATIONERS" ON THE ACTION OVER THE SHIP'S PUBLIC ADDRESS SYSTEM.

JUL 13 1943

HIS TURN OF PHRASE DELIGHTS THE CREW. FOR EXAMPLE, DURING AN AIR ATTACK AND ITALIAN ANTI-AIRCRAFT FIRE, HE SAID: "THERE IS A SCENE OF LIVELY ANIMATION JUST BEFORE US." AND LATER, HE SAID: "WE HAVE A VARIETY OF WONDERFUL TARGETS BUT THEY SEEM TO BE FALLING INTO OUR HANDS SO FAST IT'S A SHAME TO SHOOT 'EM UP."

WE FIRED A FEW MORE ROUNDS DURING THE MORNING JUST TO TOUCH THE ITALIANS SOMEWHAT AND ALSO FIRED A SALVO OR TWO FROM THE ANTI-AIRCRAFT GUNS AT SCATTERING GERMAN AND ITALIAN PLANES WHICH HAD BEEN BUZZING ABOUT, ATTEMPTING VAINLY TO NIBBLE AT THE EDGES OF OUR GREAT CONVOY.

AFTER THE FIRST ASSAULT TEAMS WON BEACHHEADS, BIG TRANSPORTS MOVED RIGHT UP TO THE BEACHES, DROPPED ANCHOR AND BEGAN THE PRODIGIOUS UNLOADING OF MORE MEN, SUPPLIES AND TANKS.

TANK LEANDING SHIPS ALSO MOVED IN, OPENED DOORS AND SPEWED OUT TANKS WHICH QUICKLY WERE REPORTED ENGAGING AND DEFEATING ENEMY ARMOR ASHORE.

THE SCENE WAS LIKE SOMETHING IN A PLEASANT DREAM, A CONSTANT STREAM OF SMALL CRAFT FERRYING STUFF INTO THE LOVELY SHORE WHERE STRAY FIRES AND INTERMITTENT EXPLOSIONS WERE THE ONLY TOKEN THAT A WAR WAS BEING FOUGHT--AND A BITTER WAR AT THAT.

THE CREW HAD BEEN AT ACTION STATIONS SINCE LAST NIGHT, HAVING BREAKFAST AND LUNCH AT THEIR PLACES. AS A MESSMAN BROUGHT AROUND A FINE LUNCH OF ROAST BEEF, BOILED POTATOES, PICKLE RELISH, PIE, APRICOTS

JUL 13 1943

AND TEA, ONE GUNNER SHOUTED, "HEY, JOCK, WHERE'S MY DECK CHAIR AND BRIDGE TABLE? WE MIGHT AS WELL HAVE A REAL DECK PICNIC."

SHORTLY AFTER NOON SOME DEJECTED ITALIANS WERE VISIBLE ASHORE, WAVING A WHITE FLAG AT A LANDING BARGE, BEGGING TO SURRENDER. AS THE BARGE MOVED CLOSE IN, A SWARM OF ITALIANS RUSHED DOWN, ARMS IN THE AIR, ANXIOUS TO GET IN ON THE SURRENDER TOO. ELSEWHERE A LONE BRITISH TOMMY WAS VISIBLE DRIVING IN SINGLE FILE A SCORE OF ITALIANS.

ALLIED BOMBERS STILL WERE BUSY INLAND BEHIND A RANGE OF MOUNTAINS. THE NOISE OF THEIR BOMBS WAS OUR ONLY EVIDENCE OF THEIR HIGH FLYING ACTIVITIES. SOME LIGHTNINGS AND SPITFIRES WERE VISIBLE OVERHEAD.

BUT THE CREW WAS NOT RELAXING AS STEADY REPORTS CAME IN OF ENEMY AIRCRAFT IN THE VICINITY. REPEATEDLY THE BUGLE SOUNDED THE SWEET TONES OF THE AIR ALARM AND MEN REDONNED THEIR HOT TIN HATS WHICH THEY DOFFED FOR RELIEF IN THE MEDITERRANEAN SUN.

TWO OR THREE TIMES A BOLD ENEMY BOMBER HAS DASHED IN, DROPPED A BOMB OR TWO, THEN DASHED OFF AGAIN WITHOUT RESULT EXCEPT TO KEEP THE NAVAL MEN ON THEIR TOES.

AN EXPECTED E-BOAT ATTACK THUS FAR HAS NOT MATERIALIZED. TIRED BUT HAPPY, THE JOKING OFFICERS AND MEN WERE STANDING BY AS THE LAST OF THE TRANSPORTS UNLOADED AND PREPARED TO RETURN TO THEIR BASES.

WE MAY BE OUT SEVERAL DAYS MORE BUT AT LEAST THE INVASION OF SICILY HAS HAD A PROPITIOUS START.

ABOARD A BRITISH CRUISER OFF EASTERN SICILY, JULY 11-(DELAYED)-(AP)-THIS IS A STORY OF A NEWS STORY, SHOWING THE DIFFICULTIES OF NEWS TRANSMISSION IN THE MEDITERRANEAN IN THE MIDST OF THE BATTLE OF SICILY.

SOMEWHERE IN SICILY, JULY 12--THE ENEMY GENERAL IN TITULAR COMMAND OF SICILY IS GENERAL ALFREDO GUZZONI, COMMANDER IN CHIEF OF THE 6TH ITALIAN ARMY, ACCORDING TO INFORMATION REACHING HEADQUARTERS HERE.

HE IS A VETERAN OFFICER, AGED 63, WHO LED THE ITALIAN INVASION OF ALBANIA ON GOOD FRIDAY, 1939. THIS OPERATION WAS AS WELL PERFORMED AS ANYTHING ITALY HAS DONE IN THE WAR LARGELY ON ACCOUNT OF GUZZONI'S EXPERIENCE AS A QUARTERMASTER OFFICER.

GUZZONI WAS DISMISSED IN 1941 WHEN THE FASCISTS SHOOK UP THE HIGH COMMAND AND ONLY CAME BACK RECENTLY. SO FAR AS IS KNOWN HE HAS NEVER COMMANDED TROOPS IN THE FIELD EXCEPT IN ALBANIA WHICH WAS A CAMPAIGN WITHOUT MUCH OPPOSITION.

SERVING WITH GUZZONI ARE TEN ITALIAN DIVISIONS, FIVE REGULAR INFANTRY AND FIVE COASTAL. THE INFANTRY DIVISIONS ARE THE 28TH AOSTA, 26TH ASSIETTA, FOURTH LIVORNO, 54TH NAPOLI AND ONE OTHER.

THEY ARE COMPRISED MOSTLY OF MEN FROM NORTHERN ITALY WHO CONTRARY TO THE GENERAL OPINION ARE NOT AS A RULE AS GOOD FIGHTERS AS SOUTHERNERS LIKE THE SICILIANS AND CALABRIANS.

SO FAR AS IS KNOWN GERMANY HAS ONLY TWO DIVISIONS IN SICILY BUT IT IS ASSUMED THAT GERMAN STAFF OFFICERS ADVISE AND PROBABLY DOMINATE GUZZONI.

ANOTHER WARHAWK PILOT, LIEUT.GLENN WADDELL, BILLINGS, MONT., WHO WENT OUT LATER IN THE MORNING, REPORTED A HUGE FIRE BLAZING AT AN UNIDENTIFED INLAND POINT WHICH WAS BOMBED DURING THE NIGHT AND SAID HE SAW AN ARTILLERY DUEL GOING FULL BLAST.

LIEUT.EDWARD WARDRIP, NEBRASKA CITY, NEB., REPORTED ROADS LEADING TOWARD THE INVASION AREAS WERE JAMMED WITH ENEMY TRANSPORT.

FLIGHT OF W[illegible]ID HE SPOTTED A LONG LINE [illegible]LL AND HIS FORMATION RO[illegible]KE.

"THE DRIVERS SPILLED OUT AS SOON AS THEY SAW US, LETTING EVERYTHING ROLL BACKWARDS," HE SAID. "THERE WAS THE DAMNDEST PILE OF WRECKAGE AT THE BOTTOM OF THE HILL I EVER SAW. THERE COULDN'T HAVE BEEN MORE THAN HALF OF THOSE TRUCKS STILL IN RUNNING CONDITION AND THERE WERE 50 TO 75 ORIGINALLY.

JUL 13 1943

THERE WERE TWO LOCOMOTIVES.

"IT WAS DOWN AT THE BOTTOM OF A CANYON WHEN WE SPOTTED IT," SAID CARTER. "WE MADE THREE PASSES DOWN THERE BUT FINALLY GOT THE FIRST ENGINE THEN WE CAME BACK FOR THE SECOND. IT WENT UP IN STEAM TOO. WE HAD A HELL OF A TIME GETTING OUT OF THE GORGE AND THE LAST MAN MADE IT BY JUST A FEW FEET."

JUL 13 1943

ANOTHER TRAIN HAD FOUR LIGHT TANKS ABOARD, CARTER SAID, AND A THIRD ONE WAS HAULING SIX. "WE GOT BOTH LOCOMOTIVES WITH ONE STRAFING PASS AT EACH."

"THEY WERE FIRING MACHINEGUNS AND MANAGED TO HIT ONE OF OUR PLANES BUT IT DIDN'T DAMAGE IT BADLY."

MUSTANGS SIGHTED A LARGE UNCONCEALED TRUCK PARK SURROUNDED BY ANTI-AIRCRAFT GUNS WHICH THREW UP AN INTENSE BARRAGE AS THE FLIERS TURNED TOWARD IT.

"THEY DIDN'T THINK WE'D DARE COME THROUGH THE FLAK," SAID CAPT. ROHER MILLER, 780 NORTH COTTAGE ST., SALEM, ORE. "BUT WE FOOLED THEM."

"NAW, WISE GUY, I'M NOT GOING TO SHOOT YOU," SAID THE MP, "BUT I CAN TURN YOU IN AND IT'LL COST YOU $25 AND YOU HAVEN'T GOT YOUR HELMET ON, THAT'S ANOTHER $25 AND I CAN SEE THAT YOU'LL GET PINCHED $25 FOR NOT WEARING A NECKTIE AND ANOTHER $25 FOR FORGETTING YOUR LEGGINGS. THOSE ARE ORDERS FROM THE NEW MEA MAN--GENERAL PATTON."

"YOU MEAN 'OLD BLOOD AND GUTS' HIMSELF?" SAID THE CORPORAL SNAPPING UP IN HIS JEEP, "IS HE UP THIS WAY?"

"HE SURE IS SOLDIER AND YOU'RE WORKING FOR HIM NOW. GET GOING AND KEEP IN MIND WHAT I TOLD YOU."

"DON'T WORRY BROTHER, I DON'T WANT TO CROSS THAT GUY," SAID THE CORPORAL. "THANKS FOR THE TIP."

THE CORPORAL GOT OFF EASY THAT MARCH MORNING. OTHER SOLDIERS WERE

JUL 13 1943

SLOW TO BELIEVE THAT A GENERAL WOULD ACTUALLY COMPEL THEM TO WEAR THEIR LEGGINGS AND SAVE EVERY OTHER DAY. THEY HAD TO LEARN THE HARD WAY. FOR WHEN LIEUT.GEN.GEORGE S.PATTON, JR. ISSUES AN ORDER IT MUST BE OBEYED TO THE LETTER. SOME WERE FINED HEAVILY. SOME NON-COMS FOUND THEMSELVES BUCK PRIVATES AGAIN AND BACK ON KP DUTY. SOME OFFICERS IN THEMSELVES BUCK PRIVATES AGAIN AND BACK ON IP DUTY. SOME OFFICERS IN THE FIELD, DERELICT IN FOLLOWING HIS "SPRUCE UP" COMMANDS, GOT AN EAR BURNING FROM THE GENERAL HIMSELF THAT THEY WILL REMEMBER LONGER THAN THEIR CAMPAIGN WOUNDS.

THAN THEIR CAMPAIGN WOUNDS.

PATTON, WHO LED THE U.S. FORCES INTO FRENCH MOROCCO LAST NOVEMBER, TOOK COMMAND OF THE AMERICAN SECOND CORPS IN TUNISIA AT THE CRITICAL PERIOD AFTER IT HAD BEEN SLAPPED BACK 60 MILES AT FAID PASS TO KASSEDREAZ&GRP BY ROMMEL'S RAMPAGING PANZERS. EXPLAINING HPS NEWECDG4

PERIOD AFTER IT HAD BEEN SLAPPED BACK 60 MILES AT FAID PASS TO KASSERINE GAP BY ROMMEL'S RAMPAGING PANZERS. EXPLAINING HIS NEW ORDERS, AN OFFICER WHO HAD WORKED WITH THE GENERAL LONG ENOUGH TO KNO HIS MILITARY PRINCIPLES SAID:

"THESE TROOPS HAVE HAD A ROUGH GOING OVER AND NATURALLY THEY ARE FIGHTING MAD AT 'THE OLD MAN' FOR TELLING THEM THEY HAVE TO DRESS UP LIKE PARADE TROOPS, BUT THAT'S JUST WHAT THE GENERAL WANTS--TO MAKE THEM FIGHTING MAD. HE BELIEVES SLOPPY TROOPS ARE SLOPPY FIGHTERS. HIS JOB IS TO JERK THE AMERICAN ARMY BACK ON ITS FEET."

HE DID HIS JOB. THE TROOPS GROUSED AND GRUMBLED AND HATED HIM FOR A TIME BECAUSE OF HIS STRICT DISCIPLINE BUT EVERY DAY IT WAKENED A NEW SPIRIT IN THEM. THEY WERE SOON BACK ON THEIR TOES AND BY MARCH 17 THEY HAD RETAKEN GAFSA ON THE LONG MARCH TO ELGUETTAR, MATEUR, BIZERTE AND COMPLETE VICTORY.

BUT NO TROOPS HATE "GEORGIE"--A NICKNAME ONLY OTHER GENERALS HAVE THE TEMERITY TO APPLY--FOR LONG, BECAUSE IF HE IS ROUGH ON THEM HE IS INFINITELY ROUGHER ON HIS OFFICERS. THE MEN KNOW THAT PATTON IS FOR THEM BECAUSE IF ANYTHING GOES WRONG HE DOES NOT PLACE THE BLAME UPON THEM; HE CALLS THE OFFICERS TO TASK BECAUSE HE BELIEVES THAT THE MEN FAIL CHIEFLY BECAUSE OF POOR LEADERSHIP.

WHEN HE TOOK OVER COMMAND IN TUNISIA ONE OF THE FIRST THINGS HE DID WAS TO ORDER HIS OFFICERS TO WEAR THEIR INSIGNIA ON THEIR HELMETS DESPITE THE DANGER THAT THIS WOULD MAKE THEM BETTER TARGETS FOR THE ENEMY.

"THAT'S PART OF YOUR JOB OF BEING AN OFFICER," SAID THE GENERAL WHO TELLS HIS LIEUTENANTS AND CAPTAINS THAT THEY ARE EXPENDABLE AND MUST LEAD THEIR MEN INTO BATTLE TAKING EQUAL CHANCES WITH THE LOWEST BUCK PRIVATE OF BEING KILLED IN ACTION. HE HIMSELF WAS SERIOUSLY WOUNDED IN THE FIRST WORLD WAR AND SEVERAL TIMES DURING THE TUNISIAN CAMPAIGN

HE HAS PASSED THROUGH ARTILLERY BARRAGES AND UNDERGONE STUKA BOMBINGS TO GET TO THE FRONT LINE BATTLE POSITIONS.

AT 57 GENERAL PATTON IS SAID TO BE THE WEALTHIEST CAREER SOLDIER IN THE AMERICAN ARMY. HE IS PERHAPS THE MOST WIDELY PUBLICIZED BUT THE LEAST UNDERSTOOD GENERAL OFFICER IN UNIFORM. HE IS SOMETHING OF A GEORGE BERNARD SHAW, COCKY, NOT ABOVE CLOWNING SOMETIMES IN AN EFFORT TO GET HIS POINT ACROSS.

THE PUBLIC IS FAMILIAR WITH GENERAL PATTON, THE COMMANDING FIGURE WITH THE HIGH-PITCHED VOICE WHOSE SULPHUROUS EXPLETIVES ARE UNMATCHED IN THE ARMY, THE POLO-PLAYER, ATHLETE, PISTOL CHAMP WHO CAN SHOOT JACK-RABBITS FROM A COMMAND CAR, THE SELF-DESIGNATED "BLOODTHIRSTY MERCENARY" WHO HAS BEEN REPORTED AS SAYING--ALTHOUGH THE MEN AROUND HIM HOLD HE NEVER DID--THAT HE WOULD LIKE TO SETTLE THE WAR WITH A PERSONAL TANK DUEL BETWEEN ROMMEL AND HIMSELF.

THIS PICTURESQUE PERSONALITY--THE "BLOOD AND GUTS" ASPECT OF HIS NATURE--IS THE ONE WHICH PATTON, WITH HIS TONGUE IN HIS CHEEK, TURNS TOWARD THE WORLD. WHAT THE PUBLIC IS LESS FAMILIAR WITH IS PATTON THE MILITARY SCHOLAR, POET AND PHILOSOPHER. HE IS A DEEPLY READ MAN. HE HAS PUBLISHED A NUMBER OF MILITARY TREATISES BUT HE HAS WRITTEN ALSO A NUMBER OF PHILOSOPHICAL AND POETICAL WORKS WHICH HE WISHES PUBLISHED, IF AT ALL, ONLY AFTER HIS DEATH--AND THAT HE HOPES WILL COME IN BATTLE.

BECAUSE ALL HIS LIFE HE HAS PREACHED THE GOSPEL THAT WARS ARE WON BY ATTACKING INCESSANTLY HE IS SOMETIMES PICTURED AS A RECKLESS DEVIL-MAY-CARE COMMANDER WHO CHARGES WILDLY AGAINST THE ENEMY AT ANY COST. NOTHING COULD BE MORE INCORRECT. HE DOES NOT WASTE TROOPS IN SPECTACULAR ASSAULT AND WHEN HE ORDERS AN ATTACK IT IS AGAINST OBJECTIVES WITHIN THE POWER OF INSPIRED MEN TO CAPTURE. HE BELIEVES IN MILITARY DASH--AND LOVES IT--BUT HE ALSO TEACHES MILITARY CAUTION, LECTURING HIS OFFICERS ONCE IN THE UNITED STATES NOT TO RUSH ENTRENCHED ANTI-TANK GUNS HEAD ON WITH TANKS.

"THE QUICKEST WAY TO HELL, GENTLEMEN, IS TO GO ROARING AT THE MUZZLE OF AN ANTI-TANK GUN," HE SAID. "ALWAYS OUTFLANK IT."

ALTHOUGH HE IS A STRICT DISCIPLINARIAN BECAUSE THE STUDY OF MILITARY HISTORY HAS CONVINCED HIM THAT DISCIPLINED TROOPS HAVE FEWER BATTLE CASUALTIES, HE IS NO MARTINET. HE IS QUICK TO ACKNOWLEDGE AND REWARD MERIT IN HIS OWN OFFICERS AND MEN AND IS PROUDEST WHEN THEY DISPLAY EXCEPTIONAL QUALITIES IN EXCEPTIONAL SITUATIONS.

FOR EXAMPLE, DURING MANEUVERS BACK HOME ON ONE OCCASION HE PULLED UP IN HIS TANK TO ANOTHER TANK AND SAID:

"CAPTAIN, DO YOU KNOW WHERE YOU ARE?"

JUL 13 1943

"NO SIR, I DON'T."

THE GENERAL HIT THE CEILING, GAVE THE UNFORTUNATE OFFICER A THOROUGH DRESSING DOWN AND THEN DEMANDED:

"MAN, DON'T YOU HAVE MAPS?"

"YES SIR, BUT I HAVEN'T HAD TIME TO CHECK MY POSITION BY THE MAP BECAUSE I HAVE JUST FINISHED CAPTURING AN INFANTRY REGIMENT."

"YOU CAPTURED A WHOLE REGIMENT WITH ONE TANK COMPANY?"

"YES SIR."

PATTON REACHED OVER AND SAID, "HAND ME YOUR MAPS."

HE TOOK THEM FROM THE SURPRISED OFFICER, RIPPED THEM TO PIECES AND SAID:

"CAPTAIN, YOU DON'T NEED MAPS. CARRY ON."

JUL 13 1943

AND THE GENERAL BUTTONED UP HIS TANK AND DROVE OFF.

PATTON IS A GENERAL WITH A STRONG SENSE OF PERSONAL DIGNITY BUT HE IS WITTY AND ENJOYS A REPUTATION AS ONE OF THE BEST RACONTEURS IN THE ARMY. AT THE SAME TIME HE IS ALOOF, HAS FEW CLOSE FRIENDS AND WAS ONCE DESCRIBED BY AN OFFICER WHO SERVED UNDER HIM FOR A PERIOD OF YEARS AS "THE LONELIEST MAN I EVER KNEW." HE INSPIRES INTENSE LOYALTY RATHER THAN LOVE AMONG HIS SUBORDINATES BEARING TO THEM SOMEWHAT THE SAME RELATION AS THAT BETWEEN AN OLD ESTAMENT FATHER AND HIS CHILDREN. THEY ARE A LITTLE AFRAID OF HIM BUT THEY WOULD OBEY HIM TO THEIR DEATHS.

THAT IS THE WAY HE HIMSELF SEEMS TO PREFER IT BUT HE HAS A GREAT FONDNESS FOR MEN WHO HAVE SERVED UNDER HIM, A FONDNESS WHICH HE RARELY SHOWS BUT AT LEAST ONCE BURING THE TUNISIAN CAMPAIGN THE "BLOOD AND GUTS" CRUST WAS BROKEN. CORRESPONDENTS CALLING ON HIM AT GAFSA AFTER THE DEATH OF CAPT.DICK JENSON, KILLED BY A STUKA BOMB, FOUND HIM IN TEARS. HE HAD JUST COME FROM THE FUNERAL OF THE YOUNG PASADENA, CALIF., OFFICER WHO HAD BEEN HIS AIDE FOR ALMOST THREE YEARS. THAT TIME THE BATTLE GODS WHOM PATTON HAS SERVED SINCE YOUTH PROUDLY BECAUSE HE BELIEVES BATTLE GLORIFIES MAN, HAD STRUCK TOO CLOSE. THE TEARS HE SHED FOR CAPT.JENSON WERE THE MOST STIRRING TRIBUTE PAID TO THE MEMORY OF THAT FINE YOUNG SOLDIER.

AS A STORY TELLER AT OFFICERS' BANQUETS FEW MEN CAN EQUAL PATTON WHO HAS AN UNRIVALED FUND OF MILITARY ANECDOTES. HIS FAVORITE IS OF THE THREE SOLDIERS, TWO BUCK PRIVATES AND A SERGEANT, WHO WERE BEING HANGED FOR RAPE.

AS THE NOOSES WERE ADJUSTED IN THAT MOMENT BEFORE THEY STEPPED INTO ETERNITY THE VOICE OF THE SERGEANT RANG MUFFLED FROM THE BLACK NECKCLOTH:

"ATTENTION! NOW LET'S GO TO HELL LIKE SOLDIERS!"

AND THE TRAP SPRUNG, ROCKETING THE THREE TOGETHER INTO DEATH.

THAT IS THE KIND OF SPIRIT ADMIRED BY GEN.GEORGE S.PATTON, JR., THE SOLDIER'S SOLDIER WHO IS SWORN BY LOYALL BY THE TROOPS HE SEARS AT.

AN ADVANCED ALLIED AIR BASE IN NORTH AFRICA, JULY 12-(AP)-A CONVOY OF AMERICAN TRUCKS DROVE SO FAR INLAND IN SICILY THAT AMERICAN FIGHTER PILOTS ALMOST STRAFED THEM, THINKING THEY WERE ITALIANS, THE RETURNING PILOTS SAID TODAY.

FIRST LIEUT.ROBERT E.GLENDINNING, OF MAPLEWOOD, N.J., SAID HE WAS "AMAZED TO FIND OUR FORCES AT THAT POINT."

"I SAW A LINE OF TRUCKS SPEEDING MILES INLAND FROM THE COAST. WE BORE DOWN ON THEM, THINKING THEY WERE FLEEING ITALIANS. WE SAW THOSE BIG WHITE STARS ON THE TRUCK TOPS JUST IN TIME. I WAS AMAZED TO SEE THE ALLIES MAKE SUCH HEADWAY SO SOON AFTER THEIR LANDING.

"THEY WERE GOING ALONG THE ROAD LIKE A BAT OUT OF HELL. I EVEN SAW SOME JEEPS AND THEY SEEMED TO BE IN A BIG HURRY, TOO."

FIGHTER AND FIGHTER-BOMBER PILOTS NOT ONLY HAD A BUSY DAY HUNTING AXIS TROOP CONVOYS, MANY OF WHICH THEY HIT, BUT THEY ALSO REPORTED FINDING ALLIED ARTILLERY BLASTING ENEMY POSITIONS WITH GOOD RESULTS.

FIRST LIEUT.HARRY C.CRIM OF 450 EAST 24TH STREET, HIALEAH, FLA., SAID HE HAD A PREVIEW OF NAVAL ARTILLERY SHELLS FALLING ON A ROAD

JUL 13 1943

IN THE GELA AREA.

"I SAW THEM TEARING UP ONE ROAD PRETTY BAD. MINUTES LATER I WAS OVER THE AREA AND SAW THEM SCORE DIRECT HITS," HE SAID.

AMERICANS FLYING LIGHTNINGS AND NEW AMERICAN A-36 CONVERTED MUSTANGS ALMOST SPLIT TREETOPS ALONG A ROAD FILLED WITH AXIS TROOP CONVOYS, HURLING BOMBS INTO TIGHTLY PACKED LINES OF TRUCKS AND SPITTING BULLETS AT SOLDIERS AS THEY ATTEMPTED TO ESCAPE INTO THE FIELDS.

SECOND LIEUT.KEN WALDRON OF (1463 MEDDING FORT) SAN JOSE, CALIF., SPOTTED A GROUP OF SIX TROOP CARRIERS RACING TOWARD GELA AND "WE DIVED AND PILED THEM UP SO BAD THEY WILL BE A LONG TIME UNTYING THE WRECKAGE," HE SAID.

A SIMILAR SCENE CAME WITHIN THE SIGHT OF FIRST LIEUT.LEONARD L. CONKLE OF SANTA ANA, CALIF. HE SAID:

"WE BOMBED IT FIRST THEN CAME BACK TO STRAFE IT AND FINISH OFF THE JOB. WE THINK WE MUST HAVE HIT THE GAS TANK OF ONE TRUCK BECAUSE IT BLOSSOMED OUT LIKE A BIG RED ROSE."

SECOND LIEUT.WAYNE BLUE, FORMER UNIVERSITY OF NEBRASKA FULLBACK, TRIED A GAME OF HIDE AND SEEK WITH A GERMAN STAFF CAR WHICH WAS APPARENTLY CROWDED WITH OFFICERS.

"THEY WERE HIDING THE CAR UNDER SOME BRUSH AND THOUGHT I DIDN'T SEE THEM," HE SAID. "I DIVED WITHOUT FIRING A SHOT, THEN BANKED INTO THE SUN AND SNEAKED BACK AND LET THEM HAVE IT. THEY JUMPED OUT OF THE CAR AND RAN IN ALL DIRECTIONS, BUT I MANAGED TO PICK OFF SEVERAL.

"I ALSO HAD SOME FUN WITH AN ITALIAN JEEP. THE DRIVER JUMPED OUT OF THE CAR AND RAN RIGHT DOWN THE MIDDLE OF THE ROAD. I CHASED HIM ABOUT A MILE AND GAVE HIM A REAL WORKOUT. I DON'T KNOW WHETHER I GOT HIM OR NOT, BECAUSE I SCRAMMED."

BLUE TOLD A STORY OF AN UNIDENTIFIED AMERICAN PILOT WHO BLAZED AWAY AT AN "ITALIAN COURIER." THE FLIER SAID HE KNOCKED OVER THE "COURIER" WITH ONE BURST--THEN DISCOVERED HE HAD SHOT UP A DONKEY.

JUL 13 1943

AN ADVANCED AMERICAN AIR BASE IN NORTH AFRICA, JULY 12-(AP)-SECOND LIEUT.HUBERT M.MILLER, OF RACINE, WIS., TURNED OUT TO BE ONE OF THE LUCKIEST HITCH-HIKERS OF THE WAR TODAY.

BAILING OUT OF A CRIPPLED P-40 WARHAWK OVER THE MEDITERRANEAN LAST FRIDAY HE SAW AND HEARD THE INVASION OF SICILY FROM A RUBBER LIFE RAFT AND CAUGHT A RIDE BACK FROM A RETURNING LANDING BARGE.

MILLER'S PLANE HAD ENGINE TROUBLE WHILE FLYING BACK TO AN AFRICAN BASE FROM A STRAFING MISSION OVER SOUTHERN SICILY A FEW MOMENTS BEFORE THE AIRBORNE INVASION STARTED ON FRIDAY NIGHT.

HE PARACHUTED TO THE SEA ABOUT 15 MILES OFF THE SICILIAN COAST HOLDING HIS LIFX RAFT IN HIS ARMS, AND HE MANAGED TO LASH HIS WRISTS TO THE RAFT TO KEEP HIMSELF ON AFTER HE HAD FAL E INTT TH SEVERV

TO THE RAFT TO K OTWISELF ON A

TO THE RAFT TO KEEP HIMSELF ON AFTER HE HAD FALLEN INTO THE WATER SEVERAL TIMES.

THEN HE SETTLED DOWN TO WAIT FOR HELP.

30.21- 5975

FOR SOME TIME MILLER COULD HEAR THE PUTTERING SOUND OF A MOTOR OVERHEAD--THE WARHAWK FLOWN BY LIEUT.RAY D.LANCASTER OF STEPHENVILLE, TEXAS, WHO HAD SEEN HIM GO DOWN AND WHO HAD DECIDED TO CIRCLE THE SPOT IN ORDER TO GIVE THE LOCATION TO AN AIR-SEA RESCUE UNIT BASE IN AN AFRICAN PORT.

JUL 13 1943

LANCASTER REMAINED OVERHEAD EVEN WHEN THREE MESSERSCHMITTS APPROACHED, LOOKED THE SITUATION OVER, AND WENT AWAY WITHOUT ATTACKING.

LATER LANCASTER REACHED MALTA WITH LESS THAN FIVE GALLONS OF GASOLINE LEFT IN HIS FUEL TANKS.

DURING THE NIGHT MILLER HEARD "HUNDREDS OF PLANES GOING OVER" AND JUST BEFORE DAWN HE COULD SEE FLARES ON THE SICILIAN COAST, TOWARDS WHICH HE WAS DRIFTING.

"THEN I HEARD THE BIG GUNS FIRING AND I KNEW THE LONG-AWAITED INVASION WAS AT HAND," HE SAID.

WHEN DAYLIGHT ARRIVED MILLER FOUND HIMSELF IN THE MIDDLE OF A BLUSTERING SEA FILLED WITH INVASION BARGES GOING BOTH WAYS. HE THUMBED A RIDE IN AN EMPTY ONE GOING TO AFRICA AND WAS BACK ON SHORE LONG BEFORE SUPPER TIME SATURDAY NIGHT.

JUL 13 1943

ONE OF THE FIRST PERSONS HE SPOTTED WHEN HE STEPPED FROM THE BARGE WAS HIS COUSIN, SEAMAN FRANCIS STRATFORD OF RACINE, WIS., WHO IS IN THE U.S. NAVY.

PORTED THE DESTRUCTION OF 100 TRUCKS IN THAT FORAY ALONE.

IN ANOTHER ALLIED AIR PUNCH CAPT.GLENN STELL OF SHREVEPORT, LA., LED A MUSTANG FORMATION IN TAKING THE SAME TOLL OF AN ENEMY HIGHWAY CONVOY.

JUL 13 1943

A THIRD MUSTANG MISSION LED BY CAPT.JUSTIN C.GUNNISON OF SAN RAFAEL, CALIF., DEMOLISHED 30 MORE VEHICLES, WHILE A FOURTH MISSION LED BY MAJ.D.D.RATHBUN OF 4348 BROADWAY, OAKLAND, CALIF., HIT FOUR TANKS AND SHOT UP A TRAIN DEPOT. MORE TRUCKS, ARMORED CARS AND LOCOMOTIVES WERE WRECKED IN SCATTERED SORTIES.

IN CONTINUING NIGHT AND DAY AIR BATTLES MALTA SPITFIRES ACCOUNTED FOR 22 OF THE 45 ENEMY PLANES, LOSING TWO OF THEIR OWN, WHILE PROTECTING THE SOUTHERN BEACHES AGAINST BOMBINGS BY THE GERMAN AND ITALIAN AIR FORCES.

AIR CAPT.W.W.FOSTER, JR., OF 233 WEST KING HIGHWAY, SAN ANTONIO, TEX., SAID "GELA IS APPARENTLY UNDER COMPLETE CONTROL" OF THE AMERICANS WHO PLUNGED ASHORE THERE SATURDAY MORNING.

THE NEW PLANES ATTACKED BOTH WITH GLIDING AND DIVE-BOMBING TACTICS AND THEN CAME DOWN AND "MOWED ACROSS" THE CONVOYS, STRAFING AND MACHINE-GUNNING.

JUL 13 1943

THE MOST EXTENSIVE SINGLE ATTACK WAS CARRIED OUT BY A FORMATION COMMANDED BY FIRST LIEUT.ROBERT W.HAFER, OF BEDFORD, PA. THE PILOTS SPOTTED A CHAIN OF TRUCKS STRETCHING BACKWARD FOR MILES. THEY ESTIMATED THAT IT CONTAINED ABOUT 200 VEHICLES.

THE FORMATION MADE A PERFECT RUN OVER THE CONVOY DROPPING THEIR BOMBS SQUARELY ON THE TARGETS. THEN THEY SWOOPED DOWN AND MACHINE-GUNNED THE ENTIRE LINE OF THE CONVOY, SMASHING IT TO BITS, AND COMPLETELY DESTROYING ABOUT 100 OF THE TRUCKS.

EDITOR'S NOTE: THIS DISPATCH, WRITTEN WHILE AMERICAN TROOPS IN NORTH AFRICA WERE TRAINING FOR THE INVASION OF SICILY, HAS BEEN RELEASED FOR PUBLICATION BY THE CENSORS, AND REACHED NEW YORK YESTERDAY.

BY DON WHITEHEAD

AT THE AMERICAN ARMY'S INVASION TRAINING CENTER, NORTH AFRICA, -(DELAYED)-(AP)-AMERICAN INVASION TROOPS LEARNED THE ART OF HOUSE-TO-HOUSE STREET FIGHTING IN A PINT-SIZED SHANTY TOWN ON THE SHORE OF THE MEDITERRANEAN--A TOWN RIDDLED BY BULLETS FIRED IN HUNDREDS OF MOCK BATTLES.

JUL 13 1943

DAY AFTER DAY FOR MONTHS, SQUADS OF SOLDIERS ASSAULTED SHANTYTOWN'S TWO ROYS OF WOODEN BUILDINGS WHILE MACHINEGUN AND RIFLE FIRE WHIZZED BY THEM OR KICKED UP THE DUST AROUND THEIR FEET.

HERE TROOPS WERE TAUGHT HOW TO STORM A CITY, BUILDING BY BUILDING, HOW TO ENTER DOORWAYS, WINDOWS AND ROOFS, HOW TO BLAST THE ENEMY OUT OF HIDING PLACES WITH BULLETS AND GRENADES.

GENERAL MARSHALL, GENERAL ALEXANDER AND MANY OTHER OFFICERS OF THE ALLIED HIGH COMMAND CAME TO SEE THE INVASION TRAINING, GENERAL MONTGOMERY CAME OVER FROM THE BRITISH EIGHTH ARMY AND WATCHED A STREET FIGHTING DEMONSTRATION.

"IT'S THE BEST I'VE EVER SEEN," HE SAID.

TEXAS CAN TAKE A SHARE OF PRIDE IN MONTY'S PRAISE BECAUSE A TEXAN DIRECTED THE DRILLS AND A BIG SECTION OF HIS DEMONSTRATION SQUAD CAME FROM THE RIO GRANDE COUNTRY.

CAPT.FRANK C.COKER, 230 POUNDS OF BONE AND MUSCLE FROM PAINT ROCK WHO TRAINED WITH THE COMMANDOS AND RANGERS IN SCOTLAND, WAS UNOFFICIAL MAYOR OF SHANTYTOWN. BESIDES STREET FIGHTING, COCER INSTRUCTED TROOPS IN PILLBOX ASSAULTS AND UNARMED COMBAT--HAND-TO-HAND FIGHTING WITH THE RULES TOSSED OUT.

30.24-5977

PROFESSIONAL FOOTBALL FANS WILL REMEMBER COKER. AFTER GRADUATION FROM DANIEL BAKER COLLEGE AT BROWNWOOD, TEXAS, FRANK JOINED THE PHILADELPHIA EAGLES IN 1937 AND THEN PLAYED WITH THE WILMINGTON, DEL., CLIPPERS.

JUL 13 1943

HE WAS INDUCTED INTO THE SERVICE IN NOVEMBER, 1940, AND WENT TO ENGLAND IN JULY, 1942, TO GET COMMANDO AND RANGER TRAINING.

"PROFESSIONAL FOOTBALL WAS SOFT COMPARED TO THAT," HE SAID. "I LOST 30 POUNDS WORKING WITH THOSE BOYS. YOU HAD TO BE TOUGH TO STAY IN THE LEAGUE. IN ONE CLASS 500 PICKED MEN WERE CHOSEN FOR TRAINING. ONLY HALF OF THEM LASTED THROUGH THE COURSE."

HE CAME TO NORTH AFRICA IN APRIL TO DIRECT THE ARMY'S STREET FIGHTING SCHOOL.

COKER HAD A FLOCK OF TEXANS WITH HIM, BRECKENRIDGE WAS WELL REPRESENTED WITH SGT. JOHN C."PETE" SIKES, SGT.HENRY "GUNNY" GUNLOCK, PVT. SYDNEY "BLUBBER" HARRIS, SGT. WILLIAM A.PRUITT, CORP. CLYDE W. DEMASTERS, CORP. PAUL R.DELONG, AND SGT. ORBY LEDBETTER.

"WE ALL WENT INTO THE ARMY ABOUT THE SAME TIME AND WE'VE STUCK TOGETHER," HARRIS SAID. "I RECKNON WE'VE HAD MORE THAN A HUNDRED STREET FIGHTS OURSELVES SHOWING 'EM HOW IT'S DONE."

"NONE OF US KNEW WHAT TRAINING MEANT UNTIL WE GOT INTO THIS," SAID PVT. RAYMOND E. "ARKANSAS" ELMS OF FORT WORTH." DAMNED IF I EVER SAW ANYTHING LIKE IT."

"ARKANSAS" WAS RIGHT. AMERICAN TROOPS NEVER HAD BEEN TRAINED IN SUCH A REALISTIC FASHION.

JUL 13 1943

I WATCHED THEM DEMONSTRATE ONE AFTERNOON FOR A COMPANY JUST ENTERING THE SCHOOL. WHILE A MACHINEGUNNER POURED A HAIL OF BULLETS DOWN THE MAIN STREET OF SHANYTOWN AND RIFLEMEN FIRED INTO THE STREET, THE TEXANS MADE THEIR ATTACK.

FROM THE COVER OF UNDERBRUSH, TWO MEN DASHED AROUND THE CORNER OF A BUILDING AND, SHOOTING AS THEY RAN, JUMPED INTO A DOORWAY. UNDER PROTECTIVE FIRE, TWO OTHERS CAME FROM THE OTHER SIDE OF THE STREET AND LEAPED THROUGH THE DOORWAY OF ANOTHER BUILDING, A STRUCTURE WILH OND WALL REMOVED SO OBSERVERS COULD SEE HOW THEY OPERATED.

THE MEN SWEPT THE TWO ROOMS ON THE GROUND FLOOR WITH FIRE AND THEN CLIMBED THE STAIRS, JUMPING THROUGH DOORWAYS IN A CROUCH WHILE FIRING TOMMYGUNS FROM THE HI. THEY SIGNALED AT A WINDOW WHEN THE BUILDINGS WERE CLEAR.

JUL 13 1943

THEN IN PAIRS OTHERS BEGAN RUNNING INTO THE OCCUPIED BUILDINGS, AND WORKING THEIR WAY DOWN THE STREET DOOR BY DOOR UNDER COVERING FIRE FROM THOSE ON THE OPPOSITE SIDES OF THE STREET. THE EXPLOSION OF HAND GRENADES AND THE CRACKLE OF GUNFIRE ADDED REALISM.

ONE MAN FELL ON HIS FACE IN THE BULLET-SWEPT STREET. THE ATTACKERS WHO FOLLOWED JUMPED OVER HIS BODY AND CONTINUED THEIR ASSAULT. I THOUGHT HE WAS SHOT, BUT HE WAS A MOCK CASUAWOY. A TROOPER WITH A RED CROSS BAND ON HIS ARM DASHED UP TO DRAG THE MAN INTO THE PROTECTION OF A DOORWAY.

"THE MEN MUST NEVER STOP TO PICK UP A CASUALTY," COKER EXPLAINED. "THAT'S WHAT THE ENEMY WANTS. IT EXPOSES THE MEN TO FIRE, AND IF TWO MEN STOP TO PICK UP ONE WOUNDED MAN, THAT MEANS THREE MEN ARE OUT OF THE FIGHT. THEY MUST LEAVE THE WOUNDED FOR THE FIRST AID MEN TRAINED TO TAKE CARE OF THEM."

JUL 13 1943

(EDITOR'S NOTE--NOW THAT THE ALLIED INVASION OF SICILY IS UNDER WAY, THE STORY OF THE MONTHS OF CAREFUL PLANNING AND THE INTENSIVE TRAINING GIVEN THE TROOPS PARTICIPATING IN THE INVASION CAN BE TOLD. DON WHITEHEAD, ASSOCIATED PRESS WAR CORRESPONDENT IN NORTH AFRICA, WAS PERMITTED TO WITNESS THESE SECRET PREPARATIONS. IN THE FOLLOWING DISPATCH, JUST RELEASED BY U.S.ARMY FIELD CENSORS, HE TLLS FOR THE FIRST TIME WHAT WENT ON BEHIND THE SCENES IN AFRICA BEFORE THE INVASION COULD BE LAUNCHED.)

BY DON WHITEHEAD

AT THE AMERICAN ARMY'S INVASION TRAINING CENTER, NORTH AFRICA, (DELAYED)-(AP)-LONG BEFORE ALLIED TROOPS SMASHED THE AXIS ARMIES IN TUNISIA, THE AMERICAN ARMY IN NORTH AFRICA WAS PREPARING FOR THE MOVE AGAINST HITLER'S EUROPEAN FORTRESS IN WHAT PROBABLY WAS THE GRIMMEST, MOST AMAZING WAR SCHOOL ON ALL THIS CONTINENT.

DIVISION BY DIVISION, YOUTHS FROM THE FARMS AND CITIES, THE HILLS AND PLAINS OF AMERICA POURED THROUGH THIS ARMY INVASION TRAINING CENTER ON THE MEDITERRANEAN.

THEIR'S WAS NO PLAYTIME MANEUVERING. THE GRUELLING WORK UNDER A HOT SUN THAT SENT THE MERCURY HOVERING NEAR 100 DEGREES IN THE SHADE WAS DEADLY SERIOUS, DANGEROUS AND REALISTIC, SO REALISTIC AT TIMES THAT THOSE WHO FELL TO THE GROUND WERE NOT ALWAYS FEIGNING INJURY. REALISM WAS AN ESSENTIAL IN CONDITIONING THE TROOPS--MOST OF THEM INEXPERIENCED--FOR ACTUAL COMBAT.

HERE THEY LEARNED THE MOST HAZARDOUS OPERATION AN ARMY CAN ATTEMPT --LEARNED UNDER FIRE OF LIVE AMMUNITION TO STORM BEACHES LIKE THOSE THAT LAY ACROSS THE BLUE SEA'S HORIZON UNDER THE MUZZLES OF ENEMY GUNS, LEARNED HOW TO CRACK BEACH DEFENSES AND WIDEN THE CRACK FOR A FLOOD OF ALLIED TROOPS, GUNS, TANKS AND SUPPLIES TO FOLLOW.

AND IN THIS SCHOOL AN ARMY WAS GROUNDED IN THE HIGHLY SPECIALIZED TECHNIQUE OF INVASION OPERATIONS, THE FIRST ENTIRE AMERICAN ARMY TO BE HARDENED FOR THE GREAT ALLIED MOVE AGAINST THE CONTINENT.

JUL 13 1943

A CLOAK OF SECRECY WAS THROWN AROUND THESE FEVERISH ADVANCE PREPARATIONS. NONE BUT THOSE WITH SPECIAL PERMISSION WAS ALLOWED WITHIN THE TRAINING BOUNDARIES TO SEE WHAT WAS GOING ON. WAR CORRESPONDENTS WERE NOT PERMITTED TO MENTION THE SCHOOLING IN THEIR DISPATCHES. INSTRUCTION WAS BASED ON THE EXPERIENCES OF THE AMERICANS AND BRITISH AT DIEPPE AND IN THE NORTH AFRICAN INVASION LAST NOVEMBER. THE AMERICAN HIGH COMMAND LEARNED MANY THINGS IN THE AFRICAN INVASION, PROBABLY THE MOST IMPORTANT THAT MINUTE ADVANCE PLANNING IS ESSENTIAL WITH CLOSE COORDINATION OF LAND, AIR AND SEA FORCES--AND THAT TROOPS MUST HAVE PRACTICE IN BEACH LANDINGS COUPLED WITH TRAINING IN WHAT TO DO AFTER THEY REACH SHORE.

WEAKNESSES IN THE NOVEMBER OPERATION WERE STUDIED AND EFFORTS MADE TO ELIMINATE THEM. NEW IDEAS WERE ADOPTED AND WOVEN INTO THE TRAINING FABRIC.

AND SO, ALONG A PICTURESQUE STRETCH OF WHITE BEACHES WASHED BY THE MEDITERRANEAN--A SETTING FOR A SUMMER IDYLL RATHER THAN THE RATTLE OF MACHINEGUNS AND THE CRASH OF SHELLS--TAN, TOUGHENED AMERICAN YOUTHS RECEIVED THEIR FINAL DRILLS FOR INVASION.

DAY AND NIGHT THE TRAINING AREAS SPREAD ALONG 100 MILES OF COASTLINE SWARMED WITH ARMED MEN. TRUCKS LOADED WITH TROOPS ROARED UP AND

30.24-5979

DOWN THE BEACH ROADS. BEACHES WERE "FOUGHT OVER" DOZENS OF TIMES. ASSAULT BOATS AND VARIOUS TYPES OF LANDING CRAFT PRACTICED MANEUVERS AND LANDING OPERATIONS. WATERPROOFED TANKS, TRUCKS AND ARMED VEHICLES RAN, ALMOST SUBMERGED, THROUGH THE SURF, AND IN BULLET-RIDDLED "SHANTYTOWN" SQUADS LEARNED THE TECHNIQUE OF STREET FIGHTING WHILE LIVE AMMUNITION ZIPPED AROUND THEM.

HERE WAS LAID THE FOUNDATION OF THE PRESENT INVASION MOVE.

ABOUT A MONTH AFTER THE NORTH AFRICAN INVASION, EVEN WHILE THE ALLIED DRIVE ON TUNISIA WAS STALLED IN MUD, GENERAL EISENHOWER ISSUED A DIRECTIVE TO SET UP A SCHOOL FOR TRAINING TROOPS FOR INVASION.

HUNDREDS OF MILES OF NORTH AFRICAN COASTLINE WERE INSPECTED TO FIND THE TYPE OF BEACHES WANTED, BEACHES SIMILAR TO THOSE TO BE STORMED. THE AREA CHOSEN INCLUDED THE BEACH ON WHICH THE AMERICAN RANGERS FIRST LANDED IN THE NOVEMBER INVASION.

THE URGENCY OF GIVING GREATER NUMBERS OF TROOPS THIS TRAINING INCREASED WITH ALLIED SUCCESSES IN THE TUNISIAN CAMPAIGN. A SECOND COMBAT TEAM TRAINING AREA WAS OPENED PATTERENED ON THE SAME LINES AS THE ORIGINAL ONE, AND THEN A THIRD, SO THAT THREE REGIMENTAL COMBAT TEAMS COULD GO THROUGH THE CENTER SIMULTANEOUSLY ON TIME-TABLE SCHEDULE. PROBLEMS WERE PRACTICED BY SQUADS, PLATOONS, COMPANIES, BATTALIONS AND FINALLY BY REGIMENTS.

MANY TROOPS HAD RECEIVED AMPHIBIOUS TRAINING AT CAMPS IN THE UNITED STATES, BUT NONE HAD EVER BEFORE EXPERIENCED THE THOROUGHNESS AND REALISM OF THE TRAINING AT THIS INVASION CENTER WHICH TRIED TO ANTICIPATE EVERY OBSTACLE THE ENEMY COULD PUT IN THE WAY OF INVADING TROOPS --UNDERWATER OBSTACLES, BARBED WIRE, BEACH MINES, PILLBOXES, SHORE BATTERIES.

IT WAS ASSEMBLY-LINE TRAINING IN WHICH THE MEN LEARNED BY DOING. THE PURPOSE WAS TO GROUND THEM SO THOROUGLY IN INVASION OPERATIONS THAT WHEN THEY WENT INTO COMBAT THEY WOULD DO THE RIGHT THING AUTOMATICALLY BY APPLYING THE LESSONS LEARNED IN TRAINING.

AND THEY WERE TOUGHENED IN THE PROCESS. THE BIVOUAC AREA WAS ESTABLISHED PURPOSELY FOUR MILES FROM THE BEACHES SO THAT THE MEN HAD TO MARCH AT LEAST EIGHT MILES EACH DAY TO AND FROM THEIR PROBLEMS. WITH FULL FIELD PACK THEY RAN OBSTACLE COURSES OF DITCHES, WALLS, TUNNELS, BARBED WIRE AND OTHER BARRIERS.

JUL 13 1943

OVER AND OVER THE TROOPS PRACTICED LANDING OPERATIONS UNTIL EACH MAN KNEW EXACTLY WHAT HIS JOB WAS. I GOT A PREVUE OF A DAYLIGHT BEACH ASSAULT WHILE VISITING THE INVASION TRAINING CENTER, AN IDEA OF WHAT TO EXPECT WHEN THESE TROOPS WENT IN FOR THE REAL DRIVE.

THE MORNING MISTS WERE JUST CLEARING FROM THE SEA WHEN THE ASSAULT CRAFT APPEARED, TRAILING WHITE-FEATHERED WATER IN THEIR WAKE.

IN ACTUAL OPERATION, THE NAVY'S WARSHIPS WOULD HAVE BEEN ON THE HORIZON POURING FIRE INTO SHORE, POUNDING ENEMY SHORE BATTERIES AND STRONGPOINTS.

ABOUT A HALF MILE FROM SHORE, BATTERIES OF MORTARS ABOARD THE ASSAULT CRAFT OPENED UP WITH A BARRAGE OF SMOKE SHELLS. SOON THE BEACH AND HILLSIDE BEHIND WERE ENVELOPED IN WHITE SMOKE SHIELDING THE APPROACHING CRAFT FROM VIEW OF THOSE ON LAND. SMOKE BOILED UP FROM BURNING BRUSH AND GRASS.

THE FLAT-BOTTOMED ASSAULT BOATS BEACHED AND TROOPS SWARMED DOWN RAMPS INTO HIP-DEEP WATER AND WADED ASHORE. ENGINEERS BLEW LANES

JUL 13 1943

THROUGH A BARBED WIRE ENTANGLEMENT AND THE TROOPS RAN THROUGH UNDER COVER OF MACHINEGUN FIRE. MORTAR SQUADS SET UP THEIR WEAPONS AT THE WATER'S EDGE AND BEGAN LOBBING SHELLS AT ENEMY "POSITIONS." MACHINEGUN SQUADS DASHED INTO POSITION ON THE FLANKS TO GIVE COVERING FIRE TO LANDING TROOPS.

JUL 13 1943

INTO THE BEACH CAME LARGER SHIPS WITH HEAVY MACHINEGUN SQUADS AND NEW WAVES OF TROOPS, SOME WITH HEAVY MORTARS. SOON THE ATTACKERS' MACHINE GUNS WERE FIRING FROM THE RIDGE ABOVE THE BEACH WHILE TROOPS CLAMBERED UP THE SLOPES. THEY FANNED OUT THROUGH THE PALL OF SMOKE, DASHING THROUGH THE SMOKE SCREEN LIKE WRAITHS. THEY SCRAMBLED UNDER ROADWAY CULVERTS, RAN CROUCHING UNDER COVER OF PROTECTIVE ROCKS AND DITCHES, AND CRAWLED ACROSS EXPOSED PLACES TOWARD THEIR OBJECTIVES.

THIS WAS A PREVUE FOR INVASION AT AMERICA'S GREATEST INVASION TRAINING CENTER.

SOUTH PACIFIC HEADQUARTERS, JULY 12-(AP)-ADMIRAL WILLIAM F. HALSEY YESTERDAY PINNED THE NAVY'S DISTINGUISHED SERVICE MEDAL ON LIEUT.GENERAL MILLARD F.HARMON TO WHOM HE REFERRED AS A "ROCK OF GIBRALTAR."

JUL 13 1943

AWARD OF THE MEDAL TO THE COMMANDER OF THE ARMY AIR AND GROUND FORCES IN THE SOUTH PACIFIC, WAS ANNOUNCED LAST APRIL. THE CITATION, SIGNED BY NAVY SECRETARY FRANK KNOX FOR PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, SAID THAT HARMON HAD DEMONSTRATED "EXCEPTIONAL INITIATIVE AND CAPABILITIES IN ORGANIZING, PLANNING AND COMMANDING HIS FORCES" AND "CONTRIBUTED IMMEASURABLY TO THE SUCCESS OF THE SOLOMON ISLAND CAMPAIGN."

GENERAL HARMON WENT ASHORE WITH UNITED STATES TROOPS AT RENDOVA JUNE 30 AND STARTED BACK ON THE TRANSPORT MCCAWLEY BUT TRANSFERRED TO ANOTHER SHIP AFTER TORPEDO BOMBERS ATTACKED THE MCCAWLEY. THE TRANSPORT LATER WAS SUNK BY A SUBMARINE.

KIRIWINA ISLAND, TROBRIAND GROUP, JULY 2 -(DELAYED)-(AP)- CORPORAL HUBERT WERMERSKIRCHEN, 28, OF 1125 DRUMMOND PLACE, CHICAGO, IS THE FIRST WHITE MAN EVER TO EXPERIENCE A MAJOR SURGICAL OPERATION IN THE TROBRIAND ISLANDS. HE UNDERWENT AN EMERGENCY APPENDECTOMY.

WERMERSKIRCHEN ARRIVED JUNE 30 WITH THE SIXTH ARMY TASK FORCE WHICH TOOK OVER THE TROBRIANDS.

TAKEN ILL DURING THE EVENING, HE WAS CARRIED TO A PORTABLE HOSPITAL UNIT WHICH ALSO HAD JUST ARRIVED AND HAD ESTABLISHED ITSELF WITHIN THREE HOURS IN A SMALL MISSIONARY BUILDING, ONE OF THE FEW FRAME HOUSES OF THE ISLAND.

MAJOR JOHN W.HUNTER,JR., OF 3412 MONTEVALLO ROAD, BIRMINGHAM, ALA., SURGEON IN CHARGE OF THE UNIT, DIAGNOSED WERMERSKIRCHEN'S AILMENT AS APPENDICITIS AND DECIDED AN IMMEDIATE OPERATION WAS IMPERATIVE.I WITH WINDOWS HEAVILY BLANKETED FOR BLACKOUT AND UNDER THE DIM LIGHT OF LANTERNS, THE OPERATION WAS PERFORMED. ASSISTING PHYSICIANS WERE CAPTAIN GEORGE KNOLL OF ALLENTOWN,PA.; CAPTAIN J. K.GRAU OF BEAVER FALLS,PA., AND FIRST LIEUTENANT PAUL TOMA OF GRANITE,OKLA.

THE AUSTRALIAN ADMINISTRATOR OF THE ISLANDS WHO HAS BEEN HERE FOR 25 YEARS, SAID WERMERSKIRCHEN WAS THE AREA'S FIRST AMERICAN HOSPITAL PATIENT. A FEW HOURS AFTER THE OPERATION, THE SOLDIER WAS ABLE TO SEE HIS FRIENDS. THE DOCTOR SAID E WAS GETTING ALONG WELL.

NIGHT LEAD MUNDA

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, JULY 13-(TUESDAY)-(AP)-MUNDA, JAPAN'S KEY AIR BASE IN THE CENTRAL SOLOMONS, WAS THE CENTRAL TARGET FOR HEAVY BOMBINGS FOR THE THIRD STRAIGHT DAY AS REPORTS FROM GUADALCANAL YESTERDAY SAID THAT THE ZERO HOUR APPEARED NEAR FOR THE AMERICAN LAND DRIVE TO PUSH THE JAPANESE FROM THE AREA.

THE GUADALCANAL REPORTS SAID THAT THE U.S. ARMY'S INVASION FORCES ON NEW GEORGIA ISLAND WERE CREEPING THROUGH THE JUNGLE LESS THAN TWO MILES EAST OF THE MUNDA AIR STRIP. THIS WAS A GAIN OF A MILE IN THE LAST FEW DAYS. OTHER AMERICANS WERE CLOSING IN ON MUNDA FROM THE NORTH.

WHILE THE JUNGLE TROOPS WERE PUSHING FORWARD, ALLIED BOMBERS CONTINUED POUNDING AT THE ENEMY DEFENSES TO SOFTEN THEM FOR THE ATTACK BY THE INFANTRY. IN THREE DAYS 189 TONS OF BOMBS WERE DROPPED UPON THE JAPANESE AT THE MUNDA BASE.

THIS INCLUDED 52 TONS DROPPED SUNDAY WHEN MORE THAN 176 TONS WERE LOOSED UPON SOUTH PACIFIC STRONGHOLDS OF THE ENEMY AND AT LEAST NINE ZEROS WERE SHOT DOWN AS THEY ATTEMPTED TO INTERCEPT THE RAIDERS. ALLIED LOSSES WERE TWO FIGHTERS AND ONE LIBERATOR BOMBER.

IN THE OTHER SUNDAY RAIDS LIBERATORS STRUCK AT THE KAHILI AIRDROME, ON BOUGAINVILLE ISLAND IN THE NORTHERN SOLOMONS, WITH 40 TONS, AND AT THE VUNAKANAU FIELD AT RABAUL WITH 35 TONS. RABAUL, ON NEW BRITAIN ISLAND, NORTHWEST OF THE SOLOMONS AND NORTH OF NEW GUINEA, IS THE MAIN JAPANESE BASE IN THE SOUTH PACIFIC.

IN OTHER GROUND ACTION ON NEW GEORGIA U.S. MARINES BLOCKADED THE BAIROKO-MUNDA ROAD ON THE KULA GULF SIDE OF THE ISLAND'S BLUNT WESTERN PENINSULA. THIS WAS THE LAST REMAINING LAND SUPPLY ROUTE FOR THE BELEAGUERED JAPANESE AT MUNDA.

SEVERAL HUNDRED MILES TO THE SOUTH, IN NEW GUINEA, MITCHELL BOMBERS, ESCORTED BY P-38'S, ATTACKED FROM ALMOST TREE-TOP LEVELS WITH 49 TONS OF BOMBS ALONG THE TRAIL FROM MUBO TO SALAMAUA, MAIN ENEMY BASE ON THE NORTHEAST COAST. FIVE JAPANESE FIGHTERS WERE SHOT DOWN IN THAT ACTION. TWO OF OUR FIGHTERS WERE MISSING.

THE ENEMY ALSO LOST AT LEAST FOUR ZEROS WHILE ATTEMPTING TO INTERCEPT ANOTHER ALLIED BOMBING AT BOBO, DUTCH NEW GUINEA, WHERE EXTENSIVE FIRES ZERE STARTED. ONE LIBERATOR BOMBER WAS LOST IN THE RAID.

FROM THE SOUTH PACIFIC HEADQUARTERS THE FIRST WORD WAS RECEIVED CAPTAIN CHARLES P.CECIL, SKIPPER OF THE LIGHT CRUISER HELENA, HAD SURVIVED THE SINKING OF HIS SHIP IN THE BATTLE OF KULA GULF ON JULY 6. HE SAID THE HELENA HAD SUNK THREE DESTROYERS AND TWO OTHER WARSHIPS, PROBABLY CRUISERS, BEFORE IT WENT DOWN. DETAILS OF THAT BATTLE, IN WHICH THE ENEMY LOST FROM NINE TO ELEVEN SHIPS, HAD BEEN ANNOUNCED IN THE JULY 8 COMMUNIQUE FROM THE HEADQUARTERS OF GENERAL DOUGLAS MAC ARTHUR.

IT WAS CLEAR HE WAS DEEPLY PROUD OF WHAT THE HELENA HAD DONE BEFORE THE TORPEDOES ENDED HER.

IN CAPTAIN CECIL'S OWN ESTIMATE, THE HELENA SANK THREE DESTROYERS, TWO SHIPS HE BELIEVED TO BE CRUISERS AND WAS LAYING SALVOS INTO A THIRD WHEN THE HELENA WAS HIT FATALLY. OTHER AMERICAN WARSHIPS ALSO PLAYED GALLANT ROLES IN THE ACTION, BUT NATURALLY THEY CANNOT BE NAMED.

JUL 13 1943

"WE APPROACHED KULA GULF FROM THE EAST," CAPTAIN CECIL RECOUNTED, "TRAVELING AT HIGH SPEED AND HOPING TO MEET A JAPANESE SURFACE FORCE. PRILR TO 2 A.M. ON THE SIXTH, WE ESTABLISHED CONTACT AND IN A VERY FEW MINUTES OUR ATTACK PLAN WAS ANNOUNCED AND EXECUTED.

"ON THE INITIAL SALVOS, ALL OUR SHIPS GUNS WENT OFF IMMEDIATELY AS IF A KEY HAD BEEN PRESSED. MY SHIP WAS CONFIDENT IT HIT THE RANGE ON THE VERY FIRST SALVO AND IN A SHORT SPACE OF TIME OUR FIRST TARGET, BELIEVED TO HAVE BEEN A CRUISER, DISAPPEARED FROM THE SURFACE OF THE OCEAN.

JUL 13 1943

"WE CHECKED FIRE BRIEFLY, FOUND ANOTHER TARGET AND IT, TOO, SOON DISAPPEARED. WE CHECKED FIRE AGAIN, SWITCHED TO A THIRD BIG ONE AND HAD FIRED SEVERAL SALVOS WHEN WE RAN INTO ENEMY TORPEDOES WHICH SUCCESSFULLY KNOCKED US OUT.

"IT WAS DARK, AND THE FIRE FROM THE GUNS WAS BLINDING.I THERE WAS NO CHANCE OF SEEING ANY OF THE TORPEDO WAKES -- AND THAT'S WHERE THE HELENA ENDED.

"IN THE MEANTIME OUR ANTI-AIRCRAFT BATTERIES, AIDING ANOTHER AMERICAN CRUISER, HAD BEEN WORKING ON A GROUP OF JAPANESE DESTROYERS. WE COULD SEE THE SHELLS ENROUTE TO THE TARGETS AND THERE WAS SUCH A CONTINUOUS FLOW, IT WAS HARD TO TELL WHO HIT WHAT.

"THE MAIN BATTERIES WERE NOT SUPPOSED TO FIRE AS MANY ROUNDS AS THE SECONDARY BUT THEY SEEMED TO ME TO BE POURING OUT TWO TO ONE OVER THE SECONDARY."

JUL 13 1943

THE CAPTAIN SAID THERE WAS NO FIRE OR EXPLOSION ON THE HELENA AND SHE "WENT DOWN QUIETLY." HE SAID "THE MEN WERE QUIET AND EFFICIENT."

"THERE WAS NO COMMOTION AND THERE WAS SOME UNUSUAL COURAGE," HE CONTINUED. "ONE SEAMAN MADE WHAT I CALLED A 'CURIOSITY CRUISE' OVER THE SHIP AFTER WE WERE HIT, JUST TO SEE WHAT DAMAGE HAD BEEN DONE AND HE TOOK HIS TIME ABOUT ABANDONING SHIP.

"ONCE IN THE WATER WE GOT GALLONS OF FUEL OIL IN OUR EYES. I SHOUTED 'PADDLE LIKE HELL STRAIGHT AWAY FROM THE SHIP.' JAPANESE SALVOS FELL ALL AROUND THE RAFTS AND BOATS AND IT TOOK ABOUT FIVE HOURS TO GET THEM RENDEZVOUSED."

CECIL DIDN'T MENTION IT, BUT ANOTHER SURVIVOR TOLD HOW, BECAUSE THE RAFTS WERE OVERCROWDED THE CAPTAIN REFUSED TO TAKE HIS TURN ON GETTING IN A BOAT AND INSISTED ON STAYING IN THE WATER AND HANGING ON TO A ROPE.

FIFTEEN HOURS AFTER THE SHIP SANK, HIS GROUP MADE SHORE AND SET UP CAMP. HE FILIPINO COOK PROMPTLY SKINNED UP A COCONUT TREE AND GOT SOME GREEN "DRINKS" BECAUSE EVERYBODY WAS EXTREMELY THIRSTY.

OTTAWA, JULY 12-(AP)-PRIME MINISTER W.L.MACKENZIE KING TOLD THE HOUSE OF COMMONS TODAY THAT THE "FIRST CRITICAL PERIOD HAS PASSED" FOR THE CANADIANS ENGAGED WITH ALLIED FORCES IN THE INVASION OF SICILY BUT "THE MOST CRITICAL PERIOD IS TO COME."

OTTAWA, JULY 12-(AP)-PRIME MINISTER MACKENZIE KING SAID IN THE HOUSE OF COMMONS TONIGHT THAT CANADA COULD NOT LONG DELAY FURTHER EXTENSION OF DIPLOMATIC REPRESENTATION IN LATIN AMERICA AND HE HOPED LEGATIONS IN CUBA AND PERU SOON WOULD BE OPENED.

KING SAID THERE SHOULD BE NO DELAY ABOUT ESTABLISHING A LEGATION IN MEXICO AND HE HOPED THAT PROVISION FOR THIS OFFICE WOULD BE MADE IN SUPPLEMENTARY ESTIMATES TO BE PLACED BEFORE THE HOUSE.

HE SAID THE GROWTH OF CANADIAN INTEREST IN LATIN-AMERICAN COUNTRIES

JUL 13 1943

HAD BEEN MATCHED BY THEIR INTEREST IN CANADA.

KING SAID LEGATIONS HAD BEEN ESTABLISHED IN ARGENTINA, BRAZIL AND CHILE, AND UNDER THE TRADE AND COMMERCE DEPARTMENT TRADE COMMISSIONERS WERE MAINTAINED IN CUBA, MEXICO, PANAMA--SHORTLY TO BE MOVED TO COLOMBIA--AND PERU.

JUL 13 1943

MANY DISTINGUISHED VISITORS FROM LATIN-AMERICAN COUNTRIES HAD BEEN WELCOMED IN CANADA, THE PRIME MINISTER SAID, ADDING THAT THINGS WHICH HAD BEEN ENCOURAGED IN COMMON BY LATIN AMERICAN COUNTRIES AND CANADA HAD BEEN THREATENED BY AGGRESSORS. IN THE POST-WAR ERA THERE WOULD BE MANY INTERESTS IN COMMON, AND THERE MUST BE JOINT AND EFFECTIVE INTEREST IN THE PEACE OF THIS HEMISPHERE. THERE HAD BEEN GROWTH IN GOODWILL AND KNOWLEDGE BETWEEN NATIONS OF THE HEMISPHERE.

OTTAWA, JULY 12-(AP)-PRIME MINISTER MACKENZIE KING SAID IN THE HOUSE OF COMMONS TONIGHT THAT A SHIP WILL MAKE A SECOND EXCHANGE TRIP TO JAPAN THIS SUMMER TO BRING HOME NATIONALS OF CANADA, THE UNITED STATES AND ONE LATIN AMERICAN COUNTRY.

THEY WILL BE EXCHANGED FOR JAPANESE IN NORTH AMERICA WHO WISH TO RETURN TO JAPAN, HE ADDED.

KING MADE THE STATEMENT DURING DISCUSSION OF EXTERNAL AFFAIRS ESTIMATES AFTER TELLING A QUESTIONER THAT NEGOTIATIONS WERE PROCEEDING FOR THE FURTHER EXCHANGE OF NATIONS WITH JAPAN.

THE SWEDISH LINER GRIPSHOLM MADE A TRIP TO JAPAN LAST YEAR TO BRING BACK REPATRIATED CANADIANS, AMERICANS AND NATIONALS OF OTHER COUNTRIES.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: COMMUNIQUES YESTERDAY AND TODAY FROM ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC ANNOUNCED CONTINUING PROGRESS IN THE AMERICAN DRIVE BY LAND AND AIR TO ELIMINATE THE JAPANESE FROM THEIR AIR BASE AT MUNDA ON THE NORTHWESTERN TIP OF NEW GEORGIA ISLAND. IN THE FOLLOWING DELAYED DISPATCH FROM AN OBSERVATION POINT FAR CLOSER TO THE SCENE OF ACTION, ASSOCIATED PRESS WAR CORRESPONDENT LEIF ERICKSON REPORTS IN GREATER DETAIL ON THE SAME PHASES OF THE BATTLE.)

BY LEIF ERICKSON

GUADALCANAL, JULY 10-(DELAYED)-(AP)-THE ZERO HOUR FOR THE FINAL DRIVE TO PUSH THE JAPANESE FROM MUNDA POINT APPEARED NEAR TONIGHT, WITH THE U.S. ARMY'S NEW GEORGIA INVASION TROOPS SWEEPING THROUGH THE JUNGLE LESS THAN TWO MILES FROM THE ENEMY'S PAINSTAKINGLY BUILT BUT LITTLE USED MUNDA LANDING STRIP.

OPPOSED BY ONLY A FEW ROUNDS OF ANTI-AIRCRAFT FIRE, NAVY DIVE AND TORPEDO BOMBERS SUPPORTING THE GROUND FORCES TODAY BLASTED THE ENEMY'S DEFENSIVE STRONGPOINTS NORTHEAST OF THE AIRFIELD WITH MERCILESS PRECISION FOR THE SECOND STRAIGHT DAY. ALL THE BOMBERS RETURNED TO THEIR BASE WITHOUT A SCRATCH.

ON THE KULA GULF SIDE OF NEW GEORGIA'S BLUNT WESTERN PENINSULA, MARINE RAIDERS BLOCKADED THE BAIROKO-MUNDA ROAD--THE LAST REMAINING SUPPLY ROUTE BY LAND TO MUNDA'S BELEAGUERED NIPPONESE GARRISON, WHICH NOW IS HELPLESSLY ABSORBING THE SAME KIND OF PUNISHMENT THAT JAPANESE BOMBERS INFLICTED ON BATAAN.

SOUTH PACIFIC AMPHIBIOUS FORCE HEADQUARTERS REPORTED THAT TWO JAPANESE SUPPLY PARTIES EN ROUTE FROM BAIROKO, ON KULA GULF, TO MUNDA WERE "TURNED AROUND" BY THE MARINES.

HEADQUARTERS SAID ALSO THAT THE MAIN AMERICAN ARMY FORCE CLOSING IN ON MUNDA FROM THE EAST HAD KNOCKED OUT AN ENEMY STRONGPOINT AT

JUL 13 1943

THE JUNCTION OF THE BARIKE RIVER AND A TRAIL RUNNING EAST FROM LAMBETI PLANTATION TO THE JUNGLE ZETTLEMENT OF ELALA.

THESE TROOPS CROSSED FROM PREVIOUSLY OCCUPPIED RENDOVA ISLAND BY WAY OF ONAIVISI INLET TO MAKE LANDINGS SINCE JULY 1 ON ROVIANA BEACH. OUR LINE NOW EXTENDS FROM THE BEACH DEEP INTO "OPEN JUNGLE."

JUL 13 1943

PUSHING THE FRONT STEADILY AHEAD WITH THE HELP OF MORTAR AND RIFLE FIRE, THE DOUGHBOYS HAVE ADVANCED CONSIDERABLY FROM THE ORIGINAL LANDING POINT EAST OF THE BARIKE RIVER.

THE COMMANDER OF THE RENDOVA TROOPS ADVISED AMPHIBIOUS FORCE HEADQUARTERS THAT HIS CASUALTIES IN BACKING THE ENEMY TOWARD MUNDA POINT HAD BEEN "VERY LIGHT." A HEADQUARTERS SPOKESMAN DESCRIBED THE "OPEN JUNGLE" SECTOR AS HAVING LARGE TREES BUT NOT VERY THICK VEGETATION AGROUND.

MAJOR RUSSELL RUPP, 28, OF TOLEDO, OHIO, A MARINE DIVE-BOMBING SQUADRON COMMANDER, SAID THAT ON TODAY'S MISSION HE SAW A MASS OF UPROOTED PALM TREES, AND OTHER DEBRIS AND A PROFUSION OF BOMB AND SHELL CRATERS IN THE MUNDA AREA.

"IT MAKES YOU WONDER HOW IN HECK THEY CAN HOLD OUT IN THERE," RUPP COMMENTED.

"BEFORE YESTERDAY'S RAID--THE GREATEST BOMBING STRIKE IN THE SOUTH PACIFIC WAR TO DATE--PILOTS OF THE DAUNTLESS DIVE-BOMBERS AND AVENGER TORPEDO BOMBERS OCCASIONALLY WERE GREETED BY FAIRLY HEAVY ANTI-AIRCRAFT FIRE OVER MUNDA.

JUL 13 1943

"THE ACK-ACK TODAY WAS VERY NIL," SAID LIEUTENANT (J.G.) BOB BERGERON, 23, OF BROCKTON, MASS., A DIVE-BOMBER PILOT. "IT WAS THE LEAST I'VE EVER SEEN UP THERE."

THE MAIN FORCE OF MARINES, WHICH HAS BEEN WORKING ITS WAY DOWN THE SHORE OF KULA GULF SINCE LANDING JULY 5 AT RICE ANCHORAGE, IS REPORTED TO HAVE PINNED THE RESISTING ENEMY TO THE EDGE OF DRAGON'S PENINSULA BETWEEN ENOGAI INLET AND BAIROKO HARBOR.

UNDATED DEFEAT

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

THE BERLIN RADIO, IN A ROME DISPATCH, MONDAY PICTURED FOR ITALIANS THE CONSEQUENCES OF DEFEAT, IN AN OBVIOUS EFFORT TO STIFFEN THEIR MORALE.

JUL 13 1943

THE BROADCAST, RECORDED BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS, SAID ROME NEWSPAPERS ENUMERATED 12 THINGS WHICH ITALIANS MUST EXPECT TO SUFFER IF THEY ACCEPTED DEFEAT. THE ALLIES HAVE ANNOUNCED THAT THEIR ONLY TERMS ARE UNCONDITIONAL SURRENDER OF THE AXIS, BUT THE 2 POINTS FAILED TO AGREE IN MANY PARTICULARS WITH PUBLIC PRONOUNCEMENTS OF ALLIED OFFICIALS. THE 12 POINTS WERE:

1. ITALY MUST SURRENDER ITS NAVY AND AIR FORCE.

2. ITALY MUST CEASE OPERATING METALLURGICAL AND MECHANICAL INDUSTRIES.

3. ITALY WOULD HAVE TO REDUCE ITS ARMED FORCES TO MERE POLICE.

4. ITALY MUST SURRENDER PANTELLERIA, TOBRUK, LA MADDALENA (SARDINIA) AND OTHER STRATEGIC BASES TO ENGLAND.

5. ISTRIA (THE AREA OF NORTHEASTERN ITALY) ALONG WITH TRIESTE AND POLA ON THE ADRIATIC MUST BE CEDED TO YUGOSLAVIA.

6. SEVERAL ISLANDS IN THE IONIAN AND AEGEAN SEAS MUST BE RENOUNCED TO GREECE.

7. ITALY MUST RENOUNCE CLAIMS ON ITS COLONIAL EMPIRE, INCLUDING LIBYA.

8. ITALY WILL BE SCRATCHED FROM THE LIST OF BIG POWERS.

9. ITALY MUST SUFFER MILITARY OCCUPATION FOR AN INDEFINITE PERIOD.

10. ITALY MUST CEASE TO GROW GRAIN AND CONVERT ITS AGRICULTURAL

JUL 13 1943

INDUSTRY TO THE GROWING OF VEGETABLES.

11. SHE MUST CLOSE MANY UNIVERSITIES.

12. SHE MUST CEASE ALL TEACHING OF CLASSIC HISTORY AND LITERATURE TO PREVENT ITALIAN YOUTH FROM BEING IMBUED WITH THE HISTORIC GREATNESS OF ROME.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA--FOURTH ADD SECOND (CORRECT) LEAD INVASION.

JUL 13 1943

THE STRONG FORCE OF FLYING FORTRESSES IN THEIR BOMBING OF THE CATANIA RAILWAY YARDS, WAREHOUSE AND STORAGE AREAS SHOT DOWN SEVEN OF 20 ENEMY PLANES WHICH INTERCEPTED.

SEEKING TO TIGHTEN A BLOCKADE OF SICILY, BEAUFIGHTERS HUNTED THE TYRRHENIAN SEA NORTH OF THE ISLAND AND ONE FORMATION SANK ONE SMALL MERCHANT VESSEL AND LEFT A SECOND AFLAME, WHILE ANOTHER FORMATION LEFT A THIRD MERCHANT SHIP AND A DESTROYER STATIONARY AFTER AN ATTACK.

FOR THE FIRST TIME ALLIED AIR FORCE HEADQUARTERS OFFICIALLY DESCRIBED THE TACTICS OF THE A-36 MUSTANGS AS THOSE OF "DIVE BOMBERS."

THE RAF STILL MAINTAINS THAT SPECIALLY BUILT DIVE-BOMBERS, SUCH AS THE GERMAN STUKA, ARE NOT AS EFFECTIVE AS THE FIGHTER BOMBER, SUCH AS THE WARHAWK, HURRICANE OR LIGHTNING. ALTHOUGH THE MUSTANG HAS DIVE BREAKS SIMILAR TO THOSE ON THE STUKA THE RAF STILL TERMS IT A FIGHTER-BOMBER.

SUPPLEMENTING THE MUSTANG DIVE-BOMBERS OR FIGHTER-BOMBERS, LONG-RANGE LIGHTNINGS YESTERDAY HARRIED ENEMY GROUND FORCES AND DESTROYED SCORES OF TRUCKS. ONE FORMATION BOMBED BARRACKS SOUTHWEST OF VIZZINI AND CALTAGIRONE.

JUL 13 1943

THE FOLLOWING SEVEN FORTRESS GUNNERS WERE CREDITED WITH VICTORIES IN THE CATANIA FIGHT: SERGEANTS EMMETT F.HAMILTON OF FERRYVILLE, LA., GEORGE P.HARRIS OF LACONA, MO., B.A.HARPER OF 309 MADISON ST., WOOD RIVER, ILL., T.E.GAERTNER OF SHARON CITY, OHIO, HENRY E.WEST OF

JUL 13 1943

ARRAYED UNDER THE COMMAND OF GEN. DWIGHT D.EISENHOWER IN HIS OPENING DRIVE TO STORM THE FORTRESS OF EUROPE IS THE SAME GALAXY OF BRILLIANT AND HARD-HITTING BRITISH AND AMERICAN LEADERS WHO WON THE BATTLE OF NORTH AFRICA.

HERE IS A QUICK GLIMPSE OF THE MEN DIRECTING THE BATTLE OF SICILY:

LIEUT.GEN.GEORGE SMITH PATTON, JR., UNITED STATES -- "BLOOD AND GUTS" PATTON, HE COMMANDED THE SECOND U.S. CORPS DURING THE BATTLE FOR TUNISIA. HE IS NOW COMMANDING GENERAL OF THE AMERICAN FORCES IN SICILY. FIFTY-SEVEN YEARS OLD, HE WON THE DISTINGUISHED SERVICE CROSS IN THE LAST WAR DURING WHICH HE SERVED WITH THE NEWLY FORMED TANK CORPS. A 1909 WEST POINT GRADUATE, HE STARTED HIS ARMY CAREER IN THE CAVALRY BUT THE TANK CORPS BECAME HIS "BABY" AND HE STAYED WITH IT AFTER THE ARMISTICE. HE TRAINED THE FIRST ARMORED CORPS FOR SERVICE IN AFRICA BY MANEUVERS IN THE CALIFORNIA DESERT. HE WAS IN MOROCCO WHEN EISENHOWER DRAFTED HIM FOR THE TUNISIAN CAMPAIGN.

GEN.SIR HAROLD ALEXANDER, BRITAIN--DEPUTY COMMANDER IN CHIEF UNDER EISENHOWER, HE WAS IN COMMAND OF ALL ALLIED GROUND FORCES IN THE NORTH AFRICAN THEATER. HE WAS THE LAST MAN TO LEAVE THE BEACHES AT DUNKERQUE. HIS MOTTO IS "ATTACK, ATTACK, AND ATTACK AGAIN." HE COMMANDED BRITISH TROOPS IN BURMA DURING THEIR LONG RETREAT, OUTNUMBERED THREE

TO ONE, BUT GOT FOUR-FIFTHS OF THEM BACK TO INDIA. HE SUCCEEDED GEN. SIR CLAUDE AUCHINLECK AS BRITISH COMMANDER IN CHIEF IN THE MIDDLE EAST IN AUG., 1942. HE IS 52.

SIR ANDREW BROWNE CUNNINGHAM, BRITAIN--COMMANDER IN CHIEF OF THE MEDITERRANEAN. "ANDREW B.", AS HE IS KNOWN THROUGHOUT THE BRITISH NAVY, IS THE MAN WHOSE TORPEDO PLANES RIDDLED THE ITALIAN NAVY AT TARANTO IN 1940, AND WHOSE OUTNUMBERED SURFACE UNITS DECISIVELY WHIPPED THE ITALIANS OFF CAPE MATAPAN IN 1941. HE WAS IN WASHINGTON EARLY LAST YEAR AS HEAD OF AN ADMIRALTY DELEGATION, GOING THERE FROM THE MEDITERRANEAN WHERE HE WAS IN COMMAND OF THE BRITISH FLEET FROM THE BEGINNING OF THE WAR. HIS SHIPS SANK 1,000,000 TONS OF AXIS SHIPPING IN THE MEDITERRANEAN IN 1941.

GEN.SIR BERNARD LAW MONTGOMERY, BRITAIN--COMMANDER IN CHIEF OF THE BRITISH FORCES IN THE BATTLE OF SICUL

JUL 13 1943

GEN.SIR BERNARD LAW MONTGOMERY, BRITAIN--COMMANDER IN CHIEF OF THE BRITISH FORCES IN THE BATTLE OF SICILY. HE IS COMMANDER OF THE FAMOUS EIGHTH ARMY WHICH DROVE FROM EGYPT TO TUNISIA IN ONE OF THE GREATEST MILITARY FEATS OF ALL TIME. AN ARMY MAN 35 OF HIS 55 YEARS, HE WAS COMMANDER OF BRITAIN'S SOUTHEAST ARMY IN ENGLAND IN THE SUMMER OF 1942 AND WENT TO THE EIGHTH ARMY TO HELP ALEXANDER HALT ROMMEL'S PUSH TO THE NILE. WOUNDED TWICE IN THE LAST WAR, HE WON THE DISTINGUISHED SERVICE ORDER AND THE FRENCH MILITARY CROSS.

ADMIRAL SIR BERTRAM RAMSAY, BRITAIN-- NAVAL COMMANDER UNDER CUNNINGHAM, HE ENTERED THE ROYAL NAVY IN 1898 AND HAS BEEN WITH IT EVER SINCE. IS 60 YEARS OLD AND HAS BEEN ON NAVAL MISSIONS AROUND THE WORLD. IN THE FIRST WORLD WAR HE COMMANDED H.M.S.BROKE IN THE DOVER PATROL AND AT THE OPENING OF THE PRESENT WAR WAS FLAG OFFICER COMMANDING AT THE DOVER STATION.

AIR CHIEF MARSHAL SIR ARTHUR WILLIAM TEDDER, BRITAIN--SMALL, SOFT-SPOKEN SCOT WHO IS AIR COMMANDER IN CHIEF OF THE MEDITERRANEAN AIR COMMAND DURING THE PRESENT OPERATIONS. WAS BRITISH AIR OFFICER COMMANDING IN CHIEF IN THE MIDDLE EAST DURING THE TWO LIBYAN CAMPAIGNS OF 1942. THE BRITISH TRIUMPH OF NOV. 1942, WHEN ROMMEL'S ARMIES WERE COMPLETELY ROUTED, WAS, IN LARGE PART, DUE TO HIS REORGANIZATION OF AIR STRATEGY TO BRING ABOUT PERFECT COORDINATION OF TIMING AND EFFORT WITH THE GROUND FORCES OF SIR HAROLD ALEXANDER. TEDDER IS 53 YEARS OLD, DOESN'T LOOK IT. HIS MEN CALL HIM "THE CHIEF."

LIEUT.GEN.CARL A.SPAATZ, UNITED STATES-- CAME OUT OF WEST POINT AS A SECOND LIEUTENANT OF INFANTRY AGED 23, IN 1914 AND WAS POSTED TO HAWAII. HIS EYES WERE SKYWARD EVEN THEN, AND IN 1916 HE WAS ONE OF THE FIRST 125 ARMY MEN TO WIN THEIR WINGS IN THE NEW FIRST AERO SQUADRON. WENT TO FRANCE IN 1917 AS A CAPTAIN, AND HELPED BUILD UP WHAT BECAME THE WORLD'S LARGEST AVIATION SCHOOL AT ISSOUDON, FRANCE.

HE STAYED WITH THE AIR FORCE AFTER THE FIRST WORLD WAR, AND IN 1935 ENROLLED IN THE COMMAND AND GENERAL STAFF SCHOOL. COMPLETING THE COURSE THE NEXT YEAR HE WAS SENT TO LANGLEY FIELD, AND FROM THERE TO THE OFFICE OF THE CHIEF OF AIR CORPS. IN ENGLAND IN 1940 AS SPECIAL MILITARY OBSERVER HE WAS NAMED CHIEF OF THE AIR STAFF IN JULY, 1941.

30.24-5987

AFTER PEARL HARBOR HE TOOK OVER THE COMBAT COMMAND. BACK TO ENGLAND IN 1942, HE WAS APPOINTED COMMANDER OF THE AMERICAN AIR FORCES IN THE EUROPEAN THEATER JUST A YEAR AGO THIS MONTH. HE TOOK OVER THE NORTHWEST AFRICAN AIR FORCE IN JANUARY OF THIS YEAR.

JUL 13 1943

MAJ.GEN.JAMES H.DOOLITTLE, UNITED STATES-- "JIMMY" DOOLITTLE QUIT THE ARMY ONCE--IN FEB. 1930. REASON--ADVANCED AGE. HE HAD JUST PASSED HIS 33RD BIRTHDAY. WAS RECALLED TO ACTIVE SERVICE IN 1940 AS A MAJOR IN THE AIR CORPS RESERVE AND WAS MADE A LIEUT.COL.EARLY IN 1942. THE NEXT THE NATION HEARD OF THE PRESENT COMMANDING GENERAL OF THE STRATEGIC AIR FORCE, WAS THE ANNOUNCEMENT ON MAY 19, 1942 THAT HE HAD LED THE BOMBING ON TOKYO A MONTH BEFORE. GOT THE CONGRESSIONAL MEDAL OF HONOR FOR THAT FEAT AND WAS SOON PROMOTED TO TEMPORARY BRIG.GEN.SOON AFTER GOING TO AFRICA HE WAS ELEVATED TO MAJOR GENERAL. SAW SERVICE IN WORLD WAR 1, AS SECOND LIEUTENANT IN THE AIR CORPS.

AIR VICE MARSHAL SIR ARTHUR CONINGHAM, BRITAIN-- COMMANDING GENERAL OF THE NORTHWEST AFRICAN AIR FORCE, WAS BORN IN AUSTRALIA IN 1895 AND HOLDS MOST OF THE RIBBONS GREAT BRITAIN HANDS OUT TO ITS COMPETENT FLIERS. VETERAN OF WORLD WAR 1, FIRST WITH THE NEW ZEALAND FORCES, THEN WITH THE RAF. HAS SEEN MUCH SERVICE IN THE PRESENT MIDDLE EAST CAMPAIGNS.

AIR VICE MARSHAL SIR HUGH P.LLOYD, BRITAIN--FIRST WENT INTO THE AIR DURING THE FIRST WORLD WAR AFTER INFANTRY SERVICE AND HAS BEEN THERE EVER SINCE. HE IS NOW AIR OFFICER COMMANDING THE NORTHWEST AFRICAN COASTAL AIR FORCE UNDER EISENHOWER. BEFORE THAT HE WAS AIR OFFICER COMMANDING THE MEDITERRANEAN COMMAND, BEING APPOINTED TO THAT POST IN 1941. HE IS 47 YEARS OLD.

VICE ADMIRAL HENRY K.HEWITT, UNITED STATES-- IS COMMANDER OF THE UNITED STATES NAVAL FORCES IN THE AFRICAN OPERATIONS AND HAS TAKEN OVER THE SAME DUTIES IN THE ATTACK ON SICILY. HE WAS RESPONSIBLA IN A GREAT MEASURE FOR THE SAFE ARRIVAL OF AMERICAN TROOPS AND WAR SUPPLIES IN NORTH AFRICA DURING THE TUNISIAN CAMPAIGN AND WAS HIGHLY PRAISED FOR HIS EFFICIENT CONVOY DIRECTION. A GRADUATE OF THE 1906 CLASS AT ANNAPOLIS. HE IS 56 YEARS OLD.

THEY WERE PARATROOPERS, MEMBERS OF THE "CIVILIAN" ARMY OF THE UNITED STATES. THE FLAG WAS SEWN ON THEIR SLEEVES. THEY WERE PREPARIN TO JUMP FROM THEIR PLANES IN THE NIGHT, TO LAND IN SICILY, TO MEET THE ENEMY WITHIN HIS OWN LINES. THEY KNEW THEY MIGHT BE CAUGHT IN THE SHELLFIRE OF THEIR OWN SHIPS. THEY WERE TO WORK WITH DAGGER AND DYNAMITE. THEY FELT GOOD. CORP.NICHOLAS KASTRANTAS, OF PITTSBURGH, PA., SAID: "I FEEL BETTER THAN I HAVE FOR A LONG TIME. YOU SEE THIS IS TAKING ME CLOSER TO HOME." ONLY NICK'S COUSIN, MISS CONNIE KACHIORIS OF PITTSBURGH, COULD SPEAK FOR NICK'S FAMILY, BUT WHAT SHE SAID GAVE ADDED MEANING TO HIS REMARK THAT "I FEEL BETTER THAN I HAVE FOR A LONG TIME."

YOU SEE, NICK HAS A PERSONAL SCORE TO SETTLE WITH THE ITALIANS. ACCORDING TO HIS COUSIN, NICK'S MOTHER, A NATURALIZED AMERICAN CITIZEN, AND HIS AMERICAN-BORN SISTERS, HELEN AND ANNA, WERE LAST REPORTED BY THE RED CROSS AS "STARVING BUT ALIVE" IN GREECE.

MISS KACHIORIS SAID THE FAMILY HAD RETURNED TO GREECE SEVERAL YEARS AGO, BUT NICK CAME BACK TO THIS COUNTRY TO ENLIST IN THE ARMY AIR CORPS IN 1940. NICK WOULD BE GLAD TO KNOW THAT THE RED CROSS IS STRIVING TO RETURN HIS FAMILY HERE TO THE HOME HE IS SO ANXIOUS TO GET "CLOSER TO."

WHEN TOLD THAT HER SWEETHEART, PRIVATE DAIVD MCKEOWN OF PHILADELPHIA, HAD SAID AS HE TOOK OFF FOR THE PARATROOP LANDING IN SICILY, "I'M RARIN' TO GO. I'M ALL ON EDGE," REGINA MCKENNA SAID:

JUL 13 1943

"MY HOW THAT MAN HAS CHANGED. WHEN THE ARMY TOOK HIM, I WAS SURE HE WOULD SPEND THE WWAR BEHIND A DESK. NOW HE FOOLS ME AND MAKES A HERO OF HIMSELF."

IT WAS NO SURPRISE TO HIS FATHER, DAVID J.MCKEOWN, THOUGH. HE SAID, DEPRECATINGLY BUT WITH PRIDE SHOWING THROUGH: "SHUCKS, I ALWAYS KNEW HE WAS A FIRST CLASS FIGHTING MAN."

IT WAS WITH EQUAL EQUANIMITY THAT MRS. EVELYN GABRIEL, RICHMOND CALIF., RECEIVED THE NEWS THAT HER SON, DOUG GABRIEL, A CORPORAL, W[illegible]EN AT THE FORFRONT OF THE INVASION OF THE CONTINENT.

"IT IS A NORMAL AMERICAN BOY, FIGHTING FOR ALL THE THINGS THAT ARE DEAR TO HIM," SHE SAID PROUDLY. "WE JUST KEEP HOPING AND PRAYING HE'LL COME OUT ALL RIGHT."

JUL 13 1943

IT WAS DOUG WHO HAD SAID, AS HE GAVE HIS PARATROOP GEAR A LAST-MINUTE CHECK, "I WANT TO GET IT OVER WITH -- THE QUICKER THE BETTER.

MRS. HELEN E.DUGAN, MOTHER OF PARATROOPER ROBERT L.LOWRY, WAS "EXCITED BUT A BIT WORRIED," WHEN SHE HEARD IN INDIANAPOLIS, IND., OF HER SON'S ACTIVITIES.

PRIVATE LOWRY, WHO SAID CHEERFULLY, "I FEEL DAMN GOOD. OF COURSE, I'VE FELT BETTER," AS HE PREPARED FOR THE ZERO HOUR, PROBABLY WILL FEEL MUCH BETTER NEXT MONTH WHEN HE BECOMES A FATHER.

SIXTEEN-YEAR-OLD NESTER SNOWDEN OF MIAMI, ARIZ., SISTER OF PRIVATE WILLIE SNOWDEN WHO JUDICIOUSLY REMARKED "I DON'T KNOW HOW I FEEL, BUT I WILL WHEN I JUMP," GOT A TERRIFIC THRILL FROM HER BIG BROTHER'S WORDS.

"IT'S JUST LIKE HIM," SHE SAID. "HE'S ALWAYS WANTED TO GET IN THE ARMY. HE QUIT SCHOOL, AND MOTHER GAVE HIM PERMISSION TO ENLIST THREE YEARS AGO."

IN A WAY IT WAS NO SURPRISE TO MRS. RUTH RAYMOND GAVIN, LINCOLN,

NEB., THAT HER 29-YEAR OLD SON, SERGT. JACK GAVIN, WAS IN THE ACTION. SHE RECEIVED A LETTER FROM HIM A WEEK AGO IN WHICH HE SAID INVASION WAS NOT FAR OFF, BUT NOW SHE EXCLAIMED: "WHAT DOES A MOTHER SAY AT A TIME LIKE THIS?"

THE SERGEANT, OPERATIONS MAN OF A COMBAT TEAM, CALMLY STATED BEFORE TAKING OFF: "WE ARE GOING IN WITH THE COLONEL SO EVERYTHING IS ALL RIGHT."

HIS MOTHER SAID "JACK HAS THE HIGHEST RESPECT FOR HIS BRANCH OF SERVICE, HIS MATES AND HIS COLONEL," ADDING THAT JACK'S ONE YEAR IN THE ARMY HAD BEEN SERVED UNDER THE COLONEL WHOSE LAST NAME SHE SAID ALSO WAS GAVIN BUT NO RELATION.

MRS. ROBERT BLUE, DAYTON, OHIO, WIFE OF PRIVATE ROBERT C.BLUE WHOSE SINGLE COMMENT WAS "I'M CERTAINLY GLAD TO LEAVE AFRICA," SAID SHE WAS SURPRISED TO LEARN HE HAD GONE INTO ACTION.

"I KNEW HE WAS IN AFRICA, BUT HE'S BEEN OVERSEAS LESS THAN 60 DAYS, AND I'M SURPRISED TO LEARN HE WENT INTO ACTION SO SOON. NATURALLY, I'M WORRIED."

ANOTHER DAYTON FAMILY WAS EQUALLY ANXIOUS TO LEARN HOW THEIR SON, PRIVATE FRANCES DOGGETT, MADE OUT. MRS. EVA MAE STALEY, SISTER OF THE PARATROOPER SAID "WE'RE ANXIOUS TO LEARN HOW HE CAME THROUGH. WE HAD SUSPECTED HE MIGHT BE IN ACTION WHEN WE HEARD PARATROOPS WERE BEING USED IN THE SICILY INVASION."

IT WAS PARATROOPER DOGGETT WHO SUMMED UP HIS MATES GENERAL STAND F[illegible]EMARKING AS HE TOOK OFF, "I FEEL PRETTY GOOD RIGHT NOW."

SICILIANS GET FOOD

MURIN

Ships from Africa Bring Supplies for Civilians on Island.

JUL 14 1943

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 13—(AP) British troops swarmed ashore today near Catania, midway up the eastern Sicilian coast toward Messina, and also captured the port of Augusta, while the crack Hermann Goering division tried to halt spreading American gains on the Allied left flank to the southwest.

Altogether the Allies captured five more towns today for a total of 15 in their swift invasion; behind them supply troops were bringing food for Sicilians.

Rushing from the interior to stiffen Italy's Fourth Livorno division, Goering's troops collided for the first time in force with the Americans under Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton, Jr., Sunday near Gela.

Join Forces at Ragusa

The Americans knocked out 10 old-type German Mark IV tanks and swept inland 20 miles to meet British and Canadian armies at Ragusa to form a solid junction throughout southeastern Sicily along primary and secondary roads. Floridia and Palazzolo fell to the British and Canadians in their swift drive inland from captured Syracuse to join hands with the Americans.

Goering's troops were believed reforming for another slash at the Americans.

In their onrushing conquest the three Allied armies under General Dwight D. Eisenhower were operating with precision, fed by a flow of ships bridging the Mediterranean.

Supplies for Civilians

This efficiency was illustrated in an official announcement at a command post that supplies for the civilian population already had been unloaded in Sicily. Particular foods, and cigarettes which had been rationed severely under Axis rule, were among the cargoes to be distributed in the wake of Allied troops.

Axis captives were mounting in number, more than 6,000 being taken. Four lieutenant colonels walked into Allied lines to surrender, and Gen. Achilles D'Avet, commander of the 206th Italian coastal division was captured—the first ranking enemy officer bagged since the invasion began last Saturday.

(The London Daily Herald quoted an Algiers broadcast as saying that the Americans alone took 7,000 captives).

This would indicate sagging Italian morale, but late aerial reconnaissance reported an important flow of Axis reinforcements, presumably Germans among them, from the interior. They were rushing for the American positions on the Allied left flank. Gen. Patton's troops already had knocked out one serious enemy counter-attack, but not before the enemy penetrated clear to the beaches.

The capture of Modica, ten miles northwest of Ispica in southeast Sicily, was reported by Ross Munro, correspondent with Canadian forces.

"Town after town is surrendering," Muro cabled. "The lack of determined resistance is surprising even to the divisional staff. x x x The infantry is advancing with incredible speed and it is practically impossible to keep in touch with their moves." Muro said a clash with the Germans was expected and that "stern fighting" was likely.

Modica was the 15th important town captured by the Allies.

The new British landing near Catania was a significant development. Seizure of that port city at the southern foot of volcanic Mt. Etna would put the Allies 55 miles from Messina, the northeastern ferry terminus only two miles from the Italian mainland. Messina itself, and Reggeo Calabria and San Giovanni on the mainland still were smouldering from heavy Allied air attacks delivered yesterday by U. S. Flying Fortresses and Liberators.

Capture of the once flourishing ancient Greek city also would give the Allied navies a third port through which to pour men and supplies into the drive toward Messina. Syracuse was the first harbor to fall, then Augusta's capture was announced today. An official bulletin said Syracuse's dock installations apparently were undamaged.

(The London radio in a broadcast recorded by NBC quoted Italian sources as "admitting that Allied ships are now in the roadsteads at Catania.")

3,000 Ships in Use

Three thousand Allied ships of all kinds—more than three times the 850 used in the North African landings last fall—were shuttling back and forth between Tunisia and Sicily to swell the powerful Allied striking force.

Minesweepers already have cleared the minefields on the approaches to Syracuse and Augusta which Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's desert fighters seized with the aid of a strong bombardment from the sea.

Although the Canadians and British were said to be meeting some resistance "good progress is being made" up the eastern coast and inland, it was stated officially.

Palazzolo is 20 miles west of Syracuse, and Ragusa is 12 miles southwest of Palazzolo. Both are strategic prizes because these road junctions dominate high ground in the area and deprive the Axis of much mobility.

Americans Meet Resistance

The Americans appeared to be meeting the most stubborn opposition. They knocked out a considerable number of enemy tanks and took many prisoners in the repulse of the one counter-attack which broke through to the beaches, presumably in the Gela area.

Gen. Patton's troops reformed and sealed the gap, aided by the big guns of the fleet standing out to sea. In this engagement a sizable number of Germans participated — fighting furiously, in contrast to the Italians.

The four Italian lieutenant colonels who walked into Allied lines and surrendered declared they were "reconnoitering."

(A Vichy broadcast recorded by the Associated Press said more American troops were landing along the southern coast, but that Axis counter-attacks were developing against the bridgeheads at Licata, Gela, Pachino and Augusta. In contrast to this latter assertion was a German radio acknowledgment that Allied troops now were advancing along the road from Augusta to Catania.)

Losses Light at Augusta

Allied losses at Augusta were described officially as slight. The fall of the city of 25,000, which also served as an Italian naval base, represented a 19-mile advance north of Syracuse.

Details of the British landing near Catania were not immediately available, but Allied warships were believed to have laid down a terrific barrage to facilitate the strike. Allied planes also lent their support.

JUL 14 1943

Airmen already are operating from captured fields set amid Sicily's olive groves. Aided by the great flow of strength from the rim of Africa these youthful sky fighters were doing a tremendous job of chopping holes in Axis road convoys, pulverizing supply dumps and razing airfields and ports farther inland.

Many Vehicles Destroyed

"Large number of enemy motor transports" were destroyed or damaged yesterday by these fliers, who also shot down 22 enemy aircraft, sank two merchant vessels and damaged two destroyers, perhaps mortally.

"Two destroyers were left blazing," said the communique. Eleven Allied planes were reported missing.

(Malta-based fighters alone downed 34 Axis aircraft, probably destroyed 11, and damaged 22 in the last 24 hours, a Valletta announcement said.)

Coordinated with these Sicilian thrusts were the "heavy and concentrated attacks" on the core of Italian communications at Messina, in Sicily, and nearby Reggio Calabria and San Giovanni on the mainland. Fighter-bombers also raked the mainland Monte and Cervino airfields.

R.A.F. torpedo planes sank the two merchant ships and damaged the two destroyers as well as two large troop transports during the past two days. Their attacks ranged as far north as the strait between Corsica and Sardinia above Sicily. One British pilot also told of hits scored on a merchant ship and two destroyers sailing toward Sicily from Naples.

One pilot dived his torpedo craft so low he said he could plainly see enemy soldiers crowded on the deck of the troop carrier. "His torpedo headed straight for the target," said an official announcement. A few minutes later another R.A.F. airman "attacked the smaller (troop) ship and probably hit it."

An air force announcement at an Allied command post commented:

"The Axis has been trying desperately to reinforce Sicily, but the attempts have been frustrated to the extent of a considerable number of troops and tons of equipment which have been sent to the bottom of the Mediterranean."

A Ninth United States Air Force announcement said one hundred Liberators from the Middle Eastern Command had dropped more than 650,000 pounds of explosives on Reggio Calabria and San Giovanni. Large fuel and ammunition dump fires were started and a small boat was hit at Reggio Calabria; railway yards were torn up at San Giovanni.

Knock Out Rail Bridges

The Fortresses concentrated on two vital railroad bridges at Messina, across the narrow strait. Direct hits knocked out these spans, and leveled industrial areas. Then the huge machines moved across the Channel to pour more explosives on battered Reggio Calabria whose airfield was shattered by RAF Liberators and Halifaxes Sunday night.

Wrecking of the two bridges undoubtedly will hamper Axis efforts to keep their communications open in northeastern Sicily, it was said.

Neither the Fortresses nor Liberators encountered fighter opposition, but their crews reported heavy anti-aircraft fire. From all these operations one Allied craft was lost, the communique said.

"It's getting so tough you have to fight your way through your own squadron to get a crack at the enemy," said one American pilot in telling of the ceaseless barrage of enemy points in Sicily.

Mustangs Fire Truck Convoy

One Allied fighter-bomber formation, including the new Mustangs, set fire to an enemy truck convoy of thirty-five vehicles; another destroyed fifteen in a column of gun-carrying trucks; a third planted bombs on a convoy which included half-track armored vehicles and an ammunition truck. Ten trucks were destroyed when the munitions carrier exploded.

These enemy columns were those moving down to meet General Patton's Tunisian veterans who were being supplied by American tanks and guns rolling over pontoon bridges erected from barge to shore.

Admiral Sir Andrew Browne Cunningham, Allied naval commander, personally inspected the beachheads and landing operations in the American sector. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, supreme commander of the invasion forces, already has returned from a trip to Sicily.

JUL 14 1943

American Troops Effect a Junction With Canadians and Repel Fierce Counter-attack.

JUL 14 1943

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, July 13 (A. P.).—Allied invasion forces swept up the east coast of Sicily at a breath-taking pace today, capturing the port of Augusta, nineteen miles north of Syracuse, and piling ashore on the beaches near Catania, major city nearly half way up the coast line to Messina.

British and Canadian troops fought their way into the two strategic communications centers of Ragusa and Palazzola in the southeastern corner of the embattled island, forming a junction with the American troops of Lieut.-Gen. George S. Patton Jr. at Ragusa, as the latter pushed steadily northward from their original landing at Gela.

Again the veteran American troops repelled a fierce counter-attack by Axis forces, destroying a number of enemy tanks and taking prisoners, a headquarters bulletin announced.

JUL 14 1943

Allies Meet Stronger Foe.

Without giving details as to exact sectors, it later was announced that the Allies now have made contact with two regular field divisions of much sterner character than the coastal troops but these failed to offer much greater resistance.

Allied losses at Augusta were described officially as slight and port and harbor installations were undamaged.

Augusta, whose population normally runs between 20,000 and 25,000 persons, is a fine fortified port which has been used as a naval harbor.

The junction of Canadian and American forces outside Ragusa consolidated an unbroken Allied line. American troops reached the verge of the city from the west slightly before Canadians drove in from the east, it was reported.

[The Algiers radio reported that Allied forces which captured Ragusa had driven to the outskirts of the Comiso airdrome, about seven and one-half miles to the west. There was no confirmation of the report, made in a broadcast recorded by Reuters, said the Associated Press.]

[The German overseas radio in a broadcast recorded in London by Reuters said that Allied forward troops were advancing along the road from Augusta to Catania, according to the Associated Press.]

Indications multiplied that Axis tank columns were regrouping for a powerhouse blow at American positions on Gela Bay. Important enemy troop movements southward from the interior of the island were noted by aerial reconnaissance.

[The Berlin radio said that the second phase in the battle of Sicily has begun and that German and Italian measures for the annihilation of the landed enemy units are now in full swing. The broadcast said that the second phase is much more dangerous for the attackers.]

Palazzola is twenty miles west of Syracuse, and its capture marked the farthest point of advance inland by the invading forces. Ragusa is twelve miles southwest of Palazzola. Both are prizes of great strategic value, being junctions for virtually all the main and secondary highways in southeastern Sicily.

Loss of the two cities will deprive defending Axis forces of much of their mobility in their desperate efforts to head off the many-pronged Allied offensive.

The capture of Augusta was preceded by a heavy bombardment from Allied warships, which throughout Sicily reported that the Sicilian Straits still were choked with transport and supply ships carrying reinforcements to the British, American and Canadian forces which spearheaded the invasion.

Allied losses in the capture of Augusta were officially described as slight. Port and harbor installations were said to have been undamaged.

Italian General Captured.

Gen. Achilles Davet, commander of the 206th Italian Coastal Division, was the first ranking enemy officer to be captured since the invasion of Sicily began last Saturday.

[Stefani, Italian news agency, reported today that Lieut.-Gen. Enrico Francisci of the Fascist Militia was killed in action in Sicily on July 11. He had served in the Spanish civil war, had seen action on the Russian front and had been stationed in Sicily since last March, the agency said. The broadcast dispatch was recorded by United States Government monitors and reported to the Office of War Information.]

Some German opposition has been met, but not yet in force, and though the Allies have now made contact with two regular Italian divisions—presumably of much sterner character than the coastal defenders—the enemy has failed to put up really stiff resistance, Allied officers said.

Allied Reinforcements Pour In.

Pilots of Allied bombers participating in the furious aerial onslaught against Axis targets throughout Sicily reported that the Sicilian Straits still were choked with transport and supply ships carrying reinforcements to the British, American and Canadian forces which spearheaded the invasion.

Axis forces which for the second time attempted to slow the American advance from the south were reported to have used tanks of French origin. The counter-attack was known to have been smashed, and reports from the front said that Gen. Patton's men were making "good progress."

Ragusa, where the Americans and Canadians were reported to have made their junction, has a population of 50,000 and is the capital of the province of the same name. Comiso airdrome, which was pounded continually by the Allied air force in the days preceding invasion, is only a few miles west of Ragusa and was expected to fall in a matter of hours.

Another Town Menaced.

Palazzolo, due west of Syracuse, is the terminus of a branch line from that port city. It has a population of about 17,000.

Allied headquarters announced that more than 3,000 vessels of all types, including warships, now were taking part in the tremendous task of transporting men, munitions and supplies to Sicily. The work was said to be "proceeding satisfactorily," despite a surf that had made operations difficult at the more exposed positions.

While the Allied ground forces moved swiftly toward the heart of Sicily, the invaders' great air fleet continued to paralyze the island's defenses and to obstruct belated efforts by the enemy to rush reinforcements to its keystone outpost. Twenty-eight Axis planes were reported to have been destroyed yesterday and the preceding night, against a loss of eleven Allied craft in the same period.

"The attacks were carried out in the narrow strip of water between Corsica and Sardinia. The Beaufighters, often skimming over small islands in the straits, attacked repeatedly and even returned the fire from one of the two escorting destroyers with their cannon. The attack was so devastating that the destroyer was left blazing with no chance for survival. The convoy was a precious prize.

"Two large troop ships had been spotted hugging the coast of Corsica. The leader of one flight of Beaufighters attacked the bigger two-funneled trooper from such close range he could plainly see enemy soldiers crowded on the decks. This torpedo headed straight for the target. A few minutes later another pilot attacked the smaller ship and probably hit it."

Axis Shipping to Sicily Blasted

Flyers Sink Two Vessels—Damage Six—Big Bombers Hit Messina and Calabria.

JUL 14 1943

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, July 13 (A. P.).—American and British sky fleets blasted enemy troop transports in Sicilian waters and battered supply centers on both sides of the Messina Strait yesterday as Allied invasion forces pushed rapidly up Sicily's east coast.

Liberators and Flying Fortresses smashed at Messina in Sicily and the twin ferry terminals of Reggio Calabria and San Giovanni on the Italian mainland in heavy daylight attacks designed to wreck the main supply route for Axis defense of the invaded island.

R. A. F. torpedo planes struck a heavy blow at Axis naval units trying to reinforce the Sicilian defenses by sea, sinking two merchant ships and damaging two destroyers and two large troop transports in daring attacks the past two days.

Troop Columns Strafed.

Throughout yesterday, Allied fighters and fighter-bombers kept up their withering assault against enemy troop columns and communication lines on Sicily, destroying large numbers of land troop transports.

An Allied communique said twenty-eight enemy planes were shot down over or near Sicily yesterday and the preceding night. The Allies lost eleven planes during the same period.

"The Axis has been trying desperately to reinforce Sicily, but the attempts have been frustrated to the extent of a considerable number of troops and tons of equipment which have been sent to the bottom of the Mediterranean," said an air force announcement at an Allied command post.

This announcement said the R. A. F. torpedo planes which attacked the enemy destroyers left the vessels "blazing from stem to stern."

Describing the operations of the torpedo planes yesterday, the official announcement said:

Other Ships Torpedoed.

The preceding day the torpedo planes made their first attack on two vessels off eastern Sardinia and within six minutes a merchant ship had at least three torpedo holes in it. An hour later a second merchant ship was attacked with similar results.

Another attack was made at the same time on another convoy sailing toward Sicily from Naples, escorted by destroyers. One merchant ship and two destroyers were hit. A British pilot said it was unlikely that either the freighter or one destroyer reached harbor.

A Ninth United States Air Force communique said 100 Liberator bombers from Middle East bases dumped more than 650,000 pounds of high explosives on Reggio Calabria and San Giovani. The railway yard at San Giovanni was blanketed with hits. Bombs burst all along the tracks and a large explosion was reported in the siding area. At Reggio Calabria, bursts covered the entire target area, starting fires in fuel and ammunition dumps.

The Flying Fortresses destroyed two vital railroad bridges at Messina, the ferry terminal on the Sicily side of the strait, and went on to shower more explosives on industrial areas in Reggio Calabria.

No Fighter Opposition.

Neither the Fortresses nor Liberators encountered any enemy fighters but reported concentrations of anti-aircraft fire.

Meanwhile, lighter Allied planes were keeping up attacks on enemy air fields on Sicily and intercepting intermittent enemy attempts to interfere with Allied landings and convoys. Among the Allied flyers' targets were the Sicilian towns of Agrigento, Canicatti, Gerbini, Milo, Trapani and Marsala.

Lightnings also teamed with A-36 Mustangs in sweeps over highways and railroads all over Sicily, bombing Axis troop-carrying and artillery trucks.

One formation set fire to thirty-five vehicles and damaged many others in attacking four different convoys. Another caught a column of gun-carrying trucks and destroyed fifteen. In another convoy including half-track armored vehicles with guns and an ammunition truck, the munitions carrier was blown up and ten trucks were destroyed.

Many Veterans With Patton in New 7th Army

Outfit Also Includes Some Freshmen Troops Which Have Been Well Trained

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 13 (AP).—For the first time in this war a complete American army is fighting in the field against Germany and Italy.

The new United States 7th Army under the command of Lieutenant General George S. Patton jr. captured sixty miles of the 100-mile stretch of the Sicilian coast on which the Allies established the mighty bridgehead within forty-eight hours of the start of their

European invasion.

The 7th Army comprises some units from the former United States 2d Corps, which, under Patton's leadership, slugged back the major share of Marshal Erwin Rommel's armored forces in southern Tunisia. It includes also units which engaged in the original landings and fighting in Morocco last November, but never saw action in Tunisia.

Units of parachute troops and glider-borne assault troops were added to the 7th Army before it swept over the Mediterranean, and they actually began the Sicilian attack three to five hours before the first sea-borne forces landed. In addition, the 7th Army has units which never saw action in this war, but were rated among the best trained of America's millions of soldiers.

General Dwight D. Eisenhower, Allied commander in chief, during his military career of more than a quarter-century served with one of the fresh units. Addressing them at an African invasion port a few days before they sailed, General Eisenhower told the men of this unit: "I'll see you on a new battle line—it won't be long. Good luck!"

General Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's British 8th Army, like Patton's American 7th, combines African veterans with battle freshmen, augmented by an airborne striking force. In addition, highly trained Canadians, whose Dieppe expedition set a high standard of valor, are an important element of the British onrush.

In Sicily the first days of the fighting have been mainly an "infantry show" for the Americans, although the enemy hurled the heaviest armored blow of the new campaign against them Sunday in the shape of forty-five tanks, supported by elements from the 4th (Italian) Livorno Division.

But Patton has a competent tank force, and despite the disadvantages for armored battle in the rocky, sharp-ridged highlands of central Sicily toward which the Americans are advancing, the commander of the 7th Army probably would welcome a showdown with Axis tanks.

Pilot Escapes Death After His 'Chute Splits

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, July 13 (AP)—The luckiest "bailer-outer" of the American Air Forces was believed roaming behind enemy lines in Sicily last night, driving an Axis truck and trying to find his way to Allied positions.

The pilot of a new Mustang on a bombing mission was attacked by an Italian fighter, and as he eased out of his damaged craft, his parachute caught on the fuselage and split.

Like a stone, the pilot dropped toward the earth. Fellow flyers hovering above held their breath. He came down between two buildings, remnants of the torn 'chute caught on a roof ledge a few feet from the ground and his fall was broken. He hung dangling for a moment. Then he disengaged himself, dropped unscathed, and began running toward an enemy truck. That's the last his comrades saw of him.

TANKS BROKE OUR LINES BUT NOT LONG

JUL 14 1943

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, July 13 (A. P.).—It was disclosed today that enemy tanks broke through American lines and penetrated to the beaches in a counter-attack in southern Sicily yesterday before they were hurled back and forced to retreat.

The American forces regrouped and struck back savagely to seal the gap. A considerable number of enemy tanks was reported to have been knocked out.

Nazi troops so far encountered were reported to have fought furiously in every engagement, in contrast to half-hearted Italian opposition.

Four Italian lieutenant-colonels walked into the Allied lines and surrendered.

Observers believed further enemy counter-attacks against the American lines were likely.

SECOND PHASE OF BATTLE ON, BERLIN SAYS

Axis Troops Reported Intrenched Beyond Range Of Naval Guns

German Military Expert Foresees First Allied Blows At Continent

JUL 14 1943

[By the Associated Press]

London, July 13—The Berlin radio said today that "the second phase" of the battle for Sicily has begun and the Axis is out to annihilate the invaders.

The radio called this phase "much more dangerous for the attackers" and added "it remains to be seen how far their strong naval concentrations will be able to relieve the strain during the next few days of heavy fighting."

Both Berlin and Rome agreed that the main battle is coming and predicted the Allies would meet earnest opposition.

Entrenched In Interior

Guenter Weber, a Transocean war correspondent, quoted in a Berlin broadcast, said that both sides are "still winding up their forces."

The Axis troops, he said, have entrenched themselves outside the range of the Allied naval artillery and have the advantage of an inner fighting line.

Weber described the struggle for Sicily as a struggle for a waterfortress and conceded that the Allies had overcome the first impediment.

The initial success was anticipated by the Axis high command, he said, and the Allies were now up against the inner defense walls.

Only At Beginning, Gayda Says

Virginio Gayda, authoritative Italian commentator, took the same view in his newspaper Il Giornale d'Italia.

"Of course, we are only in the beginning of a great battle; extremely fierce fighting, the outcome of which will change from time to time, awaits the Axis forces as well as the enemy," he said.

Landing forces have been beaten back from the interior everywhere, Gayda said, and were merely moving along the coast under the protection of naval artillery.

A Rome radio summary of Italian newspaper comment said that the fight is still in the first stage and that battles of larger scale are in preparation. It called the fighting on Sicily "just as hard and serious as that in Russia and the Pacific" and warned that this attack "against our island may be the start of the invasion of the Continent."

Supply Lines Exposed, Is Claim

A military commentary by the Italian official news agency, Stefani, said that the Axis preferred to let the Allies land troops and await them in positions well prepared for the great battle to come.

The Allies, their backs to the sea, "are obliged to try to advance as quickly as possible toward the interior and in this their advance will end fatally at the Axis line."

It called the Allied supply line "a cable exposed to aviation attack" and said Allied losses should prove very heavy. It advised the Italian people to "wait and see" and that Axis troop movements are going according to plan.

New Attacks Foreseen

The German radio military commentator, Capt. Ludwig Sertorius, hinted today at possible new Allied attacks against southern Europe with forces "perhaps stronger than landed on Sicily."

Sertorius reported seven Allied divisions in Sicily, and then today said three more had been put ashore last night and Monday. The broadcasts were recorded by the Associated Press.

Sertorius said the ten Allied divisions—by his estimate—in Sicily were "far from half" of the effectives in North Africa and that the Allies had used "at most" two thirds of their available shipping tonnage for Sicilian attack.

Reserves Stronger, He Says

"The enemy is in a position to throw everything he has into Sicily or land at other points in southern Europe with a mass of troops at least as strong and perhaps stronger than those landed in Sicily," he said.

Sertorius added that the invaders had not yet met the bulk of Axis reesrves, and said there was "very heavy fighting" in the sector northeast of Augusta.

The Nazis meanwhile started to decry the value of Sicily—an indication that they felt it eventually would be lost to the Axis.

The Axis spokesmen, explaining Allied victories, said the assault was made in such force that it "must necessarily have initial success," but Axis counter-operations were promised.

Rome Reports Gloomy

Berlin kept up a barrage of optimistic reports on Sicily, but Rome, with the danger nearer to hand, was more soberly reticent.

Italian home broadcasts this afternoon confined reports on the fighting to the communique, which indicated the capture of Augusta several hours before the Allies announced it.

SLIGHT RESISTANCE MET

Italian Divisional General and a Thousand Prisoners Swell Bag of Dominion Troops

JUL 14 1943

By ROSS MUNRO

Canadian Press War Correspondent

ISPICA, Sicily, July 12 (Delayed)—Sweeping the Italians before them and with a bag of more than 1,000 prisoners, including a divisional general and his staff, the Canadain forces have penetrated some miles inland from their Pachino peninsula beachhead and are st"l speeding on.

Town after town is surrendering.

The lack of determined resistance was surprising, even to the divisional staff.

A clash with the Germans, however, was considered probable and it was believed likely stern fighting was ahead.

This morning Modica, ten miles northwest of here, surrendered to a western Canada infantry formation and Gen. Achille d'Havel and his staff of 206 from a coastal division were taken prisoner. Hundreds more prisoners are pouring in.

Ispica, ten miles northwest of the Pachino beachhead, capitulated to western troops, as did Pozzallo on the coast south of here.

Rosolini, north of here, fell to an eastern Canadian regiment, giving the Canadians the principal towns in the southeastern tip of Sicily.

The infantry is advancing at an incredible speed and it is practically impossible to keep in touch with the moves. Even headquarters are having trouble in following up the advancing forces.

Casualties still are at a minimum.

Messages from Lieut. Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, commander of Canadian Forces Overseas, and from Admiral Sir Andrew Browne Cunningham, Allied naval commander, were read to Canadian troops aboard ship while steaming toward Sicily and later were issued in a special order of the day.

General McNaughton said: "You will have an opportunity of striking a great blow in the just cause we serve and all the hearts and prayers of your comrades here and in Canada will be with you in your high endeavor."

The Cunningham message called the operations "the most momentous enterprise of the war" and said success meant the opening of a second front. He said the primary duty of the navy was landing and maintaining the army in Sicily and added that the safety of the ships at sea and "all distracting considerations" are to be relegated to second place or disregarded in accomplishing this purpose.

EISENHOWER HAILS UNITY OF INVADERS

He Says Coordination Could Not Have Been Bettered if Allies Were One Nation

AN ALLIED COMMAND POST IN NORTH AFRICA, July 13 (AP)—General Dwight D. Eisenhower the Allied Commander in Chief, returned today from a visit to the United States and Canadian forces on Sicily with the declaration that the coordination of his invading armies "could not have been better had all the forces been those of some single nation."

ITALIANS ADMIT LOSS OF AUGUSTA

JUL 14 1943

Fate of Sicily Depends on Battles Now Raging, Says Rome Press.

BERN, July 13—(AP) The Italians made their first official admission today of the loss of a city—Augusta—to the Allied forces invading Sicily, and the Fascist press began preparing the Italian people for more bad news with the further admission that upon the battle now in progress hangs the fate of Sicily.

A dispatch to the Tribune de Geneve said the Italian press was emphasizing the "tremendous" Allied material which was "first class" and comprised "excellently trained troops."

Fascist newspapers were also trying to explain this accumulation of material and troops on Italian soil after Premier Mussolini had declared only 15 days before the invasion that the enemy would be nailed to the coastline. They said that a landing and even a certain penetration does not mean the success of the invasion.

The Italian press featured a Stefani, Italian news agency, article quoting Mussolini's statement that the Italians, if defeated, would be left "only eyes to weep with." If defeated, it said, Italy would lose its fleet, aviation and industry and become a vegetable grower.

England would take the island of Pantelleria, Tobruk in Lybia, Maddalena in Sardinia. Greece and Yugoslavia would share in the partition, the article said, and the colonial empire would be ended, universities would be supressed, art museums stripped and the Italian people impoverished with an exchange rate of 480 lire to the pound.

The Journal de Geneve commented that it was not believed the Allies had any such intention. It expressed astonishment at the "weakness" of the Axis air attacks against the Allied convoy to Sicily and questioned whether the Axis had enough planes.

AUGUSTA SERVED LONG AS SEA BASE

JUL 14 1943

By Associated Press.

Nineteen miles north of Syracuse, the fortified city of Augusta with a population of 2,680, stands on a rocky islet joined by a bridge to a peninsula projecting into the Mediterranean Sea.

Augusta was founded in 1262 by the Emperor Frederick II, probably on the site of the ancient Xiphonia, as a refuge for the inhabitants of Centuripe and Montalbano. For centuries it served as a naval base during the numerous wars that were fought in the Mediterranean Sea. It was destroyed by the earthquake of 1693 after which it was rebuilt into substantially the city of today.

In 1676 it was captured by the French after their defeat of the Dutch fleet in the bay under Admiral de Ruyter. De Ruyter was mortally wounded in the engagement and died a few days later at Syracuse.

The spacious fort, rather difficult of access, is now used as a prison, and the fine fortified port has been used only as a naval harbor. The principal industry of the city is the refining of salt, of which there are large beds near by.

SICILY MAPPED BY FLIERS

Elliott Roosevelt's Photographic Unit Aided Invasion

AN ALLIED FORCE COMMAND POST, July 13 (AP)—Allied troops invading Sicily carried new maps of the island, made from aerial photographs during the last three months by fliers commanded by Col. Elliott Roosevelt's North African Photo Reconnaissance Wing.

The fliers had photographed the island from one end to the other, completing the job after the fall of Tunis. Part of the time they used captured German photographic supplies and equipment.

German Division Repulsed

AN ALLIED COMMAND POST IN NORTH AFRICA, July 13 (AP).—The crack Nazi Hermann Goering Division, along with large Italian forces, was rushed to meet the invading American 7th Army in the vicinity of Gela Sunday, military sources disclosed tonight. In this fighting, the principal clash of the day, ten German Mark IVs—a relatively old type of tank—were destroyed and the Axis troops were beaten back.

Order Before Sicilian Landing Says Time Has Come To Carry War Into Continent

JUL 14 1943

[By the Associated Press]

London, Wednesday, July 14—Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery told his British Eighth Army troops before they invaded Sicily "the time has come to carry the war into Italy and into the Continent of Europe . . . they (the Italians) asked for it and now they will get it."

In the message released today by the Ministry of Information, General Montgomery declared: "the Italian overseas empire has been exterminated.

"We will not deal with the home country. To the Eighth Army has been given the great honor of representating the British empire in the Allied force which is now to carry out its task.

"On our left will be our American allies. Together, we will set about the Italians in their own country in no uncertain way. They came into this war to suit themselves and they must take the consequencies. They asked for it and now they will get it."

Montgomery, voicing a hearty welcome to the Canadian troops now joining the Eighth Army, continued:

"I know well the fighting men of Canada. They are magnificent soldiers and the long and careful training they have received in England will now be put to very good use to the great benefit of the Eighth Army.

"The task in front of us is not easy. But it is not so difficult as many we have had in the past and have overcome successfully. . . .

"The eyes of our families and in fact the whole empire will be on us once the battle starts.

"We will see that they get good news and plenty of it. To each one of you, whatever may be your rank of employment, I would say: good luck and good hunting in the home country of Italy."

Montgomery Tells His Army That "Italians Asked For It"

ROMMEL'S PLANE REPORTED DOWNED

Anti-Nazi Radio Says Marshal Was Enroute to Sicily.

LONDON, July 13. — (AP) A roundabout and wholly unconfirmed report said tonight that Field Marshal Erwin Rommel was shot down by Allied fighter pilots on his way to Sicily Tuesday. There has been no Allied claim of such an incident.

The report was said to have originated with the German underground radio station "Atlantic," which was quoted by the Swedish newspaper Svenska Dagbladet. The Swedish report was sent to London by a Reuters correspondent.

According to this version, Rommel was said to have been traveling in a transport plane under a strong fighter escort enroute to Sicily to take command there. He was said to have been accompanied by Gen. Siegfried Westfals, Lieut. Col. Kiehl and three Italian staff officers.

The report may have sprung from a Malta dispatch this morning which reported that Spitfires had shot down a Junkers-52 transport plane which was escorted by more than 30 German and Italian fighters over the Sicilian coast. Six of the fighter escort were also reported shot down in flames.

NAZIS SEND NO TROOPS TO REINFORCE ITALY

LONDON, July 13 — (AP) The Morocco radio, quoting Turkish circles, said tonight that the Germans apparently have no intention of sending further reinforcements to Italy but instead will concentrate their forces on frontiers, likely to be threatened after Italy is defeated.

Reports from Istanbul, the radio added, also said that the entire civilian population of the island of Crete has been evacuated by the Germans.

Rome Reports Messina Drive

STOCKHOLM, July 13 (AP).—Rome dispatches to Swedish newspapers said today Italian commentators had admitted that the Allied invasion forces in Sicily were driving toward Messina but at "great risk."

Alexander Praises Skill Of Navies in Sicily Attack

Says Landings Were Made in 'Most Difficult Weather'

LONDON, July 13 (AP).—Describing the assault on Sicily as the "largest amphibious operation ever attempted," A. V. Alexander, First Lord of the Admiralty, praised today the skill and determination of the British and American Navies in carrying Allied forces to the beaches and expressed confidence in the "great task which lies ahead."

Alexander said the landings were carried out despite the "most difficult weather conditions."

In the two months between Nov. 8, 1942, and Jan. 8, 1943, he said, 1,000,000 tons of supplies, 400,000 men and 40,000 vehicles were landed in North Africa. From July, 1942, to May, 1943, 346 enemy ships totaling 860,000 tons were sunk in the Mediterranean, he added.

ALLIED MANEUVER MAY BRING SWIFT VICTORY ON SICILY

Drive to Tyrrhenian Sea Would Cut Off Axis from Supplies.

LONDON, July 13—(AP) While the combined Allied forces bit deeper into southeastern Sicily, fresh British landings near Catania brought into sharp focus tonight the attackers' chance for a swift knockout of the island's defenders by a drive across a vital supply line running through Messina.

Given a foothold on the plain of Catania, Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's men might cut northwest across it to the Tyrrhenian sea, which is only about 35 miles from the western edge of the plain.

Coastal Route is Alternative

An alternative route directly up the coast of Messina leads along a narrow coastal strip between Mount Etna and the Mediterranean, which is probably easy to defend but which might be a feasible path, with close support from the sea, if the enemy's air strength were beaten down sufficiently. Given such conditions, additional landings might be made along the coast between Catania and Messina to take defense posts in the rear.

More immediate fruits of a drive into the Catania plain would be a knockout of the island's greatest collection of air fields around Gerbini, about 15 miles in from the east coast.

With this threat to the Gerbini fields developing and with Americans and Canadians perhaps already taking over Comiso field near jointly captured Ragusa, the enemy's already crippled air arm seemed approaching paralysis in the eastern and southeastern part of the island.

Marsala too Far Away

An R.A.F. observer noted that enemy fields around Marsala were too far away to be effective bases for fighter operations against any sector of the Allied front except the left flank of the American forces at Licata and Gela.

The importance of the Catania plain and its suitability for use by armored forces raised the possibility it might become the scene of a major battle which London observers have been expecting hourly.

The Licata plain in the American-held area similarly seemed a likely spot for a major test and there were indications that fighting is already stiff there.

With Allied sea and air power cutting off all island approaches except the narrow strait of Messina, any breaking of this supply line was seen in London as likely to seal the doom of the defending armies—perhaps within a few days after the artery were cut.

The Axis made claims that the defense forces were plentifully supplied, but this apparently was belied by reports that Allied airmen were sinking ships making desperate efforts to reach the island.

In another alternative to the northward thrust toward the Tyrrhenian sea, Gen. Montgomery might wheel forces southwest from the Catanian plain for a junction with General Patton and the Canadians, crushing Axis units in the southeast between two arms of an offensive.

Expansion of the Allied belt of occupation to a depth of more than 25 miles in some places and the junction of American and Canadian forces without a major counter-attack was seen in some London quarters as an indication that the defending command has abandoned hope of wiping out the bridgeheads, at least in the extreme southeast, and is preparing to stake hopes on their inland defensive positions.

BIG BRITISH PLANES STRIKE AT TURIN IN NORTHERN ITALY

Industrial City Blasted in Move to Aid Allied Sicily Campaign.

LONDON, July 13 — (AP) A strong force of British planes flew through vile weather across the Alps last night to bomb the north Italian industrial city of Turin in a "heavy and concentrated" attack, timed with incessant blows against Sicily and the southern end of the peninsula.

The Air ministry said the assault by R.A.F. Lancaster bombers was the heaviest yet made on any objective in Italy by planes operating from bases in Britain and that it "intervened in the Sicilian campaign."

Enemy Defenses Weak

The bombing, carried out in the face of enemy defenses described officially "weak," was both "concentrated and effective," the Air ministry news service said.

Thus war-ridden and menaced Italy was under aerial siege from three sides.

The big black bombers of the R.A.F. flew in from England. They range operation.

Part of Combined Operations.

The raid was described authoritatively as "part of the combined operations now going on in the Mediterranean."

An Italian communique, broadcast by the Rome radio, reported that 101 persons had been killed and 203 injured in the raid on Turin and acknowledged considerable damage.

R. A. F. Blasts Turin in Italy

Home-based Bombers Fly 2000 Miles to Make Heavy Raid—13 Planes Lost.

London, July 13 (A. P.).—Home-based bombers of the R. A. F. struck a heavy blow at Turin, in northern Italy, last night in operations co-ordinated with the Allied invasion of Sicily, the British announced today.

The raiders encountered bad weather both on the outward and return trips, the announcement said, but the sky was clear over the target area.

Taking a different route going and coming, the big bombers flew a round trip of approximately 2,000 miles.

A communique, describing the attack as "heavy and concentrated," said thirteen bombers of the "strong force" were lost.

The planes were dispersed on the return flight because of the bad weather. The first announcement said the losses were "about normal" for such an operation.

Fighters and fighter-bombers attacked railway and other ground targets in France, Holland and Belgium while the Turin raiders were engaged in the long-struck a few hours after 100 U. S. Liberators from the Middle East had cast 650,000 pounds of bombs on Reggio Calabria and San Giovanni in the south, ferry terminals for invaded Sicily. The big Italian island itself was under air atack from planes bases on French Africa.

The R.A.F. lost 13 bombers, the Air ministry announced today. Bad weathers on both legs of the 2,000-mile, circuitous round trip appeared to have been more perilous than the Axis defenses. A Bern, Switzerland, dispatch said two bombers crashed in the Swiss Alps.

Bombers Avoid Enemy

The bombers made an unusual maneuver in returning home, swinging far out to the west to cross up lurking German night fighters on the direct route to Turin. That added about 600 miles to their journey.

The great Fiat motor plant and the Caproni works presented attractive targets on this 28th bombing of Turin. Much of Italy's clothing industry also is located there.

The Italians officially acknowledged considerable damage and said 101 persons were killed and 203 injured. Turin was last raided on Feb. 4 during an R.A.F. campaign agaist the industrial and communications centers of northern Italy. The five intervening months apparently had allowed the Italians to salvage something of value from previous devastation.

Giant Tanks Lead Nazi Drive; Reds' Belgorod Line Holds

JUL 14 1943

Flare-up on Southern Sector Occurs While Enemy Push on Rest of Front Subsides—Russians Wreck Foe's Best Machines.

Moscow, July 13 (A. P.).—Field Marshal Guenther von Kluge threw the entire weight of his armored columns into a furious attack today against the southern end of the 200-mile Orel-Kursk-Belgorod front in an action designed to enlarge the Belgorod wedge and blast a major breach in the Russian lines.

Dropping all efforts to break through on the northern end of the salient, Marshal Von Kluge fell back on the old Nazi powerhouse play, but the thick Red defenses remained impenetrable, although fighting became so violent that even tank crews of the opposing forces broke into hand-to-hand fighting on one occasion.

The success of the Red armies was indicated by an announcement that the Germans have despaired of breaking through on the whole Orel-Kursk sector, after suffering immense losses in one of the most determined attacks they have launched since the nine-day offensive started.

Nazis Quickly Erect Defenses.

While the Russian midnight communique reported that German attacks were somewhat weaker in the northern area around Orel, the Soviet Army newspaper Red Star said the struggle around Belgorod was daily becoming "more acute," with the Nazis hurling wave after wave of sixty-ton Tiger tanks into the fray in an attempt to widen a wedge they drove into the defenses last week.

A few details are now trickling through about the fighting of the last few days around Belgorod. After breaking through into Russian positions, Von Kluge's columns attempted to exploit the wedge by launching numerous attacks in different directions, front line dispatches said.

When these failed the Nazis were reported to have buttressed their own lines under cover of darkness, quickly erecting defenses and tank barriers to forestall a Russian flank attack. The German columns then turned north and attempted a break-through on a narrow sector, but were again repulsed, the dispatches said.

The Government newspaper Izvestia estimated that at least 30 per cent of the attacking mechanized columns were composed of the new Tigers, which were being used to spearhead the attacks. The tanks mount 88 millimeter cannon, which have proved valuable as an offensive weapon and as a screen for the lighter tanks following.

The Russian midnight communique reported that the Germans had lost 122 tanks yesterday, bringing the eight-day total to 2,622. The Russians said they shot down fifty-eight Nazi planes yesterday, making 1,126 brought down either in air combat or by anti-aircraft since Von Kluge launched his offensive.

GERMANS HALTED BY REDS AT KURSK, OFFENSIVE WANES

Lone Nazi Attack Is Pressed on Southern Part of Long Front.

JUL 14 1943

RESOURCES DWINDLE

Nazi Power Failing After Nine Days of Stubborn Russian Resistance.

LONDON, Wednesday, July 14.—(AP) The badly-mauled German army, now stopped cold on the northern sector of the central front, did not even attempt a large-scale attack Tuesday in the Orel-Kursk sector, Moscow declared early today, and it lost 96 tanks and 1,100 men in a futile plunge in the Belgorod area to the south.

Moscow's midnight bulletin indicated that the German offensive had begun to sap Nazi resources on its ninth day. Even Berlin said its drive had slowed, attributing its difficulties to "the weather."

Nazi Losses Huge

Moscow's explanation of Germany's failure to crack the Red army lines was the Nazi loss of 2,772 tanks, 1,187 planes and tens of thousands of casualties in the fighting to date.

On the raging Belgorod front the Russians said they even had recovered some lost ground in whittling down a German wedge that had been driven into Red army lines.

Although the Germans were said to be trying to "achieve success at any cost" in that narrow salient, the bulletin recorded by the Soviet monitor did not concede a single German gain. The enemy seized one village during the day, it said, but a Russian counter-attack restored the position.

"The enemy sustained heavy losses in manpower and equipment," it added. Aside from the 96 tanks destroyed, the enemy was said to have lost 250 trucks and large numbers of troops. The specific actions mentioned told of at least 1,100 more Nazi dead.

20 Attacks on One Village

The Germans attacked one village defended by a crack Red guard unit twenty times during the day, but the communique said: "The guardsmen destroyed 11 tanks, killed 300 of the enemy, and did not yield a step."

Street fighting in another village which the Germans captured and then lost to a Red counter-attack was said to have cost the enemy 400 dead, six guns, seven radio sets, 150,000 cartridges and other war material.

The Orel-Kursk sector forms most of the 165-mile front and of this area the bulletin said:

"The enemy, failing in all his attempts to break our defenses, did not launch any large-scale attack."

Yesterday's bulletin had told of diminishing fighting in the area where today the Russians said they knocked out 50 tanks and killed 400 Germans in one action. An enemy battalion was dispersed and partly wiped out and five guns disabled in another district.

The original German stategy, upon launching the offensive, had been to strike south of Orel and north of Belgorod to pinch off the Kursk salient in the middle. This salient juts westward toward the Bryansk-Kiev railway and is a distinct threat to the Germans. It was seized at the climax of the big Russian winter drive which began at Stalingrad on the Volga.

After nine days' heavy fighting in which the Germans have used nearly 500,000 men and thousands of tanks, there is not the slightest indication that the Germans have gained any sizable territory. They have been unable to widen a wedge driven north of Belgorod because of constant Russian counter-attacks.

As the prospect of a quick success lessens for the Germans, Berlin radio commentators now have begun suggesting that the whole drive actually was undertaken "for defensive purposes." This was the original German contention when the offensive began. After a few gains had been scored in the Belgorod area, Berlin had openly announced that the Germans were beginning their third summer campaign in Russia.

The sluggish pace of Germany's belated summer drive gave rise today to a report from a usually reliable foreign diplomatic source that Adolf Hitler had assumed control of the German offensive, relegating von Kluge and the generals to the back seat again. This source said Hitler intended to broaden the Kursk offensive into a great gamble for a major break-through. Hitler was said to have taken charge July 8, three days after the attack was launched to forestall preparations of the Russians for an offensive of their own.

If the report were true (and there was no confirmation), military observers said they considered it one of the most fortuitous developments of the war.

During the first campaign against Russia two years ago, Hitler was reported to have insisted on driving on Moscow against the advice of his generals who thought it more prudent to retire to winter lines in face of the closing Russian winter. Last summer, he apparently made a similar mistake by trying to substantiate his boast that Stalingrad would fall. He lost upward of 350,000 men on the Volga, gave Germany her greatest defeat of the war and set the stage for the most devastating of Russian counter offensives.

Nazi Planes Active

The Russian news agency Tass said the battle on the sweltering Kursk plain continued violently with "scores of planes diving on our forward positions."

"Behind clouds of dust and smoke, enemy tanks roll toward Soviet trenches," Tass added. "As previously, the enemy strives to forge ahead but has no success. The forces he hurled into the attack were larger than on previous days."

The Russians said about a third of the German tanks trying to exploit the Belgorod wedge were the new sixty-ton Tigers but that improved Russian tactics and weapons had their measure.

London Hears He Gambles for Big Break-Through at Kursk After Silencing Generals

AIDES SAID TO BE WORRIED

Staff Is Pictured as Fearful That Drain on Reserves Will Weaken Other Sectors

LONDON, July 13 (AP)—The sluggish pace of Germany's belated summer drive gave rise today to a report from a usually reliable foreign diplomatic source that Adolf Hitler had assumed control of the German offensive, relegating von Kluge and the generals to the back seat again. This source said Herr Hitler intended to broaden the Kursk offensive into a great gamble for a major break-through.

The Reichsfuehrer was said to have taken charge on July 8, three days after the attack was launched, to forestall preparations of the Russians for an offensive of their own. If the report were true—and there was no confirmation—military observers said they considered it one of the most promising developments of the war.

During the first campaign against Russia two years ago, Herr Hitler was reported to have insisted on driving on Moscow against the advice of his generals, who thought it more prudent to retire to winter lines in the face of the closing Russian winter.

Drive Originally Defensive

Last summer he apparently made a similar mistake by trying to substantiate his boast that Stalingrad would fall. He lost upward of 350,000 men on the Volga, gave Germany her greatest defeat of the war and set the stage for the most devastating of Russian counter-offensives.

The source, who would not permit his name to be used but said he had dependable contacts inside Europe, said Marshal von Kluge's attack, launched on July 5, originally was designed as a defensive move to forestall what appeared to be preparations for a heavy assault by the Russians.

He reported that Herr Hitler, noting early successes even though the cost was high, decided the German attack should be developed and took control three days after the operation began. Marshal von Kluge and other generals argued that the expenditure of men and material in such a local thrust would leave the Nazi army dangerously vulnerable should the Russians suddenly mount an offensive elsewhere, the informant said.

Herr Hitler, however, was reported to have insisted that the strongest possible effort be made in an effort to re-establish his own prestige as a strategist as well as to improve the German army's position.

German Reserves Drained

Herr Hitler is using upward of thirty divisions, including fifteen armored, which is believed to be about half of all the German mechanized divisions on the Eastern Front, the source reported. He said many troops had been drawn from Field Marshal Gen. Fritz Erich von Mannstein's army farther south and that the army generals were already gravely worried over the weakening of their strategic reserves.

The Germans were reported to have originally set June 16 as the date for a limited offensive, pivoting on the Orel salient, which was to represent their main 1943 effort, in contrast with the attack from the Baltic Sea to the Black Sea in June, 1941, and that from the Ukraine to the Caucasus in 1942. This was postponed, the informant said, because Field Marshal Gen. Fedor von Bock discovered what he felt was a serious shortage of front-line supplies.

Marshal von Bock's obstinacy against the argument of such officers as Lieut. Gen. Eberhard Warlimondt resulted, according to the informant, in a conflict that promoted Herr Hitler's influence and gave the Reichsfuehrer the opportunity to assume command of the Kursk bulge operations on the basis of the initial advances of the von Kluge attack, which, it was recalled, the Germans at first insisted was not a real offensive.

GERMAN MUTIN... REPORTED

Rising Said to Have Followed Shooting of Soldier

LONDON, July 13 (AP)—Dispatches to Inbel, the Belgian news agency, said today that an unidentified eyewitness had reported that mutiny had broken out in the German army barracks at Tongres, Belgium.

According to this witness, Inbel reported, German soldiers in the garrison revolted, started to smash windows and threw away their helmets when a soldier who had protested against a senior officer's lecture on the cause of the German defeat in Tunisia was summarily shot.

GALLANT DUTCH SUB ARRIVES IN BRITAIN

LONDON, Wednesday, July 14 — (AP) A Dutch submarine which braved a Japanese force of three destroyers, two corvettes, two planes and one cruiser to torpedo a 14,000-ton tanker in the Java sea more than a year ago arrived in Britain recently after an 18,000-mile voyage from the Netherlands East Indies by way of the United States.

Damaged in the encounter, the submarine sailed around Africa to the United States for refitting and now is back in the war—this time in the Atlantic.

Lampedusa a Laboratory Of War Reconstruction

U. S., British Administrators Win Popular Support

LONDON, July 13 (AP).—One of the first experiments in "practical post-war reconstruction" is being carried out on the Mediterranean island of Lampedusa, the British Air Ministry announced today.

Under Wing Commander John D. Bisdee, twenty-seven-year-old Royal Air Force ace, and Lieutenant John S. Politi, of New York, the island—surrender of which paved the way for the invasion of Sicily—is struggling back toward the peace which was shattered when Allied air fleets began raining bombs upon it after the fall of the Axis forces in North Africa.

Bisdee serves as military governor and Politi, schooled in the administration of enemy-occupied territory, is his chief aid. Together they have inaugurated a program which so pleased the natives that the latter have gone over the island obliterating signs of the departed Fascist regime, the Air Ministry announcement said.

"Most of the civilians are very poor," Bisdee was quoted by the ministry as saying, "but my idea is to make the island self-supporting as far as possible. The soil is very poor, but we hope to get every available acre under seed by this autumn. This produce, added to fishing and supplies from Linosa, which is much more fertile, should make quite a good living for the people."

At the height of the air attack there were about 4,000 Italian troops stationed on the island and about 400 civilians, who were permitted to stay when the Allies captured it. They are now clearing up the raid debris and repairing the damaged fishing fleet.

Cruiser Among Jap Ships Sunk

Three Destroyers Also Sent Down by U. S. Naval Guns in Solomons.

Allied Headquarters in the Southwest Pacific, July 13 (A. P.).—A Japanese cruiser and three destroyers were sent to the bottom of the Kula Gulf—graveyard of at least nine other enemy warships—by guns of the United States Navy in a battle which began last night.

Two other enemy destroyers probably were sunk and enemy losses may be even greater when all reports are in. The battle still was in progress, it was indicated, at the time preliminary reports were received today by Gen. Douglas MacArthur from Admiral William F. Halsey.

But already Japan has expended between thirteen and seventeen cruisers and destroyers in two battles in the central Solomons while trying on land to hold apart the jaws of a trap which American jungle fighters are clamping on the enemy air base of Munda, on New Georgia Island.

Two Miles From Munda.

Both battles in the Kula Gulf, which is fifteen miles long and eight miles across at its widest part, occurred as units of the Japanese Navy, moving down from the northern Solomons, encountered United States war vessels blockading New Georgia's gulf coastline. In the first battle, July 5-6, the loss of the cruiser Helena was acknowledged. Reports on the second battle mentioned no United States losses.

Today's action-packed account from Gen. MacArthur showed Japan everywhere losing the fight for Munda—on New Georgia, in the air above it and in the seas offshore.

Ten miles northeast of Munda, a Japanese ground force of considerable strength was trapped at Enogai Inlet and wiped out. Munda has been cut off from its supply port on the Kula Gulf by a barricade bristling with guns thrown across the connecting jungle track. East of Munda, American jungle fighters are less than two miles away.

American warplanes pounded anew yesterday at Munda; at its supply depot across the Kula Gulf at Vila on Kolombangara Island, and at Munda's source of air support in the northern Solomons. The Kahili airdrome on Bougainville Island and Rabaul, New Britain, the nearest enemy air base with several fields, also were air-raided.

Four Zeros Shot Down, Americans Lose One Corsair in Battle.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Wednesday, July 14 — (AP) With a Japanese task force thwarted in efforts to supply the beleaguered garrison at Munda and sent fleeing to the north, American ground troops on New Georgia have moved up cautiously against the enemy air base and met "stiffening resistance."

Today's communique confirmed that the second battle of the Kula gulf, which occurred in the darkness of Monday night and early Tuesday, was another smashing United States naval victory with an enemy cruiser and three destroyers definitely sunk and two other enemy destroyers probably sunk.

Enemy Warships Forced to Flee

Our warships intercepted the enemy units and forced them to break off the engagement. There was no mention of any United States losses.

"The advance of our ground forces against Munda is continuing despite stiffening enemy resistance," reported the latest communique from Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

On New Georgia above and below Munda, the American invasion forces took a toll of 300 Japanese. A checkup on the previously reported destruction of an enemy garrison on the Enogai inlet 10 miles northeast of Munda showed 150 killed. Many others were wounded and heavy artillery and machineguns were captured.

Three Barges Destroyed

Below New Georgia, near Vangunu island which the Americans occupied early in the current operations, "our surface craft and shore parties on the northeast coast destroyed three enemy barges containing 150 troops," the communique said. It was believed these troops were the remnants of the original Jap force on Vangunu that fled after the first attack about a week ago.

Upon Munda itself, the United States airforce kept up its daily series of attacks. In the latest reported today, torpedo and dive-bombers struck at an anti-aircraft positions and enemy camps with 32 tons of heavy explosives.

The Japanese made an attempt to bomb our assault forces but their 18 divebombers, which had an escort of 10 Zeros, were forced to jettison their bombs over Langsdale point. Four Zeros were shot down. One American plane was lost.

Above New Georgia, Japan's airdrome at Ballale in the Shortland island group was blasted with 24 tons of bombs and nearer Munda the supply depot at Vila on Kolombangara was raided anew.

In a far-ranging arc extending from the Kai islands in the Banda sea to Vangunu island in the central Solomons, our air forces dropped a total bomb weight of more than 128 tons.

Salamaua, Lae Bomber

In northeastern New Guinea, where Australian nad American jungle fighters are infiltrating within less than 12 miles of the enemy air base of Salamaua that objective as well as the air base of Lae above it were struck with great weights of bombs.

More than 50 tons were aimed at Salamaua's airdrome and at the town itself. Several buildings were demolished and a heavy pall of smoke covered a wide area. Twenty-one tons of bombs fell on Lae and its airdrome, starting one large fire and numerous small ones.

Five Jap Planes Destroyed

In a delayed report on air fighting over Rendova island, south of New Georgia, on July 11, four more Japanese fighters and a medium bomber were added to the number shot down.

These five and the four bagged over Langsdale point made a total of 258 planes listed in communiques since the new offensive opened June 30 as destroyed or probably destroyed. Our listed losses in that time, including the plane loss reported today, amount to 62. The pilot of the Corsair shot down in the fight over Langsdale point was saved.

In addition to annihilating the Enogai garrison, above Munda, American troops were reported to have knocked out two other Japanese strong points. They were not designated as to locations.

Foe in New Guinea Bombed

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Wednesday, July 14 (AP)—At the New Guinea end of the far-flung Pacific offensive arc, Mitchell medium bombers dropped fifty tons of bombs on the Japanese at Salamaua, today's communiqué reported.

Just above Salamaua at Lae, our four-motored bombers dropped twenty-one tons of explosives and incendiaries on the enemy airdrome in the area, where planes were dispersed, and in the town of Lae.

"One large fire and numerous smaller blazes were started," the communiqué reported.

Above the Lae-Salamaua sector, three enemy barges were attacked by a four-motored bomber on reconnaissance. Two were set afire. The other had to be beached.

The Allied-held Bena Bena sector of New Guinea, which consists of native villages and emergency landing fields ninety miles northwest of the Salamaua jungle war front, was raided by seventeen Japanese bombers, escorted by fifteen fighters. The communiqué said there was no damage.

The second naval battle of Kula Gulf was further evidence today that the United States Navy had taken over with a vengeance the night fighting tactics used by the Japanese when they tried to regain our hold on Guadalcanal last year.

In two night clashes, just [illegible] apart, the Navy sank at least thirteen and possibly more than seventeen enemy cruisers and destroyers seeking to halt the American offensive in the Central Solomons.

A. P. Correspondent Hurt Covering New Guinea

Allied Headquarters in the Southwest Pacific, July 13 (A. P.).—William F. Boni, Associated Press war correspondent in New Guinea, suffered nine shell splinter wounds in an attack by Japanese planes on the Salamaua front, the A. P.'s Australian bureau was informed today. Mr. Boni is being treated at an advanced field hospital near the battle scene.

The wounds, which Mr. Boni described as superficial, resulted from enemy bombing and strafing of a barge in which the correspondent was leaving Nassau Bay, twelve miles below Salamaua. Nassau Bay was the scene of the American landings June 30.

AMERICAN BOMBERS RAID NORTH BURMA

Liberators and Warhawks Deal Heavy Blows

NEW DELHI, India, July 13 (AP)—Devasting raids by American Liberators and Warhawks have destroyed Japanese supply and administrative bases in northern Burma, a United States communiqué said today.

Liberators of the Tenth United States Air Force dropped more than twelve tons of bombs on enemy railway installations at Ywatung yesterday, but clouds prevented an accurate assessment of damage. On the same day the Warhawks, carrying medium and fragmentation bombs, blasted the Japanese base of Nanyaseik. Returning pilots said that the raid, on top of previous attacks, had destroyed all administration buildings and supply installations.

Yesterday's operations were preceded by widespread sweeps against enemy supply centers and troop bases by American fighter planes based in Assam. Nanyaseik and Sumprabum were heavily bombed, the communiqué said, and the largest building in the Sumprabum area, believed to have housed the Japanese headquarters for that district, was destroyed.

Ningbyen, another Japanese base, was the target of a concentrated bomber attack that started many fires. Loilaw railway bridge near Moguang was wrecked by 1,000-pound bombs in the same operation.

All the American planes and crews returned safely.

French in China Switch

CHUNGKING, July 13 (AP).—The Vichy government's representatives in Chungking have informed the Chinese Foreign Office that they have shifted their allegiance to the French Committee of National Liberation, it was disclosed today. The representatives, headed by Charge d'Affaires Jean Paul-Boncour, nephew of former Premier Joseph Paul-Boncour, are to leave shortly for Algiers, where they have been summoned by the committee.

A French gunboat, the only unit of the French fleet in China waters, was taken over by the Liberation French at the suggestion of the crew.

Knox Neither Affirms Nor Denies Report Of Raid On Japs' Kurile Isles

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, July 13—Three new air attacks on the Japanese base at Kiska Island were reported today by the navy, and Secretary Knox left without confirmation a report that American planes ranging far west of that Aleutians outpost had struck at the enemy stronghold on Paramushiro Island, in the Kuriles.

The newest raids on Kiska, Japan's only remaining position in the Aleutians, were reported in a communique which said the specific objectives were the enemy's installations at North Head and the main camp areas. Results were not observed because of poor weather, the communique said.

Types Of Bombers Used

The raids were made by army Liberator heavy bombers and Mitchell and Ventura medium bombers.

Kiska has been bombed more than a dozen times this month and bombarded three times by United States surface units. The warships apparently are carrying on the work of destruction which the planes are unable to continue very consistently because of fog and storm.

The question of an operation against Paramushiro came up at Knox's press conference prior to issuance of the communique.

Question Put To Knox

A reporter said "we understand" that American planes had attacked the big base and asked Knox whether he had heard anything of such an action. The Secretary replied, "nothing that I can say." He added in response to further questions that he could neither deny nor affirm the report.

Paramushiro is at the northern end of the Kurile Islands, which run north from Japan. It lies 861 nautical miles west of Amchitka and about 630 nautical miles southwest of the island of Attu, which Americans have retaken from the Japanese.

JAP BASE REPORTED BOMBED IN KURILES

Washington, July 13 (A. P.).—Secretary Knox declined today to affirm or deny a report that American planes had attacked the Japanese base of Paramushiro, at the northern end of the Kurile Island chain.

A reporter at the press conference held by Mr. Knox said: "We understand that there was an American airplane attack on Paramushiro. Have you heard anything about it, Mr. Secretary?"

"Nothing that I can say," Mr. Knox replied.

"Nothing that you can say?" he was asked.

"That's right," he replied. "Nothing that I can talk about."

"But you don't deny it?' the reporter, put in.

"I dont deny it or affirm it," Mr. Knox said.

Such an attack would be a logical followup of American advances in the Aleutians area and a logical development of the growing air force strength there.

The Kurile Islands are Japanese-owned. The big Paramushiro base at the northern end of the island chain stretching out north of Japan is 861 nautical miles due west of the American base on Amchitka Island in the Aleutians and only 630 nautical miles southwest of the newly conquered island of Attu. It is off the southern tip of the Russian eninsula of Kamchatka. Long range American bombers could hit Paramushiro from either Amchitka or Attu, provided base facilities were available.

SEES ALLIED VICTORY

Washington, July 13 (A. P.).—Dr. Herbert V. Evatt, Australian Minister of External Relations, said today after a visit to the White House that the improvement in the Pacific position now as compared with his visit here last year is there for all the world to see.

"Behind the improvement which is visible to all," he added, "there has been an improvement in organization, in planning and production. These are at once the foundations and guaranty of future success."

Dr. Evatt asserted that while the war time table contemplates the fall of Hitler first, the United Nations believe that by aggressive action against Japan simultaneously—wherever that is possible—that enemy will be deprived of breathing time to consolidate.

Referring to his second mission to the United States and his recently concluded mission to Britain, Dr. Evatt said he was happy to report that the main object has been fully accomplished.

ROBERT RESIGNS AS GOVERNOR OF MARTINIQUE

Hoppenot Takes Over and Island Will Give Full War Aid to Allies

JUL 14 1943

U. S. TO RESUME RELATIONS

Warships and Merchant Craft Will Join Fight on Axis—Antilles Unity Near.

Washington, July 13 (A. P.).—Admiral Georges Robert has relinquished his authority as French High Commissioner of Martinique, the State Department said today, and Henri Hoppenot of the French military mission in Washington has been appointed by the French Committee of National Liberation to succeed him.

M. Hoppenot has assured the United States Government, the State Department said, that the resources of the French Antilles will be mobilized fully for the prosecution of the war against the Axis and that all French warships and merchant ships there will be made available to the war effort.

The warships presently immobilized at Martinique include the 22,000-ton aircraft carrier Bearn, the light cruiser Jean Bertin, and several smaller vessels.

M. Hoppenot and his assistants, the department announced, are expected to arrive at Martinique in the immediate future, and as soon as he has officially assumed authority the United States will resume relations with the Caribbean French colony.

In Algiers the French National Committee of Liberation today conferred full powers on M. Hoppenot, who is representing the committee in the negotiations for the return of the French Antilles to the empire.

Martinique Joins Anti-Axis Nations

JUL 14 1943

New Ruler for Antilles Is Named by French Committee.

WASHINGTON, July 13 — (AP) Martinique, long suspect as a weak link in the American defense arc of the Caribbean because of Vichy French domination, joined the anti-Axis lineup today with announcement that the French National Committee of Liberation had taken control.

The State department announced that Henri Hoppenot of the French military mission in Washington has been appointed by the committee, headed jointly by Generals Henri Giraud and Charles de Gaulle, to succeed Admiral Georges Robert as French high commissioner for the Antilles.

Will Arrive on Holiday

He was expected to arrive in the island capital of Fort de France tomorrow, Bastille day, and make the French national holiday the occasion of his assumption of authority.

Admiral Robert, who radioed an offer to negotiate a change of authority two weeks ago, had "expressed a desire to relinquish his authority," the State department announced.

The acceptance of M. Hoppenote's designation by the Committee of Liberation at Algiers "for the express purpose of exercising the French authority in the Antilles," the statement said, "is not to be construed as affecting either pro or con the question of this government's relation" with the committee. Thus it was made clear that no formal recognition of the Algiers committee was to be implied.

Pledges All Resources

"Mr. Hoppenot has assured the government of the United States that the facilities and resources of the French Antilles will be devoted to the fullest extent to the prosecution of the war against the Axis, in accord with the action already taken by all French territory not under the domination of the enemy," the announcement said.

"The military interests of the United States in the Caribbean zone are fully recognized. The use of all presently immobilized French naval and merchant ships will be made available in the prosecution of the war effort."

Tied up in Martinique harbor are the aircraft carrier Bearn, two light cruisers, a half dozen tankers and several other merchant ships.

Presumably added to the Allied war chest, too, will be nearly $300,000,000 in gold taken to Martinique upon the fall of France, although the State department said nothing on that score.

With Hoppenot's accession, the United States blockade which had denied imports to the inhabitants of Martinique and the neighboring island of Guadeloupe since last November, will be lifted.

Supplies, in fact, presumably are already on the way, or possibly already there, in view of the language of the State department announcement which said the United States "is dispatching" relief supplies and will cooperate in "resumption of the economic life of the islands."

ROOSEVELT ASKS FOR FRENCH UNITY IN FIGHTING NAZIS

France Will Be Liberated,

JUL 14 1943

Says President on Eve of Bastille Day.

WASHINGTON, July 13—(AP) On the eve of Bastille day, President Roosevelt made an indirect plea tonight for French unity, declaring that France "transcends all parties, personalities and groups.'

"There can be one symbol only for Frenchmen—France itself," he said in a statement.

Will Choose own Government

The President in honor of the 154th anniversary tomorrow of the storming of the Bastille, monarchial prison, in the French Revolution, assured the French people anew that they will be allowed to erect a government of their own choice once the enemy is driven from their soil.

He said last week that he did not think the question would arise of recognizing the National Committee of Liberation, jointly headed by Generals Henri Honore Giraud and Charles de Gaulle, as the French government.

The President's statement:

"The 14th of July is, for all the peoples of the world devoted to the ideals of liberty, a day of celebration. We observe it this year, here in the United States, with special fervor. Immortal France has reaffirmed once again, in the most heroic circumstances, her greatness and her glory.

"On this anniversary of the winning by the French people of their liberties, I wish to recall again that the fundamental principles which guide our democracies were evolved from the American and the French Revolutions. The keystone of our democratic structure is the principle which places governmental authority in the people, and in the people only. There can be one symbol only for Frenchmen—France herself. She transcends all parties, personalities and groups: They live indeed only in the glory of French nationhood.

People to Get Rights

"One of our war aims, as set forth in the Atlantic Charter, is to restore the mastery of their destinies to the peoples now under the invaders' yoke. There must be no doubt, anywhere, of the unalterable determination of the United Nations to restore to the oppressed peoples their full and sacred rights.

"French sovereignty resides in the people of France.

"Today, this people is shackled by barbaric oppression. In the freedom of tomorrow, when Frenchmen and their brothers in arms of the United Nations have cleansed French soil of the enemy, the French people will again give expression to their freedom in the erecting of a government of their own free choice.

JUL 14 1943

"Long live liberty, equality, fraternity. May France live forever!"

Pooling of Farm Resources By United Nations Favored

U. S. Unable to Make Up Food Deficit Looming Next Year.

WASHINGTON, July 13 — (AP) The United States may propose to other United Nations creation of a joint body to mobilize the agricultural resources of all to swell the amount of food available for increasing war and relief needs, and also develop production strategically so that a minimum of transportation will be required.

The idea, advanced by a food study group, is under consideration by the Administration. It is based on the premise that the United Nations are not now holding their own in food production, and that the United States cannot alone make up the prospective deficit even though it hopes for a record harvest next year.

Planting Goal Increased

The United States' 1944 food planting goal was set by Food Administrator Marvin Jones today at 380,000,000 acres, an increase of 16,000,000 over that for 1943. He also asked that meat, dairy and egg production be maintained at high levels.

"Every crop acre and every farming facility in the nation should be mobilized for its most productive use," Mr. Jones said.

The suggested United Nations war food body would be separate from an international agency proposed by the recent Hot Springs, Va., food conference to map plans for post-war expansion of production, distribution and consumption of food.

The proposal came from a subcommittee of the government's food advisory committee, which is made up of representatives of the Agriculture department, the War Food administration, the military services, the War Production board, the Lend-Lease administration and the Office of Price Administration.

The group suggested that the United Nations food stocks have declined to a point where there is no more than a small operating reserve in any commodities except sugar and wheat—and wheat reserves will probably be depleted in the next two or three years at the present rate of consumption.

The committee asserted that it should be understood now that United States production, while important, cannot hope to meet all the deficits of the United Nations, largely because American production has always been primarily for domestic needs.

Vigorous development of all available land, labor, and other food production resources is essential, the committee said, to meet present and future food needs. Expansion of food production to date in Great Britain, Africa, the Middle East, Latin America and elsewhere where said to indicate tremendous possibilities for further increases.

Food Agency Needed

A vigorous production program will require, the committee said, the establishment of a United Nations food agency represented by this country, Great Britain, Russia and possibly China.

Production emphasis should be placed, the committee said, on edible oils, dry beans and peas, eggs and dairy products. It said, for example, that excellent possibilities for securing more beans and peas—protein susbtitutes for meats—exist in Mexico, Argentina, Brazil, French Africa, Canada and Chile.

United Nations agency have power to assign areas, allocate production resources, and set goals which might reasonably be expected from each area.

U. S. WILL RETURN MINES TO OWNERS

JUL 14 1943

Roosevelt Says Anti-Strike Law Provides for Restoration of Private Property.

WASHINGTON, July 13 — (AP) President Roosevelt served notice today that the coal mines will be returned to their private owners, although John L. Lewis has stipulated that the existing strike truce will continue only as long as the government retains possession.

Mr. Roosevelt's decision, heralding a possible showdown between him and the president of the United Mine Workers, was made known at his press-radio conference.

Law Provides for Return

Volunteering a statement on the coal situation, Mr. Roosevelt suggested that reporters read Section Three of the recently enacted anti-strike law. This provides that plants taken over by the government shall be restored to private hands as soon as practicable, and in no event later than 60 days after their "productive efficiency" has been restored.

Mr. Roosevelt said the government would comply with the law. He did not reveal what steps the government would take if a new general walkout should start when the mines go back to private possession, but he did call attention to a provision of the anti-strike law requiring 30 days notice before any strike can be called in plants not in government possession. (Strikes are forbidden altogether in facilities under government operations).

Truce Carried Stipulation

Mr. Lewis, in ordering the miners back to work on June 22 after a general work stoppage, stipulated that the truce would last until Oct. 31 if government operation of the mines continued, but would "automatically terminate" if the pits, now under the direction of Secretary of Interior Ickes, should be returned to their owners.

There was no indication tonight of the exact date on which the government will relinquish control. That, presumably, might depend on the date in which the mines resumed full production. Some of them did so a few days after the last general walkout ended but mines employing some 10,000 in western Pennsylvania are still idle despite the U.M.W.'s return-to-work order. A special grand jury investigation into these strikes is to start in Pittsburgh tomorrow.

Coal Diverted to Mills

Meanwhile, an increased supply of coal for steel appeared assured today, as Secretary Ickes, who is solid fuels coordinator, ordered 135,000 tons diverted to steel plants and four more mines owned by steel companies resumed operations.

The fuel, special purpose metallurgical coals essential to steel manufacture, will go to plants of four major steel producers—Republic, Weirton, Jones and Laughlin, and Carnegie-Illinois. Secretary Ickes estimated that the diversions, from sources having adequate stocks or which could use other fuels, would return all these companies' plants to full operation plant. Further efforts are being made, he said, to care for its needs.

The return of workers to four Jones and Laughlin mines reduced the number of idle miners to about 10,000. For the first time in three weeks there was no picketing in the Monongahela river valley.

There were 14 mines still down or operating on a partial basis. Ten of these belong to the H. C. Frick Coke company, U. S. Steel subsidiary, which reported today's coal production at about 32 percent of normal.

NELSON MAY VISIT ENGLAND

WASHINGTON, July 13. — (AP) Donald Nelson, chairman of the War Production board may go to England and Russia this year to inspect war industries, one of his close associates said tonight. "Nelson wants to go and he thinks he can work it out but he hasn't yet made up his time table for the trip," the associate said.

NAVY'S CASUALTIES 27,106

One Jersey Man, Capt. B. R. Rasmussen of Arlington Is Dead

WASHINGTON, July 13 (AP)—The Navy made public a list of fifteen casualties today including five dead and ten missing.

This lifts to 27,106 the total of Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard casualties reported to next-of-kin since Dec. 7, 1941. The grand total includes 8,271 dead, 4,735 wounded, 10,515 missing and 3,585 prisoners-of-war.

Among casualties announced today was news of the death of Capt. Bertel R. Rasmussen of the Marine Corps. His next-of kin was given as his father, Bertel Rasmussen of Arlington.

Neither New York nor Connecticut names were on the list.

RETURNS TO CAPITAL

WASHINGTON, July 13 — (AP) Secretary of State Hull announced today that H. Freeman Matthews, counsellor of the American embassy at London, would return to Washington as chief of the State department's European division.

Mr. Matthews will succeed Ray Atherton, who has been appointed minister to Canada. Howard Bucknell, assistant chief of the division of current information, has been designated as the new counsellor at London.

British Now Bond Light Alloys And Steel

Washington, July 13 (AP)—The Commerce Department said today that trade reports from England tell of the development of a process for bonding light alloys and steel to each other or to wood by use of synthetic resin adhesives.

Foreshadowing possible new developments in aircraft construction and new methods of industrial design, the process "may prove as revolutionary as the use of resin adhesives in the plywood industry," the department said.

2 Brazilian Officers Die in Atlantic Fighting

Rio De Janeiro, July 13 (A. P.).—Naval sources disclosed today that Lieut.-Commanders Alberto Concalves Rosauro de Almeida and Julio Hima de Moura lost their lives in fighting the enemy in the North Atlantic last June 12. They were the first Brazilian Navy officers reported killed in action in this war.

No details of the action were released, but it was known that the two officers were part of a group studying subchaser technic of the United States.

New York, July 13 (AP) — Col. Dieudonne Coste, noted French aviator and head of a French underground movement, who won fame for his 1930 trip westward across the Atlantic with Sergt. Maurice Bellonte, has escaped from France and has arrived in this country.

Coast Guard Unit Takes Up New Task In England

London, July 13 (AP)—Seven United States Coast Guardsmen, the first unit of that service to be stationed in the United Kingdom, have taken over the duties of examining American merchant seamen for promotions, it was announced today.

The group also is engaged in controlling and disciplining merchant marine personnel at five British ports, where five of the officers are stationed in the United States Navy liaison offices.

The Coast Guard detachment is headed by Commander Alfred C. Richmond, of Arlington, Va., and includes Commander Ralph T. Eiland, of Montgomery, Ala.; Lieut. Com. Frederick A. Reicker, of Gulfport, Miss.; Lieut. Com. Roderick Y. Edwards, of Jersey City; Lieut. Com. Q. R. Walsh, of Denton, Md.; Lieut. J. S. Wright, of New Orleans, La., and Yeoman (second class) Charles Toddings, of Brooklyn, New York.

Heavy Battle in China

Chinese Trying to Stem Japanese Drive in Taihang Mountains

CHUNGKING, July 13.—Fierce fighting is continuing on the western slopes of the Taihang Mountains, where the Japanese have launched a multi-pronged drive to wipe out Chinese guerrillas harassing their communication lines along the Honan-Shansi border, the Chinese high command reported tonight. It did not disclose the progress of the battle.

The communique said that in the Tungting Lake region, south of the Yangtse River, Chinese forces repulsed Japanese attempts to recapture three villages in the outskirts of the highway center of Kungan.

GIRAUD PROMISES TO FIGHT JAPANESE

French Troops Will Aid U.S. in Pacific, Commander Declares.

JUL 14 1943

WEST POINT, N. Y., July 13.—(AP) General Henri Honore Giraud, commander of the French forces in North Africa, pledged today that "our French troops will be at your side in the Pacific until the final victory is won there also."

Gen. Giraud made the statement during ceremonies at the U. S. military academy before the monument L'Ecole Polytechnique, a statue presented to the academy by military schools in France and dedicated by Marshal Foch in 1919.

After referring to the showing of the French troops in the battle of Tunisia, Gen. Giraud said: "Tomorrow, with the weapons that you are giving us, and for which we are deeply grateful, we shall fight even better.

"x x x tomorrow side by side they (British, French and Americans) shall liberate Europe."

After placing a wreath on the monument, Gen. Giraud reviewed the 1,200 new cadets.

RAINBOW DIVISION TO BE REACTIVATED

Veterans of World War Outfit to Attend Ceremonies Today.

JUL 14 1943

TULSA, Okla., July 13 — (AP) Veterans of the historic Rainbow division, which wrote a heroic chapter in World War one, tonight passed on their rich battle traditions to officers of a new fighting group.

In a prelude to the reactivation tomorrow of the new Rainbow division at Camp Gruber, Okla., the graying veterans who fought in the old division under General Douglas MacArthur — he was a colonel then—were hosts to Brig. Gen. Harry J. Collins and other officers of the 1943 Rainbow.

"We pass on to them a very precious heritage," declared Maj. Gen. Mathew A. Tinley, retired. Gen. Tinley was an infantry colonel of the veteran outfit.

"We are very jealous of that heritage, but we are giving it into the hands of a very wonderful group of youth, most of whom we have never seen, but in whom we have the greatest confidence to carry on."

Almost 500 veterans from many states will go to Camp Gruber to take part in the reactivation ceremony. The old outfit was made up of soldiers from 26 states and the District of Columbia. The new division will draw its strength from all of the states and the district.

Flags of all the states, with a native soldier as bearer, will be paraded during the ceremony. The old and historic colors and standards of the first Rainbow will be passed along to the new fighting group.

Gen. W. E. Lynd Says Air Force Alone Cannot Drive Foe Out

SAN FRANCISCO, July 13 (AP)—Brig. Gen. William E. Lynd, new commander of the Fourth Air Force, told a press conference yesterday that air force alone could not drive the Japanese out of the Aleutians.

The 49-year-old general, who succeeded Maj. Gen. William E. Kepner over the week-end, said "we've been bombing Kiska for the past year, and the Japs still haven't left."

He placed under "opinion not worth much" any comment on the possibilities of a Japanese attack on the West Coast. As to the Japanese generally, he said they "do not leave any place they hold. They don't go away. You just kill them."

Arnold Calls Luftwaffe Victim of Mathematics

Weakened by Multiplication of Fronts, Division of Force

LOS ANGELES, July 13 (AP).—What's wrong with the Luftwaffe? Merely a matter of mathematics—a case of dividing a given force between a growing number of fronts, says General W. H. Arnold, chief of the American Army Air Forces.

"Why is it [the Luftwaffe] not nearly so strong today?" The general echoed a newspaper man's question in an interview yesterday. "Well, take any number and divide it again and again, to care for all your increasing combat fronts, and you have decreasing air power on any one front. It's mathematics."

In the Polish and French campaigns, General Arnold pointed out, the Nazi air force functioned as a single unit.

The general, here on an inspection trip, had a good word for the P-40 Warhawk in discussing fighter aircraft.

"We've got to have ships that will equal or better the enemy's craft," he declared. "And one more thing: don't sell the P-40 short. It has shot down more ships than any other single fighter."

Russia, he stated, is receiving American planes in large numbers every month, and seems "highly satisfied" with them. China, likewise, will be further supplied, but, he added:

"You can only build China militarily as fast as the planes will fly supplies in. We'll build the air force in China as fast as possible, but we have to do it in a balanced way."

6 Who Cut Submarine Net Get Navy Crosses

Norfolk, Va., July 13 (A. P.).—Navy Crosses have been conferred here on six men for extraordinary heroism in cutting a submarine net across the Qued Sebou River in French Morocco last November to permit passage of a United States destroyer which captured an airport at Port Lyautey.

Citations accompanying the decoration noted that the men performed their task with "great skill and courage." The citations were signed by Admiral R. E. Ingersoll, Commander in Chief, U. S. Atlantic Fleet. The men were decorated by Vice-Admiral Alexander Sharp, commander service force, U. S. Atlantic Fleet.

17 KILLED IN BLAST AT ARMY AIR BASE

Elgin Field, Fla., July 13 (A. P.).—Two officers and fifteen enlisted men were killed at this Army air base late yesterday by an accidental explosion, Public Relations reported today.

Fifty-one others were hurt. The extent of their injuries was not disclosed, but most were believed to have escaped with minor injuries.

Capt. William W. Lange, Public Relations officer, said the cause of the accident had not been determined. The names of the dead were withheld pending notification of the next of kin.

Tampa, Fla., July 13 (A. P.).—Three officers and four enlisted men from MacDill Field were killed in a medium bomber crash six miles southeast of Baton Rouge yesterday while on a training flight from Tampa to Harding Field, Baton Rouge.

The Public Relations office announced that among those killed was Sergt. A. M. Foley of Middle Village, N. Y.

Omaha, Neb, July 13 (A. P.).—Air Cadet John J. Burne of South Orange, N. J., died yesterday in a hospital here shortly after a trainer plane in which he was riding with an instructor had collided with another ship in mid-air and spun 600 feet into a swamp. The instructor was killed instantly. Cadet Burne's mother, Mrs. Anna Burne, lives in South Orange.

The undercarriage of the other ship was damaged but made a safe belly landing.

Salinas, Cal., July 13 (A. P.).—The names of two officers missing in the crash of a B-24 Liberator in Camusa Canyon north of Santa Barbara, on July 4, were disclosed today by the Army air base. Eight crew members parachuted to safety.

Listed as missing were:

DANNHARDT, PETER, second lieutenant; father, John W. Dannhardt, 7605 Caldwell avenue, Elmhurst Station, Flushing, N. Y.

PROSSER, ROBERT H., second lieutenant; father, Henry W. Prosser, Remsen, N. Y.

Former Senator Gibson Is Wounded in Action

Lieutenant Colonel Was Serving in Southwest Pacific

BRATTLEBORO, Vt., July 13.—Lieutenant Colonel Ernest Gibson, former United States Senator, was slightly wounded in action with the United States Army in the Southwest Pacific on July 2, the War Department notified Mrs. Gibson here today.

Details of the nature of his injuries were lacking. Mrs. Gibson had not heard from her husband since June 25. He served an interim appointment in the United States Senate after the death of his father, Senator Ernest W. Gibson Sr. Lieutenant Colonel Gibson was state's attorney of Windham County and served as assistand secretary of the Vermont Senate from 1931 to February, 1933, when he was elected secretary.

Mr. Gibson was called to active army duty from the reserve list on May 13, 1941. He is national chairman of the Committee to Defend America, but during his absence the duties of his post are administered by Clark M. Eichelberger, the national director.

BREWSTER CITES U. S. 'GIETS' ABROAD

Bangor, Me., July 13 (A. P.).—United States Senator Ralph O. Brewster (R.-Me.), declared today that after a record-long congressional session, "it finally seemed a good idea to let the inmates out to graze for a few weeks to find out first hand what is going on in the country and in the world."

Congress, he said in an address prepared for delivery to the Bangor Rotary Club, had been in continuous session without more than two days' intervention for 1,260 out of the last 1,280 days.

Asserting that "Harry Hopkins has had the decisive voice in giving away to other countries munitions to the value of over five billion dollars besides vast and constantly increasing quantities of foodstuffs and other materials," Senator Brewster added:

"The Truman committee (of which Mr. Brewster is a member), charged with responsibility for our defense expenditures, determined that the disposition of these billions outside our borders was of profound consequence to our present and future welfare."

In addition, he continued, "hundreds of millions have been invested in airports all over the world in which under existing agreements of use by the United States are forfeited six months after the termination of hostilities."

"Many in Congress and the country," he said, "are tremendously concerned to know whether maximum utilization is being made of the great Persian oil reserves in the Middle East to relieve the strain on the rapidly diminishing oil reserves in this country and particularly the strain on the transportation facilities serving our East Coast with petroleum products."

WARNING IN 1941 BY JAP OFFICIAL REVEALED BY GREW

JUL 14 1943

Bares Matsuoka's Threat of Attack if U. S., Germany Clashed.

NEW YORK, July 13. — (AP) Former Ambassador Joseph C. Grew said here tonight that as early as the spring of 1941 Japan's foreign minister had warned him that if the United States got into a shooting war against Germany, "even in defense against the German submarines," Japan would be obliged to go to war against the United States.

(The "shooting war" against German submarines began in September, 1941; Japan attack at Pearl Harbor December 7.)

Quotes Matsuoka

In an address for delivery at Columbia university Mr. Grew described a conversation he had with Yosuke Matsuoka, then foreign minisled, at Matsuoka's home in Tokyo in the spring of 1941. He said Matsuoka told him democracy was bankrupt and that "this is the day of the great military powers."

Matsuoka expressed the view, Mr. Grew related, that Germany would "unquestionably" win the war in Europe and that Japan would be the "stabilizing force" in the Far East.

"And then he went on to say," Mr. Grew continued, "that if the United States should get into a shooting war with Germany, even in defense against the German submarines, Japan would be obliged, on the basis of Article 3 of the tripartite pact, "to go to war with us."

Mr. Grew said Japan's leaders, like Germany's in 1914, failed to grasp the potential fighting capacity and stamina of other peoples.

"Had the Germans in 1914 and the Japanese in 1941 better understood those things," he said, "had they more accurately conceived the inherent qualities of their future enemies, might they not have hesitated to rush headlong toward cerultimate destruction?"

Sees Long Battle

While referring to Japan's defeat as certain and inevitable, Mr. Grew warned it might take a long time, even after Germany and Italy have been crushed.

"Even when we can turn our entire attention to Japan," he said, "let us not for a moment think that we can regard with complacency the problem of defeating that enemy."

The Japanese realize, he pointed out, that their shipping is vulnerable and that "eventually . . . we shall sink their ships faster than they can build." So they are busily developing their enormous Far Eastern empire to make all parts of it "so far as possible self-sustaining and independent of shipping facilities to and from the homeland."

SAYS VULTEE SPEEDS OUTPUT

Woodhead Reports Tremendous Increase In Plane Production In Last Six Months

Asserts Yield Is Stepped Up To Meet Demands Of Europe And Pacific Fronts

JUL 14 1943

(By the Associated Press)

New York, July 13—Harry Woodhead, president of Consolidated Vultee Aircraft Corporation, said today that production of heavy bombers had been stepped up tremendously in the past six months to meet demands of the accelerated air warfare drive in Europe and the South Pacific.

"There has been a two per cent. reduction in production personnel in the San Diego plant during the past six months," said Woodhead, "yet we have managed to increase production of Liberator B-24s thirty-one per cent. in that period. Plane deliveries at the Fort Worth factory have increased 490 per cent., with an increase of only ninety-six per cent. in personnel."

Credits Efficiency

He credited increased efficiency and fresh production skills with the increased output, and said that "we now can take a man or woman off the street, teach him the job in thirty days and make an experienced worker out of him in three months."

The manpower situation might become acute in plane factories, Woodhead said, if continued increased production were required month by month and if too many of the men now holding down key production jobs were taken in the draft "because some draft boards will not apply the term 'skilled worker' to a man unless he has worked at a craft from four to five years."

Absenteeism Survey

Woodhead said that the Fort Worth plant, mentioned in the Truman committee report as being behind schedule, "is definitely on schedule—right on the nose."

Consolidated Vultee's own survey on absenteeism in San Diego recently showed, he said, that lack of community laundry, restaurant and household facilities were the chief factors in keeping workers—especially women—away from their tasks. He said the company was doing its best to adjust community services and expected assistance from the Government.

Present application of the Renegotiation Act of 1942 was giving plane companies no opportunity to adjust plans for conversion to peace production, Woodhead said.

Industry Penalized

"Plane companies can't get any fat on their bones from present profits," he said. "As renegotiation has been applied, young, growing industries such as aviation manufacturing have been penalized because they have not been allowed to build up adequate post-war reserves to meet post-war competition and create worthy commercial aircraft."

Woodhead said there was bound to be a recession in the airplane business after the war and predicted that dive bombers, pursuit and other fighting planes would have no commercial value but might be used in the often-discussed "international police force."

Woodhead said that only 1.3 per cent. of 1942 profits had been set aside for reconversion after the war, while exactly four tenths of one per cent. was paid in dividends to stockholders. Eighty-one and one tenths per cent. went into wages, materials and manufacturing costs.

DE GAULLE HAILS HOLIDAY

Message Broadcast to French Residents in United States

In a Bastille Day message, Gen. Charles de Gaulle called yesterday on Frenchmen in the United States to tell Americans that "nothing will separate us from them—we have the same friends and the same enemies."

General de Gaulle's message was broadcast from Allied force headquarters, and recorded at the Columbia Broadcasting System short-wave listening station. Here is the text:

"General de Gaulle speaks to the French of America:

"The fourteenth of July, national holiday, Frenchmen of France Forever, is your holiday. You have wanted to maintain the nation in the war, you have always denounced the enemy and the collaborationists. Today as yesterday, let the good Frenchmen come to you, welcome them in your fraternal ranks, continue to show the way.

"To the American people, on this national holiday, tell them that nothing will separate us from them —we have the same friends and the same enemies. We have the same ideal which is called freedom. Our French resistance and the American power are inspired by the same principles. French people and the people of the United States will remain, as they have for 150 years, the soldiers in the same army, the army which demolishes the bastilles in order to build the edifice of right, of democracy and of peace."

U.S. LANDING ON ROVIANA REPORTED BY JAPANESE

NEW YORK, July 13 — (AP) A Berlin broadcast quoting a Japanese communique said tonight that American forces have cocupied the island of Roviana and were bombed by Japanese planes.

The broadcast, recorded by NBC, said the island gave the Americans footing on two sides of the Kula gulf.

Roviana is between New Georgia and Rendova islands, south of Kula gulf.

South African Nazi Leader Dies

The death of Prof. Herman Bohle, "founder of the South African branch" of the National Socialist party, in Berlin Monday was reported yesterday by the Nazi DNB agency in a wireless transmission recorded by United States Government monitors. Prof. Bohle was 66 years old.

Berlin Says Bombers Sank 2 Atlantic Ships

A German communique, broadcast by the Berlin radio and recorded by the Associated Press, asserted today that German long distance bombers yesterday sank an Allied transport in the Atlantic which had been set afire the day before. A second transport claimed to have been hit in Sunday's operations had meanwhile foundered, the communique said. The two ships, it was added, totaled 30,000 tons. There was no Allied confirmation of the report.

What's Behind The War News

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

A startling suggestion of Axis confusion in Sicily—not to say of impending military collapse—marked today's news from the fast-paced Anglo-American invasion of that island threshold fo continental Italy.

Overnight both American and British forces firmly consolidated their expanding grip on the southeast corner of the island. American and Canadian troops made a junction at Ragusa to complete an Allied line from west of Licata in the south to north of the British-captured port of Augusta in the east. Coupled with British capture of Palazzolo junction, 12 miles northeast of Ragusa, a virtually straight Allied line some 50 miles long across the base of the Sicilian southeastern bulge has been completed with strong indications that its right flank may rest at Catania, gripped by new British beachheads on both sides. A double sweep into the Catania plains may have started.

The mass of Axis mobile defense forces, German and Italian, had been reported in the Catania plains cutting through the center of the big island from the town of that name on the east coast to the vicinity of Porto Empedocle on the south coast, just west of the American left flank beachhead at Licata. Those flat lands, road and rail inter-laced with all parts of Sicily, have appeared the key to probable Axis defense deployment.

Any expectation that General Montgomery's British desert veterans, surging northward up the east coast beyond fallen Augusta, will push on to Messina to cut off the enemy escape route to the Italian mainland appears premature. That looks like too costly a move.

A look at any detailed map of the east coast of Sicily raises doubts of any such Allied objective.

A railway and a two-lane major highway run north from Catania close to the coast, paralleled by two or three narrow, one-way roads inshore. But not more than eight miles from the shore line the tremendous bastion of Mount Etna rises to towering heights, flanking a 20 mile span of the road Allied troops would have to travel up the coast.

That stretch of the Sicilian east coast is the most densely populated section of the island. It is speckled with towns and villages, all buildings being stone and cut lava construction. Each is a potential defense strong point or machine-gun nest.

It seems clear that short of an Axis collapse, it would cost terribly in casualties to blast a way forward to Messina and the straits by that route.

Allied bombers from captured air fields anywhere south of Catania, on the other hand, could maintain a shuttle bombing attack on the Messina route to prevent either escape or heavy reinforcement. They are already doing that from more distant bases.

It appears probable, therefore, that the British advance up the east coast, like the American northward thrusts from Licata and Gela and the Canadian advance in the center, are aimed at coming to grips with the main Axis armies in the Catania plains. Once Catania itself falls—and it may have been taken already, it could make a close-up debarkation point for a British flanking drive westward through the Catania plains as the American bridge-heads at Gela and Licata could be used to turn western approaches to that interior valley from the south.

One thing is crystal clear: The third day of the invasion, usually rated the first crucial test of amphibian assault, showed only new and critically important advances for General Eisenhower's men. They are farther beyond the beaches than had seemed possible.

The explanation is still to come. It may mean the foe is massing for a decisive fight in the Catania flatlands. It could mean that he already has written Sicily off as lost and is making only a delaying defense, relying upon his mainland fortifications for his real stand to protect the shaken fortress of Europe.

AN AMBULANCE CREW REMOVED THE WOUNDED WHEN THE FORTRESS LANDED, THEN THE ATTENDING SURGEON MADE A QUICK INSPECTION OF THE PLACE. COMING OUT, HE SAID:

"THERE'S NOTHING IN THERE BUT BLOOD--AND EMPTY CARTRIDGE CASES."

HERE, BRIEFLY, IS WHAT EACH OF THE MEN DID, ACCORDING TO THE CITATIONS:

WHITSON--WOUNDED BEFORE REACHING TARGET, HE KEPT THE DAMAGED SHIP ON COURSE. WEAKENED BY WOUNDS, HE WAS RELIEVED ON THE WAY BACK FOR A WHILE BUT HE RALLIED IN TIME TO ACCOMPLISH THE DIFFICULT LANDING.

barrall-- slightly wounded in the attack that shattered the ship's nose but released bombs on the target and then gave first aid to his wounded comrades. when the nazis attacked again he manned the nose guns and was wounded again. then he helped fly the plane part of the way home, the pilot and co-pilot having been wounded.

venable--manned the nose guns fighting off repeated frontal assaults until he fell mortally wounded .

holt--when the oxygen system was shot out he flew without oxygen while the pilot went to the rear for emergency oxygen bottles. when whitson returned holt was almost unconscious but "old bill" was still under control. piloting the plane again later he skillfully maneuvered it against fighter attacks until wounded by a 20-millimeter shell which exploded in the cokpit.

30.24-6003

haymon--continued to fire his gun after his head was gashed when a shell hit his position and knocked out the turret mechanism. operated the turret by hand until it jammed. then he helped remove the wounded co-pilot from the cockpit and flew the plane while whitson was given first aid.

JUL 14 1943

ramsey--shot down on german fighter before he was seriously wounded but even then continued to ward off repeated attacks. later he set up the damaged radio equipment for emergency transmission.

bewak--painfully and seriously wounded but stuck to his guns until the german fighters left. then he administered first aid to other wounded.

friend--manned the guns of wounded crewmen while they received first aid although wounded himself.

mayer--shot down one german fighter and damaged two others before he ran out of ammunition. later he relieved the wounded waist gunner and when the ship was near its base served as co-pilot, helping the pilot to make the difficult landing.

nichols--stuck to the dangerous belly gun position after the ship was damaged and shot down one and damaged several of the persistently attacking german fighters.

INVASION

LONDON, JULY 13-(AP)-A MAJOR CLASH OF ARMOR, POSSIBLY WITHIN THE NEXT 24 HOURS, MIGHT HELP SEAL THE FATE OF SICILY, OBSERVERS WHO ARE CLOSELY FOLLOWING THE TREND OF OPERATIONS, SAID TONIGHT.

THERE WAS NO DOUBT THAT SUCH A BATTLE, IN WHICH CANADIAN, BRITISH AND AMERICAN TANK FORCES WOULD MEET AXIS ARMORED DIVISIONS, WAS RAPIDLY APPROACHING. THE GERMANS SAID THEY HAVE THROWN IN THEIR 60-TON TIGER TANKS, BUT SO FAR COMMUNIQUES AND DISPATCHES FROM THE BATTLE AREA HAVE MADE LITTLE MENTION OF ALLIED TANKS.

LIEUT. GEN. GEORGE S. PATTON, COMMANDER OF THE NEW AMERICAN SEVENTH ARMY ON SICILY IS PROBABLY THE LEADING UNITED STATES EXPERT IN ARMORED WARFARE AND IT WAS EXPECTED THAT HE WOULD SOON MAKE USE OF THIS EQUIPMENT.

IT IS KNOWN THAT AT LEAST ONE CANADIAN TANK FORMATION--A QUEBEC REGIMENT--IS SUPPORTING THE CANADIAN INFANTRY AND IT IS LIKELY THAT THERE ARE OTHER TANK REGIMENTS WITH THEM. IT WAS BELIEVED HERE THAT THEY WERE RAPIDLY BEING GROUPED WITH OTHER ALLIED FORMATIONS TO MEET AXIS PANZERS.

THE PLAIN OF CATANIA WAS CONSIDERED A LIKELY PLACE FOR A MAJOR ARMORED UNIT BATTLE AND CANADIANS AND AMERICANS WHO HAVE CAPTURED RAGUSA AND PALAZZOLO HAVE FIRMLY ESTABLISHED THEMSELVES ON THE FRINGE OF HILLS TO THE WEST OF THE PLAIN WHICH COMMANDS THE MOST VITAL APPROACH AROUND THE SIDE OF MOUNT ETNA TO THE STRAITS OF MESSINA.

JUL 14 1943

CANADIAN TANK TACTICS APPARENTLY HAVE BEEN CHANGED SINCE THE FAILURE OF THEIR CHURCHILL TANKS WHICH BOGGED DOWN ON PEBBLED BEACHES IN THE FRENCH RAID. IN THE SICILIAN CAMPAIGN, IT WAS UNDERSTOOD, TANKS WERE NOT USED IN THE FRONTAL ASSAULT, COMING IN ONLY AFTER BRIDGEHEADS WERE FIRMLY ESTABLISHED.

MUCH OF THE SICILIAN TERRAIN IS MOUNTAINOUS AND LACKS ROADS, HENCE THE DEPLOYMENT OF BIG ARMORED FORCES IS NOT EASY.

GUENTER WEBER, A TRANSOCEAN WAR CORRESPONDENT, QUOTED IN A BERLIN BROADCAST, SAID THAT BOTH SIDES ARE "STILL WINDING UP THEIR FORCES".

THE AXIS TROOPS, HE SAID, HAVE ENTRENCHED THEMSELVES OUTSIDE THE RANGE OF THE ALLIED NAVAL ARTILLERY AND HAVE THE ADVANTAGE OF AN INNER FIGHTING LINE.

(ADVANCE) LONDON, JULY 13-(AP)-BRITISH MANUFACTURERS AND EXPORTERS TOOK INITIAL STEPS TODAY TOWARD THE FORMATION OF A BRITISH-SOVIET COOPERATIVE TRADING ASSOCIATION TO PROMOTE TRADE WITH THE SOVIET UNION.

JUL 14 1943

THE ASSOCIATION, WHICH ALSO WOULD IMPLEMENT THE 1942 BRITISH-SOVIET ALLIANCE CALLING FOR COOPERATION IN THE ORGANIZATION OF POST WAR ECONOMIC SECURITY IN EUROPE, WOULD CONSIST OF BRITISH MANUFACTURERS AND EXPORTERS WILLING TO PRODUCE AND DELIVER GOODS TO RUSSIA AT THE LOWEST POSSIBLE COST.

THEY WOULD BE EQUIPPED TO NEGOTIATE CONTRACTS WITH THE SOVIET GOVERNMENT AND WOULD MARKET SOVIET PRODUCTS IN BRITAIN.

THE DRAFT OF THE PROPOSAL SUGGESTED THAT THE BRITISH AND SOVIET AMBASSADORS MIGHT ACT AS PATRONS OF THE ASSOCIATION.

TRADE BETWEEN THE TWO COUNTRIES IS PRESENTLY CONDUCTED BY THE UNITED KINGDOM CORPORATION, WHOSE CAPITAL IS WHOLLY OWNED BY THE BRITISH TREASURY.

THE PROPOSALS HAVE BEEN FORWARDED TO THE SOVIET GOVERNMENT.

THE BRITISH GOVERNMENT, IT WAS LEARNED, HAS NOT CONSIDERED THE PROPOSALS, ALTHOUGH UNOFFICIAL APPROACHES HAVE BEEN MADE TO SOME DEPARTMENTS AND MEMBERS OF PARLIAMENT.

LONDON, TUESDAY, JULY 13-(AP)-PRIME MINISTER CHURCHILL IS EXPECTED IN POLITICAL QUARTERS TO MAKE AN EARLY REPORT TO PARLIAMENT ON THE SICILIAN FIGHTING--POSSIBLY AT THE NEXT SITTING.

SECOND NIGHT LEAD AERIAL

LONDON, WEDNESDAY, JULY 14-(AP)-THE RAF, KEEPING THE AXIS GUESSING BY SWITCHING TARGETS, RETURNED TO THE ATTACK ON GERMANY LAST NIGHT, THE BRITISH ANNOUNCED TODAY, AFTER BLASTING THE IMPORTANT ARMS CENTER OF TURIN IN NORTHERN ITALY THE PRECEDING NIGHT.

IT WAS THE RAF'S FIRST NIGHT RAID ON GERMANY SINCE LAST FRIDAY

30.24-6005

NIGHT, WHEN GELSENKIRCHEN WAS THE TARGET. THE OBJECTIVE OF LAST NIGHT'S ASSAULT AND THE SIZE OF THE RAIDING FORCE WAS NOT IMMEDIATELY DISCLOSED.

FORMATIONS OF ALLIED PLANES WERE HEARD SETTING OUT ACROSS THE ENGLISH CHANNEL AGAIN EARLY TODAY TO CONTINUE THE OFFENSIVE BY DAYLIGHT.

JUL 14 1943

MINOR GERMAN AERIAL ACTIVITY WAS REPORTED OVER BRITAIN DURING THE NIGHT. AUTHORITATIVE SOURCES SAID THAT TWO ENEMY RAIDERS WERE SHMT DOWN OVER BRITAIN AND A THIRD WAS DESTROYED OVER ITS BASE IN HOLLAND BY FIGHTERS ON INTRUDER PATROLS.

THE ATTACK ON TURIN MONDAY NIGHT WAS CARRIED OUT BY A STRONG FORCE OK HEAVY BOMBERS, WHICH MADE THE TRIP ACROSS EUROPE IN EXTREMELY ADVERSE WEATHER, AND COINCIDED WITH INCESSANT BLOWS AGAINST SOUTHERN ITALY AND SICILY BY ALLIED BOMBERS OPERATING FROM MEDITERRANEAN BASES.

BURNHAM'S FORBEARS CAME FROM COUNTY DOWN.

BY GLADWIN HILL

A U.S. BOMBER BASE IN ENGLAND, JULY 13-(AP)-THE PILOT OF THE FLYING FORTRESS "RUTHIE," LIEUT. ROBERT L.CAMPBELL OF LIBERTY, MISS., HAS AN ENGINEERING REPORT OF "TOTAL LOSS" TO ATTEST THAT HE FLEW BACK FROM FRANCE JULY 4 WITH PRACTICALLY NO PLANE AT ALL -- WHICH WAS JUST HOW IT FELT. HIS STORY WAS MADE PUBLIC TODAY.

ENEMY FIRE KNOCKED OUT TWO OF HIS ENGINES JUST AFTER THE PLANE DROPPED BOMBS ON NANTES AND PUNCTURED TWO GAS TANKS, AND THE PILOT HAD TO PUMP FUEL FRANTICALLY INTO HIS TWO SOUND TANKS BEFORE THEY RAN OUT SO THERE WOULD BE ENOUGH TO MAKE THE COAST OF ENGLAND.

MORE HITS TORE A PART OF THE FUSELAGE INTO SHREDS, KNOCKED THE WING FLAPS DOWN INTO A BRAKING POSITION AND TURNED OUT THE ULTIMATELY WRECKED HYDRAULIC SYSTEM AND PUNCTURED ONE LANDING WHEEL TIRE.

JUL 14 1943

"IT LOOKED TO ME," THE 23-YEAR OLD FLIER SAID TODAY WITH CLASSIC UNDERSTATEMENT, "LIKE THEY WERE JUST PICKING ON MY SHIP AND WERE ATTACKING US IN FORMATIONS OF FIVE TO 10 -- AND JUST SPRAYING US.

"I LOOKED OUT MY WINDOW AND SAW NOTHING BUT TRACERS. I LOOKED OUT THE OTHER SIDE PAST THE CO-PILOT -- FLIGHT OFFICER JOHN C. MORGAN OF 435 EAST 52ND ST., NEW YORK CITY -- THINKING WE COULD MOVE OVER. BUT THERE WAS THE SAME THING. THE ONLY THING I COULD DO WAS PULL THE NOSE DOWN, SO I PULLED HER DOWN."

A 20 MILLIMETER SHELL WHIZZED UP THROUGH THE FLOOR RIGHT BETWEEN THE WAIST GUNNERS -- SERGEANTS WALTON REECE OF 1423 WEST 9TH ST., JOPLIN, MO., AND EUGENE PONTE OF 3939 PRATHER AVE., ST. LOUIS -- INTO THE RADIO COMPARTMENT, CLIPPING THE SLEEVE OF RADIO GUNNER SERGEANT GLENN E. JOHNSON OF GARNER, KAS.

TWO MORE HITS KNOCKED ONE WAIST GUN AND THE TAIL GUN OUT OF COMMISSION AND INJURED TAIL GUNNER SERGEANT JOHN C.FORD OF 103 STEVENS ST., HIGHLAND PARK, MICH., SLIGHTLY IN THE LEG.

ANOTHER 20 MILLIMETER SHELL CRASHED RIGHT INTO THE BALL TURRET AND EXPLODED, SERIOUSLY INJURING THE GUNNER SERGEANT -- BUT DESPITE HIS VERY PAINFUL WOUNDS HE KEPT ON FIRING THROUGH THE THICK OF BATTLE

JUL 14 1943

UNTIL HE COLLAPSED.

THE NAVIGATOR, LIEUT. HENRY A.HUGHES, JR., OF 50 GLENWOOD ST. JERSEY CITY, N.J., WENT AFT AND WITH THE TOP TURRET GUNNER, SERGEANT TYRE WEAVER OF RIVERVIEW, ALA., LIFTED THE GUNNER OUT OF THE BALL TURRET AND CARRIED HIM TO THE RADIO COMPARTMENT, CUT AWAY HIS CLOTHES, POURED SULFANILAMIDE POWDER IN HIS WOUNDS AND GAVE HIM MORPHINE.

HE WAS LYING OVER THE EMERGENCY WING FLAP CRANKS. BUT THEY WERE LOSING ALTITUDE AND HAD TO CRANK UP THE FLAPS SO THEY BROUGHT THE WOUNDED MAN BACK TO THE WAIST.

JUL 14 1943

CAMPBELL SAID:

"THE NAVIGATOR WENT BACK TO THE NOSE WITH THE BOMBARDIER -- LIEUT. ROBERT S.WILKINS OF WILSON, N.C. -- TO GET OUR POSITION. HE WAS TRYING TO IDENTIFY A RADIO STATION BUT ALL WE COULD HEAR WAS A FEW BARS OF "AMERICA THE BEAUTIFUL." THEN OUR RADIO WENT OUT.

"BUT, AT THAT, IT WAS A COMFORTING THING TO HEAR.

"I THOUGHT ALL THE TIME I WAS GOING TO HAVE TO DITCH THE SHIP. IT HAD NO RADIO SO I SIGNALED THE LEADER WITH THE ALDUS LAMP AND THEY WENT SOS FOR US.

"WE PUT DOWN AT THE FIRST FIELD I SAW. WE HAD NO RED FLARES TO SIGNAL THE AMBULANCE SO WE FIRED OFF ALL THE DIFFERENT COLORED FLARES WE HAD, BUT THERE WERE 10 OR 15 OTHER SHIPS LANDING AND WE HAD TO WAIT UNTIL THEY WERE ALL IN.

"WHEN I STARTED TO LAND I DISCOVERED THE TIRE WAS FLAT."

CAMPBELL SAID HE HELD HER ON THE RUNWAY AS LONG AS HE COULD AND THEN JUST WHIRLED AROUND IN FRONT OF THE CONTROL TOWER -- BUT SHE STAYED UP.

JUL 14 1943

"THE CONTROLS WERE SO TOUGH COMING HOME," HE WENT ON, "THAT THE CO-PILOT PULLED SOME TENDONS IN HIS SHOULDER HELPING TO HOLD THEM.

"THEN WE FOUND THAT ONE SHELL HAD GONE INTO THE LIFE RAFT -- IF WE HAD LANDED IN WATER WE'D HAVE BEEN OUT OF LUCK.

"GOT THE REPORT TODAY -- SHIP A 'TOTAL LOSS.' AND, BOY, SHE WAS!"

BERN, SWITZERLAND, JULY 13-(AP)-TWO BRITISH BOMBERS OF APPROXIMATELY 100 THAT PASSED OVER SWITZERLAND ON THEIR WAY TO ITALY CRASHED ON SWISS MOUNTAINSIDES EARLY TODAY. THE BODIES OF 12 AVIATORS WERE RECOVERED.

JUL 14 1943

ONE BOMBER GOT INTO TROUBLE IN THE MOUNTAINS NEAR MAYENS DE SION, JETTISONED ITS BOMBS AND THEN CRASHED. THE OTHER CRASHED NEAR GRAMMONT, SOUTH OF BOUVERET, AND WAS DESTROYED BY FIRE FOLLOWING A TERRIFIC EXPLOSION.

BOMBS FELL IN FOUR SEPARATE SWISS DISTRICTS, ONE HOUSE IN RIGGISBERG, IN THE BERN CANTON, BEING DESTROYED AND ANOTHER SET ON FIRE, A COMMUNIQUE SAID.

LAUSANNE, JULY 13-(AP)-A FOUR-ENGINED BRITISH BOMBER, APPARENTLY FULLY LOADED, CRASHED ON MOUNT GRAMMONT, SOUTH OF BOUVERET, TODAY, AND WAS DESTROYED BY FLAMES.

A SWISS COMMUNIQUE SAID THAT APPROXIMATELY 100 AIRPLANES FLEW OVER SWITZE with canadians in sicily, july 11 (delayed)--messages received from lieut.-gen. andrew g.l. mcnaughten, canadian commander of the first british army corps, and admiral sir andrew browne cunningham, naval commander in chief in the mediterranean, were read today to canadian troops aboard ships engaged in the invasion of sicily and issued as a special order of the day.

mcnaughton said "you will have the opportunity of striking a great blow in the just cause we serve and all the hearts and prayers of your comrades here and in canada will be with you in your high endeavor."

cunningham called the operation "the most momentous operation of the war" and said its success means the opening of a second front.

he said the primary duty of the navy was landing and maintaining the army in sicily, and added that the safety of the navy's ships and "all distracting considerations" are to be relegated to a second place or disregarded in accomplishing this duty.

IN ANOTHER ORDER OF THE DAY BY THE COMMANDING GENERAL, WHOSE NAME HAS NOT BEEN MADE PUBLIC, THE CANADIAN TROOPS WERE TOLD THAT "NO FORMATION GOING INTO ITS FIRST BATTLE HAS BEEN MORE THOROUGHLY PREPARED."

an allied command post in north africa, july 13-(ap)-A picture of A-1 coordination among the allied forces storming through sicily was drawn today by gen. dwight d. eisenhower as the allied commander-in-chief came back from a visit to u.s. and canadian fighters on the smoldering island.

that coordination, he declared, "could NOT have been better had all the forces been those of some single nation."

JUL 14 1943

the general reported that he called on the canadians yesterday

JUL 14 1943

30.24-6009

because "i wanted to welcome them" and that "their commander was NOT there but i talked to two officers."

JUL 14 1943

later, eisenhower visited the command posts of both lieut.-gen. george s. patton, jr., and vice-admiral henry k. hewitt.

he said he was extremely pleased with the great fighting spirit and quick exploitation of the situation bythe troops under his command.

with enthusiasm, he praised the extraordinary degree of the close cooperation between american, british and canadian forces in the operation and of all the arms involved.

"ordinarily," said eisenhower, "i don't like to talk for publication, but whenever it is on the question of allied team play you will always find me willing to talk."

An Allied Force Command Post in North Africa, July 12 (delayed)-(AP)-The only visual evidence from the air that two forces are at grips in Sicily is a long chain of fires continually burning in a string from east to west, allied fliers said today.

JUL 14 1943

"It seems a bit uncanny from the air," said lieut. Russell W. York of Millinocket, Me., who flew between 500 and 600 miles over Sicily this afternoon.

JUL 14 1943

"Normally," he added, "you expect to see some sign of gunfire."

A NORTH AFRICAN PORT, JULY 13-(AP)-AMERCAN SOLDIERS MARCHED 100 ITALIANS AND 30 GERMANS FROM A PRISONER SHIP JUST BACK FROM SICILY TO A PRISON CAMP THREE MILES AWAY.

WITH A MILE YET TO GO, SEVERAL PRISONERS WERE IN SUCH BAD CONDITION THEY HAD TO BE LOADED INTO TRUCKS WHERE THEY SAT WITH THEIR FLUSHED FACES IN THEIR HANDS.

THE GERMANS WERE STARTLINGLY YOUNG. SO YOUNG THAT AN AMERICAN OFFICER OF YOUTHFUL APPEARANCE HIMSELF REMARKED "THEY LOOK LIKE A BUNCH OF HIGH SCHOOL KIDS. WHO IN THE WORLD HAD ENOUGH NERVE TO SEND THEM TO WAR?"

THESE YOUNG NAZIS WERE MOSTLY SLENDER, BLOND, RED-FACED. OBSERVERS AGREED THEY MUST HAVE BEEN EASY PICKINGS FOR THE TOUGH AMERICAN OUTFIT THAT CAPTURED THEM.

THE GERMAN YOUNGSTERS QUICKLY FADED UNDER THE SAME MERCILESS SUN UNDER WHICH THE AMERICANS HAVE BEEN WORKING AND TRAINING FOR WEEKS IN HEAVY WOOLEN CLOTHING AND FULL FIELD PACKS. THE GERMAN YOUTHS WORE SHORTS AND LIGHT COTTON SHIRTS OPEN AT THE NECK. STILL THEY FADED AND FALTERED ALTHOUGH THE PACE SET FOR THEM WAS ABSURDLY SLOW.

JUL 14 1943

SCARCELY MORE THAN A LEISURELY STRIDE.

THE ITALIAN PRISONERS, UNKEMPT AS USUAL, SAUNTERED ALONG CARELESSLY. SOME HAD CRACKS IN THEIR BOOTS, MOST LACKED SOCKS AND THOSE WHO DID POSSESS THEM HAD OBVIOUSLY GOTTEN THEM FROM CIVILIAN STORES SINCE THEY WERE OF ALL COLORS AND MATERIALS.

THE NEW MUSTANG A-36, NEWEST AMERICAN AIR WEAPON, HAS BEEN CREDITED WITH PILING ROADS HIGH WITH THE WRECKAGE OF AXIS TRUCKS SPEEDING TROOPS AND EQUIPMENTS TO POINTS WHERE ALLIED DRIVES HAVE BEEN DIRECTED.

"WE ARE FLYING THE BEST PLANE FOR DIVE BOMBING IN THE WORLD AND ANY GERMAN OR ITALIAN IN ACTION AGAINST US WILL PROBABLY BACK US UP," SAID CAPT. ROGER L. MILLER OF SALEM, ORE., WHOSE A-36 SQUADRON HAS SEEN ACTION IN SUPPORTING THE ALLIED DRIVE.

"THE SCREAM OF THIS PLANE WHEN IT COMES DOWN WITH ITS DIVE BRAKES ON WOULD SHAKE ANY MAN," HE SAID. "IT'S LIKE 15 BORIS KARLOFF SHOWS ROLLED INTO ONE. COMPARED TO AN A-36, A STUKA SOUNDS LIKE AN ALLEY CAT."

MILLER SAID THE A-36'S SPECIALIZED IN "INTRUDER" WORK, RANGING FAR BEHIND THE LINES TO SMASH TRUCK CONVOYS, TRAINS, BRIDGES, LINES OF COMMUNICATION, POWER LINES, RADIO STATIONS "AND A HUNDRED OTHER THINGS."

"ONCE WE DROP OUR BOMBS, WE BECOME ONE OF THE BEST LOW-ALTITUDE FIGHTERS IN THE WORLD," HE SAID.

JUL 14 1943

GEN. EISENHOWER'S VISIT TO THE INVASION SCENE CAUGHT SOLDIERS AND OFFICERS COMPLETELY BY SURPRISE.

JOHN GUNTHER, REPRESENTING THE COMBINED AMERICAN PRESS, WITNESSED HIS ARRIVAL AND SAID THAT THE AMERICAN GENERAL STEPPED FROM THE AMPHIBIOUS JEEP THAT BROUGHT HIM ASHORE FROM A DESTROYER, WALKED UP TO AN ASTONISHED OFFICER AND SAID:

"HOW DO YOU DO? I AM GENERAL EISENHOWER."

HE WATCHED LANDING OPERATIONS FOR A WHILE, THEN HELD A BREAKFAST CONFERENCE WITH GEN. PATTON AND VICE ADMIRAL HENRY K. HEWITT, COMMANDER OF THE AMPHIBIOUS FORCE OF THE ATLANTIC FLEET, AND OTHER HIGH-RANKING OFFICERS.

JUL 14 1943

LATER HE TALKED WITH CANADIAN TROOPS ON THE PACHINO PENINSULA AND TOURED THE IMMEDIATE COUNTRYSIDE BEFORE BOARDING THE AMPHIBIOUS JEEP AGAIN FOR THE RETURN TO THE VESSEL.

GUNTHER ALSO DISCLOSED THAT ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN SICILY HAD BEEN INFORMED THAT GEN. ALFREDO GUZZONI HAS BEEN NAMED COMMANDER IN CHIEF OF AXIS FORCES IN SICILY.

GEN. GUZZONI, 63, LED THE ITALIAN INVASION OF ALBANIA IN 1939, WAS DISMISSED DURING THE FASCIST SHAKE-UP OF THE HIGH COMMAND IN 1941, AND ONLY RECENTLY RETURNED TO ACTION.

A FORMATION LED BY FIRST LIEUT.ROBERT W.HAFER OF BEDFORD, PA., DROPPED BOMBS ON AN ESTIMATED CHAIN OF 200 ENEMY TRUCKS, THEN MACHINE-GUNNED THE ENTIRE LINE, LEAVING ABOUT 100 COMPLETELY DESTROYED.

(DISTRIBUTED BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS)

IN SICILY WITH THE AIR-BORNE FORCE, JULY 11-(DELAYED)-I LANDED WITH THE FIRST GLIDER-BORNE FORCE TO TOUCH DOWN ON SICILIAN SOIL.

THE MEN OF THIS FORCE FOUGHT MAGNIFICENTLY DURING THE NIGHT BEFORE THE ALLIED INVASION BY SEA.

GLIDERS WERE BROUGHT HUNDREDS OF MILES IN A WIND WHICH ALMOST REACHED GALE FORCE, AND LANDINGS WERE MADE IN BAD VISIBILITY UNDER HEAVY ACK-ACK FIRE.

ALTHOUGH IT WAS NOT POSSIBLE FOR THE FORCE TO FIGHT TOGETHER, ITS VARIOUS UNITS THREW THE COUNTRYSIDE INTO A NIGHTLONG STATE OF ALARM.

JUL 14 1943

THE PRINCIPAL OBJECTIVE WAS TAKEN INITIALLY BY A CREW OF 14 MEN. WHEN DAY CAME THEY FOUGHT THEIR WAY THROUGH, WITH THE AID OF ABOUT 70 OTHER MEN, AND HELD THE OBJECTIVE FOR 14 HOURS AGAINST ITALIAN OPPOSITION.

I WAS WITH THIS BODY OF MEN AS A SPECTATOR, AND THE FULL STORY, WHICH I AM TOO EXHAUSTED TO WRITE AT ONCE, IS ONE OF THE MOST MAGNIFICENT EPISODES OF THIS WAR.

JUL 14 1943

OUR FORCE SURRENDERED IN MIDAFTERNOON, WHEN ONLY ABOUT 30 SOLDIERS HAD THEN BEEN UNDER CONCENTRATED FIRE FROM MORTARS AND HEAVY MACHINEGUNS FOR HOURS.

FOR 15 HOURS WE FOUGHT WITH ALMOST NO COVER, AND WE LEFT CONSIDERABLE NUMBERS OF ENEMY DEAD.

WITHIN AN HOUR OF CAPTURE WE ALL MANAGED TO ESCAPE--WHEN A BRITISH RECONNAISSANCE UNIT BEGAN SHOOTING AT THE GUARDS WHO STOOD OVER US.

ANOTHER UNIT OF OFFICERS AND NINE ENLISTED MEN WITH WHOM WE ARE LINKING UP THIS MORNING CAPTURED THE GUN OF A COASTAL BATTERY IN A FIERCE CHARGE SHORTLY AFTER LEAVING THEIR GLIDER.

THROUGHOUT THE NIGHT BEFORE THE INVASION I COULD HEAR LITTLE ACTIONS GOING ON IN THE DARKNESS AS VARIOUS UNITS FOUGHT TOWARD THEIR PREARRANGED RENDEZVOUS. SINCE THEN I HAVE LEARNED BLOCKHOUSES WERE CAPTURED, BARRACKS SHOT UP, PATROLS MACHINEGUNNED AND WIPED OUT, AND MOST OF THE AREA ON WHICH SEABORNE ENEMY FORCES WERE DESTINED TO LAND WAS THROWN INTO PANIC BY THESE DEADLY ATTACKS.

THERE CAN BE NO QUESTION THAT THE RELATIVELY SLIGHT RESISTANCE MET BY SOME OF OUR LANDING FORCES DURING EARLY STAGES OF THE INVASION WAS ATTRIBUTABLE TO THE WORK OF GLIDER-BORNE TROOPS.

AN ALLIED COMMAND POST IN NORTH AFRICA, JULY 13-(AP)-AMERICAN TROOPS ENCAMPED AT LICATA, SICILIAN SOUTHERN COAST TOWN WHICH THEY CAPTURED AFTER TWO HOURS' FIGHTING, FIND THE SICILIANS "VERY FRIENDLY", RETURNING OFFICERS REPORTED TONIGHT.

ALGIERS, JULY 13-(AP)-THE FRENCH NATIONAL COMMITTEE OF LIBERATION MET TODAY AND CONFERRED FULL POWERS ON HENRI-ETIENNE HOPPENOT, WHO IS REPRESENTING THE COMMITTEE IN THE NEGOTIATIONS FOR THE RETURN OF THE FRENCH ANTILLES TO THE EMPIRE. MARTINIQUE AND GUADELOUPE HAVE STILL TO ANNOUNCE THEIR INTENTION OF JOINING WITH THE OTHER ISLANDS IN THE ANTILLES GROUP IN PLEDGING ALLEGIANCE TO THE COMMITTEE. JUL 14 1943

TWO PROPOSALS FROM THE PERMANENT MILITARY COMMITTEE RELATING TO REPRESENTATION IN THE ARMED FORCES WERE ALSO ADOPTED. THEY STIPULATED LOWER AGE LIMITS FOR VOLUNTEERS IN CERTAIN RANKS AND PROVIDED COMPENSATION FOR SOLDIERS DISCHARGED BECAUSE OF OVER AGE.

CAIRO, JULY 13-(AP)-MORE THAN 650,000 POUNDS OF HIGH EXPLOSIVES WERE DROPPED ON THE TWIN TARGETS OF REGGIO CALABRIA AND SAN GIOVANNI, SICILIAN FERRY TERMINALS OF THE ITALIAN MAINLAND, IN DAYLIGHT RAIDS YESTERDAY BY 100 LIBERATOR BOMBERS OF THE NINTH U.S. AIRFORCE, AN AMERICAN AIRFORCE COMMUNIQUE SAID TODAY.

JUL 14 1943

CAIRO-FIRST ADD NINTH AIRFORCE XXX SAID TODAY.

THE RAILWAY YARDS AT SAN GIOVANNI WERE REPORTED TO HAVE BEEN BLANKETED WITH HITS AND THE ENTIRE TARGET AREA OF REGGIO CALABRIA WAS WELL COVERED WITH BURSTS BY THE AMERICAN LIBERATORS WHICH ATTACKED IN FOUR WAVES.

BOMB BURSTS WERE NOTED ALL ALONG THE RAILWAY TRACKS IN THE SAN VIOVANNI YARDS, THE COMMUNIQUE SAID, AND ADDED THAT A LARGE EXPLOSION WAS SEEN IN THE SIDING AREA.

AT REGGIO CALABRIA, FUEL AND AMMUNITION DUMPS WERE HIT AND LARGE FIRES STARTED.

THE LIBERATORS MET NO FIGHTER OPPOSITION, BUT THE COMMUNIQUE DESCRIBED THE ANTI-AIRCRAFT FIRE AS "VERY HEAVY."

JUL 14 1943

ONE OF THE BOMBERS FAILED TO RETURN.

THE SMASHES AT THE MAINLAND FERRY TERMINALS BY THE FOUR-ENGINED BOMBERS WERE INTENDED TO BLOCK AXIS ATTEMPTS TO REINFORCE THE DEFENDING GARRISONS IN SICILY.

DESCRIBING THE OPERATIONS OF THE TORPEDO PLANES YESTERDAY, THE OFFICIAL ANNOUNCEMENT SAID:

"THE ATTACKS WERE OF A PARTICULARLY HAZARDOUS NATURE AND WERE CARRIED OUT IN THE NARROW STRIP OF WATER BETWEEN CORSICA AND SARDINIA XXX. THE BEAUFIGHTERS, OFTEN SKIMMING OVER SMALL ISLANDS IN THE STRAITS, ATTACKED REPEATEDLY AND EVEN RETURNED THE FIRE FROM ONE OF THE TWO ESCORTING DESTROYERS WITH THEIR CANNON.

"THE ATTACK WAS SO DEVASTATING THAT THE DESTROYER WAS LEFT BLAZING WITH NO CHANCE FOR SURVIVAL. THE CONVOY WAS A PRECIOUS PRIZE.

"HIS TORPEDO HEADED STRAIGHT FOR THE TARGET. A FEW MINUTES LATER PILOT OFFICER L.T.GARLAND, AN ULSTERMAN, ATTACKED THE SMALLER SHIP AND PROBABLY HIT IT."

ANOTHER ATTACK WAS MADE AT THE SAME TIME ON ANOTHER CONVOY SAILING TOWARD SICILY FROM NAPLES, ESCORTED BY DESTROYERS. ONE MERCHANT SHIP AND TWO DESTROYERS WERE HIT AND A BRITISH PILOT SAID: "IT'S UNLIKELY THAT EITHER THE FREIGHTER OR ONE DESTROYER REACHED HARBOR. THEY BOTH WERE LISTING AND SMOKING WHEN WE LEFT.

JUL 14 1943

A 9TH U.S. AIR FORCE COMMUNIQUE SAID 100 LIBERATOR BOMBERS FROM MIDDLE EAST BASES DUMPED MORE THAN 650,000 POUNDS OF HIGH EXPLOSIVES ON REGGIO CALABRIA AND SAN GIOVANNI.

THE RAILWAY YARD AT S. GIOVANNI WAS SAID TO HAVE BEEN BLANKETED WITH HITS. BOMB BURSTS WERE OBSERVED ALL ALONG THE TRACKS AND A LARGE EXPLOSION WAS REPORTED IN THE SIDING AREA.

AT REGGIO CALABRIA, BURSTS COVERED THE ENTIRE TARGET AREA, STARTING LARGE FIRES IN FUEL AND AMMUNITION DUMPS, THE COMMUNIQUE SAID.

THE FLYING FORTRESSES DESTROYED TWO VITAL RAILROAD BRIDGES AT MESSINA, THE FERRY TERMINAL ON THE SICILY SIDE OF THE STRAIT, AND WENT ON TO SHOWER MORE EXPLOSIVES ON REGGIO CALABRIA.

ATTACKING IN TWO WAVES, THE FORTRESSES KNOCKED OUT THE BRIDGES WITH DIRECT HITS AND POUNDED NEARBY INDUSTRIAL AREAS BEFORE HEADING ACROSS THE STRAIT. PILOTS REPORTED A HEAVY EXPLOSION AS BOMBS STRUCK A LARGE BUILDING.

THE DESTRUCTION OF THE BRIDGES UNDOUBTEDLY WILL HAMPER AXIS EFFORTS TO KEEP COMMUNICATIONS OPEN IN THAT VITAL CORNER OF SICILY, IT WAS SAID.

JUL 14 1943

BOTH THE FORTRESS AND LIBERATOR SQUADRONS ENCOUNTERED NO ENEMY FIGHTER OPPOSITION BUT REPORTED HEAVY CONCENTRATIONS OF ANTI-AIRCRAFT FIRE.

MEANWHILE, LIGHTER ALLIED PLANES WERE BUSY KEEPING UP CEASELESS ATTACKS ON AIR FIELDS STILL IN ENEMY HANDS ON SICILY AND INTERCEPTING INTERMITTENT ENEMY ATTEMPTS TO INTERFERE WITH ALLIED LANDINGS AND CONVOYS.

AMONG THEIR TARGETS WERE THE SICILIAN TOWNS OF AGRIGENTO, CANICATTIST

CONVOYS.

AMONG THEIR TARGETS WERE THE SICILIAN TOWNS OF AGRIGENTO, CANICATTI, GERBINI, MILO, TRAPANI AND MARSALA.

THE FORTRESS CREWS REPORTED SEEING LONG SEABORNE CONVOYS BRINGING HEAVY ALLIED REINFORCEMENTS AND SUPPLIES INTO SICILY.

"LANDING BARGES, SHIPS AND STILL MORE SHIPS WERE COMING ACROSS THE MEDITERRANEAN," SAID LIEUT.ANDREW PIERSON OF 1850 N.PROSPECT ST., MILWAUKEE.

LIEUT.ALCINE LANDRY OF 422 COOPER ST., SAN ANTONIO, TEX., WHO COMPLETED HIS 50TH MISSION, SAID: "WE COULD SEE OCCASIONAL SHELLING FROM THE GUNS OUR BOYS HAD HAULED UP FROM THE BEACHES."

"LANDING BARGES STILL WERE UNLOADING MEN ALL ALONG THE SOUTHERN COAST OF SICILY," SAID SERGT.HOWARD W.HONCA OF BLEVINS, ARK. "FIFTEEN MILES INLAND I COULD SEE LINES OF TRUCKS AND TANKS MOVING NORTHWARD. CATANIA WAS STILL BURNING FROM OUR ATTACK THE PREVIOUS DAY."

SOUTHERN SICILY WAS DESCRIBED AS "POCK-MARKED" BY SERGT.JOHN SCHWICHTENBERG OF 2037 RICE ST., CHICAGO, WHO SAID HE SAW ONLY ONE ENEMY BATTERY STILL IN ACTION AGAINST THE INCOMING ALLIED SHIPS.

MARAUDERS AND LIGHTNINGS WENT AFTER THE TOWN OF AGRIGENTO, FROM WHICH STRONG AXIS COUNTERATTACKS AGAINST AMERICAN FORCES HOLDING THE GELA BAY AREA MAY COME. THEY HIT BARRACKS, A POWER STATION AND A RAILROAD STATION WITH THEIR BOMBS.

LIGHTNINGS ALSO TEAMED WITH A-36 MUSTANGS IN NONSTOP SWEEPS

JUL 14 1943

HIGHWAYS AND RAILROADS ALL OVER SICILY, BOMBING AXIS TROOP-CARRYING AND ARTILLERY TRUCKS.

ONE FORMATION SET FIRE TO 35 VEHICLES AND DAMAGED MANY OTHERS IN ATTACKING FOUR DIFFERENT CONVOYS. ANOTHER CAUGHT A COLUMN OF GUN-CARRYING TRUCKS AND DESTROYED 15 OF THEM. BOMBS WERE PLANTED SQUARELY ON ANOTHER CONVOY WHICH INCLUDED HALF-TRACK ARMORED VEHICLES WITH GUNS AND AN AMMUNITION TRUCK. THE MUNITIONS CARRIER BLEW UP AND TEN TRUCKS WERE DESTROYED.

JUL 14 1943

MITCHELLS, WITH A LIGHTNING ESCORT, ATTACKED AIR FIELDS AT GERBINI, DROPPING BOMBS ACROSS THE RUNWAYS AND SCORING HITS AMONG PARKED PLANES. MESSERSCHMITTS AND MACCHIS ATTACKED THEM BUT WERE DRIVEN OFF AND TWO WERE SHOT DOWN.

DURING THE NIGHT WELLINGTONS PLASTERED TRAPANI, MARSALA AND MAZARA DEL VALLO, HITTING FACTORIES AND HARBOR INSTALLATIONS AND STARTING LARGE FIRES. WELLINGTONS ALSO SCATTERED BOMBS OVER MONTE CORNINO AIR FIELD.

RAF BOSTONS AND SOUTH AFRICAN BOSTONS AND BALTIMORES RANGED OVER THE RAODS BEHIND ENEMY LINES, HUNTING TROOP MOVEMENTS. BOSTONS ALSO PRECEDED A SQUADRON OF MITCHELLS AND DROPPED INCENDIARIES ON BORIZZO AND CARCITRELLA AIR FIELDS BEFORE THE MEDIUM BOMBERS CAME IN WITH EXPLOSIVES.

"THEY ARE GOING TO HAVE TROUBLE USING THAT FIELD FOR A WHILE," SAID CAPT.RALPH O.PATTERSON OF 216 LA PLAZA COURT, ROYAL OAK, MICH.

CAPT.D.O.GARSKI OF BISMARCK, N.D., SAID THE FLAK WAS VERY HEAVY BUT NOT ENOUGH TO HALT THE FORMATION.

JUL 14 1943

WARHAWKS ESCORTED BOSTONS IN AN EARLY MORNING ATTACK ON THE MILO AND TRAPANI AIR FIELDS. THREE ENEMY FIGHTERS TRIED TO STOP THEM BUT WERE DRIVEN OFF.

FLIGHT OFFICER MARK BOONE OF 155 W SIXTH ST., PERU, IND., SHOT DOWN ONE ENEMY PLANE JUST BEFORE ANOTHER PILOT REACHED THE AXIS CRAFT.

COMPLAINED LIEUT.ROBERT N.COOPER OF 4451 BLAISDELL ST., MINNEAPOLIS: "IT'S GETTING SO TOUGH YOU HAVE TO FIGHT YOUR WAY THROUGH YOUR OWN SQUADRON TO GET A CRACK AT THE ENEMY."

COVERING THE GREATEST AMERICAN FORCE FIGHTING OVERSEAS TODAY IS ONE OF THE MOST EFFECTIVE UNITS OF THE ARMY PICTORIAL SERVICE ANYWHERE IN THE WORLD. WITH IT IS A POOL OF ACE PHOTOGRAPHERS FROM THE LEADING NEWS PHOTO SERVICES AND NEWS REELS OF THE UNITED STATES.

THE FIRST PICTURES OF PATTON'S NEW SEVENTH ARMY IN ACTION NEAR LICATA WERE TAKEN SATURDAY MORNING BY HERBERT WHITE OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS, OPERATING FOR THE WARTIME STILL PHOTOGRAPHIC POOL. HIS BAG LOADED WITH "HOT" NEGATIVES, HE LEFT THE SICILIAN COAST IN THE AFTERNOON ABOARD AN EMPTY LANDING SHIP AND REACHED AN AFRICAN BASE LATE MONDAY AFTERNOON.

JUL 14 1943

ARMY TECHNICIANS DEVELOPED HIS FILM AND ARMY OFFICERS HELPED WRITE THE CAPTIONS AND SEE THE PICTURES THROUGH CENSORSHIP.

BY MIDNIGHT HIS PICTURES WERE BEING RADIOED TO WASHINGTON BY ARMY TRANSMITTER--SEVEN PICTURES IN 45 MINUTES.

THE REMAINDER OF THE PICTURES WERE PUT IN AN AIR COURIER POUCH POUCH BY AN ARMY OFFICER WITH EXPECTATION THAT THEY WILL REACH THE UNITED STATES BY NEXT SUNDAY.

THIS INCIDENT IS ONLY ONE OF SEVERAL OUTSTANDING ACHIEVEMENTS IN PICTURE COVERAGE DURING THE NEW CAMPAIGN WHICH ARE THE RESULT OF COORDINATED EFFORTS OF THE ARMY SIGNAL CORP OF WHICH THE PICTORIAL SERVICE IS A PART.

IT FAR SURPASSES THE ARRANGEMENTS BY ARMY PUBLIC RELATIONS FOR REPORTORIAL COVERAGE OF THE AMERICAN COMBAT TROOPS. THE AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATIONS HAVE YET TO RECEIVE FRONTLINE STORIES FROM THEIR OWN CORRESPONDENTS WITH THE AMERICAN DIVISIONS IN SICILY. THESE MEN HAVE BEEN UNABLE TO GET THEIR STORIES SENT TO THE OUTSIDE WORLD EVEN AFTER THREE DAYS.

THE SIGNAL CORPS SCORED ON THE FIRST DAY OF THE INVASION WITH PICTURES OF THE AMPHIBIOUS FORCE LOADING AND LEAVING AFRICAN PORTS. THESE WERE READY FOR RADIO TRANSMISSION ALMOST AS SOON AS THE OFFICIAL

JUL 14 1943

COMMUNIQUE WAS RELEASED.

AS SOON AS NEWS OF THE USE OF AMERICAN PARACHUTISTS IN THE INITIAL AIR-BORNE ATTACK FRIDAY NIGHT WAS RELEASED OFFICIALLY HERE ON SUNDAY, THE ARMY TRANSMITTER BEGAN SENDING PICTURES TAKEN IN ONE OF THE TROOP CARRIER PLANES BY COLLIER'S PHOTOGRAPHER, ROBERT CAPA. HE FLEW OVER SICILY WITH THE PARACHUTISTS AND SNAPPED THEM AS THEY LISTENED TO BRIEFING BY A COLONEL, AS THEY TOOK CATNAPS, AS THEY GOT READY NEAR THE EXIT AND THEN AS THEY LEAPED INTO BATTLE IN THE DARKNESS OF AN ENEMY COUNTRY.

HAVING TO WORK 16 TO 24 HOURS A DAY GIVING THE AMERICAN PUBLIC THE PICTURES IT WANTS TO SEE DOESN'T GIVE KREMER MUCH TIME TO DISCUSS THE FACT THAT HE HAD TO LEAVE HIS BRIDE OF ONE MONTH AT 6432 MORRIS PARK ROAD, PHILADELPHIA, TO COME OVERSEAS LAST WINTER.

THIRD NIGHT LEAD INVASION

BY DANIEL DE LUCE

JUL 14 1943

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, JULY 12-(AP)-HISTORIC SYRACUSE AND NINE OTHER MAJOR SICILIAN TOWNS HAVE BEEN CAPTURED BY THE FAMED BRITISH EIGHTH ARMY AND THE NEWLY FORMED AMERICAN SEVENTH ARMY AND TONIGHT THE BRITISH WERE SMASHING NORTHWARD ALONG THE COAST TOWARD MESSINA, KEY TO THE ISLAND'S DEFENSES.

GENERAL SIR BERNARD L.MONTGOMERY WAS DIRECTING HIS VETERANS IN A LIGHTNING MOVE DESIGNED TO SEAL UP THE CREAM OF THE AXIS ARMIES ON THE ISLAND AND BRING A QUICK END TO THE THREE-DAY OLD CAMPAIGN.

MESSINA IS ONLY 90 MILES FROM SYRACUSE AND THE BRITISH ALREADY HAD DRIVEN MANY MILES BEYOND THE LATTER.

ON MONTGOMERY'S LEFT FLANK BEARING THE BRUNT OF GERMAN AND ITALIAN COUNTERATTACKS WERE THE AMERICANS OF LIEUT.GEN.GEORGE S.PATTON'S NEWLY-FORMED SEVENTH ARMY, WHO WERE BATTLING ABOVE GELA BAY APPARENTLY PINNING DOWN LARGE AXIS FORCES AND THREATENING THEIR FLANKS SHOULD THEY ATTEMPT TO HALT THE BRITISH DRIVE.

THAT WAS THE PICTURE AT THE END OF THE THIRD DAY OF SICILIAN FIGHTING WHICH FOUND THE TREMENDOUS ALLIED AMPHIBIOUS FORCES FIRMLY HOLDING ALONG A 150-MILE FRONT THESE TOWNS IN ADDITION TO SYRACUSE: LICATA, 50 MILES WEST OF SYRACUSE; GELA, ON THE SOUTH COAST; PACHINO, AVOLA, NOTO, SCOGLITTI, IPSICA, ROSOLINI AND POZZALLO. THERE WERE UNCONFIRMED REPORTS THAT BOTH THE AIRPORT AT CATANIA, MIDWAY BETWEEN SYRACUSE AND MESSINA, AND FLORIDIA HAD FALLEN TO ALLIED ARMU.

A53

THE EXTENT OF THE ALLIED SUCCESSES HAD INCREASED THEIR SOUTHEASTERN SICILIAN BEACH-HEADS FROM 100 MILES TO 150--THE DISTANCE BETWEEN LICATA, WESTERNMOST POINT ON THE FLANK HELD BY THE AMERICANS, AND SYRACUSE ON SICILY'S EASTERN SHORES. JUL 14 1943

(REUTERS REPORTED THE ALLIES WERE ATTACKING AGRIGENTO, FOUR MILES WEST OF PORTO EMPEDOCLE, ON THE EXTREME LEFT FLANK, AND ALSO ROADS AND COMMUNICATIONS THAT FAN OUT INTO THE CENTRAL CATANIA PLAIN, ON THE EIGHTH ARMY'S FRONT ON THE RIGHT.)

IN THE AREA OF AGRIGENTO THE ENEMY'S EFFORTS TO DRAW IN SUPPORT FROM THE FAR WEST WERE STEMMED BY SOME OF PATTON'S VETERAN AMERICANS WHO WERE HOLDING THE BRIDGEHEAD THERE AND BEATING NORTHWARD FROM GELA AFTER SMASHING THE HEAVIEST OF AXIS COUNTERATTACKS.

QUALIFIED MILITARY OBSERVERS HERE SAID "MORE SERIOUS RESISTANCE IS EXPECTED HOURLY ON ALL FRONTS."

(THE BRITISH NEWS, ETC., 5TH GRAF SECOND NIGHT LEAD.

SOMEWHERE IN SICILY--SECOND ADD GUNTHER X X THROATS CUT.

THE PERSISTENT EISENHOWER FOUND A CANADIAN CAPTAIN. J.E. MOORE OF VANCOUVER, AFTER A HOT AND DUSTY SEARCH. HE GAVE MOORE A MESSAGE TO TRANSMIT TO THE CANADIAN GENERAL AHEAD.

SNIPERS WERE ACTIVE IN THIS AREA. THE GENERAL'S AGILE JEEP AND OUR WATER WAGON WHEELED AROUND, GOT SEPARATED AND, ROARING THROUGH THE DUST, FOUND OUR WAY SEPARATELY BACK TO THE BEACH.

EISENHOWER CHATTED WITH THE MEN NEAR THE LANDING STATE AND THEN SAID, POINTING TO OUR UNNATURAL CRAFT:

"IS OUR FLAGSHIP READY?"

JUL 14 1943

A NAVAL OFFICER GRINNED AND REPLIED:

"ARE YOU PREPARED TO SET SAIL, SIR?"

THE GENERAL CLAMBERED ABOARD AND WE GROUND DOWN TO THE BEACH AND

JUL 14 1943

SMOOTHLY ENTERED THE WATER. IT'S A WONDERFUL WAY TO TRAVEL ON BOTH LAND AND SEA, AND EISENHOWER ENJOYED BEING THE GUEST OF THE ROYAL NAVY.

WE THEN VISITED THE HEADQUARTERS SHIP OF THE BRITISH ADMIRAL, HAD DRINKS DURING TWO AIR RAID ALERTS AND FINALLY GOT BACK TO OUR DESTROYER.

JUL 14 1943

GENERAL PATTON AND ADMIRAL HEWITT AND OTHER OFFICERS GAVE EISENHOWER THE UP-TO-THE-MINUTE PICTURE AND FILLED HIM IN ON MANY PICTURESQUE DETAILS. FOR INSTANCE, THE GUNS OF ONE AMERICAN CRUISER BROKE UP AN AXIS TANK ATTACK YESTERDAY AND DESTROYED SEVERAL TANKS SINGLE-HANDED, THOUGH MANY MILESNAWAY. THIS MUST BE ONE OF THE FIRST RECORDED INSTANCES OF A BATTLE BETWEEN A SHIP AT SEA AND TANKS ON LAND.

AMERICAN SHIPS ROAM OFFSHORE LIKE FLOATING FORTS. FURTHER UP THE COAST ONE VILLAGE WAS LITERALLY CAPTURED BY TWO DESTROYERS.

I ASKED ONE OFFICER WHEN THE LUFTWAFFE HAD BEEN OPERATING AND HE ANSWERED BRIEFLY: "CONSTANTLY."

ENEMY ACTION ON THIS SCALE IS MORE OR LESS INEVITABLE IN THE FORWARD AREA WHERE IT IS DIFFICULT TO PUT OUR AIRCRAFT INTO ACTION. THE OFFICER DESCRIBED THE ENEMY TECHNIQUE:

"THOSE DEVILS STREAK IN FROM BEHIND THE HILLS AND SKIM THROUGH THE RAVINES. THEY FLY SO LOW THEY CAN'T BE SPOTTED. THEN THEY BOMB AND MACHINE-GUN THE BEACHES BEFORE OUR SPITFIRES HIGH UP CAN GET DOWN."

WE ARE COUNTERING THIS TECHNIQUE BY A STEADY ADVANCE ON LAND.

EISENHOWER WAS DELIGHTED TO HAVE PERSONAL CONFIRMATION FROM THE MEN WHO PARTOOK THAT OUR FORCES "HIT ALMOST EVERY BEACH ON THE BUTTON," IN THE INITIAL PHASES OF THE OPERATION.

JUL 14 1943

IN ONE SECTOR FOUR ITALIAN LIEUTENANT COLONELS WALKED UP AND SURRENDERED AND BLANDLY EXPLAINED THAT THE REASON THEY WERE "CAUGHT" WAS THAT THEY WERE MAKING "PERSONAL FIRST LINE RECONNAISSANCE."

(allied headquarters in north africa, wednesday, july 14-(ap)-two canadian flotillas of assault and landing craft, their mission completed on the sicilian coast with the only casualty by an enemy strafing plane returned to a north african port today.

"they organised this show so effectively that they organized all the excitement out of it," complained one canadian seaman jokingly.

a vivid eye-witness description of a canadian-carried force of three famous english country regiments landing amid the fire of italian snipers, the angry explosion of mortar shells and the whine of enemy bombers was furnished by lieut. e.h. bartlett, renvr, for 20 years an ontario newspaper man.

"many of our men were veterans of dieppe and we expected far heavier opposition," bartlett said.

30.24-6021

"but everything went off with the certainty of big ben chiming the hour.

"early saturday, as the nearing half moon slipped into the sea, ships offshore and out of range of the coastal defense guns sent the canadian and british navy landing craft loaded with troops toward the objectives.

"with their engines barely heard and without a glimmer of light to betray their presence the craft jockeyed into positions for the run into the enemy shore -- a long-practiced maneuver.

JUL 14 1943

"the enemy was very much awake but he was panicky about the air, NOT the sea, for the air force was filling the night with the drone of bombers and the crash of their explosives.

"enemy flak weaved crimson patterns of tracer bullets over the beaches and searchlights played continuously.

JUL 14 1943

"the soldiers were mistakenly sure they would be seen immediately especially when two transports astern were silhouetted by one enemy beam.

"the run in was made at a painstakingly slow speed. surprise, NOT haste, was essential.

"confused swells made the troops seasick but they bore up stout heartedly.

"at the prearranged point the landing craft scattered toward different beaches and they almost 'touched down' before the opposition suddenly blazed up.

JUL 14 1943

"mortars, machine guns and rifles started to fire furiously but our troops were already leaping into action on shore.

"other assault waves followed and the beaches were mopped up. incessantly, landing craft brought in more men.

"dawn brought heavier enemy guns into the fight. the sea threw up plumes of spray from falling shells, some of which narrowly missed two of our craft, the one commanded by sub-lieut. g.e. allin, renvr, of edmonston, leading, and seaman w. darnbrough of toronto coxswain of the other.

"but luck was all with the canadians. you don't worry about near misses. our craft all stopped a few bullets previously but these had done nothing more than scarm the hulls.

"supporting naval ships quickly raked the enemy gun positions and the fire died down almost as suddenly as it sprang up.

"within a few hours of the first tommy hopping onto the beach there was an incredible sight of scores of allied ships riding easily and safely to within point blank range of what had been the enemy stronghold.

"from their hulls came more and more essential cargoes for the continuance of allied success in sicily.

JUL 14 1943

"the personnel of the canadian flotillas was drawn from the entire dominion. ontario had the largest representation with 130 but each of the other provinces had its quota. montreal led the cities with 40 officers' ratings in the force."

bartlett said that among the flotilla's officers were lieuts. r.a. smith of regina and j.c. davie duncan of british columbia, j.e. koyl of saskatoon and w.j. mullins of bromptonville, quebec; and lieut.-comm. k. maclach, former deputy minister of canadian naval services.

"Landing barges, ships and still more ships were coming across the mediterranean," said Lieut. Andrew Pierson of 1850 N. Prospect st., Milwaukee.

JUL 14 1943

Lieut. Alcine Landry of 422 Cooper st., San Antonio, Tex., who completed his 50th mission, said: "We could see occasional shelling from the guns our boys had hauled up from the beaches."

"Landing barges still were unloading men all along the southern coast of Sicily," said Sergt. Howard W. Honca of Blevins, Ark. "Fifteen miles inland I could see lines of trucks and tanks moving northward. Catania was still burning from our attack the previous day."

JUL 14 1943

JUL 14 1943

Southern Sicily was described as "pock-marked" by Sergt. John Schwictenberg of 2037 Rice st., Chicago, who said he saw only one enemy battery still in action against the incoming allied ships.

Marauders and lightnings went after the town of Agrigento, from which strong axis counterattacks against American forces holding the Gela bay area may come. They hit barracks, a power station and a railroad station with their bombs.

Lightnings also teamed with A-36 mustangs in nonstop sweeps over highways and railroads all over Sicily, bombing axis troop-carrying and artillery trucks.

JUL 14 1943

One formation set fire to 35 vehicles and damaged many others in attacking four different convoys. Another caught a column of gun-carrying trucks and destroyed 15 of them. Bombs were planted squarely on another convoy which included half-track armored vehicles with guns and an ammunition truck. The munitions carrier blew up and ten trucks were destroyed.

JUL 14 1943

Mitchells, with a lightning escort, attacked air fields at B[redacted] Gerbini, dropping bombs across the runways and scoring hits among parked planes. Messerschmitts and Macchis attacked them but were driven off and two were shot down.

During the night Wellingtons plastered Trapani, Marsala and [redacted] Mazara del Vallo, hitting factories and harbor installations and starting large fires. Wellingtons also [redacted] scattered bombs over Monte Cornino air field.

JUL 14 1943

RAF Bostons and South African Bostons and Baltimores ranged over the roads behind enemy lines, hunting troop movements. Bostons also preceded a squadron of Mitchells and dropped incendiaries on Borizzo and Carcitrella air fields before the medium bombers came in with explosives.

JUL 14 1943

JUL 14 1943

"They are going to have trouble using that field for a while," said Capt. Ralph O. Patterson of 216 La Plaza court, Royal Oak, Mich.

Capt. D.O. Garski of Bismarck, N.D., said the flak was very heavy but NOT enough to halt the formation.

Warhawks escorted Bostons in an early morning attack on the Milo and Trapani air fields. Three enemy fighters tried to stop them but were driven off.

Flight Officer Mark Boone of 155 W Sixth st., Peru, Ind., shot down one enemy plane just before another pilot reached the axis craft.

JUL 14 1943

Complained Lieut. Robert N. Cooper of 4451 Blaisdell st., Minneapolis: "It's getting so tough you have to fight you way through your own squadron to get a crack at the enemy."

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA--FIRST ADD SEVENTH ARMY (BY DE LUCE) XXX WESTERN EUROPE.

MONTGOMERY'S RECORD OF UNBROKEN SUCCESS IN CHASING THE GERMAN AFRICAN CORPS 2,000 MILES INSPIRED SOME OF PRIME MINISTER CHURCHILL'S MOST BRILLIANT ORATORY.

JUL 14 1943

GENERAL PATTON WAS SPOTLIGHTED AS A CHARACTER OF "BLOOD AND GUTS" WHILE HE WAS STILL IN THE UNITED STATES. HE CAPTURED THE ATLANTIC COAST STRETCH OF FRENCH AFRICA LAST NOVEMBER IN PROBABLY THE FIERCEST ENGAGEMENTS OF ALL THE ALLIED LANDINGS.

LIKE LT.GENERAL MARK W.CLARK, WHO IS STILL COMMANDING THE FIFTH ARMY IN NORTH AFRICA TRAINING AREAS, GENERAL PATTON DISAPPEARED FROM THE BATTLE SCENE. BUT AFTER AMERICAN DIVISIONS IN SOUTHERN TUNISIA SUFFERED A TEMPORARILY HEAVY REVERSE BY ROMMEL'S KASSERINE PASS OFFENSIVE, PATTON RETURNED TO ACTION WITH A NEWLY CONSTITUTED SECOND CORPS.

REPLACING MAJOR GENERAL LLOYD R.FREDENDALL AND WITH MORE FREEDOM FOR INDIVIDUAL DECISION THAN HIS PRECEDESSOR WAS ALLOWED, PATTON'S FIRST MOVE WAS TO INAUGURATE STRICTER DISCIPLINE AMONG THE TROOPS.

"TIE AND LEGGINGS," PATTON HE WAS NICKNAMED FOR HIS RIGID ORDERS THAT NO AMERICAN SOLDIER ON THE TUNISIAN FRONT SHOULD BE SEEN WITHOUT WEARING THESE ARTICLES.

JUL 14 1943

IRONICALLY, PATTON'S LONG TRAINING IN TANK WARFARE FOUND LITTLE ROOM FOR APPLICATION IN SOUTHERN TUNISIA IN MARCH AND APRIL FOR IT WAS A CHIEFLY KNOCK DOWN-DRAG OUT INFANTRY FIGHT WHICH THE AMERICAN'S STAGED ON ROMMEL'S FLANK WHILE MONTGOMERY WAS SMASHING FRONTALLY UP THE AFRICAN COAST.

AFTER THE BRITISH EIGHTH ARMY AND THE AMERICAN SECOND CORPS MADE THEIR JUNCTION IN THE EL GUETTAR AREA, PATTON AGAIN DISAPPEARED FROM THE SCENE, BEING CALLED TO A NEW, SECRET ASSIGNMENT. TO HIM GENERAL

JUL 14 1943

EISENHOWER ENTRUSTED THE AMERICAN ARMY NOW FIGHTING IN SICILY.

IN SICILY, THE FIRST DAYS OF THE FIGHTING HAVE BEEN MAINLY AN "INFANTRY SHOW" FOR THE AMERICANS, ALTHOUGH THE ENEMY HURLED THE HEAVIEST ARMORED BLOW OF THE NEW CAMPAIGN AGAINST THEM SUNDAY IN THE SHAPE OF 45 TANKS SUPPORTED BY ELEMENTS FROM THE FOURTH (ITALIAN) DIVISION.

JUL 14 1943

BUT PATTON HAS A COMPETENT TANK FORCE AND DESPITE THE DISADVANTAGES FOR ARMORED BATTLE IN THE ROCKY, SHARP-RIDGED HIGHLANDS OF CENTRAL SICILY TOWARD WHICH THE AMERICANS ARE ADVANCING, THE COMMANDER OF THE SEVENTH ARMY PROBABLY WOULD WELCOME A SHOWDOWN WITH AXIS TANKS.

IN THE PUBLIC MIND, PERHAPS, BOTH PATTON AND MONTGOMERY ARE VIEWED AS "FIRE-EATERS" WHOSE BRIMSTONE REMARKS REFLECT RECKLESS DARING.

ALTHOUGH IMPERTURABLE AS REGARDS PERSONAL RISK, BOTH COMMANDERS ACTUALLY HAVE SHOWN THEMSELVES TO BE CANNILY CAUTIOUS WHENEVER THERE WAS A PREMIUM ON CAUTION, BUT QUICK TO ORDER DARING MANEUVERS IF THESE WERE SOUNDLY JUSTIFIED.

THUS FAR IN THE SICILIAN CAMPAIGN, AT LEAST ONE POINT IS SUBSTANTIATED. THE ALLIED GENERALSHIP HAS BEEN SUPERIOR TO THAT OF THE AXIS.

BY DON WHITEHEAD

AT AN INVASION TRAINING CENTER IN NORTH AFRICA-(DELAYED)-(AP)-THE BIG TROOP CARRYING TRANSPORTS CAME OVER THE HORIZON LIKE A FLIGHT OF GIANT GEESE, CIRCLED THE AIRFIELD AND SWOOPED DOWN IN ECHELON TO THE EDGE OF THE DUST-COVERED FIELD.

JUL 14 1943

THROUGH A WHEAT FIELD SEARED BY THE SUN, PARACHUTISTS CAME MARCHING IN COLUMNS OF TWOS. THE MEN MIGHT HAVE BEEN A PROCESSION OF GROTESQUE FIGURES FROM ANOTHER PLANET WITH THEIR GREEN HELMETS, BATTLE DRESS, HIGH JUMP BOOTS, PARACHUTES AND ALL THE ARMS, AMMUNITION AND EQUIPMENT STRAPPED TO THEM OR BULGING IN PANTS AND JACKET POCKETS.

THESE WERE CRACK TROOPS GETTING THEIR FINAL TRAINING FOR THE UNITED STATES ARMY'S FIRST AIRBORNE INVASION THRUST AGAINST THE ENEMY. NONE OF US KNEW THEN HOW SOON THAT THRUST WAS TO BE MADE. WE COULD ONLY GUESS THAT THE TIME WAS RUNNING SHORT.

MOST OF THESE TROOPS WERE TALL, LEAN YOUTHS WITH LITHE BODIES, BONY FACES DEEP-TANNED BY THE SUN AND THE EYES OF HUNTSMEN. SOME WERE SHORT AND STURDY WITH MUSCLES BULGING BENEATH THEIR JACKETS. ALL OF THEM HAD THE HARD, CONDITIONED LOOK OF ATHLETES. THERE WASN'T AN OUNCE OF EXCESS FAT IN THE LOT.

EACH SQUAD MARCHED TO ITS PLANE AND THE BOYS CRAWLED INTO THE SHADE OF THE PLANES OUT OF THE BLISTERING SUN. SWEAT TRICKLED DOWN THEIR FACES. THERE WASN'T ANY HORSEPLAY. THEY JUST SPRAWLED ON THE GROUND WAITING FOR THE TAKEOFF, PILLOWING THEIR HEADS ON THEIR STEEL HELMETS, CONSERVING THEIR ENERGY.

THE ONLY ONE ON HIS FEET WAS LIEUTENANT GEORGE M.WARFIELD OF

JUL 14 1943

SARASOTA, FLA., THE JUMPMASTER AND COMMANDING OFFICER OF A COMPANY. WARFIELD WOULD BE THE FIRST MAN TO JUMP IN THIS SIMULATED ATTACK ON AN ENEMY AIRDROME. HIS COMPANY WAS TO GET TO THE GROUND FIRST AND MOVE OUT TO PROTECT THE WAVES OF PARACHUTISTS TO FOLLOW.

THE OBJECTIVE WAS AN "ENEMY" AIRPORT FROM WHICH TRANSPORTS AND FIGHTER PLANES WERE OPERATING. THE MEN WERE TO SWEEP OVER THE FIELD, JUMP, AND THEN ASSEMBLE FOR AN ATTACK ON HANGARS, OPERATIONS BUILDINGS, GUN POSITIONS AND OTHER STRATEGIC POINTS.

JUL 14 1943

THE INSIDE OF THE SHIP WAS STRIPPED FOR ACTION, BUT UNDER THE BELLY IN RACKS WERE BUNDLES TO BE DROPPED BY PARACHUTES. ONE WAS A KIT OF COMMUNICATIONS EQUIPMENT.

I WALKED DOWN THE LONG LINE OF PLANES TO MY SHIP, TO BE PILOTED BY FLIGHT OFFICER FREEMAN NORTHCOTT OF SEMINOLE, OKLA. THE DOOR HAD BEEN TAKEN OFF THE PLANE. ALL PROTRUDING SHARP PARTS ON WHICH A PARACHUTE MIGHT SNAG HAD BEEN CAREFULLY TAPED OVER.

SGT.WILLIAM TIMSON OF PLAINVILLE, N.H., WAS JUMPMASTER OF THIS SQUA WHICH INCLUDED SGT.MICHAEL KOGAT, THREE RIVERS, MASS.; PVT.BENJAMIN WROBLEWSKI, 398 WYTHE ST., BROOKLYN; PVT.HUGH SHERADAN, JAMAICA, N.Y.; KENNETH REYNOLDS, WALPOLE, N.H.; WILLIAM GILBERT, WINSTON SALEM, N.C.; DOUGLASS CLARK, 308 WEST 26TH ST., NEW YORK CITY.; AND FRANK COLE, 2227 WEST 8TH ST., BROOKLYN.

JUL 14 1943

I SAT DOWN BESIDE KOGAT. "HOW DO YOU FEEL?" I ASKED..

HE GRINNED. "I'M BEGINNING TO SWEAT THIS ONE OUT."

"DON'T YOU EVER GET USED TO THE JUMPS?"

"HELL, NO. YOU NEVER GET USED TO 'EM. I'VE MADE 16 AND I'M STILL NOT USED TO 'EM."

"WELL," SAID REYNOLDS. "AT LEAST I DIDN'T JUMP OUT OF BED LAST NIGHT. SOME OF THE BOYS HAVE THE NIGHT BEFORE A JUMP."

TIMSON LOOKED AT HIS WATCH.

JUL 14 1943

"OKAY. LET'S LOAD UP."

WE CLIMBED INTO THE PLANE AND NORTHCOTT STARTED MOTRS. IT WAS 10:45 A.M. THE SHIP'S CABIN WAS STIFLING HOT. SWEAT POURED OFF THE MEN'S FACES AS THEY CHECKED THEIR GEAR.

THE FLEET OF TRANSPORTS WHEELED DOWN THE RUNWAY AND SOARED OFF THE FIELD, LEAVING SWIRLING CLOUDS OF DUST IN THEIR WAKE. OUR SHIP CLIMBED TO ABOUT 1000 FEET AND LEVELED OFF. THE WIND ROARED THROUGH THE OPEN DOOR AND COOLED THE CABIN. BUT IT WAS ROUGH AND THE SHIP BUCKED AND BOUNCED.

THERE WASN'T MUCH CONVERSATION. THE NOISE WAS TOO GREAT AND WHEN YOU'RE GOING UP FOR A JUMP IS NO TIME FOR SMALL TALK, ANYWAY. THE BOYS SETTLED DOWN ON THE ALUMINUM SEATS, LOOKING STUFFED AND UNCOMFORTABLE WITH ALL THEIR GEAR.

EACH OF THEM CARRIED HAND GRENADES IN THE POCKET OF HIS TROUSERS, A TRENCH KNIFE, BAYONET, RIFLE, CANTEEN, COMPASS, FIRST AID PACKET, EMERGENCY FOOD RATIONS, ENTRENCHING TOOL AND, OF COURSE, REGULAR AND EMERGENCY PARACHUTES.

WROBLEWSKI AND SHERADAN WADDLED TO THE DOOR, HOLDING ON TO THE PARACHUTE CABLE TO KEEP FROM BEING PITCHED OUT OF THE PLANE. THEY STOOD STARING DOWN AT THE MOUNTAINS BENEATH US. GILBERT AND COLE METHODICALLY CHEWED GUM.

KOGAT LEANED OVER UNEXPECTEDLY AND SAID: "YOU KNOW, I'VE GOT THREE BROTHERS IN THE ARMY. THE LAST TIME I HEARD FROM JOHN HE WAS HEADED FOR AUSTRALIA. JOHN'S A PFC. FRED IS A SERGEANT AT THE ABERDEEN PROVING GROUND AND ED, HE'S A PRIVATE...I DON'T KNOW WHERE ED IS."

30.24-6027

HE WAS SILENT A MOMENT. "I WAS MARRIED TWO MONTHS BEFORE I LEFT THE STATES TO COME TO AFRICA. I WAS SO BUSY WE DIDN'T GET TO HAVE A HONEYMOON. THAT'S THE FIRST THING I'M GOING TO DO WHEN I GET HOME, HAVE OUR HONEYMOON."

JUL 14 1943

TIMSON LOOKED AT HIS WATCH AGAIN. IT WAS 11 O'CLOCK. "BETTER HOOK UP YOUR RESERVE 'CHUTES," HE SAID. THE BOYS SNAPPED ON THEIR RESERVE 'CHUTES--THEIR MARGIN OF SAFETY IN CASE SOMETHING WENT WRONG WITH THE MAIN 'CHUTE.

A FEW MINUTES LATER WE WERE OVER THE MEDITERRANEAN. A LIGHT SURF FEATHERED A BEAUTIFUL BEACH AND THE WATER WAS STARTLINGLY BLUE. THEN THE FORMATION OF PLANES SWUNG BACK INLAND AND HEADED FOR OUR OBJECTIVE.

TIMMONS WALKED DOWN THE AISLE GIVING FINAL INSTRUCTIONS.

THE MINUTES PASSED SLOWLY. THEN FAR AHEAD I COULD SEE THE FIELD WHICH WAS OUR OBJECTIVE AND THE FORMATION OF PLANES DRIVING TOWARD IT, DROPPING LOWER FOR THE FINAL RUN.

"FOUR MINUTES TO GO!" TIMMONS SAID. "CHECK YOUR GUNS AND PACKS."

THE MEN CHECKED OVER THEIR EQUIPMENT, STRAPS AND 'CHUTE LATCHES.

"STAND UP AND HOOK UP!" THE JUMPMASTER SHOUTED. THE TROOPS SURGED TO THEIR FEET AND SNAPPED THE STATIC LINES OF THEIR 'CHUTES TO THE CABLE RUNNING THE LENGTH OF THE PLANE.

JUL 14 1943

"SOUND OFF!"

"NUMBER EIGHT, OKAY!. . .NUMBER SEVEN, OKAY! . . .NUMBER SIX OKAY! . . ." DOWN THE LINE WENT THE CHANT.

"ALL OKAY!" TIMMONS CRIED. HE STOOD AT THE DOOR WITH HIS LEFT FOOT FORWARD, CLUTCHING THE SIDES AND GAUGING THE DISTANCE TO THE FIELD THE PLANE WAS LEVELED OFF WITH A SPEED OF 120 MILES AN HOUR. THE ATMOSPHERE IN THE PLANE WAS ELECTRIC WITH A SUPPRESSED EXCITEMENT THAT WAS ALMOST SUFFOCATING. IT WAS A PHYSICAL THING THAT MADE YOUR HEART POUND WITH SUSPENSE. THOSE FOUR MINUTES SEEMED INTERMINABLE.

ABOVE TIMSON'S HEAD GLOWED A RED LIGHT. EVERYONE STARED AT IT AS THOUGH HYPNOTIZED . . . WAITING . . . WAITING . . . THEN SUDDENLY THE GREEN LIGHT FLASHED ON -- THE PILOT'S SIGNAL TO JUMP.

TIMSON TOOK ONE MORE LOOK OUT THE DOOR.

JUL 14 1943

"OKAY!" AND HE WAS GONE.

THE OTHERS WENT AFTER HIM IN ONE GREAT RUSH AND A SHOUT AS THOUGH THE SHIP WERE INHABITED BY DEMONS AND THEY HAD TO ESCAPE INTO THE CLEAR BLUE AIR. OUT THE DOOR THEY FLUNG THEMSELVES AND I SAT ALONE WITH THE STATIC LINES FLAPPING OUT THE DOOR.

IF I'D HAD A 'CHUTE ON, I'D HAVE JUMPED WITH THEM EVEN THOUGH HEADQUARTERS HAD FORBIDDEN ME TO MAKE THE JUMP. YOU CAN'T SIT IN A PLANE WHEN PARACHUTE TROOPS RUSH OUT THE DOOR WITHOUT AN ALMOST UNCONTROLLABLE URGE TO FOLLOW THEM. IT HAS HAPPENED. A VISITOR ONCE PLUNGED OUT OF A PLANE BEHIND PARACHUTE TROOPS.

"I DON'T KNOW WHY I DID IT," HE SAID LATER. "I JUST COULDN'T RESIST GETTING OUT OF THAT PLANE WHEN THE MEN RUSHED THROUGH THE DOOR LIKE RATS LEAVING A DOOMED SHIP."

OUTSIDE, THE SKY OVER THE AIRFIELD WAS FILLED WITH PARACHUTES.

JUL 14 1943

ONCE ON THE GROUND, THE MEN DISENGAGED THE PARACHUTES, GRABBED EQUIPMENT AND SWARMED ON THEIR OBJECTIVE.

AND THAT'S HOW THE PARACHUTE TROOPS TRAINED FOR INVASION.

NIGHT LEAD (AMS BUDGET)

SOUTHWEST PACIFIC ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, JULY 14 (WEDNESDAY) (AP)-THE SECOND BATTLE OF KULA GULF WAS FURTHER EVIDENCE TODAY THAT THE AMERICAN NAVY HAS TAKEN OVER WITH A VENGEANCE THE NIGHT FIGHTING TACTICS USED BY THE JAPANESE WHEN THEY TRIED TO CRUSH OUR HOLD ON GUADALCANAL LAST FALL.

JUL 14 1943

IN TWO NIGHT CLASHES, JUST A WEEK APART, THE NAVY SANK AT LEAST 13, AND POSSIBLY MORE THAN 17 ENEMY CRUISERS AND DESTROYERS SEEKING TO HALT THE AMERICAN OFFENSIVE IN THE CENTRAL SOLOMONS.

COMPARED WITH THE NAVAL NIGHT FIGHTING AROUND GUADALCANAL THE SITUATION NOW IS REVERSED TO SOME EXTENT. THEN THE ENEMY WAS ON THE COUNTER-OFFENSIVE SEEKING TO RECAPTURE GUADALCANAL. NOW HE IS ON THE DEFENSIVE ATTEMPTING TO PREVENT THE CAPTURE OF HIS STRATEGIC AIR BASE AT MUNDA ON NEW GEORGIA ISLAND BY LANDING SUPPLIES AND REINFORCEMENTS AT KULA GULF SUPPLY DEPOTS.

IT IS THE UNITED STATES SHIPS THAT NOW SLIP UP THE CHAIN OF ISLANDS--DOWN WHICH THE JAPANESE USED TO SEND THEIR ALMOST NIGHTLY "TOKYO EXPRESS" NAVY UNITS.

THE NIGHT FIGHTING, A DARING AND DEADLY BUSINESS, MAKES IT STRICTLY A TEST OF SHIPS AGAINST SHIPS. AIR SUPPORT FOR EITHER SIDE IS ELIMINATED BY THE DARKNESS. IN THE KULA GULF BATTLES IT APPARENTLY WAS SHIP AGAINST SHIP. THERE WAS NO MENTION OF AIRPLANE ACTIVITY IN CONNECTION WITH THE ENGAGEMENTS IN THE COMMUNIQUES FROM THE HEADQUARTERS OF GENERAL DOUGLAS MAC ARTHUR.

JUL 14 1943

AT LEAST ONE ENEMY CRUISER AND THREE DESTROYERS WERE SENT TO THE BOTTOM IN THE SECOND BATTLE STARTING MONDAY NIGHT, PRELIMINARY REPORTS FROM ADMIRAL WILLIAM F.HALSEY SAID. TWO OTHERS MAY HAVE BEEN SUNK. THE TUESDAY COMMUNIQUE SAID REPORTS WERE STILL INCOMPLETE AND INDICATED THE BATTLE WAS STILL IN PROGRESS. NO AMERICAN LOSSES WERE MENTIONED.

(A JAPANESE COMMUNIQUE BROADCAST BY THE TOKYO RADIO CLAIMED THAT THEIR DESTROYERS HAD SUNK TWO AMERICAN CRUISERS AND SET FIRE TO ANOTHER IN THE GULF. THIS WAS WITHOUT CONFIRMATION FROM ALLIED HEADQUARTERS.)

JUL 14 1943

A201KX

IN THE FIRST BATTLE OF KULA GULF ON THE NIGHT OF JULY 5-6 THE JAPANESE LOST FROM NINE TO ELEVEN CRUISERS AND DESTROYERS. THE LOSS OF THE AMERICAN CRUISER HELENA WAS ACKNOWLEDGED.

BOTH BATTLES WERE FOUGHT IN THE NARROW CHANNEL BETWEEN THE NORTHERN END OF NEW GEORGIA AND KOLOMBANGARA ISLAND, NORTH OF THE MUNDA AIR BASE. THIS BASE HAS BEEN CUT OFF FROM ITS SUPPLY PORT ON KULA GULF BY MARINES THROWN ACROSS THE CONNECTING JUNGLE TRACK. EAST OF MUNDA THE AMERICAN INFANTRY WAS LESS THAN TWO MILES AWAY.

MUNDA WAS ALSO POUNDED AGAIN YESTERDAY BY AMERICAN BOMBERS. OTHER ALLIED WARPLANES STRUCK AT ITS SUPPLY DEPOT ACROSS THE KULA GULF AT VILA ON KOLOMBANGARA. KAHILI ON BOUGAINVILLE ISLAND, MOST IMPORTANT AIRDROME OF THE NORTHERN SOLOMONS, AND RABAUL, NEW BRITAIN, THE KEY ENEMY BASE OF THE SOUTH PACIFIC, WERE HIT FROM THE AIR IN OTHER IMPORTANT RAIDS DURING A DAY CRAMMED WITH ACTIVITY.

KULA GULF

BY TOM YARBROUGH

SOUTH PACIFIC HEADQUARTERS, WEDNESDAY, JULY 14-(AP)-THE UNITED STATES NAVY SUSTAINED ONLY SLIGHT DAMAGE IN SINKING AT LEAST FOUR AND PROBABLY SIX JAPANESE CRUISERS AND DESTROYERS DURING TUESDAY'S PRE-DAY SECOND BATTLE OF THE KULA GULF, AN INFORMED SOURCE SAID

30.24-6029

TODAY. IN ADDITION, DAMAGE WAS INFLICTED ON OTHER ENEMY DESTROYERS.

(HEADQUARTERS OF GEN.DOUGLAS MACARTHUR PREVIOUSLY HAD ANNOUNCED THAT A CRUISER AND THREE DESTROYERS WERE DEFINITELY SUNK AND TWO OTHER DESTROYERS PROBABLY SUNK BUT HAD MADE NO MENTION OF OUR OWN LOSSES).

THE BATTLE WAS "ALMOST A REPEAT PERFORMANCE" OF THE WEEK BEFORE WHEN NINE ENEMY CRUISERS AND DESTROYERS WERE SENT TO THE BOTTOM OF THE NARROW BODY OF WATER BETWEEN NEW GEORGIA AND KOLOMBANGARA ISLANDS IN THE CENTRAL SOLOMONS

IN THE LATEST BATTLE, OUR CRUISERS AND DESTROYERS FIRST INTERCEPTED SIX ENEMY SHIPS WHICH WERE LEAVING THE GULF. A LIGHT CRUISER AND THREE DESTROYERS ARE KNOWN TO HAVE FALLEN PREY TO THE ROARING GUNS OF OUR WARSHIPS AND TWO OTHER DESTROYERS WERE BELIEVED SUNK. THAT WOULD ACCOUNT FOR ALL OF THE SIX SHIPS.

A SECOND GROUP OF FOUR DESTROYERS LATER WAS ENCOUNTERED AND SOME DAMAGE WAS INFTICTED ON THEM, AN INFORMED SOURCE SAID.

THE JAPANESE FORCE HAD BEEN SPOTTED THE PREVIOUS (MONDAY) AFTERNOON BY ARMY AND NAVY RECONNAISSANCE PLANES.

JUL 14 1943

OUR SURFACE SHIPS THUS WERE ABLE FOR THE SECOND TIME TO SURPRISE A SECTION OF THE "TOKYO EXPRESS" IN AN ATTEMPT TO BRING EITHER AID OR REINFORCEMENT TO ITS IMPERILED NEW GEORGIA GARRISON AT MUNDA.

THE BATTLE WAS OVER IN A SHORT TIME AND WITH THE COMING OF DAYLIGHT OUR PLANES WERE UNABLE TO FIND ANY CRIPPLED JAPANESE WARSHIPS AS THEY HAD DONE AFTER THE FIRST BATTLE JULY 5-6.

THE JAPANESE FORCE APPARENTLY HAD BEEN DOWN TO THE AREA OF VILA, WHICH IS ON KOLOMBANGARA ISLAND ACROSS THE KULA GULF FROM NEW GEORGIA, BUT IT WAS NOT BELIEVED THAT THE JAPANESE FORCES AROUND BESEIGED MUNDA POINT RECEIVED ANY REINFORCEMENTS.

JUL 14 1943

THE TWO KULA GULF BATTLES REPRESENT A CLASSIC RENEWAL OF THE "TOKYO EXPRESS" KNOWN SO WELL TO THE EARLIER DEFENDERS OF GUADALCANAL. THE JAPANESE TRY TO RUN A LIGHT AND FAST FORCE OF SHIPS DOWN BY NIGHT TO DO A JOB AND THEN HOPE TO GET OUT OF RANGE OF OUR PLANES BEFORE DAYLIGHT. THIS TIME THEY HAD A SHORTER RUN FOR THEIR PULLMAN CRUISERS AND DAYCOACH DESTROYERS.

THEIR RESORT TO THESE TACTICS WITH THE CONSEQUENT HEAVY LOSSES REPRESENT A CERTAIN AMOUNT OF DESPERATION BUT THERE WAS NO INDICATION THEY WERE WITHDRAWING THEIR FORCES AS THEY DID WITH THEIR DESTROYERS IN THE LAST STAGES OF THE BATTLE FOR GUADALCANAL.

THE JUNGLE BATTLE FOR JAPAN'S AIR BASE OF MUNDA IS SOMEWHAT SIMILAR TO THE FIGHT FOR BUNA AND SANANANDA ON THE PAPAUAN PENINSULA, OF NEW GUINEA, WHERE THE ALLIES TRIUMPHED LAST JANUARY. THE MUNDA JAPANESE, AS ON NEW GUINEA, HOLD STRONG POINTS UNTIL THEY ARE BLASTED OUT OR ARE RUSHED BY OUR SOLDIERS.

THESE STRONG POINTS CONSIST OF DUGOUTS REENFORCED BY LOGS, FOXHOLES, TREE ROOTS AND ANYTHING ELSE PROVIDING COVER. THE BATTLE IS SIMILAR ALSO TO THE VARITUS BATTLES FOUGHT ON GUADALCANAL.

IN A WORD, IT IS TOUGH GOING FOR THE MEN WHO HAVE TO FORCE THE JAPANESE BACK.

Relations were aggravated by the unopposed Japanese occupation of Kwangchowan, the French lease over which indignant Chungking proclaimed null and void.

JUL 14 1943

WAR PRODUCTION CHIEF DONALD NELSON'S "VOICE OF DOOM" SPEECH, HURLED AT THE AXIS FROM TORONTO JUST BEFORE THE ALLIED INVASION OF SICILY, ANSWERS BY INDIRECTION A TROUBLESOME QUESTION WHICH A READER OF THIS COLUMN HAS SUBMITTED, NAMELY, WHAT CONCRETE EVIDENCE HAVE WE TO SUBSTANTIATE CLAIMS THAT THE GERMAN-ITALIAN COMBINE IS SHORT OF RESOURCES AND IS ON THE DOWN GRADE IN PRODUCTION.

WELL, THERE'S MUCH SATISFACTORY EVIDENCE THAT THE AXIS IS ON THE SKIDS. I SHOULD SAY THAT MORE THAN A LITTLE SUPPORT FOR THIS IS TO BE SEEN IN THE UNITED NATIONS' TRIUMPH IN TUNISIA AND THE PRESENT MANNER IN WHICH THEY HAVE INVADED SICILY--ONE OF MUSSOLINI'S MAIN STRONGHOLDS.

WE ALSO HAVE SUBSTANTIATION FROM ALLIED SECRET AGENTS, FROM CAPTURED DOCUMENTS, FROM ADMISSIONS BY PRISONERS OF WAR, FROM SHREWD CALCUTIONS BY ALLIED EXPERTS. HOWEVER, IF YOU DEMAND PRECISE FIGURES HOW THE DECLINE, IT MUST BE ADMITTED THAT IT ISN'T EASY TO FIND

ALONG COMES MR.NELSON AND SHOWS US IN A FEW GRAPHIC WORDS DOESN'T MATTER HOW MUCH THE AXIS IS PRODUCING BECAUSE THE NATIONS ARE DOING SO MUCH MORE. WE CAN SMOTHER THE ENEMY AT THEIR BEST.

THAT'S A COGENT REMINDER OF THE BASIC FACT THAT THIS IS A WAR OF RESOURCES AND TRANSPORTATION--AS WITNESS THE INVASION OF SICILY. THE ALLIES HAVE MANY TIMES THE RESOURCES OF THE AXIS. THEREFORE THE ALLIES MUST WIN.

JUL 14 1943

CHAIRMAN NELSON SAYS THAT THE NORTH AMERICAN CONTINENT ALONE WILL OUTPRODUCE THE AXIS IN MUNITIONS THIS YEAR BY NEARLY TWO TO ONE. ALL THE UNITED NATIONS WILL MAKE THREE TIMES THE AXIS OUTPUT OF ARMS, AND NEXT YEAR FOUR TIMES.

"THESE FIGURES SPEAK TO THE WORLD IN A BIG VOICE," HE DECLARES "AND IF THE NAZI AND JAP WARLORDS ARE NOT COMPLETELY INSANE, THEY WILL RECOGNIZE THAT THE VOICE IS THE VOICE OF DOOM."

BUT MR.NELSON DOESN'T LET THIS BLIND HIM TO THE "SERIOUS EFFECTS OF THE SPASMODIC STRIKES AND RIOTS ON THE WAR PRODUCTION PROGRAM" IN THIS COUNTRY. HE WARNS THAT "THE TIMES CALL FOR A COOPERATIVE WAR PRODUCTION EFFORT OF INCREASING PACE AND MAGNITUDE, MATCHING THE MILITARY EFFORT."

WHILE NELSON WAS SPEAKING IN TORONTO, I HEARD THE "VOICE OF DOOM" THESIS, AND THE MAGNITUDE OF OUR TASK, DEVELOPED HERE IN NEW YORK AT A PRIVATE PREVIEW OF THE WALT DISNEY PRODUCTIONS' PICTURIZATION OF MAJOR ALEXANDER P.DE SEVERSKY'S BOOK "VICTORY THROUGH AIR POWER." THE FAMOUS AIRMAN-INVENTOR HIMSELF APPEARS ON THE SCREEN AND AT ONE POINT IN DISCUSSING OUR WAR EFFORT SAYS DRAMATICALLY:

"WITH OUR ABUNDANT RESOURCES, WEALTH OF MANPOWER, AND TREMENDOUS INDUSTRIAL CAPACITY--WHY, WE CAN BUILD THE BIGGEST ARMY, THE BIGGEST NAVY, AND THE BIGGEST AIR FORCE--AND WITH THIS SUPER-COLOSSAL TEAM WE'LL SMOTHER THE ENEMY WITH THE SHEER WEIGHT OF OUR MEN AND MACHINES!

"THE SUCCESS OF THIS PROCEDURE DEPENDS ON TWO THINGS. FIRST WE

JUL 14 1943

MUST PRODUCE A VAST AMOUNT OF WEAPONS OF ENDLESS VARIETY--AND SECOND, WE MUST DELIVER THIS MAZE OF EQUIPMENT TO BATTLEFRONTS THAT ARE SPREAD ALL OVER THE FACE OF THE EARTH.

"ALREADY NEARLY ONE HUNDRED MILLION TONS OF VITAL SUPPLIES ARE REQUIRED EVERY MONTH--MONTH AFTER MONTH--AND IF WE STEP UP THE OFFENSIVE, THIS TONNAGE WILL GROW."

SEVERSKY SHOWS THE ALL-IMPORTANT PART THE AIR PLAYS IN MAINTAINING ALLIED COMMUNICATIONS, AND IN REACHING OUT ACROSS THE BORDERS OF ENEMY COUNTRIES AND SMASHING THEIR PRODUCTION CENTERS, SUPPLY BASES AND LINES OF COMMUNICATIONS. THAT BRINGS US BACK TO MR. NELSON, FOR HE SAID:

JUL 14 1943

"WE HAVE EVERY REASON TO BELIEVE THAT IN ITALY AND GERMANY THE WHOLESALE DESTRUCTION OF PLANTS FROM THE AIR IS REDUCING MUNITIONS OUTPUT WELL BELOW RECENT PEAK LEVELS."

AND THEN IN MAKING A PLEA FOR GREATER PRODUCTION, NELSON PROPHESIED:

"YOU WILL SHORTLY SEE GIGANTIC BATTLES IN WHICH UNHEARD OF WAR MATERIALS WILL BE CONSUMED."

IN THE COMPARATIVELY FEW HOURS SINCE THAT PREDICTION WAS MADE THE FIRST OF THESE GREAT BATTLES HAS GOT UNDER WAY. THE TEST IS BEGUN.

Elite Goering Division Opposes Patton's Forces Near Niscemi.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 14.—(AP) Britain's victorious Eighth army tonight bore down on Catania, port city half-way along the eastern Sicilian coast toward the prize of Messina opposite the toe of Italy, and late dispatches said Catania's fall was imminent.

In the southwest a powerful force of Americans, which already has taken more than 8,000 prisoners, scored a 15-mile advance on the left flank, captured two more key airdromes, and struck inland toward Caltagirone, southwestern gateway to the Catania plain which it was believed the Eighth army already had reached on the east.

More than 12,000 prisoners altogether have been captured on Sicily, it was announced tonight and on the fifth day of the campaign Axis defenses appeared to be still paralyzed. In the words of one military observer here: "The Axis is hanging on the ropes."

Paul Kern Lee, Associated Press correspondent with the British fleet, writing from aboard a British cruiser in Catania bay, said the German Hermann Goering division was defending the Catania plains.

Warships Shell Towns

Allied warships were shelling the villages of Lentini and Carlentini on the road to Catania, Mr. Lee said, reporting a stubborn core of Axis resistance around the villages. Dispatches from other sources said the British may have already taken Lentini.

Cleanup of the entire area was expected shortly, Mr. Lee added.

The American middle column, headed toward Caltagirone, last was reported only a few miles from there, fighting a German unit at Niscemi. The Americans were meeting the most opposition—and capturing the most prisoners.

But an Allied commentator said that in the overall picture the Allies "are not really meeting any serious opposition," and dispatches made it clear that the invaders were ahead of their time-table plan to crush the Axis defending armies army should be nearing Catania unless serious opposition had developed at the intermediate inland cities of Lentini and Carlentini on the edge of the Catania plain below volcanic Mount Etna. Catania itself was without any natural defenses.

One dispatch said the residents of Catania, which has been bombarded from sea and air, probably could hear the guns of the British desert veterans who chased Marshal Rommel from Egypt into Tunisia, and who hope to inflict another Nazi Cap Bon disaster.

A Reuters correspondent in a dispatch from Sicily said the invasion had become "a pursuit of an almost non-resisting enemy," and was ahead of schedule in the race up the eastern coast.

The British were moving along a road which curves inland toward Lentini and may already have taken that city. Catania is 35 miles above Augusta along this winding route.

JUL 15 1943

(An Algiers radio broadcast recorded by the Associated Press said the British already had driven a wedge into Catania's defenses).

Third of East Coast Taken

More than one-third of Sicily's east coast already was in Allied hands, the Canadians virtually had destroyed an entire Italian division and captured its commander, and Allied naval and air power dominated the sea and sky in the methodical sweep toward Messina, on the northeastern tip of the island only two miles across from the Italian mainland.

The Messina strait already had been penetrated by Allied torpedo crewmen who drove two Italian torpedo boats ashore in flames, and damaged a third in a daring thrust Monday night.

below the city before the Allies topple that communications center whence important roads lead into the interior.

General Advance

The invaders have captured a score or more of Sicilian cities and a communique said "a further general advance was made in all sectors."

Allied warships sped up and down the 150-mile curving coastline now firmly held by the land troops. Their heavy artillery swiveled shoreward to pick off Axis defense points. American naval units facilitated new drives by the Seventh American army under Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton, Jr.

The Americans captured airdromes at Comiso, six miles west of Ragusa, and at Ponte Olivo, nine miles inland from Gela. These are two of the enemy's most important bases, and Allied airmen already are operating from at least three others.

Plunging west and north from Licata, the Americans overran Palma and Naro, the latter only 12 miles from Agrigento where the Axis was said to have concentrated heavy forces for a counter-attack. Hundreds of prisoners were swept up in this 15-mile drive.

Porto Empedocle, on the coast three miles below Agrigento, also was among the targets pounded by American warships.

Meet Crack Nazi Unit

General Patton's tank men also were reported battling the elite German Herman Goering division near Niscemi, 25 miles east and slightly north of the Licata bridgehead.

This "stiffening" of Germans in the Axis defenses was the main obstacle to the Allies, but thus far not an important one. The Italians were not showing much fight, and civilians openly welcomed the Allies whose supply caravans are taking food, cigarettes and other supplies for relief of the non-combatant population.

The American sector was a long shallow one, with the invasion plan apparently calling for the Americans to deepen and protect the Allied left flank while Britain's desert warriors race up the eastern coast to Messina.

Once the eastern coast is subjugated, the Allied armies would turn westward—away from Italy—and throttle the remainder of the Axis forces on the 10,000-square-mile island which would serve as a base to invade Italy or reduce the mainland through aerial attack.

Allied warships and planes paced the British motorized advance up the eastern coast. The bombardment of Catania followed the pattern used to topple Augusta. At the latter port, a British and Greek destroyer steamed into the supposedly strong naval base at 4 p. m. Monday.

Flare of Resistance

Augusta's remaining civilian population was about to receive the Allied sailors as conquerors when an enemy garrison at one point ashore showed a flare of resistance. The warships retired to a safer distance, their guns dominating the city until the arrival of the Eighth army.

(The headquarters communique said the troops marched in, early Wednesday, but a later dispatch from Allied headquarters said Augusta officially was occupied Tuesday. Dispatches received from headquarters Tuesday announced Augusta's fall.)

Would Seal Off Island

Conquest of the eastern side of Sicily would seal off the big island and set the stage for another Axis Cap Bon disaster. Evidently that was the plan of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's troops, whose invasion thus far has been carried out on time in virtually every detail.

Porto Empedocle, on the coast three miles below Agrigento, also was among the targets pounded by American warships.

Battling Near Niscemi

Patton's tank men also were reported battling the elite German Hermann Goering Division near Niscemi, twenty-five miles east and slightly north of the Licata bridgehead.

[The headquarters communique said the troops marched in, early Wednesday, but a later dispatch from Allied headquarters said Augusta officially was occupied Tuesday. Dispatches received from headquarters Tuesday announced Augusta's fall.]

United States Flying Fortresses also savagely attacked Catania's airport in advance of the Eighth Army spearhead. Many parked enemy aircraft were struck, hangars were fired and the runway blasted. Aerial photos disclosed that ninety-eight per cent. of the bombs struck their targets.

Half of the six Messerschmitt fighters which rose to intercept were shot down by Fortress gunners whose group in the last six missions has shot down 45 of 142 enemy planes encountered.

British Eighth Army Races for Catania—Warships Pave the Way.

PATTON DRIVES ON AGRIGENTO

Navies and Air Forces Flatten Enemy Strongholds in Path of Allied Advances.

JUL 15 1943

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, July 14 (A. P.).—The American Seventh Army has captured Comiso and Ponte Olivo, two of the enemy's ten main Sicilian air bases, Allied headquarters announced today, and made a fifteen-mile advance upon Agrigento where large Axis forces have been massing for counter-attacks.

Meanwhile Britain's veteran Eighth Army plunged northward beyond fallen Augusta toward Catania against weak resistance in a sizzling drive to seal off Sicily's east coast and set the stage for another Cape Bon.

The British were already within fifteen miles of Catania.

The position of Catania, astride the road to Messina and fifty-five miles from the strategic water neck which separates Sicily from Italy, was much like that of Hamman Lif at the entrance to Cape Bon in Tunisia where the British Army broke through last May and completed Col.-Gen. Jurgen von Arnim's catastrophe.

Naro, only twelve miles from Agrigento, was captured in the surge of the Americans, the headquarters communique said, and the path of Gen. Patton's men too was being blazed by American warships which pounded Ponte Olivio before it was captured and Porto Empedocle, only about three miles from Agrigento.

Mosquito Boats in Straits.

While fleets of bombers and fighters swept the island from end to end and combed surrounding waters to lay down a fiery blockade, a motor torpedo boat flotilla made a rapier thrust at the jugular vein of Sicilian supply and penetrated Messina Strait, the two-mile neck of water between the island and mainland. There three enemy motor torpedo boats were engaged Monday night, and two of them set afire and driven ashore.

The pattern of the American advance on the western wing of the Allied front was punched out by the big guns of American warships which pounded enemy troop formations and tank columns behind Gela and in the Ponte Olivio and Porto Empedocle areas.

The Americans now hold a line running nine miles inland to Maro, fifteen miles northwest of their westernmost beachhead at Licata. Ponte Olivio is nine miles inland from Gela, another of their beachheads, and Comiso is about six miles west of Ragusa, whose capture, reported yesterday, was confirmed by today's communique.

Weak Resistance to British.

Rapidly getting a solid grip on Sicily's eastern coast, the British Eighth Army moved upon Catania against weak enemy resistance.

The semi-circular Allied line stretching across southeastern Sicily was now secure at all points and a direct thrust by the British into the Catania Plain appeared possible without risk to their rear by an Axis counter-attack.

The fall of Augusta had some aspects resembling comic opera, dispatches disclosed today. After an Allied naval force had bombarded the shore batteries a British and a Greek destroyer steamed into the strong naval base at 4 P. M. on Monday. The town was about to receive the Allied sailors as conquering heroes when a sudden outbreak of resistance from an enemy garrison occurred and the warships retired to await the arrival of British troops, who marched into the port early today. During the interval, however, the warships kept Augusta under Allied domination.

The port and instaliations of the harbor, nineteen miles north of Syracuse and thirty-five miles south of Catania, were undamaged.

Catania Airport, next objective, was heavily bombarded from the sea early yesterday morning, and formations of Flying Fortresses paid another devastating visit yesterday, leaving the targets in flames.

U. S. Battles Crack Nazis.

Along the curving line linking the American and British fronts, the Americans were still in contact with the crack Hermann Goering Division, but Gen. Patton's armor was continuing to push deep inland and was reported on the edge of Niscemi, twenty-five miles northeast of Licata and about the same distance northeast of Licata and about the same distance northwest of Ragusa. The Americans had been the first to enter Ragusa. Modica, about six miles southeast of Ragusa, already had been taken by the Canadians. At Ragusa the Americans and Canadians had been joined by the British who had captured Priolo en route from the east coast.

Allied food for the civil population already was being landed in Sicily, and headquarters said the fleet of 3,000 Allied warships and transports continued to pour men and supplies onto the beaches and into the captured ports despite efforts of the enemy to concentrate his submarine forces against the convoys. The announcement said "countermeasures have been highly successful and disheartening to the enemy."

"Some thousands" of Axis prisoners had been taken, the communique said. Among them the entire headquarters of the 206th Italian Division. Capture of the division commander, Gen. D'Avet, was announced yesterday, and today's communique said this division has "been almost entirely eliminated."

Size of Force Unknown.

The size of the German forces barring Montgomery's drive, presumably between Catania and Messina, was not estimated, but the Germans and Italians are known to have large reserve concentrations on the island which have not yet been thrown against the Allied invaders.

[The full strength of Axis forces in Sicily has been variously estimated at from 144,000 to 250,000 men. The Algiers radio in a broadcast recorded by Reuters said last night that British and Canadian forces had met strong German elements—after the

Allied Planes Cut Path of Fire Through Sicily; Resistance Light

Two Vessels Sunk, Two Destroyers Hit; Liberators Bomb Italian Mainland

By the Associated Press.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 14.—Allied bombers and fighters spread a flaming path of destruction across Sicily and its surrounding waters yesterday, sinking two more merchant ships and damaging two destroyers, while shooting down 42 Axis aircraft against a loss of seven, an Allied air communique announced today.

The attacks lasted from dawn until sundown and then continued when the night bombers and fighters took over.

The day's bag included 160 trucks, 45 freight cars and 6 locomotives destroyed in savagely efficient blows at the enemy's vital communications facilities.

Two Airfields Hit.

Allied bombers spread a flaming carpet of destruction on two of the enemy's remaining airfields in Sicily, at Milo and Catania, and successfully beat off enemy aircraft which attempted to interfere with the Allied invasion operations, the communique said. Milo airfield is a short distance from Trapani, Italian naval base on the west coast of Sicily.

Enna, important communications center located in the heart of the island, also was attacked by the Allied bombers, the headquarters report said.

The day-long raids followed attacks by Allied night bombers on enemy airfields and communications in Sicily and Southern Italy, the Allied communique said.

(The German radio, quoting the Italian newspaper Il Popolo di Roma, described Enna as "the strategic center of Sicily" for the movement of Axis reserves.)

Liberators Raid Italy.

Meanwhile, a United States communique issued at Cairo announced that heavy Liberators in several formations smashed at Vibo Valentia and Crotone airfields with 425,000 pounds of high explosives and incendiaries by daylight yesterday.

Great damage was done in the splintering of at least three hangars, an administration building and munitions sheds at Vibo Valentia, on the Italian mainland near Messina Strait, and huge columns of smoke rose after the attack at Crotone, on the South Italian coast, where numerous oil fires were started, the communique said.

Significantly, no fighter aircraft rose to intercept any of the Liberators formations, although Crotone is supposed to be an enemy fighter base.

(Widespread and heavy damage was wrought on Sicily by the sweeps of Allied aircraft, Ralph Howard, NBC representative, said in a broadcast from Algiers. He listed 160 enemy trucks destroyed and 160 damaged, 6 locomotives and 45 freight cars wrecked.)

Catania Is Smashed.

Smashing at the most important enemy coastal airbase ahead of the racing British 8th Army, American Flying Fortresses wrought havoc among parked enemy fighter planes at Catania, with 98 per cent of the bombs landing fair on their targets.

Major credit for the heavy toll of Axis shipping north of Sicily and land transport, however, went to the fleet new A-36 Mustang fighter-bombers of the Americans who had a sensationally successful day.

In two days Allied airmen have sunk four enemy freighters and damaged three destroyers and two troop-carrying transports in victories at sea which have seriously interfered with the enemy's effort to rush reinforcements into the invaded isle.

Three out of six Messerschmitts which rose to intercept the Fortresses at Catania were destroyed by Fortress gunners whose group in its last six missions shot down a total of 45 out of 142 planes encountered.

Defense Was "Pitiful."

"The fighter defense was pitiful," said Sergt. Floyd Pratto of Waterloo, Iowa.

In continued raids Monday night by American and RAF bombers, the Allied airmen said flares seemed to be dropping all over Sicily.

One flyer reported that "the sky was so full of our aircraft that we almost needed a policeman to relieve the traffic jam."

In vertical dives on three Italian destroyers near Palermo, brilliant American Mustang pilots scored hits on two.

"We came out of the sun and several of our bombs had fallen before they made any attempt to separate or dodge—we caught them flat-footed," said Lt. A. J. Graetz, Waumatosa, Wis.

Describes Blow on Ship.

An A-36 pilot, Lt. George R. Forbes, of Albany, N. Y., who made two direct hits on a merchant vessel, said: "She was listing badly and was beginning to smoke when we left, and a few hours later when we came back she wasn't in sight. I guess we sank her."

Another pack of Mustangs saved all their bombs except one for the Taormina railroad yards. The odd one struck an anti-aircraft battery.

"I was watching the yards and all of a sudden they just weren't there any more," declared Robert W. Kirsch of Buffalo, N. Y.

Fifteen trucks loaded with troops were destroyed by a flight of A-36s led by Capt. J. C. Gunnison of San Rafael, Calif.

15 Planes Downed.

Besides the confirmed destruction of a "large number" of grounded Axis aircraft at Catania, the Flying Fortresses were believed also to have knocked out probably 15 planes on the Milo Airdrome.

"One minute I saw 15 planes down there, and then the next minute there was a lot of mushrooming dust and smoke," said Sergt. H. W. Huggins, a waist gunner from Greenville, S. C.

The Allied air force was exacting a terrific toll of equipment being moved toward the battle zone by the enemy. Last night moving motor transports, highway intersections, railway crossings and convoys sheltered in the woods were sought out and pounded mercilessly.

[By the Associated Press]

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, July 14—Allied airmen struck another blow at Sicily's defenses yesterday by shooting down forty-two planes, sinking two merchant ships, and damaging two destroyers..

Seven Allied planes were lost in the six-to-one aerial triumph; fifty-five aircraft were missing for the four days of brilliant assistance in the Sicilian campaign.

In two days, Allied airmen have sunk four enemy freighters, and damaged three destroyers and two troopships in sea victories which have seriously disrupted the enemy's efforts to rush reinforcements to Sicily.

Continues Sweep Over Island

During yesterday, it was announced that at least 160 trucks, 45 freight cars and six locomotives were damaged or "reduced to junk" in continuous fighter-bomber sweeps throughout Sicily and in the sea on the northern side of the island.

United States Liberators from the Middle Eastern command again invaded southern Italy to smash the Crotone and Vibo Valentia airdromes with 425,000 pounds of high explosives and incendiaries. "Great damage" was caused at those points without the loss of a single Liberator, the communique said.

Evidence of weakening Axis air power again was indicated in the bulletin which said that "although Crotone is supposedly a base for enemy fighter aircraft it was significant that no fighter opposition was met by any of our formations."

Motor Convoys Pounded

Sicily was criss-crossed from dawn to dusk and on into the night by airmen of the North African command. American, British, South African and other Allied airmen pounded Axis motor convoys, fuel and communications centers, airports and barracks.

One small pack of Boston bomber crewmen had the satisfaction of seeing one brief light showing in a grove where it was believed an Axis convoy was hiding. Bombs dropped on the woods beside the road resulted in a terrific explosion.

Flying Fortresses, aiding the British Eighth Army drive on Catania, jolted the airport there with a deluge of explosives which fell amid many parked aircraft, shattered runways and left hangars afire. Three of six intercepting planes were downed by the American gunners whose group in the last six missions have shot down 45 of 142 planes encountered.

Coastal City Blasted

Taormina, another coastal city above Catania, was blasted, as well as Enna, important communications center forty-five miles west of Catania.

American Mitchells caused a big explosion at Enna and the smoke from several fires was visible for fifty miles.

At the western end of the island, Mila airdrome was attacked and fifteen enemy fighters beaten off.

In widespread hunts over the island American Lightnings destroyed one convoy of three tanks and four trucks, burned down a barracks, and generally devastated enemy railway equipment.

Beaufighters Sink Two

RAF coastal Beaufighters carrying torpedoes sank the two enemy ships north of Sicily, but major credit for the heavy toll of Axis shipping and land transport in recent days went to the swift new American Mustang fighter-bombers.

On the preceding night RAF Wellingtons raided the towns of Enna and Caltanisetta, as well as the satellite airfield at Gerbini which now is almost within the grasp of the British Eighth Army.

Termini, a port near Palermo on the northwestern coast, was hit by South African Baltimores and American bombers.

DECISIVE VICTORY OVER AXIS TANKS WON IN SICILY

Half of German Column Annihilated, Eyewitnesses Report

JUL 15 1943

By JOSEPH MORTON

AN ALLIED FORCE COMMAND POST IN NORTH AFRICA, July 14.—(AP) Both American and German soldiers wounded in action who returned here for hospitalization reported tonight that the Americans won a decisive victory in a tank battle in the valley just north of Gela on the southern coast of Sicily last Sunday.

One of the Germans shot in the leg, shoulder and eye was a machine-gunner and wireless operator in a German Mark IV tank which was destroyed by American cannon fire.

The German said his group was attacking from the north side of the valley when he saw American tanks moving in from the south. A cannon hit his tank before he hardly fired a shot, setting the vehicle on fire.

All the rest of the crew except him was unhurt and managed to escape. He got out but couldn't see so waved his shirt and cried out "somebody help me."

American soldiers picked him hours later.

An injured American soldier, member of a unit which bivouacked on the south side of the valley and witnessed the long battle after noon, told of seeing a tank in which the Germans had been riding.

Met On Parallel Lines

"The German tanks came into the north side of the valley in a single line and the American tanks came moving up from the south about ten yards from where we were bivouacked," he said. "It seemed like the first enemy tank was hit by the first shell we fired because the fellows started piling out as it caught afire. Then the shells started coming in our direction and we beat it.

"After a while we got up on the hill and saw several more German tanks out of action but no sign of any American casualties. I was busy setting up a machine gun when a piece of shrapnel caught me in the leg and knocked me out. Later when they brought the German wounded over to where I was waiting the Germans told us they lost between fifteen and twenty tanks. From where I was it looked like it couldn't have been more than thirty to start with."

Thompson Wrenched Knee In Jump

Jack Thompson, war correspondent of the Chicago Tribune, who jumped with American parachutists in the night invasion of Sicily suffered a wrenched knee in landing but refused to return to Africa with the wounded evacuees.

One parachutist who broke his leg in the jump said Thompson leaped from the plane carrying his typewriter under one arm. Despite his injury, he managed to reach a coastal town where an American landing party was in control.

A wounded infantryman who likewise witnessed the battle told of seeing one Nazi tank hit point blank by American artillery. It blew up on the spot.

"There was a big cloud of smoke and pieces of metal started falling around," he said.

'Chutists' Fired On

Two American parachutists who broke their ankles landing in southeastern Sicily on the first night of the attack reported they encountered no resistance until the following morning when they approached a small town which apparently was garrisoned.

"Only a few shots were fired at us," one of the pair said. "But there were just nine in our party and two of us were being carried so we couldn't do much but retreat. At that time we were only seven or eight miles inland and managed to establish contact with our forces on the coast by noon. Later we were taken to the beach in trucks which had been unloaded.

"It was a wonderful night for a jump. The moon was about half full and the planes apparently were undetected. Several of us landed in an orchard in pretty rough ground and got together before daylight. Then we divided to perform our respective missions," he said.

Another wounded American infantryman, who was shot in the knee after going in the second wave to Gela, reported that his company was raked with heavy machine-gun fire from behind the beach, but he didn't believe that casualties were very heavy.

ALEXANDER IS SATISFIED

Gunther Gets Impression General Views Battle's Start As Great Feat

By JOHN GUNTHER

[American Press Correspondent]

(Distributed by the Associated Press)

Fifteenth Army Group Headquarters, July 14—General Sir Harold Alexander, the serene-minded strategic genius who conceived the battle of El Alamein and who superintended the operations which chased the Germans out of Africa, received this correspondent today for a brief conversation.

The talk was off the record as far as quotation is concerned, but the general, who is No. 1 to Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, appeared highly satisfied that the Sicilian campaign was proceeding according to schedule and up to the program.

Terrain Is Difficult

In the general's view this is all the more remarkable because the terrain in Sciliy is very difficult, even more so than Tunisia. Narrow, twisting roads, precipitous mountains and steep gullies make it much more favorable to the defense than to attack.

General Alexander, one of the most quietly impressive men I have ever met, took me into his wardroom and explained the course of the campaign on giant staff maps. He had just returned from Sicily and he seemed particularly delighted at the way the United States and Canadian troops conducted themselves.

The general is a shy man and didn't want to be quoted, but it was evident that his opinion is that the first days of the Sicilian battle represent a great feat of arms and that results so far have been quite satisfactory, in fact splendid.

Evades Limelight

Alexander, who evades the limelight, who almost never sees correspondents and about whom comparatively little is known, is a gracefully built, wiry man of middle height with blue Irish eyes, uptilted chin and a neat, dark brown mustache. He is very handsome in profile and looks astoundingly like the novelist, Somerset Maugham, especially in the arched nose. Like Maugham he has a subtle sense of humor.

Ever since I arrived in this theater I have asked people about Alexander and have been deeply struck by how the faces of his friends and his officers light up at the mention of his name.

Evereywhere this unspectacular, unruffled man is known simply as "General Alex." He is beyond doubt the most respected—one might almost say beloved—man in the British army.

NAZI PRISONERS STILL BOASTFUL

JUL 15 1943

By JOHN GUNTHER,

Representing the Combined American Press. Distributed by the Associated Press.

An Allied Force Command Post, July 13 (Delayed).—This correspondent saw the first batch of seventy-three German and Italian prisoners captured in Sicily today. The experience was enlightening. The difference between the small cluster of alert, smartly uniformed, smooothly shaven Germans—two Air Force officers among them—and the mass of poorly dressed, dispirited Italians was the difference between the boulevards of Berlin and the most primitive villages in Sicily.

One deeply tanned blond German, perfectly good-humored and still full of confidence, carrying himself more like a superior tourist than a prisoner of war, told a guard: "Not by any means do we consider the war situation hopeless."

Another said: "Yes, we were captured—it was bad luck."

Another: "We are being well treated here."

The Germans were as neat as tenpins. They wore khaki shorts, sport shoes of excellent material, and looked like the boys I used to meet years ago at Austrian summer resorts. They kept closely to themselves, separated themselves from the Italians as if to avoid an infection, spoke of the Italians with the utmost contempt.

The Italians, dressed in totally unsuitable baggy pants, ragged shirts and nondescript headgear, tumbled off a truck, some surly, some humming. They were so weary that several fell flatfaced on the dusty road. All had to be helped up a steep gangplank by British sailors, who carried their dufflebags for them.

The Germans chose an isolated place on the boat. Two made as if to strum imaginary guitars. One said: "Well, I hope we have a good time in America."

Patton Leaped Ashore to Head Troops at Gela

Dashed Through Surf, Took Command After Germans Twice Repelled Attack

By Noel Monks

"London Daily Mail" War Correspondent

ABOARD A DESTROYER OFF GENERAL MONTGOMERY'S SICILIAN HEADQUARTERS, July 13 (delayed).—Lieutenant General George S. Patton jr., commander of the American 7th Army invading Sicily, leaped into the surf from a landing barge and waded ashore to take personal command of bitter fighting against German tank units opposing the landing.

At General Patton's bridgehead at Gela I was told the story of his great personal courage and the magnificent fighting quality of his troops.

When the Americans landed at Gela they found the town in control of two German tank regiments. During the next twenty-four hours the fiercest fighting of the whole Allied invasion took place. Twice the Germans were driven from the town, and twice the Americans were forced back onto the beaches.

At this stage General Patton leaped into the surf from a landing barge and waded ashore to take personal command.

Step by step the Germans were driven back from the beaches as wave after wave of Americans landed from the troopships. . . . By sunset Sunday the bridgehead was well established and the Americans had pushed the Germans back to a few miles beyond the town.

When General Eisenhower visited Patton's headquarters yesterday (Monday) he warmly congratulated his old colleague on his splendid fighting achievement.

WITNESS TELLS

HOW AUGUSTA WAS CAPTURED

By PAUL KERN LEE

Aboard a British cruiser in Catania Bay, July 14 (AP).—Powerfullly aided by the big guns of the British fleet plus increasing aerial cover, the Allied invasion of Sicily is progressing steadily on this fifth day.

The main immediate objective is the Catania Plains, filled with landing grounds. Indicating the importance of this area to defenders and attackers alike, the Hermann Goering division of the Nazi army is reported now fighting to hold up the advance after leaving the earlier defense to Italian elements.

I saw many Goerings captured from the sea off Cape Bon, Tunisia, in the middle of May, but apparently a strong force of this outfit either flew from Tunisia or never got that far.

JUL 15 1943

The Allied push has been considerably aided by the capture of Augusta town and naval base, which is now freely usable for Allied shipping despite repeated Axis air attacks.

Stormed at Sundown.

Augusta was stormed at sundown on July 12 from the sea in one of the most spectacularly beautiful naval and land battles of the entire war.

The situation from the start to the present follows these lines:

The first Allied landings came Friday night, July 9, just before midnight, by more than 200 gliders and many parachutists, followed quickly by commandos at 2:45 A.M., July 10.

This northern and eastern spearhead of the entire assault was led by veteran Eighth Army troops.

The cruiser's shelling of Melilli, a town 10 miles inland, July 12, was quickly followed by shooting up Augusta's shore batteries, and then this ship pumped three rounds into field guns which were holding up British troops in Augusta Bay. This was the best shooting of the day, as after the three rounds the army signalled: "Cease fire-target destroyed."

The troops took up positions four miles south of Augusta and signalled: "First class shooting. Thank you."

Pour Onto Beach.

Augusta seemed so quiet during the afternoon of July 12 that a Greek destroyer went boldly inside the harbor boom just to see what would happen. It came out firing hotly and signalled it had taken one prisoner who claimed the town was deserted, but it was being shelled by guns on the hills just outside of town, which is on an island connected to the mainland by a causeway.

As the sun was dropping toward the western hills about 7:30 P. M., July 12 Greek and several other destroyers closed in to pointblank range and began the heavy shelling of Augusta. A hot battle quickly developed, previously silent guns in and around the town disclosing their presence for the first time and returning shot for shot.

Fresh British infantry brought by a transport leaped into small landing craft and stormed the beach under cover of the destroyers' guns.

The scene was one of weird beauty, probably never duplicated in warfare and certainly not surpassed. I never expect to see anything like it again. Off to the right a great cone, Mount Etna, loomed purple in the setting sun with a faint wish of pinkish white steam trailing off from the crater across 20 miles of sky. It looked like the hem of a lifted theatre curtain above a battle on a stage below.

The destroyers and assault craft were silhouetted black against the reddening sky with antlike figures—the assualt troops—racing up the rocky beach to town. Flashing guns sent black and white smoke rising from scores of points in and around the town while enemy guns threw up a series of white splashes in the sea, like rows of footlights.

Told to Quit Firing.

The constant crump and crackle of shells drifted and hung. Covering this attack, this cruiser fired in a few rounds for good measure, just a bloody red disk of sun settled below the western hills.

The Army then asked all to quit firing, as troops had gained the north part of the town. As the sounds of battle thinned, the big ships pulled away slightly. They received the following signal from shore: "Field commander congratulates and thanks you all for today's grand shooting."

"Our cruiser replied: "Your kind message very much appreciated. Hope to have more shoots tomorrow."

The ships beat off the customary German moonlight aerial assault on the night of July 12. So accustomed have we all become to this activity that I actually became so sleepy I went below and took a nap while the noisy air battle was still going on.

The Army ashore reported on the morning of July 13 that Augusta was captured.

Throughout July 10 and 11 the Germans and Italians, mostly the Germans, made persistent air attacks against the ships and beaches, with scant success. They set afire only one merchant vessel in this area, and their only other "success" was the deliberate and brutal sinking of a hospital ship. I witnessed that.

Axis air power is still sufficient, however, to cause our ships to maintain their terrific, ear-splitting barrage from all types of guns, particularly from dawn to dusk and before the moon sets.

Sicily Proves Soft Job For One Commando Unit

JUL 15 1943

'Precipitous Cliffs' Found to Be Gentle Slope; Virtually No Enemy Fire.

By RELMAN MORIN

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 14 — (AP) The Commandos vanished like wraiths in the pale light of the moon.

Within a few seconds after their little landing craft pulled away from the ships, they were out of sight. Scudding clouds raced across the sky after a storm that had blown all afternoon, so that moonlight flickered fitfully over waves that were still running high—perhaps too high for the landing craft.

Men left behind on the ships strained their eyes toward shore and waited. That was all they could do.

"Up to that point we honestly didn't know whether we had made a complete mess of our job or not," said Lieut. Commander J. B. Fernald, officer on one of the ships that brought British Commandos and Canadian landing parties to their hop-off point on the extreme southeast tip of Sicily.

Flare Signalled Success

It semed centuries before they saw a flare rise leisurely above the shore. Then they knew the invasion of Sicily had begun and had at least that small measure of success.

The story of this beginning was brought back by two British naval officers, Commander Fernald, who was born in Valley, Calif., and Capt. W. R. Sendall.

That particular convoy was hovering at an unidentified point in the Mediterranean last Friday afternoon, waiting for darkness before changing the course for Sicily, Commander Fernald said:

"In the late afternoon we began to be very uneasy. The wind began rising and it kept rising. At times, it was almost a gale. We knew it would be a hard job navigating to the rendezvous with the other ships at the right time and we wondered if the landing craft could operate in that swell.

"Then, just after dark the weather changed. The wind simply quit. It was a sheer miracle."

Seas Still Rough

The ships made contact at the designated point and the whole group turned toward Sicily. High waves, white-topped and rough, were still running. The clouds broke and a sickly moon seemed to be sailing in and out of them as the convoy moved soundlessly toward the point where the embarkation into small boats would begin.

Nobody talked. The men were not nervous but they just didn't feel like talking. They huddled together on the slippery spray-drenchedh decks watching for land and waiting for the moment when the throb of the ship's engines would cease. That would be the signal for getting into the small boats—they were still not sure their craft would live in those waves.

The moment came. They felt the speed fall off. Then they began getting into the landing craft.

They shook hands with officers and the men they left behind and these whispered "good luck" and then the Commandos were gone.

Precipitous Cliff

The raiders were composed of two groups of Royal Marines who had trained for months for a specific job. Their specific job was what had been described to them as a headland cliff estimated to be 40 feet high with sheer, rocky sides.

It was the most inaccesible point on the whole coast and that was where they were scheduled to go ashore.

What happened then was related by Captain Sendall, who went with them.

"It had all been worked out in detail during months of training at home," he said.

Four of the most agile commandos were supposed to scale the face of that cliff, drive spikes into the ground on top, attach ropes and drop them for the rest below. The whole party had been trained on a similar cliff to make the hazardous ascent in pitch blackness.

"We had aerial photos to study and all possible information had been given us, but nevertheless that cliff was an unknown quantity," Captain Sendall said.

The noses of their tiny craft turned toward shore and they immediately discovered it was no better than an even chance they would get there. Billowing seas were running and the boats began to ship water. It came up to their ankles and continued to rise.

Bailed Desperately

They manned the pumps and bailed frantically with tin helmets and the one bucket aboard. It rose to their knees and they bailed harder. "We just managed to keep the water at that level."

They felt the ships ground and they went over the sides as quietly as possible. "The surf felt warm and pleasant."

Not a shot had been fired. Once they thought they were discovered, but it was an ack-ack gun opening up on a flight of R.A.F. bombers who came over dropping flares.

"We had been told planes would light up the terrain beyond us and they certainly did. It seemed like the whole sky was on fire."

By that time those at the base of the cliff and the four came forward with ropes and spikes dangling from their waists. The clouds parted for a moment and they looked up at what was expected to be a precipitous cliff.

Ascent Simple

It wasn't precipitous at all. A man could walk up there carrying buckets of water in both hands, the rise was so gentle, and Captain Sendall said he did carry them up. It was a chalk cliff with rounded sides.

"For a moment we thought maybe we were in the wrong place. This wasn't anything like we expected. The only thing to do was to go ahead and investigate. If guns were there we knew we were in the right place."

They edged ahead and came into a sandy depression where they found barbed wire. That seemed encouraging.

"It was very convenient, too. The Italians had driven stakes wide apart, so when we cut the wire the strands just sprang apart like springs. By the grace of God there were no mines in there."

Split into Two Groups

At that point they began picking up landmarks and knew they were in the right place. The Commandos split into two groups, one turning sharply to the right, the other to the left. Their objectives were pillboxes, machine gun nests and one or two suspected strong points where they expected to meet a heavier type of fire.

JUL 15 1943

The first was a farmhouse.

They crept close through the milky halflight and the leader of the party threw a hand grenade through a window. There was a terrific explosion "and some squeals." Then silence.

It was broken immediately somewhere on the left by a chattering machine gun. Magically that stopped, too, as Tommies emerged from the darkness and an Italian machine-gunner saw them. Wisely he lifted his arms in the air.

Strongpoint Empty

They found other machine gun nests and in most cases the Italian gunners surrendered immediately. The whole operation was practically silent. They they found what appeared to be a small farmhouse with a thatched roof. It actually was a concrete strongpoint.

It was empty.

Another strongpoint with a sniper in a tower was captured after the sniper fired two or three shots. "We saw a tracer go through a window and he came down in a hurry."

Only one group of Commandos met any resistance and that was weak and hurried.

Then the Commandos contacted Canadians and the flare went up—the signal for which the tense, silent men in the ships had been waiting.

"By 6 a. m. the sun was well up and I took a bicycle ride. It was just like being in England on Sunday morning.

People Unperturbed

"The people were all very cheerful, friendly and unperturbed. They seemed anxious to talk to all of us about everything they knew. Three of our men found one old fellow hiding in a cellar. They jammed pistols to his ribs to make him come out. He laughed and didn't put up his hands.

"Instead he reached inside his vest and whipped out three cigars."

That's how the invasion began at one point.

WITH THE WESTERN TASK FORCE (Delayed) — Americans, capitalizing on invasion lessons of North Africa following a sharp shore skirmish, took over the enemy's coastal positions at Licata and occupied their day's objectives long before noon today.

The battle for Sicily, if there is to be one, still remains to be fought.

Though it seems fantastic that several hundred ships of an invasion fleet could escape detection, it is a fact that the initial enemy reaction is one of definite surprise.

The rough sea route from the Allied base to Sicily's southeast coast constituted a bad hazard outside the first line enemy positions.

Enemy Fired Wildly

The pre-dawn debarkation in a high surf could have been disastrous but the enemy, apparently overwhelmed by the magnitude of the firing power hurled against them, fired wildly, hitting only two small vessels.

The batteries which scored hits turned out to be manned by Germans sharing the island's coastal defenses equally with Italians.

Mussolini's own men, for the most part, didn't fire a single shot, surrendering in droves. More than 300 were rounded up in the first three hours, while the Germans numbered some 60 men.

By midway not a single Italian soldier had been killed. All were gleeful when taken prisoner.

Italian aviation was entirely absent from the air opposition.

The mountainous terrain at present constitutes the principal obstacle.

Civilians Applaud Troops

The civilians, deplorably poor, applauded our advance, shouting "Long live America. At last we've become Americans. Now we'll be protected and fed."

American forces widened and consolidated their beachhead, slicing forward in the mountainous terrain virtually unopposed as the enemy, exhausted from his forced marches in a desperate effort to check the advance, continued to surrender virtually without firing a shot.

In the company of the task force commanding general and his British aide I helped capture the principality of Palmandi and Moncamdaro at 10 a. m. Sunday, the second day of the invasion.

(Chinigo's dispatch was not clear at this place and it seemed the place referred to was Palma di Montechiaro, about 15 miles northwest of Licata.)

The populace was tearful, wildly cheering their "liberators" and declaring "we have been prisoners for more than 20 years. We had no means of revolting."

Sought to Aid Allies

The men offered to join our forces "to help free Italy. We hoped we might get a chance to get hold of Mussolini. We could show him."

It is now definitely established that the enemy command was completely surprised by the magnitude of the invading forces, and likewise by the choice of the landing points which had been considered impracticable because of the cliffs. These points, therefore, were lightly defended.

The enemy is striving desperately to regroup his forces, but Allied aviation, which rapidly is getting control of the air, is making such action very difficult if not impossible.

Task force armor, unloaded under trying conditions, the roughest kind of sea and repeated enemy air attacks but with neligible losses, has entered the battle arena.

Taking the field in late afternoon of the second invasion day, strong tank units cut a deep swath through enemy positions, capturing two strategically important places within 24 hours.

Double Duty

The armored maneuver was welcomed by the infantry units which had been doing double duty in overrunning increasingly stiffening resistance and a succession of mountains dominating the beachhead that was taken at Saturday dawn.

Hundreds of newly erected cement pillboxes, half of them with gun emplacements and thousands of feet of barbed wire strung along the narrow valleys, demonstrate that the enemy was in the midst of feverish defense preparations when the Allied attack hit their coastline.

Italian soldiers continued to show marked disinclination to come out in open combat, limiting their resistance to rearguard action while falling back, presumably to organize inland positions.

Sought to Drive Wedge

German forces are striving desperately to drive a wedge between the American forces, but the veteran doughboys are holding the center section and more than holding their own ground while inflicting heavy losses on the enemy.

The Italian air force appeared the first time Sunday night with single plane sneak raids against Allied beaches, but they had the scantiest success.

INVASION SPEED IS NEARLY DOUBLE ALLIED SCHEDULE

Motorized Equipment Inadequate to Match Pace of Fleeing Foe.

NOTO, Sicily, July 12.—(Delayed) The invasion of the southeastern tip of Sicily has become a pursuit of an almost non-resisting enemy.

In three days the assault force has gone twice as far and twice as fast as it planned.

The armored spearhead by midday was at Palazzolo, 30 miles from the landing beach and was expected to be miles further northwest by the end of the afternoon.

When shock forces swarmed ashore early Saturday they brought with them scarcely enough transport for the progress expected.

Speed Record Set

That transport was still inadequate as the invaders assumed the role of pursuers of the world's fleetest retirers.

Today I saw men slogging along under the blaze of the noonday sun, slightly weary. Each step kicked up a little cloud of dust which, with whirling clouds created by passing trucks, slowly and steadily gave the men a grey crust from head to toe.

They were evidently beginning to feel the heat and their muscles were just starting to tire as they plodded on but their spirit and morale was as good as ever.

Italian non-resistance reached a new peak when they abandoned 24 field guns following the start of an infantry attack on their positions.

Although well-placed along a line commanding heights, they fired a few token rounds and then some gunners fled, some gave themselves up and the guns were captured by the attacking infantry without a single casualty.

Quickly at an End

The action was over remarkably swiftly.

An impression of the capture was given by Capt. James Pennie, who said that "one minute the men were fighting forward, five minutes later they were giving cigarettes to prisoners and five minutes after that they were pacifying nearby women and children as Axis aircraft swept over too late to save the batteries."

Nevertheless, the opposition was chiefly encountered by the artillery, and the Italian infantry was still as battle-shy as at the start of the invasion.

The captain of the commanding company whom I asked how the battle was going replied: "We fired one Bren gun magazine and captured 170 Italian prisoners. We fired a few shots and out came white flags. At one point it looked as if it might be difficult so we finished the magazine. The whole lot surrendered."

Axis Air Support Gains

Axis air activity is growing but it is still relatively slight in this sector, especially during the day.

A few small Axis bombing raids have been made during the night but our anti-aircraft fire is already thick enough to fill the sky with fireworks and gunners had at least one night of success.

The Axis airforces have missed their great chance. Great concentrations of shipping no longer cluster on the beaches as at the start of the invasion when vessels simply had to be on hand for quick unloading.

Shipping targets now have dwindled tremendously.

Here is an indication of the enemy's failure to seize their chances. One tank landing ship was stuck fast on one beach and was moved only after three days' efforts.

During the whole time not one attempt was made to attack the ship.

The Allied airforce also was becoming more in evidence. Pachino airfield was found ploughed, but it quickly is being brought back to a usable condition.

It now is becoming possible to form some estimate of Axis strength in Sicily and the total armor available to him. This includes some Tigers, the majority of the remainder are Italian tanks.

Trek Back to Farms

For the past two days there has been a steady trek back to farms and villages by civilians in numerous donkey carts who had moved out of the path of invasion.

It is interesting to note that men smile and salute British fashion — children laugh, cheer and give the "V" sign. But most women are serious-faced and undemonstrative. Some raise their hand in a Fascist salute.

Truckloads of prisoners—nearly all cheerful—keep coming in, many of the men singing. There is no doubt that we caught local troops with their trousers off but it is impossible to believe that the majority ran without even putting on that garment as would seem to be indicated by a large number of Italian uniforms scattered all over the place.

Quick Change

Judging by the number of men of apparently military age and fitness working on farms there has been a certain amount of unofficial demobilization by Sicilian soldiers who quickly seized the chance to return to their vineyards, vegetable gardens and homes as civilians rather than spend the rest of the war as prisoners.

Glory Rides With U. S. Troop Carrier Planes on First Test

Invasion of Sicily Proves Mettle of Big Ships and Crews, Some of Whom Returned With Plane Parts Missing.

JUL 15 1943

An Advanced Air Base in Tunisia, July 13 (Delayed).—That poor relation in the family of the American military aviator, the troop carrier command's C-47, shouldered into the picture with Flying Fortresses, A-20s and P-38s today as Allied forces in North Africa acclaimed its part in the airborne invasion of Sicily.

Perforated by 50-caliber bullets and torn by ack-ack and tracer, the plodding transport that went to war—one year today from the date it entered the troop carrier service—fought its way home like its big brother B-17, but without any of the latter's armor.

The story unfolded on every field and in every group as the experiences of two night sorties were told by pilots and crews who until the eve of the recent assault had been no nearer than lugging loads of land mines into the battle zone.

Life had indeed been a bore for these kids until the other night. They called their job the milk run, disdaining its low altitude hazards, envying fighter and bomber pilots and occasionally relieved such feelings by buzzing over the field with a cargo of combat airmen going somewhere for a rest.

Sometimes they did a chandelle or loop with a load of howitzers and jeeps when no brass hats were near. They said they were trained to fight but trucking battle-wounded men from field to base hospitals was the nearest they had come.

But that was yesterday, before Cinderella went to the ball.

Today their planes stopped pugnaciously on the edge of runways while the crews counted scars and began patching. Today pilots excitedly compared notes on what the boys from Syracuse threw at them, or how they escaped Axis flak Sunday night. Today they packed away missing companion's effects and heard how they'd joined the ranks but left survivors eager for a chance to avenge.

According to a survey of photographs and reports from returned observers, the first night's operation was successful and the troop carrier command anticipates a brisk business in the future.

Those pilots who dropped American parachute troops around Gela, seizing an important port and air bases, proved the value of a surprise attack under cover of night. And their ponderous planes demonstrated that even a beast of burden kicks up its heels when given the incentive of high explosives.

Consider the case of the "Geronimo" piloted Sunday night over the southern coast by Captain James R. Farris, 27-year-old oil company clerk at Saratoga, Tex., an airman of 14 months' standing. A few minutes before reaching the dropping point with parachute troopers a shell

Spectacular Land-Sea Battle Marks Capture of Augusta

By PAUL KERN LEE

ABOARD A BRITISH CRUISER IN CATANIA BAY, July 14.—(AP) Powerfully aided by the big guns of the British fleet plus increasing aerial cover, the Allied invasion of Sicily is progressing steadily on this fifth day.

The main immediate objective is the Catania plains, filled with landing grounds. Indicating the importance of this area to defenders and attackers alike, the Hermann Goering division of the Nazi army is reported now fighting to hold up the advance after leaving the earlier defense to Italian elements.

I saw many Goerings captured from the sea off Cape Bon in the middle of May, but apparently a strong force of this outfit either flew from Tunisia or never got that far.

One stubborn core of resistance is around the villages of Lentini and Carlentini, both repeatedly shelled by this and other warships. New forces of parachute and glidermen landed north of those towns during the night of July 13 and clean-up of the entire area is expected shortly.

The villages are a little less than 30 miles south of Catania.

The Allied push has been considerably aided by the capture of Augusta town and naval base which is now freely usable for Allied shipping despite repeated Axis air attacks.

Augusta was stormed at sundown on July 12 from the sea in one of the most spectacularly beautiful naval and land battles of the entire war.

The first Allied landings came Friday night, July 9, just before midnight, by more than 200 gliders and many parachutists, followed quickly by Commandos at 2:45 a. m., July 10.

This northern and eastern spearhead of the entire assault was led by veteran Eighth army troops. Farther south Canadians and Americans performed similarly, the southwesternmost sector being all American in every respect—naval, air and army.

Throughout July 10 and 11 the Germans and Italians, mostly the Germans, made persistent air attacks against the ships and beaches, with scanty success. They set afire only one merchant vessel in this area and their only other "success" was the deliberate and brutal sinking of a hospital ship I witnessed that.

With the announced Allied capture of at least four Sicilian airfields plus German air losses, the Allied progress considerably improved July 12 and 13. Axis air interference was noticeably less bothersome in the two days past.

Axis air power is still sufficient, however, to cause our ships to maintain their terrific, ear-splitting barrage from all types of guns, particularly from dawn to dusk and before the moon sets. These are favored attack times.

With spotters ashore working, the British fleet is patrolling in great strength along the eastern coast and lobbing shells repeatedly and effectively into enemy strong points and batteries ashore. The boom of naval guns is deafening and constant.

On the early evening of July 11 this ship shot up a shore battery on the peninsula of north Augusta, drawing no reply, but starting a black, smoky fire.

Half-Hour Shelling

After beating off the expected and usual German fighter and dive-bomber assault during the dawn of July 12 this cruiser and sister ships bombarded the town of Melilli, 10 miles inland, for half an hour. Other participants included several cruisers and a monitor.

At the army's request, the cruisers bombarded Melilli again July 13 and the monitor continued its devastating heavy shelling most of yesterday morning. This hillside town is at a point where the coastal strip narrows somewhat and apparently was chosen by the enemy as a good spot to try to hold up the advance. However, the town was captured in the afternoon of July 13. A shore observer signalled us this morning:

"Melilli damage worse than London blitz."

Accurate Firing

The cruisers' first shelling of Melilli was quickly followed July 12 by shooting up Augusta's shore batteries and then this ship pumped three rounds into field guns which were holding up British troops in Augusta bay. This was the best shooting of the day, as after the three rounds the army signalled "cease fire—target destroyed."

The troops took up positions four miles south of Augusta and signalled "First class shooting. Thank you."

During the afternoon of July 12 our ship was asked by the army to bombard another enemy shore battery, but just as it prepared to shoot a new signal said:

"Hold fire. Target being attacked by our tanks."

A few minutes later came the signal, "tanks destroyed target."

The army soon suggested a new target and after 15 minutes of firing signalled "Cease fire. Good work."

Royal Navy Mosquito Fleet Helps Seal Messina Straits

High-Speed Torpedo Boats Also Cover Allied Shipping—Win In Clash With Germans

JUL 15 1943

By EDWARD GILLING

[British Press Correspondent]

(Distributed by the Associated Press)

An Allied Command Post, July 14—The Royal Navy and RAF are making the Axis task of sending reinforcements and supplies to Sicily from the Italian mainland one of extreme difficulty.

Torpedo bombers of the RAF are carrying out unceasing attacks on enemy shipping along the northern coast of the island while, during darkness, units of the "mosquito fleet" of the Royal Navy are operating in the narrow straits of Messina.

Since the assault on Sicily began, these light naval forces have been ranging the Messina Straits during the hours of night when, under the cover of darkness, the enemy might send ships across the narrows.

These high-speed motor torpedo boats and gunboats thus are denying the use of the straits to the enemy and at the same time covering Allied transports unloading troops and stores, farther down the coast, from any E-boat attacks which might be launched from the straits.

Early yesterday, they met a flotilla of German E-boats which were coming through the narrows and attacked them, setting fire to two and driving them ashore blazing. They also damaged another E-boat in a later encounter.

Officers of our mosquito craft, who have been taking part in these operations, said the enemy has a large number of searchlights on either side of the straits which they sometimes attack from close range.

American Cigarettes in Sicily Good Currency, Troops Find

By the Associated Press.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 14.—The American fighting man already is making himself right at home in Sicily—particularly along the rich vegetable belt.

And for a single cigarette, he can buy a big juicy watermelon plus a half dozen equally luscious cantaloupes.

On the first day of the occupation the Americans bought themselves a cow. They had hamburgers that night.

American troops have improvised huts of wheat shocks and are supplementing standing Army field rations with vegetables and fruits plentiful in the countryside.

"Every one has a personal pile of cantaloupes, watermelons and tomatoes and is able to obtain more than he can eat by bartering cigarettes," one observer reported. "The people of Licata had been rationed one meal a day by the Germans.

"Our boys are bronzed and bearded and look very tough, but you ought to see our nurses. They're a knockout in light blue uniforms. The first question they ask newcomers is, 'How is the war going.'"

Lt. Ed Raper of Knoxville, Tenn., said one Army camp was established on the property of one of many Sicilians who had immigrated to the United States and then returned.

"In Licata the crowds gather curiously around the Americans and seem extremely glad to see them." He added: "In fact, they give the impression they'd hoped we would come sooner than we did."

SICILIANS ERASING 'EVVIVA MUSSOLINI'

An Allied Force Command Post, July 14.—Sicilians in some villages have blotted or scrawled out "Evviva Duce" and "Evviva Mussolini" signs on walls and buildings and substituted "Evviva George VI," British officers returning from Sicily told me today.

Other parts of the island's population seem entirely inert and apathetic to the invasion and uninterested in the Allied troops establishing themselves. Peasants and village folk sit on the pavements as troops come in to drink and smoke and hardly look up as they ride

Axis Prepares Public for Early Fall of Catania

Gloomy Broadcasters Say British Tank Forces Are Approaching Coastal City

Reports broadcast by the enemy are published with the warning that they frequently contain misleading statements intended for propaganda purposes.

LONDON, July 14 (AP).—Bitter fighting in Sicily was reported by the Axis today and Rome admitted that the Allies are "now thrusting toward the southeastern mountainous region" and "facing the Catania plain."

Offering "the stubbornest resistance," German and Italian troops "dispute the Anglo-Americans every inch of ground and inflict heavy losses on them," said the German military commentator, Captain Ludwig Sertorius, in a Berlin broadcast.

The German communique broadcast by Berlin said: "German and Italian troops are still engaged in heavy fighting against landed enemy troops, which are trying to attack . . . our positions in the mountains and south of Catania."

The Italian high command acknowledged that Allied forces had passed across the southern coastal strip of the island into the mountains and said the British 8th Army was approaching Catania.

The Italian communique admitted that American, British and Canadian troops have been continuously einforced since their landings and are now in possession of the coast from Augusta on the east to Licata on the west.

Sertorius declared that "the impact of the Allied offensive obviously is in the sector north and northwest of Augusta, where British tank forces, supported by the battle fleet operating off shore, are pressing hard toward Catania."

Big tank battles soon in the Catania area were predicted by Berlin.

Another German broadcast said a regiment of British parachute troops which dropped on the Catania plain yesterday had been killed or captured. It asserted that the parachutists "dropped right into the middle of a German concentration."

Italian torpedo bombers in night attacks along the Sicilian coast sank two Allied ships and a torpedo boat and damaged six cruisers, the Italians asserted. An Axis submarine sank another Allied ship of 11,000 tons, and a British destroyer of the Jervis type was sunk, Rome declared.

Italian Airdromes Bombed

CAIRO, July 14 (AP).—Liberator bombers from the Middle East command dropped nearly 425,000 pounds of high explosives and incendiaries on Crotone and Vibo Valentia airdromes in Italy yesterday, causing huge fires and "great damage," an American communique announced today.

Hits were scored on three hangars in the daylight smash at Vibo Valentia, the communique said, and other direct hits were observed on the administration building and munitions sheds, which exploded. The airfield is situated near Reggio Calabria on the Italian toe.

At Crotone, which is on the southern coast near the Gulf of Taranto, numerous oil fires were started and huge columns of black smoke were seen to rise from the airdrome.

ALGIERS FESTIVE ON BASTILLE DAY

American Band Leads Huge

Military Parade; France Restrained.

ALGIERS, July 14. — (AP) France's tricolor waved in triumph over this wartime French capital as it celebrated Bastille day for the first time since the armistice of 1940.

Algiers is also the headquarters of the French Committee of National Liberation and this lent added significance to the occasion.

While the city blazed with the French national colors most of the important buildings were also decorated with the Stars and Stripes and the Union Jack. An 86-piece American band led a huge military parade through the main streets, and American and British color guards marched with their French comrades-in-arms.

American nurses presented eight Red Cross ambulances to the Corps Franc D'Afrique in the name of the American Red Cross.

(In France itself Bastille day was observed for the first time since 1939—but it was under the vigilant eyes of Axis troops of occupation and special brigades of Vichy police.

(Numerous arrests were made, especially in the Haute-Savoie, as a precaution against possible demonstrations. Many managed to escape the Vichy police and fled to the mountains. While Vichy declared Bastille day a holiday, all public and private festivities were forbidden and no official ceremonies were allowed.)

Gen. Charles de Gaulle, leader of the Fighting French, made the principal address at the forum in the center of Algiers. He declared that France would never return to its pre-war status but "has already taken a new road" to freedom.

De Gaulle Hails New Rising of French People.

Algiers, July 14 (A. P.).—For the first time since the armistice of 1940, Algiers celebrated Bastile Day as France's most important national anniversary. The fact that the city is the capital of the restored French war effort lent special significance to the ceremonies.

The city blazed with the tricolor and most of the important buildings were decorated with American and British flags as well. A huge military parade through the main streets this morning was led by an eighty-six-piece American Army band. American and British color guards marched in the procession. American nurses drove eight Red Cross ambulances to the Parc de Galland, where Robert Murphy, American Minister to French North Africa, presented them to Gen. Pierre Magnan, commander of the Corps Franc d'Afrique, in the name of the American Red Cross.

Mr. Murphy and Harold McMillan, British resident minister for Allied headquarters in North Africa, were present when Gen. Charles de Gaulle spoke at the forum in the center of the city.

Hails French Rising.

London, July 14 (A. P.).—Keynoting Bastille Day observances on three continents, Gen. Charles de Gaulle, co-chairman of the French Committee of National Liberation, said today in an Algiers broadcast recorded by the Associated Press that "after three years of trials the French rise again.

"Never before has the national rising which will greet the Allies been so prepared as it is today," he added.

The name of Pierre Laval, Vichy French chief of government, was booed at the Algiers meeting, along with that of Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini.

In London, French troops paraded and exercises were held at the Foch monument.

The Belgian Prime Minister, Hubert Pierlot, in a message to the French broadcast from New York, said: "The cause of liberation will soon have driven the invaders off the soil of your country."

For Orderly Settlement.

In his speech, Gen. de Gaulle said that France must settle its post-war problems in an orderly manner.

"After the liberation," he said, "France will wish to settle her problems in order. She does not want to emerge from the war only to plunge into revolution.

"Today the French people have assembled enthusiastically under their flag demonstrating their unity in Algiers in striking fashion. . .

"Tomorrow the same unity will be apparent in all towns and villages of liberated France."

American and British troops joined French soldiers in a parade in Algiers this morning, the Algiers radio said in a broadcast reported by the United States Foreign Broadcast Intelligence Service.

Greeting Broadcast.

French radio stations in North and West Africa broadcast Bastille Day greetings to the French people today, urged them to observe the occasion without disorder and declared that the hour of liberation is drawing near.

In a broadcast from Algiers Gen. Alphonse Juin, acting commander of the French troops in North Africa, paid tribute to those who fell in the Tunisian campaign and said the next task of his armies would be to free the homeland, the Office of War Information reported, according to the Associated Press.

Gen. Rene Bouscat, commander of the French Air Forces in Africa, told the people that planes with tricolor markings would shortly be seen over France, the OWI reported.

Both the Algiers and the Brazzaville radios repeated instructions to the people of occupied France to march into the streets individually at 7:45 P. M. today "without cries or provocation of any kind," to demonstrate their silent contempt of the Nazis.

Today's celebration will be "on the eve of imminent victory over the enemy," the Brazzaville broadcast said. The Algiers broadcast promised that today would be "the last July 14 to be spent under oppression."

EXPLAIN ABSENCE OF ITALIAN FLEET

London, July 14 (A. P.).—The mystery of why the Italian fleet does not come out to fight is not hard to solve, British naval observers said today, adding that they do not look for any challenge on the part of Mussolini's warships to the landing of additional Allied troops and supplies in Sicily.

Once described by the Rome radio as "the floating shield of Italy," the fleet made no attempt to evacuate trapped Axis armies from North Africa, and remained in its harbor hiding places even when the Allied invasion of Sicily began. Despite pressure from the Italian people —whose morale has been severely shaken by its refusal to fight —the fleet will stay in hiding, competent experts believe, for it would amount to suicide, they say, for the Italians to risk battle now with the immense sea forces the Allies have mustered in the Mediterranean.

Before the war the Italian fleet maintained a rough parity with that of France, but it is known to have suffered heavy losses in the past three years. Naval observers estimate its present effective fighting strength at three battleships, seven light cruisers and hardly enough torpedo boats to form an adequate anti-submarine screen. They say it is doubtful that the Italians could put to sea more than twenty-five destroyers. Some old battleships of the Cavour class have recently been reported reconstructed; they are regarded as of little real consequence.

Reliable reports reaching here say the Italian fleet is now under two commands—half in Spezia on the west coast at the top of the boot on the Ligurian Sea, and the other half at Taranto on the inner side of the heel on the Gulf of Taranto.

It is practically impossible for them to be joined into a unit powerful enough to threaten Allied supply lines, observers say, since they could be united only by passage through the Straits of Messina—the two-mile channel between Sicily and the mainland—or by steaming through the Sicilian narrows between the island and the North African coast and the Allied air umbrella over both areas alone would be sufficient to block passage.

Italian Troops Surrender With Luggage All Packed

By The Associated Press.

AN ALLIED FORCE COMMAND POST, in North Africa, July 14—Thus far there are no signs of any enemy withdrawal from Sicily. But informed sources said that the Germans appeared very disconsolate because they were surrounded everywhere by Italian soldiers who showed little inclination to fight.

Irving Smith, a newsreel camera man who covered the American landings and returned to North Africa on a ship that brought some Axis wounded, said that a number of Italians had surrendered with their traveling bags packed.

"I can't speak Italian," he said, "and can't swear to this part—but the boys said the prisoners' first question was: 'Where are we going and when?'"

51 NAZI AIRCRAFT DOWNED AS ALLIES HIT FRENCH BASES

JUL 15 1943

Le Bourget Airfield Near Paris Dealt Smashing Blow in Day Raid.

THREE OTHER TARGETS

12 Allied Planes Lost; Heavy Weight of Bombs Dropped.

LONDON, July 14.—(AP) Flying Fortresses and swarms of lesser American and British planes darkened the French skies today with bombing attacks on an aircraft factory and park at the great Le Bourget airport in the Paris suburbs and four other German installations.

They shot down 51 German planes, 45 of which fell to the deadly Fortress guns over Le Bourget and Villacoublay, where aircraft repair and assembly plants were pounded.

A joint communique by the U. S. Eighth Air Force and the British Air ministry set Allied losses at eight bombers and four fighters but did not further specify the casualties.

Other Airfields Blasted

Other targets in the widespread daylight attacks which followed a heavy R. A. F. raid on the strategic railway center of Aachen in southwest Germany last night, were airfields at Amiens-Glisy, Abbeville and Tricqueville.

(The Berlin radio suddenly ceased broadcasting near midnight, indicating perhaps another R. A. F. assault on the continent).

Boston and Typhoon bombers hit Abbeville and Tricqueville, and the Fortresses attacked the other three places.

"Bombing results were good at all three targets," the communique said of the Fortress raids on Le Bourget, Villacoublay and Amiens-Gliey. "Fighter opposition was encountered, particularly by formations attacking Le Bourget and Villacoublay. Early but incomplete reports claim that more than 45 enemy fighters were destroyed by the Forts."

American Thunderbolt fighters, heaviest in the world, escorted one Fortress formation and destroyed three Focke-Wulfs. R. A. F., Dominion and Allied fighters accompanying other bombers destroyed another three.

It was the first operation by the Eighth Air Force's big bombers in four days, and their third during July.

Ironic Bastille Day

For a vibrating hour, the Allied planes streamed across the southeast coast rousing Englishmen from the breakfast tables to watch the procession. They rose from bases scattered up and down Britain to shower explosive steel on the German occupants of France, providing the French with an ironic Bastille day.

The recent preoccupation of the British and American air forces with communications and defense installations suggested that the Allied aerial offensive had shifted from war industries to a "softening up" of German military installations.

R. A. F. Mosquito bombers, Beaufighters and Typhoons were striking last night at Axis airfields in the Lowlands while the bigger R. A. F. bombers were smashing Aachen and its railways. The night before, the R. A. F. had pulverized Turin, the great rail bottleneck in northern Italy through which the Germans might move troops to meet Allied invasion of Italy.

20 R. A. F. Bombers Lost

The British lost 20 bombers last night in their "heavy attack on the important railway center of Aachen," 39 miles southwest of Cologne. A reconnaissance pilot today said smoke from fires had risen to a height of four miles over the town.

The Germans called the raid a "heavy terror attack."

Cathedral Damaged

"Great destruction was caused in the residential quarters and an old part of the town," the German communique said, "many public buildings and cultural monuments were destroyed. Aachen Cathedral was hit. The population suffered heavy losses."

The city of 164,000 has a spider-web of rail lines and four terminals, 40 textile plants, big tire and tube factories, glass works and chemical plants. It is the center of a coal mining district. Last night's was the 17th raid, but the first since February, 1942.

Nazi raiders dive-bombed a northeast coastal town of England, killing at least a dozen persons, the Air ministry announced. A Heinkel-III was destroyed during the day over the North sea.

Cathedral Damaged

The German radio said the Aachen cathedral suffered great damage from fire, especially around the Charlemagne castle chapel. The body of the great French emperor lies in the cathedral.

Berlin said the Aachen town hall, in which 35 German emperors had been crowned, was heavily damaged. Fires caused the roof to collapse. The town hall was called "an architectural gem of the Middle Ages." The municipal theater was said to have been gutted by fire. The Couvensche-Westpien house, called "an ancient medieval building of great renown to architects," was demolished, the Nazis said.

Most Powerful Blow

The day's operations by both the R. A. F. and the Americans added up to probably the most powerful offensive yet delivered on the German air force in western Europe.

About 4,000 persons were believed employed in Villacoublay, the Paris military air base where German planes were repaired and assembled. Le Bourget is one of the main storage plants for German fighters allocated to the western front and is also used as a repair and operating base. Amiens is an important base for Nazi fighters.

Describing all three attacks as "successful," Brig. Gen. Frederick L. Anderson of the 8th Air Fo bomber command said "Amer bomber crews have contributed other important step in a caref planned program to assure Al domination of the air over Euro

The Air Ministry news service said Spitfires escorted the main body of Flying Fortresses sixty miles on the way to Paris and met them when the mission was finished, escorting them back across the Channel.

Typhoon bombers, escorted by Typhoon fighters, dived 5,000 feet to drop bombs in dispersal areas at Tricqueville airfield and failed to meet a single German fighter, the report said.

The Flying Fortresses met stiff German fighter opposition at both Villacoublay and Le Bourget but only moderate attacks at Amiens.

R. A. F. UNITS JOIN ATTACK

Onslaught Follows British Night Blow at German Rhineland City of Aachen.

JUL 15 1943

London, July 14 (A. P.).—Strong formations of Flying Fortresses of the Eighth United States Air Force and light and fighter-bombers of the Royal Air Force attacked German installations at three points in France today and the Fortresses destroyed more than forty-five enemy fighters, it was announced tonight.

In addition, American Thunderbolt fighters shot down three German planes and other fighters accounted for three more.

Striking at German aircraft installations in France after R. A. F. night raiders had made a heavy attack on the German railway city of Aachen, the Flying Fortresses bombed aircraft repair and assembly plants at Villacoublay, an aircraft factory and park at Le Bourget and an airfield at Amiens-Glisy. "Bombing results were good at all three targets," the communique said.

Le Bourget is the civil airport of Paris about six miles north of the center of the city, while Villacoublay is the military airdrome, about seven miles southwest of the city.

Twelve Planes Missing.

Boston and Typhoon bombers meanwhile attacked an airfield at Abbeville and Tricqueville.

Thunderbolts escorting one Fortress formation over its target destroyed three Focke-Wulf 190s and Allied fighter squadrons destroyed three more of the same type.

Eight bombers and four fighters are missing from all daylight operations, it was announced.

Twenty British planes were reported lost in the night raid on Aachen, which was accompanied by simultaneous assaults on airfields deep in France by swift Mosquito bombers, Beaufighters and Typhoons. German ground defenses and communications also were the targets of harassing aerial attacks.

One German plane was reported shot down over its base in Holland, and two more were shot down during the night over Britain.

In a communique broadcast by the Berlin radio, the German High Command said: "British bomber formations last night made a heavy terror attack against Aachen. Great destruction was caused in the residential quarters of the city and in the old part of the town. Many public buildings and cultural monuments were destroyed. Aachen Cathedral was hit. The population suffered heavy casualties. Twenty-one enemy bombers were shot down over the city."

What Aachen Is Like Tonight.

Tonight a German war reporter gave radio listeners this description of the shattered city:

"The streets are black with smoke. It is impossible to breathe. People put wet handkerchiefs before their mouths to protect themselves. Everywhere there are beams and broken wires from trams; rubble and heaps of broken glass.

"A church is burning. The steeple may fall at any moment. Fire engines are busy everywhere."

The city, which has a normal peace-time population of 164,000, is situated about thirty-nine miles southwest of Cologne. In addition to being a vital railway junction, it is the site of important war industries and coal-mining developments.

There are approximately forty textile plants in the city and vicinity, as well as large tire and tube factories, glassworks and chemical plants. Four railway terminals also are situated in Aachen.

Enemy Raids Over England.

German raiders struck back sharply early today, attacking in waves and dive-bombing a city on the northeast coast of England. At least twelve persons were reported killed and many injured in the city, which was identified by the German radio as Hull. Several houses were demolished, trapping occupants under debris, the Air Ministry announced.

Some slight enemy air activity also was reported over parts of East Anglia and southeast England, but no bombs were dropped.

Axis Air Force Strikes Back With Attack on English Coastal Town

JUL 15 1943

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 14.—Hundreds of American warplanes, including Flying Fortresses, hammered at targets in Western Europe by daylight today after the RAF had made a heavy night attack on the German Rhineland city of Aachen, center of railway lines linking the Reich with France and the Lowlands.

It was stated authoritatively later that heavy bombers of the USAAF attacked three German aircraft installations in France, but no details were given out immediately.

Big Textile Producer.

There are approximately 40 textile plants in the city and vicinity, as well as large tire and tube factories, glassworks and chemical plants. Four railway terminals also are situated in Aachen.

Aachen has been comparatively free from aerial attack until now, having been hit only 16 times before while other German cities in the Rhineland and Ruhr have undergone more than 100 raids.

German air raiders struck back last night at coastal districts in Northeastern Britain, concentrating on one town where they caused some fatalities and damage.

Slight enemy activity also was reported over parts of East Anglia and Southeast England, but no bombs were dropped.

Antiaircraft guns in the London area opened up during the night when an unidentified plane was spotted high over the capital, but no alert was sounded and no bombs fell in the city.

The raid on Aachen was the RAF's first night raid on Germany since last Friday night, when Gelsenkirchen was the target. Monday night home-based British bombers made a round-trip flight of 2,000 miles to attack Turin, important arms center in Northern Italy.

German Army Using Youths of School Age, Americans Find

By the Associated Press.

A NORTH AFRICAN PORT, July 14.—American soldiers marched 100 Italians and 30 Germans from a prisoner ship just back from Sicily to a prison camp 3 miles away.

With a mile yet to go, several prisoners were in such bad condition they had to be loaded into trucks, where they sat with their flushed faces in their hands.

The Germans were startlingly young, so young that an American officer of youthful appearance remarked, "They look like a bunch of high school kids. Who in the world had enough nerve to send them to war?"

These young Nazis were mostly slender, blond, red-faced. Observers agreed they must have been easy pickings for the tough American outfit that captured them.

The German youngsters quickly faded under the same merciless sun under which the Americans have been working and training for weeks in heavy woolen clothing and full field packs. The German youths wore shorts and light cotton shirts open at the neck. Still they faded and faltered, although the pace set for them was absurdly slow, scarcely more than a leisurely stride.

The Italian prisoners, unkempt as usual, sauntered along carelessly. Some had cracks in their boots, most lacked socks and those who did possess them had obviously gotten them from civilian stores since they were of all colors and materials.

JUL 15 1943

Charges That American Merchant Fleet Controls Seas Is Decried.

LONDON, July 14—(AP) Replying to an assertion by Laborite Emanuel Shinwell in Commons that the United States was wresting control of the seas from Great Britain, Sir Arthur Salter, Parliamentary secretary of the Ministry of Transport, declared today that twice during the present war the United States had "saved Britain from imminent famine."

"Twice the situation was so serious as to threaten the whole issue of the war," he said during a debate on shipping and related post-war plans. "On both occasions the balance was restored by efforts of the United States."

Sir Arthur asserted that in the spring of 1941 Britain was losing "several times as much shipping as she was building," and that stocks were dangerously low and falling rapidly.

Famine Threatened

"It was quite clear we were not only in grave danger but in fairly imminent danger of famine, or of having to close our factories for want of raw material, or of being unable to adequately supply our armies in the Middle East and elsewhere," he said.

He said the second time occurred when Japan entered the war.

"Our losses increased immensely and extended to American ships so that in the spring of last year not only were we losing several times as much as we were building, but the United Nations as a whole were losing more than was being built."

He declared that what the United States had done through expansion of its shipbuilding program had proved of "crucial importance for the conduct of the war and our fortunes in the war."

'We now have reasonable hope," said the government shipping expert, "that month by month we should have more ships at the end of the month than at the beginning."

Mr. Shinwell, who set off the debate, had predicted that America would have a much greater merchant fleet than Britain after the war and that American "big business" would take advantage of such a situation.

Fears U. S. Sea Supremacy

Laborite, in Commons, Also Raises Question of Big Business Rule at Washington.

London, July 14 (A. P.).—Laborite Emanuel Shinwell asserted in the House of Commons today that Great Britain is faced with losing the supremacy of the seas to the United States after the war and that American "big business" would likely make an effort to control United States policy.

Citing the United States' vast shipbuilding program in opening a debate on post-war shipping, Mr. Shinwell said, "we began the war with roughly 20,000,000 tons of shipping. We could not expect to have more than 9,000,000 tons at the close of hostilities.

"On the other hand, the United States which has never been regarded as a great marine nation, entered the war with roughly 7,000,000 tons of shipping, much of which was not of high quality, and will have at the end of the war between 15 and 30 million tons of first class shipping."

The America He Means.

Declaring that "we can hold our own on the high seas if we get a fair chance, although unable to compete financially with America," Mr. Shinwell said: "We are not speaking of the America of President Roosevelt or of Vice-President Henry Wallace. If we had to contend with an America of that sort our problem would be comparatively easy to solve. We are dealing with the America of big business, the America of Wall Street, the America of those who believe they can use the huge reserves of the United States to adopt an investment policy all over the world and to enable their shipping facilities to respond to that policy."

Replying for the Government, Noel Baker, parliamentary secretary for the Ministry of War Transport, said that "shipping must be an international affair." The Government, he added, is ready to collaborate with like-minded governments "to establish conditions in which the shipping of the world can be efficiently and economically carried on."

London Poles Form Cabinet, Crisis Is Ended

Follow Sikorski Principles, With Romer, Ex-Envoy toRussia,ForeignMinister

LONDON, July 14 (AP).—Polish Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk ended a brief controversy in the Polish government-in-exile, which followed the death ten days ago of General Wladyslaw Sikorski in a plane crash, by announcing today the formation of a national unity government dedicated to the principles of Sikorski.

In the new Cabinet General Marian Kukiel, a devoted follower of Sikorski, becomes Minister of National Defense.

Tadeusz Romer, former Polish

Mr. Petherick referred particularly to the last two clauses of the charter which he said "do in fact bind the Allied powers in a way which may be highly perilous when a peace treaty falls to be discussed."

Atlantic Charter Lacks Force Of Treaty, Churchill Declares

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 14.—Prime Minister Churchill told the House of Commons today that the Atlantic Charter "was not a treaty requiring ratification or any formal indorsement of a constitutional character on either side of the Atlantic."

The Prime Minister's statement was made in reply to a question from the floor by Maurice Petherick, who asked whether the charter, unratified by the United States Congress, "has any binding force on the United States or on Great Britain in view of the dangers to peace treaties which might follow the war."

Mr. Churchill replied in the negative when Mr. Petherick asked if the Prime Minister would start negotiations for amendment of the charter in view of "the apprehension which exists in this and Allied countries that some of its clauses will gravely hamper freedom of action of the United Nations in settling the terms of peace."

"It was a statement of broad views and principles which are our common guide in our forward

American Gets Five Years for Talking About New Plane

LONDON, July 14 (AP)—A military court-martial has sentenced Private Arthur J. Ingebredsten of Minneapolis, Minn., to five years' imprisonment for disclosing details of a new type combat plane in conversation with two RAF non-commissioned officers in the presence of civilians, United States Eighth Air Force Headquarters announced today.

Despite evidence that Ingebredtsen had been drinking and that the disclosures were the result of carelessness, the reviewing authority declared that the information he disclosed might have impaired the effectiveness of the planes and resulted in serious loss of life among American troops.

"Careless disclosure of information useful to the enemy can destroy armies just as effectively as the deliberate sale of such information to an enemy spy," the judgment said.

Ingebredtsen was attaohed to a bombardment group.

Stalin Sends Greetings To Giraud and De Gaulle

Tells Them Victory Is Nearing, Lauds French Unity

LONDON, July 14 (AP). — In a message to Generals Henri Honore Giraud and Charles de Gaulle, coleaders of the French Committee on National Liberation, Josef V. Stalin said today that "the day of our common victory over Adolf Hitler and Germany is not far off." The message, sent for Bastille Day, was broadcast by the Moscow radio and recorded here by the Soviet monitor. Russia greets "the strengthening unity of the French people," the message said. The text of Stalin's message:

"To the French National Committee of Liberation and Generals Giraud and de Gaulle:

"On the day of the national holiday of France I send you and through you to the French people from the government and people of the Soviet Union and myself personally sincerest congratulations.

"The Soviet Union greets the strengthening unity of the French people who are courageously fighting against the German Fascist invaders. The Soviet people firmly believe that the day of our common victory over Hitlerite Germany is not far off and the day of liberation and resurrection of a free, democratic and independent France is near at hand."

LIBERATION IS NEAR, EDEN PROMISES FRENCH

LONDON, July 14 — (AP) Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden assured Frenchmen tonight in a Bastille day broadcast that the Allies would spare no effort to win total victory over the Axis in the shortest possible time.

"We know your fate is at stake and that it depends upon rapid action," he told the French on their Fourth of July.

Mr. Eden praised underground groups which he said had become more powerful and methodical under the lash of the intimidating Germans.

"At this moment when we are preparing for a great decision in Europe, your attitude brings us assurance that you will play your part in the final struggle—a struggle which may well be desperate, but which we all hope will be brief," he said.

King Peter of Yugoslavia sent a telegram with "Congratulations and best wishes for the salvation of France" to Generals Giraud and de Gaulle.

London, July 14 (A. P.).—Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden today that Great Britain has not yet determined the precise degree of formal recognition to be accorded to the French National Committee of Liberation, but that in practice the Government already is treating with the committee on all matters of common interest relating to French territory which recognizes the committee's authority. Questioned in the House of Commons, Mr. Eden referred to Prime Minister Churchill's statements on June 8 and July 1, in which Mr. Churchill welcomed the committee's establishment as the sole authority for all Frenchmen seeking to free their country from the Axis. The Foreign Secretary emphasized that all dealings are conducted with the committee as a whole.

London, July 14 (A. P.).—British sources had no confirmation today of a roundabout report that German Field Marshal Erwin Rommel was shot down by Allied fighter planes while en route to Sicily aboard an Axis transport plane.

The report was sent to London last night by a Reuters correspondent. Rommel was said to have been on his way to take command in Sicily. The report said he was accompanied by Gen. Siegfried Westfals, Lieut.-Col. Kiehl and three Italian staff officers.

NAZIS DRIVEN BACK BY SOVIET THRUST

Red Counter-Attack Brings Recapture of Several Populated Places.

By LYNN HEINZERLING

LONDON, Thursday, July 15. — (AP) The German attack in central Russia remained stalled for the second day in the Orel-Kursk area Wednesday and Nazi soldiers were driven from "several populated places" on another unnamed sector before a Soviet counter-attack that left the field strewn with the corpses of about 2,000 German officers and men, the Soviet midnight communique said today.

The Germans, meanwhile, pictured the Russian battle as a German defense of Russian counter-attacks near Orel where they said Soviet attackers broke through east and north of the city. They were pushed back to their original positions later, the Germans said.

One Nazi broadcast from the front said "torrents of rain are causing floods and the deep mud held up tank fighting" at Belgorod Tuesday.

Russian dispatches from the front reported more men and tanks pouring into the battle as the Soviet forces swung into the attack. Moscow radio reported that the Red airforce struck a heavy blow at Orel setting off fierce fires which "engulfged the entire central section of that railway junction."

Nazis Lost 100 Tanks

In the Belgorod area the Russians said the enemy lost more than 100 tanks and 47 airplanes. Additional data on Tuesday's fighting in the Orel, Kursk and Belgorod areas brought totals of German planes brought down by anti-aircraft fire, to 158, said the communique, recorded by the Soviet monitor.

Seven of the heavy German 60-ton Tiger tanks were knocked out in a battle for "Height X," the communique said, where the Germans lost a total of 35 tanks and five self-propelled guns.

Typical of the fight without quarter in the Belgorod area was an incident recorded by the Soviet communique. A detachment of anti-tank riflemen penetrated behind the German lines and as the Germans sent tanks and infantry into an attack, the Russians opened fire unexpectedly from the rear. Twelve tanks and ten trucks were destroyed and about 200 Germans killed before the German attack broke.

In the eleven days since the German attack began, Soviet communiques have listed more than 40,000 Germans killed, about 1,392 German planes brought down and 2,919 tanks destroyed, or damaged.

The Berlin radio said the Russians had attacked with "very strong forces" from north of Orel to Sukninchi, a rail junction 170 miles southwest of Moscow and 90 miles north of Orel.

Great Violence

This account and the German communique, both recorded from Radio Berlin by the Associated Press, suggested that the Red army had achieved successes in the extended sector for the Nazi generals said "German reserves have launched a counter-attack." The battle north of Orel was declared continuing "with great violence." Russian sources said nothing of an extension of the front.

Both sides agreed that the sector south of Orel was quiet. There the Germans had been frustrated in their attempt to thrust a column south against Kursk, to combine with another force driving up from the Belgorod region to pinch off the salient of 7,500 square miles.

Moscow dispatches said the Russian counter-attacks in the Belgorod region were local. The very fact that the Red army had shifted to the offensive, however, was an augury that they had absorbed the greatest shock of the 30 German divisions hurled against them.

The latest Soviet communique said the Germans in the Belgorod bulge has "retreated with big losses. The penetrations, admitted in successive communiques at the start of the offensive July 5, have been called advances up to 38 miles by Berlin.

The Red army's ability to take the full German shock, absorb its power and then pass to the counter-attack was reflected in confident dispatches from Moscow. Martial law was partly lifted in the capital.

Healthy Sign

"No one in Moscow is inclined to minimize the danger and ferocity of the German offensive at the southern end of the Kursk salient, even though the enemy has been compelled to abandon at least temporarily their attacks in the north around Orel," William McGaffin of the Associated Press cabled from the capital. "The fact that the Russians are able to counter-attack, even though locally, after absorbing the toughest blows the Germans are capable of delivering is a healthy sign of the caliber of the new Red army."

German forces were reported newly reinforced and reorganized. Berlin said both sides were "continually throwing new masses of troops, tanks and airplanes into the twin battles of Belgorod and Orel."

Berlin military experts "emphasized that the great number of Soviet reserves thrown into the big Kursk battle again and again can hardly be taken from the big reservoir alone which they had held in readiness for a great attack in this area," the Berlin radio said, "it is believed that the Soviets have had to draw troops out of other sections of the front."

Berlin Says More Than One Breakthrough Occurred; Adds Each Was Sealed.

NAZI TANK LOSS PUT AT 2722

Reds Also Declare Foe Has Lost 1187 Planes in Nine Days of Present Offensive.

London, July 14 (A. P.).—A German military spokesman declared in an overseas broadcast from Berlin today that Russian forces attacking east and north of Orel had made breaches in the German defenses, but that the Russians were later repulsed and the breaches sealed.

The broadcast was recorded here by Reuters.

Reds Tell of Attacks.

Moscow, July 14 (A. P.).—Russian forces at the southern end of the Kursk salient launched a series of fresh local counter-attacks today to follow up their successful repulse of yesterday's German attempts to enlarge the Belgorod bulge. That the Russians are able to take the initiative after absorbing the toughest blows the Germans have been capable of delivering is taken as a healthy sign by military observers here.

Field Marshal von Kluge's armies, freshly reinforced and reorganized, meanwhile continued to batter violently against other sectors, but their efforts to crack through are still proving very costly, the Russians declared.

The Germans were reported to have suffered heavily in one action when they ran into a tank ambush which the Russians had prepared under cover of night at a point where the Nazis were expected to attack. After slapping back the enemy the Russians struck in front and on the flanks and the Germans retreated in confusion, the Russians said.

[In a communique broadcast by the Berlin radio and picked up by the Associated Press, the German High Command declared today that strong Russian counterattacks in the Belgorod sector yesterday were repulsed with "the heaviest losses," that in a single sector two Russian regiments were wiped out, and that more than 200 Russian tanks were destroyed. The communique also said that north and east of Orel reinforced Russian formations were unable to dent the German lines, and that the fighting in this sector was continuing, with German reserves launching a counter-drive of their own. The German air squadrons, it was added, have shot down 212 Russian planes within the last few days.]

Nazi Tank Losses Put at 2,722.

Elsewhere on the Belgorod-Orel-Kursk front the action lagged. German effort at the northern end of the front which flared into action July 5 had all but died out.

The Germans, attempting to improve their positions, were regrouping for new attacks, the Russians said. Russian pilots were keeping a close watch on Nazi air fields and as soon as any concentration of planes is noted the Russians swoop down and destroy them on the ground, army leaders said. Eight planes were destroyed in one such action.

The day's losses in German tanks and planes in all sectors of the central front brought the official Russian totals to 2,722 tanks and 1,187 planes for the nine-day period.

Meanwhile today front-line dispatches said that the Germans have thrown hundreds of a new type of giant caterpillar gun into the fighting. These guns, which the Russian troops have nicknamed Ferdinands, are protected in front by an armor plate 200 millimeters (seven and a half inches) thick and by side plates 80 millimeters (three inches) thick, the dispatches said.

The Russians described the type as a powerful new weapon that will stand enormous punishment, but said that they have already destroyed hundreds of them.

Thrown Back in New Red Attack

Berlin Admits Drive Has Slowed Down Due to 'Weather'

JUL 15 1943

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, July 14.—German infantry and tank divisions have been pressed back on some sectors of the Belgorod front by Russian forces turning from defense to counterattack, a Soviet communique declared today.

The Red Army launched its attack as the Germans reeled back after repeated and unsuccessful attempts to enlarge the wedge they had driven into the Russian lines at terrific cost in nine days of continuous fighting, the bulletin said.

(Even Berlin said the German drive had slowed, attributing its difficulties to "the weather.")

The Russians declared the Nazis had "retreated with big losses," but it seemed apparent from front-line dispatches that the Germans still are holding stubbornly to much of the territory which they gained in the fighting a week ago.

Ran Into Ambush.

The Germans were reported to have suffered heavily in one action when they ran into a tank ambush which the Russians had prepared under cover of night at a point where the Nazis were expected to attack. After checking the enemy the Russians struck in front and on the flanks and the Germans retreated in confusion, the Russians said.

Elsewhere on the Belgorod-Orel-Kursk front the action lagged. German effort at the northern end of the front which flared into action July 5 had all but died out.

The Russian midnight communique said activity there was confined to an artillery and mortar duel with an occasional reconnaissance in force. The Russians placed the German loss in tanks at 50 with about 400 killed. At another sector artillery fire disabled self-propelling guns, they said.

Prepare for Attack.

The Germans, attempting to improve their positions, were regrouping for new attacks, the Russians said.

Soviet pilots were keeping a close watch on Nazi flying fields, and as soon as a concentration of enemy planes is noted Russian pilots swoop down and destroy them on the ground, the Soviet Army leaders said. Eight planes were destroyed in one such action.

(Pravda, official organ of the Communist party, warned Russian workers in a broadcast recorded by United States monitors that the Germans still have a "considerable number of planes, which are being thrown into the battle and urged redoubled efforts in plane production.)

On other portions of the long front the situation was unchanged. In the Leningrad area Russian scouts killed 194 Germans and shell fire destroyed 43 blockhouses and 18 dugouts, the communique said.

Near Gomel guerrillas were said to have mined railroad tracks, destroying a locomotive and 11 cars.

Badoglio Reported Held Prisoner In North Italy

Moscow, July 14 (AP)—A Tass dispatch datelined from "the Italian frontier" reported today that Marshal Pietro Badoglio, former chief of the general staff of the Italian army, was being held in prison in northern Italy and the fact concealed from the Italian people.

Two days ago, the dispatch said, supporters of the marshal organized his escape and succeeded in getting him outside the prison and into an automobile, but that they were captured by a highway patrol.

Nazis Use New Gun in Russia

MOSCOW, July 14 (AP).—The Germans have thrown hundreds of new-type giant caterpillar guns into fighting on the Russian front, Soviet front-line dispatches said today. The guns, which Russian troops have nicknamed "Ferdinands," are protected in front by an armor plate 200 mm. (about eight inches) thick and by side plates 80 mm. (about three inches) thick, the dispatches said. The Russians described the type as a powerful new weapon that would stand enormous punishment, but said they had destroyed hundreds of them in recent fighting.

U.S. FLIERS HURL FULL MIGHT AT JAPS ON YANGTZE

JUL 15 1943

Seven-Day Assault, Without Loss of Plane, Takes Heavy Toll.

CHUNGKING, July 14 — (AP)

The full force of American air strength in China has been hurled against Japanese river and port installations in a seven-day assault, and shipping facilities in the Honkay-Campha port area, used for fueling ships plying between Japan and the southwest Pacific, have been blasted in one of the heaviest blows of the war against enemy shipping in this theater, it was announced tonight.

A communique from Lieut. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell's headquarters, describing the non-stop aerial operations which ranged from the Yangtze river front to French Indo-China, said that B-24s, B-25s and P-40s of the U. S. 14th Air Force shared in the devastating missions, which left 15 Japanese ships destroyed or damaged in the Canton area alone.

Three Ships Sunk

Two waves of Liberator bombers staged the raid on the Hongay-Campha port area two days ago, when they sank three enemy vessels aggregating 14,000 tons. In addition they destroyed the main power plant at Hongay, 30 miles northeast of Haiphong and strafed the docks, railways, shops and coal dumps at Campha port.

Col. Eugene H. Beebe, of Moscow, Idaho, the group commander, described this operation as a "huge success."

The Hongay-Campha port raid on July 12 climaxed four days of bombing on the Indo-China area along the gulf of Tonking, during which 132,000 pounds of explosives were dropped. Two freighters were sunk on the first day out.

On July 6 P-40s and B-25s made a sweep down the Yangtze river from Hengyang to Yochow, destroying several river barges. The B-25s salvoed their bombs on the Pailochi airfield, scoring many direct hits.

The next day the B-25s went out again, and with a P-40 escort attacked shipping in the Whampoa dock area at Canton. Here 15 craft were sunk or damaged, including one large motor vessel of 6,000 to 10,000 tons. Two enemy fighters which attempted to intercept the operations were shot down by the P-40 escorts.

Installations Damaged

On July 10, B-24s took over following up three days of concentrated raids on the Haiphong area. War installations were damaged and dock installations and canal shipping bombed and strafed. Hongay, where railroad yards, shipping and the coastal road were the main objectives, also was visited.

On Sunday, July 11, shipping in Haiphong harbor was again visited by B-24s which sank an oil tanker and damaged a minelayer and one freighter. Near misses were scored on other large vessels.

P-40s made sporadic strafing raids in the Laokay area on July 11, destroying road transport and minche-gunning troop barracks and storage dumps. Many large fires were started.

No American planes were lost during the entire seven-day round of operations.

14TH U. S. AIR FORCE IS HARASSING JAPS

Chungking, July 14 (A. P.).—Flyers of the United States Fourteenth Air Force have struck at the Japanese in the last seven days in bombing and strafing missions which have ranged from the Yangtze River front to French Indo-China, a communique from Lieut.-Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell's headquarters announced today. A motor vessel of between 6,000 and 10,000 tons was among fifteen river craft destroyed or damaged near Canton, it said.

Five raids were made on the Haiphong, Hongay and the Campha port area of French Indo-China. Hits were scored on a plant which, it was estimated, supplied 80 per cent of the cement used for Japanese military installations south of Formosa (Taiwan.) Extensive damage was caused in the Hongay-Campha area, the biggest coal-producing region of Indo-China, used for fueling ships between Japan and the South seas.

No American planes were lost.

Japanese troops that struck out from Kunlung on the Yunnan-Burma border are retreating to their base and the original Chinese position has been restored, the Chinese High Command said today. The war bulletin also said that Chinese had turned back an enemy thrust based on the Burma Road town of Lungling.

U. S. RAID ON BURMA

New Delhi, July 14 (A. P.).—Heavy Liberator bombers of the Tenth United States Air Force dropped nine tons of bombs on Japanese railroad installations at Myingyan in Burma yesterday, a communique announced today.

"Hits were reported along the eastern side of the railroad yards and probable hits on warehouses and the main station," the bulletin said. "An explosion was seen near the station, from which smoke rose to a height of 3,000 feet." All of the Liberators returned safely.

Myingyan is an important transportation center on the Irrawaddy River, about fifty miles southwest of Mandalay.

MUNDA AIR BASE HIT BY BOMBERS

JUL 15 1943

Methodical Blasting to Reduce Japanese Base Underway.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Thursday, July 15 — (AP) The battle of Munda appeared to observers today to have settled down to a methodical blasting of the Japanese out of their foxholes, bunkers and strong points defending the air base on New Georgia.

The United States airforce continued to pound at both shipping and airdromes which the enemy might use in Munda's behalf but for the past 24 hours there have been no fresh reports of ground activity. This indicated that the jungle fighting against Munda was resolving itself into the same slow but ultimately effective procedure which won the campaigns against Guadalcanal in the Solomons and the Papuan peninsula, of New Guinea.

Two Jap Barges Sunk

Scouting over waters between New Georgia and Kolombangara, two flights of Mitchell medium bombers, which had an escort of Warhawk fighters, on Wednesday attacked and destroyed two large Japanese barges, which the enemy favors as a stealthy means of coastal supply.

They were located in Hunda cove bordering on Blackett strait. That strait leads into the Kula gulf where twice the Japanese tried to rush aid to Munda with swift cruisers and destroyers only to lose between 13 and 17 warships to the accurate guns of the United States Navy.

Above Kolombangara, off Vella Lavella, a Japanese cargo ship also was destroyed by Mitchells in the Beagle channel.

Northwest of the Munda ground eight, Liberator and Flying Fortress bombers formation struck at the enemy airdromes of Buka and Buin in the northern Solomons in a night raid. Pilots leaving Buin, which is on the southern tip of Bougainville, reported they still could see flames when they were 50 miles at sea. The Buin raiders attacked and the Kahaili and Ballale airdromes, aiming at the areas where planes are dispersed.

Over Salamaua, the northeastern New Guinea air base upon which our jungle fighters are moving, some Kittyhwaks broke up plans by Japanese diverbombers to raid our positions. They dived from 19,000 feet to less than 1,000 to shoot down three of the divebombers. One Kittyhawk was shot down but the pilot was saved.

On the approaches to Salamaua, New Guinea, Allied attack planes flew low to strafe and bomb Japanese positions.

In the engagement which cost the enemy their three divebombers, one of our intercepting fighters was lost. Above Salamaua, a single four-engined bomber attacked Lae which had been pounded only the day previously by 21 tons of bombs.

Four hundred miles northwest of Darwin, Australia, on the island of Tremor, Allied two-engined bombers started fires and explosions on enemy airdromes at Cape Chater and Lautem. Koepang, on Timor, was raided by four-engined bombers. Some of the fires they started were visible for 50 miles.

HARD-FIGHTING U.S. TROOPS GET NEARER MUNDA

Jap Garrison Faces Doom as Aid by Sea and Air Is Cut Off.

TWO LAND FORCES WIPED OUT

Foe's Losses in Second Battle of Kula Gulf Put at One Cruiser and Three Destroyers.

Allied Headquarters in the Southwest Pacific, July 14 (A. P.). — Green - clad American troops, frequently exchanging gunfire with the enemy, moved stealthily forward through New Georgia's jungles today upon Munda. It was an advance that may well mark the beginning of the end of that Japanese air base, the garrison of which appeared doomed to fight it out with what men and weapons were on hand.

Reinforcement by sea had failed. Remnants of a Japanese task force fled the disastrous scene of the Kula Gulf above Munda, leaving behind the sunken hulks of a cruiser and from three to five destroyers to add to nine others lost there a week ago.

Air Attack Shattered.

Support by the Japanese air force also failed. Yesterday enemy divebombers, protected by 10 Zeros, came over bent on pounding American positions. The raiders never reached their objective. Corsairs and Lightnings slashed into them at Langsdale Point on New Georgia. Four Zeros and a Corsair, whose pilot parachuted to safety, were shot down. The bombers jettisoned their loads and fled.

Death rained daily on the garrison from swarms of American Avenger torpedo and Dauntless divebombers. Yesterday 32 tons of bombs burst among encamped troops and on antiaircraft batteries.

Reinforcement or supply of the imperiled garrison by land was rendered practically impossible by the American fighters.

Today's communique from Gen. Douglas MacArthur told of the annihilation of 150 Japanese trapped 10 miles northeast of Munda at Enogai Inlet. The heavy artillery and machine-guns this force manned in Munda's defense were seized. Near the inlet is Bairoko, Munda's supply port on the Kula Gulf. But astride the jungle path leading down from there to Munda is a barricade, heavily-gunned, thrown up by American invasion forces.

Another 150 Japanese lost their lives off the coast of Vangunu Island to the southeast of Munda, but they no longer were defending the air base. They had been ousted from that island by American troops and were trying to escape in barges.

Vila, Munda's supply depot across the Kula Gulf on Kolombangara Island, took a new pounding from the skies.

Big American Liberators ripped into the enemy's Ballale Airdrome, which is in the Shortland group above Kolombangara and within supporting range of Munda. Their 24 tons of bombs set it aflame.

Salamaua Is Bombed.

In the jungle perimeter of defenses before Munda itself, two strong points were knocked out by advancing jungle fighters despite stiffening resistance of the enemy.

On Northeastern New Guinea, at the other end of the Pacific offensive, Liberators, Flying Fortresses and Mitchells dropped more than 50 tons of bombs on Salamaua, the enemy air base toward which the jungle troops are fighting, and 21 tons on nearby Lae.

More detailed accounts of the second battle of Kula Gulf confirmed that the enemy broke off the naval engagement after losing a cruiser and from three to five destroyers.

South Pacific headquarters of Admiral William F. Halsey said some damage was inflicted on a group of four other destroyers before the battle ended yesterday and that American damage was slight. In the first Kula Gulf battle July 5-6 from 9 to 11 enemy ships were sunk and the 9,700-ton cruiser U. S. S. Helena was lost.

Pfc. Earl Nelson Gets Medal For Blasting Jap Gun Nest

(The following story was written by Technical Sergeant Diggory Venn, of San Francisco, Cal., a Marine corps combat correspondent and distributed by the Associated Press).

SOMEWHERE IN THE SOUTH PACIFIC—(Delayed) — "For conspicuous gallantry," Private First Class Earl W. Nelson, U.S.M.C., 21, of 1485 Iranistan avenue, Bridgeport, Connecticut, was presented a Silver Star Medal at a parade here recently.

The citation, signed in the name of the President by Admiral William F. Halsey, U.S.N., south Pacific naval chief, commended the marine for silencing an enemy machine gun with hand grenades during heavy fighting on Guadalcanal last October.

Private First Class Nelson is the son of Mrs. Edgar A. Nelson, of Bridgeport, and attended the Bassick High school, of Bridgeport, Conn. In civilian life he was employed by the DuPont company, in Fairfield, Connecticut.

Private First Class Nelson enlisted January 12, 1942, in Bridgeport.

The citation follows: "For conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity in action against the enemy in the Solomon Islands. On October 9, 1942, Private First Class Nelson was serving with a platoon of marines. The marines were heavily engaged in battle with the enemy forces south of Point Cruz and west of the Matanikau river on Guadalcanal Island.

"While the company was under heavy enemy mortar and machine gun fire from a wooded draw, he voluntarily and without orders crawled to the vicinity of the enemy position and threw two hand grenades into an enemy machine gun position. As a result the enemy fire was greatly reduced from that sector."

JUL 15 1943

Navy Gives Repeat Performance.

South Pacific Headquarters, July 14 (A. P.).—The United States Navy sustained only slight damage in sinking at least four and probably six Japanese cruisers and destroyers during Tuesday's second battle of the Kula Gulf, an informed spokesman said today. In addition, damage was inflicted on other enemy destroyers.

The battle was "almost a repeat performance," he continued. Our cruisers and destroyers first intercepted six enemy ships that were leaving the gulf. A light cruiser and three destroyers are known to have fallen prey to the roaring guns of our warships and two other destroyers were believed sunk. That would account for all of the six ships.

Later a second group of four destroyers was encountered and some damage was inflicted on them, the spokesman said.

The Japanese force had been spotted the previous afternoon by Army and Navy reconnaissance planes. Our surface ships were thus able for the second time to surprise a section of the "Tokio Express" in an attempt to bring either aid or reinforcement to its imperiled garrison at Munda. The battle was over in a short time and with the coming of daylight our planes were unable to find any crippled Japanese warships as they had done after the first battle.

The two Kula Gulf battles represent a classic renewal of the "Tokio Express" known so well to the earlier defenders of Guadalcanal. The Japanese try to run a light and fast force of ships down by night to do a job and then hope to get out of range of our planes before daylight. This time they had a shorter run for their Pullman cruisers and day-coach destroyers. Their resort to these tactics with the consequent heavy losses represents a certain amount of desperation, but there was no indication that they were withdrawing their forces as they did with their destroyers in the last stages of the battle for Guadalcanal.

U.S. TO RETAIN INITIATIVE

Admiral Nimitz Says New Ships, Planes And Troops Guarantee It

Pacific Fleet Chief Awards Decorations To Submarine Men And Flyers

[By the Associated Press]

Pearl Harbor, T. H., July 14—New ships, planes and troops are now coming into the Pacific in sufficient force to insure the retention of Allied initiative in that area, Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, commander in chief of the Pacific fleet, said today.

"The army and the navy have driven the Japanese out of Attu and neutralized isolated Kiska (in the Aleutians)," the admiral said in ceremonies aboard a submarine as he awarded decorations to submarine men and navy flyers.

"New ships and planes and troops trained and fully equipped for battle now are coming into the Pacific in satisfying numbers to insure our retaining the initiative," he declared.

Lauds Cooperation

In the South Pacific fighting our "forces of all services are coordinating their operations most successfully in the New Georgia occupation," the admiral said.

"Meanwhile, our submarines continue their destruction of enemy shipping—shipping Japan can ill afford to lose—much of it within gun range of important Japanese bases."

The work of one submarine commander was particularly noteworthy, the admiral said.

Lieut. Com. Burrows Cited

"Lieut. Com. Albert C. Burrows, despite strong enemy countermeasures, dealt death to two transports. His aggressive spirit is an inspiration to all Pacific fleet submarines. (Burrows, of Washington, was awarded the Navy Cross.)

"His submarine, in which we have the honor of holding this ceremony, sank 33,500 tons of enemy shipping on the same patrol. In every respect she is a whale of a ship. . . ."

Lieut. Com. Thomas L. Wogan, Coronado, Cal., received the Navy Cross for the submarine sinking of one enemy freighter and one transport despite determined opposition.

Hoppenot Taking Over Martinique Authority

Successor to Robert Arrives at Fort de France

FORT DE FRANCE, Martinique, July 14 (AP).—Henri-Etienne Hoppenot, appointed by the French Committee of National Liberation to succeed Admiral Georges Robert as governor of Martinique and Guadeloupe, arrived at 11 a. m. today, and negotiations for the transfer of authority are in progress.

Members of the new commission are Colonel de Chevigny, Naval Captain Lambert, and Commandant Jean Sarrat.

HAWAII EPIDEMIC ABATES

Special Hospital Was Set Up for Infantile Paralysis Cases

HONOLULU, T. H., July 14 (AP)—Hawaii is fighting infantile paralysis, which the Territorial Board of Health calls an epidemic.

Forty-seven cases have been treated in three months, with five discharged as cured, according to Dr. H. L. Arnold, medical director of the Territorial Office of Civilian Defense. Never before had Hawaii more than a few scattered cases. He said there was no apparent reason for the sudden outbreak.

The epidemic is dying down slowly, Dr. Arnold said, although forty patients still are under treatment in the special hospital set up for the emergency.

corded by the Associated Press. The broadcast said that one detachment using the new device made 6,000 Russian mines ineffective in four days when a path was cleared for a tank push.

Bolstering the Russian claim that it was the Germans who launched the new offensive in Russia, the Moscow radio today quoted three German prisoners to that effect. In a broadcast picked up at New York by NBC, Moscow said that the prisoners stated definitely that orders were issued on July 4 for the German Army to open a decisive offensive on July 5.

HIROHITO HAILS BASTILLE DAY

The Tokio radio said that Emperor Hirohito had sent a congratulatory telegram to French Chief of State Marshal Petain on the occasion of Bastille Day—which symbolizes the birth of French democracy. The broadcast was recorded by the Associated Press.

NELSON URGES 'WAR MESSAGE IN EVERY AD'

WPB Chairman Begins Drive of Advertising Council to Bestir Industry.

OUTPUT IS NOT RISING FAST

May and June Production Is Said to Have Been Less Than the Goals Set.

JUL 15 1943

Washington, July 14 (A. P.).—Donald M. Nelson urged American business today to throw its weight, through war-message advertising, into the effort to shake off a production slump—caused in part, he said, by "a false and dangerously premature feeling that the war is in the bag." The War Production Board chairman, participating with other high officials in a broadcast launching the War Advertising Council's drive for "a war message in every ad," disclosed that June war production missed its $6,500,000,000 goal by half a billion dollars.

"In order to meet the urgent demands of the armed services, huge production goals were set for 1943," Mr. Nelson said. "We are not currently meeting those goals from month to month. We are gaining in total output, but that output is not rising fast enough to meet the steady rise in our production goals.

"Production in May was unsatisfactory. Production in June, although better than in May, still did not show much improvement. I want to state bluntly, here and now, that if we are to meet our overall schedules for 1943, the American industrial front faces a staggering job in the months ahead."

Elmer Davis Also Speaks.

Joining in the symposium, Elmer Davis, director of the Office of War Information, declared that the task of mobolizing the home front to hasten victory "needs the technic that is the voice of American business—advertising."

Mr. Nelson, pointing to a 40 per cent increase in aircraft production in the first half of the year and a 25 per cent increase in munitions output, said that the nation is doing a good job, but "not good enough" to meet the military needs of the United Nations. Several factors are responsible, he said. "One of the factors is a shortage of industrial man power. Another is absenteeism. Another is strikes. Another is a false and dangerously premature feeling that the war is in the bag."

The Government is dealing with these problems, Mr. Nelson said, but needs help in making the civilian population understand the need of intensifying the war effort. Advertising has helped to generate enthusiasm for special phases of war activity, Mr. Nelson observed, "but that is not enough."

"More than inspiration is required. The American home front needs detailed and continuing information and instruction on every phase of its responsibilities."

Mr. Nelson said that "a war message in every ad" can do much to bring about "another great upward surge of energy in this country—a surge that will enable us to turn out more of the stuff that our fighting men need to batter the Axis into surrender."

Mr. Davis declared that the military offensive can be expected to "grow swifter and heavier, which means that we shall have to expend larger and larger amounts of materials and suffer heavier casualties."

Task for Home Front.

"That means we need a better organized, more efficient home front," the OWI chief said. "Our Army and Navy have the tough part of the job and they are doing all right, but it is up to the rest of us to help them just as much as we can. Shorten the war by one day, and you save $300,000,000; also, almost certainly, you will save hundreds of thousands of American lives."

Mr. Davis said that the Government knows from experience that the people will "respond magnificently" if they know what is expected of them, and why, and believe that it makes sense." Mr. Davis said that the teamwork of the War Advertising Council and Federal agencies had resulted in industry contributions of advertising space and time "estimated at more than a quarter of a billion dollars during the past year—yet all this, like our military offensive operations, is just a start."

Chester J. LaRoche, chairman of the council and an OWI consultant, said that the non-profit, voluntary council headed by him "has no selfish ax to grind," represents no political party or pressure groups and is made up of twenty-five advertising and publishing organizations.

Waste of Food Cited.

Marvin Jones, Food Administrator, said that Americans must be taught that the waste of food in war time is a national sin and that the assistance of business is essential in teaching such conservation.

"It is estimated that in peace time the average American wastes some 300 pounds of food each year," Mr. Jones said. "Multiply this by 130 [illegible] represents almo[illegible] pounds of food [illegible] bage pails in pea[illegible] alone would be enough to supply a large army."

Another speaker, Fred M. Vinson, Economic Stabilization Director, called inflation "our deadliest and most insidious enemy" on the home front—"the mortal foe of every bank deposit, every insurance policy and every War Bond." He said that his staff would "exercise all the powers which we possess to hold this line" because "if we allow prices and wages to rise, the cost of the war will be materially increased."

SHIP ONCE 'LOST' REACHES U. S. PORT UNDER OWN POWER

JUL 15 1943

Alchiba, Torpedoed on 4th Trip to Guadalcanal, Undergoes Repairs.

WASHINGTON, July 14 — (AP) The Navy proudly struck the U. S.S. Alchiba, battered and torn cargo vessel, from the list of lost American ships today.

The Alchiba, officially reported as lost through enemy action Dec. 11, has returned to a United States port and is undergoing final repairs.

For their part in saving their fire-blackened, twice torpedoed ship, Captain James S. Freeman of Jasper, Ala., and commander Howard R. Shaw, of Sandown, N. H., have been decorated. Captain Freeman, the commanding officer, received the Navy Cross and Commander Shaw was awarded the Silver Star medal.

The Alchiba, which was the Mormacdone before the Navy acquired it in June, 1941, participated in the initial landing operations in the Solomon islands from Aug. 7 to Aug. 9 last year. Despite attacks by Japanese high altitude bombers and torpedo planes it successfully landed supplies and equipment for the Marines and escaped without damage.

Hit on Fourth Trip

On Nov. 28 the vessel made its fourth trip into the Solomons area and just after dropping anchor off Guadalcanal it was torpedoed. Thorugh the "superior seamanship" of Captain Freeman and Commander Shaw, the Navy said, the vessel was beached although gasoline tanks and ammunition were blowing up as a result of the damage caused by the torpero.

The crew set to work removing the cargo and getting numerous fires under control. On Dec. 7 when they had succeeded in most of their activities, the Alchiba was hit by another torpedo. That blow apparently sealed the vessel's doom and her loss was announced by the Navy four days later. The communique at that time said casualties were only three missing out of the crew of about 46.

It turns out, however, that the ship was not as dead a duck as officers then believed. Within a month it was moved from Guadalcanal to a more sheltered harbor and later was returned to an American port under its own power.

LOSES HIS LEGS, WOULD FLY AGAIN

Lieut. Col. G. W. West Hurt When Downed Nazi Plane Exploded In Tunisia

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, July 14—Lieut. Col. Graham W. West, commander of a fighter group in Tunisia, lost both legs in the explosion of an abandoned and burning German transport plane on a Tunisian beach, the War Department disclosed today.

The transport, one of a number wrecked on the beach, was in the path of a fire that threatened the base of West's Spitfire fighter group, and he approached the plane with a few of his men to attempt to check the spread of the flames.

Explosion "In Their Faces"

It was burning by the time they reached it, and an explosion—apparently of a bomb or shell—occurred almost in their faces.

One officer and an enlisted man were killed and West's legs blown off. He was given emergency injections of blood plasma at a medical tent and then taken to a hospital where he now is convalescing.

When he regained consciousness, said the army, almost his first words were, "If that Englishman could do it without legs, so can I"—the reference to RAF Squadron Leader Douglas Bader, who lost both legs in a plane crash in 1932, but learned to use artificial legs and became one of Britain's most successful military pilots before he was captured.

Plans To Fly Again

West was said to have told his executive officer, Major James S. Coward, of Erwin, Tenn., that he would fly again as soon as he recovered, and even asked for transfer from the hospital to his air base to direct his group from his bed—a request that was refused.

West, whose home is in Portland, Ore., was a merchant seaman and commercial flyer before entering the army as a flying cadet. He joined his group early last year and took command last February. He holds the Silver Star for gallantry in action.

U. S. COLONEL SAYS STUKAS ARE DODOS

Washington, July 14 (A. P.).—An American anti-aircraft officer back from Tunisia expressed the opinion today that the Stuka, vaunted German dive-bomber, "is all done." Lieut.-Col. John C. Smith of Billings, Mont., commander of an anti-aircraft battalion which destroyed at least seventy-eight enemy planes and claims probables which would run the score well over 100, reported that the Stukas are "slow, easy to watch and easy to hit."

"Our anti-aircraft stuff scared the Stukas, who found it too costly to come too close to us," said Col. Smith.

Arab Thanks America For Gift of Clothing

JUL 15 1943

WASHINGTON, July 14—(AP) Zouced Aia Raha, an Arab whose four children received a package of clothing as a gift from America, has sent a letter of thanks to the President.

To Raha, the United States was just the name of a remote land whence came the soldiers he saw in Algeria. But he was touched by the gift, the War department reported today, and—unable to write English—appealed to a staff sergeant of Royal Engineers at a nearby British hospital.

The Arab dictated this letter:

"I wish to thank you for the gifts which have been so kindly distributed to myself and family. It is good for our people to be so friendly and we all hope that when the war is over we shall know one another better."

Raha then signed the letter, and the sergeant sent it to American Army headquarters, which dispatched it.

SENATE [illegible] ACTION EXPECTED

Washington, July 14 (A. P.).—The Senate will be asked this fall to act on a general resolution notifying the world that this country will not shirk any international obligations it may have toward preserving the peace when war ends, Senator Barkley (Ky.); the Democratic leader, predicted today.

Although Senator Barkley declined to forecast what the Foreign Relations Committee would do with a dozen "lasting peace" proposals now before it, he left no doubt that he believes it impossible to draw a blueprint of post-war policies at this time.

"I think we ought to be able to agree on a general statement that this country proposes to perform its obligations when the war is over and the peace is made," he told an interviewer.

The same viewpoint is said to be held by Secretary of State Hull and Senator Connally (D.-Tex.), chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, who recently said he expected a subcommittee now studying the question to bring forth a general resolution shortly after the recess ends.

PRESIDENT PLEDGES FRENCH FREEDOM

Washington, July 14 (A. P.).—Frenchmen, observing today the 154th anniversary of Bastille Day, received fresh assurance from President Roosevelt that one of the United Nation's war aims is the return of freedom to "the peoples now under the invaders' yoke."

"There must be no doubt, anywhere, of the unalterable determination of the United Nations to restore to the oppressed peoples their full and sacred rights," the President said last night in a statement commemorating the fall of the Bastille, notorious prison, during the French Revolution. Appealing indirectly for French unity now, he asserted that France "transcends all parties, personalities and groups" and that there can be but one symbol for Frenchmen, "France itself."

Soldiers Are Listed As Missing in Action

Mrs. Roosevelt Visits Son

Sees John in San Francisco; He Had Been Reported in Sicily

SAN FRANCISCO, July 14 (AP).—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and her son, John, naval lieutenant (j. g.), stationed here, chatted together briefly today and then the President's wife visited the wounded in several military hospitals in the San Francisco Bay area.

Mrs. Roosevelt departed tonight for Seattle to visit her daughter, Mrs. John Boettiger.

(A story today, datelined Allied Headquarters, North Africa, mistakenly reported that Lieutenant John Roosevelt participated in the Sicily fighting.)

Castaway in Torpedo Attack in Atlantic Gets Unexpected Ride on Deck of Submarine

CHARLESTON, S. C., July 14 (AP)—Seventy-five survivors of the crew of a medium-sized merchant vessel torpedoed in the Atlantic related on landing here how one of their shipmates got an unwanted ride on the deck of the attacking submarine.

Attacked at midnight, the vessel, commanded by Captain A. H. Barnes of East Durham, N. Y., was seen to go down against lightning flashes of a distant storm. Second Mate Alfred M. Evjenth, 58 years old, of 94 Hicks Street, Brooklyn, who was asleep when the first torpedo hit, piled out in the dark, and got his life boat away with nine men aboard. As the boat wallowed in the heavy seas, he could not see the vessel as she settled but heard the explosion of a second torpedo. Then came a sight that bugged his eyes. Bearing straight down upon him was the submarine.

"I shouted 'look at that submarine coming right at us,'" Evjenth related. "We couldn't get away. I was at the tiller but there was nothing to be done. The sub, going fast, crashed into our lifeboat and because it hit at an angle veered the boat away without breaking it up. But I was capapulted through the air and landed smack on the foredeck of the sub.

"It was oily and slick and there was nothing to hold on to, even if I had wanted to hold on. I slipped off and the swish of the propellors passed right by me. You can't imagine how surprised and glad I was to see that life boat right close beside me when I came up after the sub went by." He swam over and was pulled in by willing hands.

His only injury was a strained shoulder and a "charley horse." He has been forty-three years at sea, and a naturalized American, is a native of Norway.

Captain Barnes and Lieut. Arthur J. Weber of Lubbock, Tex., were praised by the crew for their coolness. All except three of the crew were saved.

New Rainbow Division Hailed By MacArthur

Former Commander of 42d Praises Rebirth After Champagn

Misc

CAMP GRUBER, Okla., July 14 (AP).—With the blessing of its former commander, General Douglas MacArthur, and the heritage of its veterans of the World War, the historic Rainbow Division was reborn today to take its place in the fight against the Axis.

"It seems to me a happy augury that the date of July 14, which marked the shattering of the last great offensive of the German army in the World War, has been selected to bring again into being a division so prominent on that occasion and so unique in its concept and proud of its accomplishments," said General MacArthur in a message from his headquarters in the southwest Pacific.

MacArthur Sends Greeting

General MacArthur, who was one of six commanders of the World War division, named the "Rainbow" because it drew its troops from twenty-six states and the District of Columbia, declared:

"We of the old 42d place our pride in your hands. May God bless and aid you."

Several hundred veterans of the first Rainbow Division witnessed the reactivation ceremony of the outfit that will carry its time-faded but honor-brightened colors and standards.

Brigadier General Harry J. Collins, commanding officer of the new division, received the colors of the old 42d Division from Albert Hoyt, of Cleveland, retiring president of the veterans' association, as his troops stood at attention on the parade ground.

Commander Addresses Troops

"Have faith in us," General Collins told the veterans. "We are young and fresh and eager, as you were when you made the Rainbow the glorious symbol it is. We are fledglings, while you are wise in the bloody ways of battle. We are unblooded, but we have our honored dead, all the dead of the Rainbow, who look down upon us now, who will labor by our side and march with us and give us courage and comfort."

The general spoke before the flags of the forty-eight states. Soldiers for the new division will be drawn from every state in the union.

"To you men whom the Rainbow today has taken into brotherhood," the general told his troops, "I have this to say—remember it, treasure it and let it guide you from this day onward.

"The priceless heritage is yours personally and individually. All the honors of the Rainbow, all its fine tradition, all it has meant for a quarter century to the men who fought under it—these things have been turned over to each one of you."

Members of the old outfit fired blank ammunition in some of the new guns, used walkie-talkie portable radios and rode in some of the mechanized equipment.

At 11:45 p. m. on the twenty-fifth anniversary of the old Rainbow's smashing of the German drive at Champagne, the soldiers of the new Rainbow solemnly watched the "Champagne Hour" ceremony of the veterans who fought in France. The veterans, standing inside a hollow square formed by the troops who will carry their banner in this war, toasted the dead and the living in the division.

NEW TYPE OF GREASE RUSHED TO AFRICA

Eisenhower's's Order Filled in Record-Breaking Time

PHILADELPHIA, July 14 (AP)—General Eisenhower and his African forces needed grease of a special type never made in this country. He received the grease, 245,554 pounds of it, and an American industry broke every one of its production records in supplying it in ninety-six hours.

The story of the filling of the emergency order and the problems encountered were revealed today by the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey.

A sample of the grease was supplied, but the ingredients had to be determined by laboratory analysis. The Baltimore grease plant of Standard Oil was handed the order, earmarked for delivery at 6 P. M., Saturday, if the ingredients were received by 8:30 A. M. the preceding Wednesday. The ingredients arrived three hours late.

On Friday night 1,800 pails of grease were ready. By Saturday evening another 15,000 pounds were produced, but the belts and paddles of many of the huge kettles had broken under the strain. From the remaining kettles the workmen were able to produce another 9,000 pounds by Sunday night.

Then the Ordnance Department asked for 260,000 pounds more, with delivery ninety-six hours after the completion of the first orders.

With the Baltimore plant a casualty, Standard Oil made the deadline by enlisting its Pittsburgh grease plant.

General Eisenhower sent the following message a few days later:

"The grease has been received and is doing a satisfactory job."

NO 'ANNEXATION,' SAYS LA GUARDIA

Mayor Declares in Winnipeg That Talk of Union of U. S. and Canada Is Silly

JUL 15 1943

WINNIPEG, July 14 (Canadian Press)—Fiorello H. La Guardia, Mayor of New York and chairman of the United States section of the joint Canada-United States defense board, said in an interview today that talk of annexation between the two countries was silly.

"I know our people don't want it and your people don't want it," Mr. La Guardia said. "It is so easy for the two countries to work together side by side and little misunderstandings and irritations can be avoided if we get rid of diplomats and let the people work it out for themselves."

On his way back to New York after a tour through Alaska with other members of the defense board, Mayor La Guardia praised the cooperation and harmony between the Canadian and United States forces serving in the northern territory.

"If we can work together so well in war, why can't we do it in peace?" he asked.

He said the morale of troops in Alaska was good and in spite of many difficulties confronting them they were reconciled to the job.

Referring to the possibility of a Japanese attack on the North American continent, Mayor La Guardia said it was the responsibility of those trusted with defense to be prepared for any eventuality.

"You can't take anything for granted in war," he added.

Mayor La Guardia declared that if the Italians were wise they would fold up quickly and fold Mussolini with them.

He was elated, he said, over the success of the Allies in Sicily and predicted opening of the European second front would accelerate the military effort and war production of the United States.

Questioned about United States reaction regarding a possible fourth term for President Roosevelt, Mr. La Guardia replied:

"I don't think he should be thinking about anything else now except prosecution of the war."

He said he was going to tell the people of the United States that Canadians growled less over rationing than people south of the border.

OTTAWA, July 14 (AP)—Members of the Canada-United States Defense Board, headed by Mayor La Guardia of New York and Col. C. M. Biggar of Ottawa, joint chairmen, arrived here today.

Willkie, Stalin Collaborate In International Romance

U. S. Newspaperman Thus Will Wed Moscow Girl Who, Apparently, Was Slated For Siberia

JUL 15 1943

[By the Associated Press]

New York, July 14—Premier Joseph Stalin and Wendell Willkie have collaborated in a different type of international relations—the romance of an American newspaper correspondent and a Russian girl, it was revealed today.

Willkie confirmed the story—and kept the names of the principals a secret—as follows:

The correspondent and the girl were seen together in Moscow. Some thought it was romance, but to Russian officials it looked as if the correspondent might be trying to obtain information from her.

Removed From Moscow

Within a short time she was removed from Moscow, apparently slated for Siberia.

The newspaperman returned to the United States and appealed to Willkie, who cabled Stalin on June 14:

"Anything you can do to facilitate this union I will personally appreciate, for I have absolute confidence and I am willing to vouch for . . . completely."

Replies In 5 Days

Stalin's reply, five days later, read:

"I am glad to inform you that your request regarding . . . will be fulfilled. The decision was made as a special exception on your recommendation and vouching."

The correspondent is returning to Russia, Willkie said, to marry the girl.

What's Behind The War News

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

The fifth day of the tremendous Anglo-American surge into Sicily saw a vast Allied pincer movement in the making with its British eastern and American western jaws nearly 100 air line miles apart and crunching forward for decisive action on the Catania plain.

Between these two fast moving forces, American, Canadian and British troops appeared pressing forward in the center toward the next main objective, the low ridge of hills flanking the Catania plain to the south. On the west, General Patton's men had already turned the end of the ridge in the capture of Naro junction. To the east General Montgomery's British spearhead driving toward the port of Catania seemed at or dangerously close to vital road and rail intersections giving access to the flank and rear of Axis forces endeavoring to hold the hill bastion in the center.

Axis versions told of heaviest fighting in those hills in the center. They rise no more than 2,000 feet and the southern slopes up which the Allies must move are gentle. As in the movement which swept clear the whole southeast corner of Sicily in three days, however, present Allied operations appear grooved to the road and rail system paralleling to the north the already won Gela-Comiso-Ragusa-Palazzolo line.

The American extreme left, now 15 miles west and a dozen inshore from its Licata beach-head, was poised at Naro junction to turn either northward against Canicatti, then northeastward in the Catania plain itself, or push on westward toward Agrigento. An Axis concentration in force for a counter-attack on the American left flank was reported in Agrigento. Agrigento was under flank attack itself by sea and air, however, in the bombardment of Porto Empedocle, its sea outlet, by American naval craft and planes.

French Take Heart

Whatever the Allied plans for capitalizing on initial and startling Mediterranean successes, yesterday's development came on the brightest Bastille day conquered France has known since her fall. The sound of the battle in Sicily is all but audible in southeastern France. The word of it is being dinned into eager French ears by Allied radio broadcasts.

And with it goes word of the passing of Martinique from Vichy to Fighting French control. With it went another addition to the Fighting French fleet-in-the-making to take its own share in dominating the Mediterranean and freeing of the Axis invaders.

That Allied successes in Sicily means ultimate destruction of what is left of Mussolini's now divided navy goes without saying. Wherever it turns it faces destruction at sea or in the air. And the day is not distant when a restored French fleet can take over custody of the whole Mediterranean, releasing British and American seapower from those waters to concentrate for the final supreme challenge to the Japanese.

German Offensive On Central Front

JUL 15 1943

Finds Russia Calm

By WILLIAM McGAFFIN,
Associated Press Staff Writer.

MOSCOW, July 14.—This city is only about 180 miles from the nearest point to the Russian-held Kursk Salient where Hitler is unleashing his ferocious summer offensive.

But it might as well be as far away as New York for all the excitement that is shown here.

Crowds still flock to see Alice Faye and Tyrone Power in "V Starom Schikagom" (in Old Chicago" to you). The Soviet government bought the movie and skilfully dubbed in the whole dialogue in Russian voices matching those of the American performers. Only Miss Faye's songs are in English.

Lepeshanskaya still dances the unspeakably beautiful interpretation of "Swan Lake" at the Bolshoi Filial Theater. And the American correspondent is still heroized in the play, "Bezsmerty," at the Red Army Theater. In English, that means "Immortal." It is about a correspondent who goes to cover guerrilla fighting behind the German lines and stays on to kill a few Huns himself.

Has Dramatic Ending.

The curtain line, as the correspondent picks up a tommygun:

"Now America goes to war."

Any correspondent here would be glad to give a year's expense account to emulate the example of that guy. But, in the opinion of our Russian hosts, the correspondents' lives are too precious to be risked anywhere outside of fiction.

Obviously, they never heard what the gang at the police station back home say about us when we are breaking in as police reporters so we can cover the war from Moscow.

And Moscow is quiet these days. We know. We see it at all hours. But don't misunderstand—this quiet does not mean a lack of interest.

Watch the crowds gathering around the bulletin boards. Listen to the chattering on the subway. Then you'll see how vitally interested they are.

Reflection of Confidence.

The Moscow quiet, rather, is a reflection of calm confidence in the great Red Army. Those strapping young kids now out there in Kursk saved Moscow when the enemy was rapping at its very gates back in '41.

This summer, it's not clear yet whether Hitler intends to take another crack at the Soviet capital. But if he does, the Red Army will be there. The Moscovites know that. So they placidly go on working and reading and in spare hours keep the kitchen and the garden in trim.

The strawberries are coming in now—and the cucumbers and radishes. It is good to eat strawberries and read stirring news of hundreds of enemy tanks and planes knocked out with only astonishingly minute gains to reward Hitler for his pains.

There was a time when the correspondents had little to do except play hearts and moan about the dearth of news. There was a time when we could go swimming as we did July 5.

Have Busy Days.

That night I went to bed early to catch up after celebrating the 4th of July. About 11:30 p.m. Thcijova, the A. P. secretary, called me.

"They just announced the Germans have opened the offensive," said she.

Since then, we've all been a little busy.

The main problem is no longer how to wangle a bottle of champagne from Jack at the Metropole. The main problem is how to keep your mug shaved and get a little sleep.

The AP cook, maid and mother confessor patiently waits meals till all hours and takes all telephone calls vigorously, protecting the sleeping body from everything but the most urgent. Reluctantly Pasha awakes me when it's a call at midnight or 3 or 5 in the morning from the Foreign Office (where they don't seem to come awake until after midnight).

No Curfew Passes.

Then I get up with a groan, dress and trudge through silent streets for another special communique from the foreign office. It's a 50-minute walk from home to the Narkomindel, as we call it. It is impossible to use a car after midnight, for neither Pavel, your chauffeur, nor the Ford that came from Finland five years ago have curfew passes. So you trudge along, halting at intervals to show your curfew pass to alert militiamen who flash a torch in your eyes and say, "Greetings, Tovarich."

After you've written your story you plod up to the telegraph office and file it. Another 20 minutes. Then, if your legs are still steady, you do the 50-minute stretch homeward. Otherwise, you walk back to the Metropole Hotel and spend the night in the office.

Morning brings fresh problems unless you remembered to bring your Army rations with you. For you're signed up with the authorities to eat meals at your apartment—and hence you're not allowed to breakfast at the hotel.

It's good, though, to be in Moscow with the offensive on. It's exciting even to walk through the streets at night—to listen to the muffled tread of soldiers as they march through the blackout to change guard on the government buildings.

It's thrilling to see the Kremlin outlined against the sky—against a sky so light they don't blackout the windows until after 10. It's fantastic to look into the west after 11 and still see a few wisps of sun that seem reluctant to stop shining in encouragement on these people.

IT WAS A "WELL DONE JOB," HE SAID, "THE BOMBS WERE TERRIFIC. I COULD SEE HUGE FOUNTAINS OF SMOKE RISING FROM THE TARGET AREA. X X X BECAUSE OF THE PRECISE METHOD OF BOMBING I BELIEVE LITTLE DAMAGE WAS DONE TO THE CITY. I DON'T KNOW HOW THE JOB COULD BE DONE ANY BETTER WITHOUT KILLING THOUSANDS OF CIVILIANS."

JUL 15 1943

THE FLYING FORTRESS MET STIFF GERMAN FIGHTER OPPOSITION AT BOTH VILLACOUBLAY AND LE BOURGET BUT ONLY MODERATE ATTACKS AT AMIENS. MASEFIELD ESTIMATED HIS SHIP MET THREE NOSE ATTACKS PER MINUTE FOR 25 MINUTES FROM FIGHTERS OUT OF A FORMATION OF MORE THAN 50.

"OUR FORMATION WAS EXCEEDINGLY GOOD," HE SAID, "AND THE MORE ATTACKS DIRECTED AGAINST US THE BETTER THE FORMATION BECAME."

THE MEN IN THE PLANES THAT STRUCK AT VILLACOUBLAY WERE WELL SATISFIED WITH THE RESULTS.

"VISIBILITY WAS EXCELLENT," REPORTED 1ST. LIEUT. FRANK M. KLACKSETTER OF DENVER, COL. "WE COULD SEE 20 OR 40 MILES AND HAD NO TROUBLE FINDING THE TARGET. AFTER PULLING OUT OF THE BOMBING RUN I SAW DENSE CLOUDS OF SMOKE RISING FROM THE AIRFIELD."

ANOTHER PILOT, 1ST. LIEUT. ROY D. KELLEY OF HOUSTON, TEX., SAID GERMAN FIGHTERS PICKED UP HIS FORMATION NEAR THE TARGET AND "STUCK FOR ALMOST HALF AN HOUR AND PUMPED A LOT OF 20 MILLIMETER SHELLS AT US FROM THE REAR."

FIRST LIEUT. ROY B. HOSBAND, A PILOT OF LOS ANGELES, CALIF., TOLD HOW ONE FLYING FORTRESS IN HIS FORMATION DROPPED BEHIND WITH HALF ITS TAIL BLOWN OFF IN A FIERCE SKY BATTLE. "IT IMMEDIATELY WAS PICKED UP BY TWO SPITFIRES WHICH CONVOYED IT SAFELY HOME," HE SAID.

CAPT. DALE SHAFFER, PILOT, OF DECATUR, ILL., SAID "ENEMY FIGHTERS

"ANYBODY COULD SEE THE TARGET," SAID STAFF SGT.JACK F.HOOK, 22, OF FINDLAY, OHIO, TAILGUNNER. "I THINK EVEN THE GUYS IN THE UPPER TURRET SAW IT. BOMB PUFFS COVERED A LOT OF TERRITORY."

HOOK WAS A MEMBER OF THE CREW OF THE "MERRY HELL" PILOTED BY 2ND LIEUT. CLAYTON WILSON, 21, OF PHILADELPHIA.

"WE HAD A GOOD BOMB RUN BUT THE FLAK WAS PARTICULARLY HEAVY ON THE WAY IN," SAID 2ND LIEUT.JOHNNY BUTLER, 25, OF ALAMO, TEX., CO-PILOT OF THE "NATURAL," A LEAD SHIP PILOTED BY CAPT.MAURICE GILLINGHAM OF ROCHESTER, N.Y.

JUL 15 1943

SECOND LIEUT.DAVID H.DAVIS OF SCRANTON, PA. SAID THE TARGET "STOOD OUT LIKE A SORE THUMB" WHEN CLOUDS CLEARED AS THE FORMATION NEARED. "I COULD SEE OUR BOMBS DROPPING PERFECT CENTER, POCKMARKING LANDING STRIPE WITH CRATERS AND EXTENDING INTO THE BUILDING AREA.

DESTRUCTION OF A FOCKE-WULF 190 WAS CLAIMED BY STAFF SGT.BURTON C.MCDUFFIE, 25, OF SHREVEPORT, LA., TAILGUNNER IN THE LEAD SHIP. "HE WAS ABOUT 700 YARDS AWAY, FLYING IN FROM THE REAR WHEN I BEGAN THROWING TRACERS INTO HIM," HE SAID. "HE LOOKED AS THOUGH HE RAN INTO A BRICK WALL, STOPPED ABRUPTLY, LINGERED A MOMENT AND FELL OFF."

STAFF SGT.GEORGE URSTA OF SALEM, PA., BALL TURRET GUNNER IN THE SAME AIRCRAFT, SAW THE BATTLE. "THAT'S ONE FW THAT WILL NEVER FLY AGAIN," HE SAID. "I FOLLOWED HIM TO ABOUT 5,000 FEET. HE WAS SPINNING AND TRAILING PLUMES OF WHITE SMOKE."

CREW MEMBERS OF THE FORMATION LED BY MAJ. WILLIAM R.CALHOUN OF BIRMINGHAM, ALA., FLYING IN THE "EIGHT BALL" WAS PLEASED WITH THE RESULTS OF THE RAID AND REPORTED SEEING FEWER THAN 20 AXIS FIGHTERS.

"SOON AFTER LEAVING THE TARGET A GLORIOUS FORMATION OF SPITFIRES GAVE US COVER AND WE WERE ESCORTED BACK TO THE PEACEFUL SHORES OF ENGLAND. IT WAS AS PRETTY A SIGHT AS I EVER SAW AND A GOOD SHOW," CALHOUN SAID.

JUL 15 1943

ONE CO-PILOT, 1ST LIEUT. WALTER SWANSON, AND HIS PILOT, CAPT. LLOYD GRIFFIN OF CYRIL, OKLA., ON THE FLYING FORTRESS "LADY LUCK" COMPLETED THEIR 25TH MISSION. OTHERS WHO REACHED THE HALF-WAY MARK TO A TRIP HOME WERE TECH. SGT.VERNON SCHWARTZ OF BETHANY, ILL., STAFF SGT. LYNWOOD WIEGAND OF SPIRIT LAKE, IOWA, TAIL GUNNER, STAFF SGT. SAMUEL EDWARDS OF WASHINGTON, D.C., WAISTGUNNER, TECH. SGT. WILLIAM EASON, TOP TURRET GUNNER.

A PLANE PILOTED BY 1ST LIEUT. CALVIN SWAFFER OF MEMPHIS, TENN., A FORMER RAF PILOT COMPLETING HIS 25TH AMERICAN MISSION, WAS FORCED DOWN INTO THE ENGLISH CHANNEL ON THE RETURN JOURNEY. TAKING TO THE RUBBER DINGHIES, THE CREW STAYED AFLOAT UNTIL THEY WERE PICKED UP BY THE BRITISH AIR SEA RESCUE SERVICE.

THE FORMATION THAT BLASTED LE BOURGET, ALTHOUGH IT MET WITH STIFF FIGHTER OPPOSITION, PLACED ITS BOMBS ON THE TARGETS.

TECH. SGT.PHILLIP J.GRISE, 23, OF 159 WESTFORD CIRCLE, SPRINGFIELD, MASS., TOP TURRET GUNNER ON THE PLANE "RIKKI TIKKI TAVI" SAID "IT WAS BEAUTIFUL BOMBING. AFTER THE BOMBS DROPPED THE FIELD WAS ALMOST COMPLETELY COVERED WITH BROWN AND GRAY SMOKE, INDICATING THE BUILDINGS WERE BURNING. THERE WERE BETWEEN 50 AND 75 FIGHTERS BUT OUR SHIP DIDN'T CATCH MUCH OF THE ATTACK."

COL.FREDERICK W.CASTLE F NEW YORK CITY, OBSERVER IN THE LEAD SHIP, SAID "WE MADE THE TARGET IN SPITE OF THE FIGHTERS AND HAD A PRETTY GOOD BOMB RUN. ONE FLAK HIT WAS MADE ON OUR SHIP. FLAK SEEMED TO BE COMING STRAIGHT UP FROM PARIS, MOST OF IT FROM THE PARKS. NAZI FIGHTERS CAME IN WAVES OF TEN, STRAIGHT ON THROUGH THE FORMATION. I SAW ONE BLOW UP RIGHT IN FRONT OF US. WE HAD TO DIVE TO MISS IT."

JUL 15 1943

STAFF SERGEANT CHARLES FLYNT OF CORPUS CHRISTI, TEX., BALL TURRET GUNNER OF THE "WEE BONNIE," SAID "THE BOMBS HIT THE BUILDINGS ON THE APPROACH SIDE OF THE FIELD AND DROPPED A TRAIL ALL THE WAY ACROSS THE LANDING FIELD AND SOME EXPLODED ON THE WORKSHOP."

FIRST LIEUTENANT CECIL WALTERS, 22, OF 404 WEST PATTERSON STREET, EASTLAND, TEX., PILOT OF "LITTLE CAESAR," COMMENTED THAT "THE TARGET JUST LAID THERE WIDE OPEN AND WE SURE KNOCKED HELL OUT OF THE THINGS DOWN THERE. WE COULD SEE PLENTY OF CREAM-COLORED SMOKE."

"BOY! THERE'S A WAR ON!" REMARKED TECHNICAL SERGEANT GEORGE A. JANOS OF CHARLESTON, W.VA., RADIO OPERATOR. WE MET THE FIRST TEAM TODAY. I THINK I GOT ONE OF THOSE MESSERSCHMITTS. IT WAS EITHER THE TAIL GUNNER OR ME."

JUL 15 1943

FIRST LIEUTENANT FRANK L.SPINO, 23, OF 408 WOOD STREET, GREENSBURG, PA., SAID "THE FIGHTER OPPOSITION WAS HOT. ONE FW-190 CAME SO CLOSE THAT I SAW HIM GO UNDER MY WING. WE WERE ATTACKED BY 25 ENEMY FIGHTERS. FIVE OR SIX OF THESE GUYS GOT CLIPPED ON THE FIRST PASS. THE GUNNERS IN OUR FORMATION WERE REALLY MOWING THEM DOWN."

TOP TURRET GUNNER ON THE FORTRESS "KIPLING'S ERROR 111," SERGEANT CLARENCE E.WHITE, 23, OF 3522 AVENUE "E", ALBUQUERQUE, N.M., SAID "I WAS TOO BUSY TO EVEN SEE THE TARGET. I'M SURE I GOT TWO THOUGH, AS THOSE FIGHTERS CAME POURING IN IN DROVES, ATTACKING FROM ALL POSITIONS. IT WASN'T LIKE IT USUALLY IS THOUGH, AS THESE TWO BURST INTO BIG WHITE FLARES AND JUST FELL APART IN MIDAIR. THEY WERE FW-190'S."

A SMALLER FORCE OF FORTRESSES STRUCK AT MAIENS AND RETURNING FLIERS SAID THE MISSION WAS "AN OUTSTANDING SUCCESS" WITH THE WEATHER GOOD AND THE VISIBILITY PERFECT.

JUL 15 1943

"IT WAS A SWELL THROUGHOUT," SAID MAJOR CLINTON K.BALL OF WACO, TEX., LEADER OF ONE FORMATION. THE TAILGUNNER ON HIS SHIP, FIRST LIEUTENANT ORVILLE OLDHAM OF SAN DIEGO, CALIF., SAID ALL BOMBS FROM HIS FORMATION FELL INTO THE NORTH DISPERSAL AREA AND BOMBS FROM THE LOWER GROUP HIT GASOLINE TANKS WEST OF THE FIELD.

CAPTAIN RALPH H.MENEES OF ST. LOUIS, MO., NAVIGATOR ON THE "AIN'T IT GRUESOME?" SAID "THE CITY OF AMIENS STOOD OUT PROMINENTLY AND WITH THAT GUIDING US WE COULD EASILY LOCATE THE AIRDROME."

STAFF SERGEANT WILLIE L.COLE OF ONTARIO, CALIF., WAISTGUNNER ON "PICCADILY COMMANDO," PRAISING THE FIGHTER ESCORTS, SAID "THE P-47'S DID SUCH A GOOD JOB THAT I PUT DOWN MY GUN AND TOOK SOME PICTURES."

LONDON, JULY 14-(AP)-BOLSTERED BY A CONTINUOUS STREAM OF RESERVES, ALLIED TROOPS HAVE SUCCEEDED IN PUSHING INTO THE MOUNTAINS OF SOUTHEASTERN SICILY AND ARE ENGAGED IN "FIERCE FIGHTING" ALL ALONG THE SEMICIRCULAR LICATA-AUGUSTA FRONT, OFFICIAL AXIS SOURCES REPORTED TODAY.

THE GERMAN COMMUNIQUE, BROADCAST BY THE BERLIN RADIO AND RECORDED BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS, SAID THAT "GERMAN AND ITALIAN TROOPS ARE STILL ENGAGED IN HEAVY FIGHTING AGAINST LANDED ENEMY TROOPS, WHICH ARE TRYING TO ATTACK X X X OUR POSITIONS IN THE MOUNTAINS AND SOUTH OF CATANIA."

THE GERMAN TRANSOCEAN NEWS AGENCY SAID FIERCE FIGHTING HAD DEVELOPED IN THE MOUNTAINS AGAINST ALLIED PARACHUTISTS AND AIRBORNE TROOPS NEWLY LANDED THERE. PARACHUTE TROOPS LANDED NEAR CATANIA, MIDWAY UP THE EAST COAST, HAVE BEEN WIPED OUT, THE NEWS AGENCY CLAIMED.

JUL 15 1943

THE ITALIAN HIGH COMMAND ACKNOWLEDGED THAT ALLIED FORCES HAD PASSE ACROSS THE SOUTHERN COASTAL STRIP OF THE ISLAND INTO THE MOUNTAINS AND SAID THE BRITISH EIGHTH ARMY WAS APPROACHING CATANIA IN ITS DRIVE UP THE EAST COAST.

THE DISCLOSURE THAT ALLIED FORCES ARE STANDING ON THE EDGE OF THE CATANIA PLAIN WAS VIEWED HERE AS AN INDICATION THAT THE FIRST GREAT BATTLE OF THE SICILIAN CAMPAIGN WAS ABOUT TO BEGIN, OR MAY ALREADY HAVE STARTED.

MANY AXIS AIRFIELDS ARE CONCENTRATED IN THE AREA AND THE OPPOSING ARMIES WILL MEET FOR THE FIRST TIME ON TERRAIN SUITABLE FOR MANEUVERING HEAVY TANKS AND ARMORED UNITS.

THE COMMUNIQUE ADMITTED THAT AMERICAN, BRITISH AND CANADIAN TROOPS HAVE BEEN CONTINUOUSLY REENFORCED SINCE THEIR LANDINGS AND ARE NOW IN FIRM POSSESSION OF THE ENTIRE COAST STRETCHING FROM THE AUGUSTA NAVAL BASE ON THE EAST TO LICATA ON THE WESTERN END OF THE SALIENT.

THE BERLIN RADIO DENIED ITS OWN EARLIER REPORTS THAT ALL ALLIED PARACHUTE AND AIR-BORNE TROOPS LANDED IN THE INTERIOR HAD BEEN ROUNDED UP BY ACKNOWLEDGING THAT HARD FIGHTING WAS IN PROGRESS IN THE MOUNTAINS.

JUL 15 1943

ALLIED SHOCK TROOPS DRIVING UP FROM THE COAST ARE APPROACHING THESE HARD-FIGHTING PARACHUTE TROOPS, THE BROADCAST SAID. ONE COMMENTATOR SAID THAT THE HEAVIEST GERMAN TANKS AVAILABLE WERE BEING ROLLED INTO THE BREACHES IN THEIR LINES IN AN EFFORT TO HALT THE SPREADING ALLIED FOOTHOLD.

THE ALGIERS RADIO IN A PREVIOUS BROADCAST SAID THAT ALLIED PARACHUTE TROOPS PARTICIPATED IN YESTERDAY'S CAPTURE OF THE RAGUSA AIRDROME.

THE ITALIAN COMMUNIQUE SAID THAT ALLIED AIR ATTACKS ON REGGIO CALABRIA HAD RESULTED IN 100 ITALIAN DEAD AND 55 WOUNDED, AND THAT 76 PERSONS WERE KILLED AND TWO WERE WOUNDED AT MESSINA.

GERMAN AND ITALIAN TROOPS WERE ENGAGED IN HARD FIGHTING ALONG A LINE BETWEEN LICATA AND SYRACUSE, THE COMMUNIQUE SAID.

ITALIAN TORPEDO BOMBERS IN NIGHT ATTACKS ALONG THE SICILIAN COAST SANK TWO ALLIED SHIPS AND A TORPEDO BOAT AND DAMAGED SIX CRUISERS, THE ITALIANS CLAIMED WITHOUT ALLIED CONFIRMATION. AN AXIS SUBMARINE SANK ANOTHER ALLIED SHIP OF 11,000 TONS, AND A BRITISH DESTROYER OF THE JERVIS TYPE WAS SUNK, IT WAS DECLARED.

JUL 15 1943

"THE ENEMY WHO IS STEADILY AND INCREASINGLY THROWING IN MORE MEN AND MATERIAL INTO HIS OFFENSIVE HAS SUCCEEDED IN PASSING THE COASTAL STRIP BETWEEN LICATA AND AUGUSTA," THE ROME WAR BULLETIN SAID IN A BROADCAST RECORDED BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

"THE ENEMY IS NOW THRUSTING TOWARDS THE SOUTHEASTERN MOUNTAINOUS REGION OF SICILY AND IS FACING THE CATANIA PLAIN.

"ALONG THE ENTIRE FRONT ITALIAN AND GERMAN TROOPS ARE ENGAGED IN HARD FIGHTING."

MEANWHILE IT WAS AUTHORITATIVELY STATED IN LONDON THAT THERE WAS NO KNOWLEDGE HERE OF NEW BRITISH LANDINGS NEAR CATANIA AS REPORTED IN ALLIED HEADQUARTERS DISPATCHES YESTERDAY.

AN OBSERVER ADDED THAT GEN.SIR BERNARD L.MONTGOMERY'S BRITISH EIGHTH ARMY WAS PROBABLY DEBOUCHING ONTO THE CATANIA PLAIN FROM THE SOUTH NOW, AND "THERE SEEMS NO REASON TO ASSUME THE RUSKS OF LANDINGS IN THAT AREA WHEN ONE CAN WALK ALONG THE SHORE."

LONDON MILITARY SOURCES SAID THE ALLIES' CONFIDENCE IN MAKING A SICILIAN CONQUEST WAS FULLY JUSTIFIED BY THE ADVANCES OF THE FIRST FOUR DAYS, AND THERE IS NO CHANCE NOW THAT THE ALLIES CAN BE PUSHED OFF THE ISLAND.

JUL 15 1943

THERE WAS MUCH EVIDENCE, THESE QUARTERS SAID, THAT A HIGH DEGREE OF TACTICAL SURPRISE HAD BEEN ACHIEVED BY THE ALLIES AND THAT THE AXIS DEFENSE FORCES HAD BEEN DISPOSED IN THE WEST AND NORTHEAST OF THE ISLAND IN SUCH FASHION THAT THEY WERE UNABLE TO PREVENT THE INVADERS FROM ESTABLISHING A DEEP BRIDGEHEAD IN THE SOUTHEAST.

THE DISORGANIZATION OF THE ENEMY'S COMMUNICATIONS AND TRANSPORT BY AIR ATTACKS ON HEADQUARTERS, RAIL LINES AND MOTOR CONVOYS ALSO WAS BELIEVED A MAJOR FACTOR IN KEEPING THE AXIS FROM MOUNTING STRONG COUNTERBLOWS DURING THE EARLY STAGES.

A BRITISH OBSERVER MINIMIZED THE IMPORTANCE OF THE ENEMY'S FIRST COUNTERATTACK WHICH SCORED A TEMPORARY SUCCESS AGAINST THE AMERICANS IN THE GELA AREA, SAYING THAT IT RESULTED IN "NO APPRECIABLE DELAY" AND THAT LIEUT.GEN.GEORGE S.PATTON'S FORCES WERE NOW "WELL IN AND MOVING AHEAD ON SCHEDULE."

LONDON, JULY 14-(AP)-CIVILIANS IN BRITAIN ARE FACING STILL ANOTHER CUT IN THEIR CHOCOLATE RATION IN ORDER THAT A RESERVE CAN BE BUILT UP TO HELP FEED THE STARVING CHILDREN OF EUROPE AFTER THE WAR.

JUL 15 1943

THE DECISION WAS REACHED BY THE FOOD MINISTRY, WHICH SAID THAT EXPERIMENTS HAD PROVED CHOCOLATE TO BE THE BEST MEDIUM THROUGH WHICH TO GIVE UNDERNOURISHED PERSONS ADDED VITAMINS. IT WAS EXPLAINED THAT AN OUNCE BAR OF CHOCOLATE CAN BE DOCTORED TO PROVIDE THE GREATER PART OF A DAY'S SUPPLY OF VITAMINS B-1 C AND D.

THE SCEHEM PROVED SO SUCCESSFUL IN RELIEVING DISTRESS ON THE ISLAND OF MALTA THAT THE INTERALLIED POSTWAR RELIEF BUREAU REQUESTED THAT LARGE STORES OF VITAMIZED CHOCOLATE BE PREPARED ESPECIALLY FOR CHILDREN BETWEEN THE AGES OF 7 AND 14 IN NOW-OCCUPIED COUNTRIES.

THE AMOUNT OF THE CUT TO BE MADE IN ENGLAND HAS NOT YET BEEN DETERMINED, BUT IT WILL NOT BE FELT FOR ANOTHER TWO MONTHS, WHEN EXISTING CHOCOLATE STOCKS SHOULD RUN OUT.

LONDON, JULY 14-(AP)-A GERMAN WAR REPORTER GAVE RADIO LISTENERS THIS DESCRIPTION OF THE SHATTERED CITY OF AACHEN TODAY AFTER LAST NIGHT'S BOMBING BY THE RAF:

JUL 15 1943

"THE STREETS ARE BLACK WITH SMOKE. IT IS IMPOSSIBLE TO BREATHE. PEOPLE PUT WET HANDKERCHIEFS BEFORE THEIR MOUTHS TO PROTECT THEMSELVES. EVERYWHERE THERE ARE BEAMS AND BROKEN WIRES FROM TRAMS; RUBBLE AND HEAPS OF BROKEN GLASS.

"A CHURCH IS BURNING, THE STEEPLE MIGHT FALL AT ANY MOMENT. FIRE ENGINES ARE BUSY EVERYWHERE."

THE BERLIN BROADCAST WAS RECORDED BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

LONDON, JULY 14-(AP)-THE INTERNATIONAL INFORMATION BUREAU, GERMAN PROPAGANDA AGENCY, REPORTED TODAY THAT AT LEAST A REGIMENT OF BRITISH PARACHUTE TROOPS DROPPED ON THE CATANIA PLAIN IN SICILY LAST NIGHT BUT WERE KILLED OR CAPTURED.

JUL 15 1943

A BERLIN BROADCAST OF THE DISPATCH WAS RECORDED HERE BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

IT ASSERTED THAT THE PARACHUTE TROOPS "DROPPED RIGHT INTO THE MIDDLE OF A GERMAN CONCENTRATION" AND THAT MOST WERE KILLED OR CAPTURED WITHIN AN HOUR.

AT DAWN TODAY, IT SAID, THE AREA WAS "CAREFULLY COMBED AND THE LAST OF THE BRITISH MADE HARMLESS."

THE REPORT WAS WITHOUT CONFIRMATION.

"MAMA CHUNG" STANDS FOR MARGARET CHUNG, SAN FRANCISCO DOCTOR WHO GAINED FAME RECRUITING AMERICAN FLIERS TO FIGHT IN CHINA.

LIEUTENANT BARRY URDANG OF (2190 GRAND CONCOURSE, BRONX) NEW YORK CITY, FORMER SAN FRANCISCO NEWSPAPER PROMOTION MAN (NEWS), WAS AN HONORARY MEMBER OF THE CLUB, AND WHEN HE BECAME NAVIGATOR ON THE FORTRESS PILOTED BY LIEUT.HAL T.WALKER OF MONTGOMERY, ALA., THEY DECIDED TO CHRISTEN THE SHIP IN HONOR OF "MAMA CHUNG."

THEY PAINTED THE NAME ON IT IN BOTH ENGLISH AND CHINESE CHARACTERS, WITH AN IMPROVISED COAT OF ARMS. IT INCLUDED A FLASH OF LIGHTNING, A JUG OF WHISKEY, POOL CUES (SYMBOLIZING PLAYBOYS) AND TWO SWALLOWS, SYMBOLIZING PEACE.

JUL 15 1943

THEY FLEW THE SHIP SUCCESSFULLY OVER HERE, OVER A TORTUOUS FERRY ROUTE WITHOUT MISHAP. BUT ON A RAID SOON AFTER THEY ARRIVED, THE "MAMA CHUNG" WAS SHOT DOWN.

HOWEVER, HER REGULAR CREW--CO-PILOT LIEUT.DWIGHT E.ANDERSON, BAKERSFIELD, CALIF.; BOMBARDIER LIEUT.ARTHUR SPATZ, LAS VEGAS, NEV.; SERGEANTS JOSEPH DELANEY, FITCHBURG, MASS., TOPTURRET GUNNER; AL RAYMON, STAMFORD, CONN., RADIO GUNNER; JULIUS STEWART, SHAWNEE, OKLA., BALL TURRET GUNNER; TRAVIS HERREN, HUGO, OKLA., WAISTGUNNER; AND JOE ROCHE, MADISON, S.D., TAIL-GUNNER--WERE NOT ABOARD. THEY HAD BEEN SENT TO TRAINING SCHOOL A FEW DAYS BEFORE. (EDS: SECOND WAISTGUNNER VARIABLE).

THEY NAMED THEIR NEW SHIP "MAMA CHUNG II." IN IT THEY COMPLETED 12 RAIDS, SHOOTING DOWN FOUR GERMAN FIGHTERS, WITHOUT SERIOUS MISHAP. THE ONLY LOSS FROM THEIR CREW WAS TAILGUNNER ROCHE, WHO FILLED IN FOR ONE RAID ON ANOTHER PLANE. IT DID NOT RETURN.

THEN "MAMA CHUNG II" WAS SHOT DOWN. BUT A FEW DAYS BEFORE IT HAPPENED WALKER AND HIS CREW HAD BEEN TRANSFERRED TO ANOTHER SQUADRON, AND ASSIGNED ANOTHER PLANE. THREE DAYS AFTER THE LOSS, THEY WERE TRANSFERRED BACK AGAIN.

JUL 15 1943

NOW THEY'RE WAITING FOR THEIR FIRST TRIP ON "MAMA CHUNG III." THEY STILL THINK IT'S A LIKELY NAME. "IT'S ALWAYS DONE WELL BY US," THEY SAY.

BERN, SWITZERLAND, JULY 14-(AP)-THE GAZETTE DE LAUSANNE REPORTED TODAY THAT THE FIAT AND CAPRONI FACTORITES WERE ATTACKED WITH "EXTREME VIOLENCE" IN THE RAF'S RAID ON TURIN, ITALY, MONDAY NIGHT.

BERN, SWITZERLAND, JULY 14-(AP)-IL GIORNALE D'ITALIA TONIGHT ADMITTED THE BATTLE OF SICILY HAD ENTERED A "VERY SHARP" PHASE AND WAS EXTENDING CONSTANTLY TO OTHER REGIONS OF THE ISLAND.

THE FASCIST NEWSPAPER TOLD THE ITALIANS, MANY OF WHOM HAVE BEEN WONDERING WHERE THEIR NAVY AND THE NAZI AIR FORCE ARE, THAT THE ANGLO-AMERICAN COMMAND WAS PROFITING FROM AXIS "AIR AND NAVAL INFERIORITY" BUT THAT THE AXIS WAS CEASELESSLY LANDING REINFORCEMENTS OF MEN, ARTILLERY AND TANKS.

JUL 15 1943

THE BATTLE IS ESPECIALLY BITTER, SAID THE PAPER, AND DEMANDS GREAT EFFORT AND THE FAITH OF THE ITALIANS WHO "ARE AGAIN CALLED UPON TO SUSTAIN THE PRESSURE OF THE ANGLO-SAXON WAR. IT DECLARED THE ALLIES HAD PARTLY TURNED FROM THE PACIFIC AND RENOUNCED OTHER PLANS FOR THE INVASION OF EUROPE, TO CONCENTRATE ON ITALY.

A ROME DISPATCH TO THE TRIBUNE DE GENEVE REPORTED THAT OTHER ITALIAN NEWSPAPERS ADMITTED AND EMPHASIZED THAT THE PRINCIPLE REASON FOR THE ALLIED SUCCESS IN SICILY WAS "UNDENIABLE (ALLIED) SUPERIORITY OF MATERIAL," ESPECIALLY THE FLEET AND AIRCRAFT.

IT WAS ENOUGH TO COMPARE THE FACT THAT SOME 2,000 ALLIED SHIPS HAD PARTICIPATED IN THE INVASION WITH THE FACT THAT ONLY ABOUT A DOZEN WERE SUNK, SAID ONE NEWSPAPER.

JUL 15 1943

IT WAS GENERALLY EXPECTED IN ROME, SAID THE TRIBUNE, CORRESPONDENT, THAT NEW ALLIED LANDINGS WOULD OCCUR ON WESTERN SICILY TO PRESS AGAINST THE CENTER OF THE ISLAND, FROM WHICH THE ALLIES WOULD BE ABLE TO DRIVE IN ANY DIRECTION.

THE MORE OPTIMISTIC BUT UNCONVINCING REPORTS, WHICH ARE NOT LIKE THOSE OF THE FIRST FEW DAYS, NO LONGER ARE REPRINTED IN THE FASCIST PRESS ALTHOUGH THEY CONTINUE TO COME FROM BERLIN, IT WAS ASSERTED.

THE BERLIN CORRESPONDENT FOR THE TRIBUNE SAID MILITARY CIRCLES THERE OPINED THAT THE QUANTITY OF MEN AND MATERIALS LANDED IN SICILY WERE NOT IMPORTANT AND THAT THE MAIN FORCE OF THE AXIS HAD NO INTENTION OF ATTACKING AS LONG AS THE ALLIES WERE OPERATING UNDER COVER OF LONG-RANGE NAVAL GUNS. THEY DECLARED IT WOULD BE "MORE ADVANTAGEOUS" TO WAIT UNTIL THE ALLIES REACH THE MORE RUGGED INTERIOR WHERE THE NAVAL GUNS WILL BE OF NO HELP.

JUL 15 1943

A GERMAN REPORT FROM BERLIN DECLARED THAT A "VAST" BRITISH PARACHUTE ATTACK WEDNESDAY NIGHT AGAINST GERMAN-PREPARED POSITIONS IN THE PLAINS OF CATANIA HAD FAILED, WITH MOST OF AN ENTIRE REGIMENT OF PARACHUTISTS EITHER KILLED OR CAPTURED.

MADRID, JULY 14-(A)-A FAL E PARTY BULLETIN PUBLISHED TODAY ANNOUNCED THAT SIX LEADING MEMBER OF THE FASCIST PARTY'S NATIONAL COUNCIL NO LONGER BELONGED TO THAT BODY.

THEY WERE LISTED AS ALFONSO GARCIA VALDECASAS, FORMER PRESIDENT OF THE JUNTA, ONE OF THE FALANGE'S FOUNDERS; MANUEL HALCON, CHANCELLOR OF THE HISPANIDAD COUNCIL; PEDRO GAMERO DEL CASTILLO, FORMER MINISTER WITHOUT PORTFOLIO IN THE CABINET AND FORMER FALANGE VICE-SECRETARY; JOSE YANGUAS MESSIA, FORMER AMBASSADOR TO THE VATICAN; AMARELIO JOANIQUET

STOCKHOLM, JULY 14-(AP)-PRESSURE ON THE GOVERNMENT BY THE SWEDISH PRESS TO SUSPEND NAZI TRANSIT AND MILITARY TRAFFIC TO NORWAY "TODAY RATHER THAN TOMORROW" CONTINUED TONIGHT WITH A GENERAL STOCK-TAKING OF SWEDEN'S PREPAREDNESS AND CHANCES FOR A POSSIBLE INVASION OF NORWAY.

"IT IS CONCEIVABLE THAT NORWAY WILL BE THE NEXT OBJECTIVE FOR THE ALLIED THRUST," THE GOETEBORGS POSTEN DECLARED. "THE GERMANS ARE MAKING FEVERISH PREPARATIONS TO MEET SUCH AN ATTACK. THE FACT THAT ALSO THE SWEDISH GOVERNMENT IS RECKONING WITH EARLY HOSTILE EVENTS IN NORWAY OR DENMARK IS EVIDENT FROM FOREIGN MINISTER GUENTHER'S RECENT SPEECH. TODAY THE FARMER IS BEING TAKEN AT HIS BUSIEST TIME AWAY FROM IMPORTANT TASKS FOR SWEDEN'S MILITARY PREPAREDNESS NECESSITATES IT.

JUL 15 1943

"IT, HOWEVER, IS AN EQUALLY IMPORTANT MEASURE OF PREPAREDNESS NOW WHEN EVENTS ARE REACHING A CLIMAX IN THE NORTH TO WIND UP TRANSIT AND TRAFFIC AND GET RID OF THE GREAT RISKS WHICH GERMAN TRANSPORTS INVOLVE TO OUR RAILWAYS AND DISTRICTS THROUGH WHICH THESE TRANSPORTS PASS. IT IS BETTER TO END UP THE TRANSIT AND TRAFFIC TODAY THAN TOMORROW AND THE GOVERNMENT SHOULD NOT HAVE ANY DIFFICULTY FINDING REASONS."

THE NEWSPAPER SAID THE DEVELOPMENT OF ALLIED AIR BOMBING HAD IMPROVED THE SHIPPING SITUATION AND DECREASED THE IMPORTANCE OF NAZI U-BOATS AND NOW MAKE THE INVASION OF NORWAY PLAUSIBLE WHERE IT WOULD HAVE BEEN RULED OUT SOME TIME AGO.

THE SVENSKA MORGONBLADET EMPHASIZED THAT SWEDEN'S MILITARY PREPAREDNESS WAS AT ITS HEIGHT AND ADDED THAT EVERYONE KNOWS THE REASON FOR THE "INCREASED WATCHFULNESS." IT WENT ON:

JUL 15 1943

"THE ERA OF INVASIONS HAS COME AND WE KNOW AND UNDERSTAND THAT THE ALLIES ARE GOING TO DEAL WITH OTHER PLACES BESIDES SICILY, ONE OF WHICH UNDOUBTEDLY WILL BE THE NORWEGIAN COAST."

MEANTIME, THE NAZI-SPONSORED DAGSPOSTEN ASSAILED THE REST OF THE SWEDISH PRESS FOR ATTACKING GERMAN TRANSIT AND TRAFFIC AND DEMANDING THE STOPPAGE. IT POOH-POOHED ALLIED CHANCES OF SUCCESSFULLY INVADING NORWAY AND IF UNDERTAKEN, IT SAID, IT WOULD BE A "PURE DIVERSION OF TACTICS PRIMARILY AIMED AT DISTURBING SWEDISH RELATIONS WITH GERMANY."

AN ALLIED COMMAN[illegible] POST IN NORTH AFRICA, JULY 14--THE CAPTURE OF AUGUSTA IS OF THE UTMOST IMPORTANCE. IT IS CALLED THE MOST PERFECT NATURAL HARBOR IN THE MEDITERRANEAN.

THE FASCISTS HAVE SPENT VAST SUMS BUILDING IT INTO A GREAT NAVAL BASE. INSTALLATIONS INCLUDE MOLES BETWEEN TWO TO FIVE MILES IN LENGTH. EVERYTHING WAS FOUND IN PERFECT CONDITION AND CAN BE USED AT ONCE.

THIS WAS THE CENTRAL NEST OF AXIS SUBMARINES IN THE MEDITERRANEAN.

AUGUSTA FIRST WAS ENTERED BY A BRITISH NAVAL PARTY AT 10 A.M. MONDAY.

AN ITALIAN SUBMARINE WAS SIGHTED IN THE HARBOR. THE SUBMARINE

JUL 15 1943

GOT PANICKY AND ROSE TO THE SURFACE INSTEAD OF SUBMERGING.

ONE SHOT FROM A BRITISH MINESWEEPER SMASHED ITS CONNING TOWER AND THE CREW POURED OUT AND SURRENDERED.

THE GERMANS THEN MADE A STRONG ATTEMPT TO REENTER AUGUSTA. BRITISH ARMY UNITS MOVED IN AND FRUSTRATED THE COUNTER-ATTACK AND TOOK OVER AT 10 P.M.

JUL 15 1943

THE CAPTURE OF AUGUSTA CLIMAXED A RAPID, SMOOTH MARCH BY THE BRITISH EIGHTH ARMY OF GEN.MONTGOMERY WHO IS NOW ASHORE ACTIVELY DIRECTING OPERATIONS.

BY JAMES COOPER

LONDON DAILY EXPRESS CORRESPONDENT

(DISTRIBUTED BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS)

ABOARD AN ALLIED CRUISER OFF AUGUSTA, SICILY, JULY 12 (DELAYED) --AUGUSTA, NAVAL BASE IN EAST SICILY, WAS TAKEN BY A GREEK DESTROYER.

IT HAD BEEN EVACUATED AFTER A HEAVY NAVAL BOMBARDMENT.

IN A TOWN OF 17,000 PEOPLE NORMALLY, ONLY ONE MAN COULD BE FOUND.

THIS IS HOW IT HAPPENED. IT WAS JUST ONE AFTERNOON'S WORK BY A CRUISER SQUADRON PATROLLING BETWEEN CAPTURED SYRACUSE AND AUGUSTA.

THE NAVY PLASTERED THE HILLSIDE TOWN OF MELILLI, EIGHT MILES SOUTHWEST OF AUGUSTA, WHEN THE TOWN THREATENED THE WEST FLANK OF OUR FORCES GOING NORTH. THE ROADS WERE BOMBARDED IN SUPPORT OF OUR TANKS ENROUTE TO THE TOWN.

ATTACKS BY STUKA DIVEBOMBERS WERE BEATEN OFF, AND THEN CAME THE BOMBARDMENT OF AUGUSTA AND ITS CAPTURE.

JUL 15 1943

JUST AS A MAKE-WEIGHT, WE HAD SOME 30 AIRRAID ALARMS, MOST OF WHICH FAILED TO MATERIALIZE, THANKS TO THE PROTECTION OF OUR SPITFIRES.

JUL 15 1943

WITH OTHER CRUISERS WE HAD FINISHED BOMBARDING MELILLI, LEAVING IT COVERED WITH WHITE SMOKE, WITH A HUGE, BLACK SHEAF OF SMOKE IN THE CENTER SUGGESTING A BIG FIRE.

WE WERE PATROLLING OUTSIDE AUGUSTA, WHICH HAD NOT YET SURRENDERED, WITH THREE MINESWEEPERS WAITING TO GO IN AND PREPARE THE CHANNEL FOR BIGGER SHIPS.

AT 1 P.M. OUR FOUR-INCH GUNS, POMPOMS AND OERLIKONS BLAZED AWAY AT FOUR STUKAS WHICH SHOT DOWN TO DIVEBOMB A CRUISER.

LET US GIVE THE GERMANS CREDIT. IT WAS A BRAVE EFFORT IN DAYLIGHT AND IN THE MIDST OF OUR COVERING SPITFIRES. BUT IT FAILED.

THE SPITFIRES TAILED THEM AS THEY DIVED AND THEIR BOMBS FELL ASTERN OF THE NEAREST SHIP 100 YARDS AWAY. SPITFIRE PILOTS LATER REPORTED THAT ONE STUKA WAS LAST SEEN ON ITS BACK IN FLAMES.

THE NEXT HOUR OR SO IT WAS COMPARATIVELY QUIET. THERE WERE MORE BOMBS, BUT THANKS TO OUR FIGHTER UMBRELLA THEY FELL SO DISTANT THEY COULD BE SEEN BUT NOT HEARD.

SO WE HAD TIME TO BOMBARD ENEMY POSITIONS AND WATCH OUR TANKS RAISE CLOUDS OF GOLDEN DUST AS THEY TRUNDLED THROUGH THE VINEYARDS NORTH OF SYRACUSE ON THEIR WAY TO AUGUSTA, WHILE, AS IF RACING THEM, MOTOR LAUNCHES CHUGGED ALONG THE COAST, READY TO ENTER THE NAVAL BASE AT THE FIRST OPPORTUNITY.

30.24-6057

THEN CAME A REPORT THAT A WHITE FLAG WAS FLYING AT CAP ST.CROCE, NORTH OF AUGUSTA. A GREEK DESTROYER STEAMED INSHORE AND PUT OUT A BOAT. BUT, IN THE WORDS OF HER GREEK CAPTAIN, IT MUST HAVE BEEN A "MISUNDERSTANDING," FOR THE BOAT WAS FIRED ON.

THE GREEKS WITHDREW AND EVERY UNIT OF OUR SQUADRON POUNDED BATTERY POSITIONS IN THE TOWN. IT WAS THE MOST ACCURATE SHOOTING I HAVE SEEN IN 19 MONTHS WITH THE NAVY.

JUL 15 1943

OUR GUNNERY OFFICER WOULD CHOOSE A TARGET. THERE WAS A FLASH, THEN A ROAR LIKE A TRAIN GOING THROUGH A TUNNEL, AND THEN THE TARGET WOULD CRUMBLE. THE BATTERY WAS SILENCED IMMEDIATELY, AND THERE CAME A "WELL DONE" FROM AN ACCOMPANYING CRUISER.

ACCOMPANIED NOW BY TWO OTHER DESTROYERS, THE GREEK RETURNED TO THE HARBOR. IT WAS THEN THAT HE FOUND ONLY ONE MAN LEFT.

SO ONCE AGAIN A DESTROYER CAPTURED A SICILIAN PORT, EMULATING THE CAPTURE OF POZZALLO YESTERDAY. TROOPS AND TANKS WERE REPORTED LATER TO BE ON THE OUTSKIRTS OF THE TOWN.

THERE WERE MORE THRILLS TO COME. WITHOUT WARNING OUR CRUISER SHOOK ITS WHOLE LENGTH. I HAVE BEEN ON SHIPS TORPEDOED AND HIT BY SHELLS, BUT IT WAS NEITHER OF THOSE. WE COULD NOT FIND THE SLIGHTEST DAMAGE AND ASSUMED WE HAD EXPLODED A SMALL MINE WHICH HAD DRIFTED FROM THE HARBOR INTO WATER TOO DEEP TO DO THE SLIGHTEST DAMAGE.

AS A FINALE WE WATCHED OUR TROOP CARRIERS FLYING NORTH TO AUGUSTA AND LATER OUR TRANSPORTS STEAM INTO THE HARBOR TO LAND TROOPS.

THE NIGHT WAS EQUALLY EXCITING. IN THE MOONLIGHT UNTIL DAWN WE HAD A SUCCESSION OF FIGHTER-BOMBER ATTACKS, BUT NO SHIP WAS HIT. TWICE A RAIDER WAS SHOT DOWN.

JUL 15 1943

I HEARD ONE OF OUR NIGHT FIGHTERS SHOUT "I'VE GOT HIM," AND HAD TIME TO RUN TO THE BRIDGE AND SEE A "BANDIT" DROPPING IN THREE FLARING PIECES THAT LIT UP THE SEA.

JUL 15 1943

ON OTHER OCCASIONS WE PUT UP A BARRAGE UNTIL THE SHIP WAS ENCIRCLED IN A GLOWING NECKLACE OF RED TRACERS. AND FINALLY WE SHOT IT OUT WITH SOME SHORE BATTERIES NEAR CAMPOLALO WELL NORTH OF AUGUSTA.

"HEY, HOW ABOUT HOLDING THIS?" HE SHOUTED, PUTTING THE RING IN THE SERGEANT'S HAND. THEN HE JUMPED AND THE CHUTE OPENED.

LIKE BOMBER CREWS, THE TROOP CARRIER BOYS HAVE MASCOTS, AND ONE SQUADRON DOG, EARS ATTUNED TO HIS MASTER'S MOTORS, KEPT VIGIL UNTIL DAYLIGHT AFTER THE OTHERS HAD ALL ARRIVED. SCANNING THE SKIES, THE LITTLE POOCH WAITED ANXIOUSLY WITH THE GROUND CREW, THEN SUDDENLY DASHED DOWN THE FIELD.

JUL 15 1943

TAKING THE CUE, ALTHOUGH UNABLE TO HEAR ANYTHING THEMSELVES, THE CREW RACED IN A JEEP TO THE SPOT. SURE ENOUGH, THE PLANE APPEARED. ONE ENGINE SPUTTERING, AILERONS RIDDLED, AND TAIL ASKEW, IT WASN'T THE SAME THAT LEFT--BUT THE FAITHFUL DOG WASN'T FOOLED.

"GIVE THEM HALF A CHANCE AND THEY'LL ALWAYS BRING YOU BACK," SAID COL. JEROME MC CAULEY OF DENTON, TEXAS, WHO LED HIS GROUP FROM THE OPENING TO THE FINISH.

AND THAT, THE PILOTS PROUDLY POINT OUT, IS THE SAME AS THEY'VE BEEN SAYING ABOUT THE FLYING FORTS.

CAPT. FARRIS, DISCUSSING THE SITUATION AFTER SHELLS CRASHED THROUGH THE PLANE, SAID:

"THE AIRPLANE SPUN AT RIGHT ANGLES AND NEARLY PULLED THE CONTROLS FROM MY GRASP. FOR A SECOND I DIDN'T REALIZE WHAT HAD HAPPENED. THEN, FINDING MYSELF OUT OF THE FORMATION, I BEGAN VIOLENT ACTION. I SAW THREE PLANES BURNING ON THE GROUND AND RED TRACERS EVERYWHERE AS THE MACHINE-GUNNERS SPRAYED AS IF POTTING A FLIGHT OF DUCKS.

"THE CONDUCT OF THE CREW WAS ORDERLY AND COURAGEOUS, ESPECIALLY SGT. WALTER A.KAVONI, 2511 W. 69TH ST., CHICAGO, IND., THE NAVIGATOR, WHO BANDAGED A TROOPER'S BROKEN LEG."

MEANWHILE FARRIS HAD CUT INTO A LESS DANGEROUS SPOT TO GIVE THE PARACHUTE TROOPS A FIGHTING CHANCE TO REACH THE GROUND.

"BUT I'VE GOT TO HAND IT TO THOSE BOYS, ONE PRETTY BADLY HIT BY SHRAPNEL INSISTED ON LEAPING WITH THE OTHERS ALTHOUGH ORDERED TO REMAIN IN THE PLANE," HE SAID. "THEN WE TRIED SNEAKING OUT TO SEA AGAIN BUT WERE SHOT AT 15 MINUTES LONGER."

IT WAS THEN THAT HE RETRIMMED THE PLANE AND REACHED HIS HOME BASE SAFELY.

JUL 15 1943

AS FLIGHT OFFICER TANNER'S PLANE WAS FULL OF HOLES, HIS CREW RELIEVED ITS FEELINGS BY THROWING HAND GRENADES OUT THE WINDOWS BEFORE DIPPING TOWARD THE WATER, WHERE TO TANNER'S ASTONISHMENT THE SHIP BOUNCED 20 FEET INTO THE AIR.

"WHEN THAT HAPPENED I THOUGHT WE MIGHT AS WELL KEEP GOING AND WE CAME ON IN," HE SAID.

FELLOW OFFICERS SAID IT WAS ONE OF THE NICEST WHEEL LANDINGS AT NIGHT THAT THE OLD DOUGLAS EVER MADE.

"HEY, HOW ABOUT HOLDING THIS?" HE SHOUTED, PUTTING THE RING IN THE SERGEANT'S HAND. THEN HE JUMPED AND THE CHUTE OPENED.

LIKE BOMBER CREWS, THE TROOP CARRIER BOYS HAVE MASCOTS, AND ONE SQUADRON DOG, EARS ATTUNED TO HIS MASTER'S MOTORS, KEPT VIGIL UNTIL DAYLIGHT AFTER THE OTHERS HAD ALL ARRIVED. SCANNING THE SKIES, THE LITTLE POOCH WAITED ANXIOUSLY WITH THE GROUND CREW, THEN SUDDENLY DASHED DOWN THE FIELD.

TAKING THE CUE, ALTHOUGH UNABLE TO HEAR ANYTHING THEMSELVES, THE CREW RACED IN A JEEP TO THE SPOT. SURE ENOUGH, THE PLANE APPEARED. ONE ENGINE SPUTTERING, AILERONS RIDDLED, AND TAIL ASKEW, IT WASN'T THE SAME THAT LEFT--BUT THE FAITHFUL DOG WASN'T FOOLED.

"GIVE THEM HALF A CHANCE AND THEY'LL ALWAYS BRING YOU BACK," SAID COL. JEROME MC CAULEY OF DENTON, TEXAS, WHO LED HIS GROUP FROM THE OPENING TO THE FINISH.

AND THAT, THE PILOTS PROUDLY POINT OUT, IS THE SAME AS THEY'VE BEEN SAYING ABOUT THE FLYING FORTS.

ADVANCED AIR BASE IN TUNISIA--FOURTH ADD AIR TRANSPORTS (BY PETERMAN) XXX FLYING FORTS.

CAPT. FARRIS, DISCUSSING THE SITUATION AFTER SHELLS CRASHED THROUGH THE PLANE, SAID:

JUL 15 1943

"THE AIRPLANE SPUN AT RIGHT ANGLES AND NEARLY PULLED THE CONTROLS FROM MY GRASP. FOR A SECOND I DIDN'T REALIZE WHAT HAD HAPPENED. THEN, FINDING MYSELF OUT OF THE FORMATION, I BEGAN VIOLENT ACTION. I SAW THREE PLANES BURNING ON THE GROUND AND RED TRACERS EVERYWHERE AS THE MACHINE-GUNNERS SPRAYED AS IF POTTING A FLIGHT OF DUCKS.

JUL 15 1943

"THE CONDUCT OF THE CREW WAS ORDERLY AND COURAGEOUS, ESPECIALLY SGT. WALTER A.KAWOHL, 2511 W. 69TH ST., CHICAGO, IND., THE NAVIGATOR, WHO BANDAGED A TROOPER'S BROKEN LEG."

MEANWHILE FARRIS HAD CUT INTO A LESS DANGEROUS SPOT TO GIVE THE PARACHUTE TROOPS A FIGHTING CHANCE TO REACH THE GROUND.

"BUT I'VE GOT TO HAND IT TO THOSE BOYS, ONE PRETTY BADLY HIT BY SHRAPNEL INSISTED ON LEAPING WITH THE OTHERS ALTHOUGH ORDERED TO REMAIN IN THE PLANE," HE SAID. "THEN WE TRIED SNEAKING OUT TO SEA AGAIN BUT WERE SHOT AT 15 MINUTES LONGER."

IT WAS THEN THAT HE RETRIMMED THE PLANE AND REACHED HIS HOME BASE SAFELY.

AS FLIGHT OFFICER TANNER'S PLANE WAS FULL OF HOLES, HIS CREW RELIEVED ITS FEELINGS BY THROWING HAND GRENADES OUT THE WINDOWS BEFORE DIPPING TOWARD THE WATER, WHERE TO TANNER'S ASTONISHMENT THE SHIP BOUNCED 20 FEET INTO THE AIR.

"WHEN THAT HAPPENED I THOUGHT WE MIGHT AS WELL KEEP GOING AND WE CAME ON IN," HE SAID.

FELLOW OFFICERS SAID IT WAS ONE OF THE NICEST WHEEL LANDINGS AT NIGHT THAT THE OLD DOUGLAS EVER MADE.

JUL 15 1943

"AFTER DAYLIGHT I SPOTTED TWO MESSENGERS COMING ALONG SO I TORE OFF MY UNDER SHIRT AND WAVED IT AT THEM THEN TIED PIECES AROUND MY HEAD AND ARM. THAT'S A TRICK I LEARNED IN TUNISIA. THE MEN CARRIED ME TO A LANDING CRAFT WITHOUT A SNIPER TAKING A SINGLE SHOT AT US."

A FIELD ARTILLERYMAN WHOSE HAND WAS LACERATED DURING THE GELA OPERATIONS WHEN A TANK LANDING CRAFT WAS DIVE-BOMBED SAID THE BEACH WAS STRAFED BY PLANES DURING ALL OF THE FIRST DAY AND THE ENEMY TRIED ITS HARDEST TO KNOCK OUT ENGINEERS UNLOADING TANKS. THE CRAFT ON WHICH HE WAS RIDING WAS STRUCK SQUARELY BY A BOMB, HE SAID, SETTING FIRE TO A NUMBER OF TRUCKS ON BOARD ANJ CAUSING THE LOAD OF AMMUNITION TO EXPLODE.

"I WAS SITTING IN A TRUCK WHEN THE SHELL HIT," HE SAID, "AND THE FIRST THING I KNEW THE ROOF FLEW OFF AND PIECES OF STEEL WERE BANGING AGAINST EVERYTHING. SOME OF THE BOYS WERE SERIOUSLY INJURED BUT I WAS JUST SCRATCHED. I WENT OVER TO ANOTHER LANDING BARGE FOR FIRST AID AND WHILE I WAS PUTTING ON A BANDAGE THEY HOISTED ANCHOR AND STARTED BACK TO AFRICA. THAT'S HOW I GOT BACK. I'M NOT MUCH GOOD TO MY UNIT HERE."

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, JULY 14-(AP)-LIEUT. JOSEPH FOX LOOKED AGAIN AT THE AERIAL PHOTOGRAPH AND THEN HE LOOKED AT THE BOMBARDIER.

"YOU MUST HAVE MARKED THIS PICTURE WITH AN AXE," HE SAID.

"WELL," SAID THE BOMBARDIER, WHO WAS LIEUT. VICTOR GOODMAN OF 134 EAST 32ND ST., NEW YORKKKVNT, "YOU SAID YOU WANTED IT MARKED PLAIN. IT'S PLAIN, ISN'T IT?"

THE PICTURE, WHICH SHOWED THE TERRAIN OF A PARTICULAR TARGET ON SICILY, HAD BEEN A BONE OF CONTENTION BETWEEN FOX, WHO COMES FROM MILWAUKEE, AND BOMBARDIER GOODMAN FOR SEVERAL DAYS AND MANY SORTIES.

JUL 15 1943

FOX, AN ADMINISTRATIVE OFFICER WITH ONE OF THE AMERICAN MARAUDER UNITS

FOX, AN ADMINISTRATIVE OFFICER WITH ONE OF THE AMERICAN MARAUDER UNITS, HAD BEEN ASKING GOODMAN TO MARK THE LOCATION OF SOME ANTI-AIRCRAFT BATTERIES THAT SURROUND THAT PARTICULAR TARGET. GOODMAN HAD COME BACK FROM SEVERAL MISSIONS WITHOUT HAVING DONE IT. HE SAID HE HAD BEEN "PLENTY BUSY" EACH TIME THE BOMBER WAS OVER THAT SPOT.

FINALLY, JUST BEFORE A RECENT TAKEOFF, FOX HAD SPECIFICALLY ASKED GOODMAN TO TRY AND GET THE LOCATION.

THE PHOTOGRAPH CAME BACK WITH THREE HOLES IN IT. THEY WERE ALMOST IN THE EXACT SPOT WHERE THE ITALIAN ANTI-AIRCRAFT BATTERIES HAD BEEN SEEN BEFORE, BUT GOODMAN HADN'T MADE THE MARKINGS.

THEY WERE MADE BY THREE FRAGMENTS OF AN ANTI-AIRCRAFT SHELL WHICH HAD PIERCED THE BOMBARDIER'S COMPARTMENT AND HAD HIT THE PICTURE EXACTLY WHERE GOODMAN WAS GOING TO TAKE A SCENE.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, JULY 14-(AP)-SHABBILY UNIFORMED ITALIAN TROOPS CAPTURED BY AMERICAN AND BRITISH INVASION ARMIES HAD A CHANCE TO READ IN THE SOLDIER NEWSPAPER "STARS AND STRIPES" TODAY THAT PREMIER MUSSOLINI HAD RADIOED THEM IN SICILY "I AM WITH YOU IN SPIRIT."

THE ACTION WAS SEEN BY SERGEANT JOSEPH H.JAMES, JR., OF GREENVILLE, S.C.. JAMES SAID:

"FIRES WERE BLAZING IN THAT SHIP'S RIGHT ENGINE AND BOMB BAY AND SHE WAS FALLING FAST. A MACCHI-202 WAS ON HER TAIL AS SHE DROPPED. THE TAIL GUNNER KEPT FIRING AT HIM ALL THE WAY DOWN.

FIRST LEAD PRISONERS

BY NOLAND NORGAARD

AN ALLIED FORCE COMMAND POST IN NORTH AFRICA, JULY 14-(AP)-A TOTAL OF MORE THAN 12,000 GERMAN AND ITALIAN PRISONERS HAVE BEEN CAPTURED IN SICILY, OF WHICH MORE THAN 8,000 WERE TAKEN BY THE AMERICAN SEVENTH ARMY, IT WAS ANNOUNCED TONIGHT.

JUL 15 1943

THE BRITISH EIGHTH ARMY, WHICH INCLUDES CANADIAN UNITS, TOOK THE REMAINDER IN THEIR PUSH UP THE EASTERN SICILIAN COAST.

MOST OF THESE PRISONERS ALREADY HAVE BEEN EVACUATED FROM THE ISLAND BY THE ALLIED SHIPS, MILITARY SOURCES SAID.

THUS FAR THERE WERE NO SIGNS OF ANY ENEMY WITHDRAWAL FROM SICILY. BUT THIS SOURCE SAID THE GERMANS APPEARED VERY DISCONSOLATE BECAUSE THEY WERE SURROUNDED EVERYWHERE BY ITALIAN SOLDIERS WHO SHOWED LITTLE INCLINATION TO FIGHT.

THE SICILIAN POPULATION CONTINUES TO BE VERY FRIENDLY. THE PEOPLE WAVE AND CHEER THE ADVANCING ALLIES, AND THE "V" SIGN IS SEEN ALONG HIGHWAYS. MANY CIVILIANS ULREADY ARE WORKING ON THE DOCKS, HELPING TO UNLOAD THE VAST STORES NEEDED TO SUPPLY THE ALLIED TROOPS.

TO DATE OFFICIAL PRONOUNCEMENTS HAVE MENTIONED ONLY FOUR ITALIAN DIVISIONS ENGAGED IN ACTUAL COMBAT AGAINST THE INVADERS, IN ADDITION TO SOME GERMAN ELEMENTS, NOTABLY TANK FORCES AND UNITS OF THE CRACK HERMANN GOERING DIVISION.

JUL 15 1943

THE CAPTURE OF 12,000 FROM SUCH FORCES INDICATES THAT ENEMY RESISTANCE CRUMBLED AMONG THE FIRST ITALIANS ENCOUNTERED, AND LITTLE OPPOSITION IS LIKELY FROM WHAT REMAINS OF TWO LOW GRADE COASTAL DIVISIONS WHICH OFFERED PERFUNCTORY RESISTANCE TO THE LANDINGS.

INFORMED QUARTERS STILL AVOIDED OVER-OPTIMISM, SAYING THAT AXIS TROOPS OF HIGHER CALIBER LIKELY WOULD BE ENCOUNTERED AS THE ALLIES PRESS ON NORTHWARD.

IRVING SMITH, A NEWSREEL CAMERAMAN WHO COVERED THE AMERICAN LANDINGS AND REUTNRED TO NORTH AFRICA ON A SHIP THAT BROUGHT SOME AXIS WOUNDED SAID A NUMBER OF ITALIANS SURRENDERED WITH THEIR TRAVELING BAGS PACKED.

JUL 15 1943

"I CAN'T SPEAK ITALIAN AND CAN'T SWEAR TO THIS PART--BUT THE BOYS SAID THE PRISONERS' FIRST QUESTION WAS: 'WHERE ARE WE GOING AND WHEN.'"

ABOARD A CRUISER IN CATANIA BAY-2ND ADD INVASION XXX JULY 10. LEE

THIS NORTHERN AND EASTERN SPEARHEAD OF THE ENTIRE ASSAULT WAS LED BY VETERAN EIGHTH ARMY TROOPS. FARTHER SOUTH CANADIANS AND AMERICANS PERFORMED SIMILARLY, THE SOUTHWESTERNMOST SECTOR BEING ALL AMERICAN IN EVERY RESPECT--NAVAL, AIR AND ARMY.

THROUGHOUT JULY 10 AND 11 THE GERMANS AND ITALIANS, MOSTLY THE

JUL 15 1943

GERMANS, MADE PERSISTENT AIR ATTACKS AGAINST THE SHIPS AND BEACHES, WITH SCANTY SUCCESS. THEY SET AFIRE ONLY ONE MERCHANT VESSEL IN THIS AREA AND THEIR ONLY OTHER "SUCCESS" WAS THE DELIBERATE AND BRUTAL SINKING OF A HOSPITAL SHIP. I WITNESSED THAT.

WITH THE ANNOUNCED ALLIED CAPTURE OF AT LEAST FOUR SICILIAN AIR-FIELDS PLUS GERMAN AIR LOSSES, THE ALLIED PROGRESS CONSIDERABLY IMPROVED JULY 12 AND 13. AXIS AIR INTERFERENCE WAS NOTICEABLY LESS BOTHERSOME IN THE TWO DAYS PAST.

JUL 15 1943

AXIS AIR POWER IS STILL SUFFICIENT, HOWEVER, TO CAUSE OUR SHIPS TO MAINTAIN THEIR TERRIFIC, EAR-SPLITTING BARRAGE FROM ALL TYPES OF GUNS, PARTICULARLY FROM DAWN TO DUSK AND BEFORE THE MOON SETS. THESE ARE FAVORED ATTACK TIMES.

WITH SPOTTERS ASHORE WORKING, THE BRITISH FLEET IS PATROLLING IN GREAT STRENGTH ALONG THE EASTERN COAST AND LOBBING SHELLS REPEATEDLY AND EFFECTIVELY INTO ENEMY STRONG POINTS AND BATTERIES ASHORE. THE BOOM OF NAVAL GUNS IS DEAFENING AND CONSTANT.

ON THE EARLY EVENING OF JULY 11 THIS SHIP SHOT UP A SHORE BATTERY ON THE PENINSULA OF NORTH AUGUSTA, DRAWING NO REPLY, BUT STARTING A BLACK, SMOKY FIRE.

JUL 15 1943

AFTER BEATING OFF THE EXPECTED AND USUAL GERMAN FIGHTER AND DIVE-BOMBER ASSAULT DURING THE DAWN OF JULY 12 THIS CRUISER AND SISTER SHIPS BOMBARDED THE TOWN OF MELILLI, 10 MILES INLAND, FOR HALF AN HOUR. OTHER PARTICIPANTS INCLUDED SEVERAL CRUISERS AND A MONITOR.

AT THE ARMY'S REQUEST, THE CRUISERS BOMBARDED MELILLI AGAIN JULY 13 AND THE MONITOR CONTINUED ITS DEVASTATING HEAVY SHELLING MOST OF YESTERDAY MORNING. THIS HILLSIDE TOWN IS AT A POINT WHERE THE COASTAL STRIP NARROWS SOMEWHAT AND APPARENTLY WAS CHOSEN BY THE ENEMY AS A GOOD SPOT TO TRY TO HOLD UP THE ADVANCE. HOWEVER, THE TOWN WAS CAPTURED IN THE AFTERNOON OF JULY 13. A SHORE OBSERVER SIGNALLED US THIS MORNING:

JUL 15 1943

"MELILLI DAMAGE WORSE THAN LONDON BLITZ."

THE CRUISERS' FIRST SHELLING OF MELILLI WAS QUICKLY FOLLOWED JULY 12 BY SHOOTING UP AUGUSTA'S SHORE BATTERIES AND THEN THIS SHIP PUMPED THREE ROUNDS INTO FIELD GUNS WHICH WERE HOLDING UP BRITISH TROOPS IN AUGUSTA BAY. THIS WAS THE BEST SHOOTING OF THE DAY, AS AFTER THE THREE ROUNDS THE ARMY SIGNALLED "CEASE FIRE--TARGET DESTROYED."

THE TROOPS TOOK UP POSITIONS FOUR MILES SOUTH OF AUGUSTA AND SIGNALLED "FIRST CLASS SHOOTING. THANK YOU."

DURING THE AFTERNOON OF JULY 12 OUR SHIP WAS ASKED BY THE ARMY TO BOMBARD ANOTHER ENEMY SHORE BATTERY, BUT JUST AS IT PREPARED TO SHOOT A NEW SIGNAL SAID:

"HOLD FIRE. TARGET BEING ATTACKED BY OUR TANKS."

A FEW MINUTES LATER CAME THE SIGNAL, "TANKS DESTROYED TARGET."

"ROBBED OF OUR PREY!" EXCLAIMED GUNNER CHIEF COMMANDER RICHARD IVAN ALEXANDER SARELL OF EAST GRINSTEAD, SUSSEX, WHO DESERVES THE TITLE OF "DEAD-EYE DICK" IF ANY GUNNERY OFFICER EVER DID.

THE ARMY SOON SUGGESTED A NEW TARGET AND AFTER 15 MINUTES OF FIRING SIGNALLED "CEASE FIRE. GOOD WORK."

THE CITY OF AUGUSTA SEEMED SO QUIET DURING THE AFTERNOON OF JULY 12 THAT A GREEK DESTROYER WENT BOLDLY INSIDE THE HARBOR BOOM JUST TO SEE WHAT WOULD HAPPEN. IT CAME OUT FIRING HOTLY AND SIGNALLED IT HAD

JUL 15 1943

TAKEN ONE PRISONER WHO CLAIMED THE TOWN WAS DESERTED, BUT IT WAS BEING SHELLED BY GUNS ON THE HILLS JUST OUTSIDE OF TOWN, WHICH IS ON AN ISLAND CONNECTED TO THE MAINLAND BY A CAUSEWAY.

AS THE SUN WAS DROPPING TOWARD THE WESTERN HILLS ABOUT 7:30 P.M., JULY 12 GREEK AND SEVERAL OTHER DESTROYERS CLOSED IN TO POINT BLANK RANGE AND BEGAN THE HEAVY SHELLING OF AUGUSTA. A HOT BATTLE QUICKLY DEVELOPED, PREVIOUSLY SILENT GUNS IN AND AROUND THE TOWN DISCLOSING THEIR PRESENCE FOR THE FIRST TIME AND RETURNING SHOT FOR SHOT.

FRESH BRITISH INFANTRY BROUGHT BY A TRANSPORT LEAPED INTO SMALL LANDING CRAFT AND STORMED THE BEACH UNDER COVER OF THE DESTROYERS' GUNS.

JUL 15 1943

THE SCENE WAS ONE OF WEIRD BEAUTY, PROBABLY NEVER DUPLICATED IN WARFARE AND CERTAINLY NOT SURPASSED. I NEVER EXPECT TO SEE ANYTHING LIKE IT AGAIN. OFF TO THE RIGHT A GREAT CONE, MOUNT ETNA, LOOMED PURPLE IN THE SETTING SUN WITH A FAINT WISVVVV/

THE CONSTANT CRUMP AND CRACKLE OF SHELLS DRIFTED AND HUNG. COVERING THIS ATTACK THIS CRUISER FIRED IN A FEW ROUNDS FOR GOOD MEASURE, JUST AS A BLOODY RED DISK OF SUN SETTLED BELOW THE WESTERN HILLS.

JUL 15 1943

THE ARMY THEN ASKED ALL TO QUIT FIRING AS TROOPS HAD GAINED THE NORTH PART OF THE TOWN. AS THE SOUNDS OF BATTLE THINNED THE BIG SHIPS PULLED AWAY SLIGHTLY. THEY RECEIVED THE FOLLOWING SIGNAL FROM SHORE: "FIELD COMMANDER CONGRATULATES AND THANKS YOU ALL FOR TODAY'S GRAND SHOOTING."

OUR CRUISER REPLIED "YOUR KIND MESSAGE VERY MUCH APPRECIATED. HOPE TO HAVE MORE SHOOTS TOMORROW."

THE SHIPS BEAT OFF THE CUSTOMARY GERMAN MOONLIGHT AERIAL ASSAULT ON THE NIGHT OF JULY 12. SO ACCUSTOMED HAVE WE ALL BECOME TO THIS ACTIVITY THAT I ACTUALLY BECAME SO SLEEPY I WENT BELOW AND TOOK A NAP WHILE THE NOISY AIR BATTLE WAS STILL GOING ON. A FEW DAYS AGO I WOULD HAVE DECLARED THIS IMPOSSIBLE BUT FAMILIARITY AND WAKEFULNESS TEND TO DULL FEELINGS AND PERCEPTIONS.

BEFORE GOING TO SLEEP I DID SEE ONE BRILLIANT SIGHT AS AN ALLIED NIGHT FIGHTER SET A GERMAN DIVE-BOMBER AFLAME AT AN ALTITUDE OF ABOUT 1,000 FEET. FLARING LIKE A GIGANTIC TORCH, THE ENEMY FELL VERTICALLY AND SMASHED ASHORE WHERE IT BURNED LIKE A BONFIRE FOR TWO MINUTES. THEN ALL WAS DARK.

THIS NIGHT FIGHTER ACTIVITY IS TYPICAL OF THE INCREASING ALLIED AIR COVER. THE ENEMY DUSK ATTACKS ARE BECOMING WEAKER WITH FEWER PLANES

3024 - 6067

DASHING IN, DROPPING A FEW BOMBS AND RACING OFF AGAIN. ONE FELL WITHIN 50 FEET OF THIS SHIP JULY 12 BUT APPARENTLY IT WAS ONLY A 25 OR 50 POUNDER FOR IT MADE A "SPUTT" NOISE ALMOST INAUDIBLE ABOVE OUR GUN-FIRE.

JUL 15 1943

THE ARMY ASHORE REPORTED ON THE MORNING OF JULY 13 THAT AUGUSTA WAS CAPTURED. ITS USE TODAY WAS PRESUMABLY A BIG HELP IN FURTHERING THE ADVANCE INTO THE "AIRPORT COUNTRY" OF THE CATANIA PLAIN.

THIS SHIP CONTINUED DURING THE AFTERNOON OF JULY 13 TO SHELL VARIOUS STRONG POINTS ASHORE. AS WE WERE PREPARING ONE SUCH SHOOT ANTIAIRCRAFT GUNS FIRED A HEAVY BARRAGE.

"WHAT ARE WE DOING?" ASKED AN OFFICER IN THE TURRET.

"JUST FIRING UP A SUN BARRAGE TO TEASE A FOCKE-WULF OCCUPANT OF THE SUN," REPLIED GUNNER SARRELL.

WITH THE NEWS THAT STUBBORN MELILLI WAS TAKEN WE MOVED NORTHWARD AND SHELLED AN INLAND DEFENDED POINT. WE WERE UNABLE TO SEE THE SHOTS BUT THE FORCES ASHORE REPORTED TWO OF FOUR BROADSIDES HIT THE TARGET AND THE THIRD WAS ONLY 100 YARDS DISTANT. THE CRUISER FIRED ONCE AT ANOTHER DEFENDED POINT OUT OF SIGHT AND AFTER A SHORT DELAY GOT THE SIGNAL BACK, "OK."

GUNNER SARELL REMARKED "APPARENTLY WHAT WE THOUGHT WAS A LOST BALL PROVED TO BE A HOLE IN ONE."

JUL 15 1943

SHORTLY AFTER NOON JULY 13 FOCKE-WULFS SWOOPED AND STRADDLED THE SHIP WITH BOMBS. WHILE THIS 20 MINUTE ATTACK WAS PROGRESSING THE CAPTAIN SAID, "GUNS, AS SOON AS WE'VE GOT RID OF THIS NONSENSE PLEASE BE PREPARED TO PROCEED WITH OUR BOMBARDMENT."

BUT WHEN HE SIGNALLED THE SHORE HE WAS READY THE ARMY REPLIED:

"ENEMY EVACUATING--GOOD SHOOTING."

THIS SHIP AND OTHERS SUBSEQUENTLY MOVED ARINGLY INTO CATANIA BAY TO SHELL A VARIETY OF TARGETS AND DRAW RETURN FIRE FROM ITALIAN GUNS OF AT LEAST EIGHT INCHES USING AIRCRAFT AS SPOTTERS.

JUL 15 1943

WE SHELLED THE TOWNS OF LENTINI AND CARLENTINI WHILE BIG AND LITTLE SHELLS FROM CATANIA'S DIRECTION SPLASHED WATER 50 YARDS SHORT OF US. THE SHIP PULLED BACK AND SHELLED THE BATTERY ON PUNTO CASTELLUZZO, SEVERAL BROADSIDES SILENCING IT--AT LEAST FOR THE PRESENT.

SIMULTANEOUSLY, A TERRIFIC DOG FIGHT WAS GOING ON FIVE MILES ABOVE OUR HEADS AS SPITFIRES CHASED AXIS PLANES SPOTTING FOR SHORE GUNS AND COMING IN FOR ANOTHER GO AT LENTINI, AND THIS SHIP WAS STRADDLED BY TWO EIGHT-INCH SHELLS OR BIGGER 30 YARDS ON EACH SIDE--SO CLOSE THAT COMMANDER PATRICK BROCK OF VANCOUVER SAID IT LOOKED AS IF HE COULD TOUCH ONE FROM HIS AFTER CONNING POSITION. THE ENTIRE SHIP SHOOK. CAPTAIN DAVIS TOOK US OUT AT TOP SPEED, THEN CIRCLED AND DASHED IN AT AN OBLIQUE ANGLE.

WITH A DESTROYER PACING US AS "RIGHT GUARD" TO SEE THAT NOTHING WAS DISTURBED FROM SEAWARD, WE WENT CLOSE AS POSSIBLE TO SHORE AND LET LENTINI HAVE IT WITH ALL OUR MAIN ARMAMENT. THE CRUISER WAS WELL WITHIN THE RANGE OF THE CATANIA BATTERIES, WHICH WERE OUT OF HER OWN RANGE, BUT THE ENEMY APPEARED THUNDERSTRUCK BY THE MANEUVER AND WAS SILENT. THE ADMIRAL OF THE CRUISER SQUADRON, WHO HAD A GRANDSTAND SEAT OUTSIDE, SIGNALLED:

"THAT WAS VERY CUNNING BOMBARDMENT."

ONE VETERAN BRITISH OBSERVER ABOARD REMARKED: "VERY FEW PEOPLE HAVE BEEN STRADDLED THAT CLOSE BY EIGHT-INCH SHELLS AND LIVED TO TELL

JUL 15 1943

ABOUT IT, TO SAY NOTHING OF GOING IN AGAIN AS WE DID, FOR THE NEXT SHOT USUALLY GETS YOU."

A GOOD OMEN WAS THE LACK OF ENEMY AIR ATTACK LAST NIGHT, ALTHOUGH A FEW BOMBS FELL DANGEROUSLY CLOSE EARLY THIS MORNING, JULY 14.

AT DAWN WE WERE ABLE TO SEE THE SOUTH SHORES OF ITALY ITSELF. THEN WE TURNED AND SHELLED LENTINI AGAIN THIS MORNING, AND DREW A SHORT BURST OF CATANIA BATTERY FIRE AGAIN, POSSIBLY FROM A RAILWAY GUN.

JUL 15 1943

THE SHIP'S COMPANY WAS HEARTENED BY SIGNALS THAT MOTOR TORPEDO BOATS HAD INVADED THE STRAITS OF MESSINA AND DRIVEN TWO ENEMY E-BOATS ASHORE IN FLAMES. IT WAS ALSO LEARNED THAT OVERNIGHT PARACHUTISTS LANDED AT NORTH LENTINI WHERE A HOT BATTLE WAS PROGRESSING.

A RUSSIAN NAVAL OBSERVER ABOARD, STARING LONG AT THE MAP OF ENEMY STRONG POINTS, MADE A FACE AND EXCLAIMED IN HIS RUDIMENTARY BUT EFFECTIVE ENGLISH, "LIKE LOUSES IN A MATTRESS."

THE DELOUSING PROCESS IS GOING STEADILY AHEAD.

JUL 15 1943

JR., 25, OF COLUMBIA, S.C., AND WALTER S.BEAT, 24, OF ST.PETERSBURG, FLA., STRUCK THE HEAVIEST BLOW OF THE WAR AGAINST JAPANESE SHIPPING TODAY WHEN THEY SANK THREE ENEMY VESSELS, AGGREGATING 14,000 TONS, AT HONGAY AND CAMPHA PORTS.

IN ADDITION, THE LIBERATORS IN BRADY'S WAVE DESTROYED THE MAIN POWER PLANT AT HONGAY, 30 MILES NORTH EAST OF HAIPHONG, THEN DIVED TO AN ALTITUDE OF ONLY 25 FEET AND STRAFED TO PIECES A JAPANESE SEAPLANE TIED UP TO THE HONGAY DOCK.

BEAT'S LIBERATORS DESCENDED AFTER THEIR BOMBING AND STRAFED THE DOCKS, RAILROADS, RAIL SHOPS AND COAL DUMPS AT CAMPHA PORT, RIDDLING TWO LOCOMOTIVES, HITTING THE LIGHTHOUSE AND KNOCKING A HEAVY CRANE OUT OF COMMISSION.

JUL 15 1943

ALL THE LIBERATORS AND THEIR CREWS RETURNED SAFELY. NO ENEMY FIGHTERS SHOWED UP. THE LIBERATORS RAN INTO LIGHT ANTI-AIRCRAFT FIRE ENROUTE TO THEIR TARGETS.

COL. EUGENE H.BEEBE, 36, OF MOSCOW, IDAHO, THE GROUP COMMANDER, DESCRIBED THE RAIDS AS "A HUGE SUCCESS".

THE RAIDS ON HONGAY AND CAMPHA CLIMAXED FOUR DAYS OF BOMBING ON AN INDO-CHINA AREA ALONG THE GULF OF TONKING, DURING WHICH 132,000 POUNDS OF EXPLOSIVES WERE DROPPED. ON THE FIRST DAY AN 8,000 TON FREIGHTER WAS SUNK, AND A SMALLER VESSEL PROBABLY DESTROYED. THUS FIVE SHIPS ALL TOLD WERE SUNK--A ROUNDHOUSE BLOW TO THE JAPANESE WHO ARE RUSHING SUPPLIES, MUNITIONS AND MEN TO THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC. IN ADDITION TO THESE RAIDS LIBERATORS WERE ALSO AT KUNLONG, JUST INSIDE BURMA AT THE JUNCTION OF THE SALWEEN AND NAMTING RIVERS, SUPPORTING CHINESE GROUND OPERATIONS.

A PLANE IN BRADY'S WAVE, PILOTED BY CAPT.ROBERT F.BURNETT, 27, OF BUTTON WILLOW, CALIF., BOMBARDIERED BY LIEUT.BUSBY W.SWENEY, 22, OF MARION, OHIO, GOT TWO SHIPS OFF HONGAY TODAY--A 4,000-TON NAVAL AUXILIARY VESSEL AND A 4,000-TON FREIGHTER.

"THERE WAS A TERRIFIC EXPLOSION AFTER THE BOMBS HIT THE AUXILIARY SHIP", SWENEY SAID. "SOME OF THE CREW GOT AWAY IN A LIFEBOAT.

JUL 15 1943

I SCORED A DIRECT HIT ON THE STERN OF THE FREIGHTER. THE DEBRIS FLEW IN ALL DIRECTIONS, COVERING A WIDE AREA OF THE SEA."

THE PLANE PILOTED BY BRADY AND BOMBARDIERED BY LIEUT. ALFREDO MONITIO, 24, OF 1330 76TH ST., BROOKLYN, N.Y., SCORED FIVE DIRECT HITS ON THE MONGAY POWER PLANT. OFFICIAL PICTURES SHOWED IT GUTTED FROM ONE END TO THE OTHER.

JUL 15 1943

A THIRD VESSEL--A 6,000-TON FREIGHTER--WAS SUNK AT CAMPHA BY A PLANE OF BEAT'S WAVE PILOTED BY LIEUT.FRANK E.FERRELL, 21, OF HURTSBORO, ALA., AND BOMBARDIERED BY LIEUT.BERT E.WEBB, 25, OF ANN ARBOR, MICH., AND IT STARTED SINKING AT THE BOW IMMEDIATELY. CAPT.PHIL ADLER, 28, OF LEBANON, IND., PILOTING A PLANE IN THE SAME WAVE SAID," THE FREIGHTER WAS ENTIRELY SUBMERGED WHEN I FLEW OVER THE SPOT TEN MINUTES LATER."

MAJ.EDWARD S.SCHOLTZ, 45, OF MARYVILLE, MO., ASSISTANT GROUP EXECUTIVE OFFICER, WENT ON THE RAID IN BEAT'S PLANE AND MANDLED A WAIST GUN. SCHOLTZ, WHO HAS BY ACTUAL COUNT 625 DAYS FLYING TIME, GOT SOME BURSTS INTO A LOCOMOTIVE.

"I NEVER HAD SO MUCH FUN IN AGW MY LIFE," HE DECLARED.

SOUTHWEST PACIFIC ALLIED HEADQUARTERS,JULY 15 (THURSDAY)-(AP) AMERICA'S OFFENSIVE IN THE CENTRAL SOLOMON ISLANDS, WHICH WAS STARTED TO CLEAR THE ENEMY FROM THE SEA AND AIR LANES OF THE SOUTH PACIFIC, HAS RESULTED IN WHITTLING DOWN THE JAPANESE NAVY.

THE OFFENSIVE HAS BROUGHT ONE SIGNIFICANT ACCOMPLISHMENT. FOR THE FIRST TIME IN SEVEN MONTHS THE JAPANESE HAVE RISKED WARSHIPS AGAINST TASK FORCES OF THE AMERICAN FLEET. NOT ONLY ONCE, BUT

30.24-6069

TWICE. AND ONLY A WEEK APART.

AFTER BEING SOUNDLY WHIPPED LAST OCTOBER AND NOVEMBER IN BATTLES OFF GUADALCANAL IN THE SOUTHERN SOLOMONS THE JAPANESE NAVY WENT INTO HIDING. REPEATED FORAYS INTO ENEMY WATERS BY UNITED STATES NAVAL FORCES BROUGHT NO CHALLENGE.

JUL 15 1943.

IT TOOK THE AMERICAN LANDINGS IN THE NEW GEORGIA ISLAND GROUP TO BRING JAPANESE CRUISERS AND DESTROYERS INTO A SEA BATTLE. TWICE THE ENEMY SOUGHT TO AID ITS FORCES AT MUNDA, A STRATEGIC AIR BASE ON NEW GEORGIA ISLAND WHICH AMERICAN LAND FORCES ARE MENACING WITH A PINCERS MOVEMENT.

THE TUESDAY COMMUNIQUE OF GENERAL DOUGLAS MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS SAID THAT LATE DISPATCHES CONFIRMED THE DEFEAT OF JAPANESE NAVY UNITS ON MONDAY NIGHT IN THEIR SECOND EFFORT TO GET SUPPLIES AND REINFORCEMENTS TO MUNDA.

IN THIS SECOND BATTLE OF KULA GULF, AT THE NORTHWESTERN END OF NEW GEORGIA ABOVE MUNDA, THE JAPANESE LOST ONE CRUISER AND FROM THREE TO FIVE DESTROYERS. THIS WAS IN ADDITION TO NINE, AND POSSIBLY ELEVEN, CRUISERS AND DESTROYERS SUNK A WEEK AGO. AMERICAN WARSHIP LOSSES SINCE THE START OF THE OFFENSIVE HAVE BEEN ONE CRUISER AND ONE DESTROYER.

NOW IT IS A QUESTION WHETHER THE JAPANESE WILL RISK MORE NAVAL UNITS IN AN EFFORT TO AID MUNDA AND IF SO WHAT TYPE AND HOW MANY. SO FAR THEY HAVE KEPT THEIR BATTLESHIPS AT HOME BASES.

OUTSIDE OF THE NAVAL ENGAGEMENTS OTHER ACTION IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC WAS CONFINED MAINLY TO AIR RAIDS. MUNDA WAS HIT BY 31 TONS OF HIGH EXPLOSIVES. IN AN AIR BATTLE OVER THAT BASE FOUR ZEROS WERE SHOT DOWN FOR THE LOSS OF ONE ALLIED PLANE.

ON THE NORTHEAST COAST OF NEW GUINEA, AT THE SOUTHWEST END OF THE PACIFIC BATTLE ZONE, ALLIED BOMBERS DROPPED 21 TONS OF BOMBS ON LAE AND 50 TONS ON NEARBY SALAMAUA.

JUL 15 1943

VALLETTA, MALTA, JULY 14-(AP)-ONE HUNDRED AND SIX AXIS AIRCRAFT WERE DESTROYED BY SPITFIRES AND OTHER MALTA-BASED PLANES DURING THE FIRST FOUR DAYS OF THE SICILIAN INVASION, IT WAS ANNOUNCED TODAY.

(THE ACTION WAS ANNOUNCED IN GEN. MAC ARTHUR'S JULY 13 COMMUNIQUE).

JUL 15 1943

THE BOMBING STRIKE BY DAUNTLESS SBD' S AND AVENGERS WAS THE THIRD HEAVY RAID AGAINST THE ENEMY FORCE IN THREE DAYS.

IT FOLLOWED HOURS OF SHELLING BY A NAVY CRUISER TASK FORCE BEFORE DAWN.

BOMBER PILOTS SAID THEY SAW ONLY FOUR BURSTS OF ANTI-AIRCRAFT SHELLS IN TODAY'S RAIDING.

OUR BOMBERS WERE COVERED BY A LARGE NUMBER OF FIGHTERS.

THREE OF SIX U.S. FIGHTER PILOTS SHOT DOWN IN YESTERDAY'S FIGHTING WERE RESCUED TONIGHT.

JUL 15 1943

ONE OF THESE WAS CAPTAIN JAMES E.SWETT OF SAN MATEO, CALIF., WHO DESTROYED SEVEN ENEMY PLANES IN A SINGLE ACTION LAST APRIL 7.

HEAVY BOMBERS OF THE ARMY'S 13TH AIR FORCE RAIDED THE KAHILI AIRBASE ON BOUGAINVILLE SUNDAY NIGHT AND HIT BALLALE IN THE SHORTLAND GROUP TONIGHT.

MITCHELL MEDIUM BOMBERS UNLOADED EXPLOSIVE BOMBS AND INCENDIARY CLUSTERS AT VILA. SEVERAL FIRES WERE OBSERVED.

(THIS STORY WAS WRITTEN BY TECHNICAL SGT.DIGGORY VENN, SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF., A MARINE CORPS COMBAT CORRESPONDENT, AND DISTRIBUTED BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

(ADVANCE)(AB) SOMEWHERE IN THE SOUTH PACIFIC, (DELAYED)-- CAPT.MARSHALL U.MOORE, U.S.M.C., OF (57 HIGH STREET) GENEVA, N.Y., RECEIVED A SILVER STAR MEDAL TODAY FOR CONTRIBUTING TO THE DEFEAT AND VIRTUAL ANNIHILATION OF A JAPANESE COMPANY ON GUADALCANAL.

JUL 15 1943

ADMIRAL NIMITZ PRESENTED THE SILVER STAR DECORATION TO THE FOLLOWING:

LIEUT.COMDR.RICHARD W.PETERSON, LOS ANGELES, WHO "DESPITE DETERMINED ENEMY OPPOSITION COURAGEOUSLY AND SKILLFULLY PRESSED HOME ATTACKS WHICH RESULTED IN THE SINKING OF AN IMPORTANT AMOUNT OF JAPANESE SHIPPING."

LIEUT.JOHN B.WILLIAMS, JR., RENO, NEV., WHOSE "COOL JUDGMENT AND QUICK DECISIONS UNDER HEAVY ANTISUBMARINE MEASURES RESULTED IN EXCELLENT DEPTH CONTROL AND MATERIALLY CONTRIBUTED TO THE SAFE RETURN OF HIS SUBMARINE."

CHIEF TORPEDOMAN'S MATE DAVID W.REMLEY OF BATAVIA, O., WHOSE "EXCELLENT JUDGMENT AND CALM, RESOLUTE EXAMPLE AND DARING IN ALL TORPEDO ATTACKS ON THREE PATROLS ASSISTED IN THE SINKING OF AN IMPORTANT AMOUNT OF ENEMY SHIPPING."

AIR MEDALS WENT TO LIEUT.DELBERT H.MINNER, WYOMING, DEL., AND LIEUT. (J.G.) FREDERICK D.SWOPE, 1357 LOCUST ST., READING PA.

JUL 15 1943

MINNER LANDED A PATROL PLANE ON THE SEA DESPITE DANGEROUS SWELLS TO RESCUE THE ENTIRE CREW OF A UNITED STATES ARMY PLANE WHICH HAD BEEN FORCED DOWN, AND SWOPE PUT HIS PLANE DOWN ON HEAVY GROUND SWELLS TO RESCUE AN ARMY PILOT.

RECEIPIENTS OF NAVY AND MARINE CORPS MEDALS WERE:

LIEUT.ROBERT L.DENTON, 229 WEST WILFORD ST., GRAFTON, PA., SUBMARINE DIVING OFFICER.

JUL 15 1943

CHIEF SIGNALMAN'S MATE FRANK MRTINI, 210A NORTH SECOND ST., BELLEVILLE, ILL., FOR "GREAT ASSISTANCE TO THE SUBMARINE COMMANDING OFFICER IN LOCATING AND TRACKING ENEMY VESSELS."

CHIEF MACHINIST'S MATES REX L.MURPHY, 128 RIDGE AVE., PUNXSUTAWNEY, PA., AND FRANCIS Z.OZGA, 42 MASONIC ST., NORTHHAMPTON, MASS., FOR "DIRECTLY ASSISTING IN THE ESCAPE AND SAFE RETURN OF THEIR SUBMARINE."

MACHINIST'S MATE 2ND CL.SAINT DELEFIELD BOYD, CORNING, ARK., AND ST.LOUIS, MO., FOR "HEROISM AT THE RISK OF HIS OWN LIFE IN RESCUING A CIVILIAN EMPLOYE FROM CONTACT WITH HIGH POWER ELECTRIC WIRES AT A NAVAL AIR STATION."

COMMANDER BURROWS' SUBMARINE ONCE WAITED FOR MORE THAN A WEEK NEAR A HARBOR ENTRANCE ON A JAPANESE MANDATED ISLAND. FINALLY TWO LARGE FREIGHTERS CAME OUT AND THE SUBMARINE SANK BOTH.

TWO OTHER FREIGHTERS WERE PICKED OFF IN THE SAME AREA.

"THE DEBRIS OF ONE WENT SO HIGH SOME OF THE CREW HAD A CHANCE TO COM UP FROM BELOW BEFORE THE DEBRIS RETURNED TO THE WATER," BURROWS SAID.

THE SHIPS WERE BELIEVED TO HAVE CARRIED EXPLOSIVES.

JUL 15 1943

(ADVANCED) A U.S. BOMBER BASE IN NORTH AFRICA-(AP)- THE MOONFACED MAN WITH THE MUSTACHE WHO LOOKED LIKE ERNEST HEMINGWAY WAS SKETCHING IN OTLINES OF AN AIRDROME ON A BIG BLACKBOARD AT THE END OF THE HALL. AT HIS RIGHT WAS A MAP SHOWING ITALY AND SICILY SPRAWLED ACROSS 20 FEET OF WALL SPACE.

HE WAS CHALKING INRREVETMENTS AND INDICATING POINTS WHERE HANGARS WERE TO BE FOUND.

"THIS IS YOUR TARGET GENTLEMEN," HE SAID,TOUCHING HIS FINGER TO A POINT ON SICILY.

THE WAY HE SAID IT WAS LIKE LOU LITTLE OR MAYBE BERNIE BIERMAN POITNING TO A DIAGRAM ON A BOARD AND SAYING "HERE'S WHERE THEY'RE WEAK,GENTLEMEN. EHER'S WHERE I WANT YOU TO HIT THEM."

IN HIS WAY THIS BIG MAN WITH THE MUSTACHE WAS A COACH,TOO. HE WAS COL. JOHN R. KANE,SON OF A SHREVEPORT,LA. BAPTIST MINISTER AND COMMANDING OFFICER OF ONE OF THE BIG BOMBER GROUPS WHICH DAY AFTER DAY RELENTLESSLY SANDBAG KEY RAIL POINTS, PORTS AND AIR CENTERS IN ITALY AND HER ISLANDS.

"THIS IS YOUR TARGET,GENTLEMEN,AND I WANT YOU TO GO IN AT IT."

THE MEN MADE NOTES ON SLIPS OF PAPER AND BEGAN NODDING THEIR HEADS IN UNDERSTANDING. THERE WERE MAYBE 200 OR SO OF THESE MEN,PILOTS,GUNNER,BOMBADIERS AND CREW MEMBERS AND THEY REPRESENTED AMERICA FROM NORTH,SOUTH,EAST AND WEST. THEY LOOKED AT THE BIG MAN WITH THE MUSTACHE ON THE STAND.

"THIS IS A FIGHTER BASE," HE SAID. "WHEN YOU ARRIVE OVER IT THE TARGET VISIBILITY WILL BE GOOD. THE TEMPERATURE WILL BE MINUS ZERO. GOT THAT?"

JUL 15 1943

THE MEN HAD IT.

"ALL RIGHT. START YOUR ENGINES AND TAKE OFF IN FIFTEEN MINUTES. BE ON COURSE IN 40. LATER YOU'LL BE CLOSE TO THE TARGET AND YOU'LL PICK UP YOUR ESCORT. THEY'LL BE SPITFIRES. THEY'LL BE ABOVE YOU AND ON YOUR FLANKS AND SOME MAY EVEN BE BENEATH YOU. SO BE CAREFUL. INDENTIFY EVERY PLANE YOU SEE. DON'T SHOOT ANY OF THEM. OF COURSE IF ANYTHING POINTS ITS NOSE AT YOU AND STARTS COMING INTO YOU START SHOOTING. DON'T LET ANYBODY POINT HIS NOSE AT YOU AND START COMING INTO YOU WITHOUT SHOOTING. I DON'T CARE WHO IT IS. IT MIGHT BE JERRY."

THE MEN NODDED AND AGAIN IT MIGHT HAVE BEEN DICK HARLOW OR FRANK THOMAS SAYING "WHEN THEY LET YOU DRIFT THROUGH THE LINE WITHOUT STOPPING YOU THERE'S A ZOKER IN IT. THERE'S SOMETHING WRONG. DON'T LET THEM MOUSETRAP YOU."

THE KID NEXT TO ME WINKED. HE WAS LT. HUBERT SKEMBARE OF 2455 CULLON AVENUE, CHICAGO, A NAVIGATOR.

"THE OLD MAN'S TELLING THEM," HE WHISPERED.

THE OLD MAN WENT ON. " I WANT YOU GUNNERS TO STAY IN YO[illegible]. I WANT YOU PILOTS TO KEEP IN FORMATION. WHEN YOU GET SCATTERED OVER THE SKY NOBODY CAN CONTROL YOU. THAT'S WHAT THE GERMAN WANT. THEY'RE AFRAID TO COME IN AFTER YOU IN CLOSE FORMATION. YOU RADIO MEN BE SURE YOU KNOW WHOM YOUR TALKING TO. IF ANYBODY GETS ON YOUR FREQUENCY AND SAYS ' HAY BILL,DROP BAXK HERE WITH ME,I'VE GOT TWO ENGINES SHOT OUT' DON'T DO IT. DON'T PAY ANY ATTENTION TO IT. THAT'S AN OLD GERMAN TRICK. THEY WANT YOU TO DROP BACK. THEY'RE HELL ON CRIPPLES AND STRAGGLERS. GET ME?"

MAN ON FIRST DOWNS. HE'S HELL ON QUICK [illegible]

JUL 15 1943

THE COLONEL STEPPED BACK AND POINTED AGAIN TO THE MAP.

"YOU'LL FIND ACK-ACK HERE. THERE ARE FOUR,MAYBE SIX HEAVY BATTERIES OF ACK-ACK RIGHT HERE. OVER HERE THERE'S LOTS OF LIGHT ACK-ACK. SO GO THROUGH THERE." HE TRACKED A LINE ON THE MAP WITH HIS FINGER.

"WHEN YOU MAKE YOUR RUN OVER THE TARGET", HE WENT ON, "REMEMBER THIS ; THE GREATEST MOMENT OF DANGER IS THE LAST TEN SECONDS BEFORE YOU DROP YOUR BOMBS AND THE FIRST TEN SECONDS AFTER THEY HAVE BEEN DROPPED. YOU'VE BEEN ON THE STRAIGHT RUN FOR 30,MAYBE 60 SECONDS AND BY THAT TIME THEY'VE HAD AN OPPORTUNITY TO GET YOUR ALTITUDE AND COURSE. SO AS SOON AS THE BOMBS ARE AWAY START TO EVADE. TAKE EVASIVE ACTION."

Lt. MARTIN A SPEISER OF 7901 FOURTH AVENUE, BROOKLYN,N.Y.,THE PILOT WHO SAT JUST IN FRONT OF ME,LEANED BACK AND SAID " YOU OUGHT TO SEE THE OLD MAN EVADE. WHEN HE TAKES EVASIVE ACTION ; IT'S EVADED."

KANE BALANCED HIMSELF ON THE BALLS OF HIS FEET AND LOOKED AT HIS MEN. IT WERE AS IF HE WERE TRYING TO CATCH EACH MAN'S EYE AND READ HIS THOUGHTS. I THOUGHT OF THAT TOO. THESE KIDS ALL HAD GREAT HOPES AND DREAMS. THEY HAD BROUGHT THESE DREAMS RIGHT UP TO THIS MOMENT AND NOW FOR SOME OF THEM THESE HOPES AND DREAMS MIGHT END RIGHT AWAY,FOREVER.

JUL 15 1943

THE COLONEL SAID "I'VE SAID THIS BEFORE AND I'LL KEEP SAYING IT AGAIN AND AGAIN AS LONG AS ITS NECESSARY. TAKE EVERYTHING OUT OF YOUR POCKETS BEFORE YOU GO UP. YOU MIGHT GET INTO TROUBLE, YOU MIGHT GET SHOT DOWN. IF YOU GET CAPTURED OR HAVE TO LAND I DON'T WANT THE GERMANS OR ITALIANS FINDING OUT TOO MUCH ABOUT US. GIVE THEM YOUR NAME,RANK AND SERIAL NUMBER. THAT'S ENOUGH. NOW GENTLEMEN THAT'S ALL. GOOD LUCK."

THERE WAS A GENERAL SCRAPING OF CHAIRS AND A BEDLAM OF COMMENT AS THE MEN BROKE FOR THE DOOR. THEY PILED INTO JEEPS AND TRUCKS AND WERE DRIVEN OUT TO THEIR PLANES. SOMETIME LATER THEIR PROPS BEGAN TO TRUN AND THEN THE WHOLE VAST SECTION OF DESERT BEGAN TO BOIL UP IN RED DUST AS ONE AFTER THE OTHER OF THE BIG,FAT-BELLIED LIBERATORS TOOK TO THE AIR.

JUL 15 1943

"WHEN THOSE BIG BABIES START AFTER SOMETHING," SOFTLY COMMENTED.KANE,WHO WAS STANDING WITH ME WATCHING THEM GO, "SOMEBODY USUALLY CATCHES HELL. AND TODAY IT'S GOING TO BE BISCARI."

UNDATED SUZUKI

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

JUL 15 1943

LIEUT.GEN.TEIICHO SUZUKI, PRESIDENT OF THE JAPANESE CABINET PLANNING BOARD, ANNOUNCED TODAY THAT JAPANESE WR PRODUCTION HAD ATTAINED "UNPARALLELED LEVELS" IN THE LAST NINE MONTHS, THE TOKYO RADIO REPORTED IN A BROADCAST RECORDED BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

SUZUKI WARNED, HOWEVER, THAT THE NATION MUST THROW ITS ENTIRE WEIGHT INTO THE WAR EFFORT AND DECLARED THAT THE GOVERNMENT'S PROGRAM CALLED FOR FURTHER SHARP INCREASES IN ALL ESSENTIAL INDUSTRIES--PARTICULARLY THE CONSTRUCTION OF SHIPS AND PLANES--THE BROADCAST SAID.

IT GAVE NO FIGURES CONCERNING THE PRODUCTION INCREASES MENTIONED BY SUZUKI, WHO MADE HIS STATEMENT AT A MEETING OF THE CENTRAL COOPERATIVE COUNCIL OF THE IMPERIAL RULE ASSISTANCE ASSOCIATION.

SUZUKI WAS QUOTED AS SAYING THAT THE GOVERNMENT RECENTLY HAD DECIDED TO DISCARD THE POLICY OF CONCENTRATING WAR PRODUCTION IN LARGE PLANTS AND WILL ENCOURAGE THE OPERATION OF SMALL SCALE FACTORIES, PROVIDED THEY ARE READILY CONVERTIBLE TO TURNING OUT WAR MATERIALS.

HIS EMPHASIS ON THE PRESSING NEED FOR CONCENTRATING ON THE CONSTRUCTION OF SHIPS AND PLANES WAS SEEN AS A REFLECTION OF HEAVY LOSSES WHICH JAPAN HAS SUSTAINED RECENTLY IN BOTH CATEGORIES.

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE

JUL 15 1943

THE SICILIAN INVASION ENTERED ITS FIFTH DAY WITH GOOD FORTUNE STILL PACING THE HARD DRIVING ALLIES, BUT IT SEEMED CERTAIN THAT CONCERTED OPPOSITION WAS IMPENDING UNLESS THE AXIS DID THE UNBELIEVABLE THING OF QUITTING COLD.

THE FIRST COUNTERATTACK OF ANY WEIGHT WAS THAT HURLED BY THE GERMANS AT OUR AMERICAN FORCES UNDER GENERAL PATTON ON THE WEST WING YESTERDAY. THERE IS SOME PASSING SPECULATION WHETHER THIS ASSAULT WAS DIRECTED AT THE YANKEES PURELY BECAUSE OF TACTICAL NECESSITY, OR WHETHER THE EMBITTERED HITLERITES HAD IN MIND DISCREDITING UNITED STATES EFFORTS FOR PROPAGANDA PURPOSES. BE THAT AS MAY, WE TOOK THE ATTACK IN STRIDE AND SMASHED IT.

JUL 15 1943

EVENTS ARE MILLING ABOUT SO SWIFTLY THAT HE WHO MAKES FORECASTS IS BULLYING HIS LUCK, BUT IT LOOKS NOW AS THOUGH THE BROAD PLAIN OF CATANIA--ONE OF THE BATTLE-GROUNDS OF THE AGES--MAY CONTINUE ITS OLD ROLE AND BECOME THE SCENE OF THE DECISIVE ENGAGEMENT IN THE FIGHT FOR SICILY.

THIS FERTILE GRANARY, WHICH CROWDS WITH DARING INSOLENCE AGAINST THE VOLCANIC FOOTHILLS OF GRUMBLING ETNA, ABOUT HALFWAY ALONG THE EASTERN COAST OF THE ISLAND, LIES ATHWART THE ROUTE WHICH THE ALLIED FORCES ON THE EAST WING ARE PURSUING NORTHWARDS TOWARDS THE STRATEGIC PORT OF MESSINA. THE AXIS WELL MAY MAKE ITS FIRST BIG SHOW OF RESIST

NCE HERE. THE CATANIAN PLAIN AFFORDS THE BEST FIELD FOR THE OPERATION

SHOW OF RESISTANCE HERE. THE CATANIAN PLAIN AFFORDS THE BEST FIELD FOR THE OPERATION OF MECHANIZED FORCES IN THIS GENERALLY MOUNTAINOUS ISLAND, AND TANK DIVISIONS PRESUMABLY WILL BE USED IN STRENGTH BY BOTH ALLIES AND AXIS.

THE PORT OF CATANIA ON THE EDGE OF THE PLAIN IS SICILY'S SECOND LARGEST CITY, WITH A POPULATION OF A QUARTER MILLION. IN ITS SOME

30.24- 6075

2,700 YEARS OF ADVENTURE IT HAS BEEN THE CENTER OF MANY WARS. IT HAS BEEN DESTROYED, AND HAS RISEN AGAIN FROM ITS OWN RUINS, SO OFTEN THAT IT'S HARD TO KEEP THE COUNT--NOT TO MENTION THE ASSAULTS FROM ERUPTING ETNA AND EARTHQUAKES.

DESPITE ITS VARIES EXPERIENCE OF HARD KNOCKS, HOWEVER, CATANIA PROBABLY NEVER WAS HIT HARDER THAN IT WILL BE IF IT TRIES TO RESIST THE MARCH OF GENERAL MONTGOMERY, WITH HIS FAMOUS BRITISH EIGHTH ARMY AND HARD-BOILED CANADIANS. PERHAPS THE ALREADY BOMB-BATTERED CITY WILL REMAIN PASSIVE WHILE THE DECISION IS SOUGHT ON THE NEIGHBORING PLAIN.

JUL 15 1943

CATANIA IS 59 MILES BY RAIL SOUTH OF MESSINA, THE ALL-IMPORTANT PORT WHICH IS THE ISLAND'S RAILHEAD FOR THE MAINLAND'S RAILROADS. TRAINS ARE FERRIED ACROSS THE NARROW STRAIT OF MESSINA, THUS MAINTAINING A VITAL COMMUNICATION.

ISOLATION OF SICILY FROM THE ITALIAN PENINSULA DEMANDS THAT MESSINA BE CAPTURED AT THE EARLIEST POSSIBLE MOMENT. THIS WILL LEAVE THE AXIS FORCES ON THE ISLAND CUT OFF FROM SUPPLIES AND REINFORCEMENTS, SAVE FOR THE FEW WHICH MIGHT BE MOVED BY AIR.

ALLIED PROGRESS NORTHWARD SHOULD BE HELPED VASTLY BY YESTERDAY'S CAPTURE OF THE GREAT SEAPORT OF AUGUSTA WHICH LIES BETWEEN SYRACUSE AND CATANIA. AUGUSTA'S HARBOR IS ONE OF THE BEST IN THE MEDITERRANEAN AND IS A GODSEND TO THE ALLIES, WHO HAVE NEEDED MORE DEEP-WATER HARBORAGE FOR THE UNLOADING OF THE EXPEDITIONARY FORCES AND EQUIPMENT FROM THE VAST ARMADA OF EXPEDITIONARY SHIPS.

JUL 15 1943

ANOTHER IMPORTANT DEVELOPMENT IS THE CAPTURE OF FLORIDIA, PALAZZOLO AND RAGUSA. THESE PLACES LIE ACROSS THE TIP OF THE SOUTHEASTERN PENINSULA ASTRIDE WHICH THE ALLIED FORCES ARE FORGING FORWARD. THE SIGNIFICANCE OF THESE CAPTURES IS THAT THEY ARE COMMUNICATIONS CENTERS. RAGUSA IS A STRATEGIC POINT FOR BOTH RAILWAY AND HIGHWAYS. IF YOU WILL LOOK AT YOUR MAPS YOU WILL SEE WHAT THIS INVOLVES.

JUL 15 1943

IT MEANS THAT THE AMERICAN AND OTHER ALLIED TROOPS ON THE WEST ARM OF THE PENINSULA, AND MONTGOMERY'S FORCES ON THE EASTERN COAST, ARE IN PROCESS OF ESTABLISHING COMMUNICATIONS ACROSS THE TIP OF THE PENINSULA FOR FAST MOVEMENT OF MEN, EQUIPMENT AND SUPPLIES. THIS BRILLIANT STROKE ALSO DIVIDES ENEMY CONTINGENTS IN THAT AREA.

AIR POWER CONTINUES TO PLAY ITS MAJOR PART MAGNIFICENTLY. AXIS COMMUNICATIONS ARE BEING NEUTRALIZED AND THE DEFENDING AIRFLEET IS BEING SMOTHERED.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA JULY 14-(AP)-THE COMMANDOS

JUL 15 1943

JUL 15 1943

VANISHED LIKE WRAITHS IN THE PALE LIGHT OF THE MOON.

WITHIN A FEW SECONDS AFTER THEIR LITTLE LANDING CRAFT PULLED AWAY FROM THE SHIPS, THEY WERE OUT OF SIGHT. SCUDDING CLOUDS RACED ACROSS THE SKY AFTER A STORM THAT HAD BLOWN ALL AFTERNOON, SO THAT MOONLIGHT FLICKERED FITFULLY OVER WAVES THAT WERE STILL RUNNING HIGH--PERHAPS TOO HIGH FOR THE LANDING CRAFT.

JUL 15 1943

MEN LEFT BEHIND ON THE SHIPS STRAINED THEIR EYES TOWARD SHORE AND WAITED. THAT WAS ALL THEY COULD DO.

"UP TO THAT POINT WE HONESTLY DIDN'T KNOW WHETHER WE HAD MADE A COMPLETE MESS OF OUR JOB OR NOT," SAID LIEUT.COMMANDER J.B.FERNALD, OFFICER ON ONE OF THE SHIPS THAT BROUGHT BRITISH COMMANDOS AND CANADIAN LANDING PARTIES TO THEIR HOP-OFF POINT ON THE EXTREME SOUTHEAST TIP OF SICILY.

IT SEEMED CENTURIES BEFORE THEY SAW A FLARE RISE LEISURELY ABOVE THE SHORE. THEN THEY KNEW THE INVASION OF SICILY HAD BEGUN AND HAD AT LEAST THAT SMALL MEASURE OF SUCCESS.

THE STORY OF THIS BEGINNING WAS BROUGHT BACK BY TWO BRITISH NAVAL OFFICERS, FERNALD, WHO WAS BORN IN VALLEY, CALIF., AND CAPT.W.R. SENDALL.

JUL 15 1943

THAT PARTICULAR CONVOY WAS HOVERING AT AN UNIDENTIFIED POINT IN THE MEDITERRANEAN LAST FRIDAY AFTERNOON, WAITING FOR DARKNESS BEFORE CHANGING THE COURSE FOR SICILY. FERNALD SAID:

"IN THE LATE AFTERNOON WE BEGAN TO BE VERY UNEASY. THE WIND BEGAN RISING AND IT KEPT RISING. AT TIMES, IT WAS ALMOST A GALE. WE KNEW IT WOULD BE A HARD JOB NAVIGATING TO THE RENDEZVOUS WITH THE OTHER SHIPS AT THE OTHER SHIPS AT THE RIGHT TIME AND WE WONDERED IF THE LANDING CRAFT COULD OPERATE IN THAT SWELL.

"THEN, JUST AFTER DARK THE WEATHER CHANGED. THE WIND SIMPLY QUIT. IT WAS A SHEER MIRACLE."

JUL 15 1943

THE SHIPS MADE CONTACT AT THE DESIGNATED POINT AND THE WHOLE GROUP TURNED TOWARD SICILY. HIGH WAVES, WHITE-TOPPED AND ROUGH, WERE STILL RUNNING. THE CLOUDS BROKE AND A SICKLY MOON SEEMED TO BE SAILING IN AND OUT OF THEM AS THE CONVOY MOVED SOUNDLESSLY TOWARD THE POINT WHERE THE EMBARKATION INTO SMALL BOATS WOULD BEGIN.

NOBODY TALKED. THE MEN WERE NOT NERVOUS BUT THEY JUST DIDN'T FEEL LIKE TALKING. THEY HUDDLED TOGETHER ON THE SLIPPERY SPRAY-DRENCHED DECKS WATCHING FOR LAND AND WAITING FOR THE MOMENT WHEN THE THROB OF THE SHIP'S ENGINES WOULD CEASE. THAT WOULD BE THE SIGNAL FOR GETTING INTO THE SMALL BOATS--THEY WERE STILL NOT SURE THEIR CRAFT WOULD LIVE IN THOSE WAVES.

THE MOMENT CAME. THEY FELT THE SPEED FALL OFF. THEN THEY BEGAN GETTING INTO THE LANDING CRAFT.

THEY SHOOK HANDS WITH OFFICERS AND THE MEN THEY LEFT BEHIND AND THESE WHISPERED "GOOD LUCK!" AND THEN THE COMMANDOS WERE GONE.

THE RAIDERS WERE COMPOSED OF TWO GROUPS OF ROYAL MARINES WHO HAD TRAINED FOR MONTHS FOR A SPECIFIC JOB. THEIR SPECIFIC JOB WAS WHAT HAD BEEN DESCRIBED TO THEM AS A HEADLAND CLIFF ESTIMATED TO BE 40 FEET HIGH WITH SHEER, ROCKY SIDES.

IT WAS THE MOST INACCESIBLE POINT ON THE WHOLE COAST AND THAT WAS WHERE THEY WERE SCHEDULED TO GO ASHORE.

WHAT HAPPENED THEN WAS RELATED BY SENDALL, WHO WENT WITH THEM.

"IT HAD ALL BEEN WORKED OUT IN DETAIL DURING MONTHS OF TRAINING AT HOME," HE SAID.

JUL 15 1943

3024-6077

FOUR OF THE MOST AGILE COMMANDOS WERE SUPPOSED TO SCALE THE FACE OF THAT CLIFF, DRIVE SPIKES INTO THE GROUND ON TOP, ATTACH ROPES AND DROP THEM FOR THE REST BELOW. THE WHOLE PARTY HAD BEEN TRAINED ON A SIMILAR CLIFF TO MAKE THE HAZARDOUS ASCENT IN PITCH BLACKNESS.

"WE HAD AERIAL PHOTOS TO STUDY AND ALL POSSIBLE INFORMATION HAD BEEN GIVEN US, BUT NEVERTHELESS THAT CLIFF WAS AN UNKNOWN QUANTITY," SENDALL SAID.

JUL 15 1943

"THE NOSES OF THEIR TINY CRAFT TURNED TOWARD SHORE AND THEY IMMEDIATELY DISCOVERED IT WAS NO BETTER THAN AN EVEN CHANCE THEY WOULD GET THERE. BILLOWING SEAS WERE RUNNING AND THE BOATS BEGAN TO SHIP WATER. IT CAME UP TO THEIR ANKLES AND CONTINUED TO RISE. THEY MANNED THE PUMPS AND BAILED FRANTICALLY WITH TIN HELMETS AND THE ONE BUCKET ABOARD. IT ROSE TO THEIR KNEES AND THEY BAILED HARDER. THEY JUST MANAGED TO KEEP THE WATER AT THAT LEVEL."

THEY FELT THE SHIPS GROUND AND THEY WENT OVER THE SIDES AS QUIETLY AS POSSIBLE. "THE SURF FELT WARM AND PLEASANT."

NOT A SHOT HAD BEEN FIRED. ONCE THEY THOUGHT THEY WERE DISCOVERED, BUT IT WAS AN ACK-ACK GUN OPENING UP ON A FLIGHT OF RAF BOMBERS WHO CAME OVER DROPPING FLARES.

JUL 15 1943

"WE HAD BEEN TOLD PLANES WOULD LIGHT UP THE TERRAIN BEYOND US AND THEY CERTAINLY DID. IT SEEMED LIKE THE WHOLE SKY WAS ON FIRE."

BY THAT TIME THOSE AT THE BASE OF THE CLIFF AND THE FOUR CAME FORWARD WITH ROPES AND SPIKES DANGLING FROM THEIR WAISTS. THE CLOUDS PARTED FOR A MOMENT AND THEY LOOKED UP AT WHAT WAS EXPECTED TO BE A PRECIPITOUS CLIFF.

IT WASN'T PRECIPITOUS AT ALL. A MAN COULD WALK UP THERE CARRYING BUCKETS OF WATER IN BOTH HANDS, THE RISE WAS SO GENTLE, AND SENDALL SAID HE DID CARRY THEM UP. IT WAS A CHALK CLIFF WITH ROUNDED SIDES.

AT THAT POINT THEY BEGAN PICKING UP LANDMARKS AND KNEW THEY WERE IN THE RIGHT PLACE. THE COMMANDOS SPLIT INTO TWO GROUPS, ONE TURNING SHARPLY TO THE RIGHT, THE OTHER TO THE LEFT. THEIR OBJECTIVES WERE PILLBOXES, MACHINE GUN NESTS AND ONE OR TWO SUSPECTED STRONG POINTS WHERE THEY EXPECTED TO MEET EVEN A HEAVIER TYPE OF FIRE.

THE FIRST WAS A FARMHOUSE.

THEY CREPT CLOSE THROUGH THE MILKY HALFLIGHT AND THE LEADER OF THE PARTY THREW A HAND GRENADE THROUGH A WINDOW. THERE WAS A TERRIFIC EXPLOSION "AND SOME SQUEALS." THEN SILENCE.

MacArthur.

The seizure of Mubo, made possible by a highly secretive operation involving infiltration behind the Japanese hill positions in the jungles of northeast New Guinea, opened the way for an advance upon the enemy air base of Salamaua less than 12 miles to the north.

Air Victory over Rendova

The air victory, scored over Rendova island not far from the scene of the land fighting for possession of the enemy air base on Munda, was described as one of the greatest ever fought in that area. Only three of our fighters were lost as they piled into a formation of 27 medium bombers and between 50 and 60 Zeros. The enemy losses brought to more than 300 the number of planes we have shot down since the present offensive opened June 30.

There was victory news from Munda itself, with our jungle fighters reported stealthily advancing on that key base in the central Solomons. Once the Japanese tried a counter-attack. It was thrown back.

The Americans were outnumbered in the Rendova air battle but decidedly not out-gunned. We shot down more enemy planes than we put in the air to give them battle.

Over New Georgia and Rendova more than 260 Japanese planes have been shot down as against 50 of our planes. Many of our pilots were saved.

More Fighting at Munda

Communique reports lacked detail on the drive for the Munda air base but it contained suggestions that considerable fighting still lies ahead. One indication was a heavy plane attack on enemy positions at Bairoko above Munda on the Kula gulf. This makes clear the enemy garrison still is holding out there.

The communique told of heavy enemy resistance at Munda. Apparently we either are attempting to break through or are near the perimeter of the defense which the Japanese set up to hold that base. These include foxholes and log bunkers.

"The Mubo bastion has been captured," the communique reported.

"United States forces after landing and consolidating a beach-head at Nassau bay on June 30 moved inland up the valley of the Bitoi river, effecting a junction with Australia units in Buigap creek at dusk on July 10.

"This move effected in complete secrecy operated to cut the enemy's line of communication between Mubo and Salamaua and isolate his garrisons on Observation and Green hills.

"Following this enveloping move and in coordination with attacks on elements in the rear areas, Australian forces attacked from Lababia ridge and Garrison hill and destroyed the enemy defenses on observation [illegible] Green hill.

Ground Is

"Our ground [illegible] cleared the Mubo [illegible] ized enemy resista[illegible] [illegible]d are pressing on to Kolatu[illegible]n. Approximately 950 enemy troops were destroyed. Our losses were light."

The capture of Mubo eliminated a strong point only 12 miles from Salamaua. Since the fall of the Papuan peninsula of southeast New Guinea, Allied jungle fighters had been infiltrating from the south until they held ridge tops overlooking Mubo in the spring.

But the Japanese, entrenched on hills overlooking the jungle track between Mubo and Salamaua, turned the war there into a stalemate until a landing was made by our forces east of Mubo at Nassau bay on the coast below Salamaua. These invaders then cut over and behind the enemy's Mubo positions while Australians continued to pose a menace from the front.

Japs Raid Nassau Bay

Today's communique said that Japanese planes had made a new attack on the Nassau bay area but that it was without effect.

In the central Solomons, where Munda is the objective, for the second straight day United States planes dealt a blow at Japanese shipping above New Georgia near Vella Lavella island. An enemy merchantman was sunk and another set afire. Yesterday's communique also reported the sinking of a cargo ship in those waters.

Today's communique also disclosed that after the second battle of the Kula gulf, July 13, in which a Japanese cruiser and from three to five destroyers were sunk by units of the United States Navy, the U. S. destroyer Gwin was sunk. The Gwin was damaged in that engagement and later sank while under tow.

It was the third American warship disclosed to have gone down during the present Solomon warfare. The light cruiser Helena was lost in the first battle of the Kula gulf, in which between nine and 13 enemy cruisers and destroyers were sunk, and the night before the battle the United States destroyer Strong was sunk while shelling enemy positions on New Georgia.

The point the destroyer was shelling was Bairoko anchorage on the Kula gulf of New Georgia 12 miles above Munda. Today's communique reported that our dive-bombers had attacked enemy positions there Thursday with 1,000 and 2,000 pound explosives after which the Japanese were strafed.

"Our forces are continuing to advance toward the Munda airdrome against heavy enemy resistance," the communique said.

emy counterattack was repulsed. Four enemy guns were destroyed by our artillery."

These were the only details supplied on the Munda fighting but it hitherto has been disclosed that on the eastern side our advanced patrols are within two miles of the landing strip and that a pincers is being formed by forces there and others moving down from the northeast.

The cargo ships hit off Vella Lavella were attacked near Baga island. The two-engined bombers which hit them also strafed and sank two barges near Ganonnga island. Later, fighter planes sighted and set afire a barge near Pakio bay.

(The barge often is used by the enemy to sneak supplies down the coast to imperiled points, such as Munda.)

The United States airforce pressed the job of neutralizing with bombs the enemy airdromes just north of Munda. Torpedo and dive-bombers yesterday attacked the Vila airdrome on Kolombangara island and areas of encamped enemy troops, dropping 50 tons of bombs. An hour and a half after the attack, some of the fires still were burning.

The Rendova air fighting was thus described:

"Our fighters intercepted and dispersed an enemy formation of 27 bombers and 50 to 60 Zeros shortly after noon, shooting down 15 bombers and 30 fighters. Three of our planes failed to return."

NEW HAVEN MAJOR RECEIVES CITATION

Richard T. Washburn Gets Silver Star for Leadership on Guadalcanal.

(The following story was written by Technical Sergeant Jim G. Lucas, Tulsa, Okla., a Marine corps combat correspondent and distributed by the Associated Press).

SOMEWHERE IN THE SOUTH PACIFIC — (delayed) — A quiet-spoken Marine corps major who headed a deadly fighting machine in the jungles of Guadalcanal was recently awarded the Silver Star medal for "extraordinary heroism and distinguished battle leadership."

He was Major Richard T. Washburn, son of Mrs. Grace Washburn, of 626 Savin avenue, New Haven. It was as a captain that he led his Marine raiders from seeming defeat to devastating victory against a much larger Japanese force last Armistice day.

Major Washburn is now executive officer of a Marine raider unit. His men, all tested jungle fighters, regard him as one of the best field leaders in the Marine corps.

The citation which accompanied the Silver Star medal award follows:

"On November 11, 1942, while leading his company to the assistance of another company, which was already heavily engaged, he encountered a superior force of the enemy crossing the Metapona river from east to west. Without hesitation, he engaged the enemy, causing him heavy losses. Forced to withdraw his company by heavy machine gun, mortar and 20 mm. fire, he reorganized in the jungle, and led his command in a second attack on the enemy, which had resumed crossing the river.

"Captain Washburn's judgment and leadership in this battle were of the highest order. During the subsequent operations, he continued to lead his company with quiet daring, great fortitude and superb devotion to duty, inspiring both officers and men throughout the battalion with his example. His conduct was in keeping with the highest tradition of the naval service."

Russians Rout Ten Divisions On Orel Front

2 Armies Take Initiative From Stalled Germans North and East of City

Advance 28 Miles In Break-Through

Vast Wheeling Movement Threatens to Pinch Off Nazi Defense Bastion

By The Associated Press

MOSCOW, July 15.—Two Russian armies have begun a powerful counter-offensive in the Orel sector against a stalled German military machine, smashing or routing ten German divisions in three days, recapturing 110 towns and advancing as much as twenty-eight miles, a special bulletin announced tonight.

A vast wheeling movement north and east of Orel threatened to pinch off that German bastion which the Nazis used as a base in the futile offensive they started July 5.

More than 12,000 Germans have been killed and 2,000 captured as "our troops north and east of Orel, after fierce counter-attacks, passed onto the offensive," the communique said.

Nazis Lose 54,000 in 11 Days

One Red army drove toward the Orel-Bryansk railway at a point northwest of Orel. The other, attacking from the east, was within twenty-eight miles of the key city.

In this co-ordinated push the Soviet forces were said to have destroyed 109 enemy tanks, 294 planes and 47 guns and captured 40 tanks, 210 guns, 187 mortars, 99 machine guns, 26 supply dumps and other materiel.

This boosted the immense toll of Nazi casualties to more than 54,000 killed or captured in eleven days of fighting. German materiel losses in the same period amounted to 3,068 tanks destroyed or captured and 1,636 planes shot down.

[The Russian drive coincided with Allied successes in Sicily, and for the first time the Russians semi-officially acknowledged that a two-front war had arrived in Europe. M. Viktorov, a Moscow radio commentator, in a broadcast recorded in London declared: "Hitler's latest gamble has been foiled. His failure is all the more conspicuous as his main forces are on the Soviet-German front. Hitler has now been forced to fight on two fronts."]

Break Through on 25-Mile Line

With the Germans' own offensive bogged down on the front from Orel south to Belgorod, the Red Army broke through strong German defenses on a twenty-five mile front north of Orel.

The communique said this Soviet column had advanced twenty-eight miles to capture Klen and Yelensk, points which lie only eighteen miles north of the Orel-Bryansk railway. Another captured town, Staritsa, is sixty miles northwest of Orel.

East of Orel, the communique said, an advance of twelve to fifteen miles was made on an eighteen-mile front in another breakthrough.

Setukna was one of many towns captured. It is twenty-eight miles east of Orel and three miles above the Orel-Voronezh railway. Another captured village, Berezovets, is thirty miles from Orel.

The Russians sprang their drive three days ago, exactly one week after the Germans began their drive, which has cost them staggering losses. While launching their own offensive the Russians at the same time continued to repulse German attacks in the Belgorod area to the south.

[The regular midnight Moscow bulletin, issued after the special communique, said the Germans hurled more men and tanks into the Belgorod fight but failed to

15-Mile Advance

East of Orel the communique said an advance of 12 to 15 miles was made on an 18-mile front in another breakthrough.

Setukna was one of many towns captured. It is 28 miles east of Orel and three miles above the Orel-Vorenezh railway. Another captured village, Berezovets, is 30 miles from Orel.

The Russians sprang their drive three days ago, exactly one week after the Germans began their drive which has cost them staggering losses.

While launching their own offensive the Russians at the same time continued to repulse German attacks in the Belgorod area to the south.

(The regular midnight Moscow bulletin, issued after the special communique, said the Germans hurled more men and tanks into the Belgorod fight but failed to make a breakthrough. One Soviet formation in that zone destroyed 51 tanks and wiped out 2,000 troops in Thursday's fighting.

("The enemy, bled white, was forced to pass to the defensive" in the sector between Kursk and Orel, added the bulletin, recorded by the Soviet monitor.

(Another special Moscow announcement said that Russian bombers raided Orel Wednesday night, exploding and setting afire enemy munition trains and supply dumps.)

Last year the Germans waited while the Russians attacked against Kharkov in an offensive begun May 12. Five days later, after stopping the Russians, the Germans began their own push which smashed through to Voronezh and on to Stalingrad.

This summer the Russians have reversed the procedure.

(Berlin acknowledged a Soviet push north of Orel but was vague on details. The Transocean agency in a broadcast recorded by the Associated Press termed the drive an attempt to releave Red army troops in the Belgorod sector, and said it was "a squandering" of men and materiel.)

Some well-informed foreign military observers in Moscow said today that the all-out German offensive which the Russians halted before beginning their own would be Hitler's last.

There was no question, they said, that the Germans had hurled the most powerful weight of armor and men they could spare at this time against the Rusians.

Powerful Nazi Drive Halted

One Russian reporter, giving eye-witness account of the Belgorod battle at the southern end of the line, said he had never seen anything to equal the immensity of German fire power in the opening phase of the campaign.

Initial successes were scored in that sector by the Germans. They hold a wedge whose exact size never has been disclosed. But it was achieved at huge sacrifice in men and materiel, and the Germans apparently were too enfeebled to exploit it.

The main factor in German failure this summer is a reorganized Red army newly equipped with the finest weapons from Russian and United States factories. Another is the constant threat of invasion in the west — now more acute with the landings in Sicily.

Perhaps the most serious defect in the German military machine, as viewed here, is the decline of the Nazi air force. It has become more and more evident that Germany has been forced to rely on unskilled pilots and in many cases obsolescent planes.

For the first time in history the Russian air force now has the upper hand over the Germans in this respect.

One foreign military source speculated that Hitler would withdraw from the Orel salient and that the war would end in the fall of 1944.

The Soviet press quoted a captured German officer as saying that Hitler had issued an order at the outset of the Nazi offensive in Russia declaring that "this blow must be of decisive importance—it must be the turning point of the war—the last great battle before Germany victory." The press accounts said the German, a lieutenant, had slipped across no-man's-land recently at night to surrender because he was convinced the German offensive against Russia would fail and that Germany would be defeated in two to six months.

[The German high command's Thursday communique, broadcast by Berlin and recorded by The Associated Press, said that "heavy fighting is being continued on the Eastern front despite increasingly worse weather conditions." The weather, used frequently by the Germans as an excuse for military failures, has been blamed several times this week in Berlin radio accounts.

["The Soviet attempts to pierce the German positions collapsed with heavy casualties," said the Nazi communique of the fighting east and north of Orel, issued before the Russian special communique. "Immediately German counter-attacks are making successful progress." The Germans declared their planes destroyed 336 tanks and seventy aircraft yesterday.]

RED ARMY DRIVE ON

Counter-Blows Smash Nazis' Orel Salient on Two Sides

JUL 16 1943

FOE'S TANKS ROUTED

28-Mile Gain Reported —Axis Losses Mount —Bryansk in Peril

By The Associated Press.

LONDON, July 15—In a surprise offensive coinciding with the Allied thrust through Sicily, the resurgent Russian Army has wrested the initiative from the stalled Nazi war machine, a special Soviet communiqué proclaimed triumphantly tonight, and has recaptured more than 110 towns and villages and gained up to twenty-eight miles on the Orel front.

The announcement, repeated over and over in Moscow broadcasts recorded here by the Soviet monitor, declared that more than 12,000 Germans were killed and 2,000 captured as "our troops north and east of Orel, after fierce counter-attacks, passed to the offensive."

These gains were announced: An advance of roughly twenty-eight miles in the salient north of Orel, where the Russians battered through a strongly fortified line in a break-through on a twenty-five mile front, and an advance of twelve to fifteen miles on an eighteen-mile front in a break-through against stubborn German resistance east of Orel.

Orel Bulge Imperiled

The Russians said the drive from east of Orel was aimed westward, apparently designed to flatten out the Nazi-held bulge between Smolensk and Kharkov. The biggest initial gains, however, were in the push launched north of Orel, which, in cutting south, imperiled the flank of the German position.

"Numerous centers of resistance and enemy strongholds have been smashed," the special communiqué said of the drive north of Orel, which resulted in the occupation of more than fifty populated places, including Staritsa, about sixty miles northwest of Orel and the same distance northeast of Bryansk.

East of Orel the Russians occupied more than sixty populated places, at least eight of which were described in the communiqué as "large."

[Berlin reported that Marshal Semyon Timoshenko hero of the first great Russian counter-offensive in 1941, was leading the Red Army attack, according to The United Press. German comment was said to recognize a threat to the important Nazi base cities of Orel and Bryansk.]

The midnight Moscow bulletin, issued after the special communiqué, said the Germans had hurled more men and tanks into the Belgorod fight, but had failed to make a break-through. One Soviet formation in that zone destroyed fifty-one tanks and wiped out 2,000 troops in Thursday's fighting.

"The enemy, bled white, was forced to pass to the defensive" in the sector between Kursk and Orel, the bulletin added.

Another special Moscow announcement said Russian bombers raided Orel Wednesday night, exploding and setting afire enemy munition trains and supply dumps.

In the course of the new offensive, the Russians said, Soviet troops routed the German Fifty-sixth, 262d and 293d Infantry Divisions and the Fifth and Eighteenth Tank Divisions. Heavy losses also were reported inflicted on the German 112th, 208th and 211th Infantry Divisions and the Twenty-fifth and Thirty-sixth Motorized Divisions.

Material Losses Mount

The Russians were said to have destroyed 109 enemy tanks, 294 planes and forty-seven guns of various calibers and captured at least forty tanks, 210 guns, 187 mortars, ninety-nine machine guns and twenty-six supply dumps.

"The offensive of our troops continues," said the special bulletin, broadcast amid the playing of Red Army marching songs.

German tank and infantry attacks in the Belgorod sector were repulsed, Moscow announced, while Russian troops attacked the enemy in the area between Orel and Kursk.

The special Russian announcement was keyed in closely with the recent reversal in the trend of German comment on the situation on the Eastern Front, where Adolf Hitler was reported by some sources to have first taken over and then quickly given up the direction of the apparently ill-starred German summer offensive.

The staggering casualties inflicted on the Germans in the eleven sweltering days of battle in the center amounted, on the basis of Russian statements, to more than 54,000 men killed or captured, 3,068 tanks destroyed or captured and 1,636 planes shot down.

For the last two days the Germans have reported tremendous battles, with the Russians throwing huge reserves into the fight in a determined bid to take over the initiative.

The Red Army's new blow underscored the swiftly clarifying Allied strategy of simultaneous pressure to crack the Axis. The offensive apparently was touched off Tuesday and thus it came only seventy-two hours after American, British and Canadian troops landed in Sicily in the invasion of the underbelly of Europe.

With its attack the Red Army gave the clearest evidence of its power to carry its share of the offensive load against the Axis defense ring, necessarily thinned by the developing of new fronts and threats of imminent blows almost anywhere around Herr Hitler's hard-beset fortress.

The Germans' Thursday communiqué, broadcast from Berlin, said "heavy fighting is being continued on the Eastern Front despite increasingly worse weather conditions." The weather, used frequently by the Germans as an excuse for costly failures, has been blamed several times this week in Berlin.

"The Russian attempts to pierce the German positions collapsed with heavy casualties," the Nazi communique said of the fighting east and north of Orel, issued before the Russian special communiqué. "Immediate German counter-attacks are making successful progress."

The Germans declared their planes destroyed 336 tanks and seventy aircraft yesterday.

Quoting the Transocean military correspondent, Capt. Ludwig Sertorius, a Berlin broadcast said "east of Orel the enemy in recent days continued his brief attacks without any success."

"Concerning the situation in the main fighting sector around Kursk," the broadcast went on, "there have been only slight local changes during the last two days, but nevertheless everything is developing here quite in accordance with German pains."

YANKS ADVANCE 7 MILES IN RACE WITH BRITISH ARMIES TOWARD CATANIA

JUL 16 1943

Parachutists And Glider Troops Dropped Behind Enemy's Lines—Axis Forces Strive To Check Sweep On Island's Second Largest City

MURINE

[By the Associated Press]

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, July 15—American troops plunged seven miles deeper into Sicily's mountains in a race tonight with British coastal armies striking toward the Catania plain, where Allied parachutists and glider troops dropped behind the enemy's lines for what is expected to be a major battle.

The Americans under Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton, Jr., captured another airdrome and also took some important ——ghts in a thrust which reached Vizzini area, twenty-five miles inland from Augusta, the British base for the drive on Catania, to the north.

Italian General Surrenders

Another Italian general, commanding the 54th Napoli division, surrendered with his staff south of Vizzini.

Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's British-Canadian Eighth army was fighting along the coast after repulsing a stiff Axis counterattack which temporarily broke British lines early yesterday to reach Augusta.

By noon yesterday the British had ejected the Germans and went on to take Brucoli, four miles above Augusta. Their next objective was Lentini, on the edge of the plain 13 miles below Catania port, which is half-way along the road to the important prize of Messina opposite the toe of Italy.

Lentini and nearby Carlentini already were smouldering from heavy British naval bombardments, and a dispatch from an Associated press naval correspondent said Allied air-borne troops had landed on the plain above Lentini.

(An NBC correspondent, in a report from a British cruiser off the coast there, said the British had captured both Lentini and Carlentini, and that Catania again had been shelled heavily. An Italian armored train which had pushed south of Catania was forced to withdraw by naval artillery, he said.)

Hard Fight Looms

A hard fight was expected to begin at Lentini, if it had not already begun, as Axis troops, including units of the Nazi Hermann Goering division, strove to check the British sweep on Catania, a communications hub for roads leading into the interior, and Sicily's second city.

A headquarters communique and "considerable gains" had been made by the land armies in the last 24 hours, and presumably referring to the fight for Catania plain it added that British and American air-borne and parachute troops had carried out "successful operations."

Ahead of the troops more than 200 bombers struck their heaviest blow in this theater, dropping hundreds of tons of explosives on Messina at the island's northeastern tip. "Very great damage" was done, the communique said of the attack on this rail-ferry city which is the key to the Axis supply situation on the island.

Seventy-five American Liberators from the Middle East participated in the blows delivered Tuesday night and yesterday. They alone dropped more than 400,000 pounds of bombs, and also battered military objectives at San Giovanni, opposite Messina on the Italian mainland.

Axis Resistance Feeble

Other airmen pummeled enemy communications, stabbing into the heart of Sicily at Enna, an Axis troop concentration point. Enemy fighter resistance was feeble, the Allies knocking down nine planes yesterday and the night before for a loss of three. One Liberator was lost in the Messina-San Giovanni attacks.

Off northern Sicily torpedo-carrying planes blew up one enemy tanker, set fire to another, and left a merchant ship in a sinking condition.

Part of the Hermann Goering division already had been badly mauled by the Americans in their inland strikes from Gela toward Caltagirone and Vizzini when the British Eighth army suddenly found itself attacked by units of the same outfit.

The British hurled the Germans back onto the Catania plain, terrain ideally suited for tank battles, and one of the most decisive battles of the whole campaign may be fought there.

Capture of Catania would set the trigger for a gigantic trap of all Axis forces in Sicily. The town controls roads running into the interior, and would leave the Axis troops only one major escape exit, the coastal run running along northern Sicily toward Messina, 55 miles above Catania.

Enemy Beginning to Fight

One salient fact emerging now is that the Axis has really begun to fight, and is mobilizing for a stand after several earlier futile attempts to push the Allies back into the sea and a series of delaying actions. The Allies now expect a concerted Axis counter-drive.

In the fighting around Augusta, one British column took Melilli, six miles southwest of the port. The capture of that town, Brucoli to the north, and two more points taken by the Americans in the southwest gave the Allies a bag of at least 24 towns in southeastern Sicily.

Axis Tanks Move Up

Dispatches said that powerful formations of Axis tanks had been brought into line to try to stem the Allies. Artillery batteries also were becoming more numerous. Ship-to-shore communications tipped Allied warships on the location of these batteries and in some cases they were picked off with the first few naval salvoes.

But farther inland the Americans did not always have this advantage as they fought their way north through the mountains toward Catania plain. Vizzini, about 30 miles inland, is 20 miles southwest of Lentini. The mountain town also is an important road junction for a winding east-west artery.

The Americans in this area form the American right flank, and are in contact with Canadians who earlier took Palazzolo below Vizzini. Altogether the Americans now hold a line running almost due east from Naro, on their left flank, to Vizzini.

In the middle the Americans were threatening Caltigirone; in the west a Sicilian dispatch from Associated Press Correspondent Harold Boyle disclosed that the towns of Riesi and Campobello had been taken, about 15 miles northeast and 12 miles north, respectively, from the beach held at Licata.

It was announced today that American amphibious jeeps and amphibious two-ton trucks mounting two machineguns are among new weapons being used in the campaign.

The name of the new airdrome captured by the Americans was not learned immediately. The air and seaplane bases now in Allied hands include Pachino, Biscari, Gela-Farello, Ponte Olivo, Licata, Syracuse, Comiso and Pozzallo. Some of these fields already are being used by Allied airmen.

SICILY LANDING IS DESCRIBED

JUL 16 1943

Surf More Deadly Than Enemy, Italians Kissed Hands Of Yanks, Says Moroso

By JOHN A. MOROSO III

[Associated Press Correspondent]

Near Scoglitti, Sicily, July 10 (delayed)—Our force, a small part of the Allied troops who invaded Sicily in the darkness, smashed its way into this medieval land from the seas aided by Italians who kissed our hands and feet in preference to firing machine guns that could have wiped us out.

The surf on the rocky shore where I landed claimed more American lives than the enemy in our initial assault wave which went in bravely despite a lack of combat experience, but later the enemy got tougher and fine wind-blown sand and slowness in delivering supplies hampered our boys.

There was a welter of blood, but it was mostly Italian.

Transport All Way From U. S.

I was aboard an assault transport that came all the way from the United States and our story is one of tribute to American boys who knew how to fight and die bravely.

Their orders were to go in with bayonets and grenades. Rifle fire was taboo until daylight, and unless an enemy target was definitely sighted there was to be no turning back.

As darkness clouded the Mediterranean, a sudden forty-five-knot gale (called a sirocco here) which had come on earlier, grew in intensity, and the ship rolled and pitched heavily. As our lads began loading heavy packs and weapons onto their backs, a quarter-moon paled, causing the stars to brighten. Many seasick soldiers had to be helped with their packs.

Waiting For Zero Hour

As the zero hour approached, waiting to be loaded into the boats became almost unbearable. Unidentified planes were detected in the darkness, causing us to expect bombs any minute. My boat carried a quarter-ton truck, twenty-five men and radio sets.

The truck became a demon when we tried to load it into a small boat dancing on the rough seas below. It slithered and banged through the air making us think nature and luck had suddenly turned against us.

I crouched at the rail with a battalion commander for hours, chatting about anything and everything to relieve the tension. Finally we clambered down the chain landing nets, swinging and swaying against the steel side of the ship.

After what seemed an eternity we squeezed into the boat and shoved off to our station to await the rest. Sprays stung our cheeks and lips as we bobbed in the darkness. Visibility was almost nil and our coxswain, Robert Pearson, of Union City, Mich., had a hard time keeping his place as we circled in the darkness.

Men Hang Over Sides

Men hung over the sides of the boat, vomiting continuously, and I thanked God for a good sea stomach. Boys from New York, Texas, Massachusetts, Colorado, Oklahoma and New Mexico and other States fought nausea and wetness with cusses.

We were five miles off shore at 3.05 A. M. when a light signal told us the assault was on. Visibility was still nil, but Pearson managed to follow the boat in front of us until we reached a point 1,000 yards off shore.

Back of the flagship the gunnery officer, a native of East Boston and a resident of Annapolis, stood waiting to direct naval gunfire against the enemy positions and beaches. He gave the open fire order on the exact minute and cruisers, destroyers and a British monitor began spouting flames and death and destruction shoreward.

Night Becomes Hideous

It was a fantastic barrage that sent chills up and down our backs as red, green and white tracer shells poured continuously from the guns and headed shoreward. Explosions and fires sprang up and the night became hideous with the thunder of guns and the whistle of shells.

Timing our fire we crept slowly shoreward, cranning our necks as shells passed over our heads.

As the fire died down a huge wave threw us violently against some rocks and our boat turned its beam end to the sea and the water splashed aboard, causing our cargo to shift and pin men against the sides. The following breakers banged us violently against sharp rocks and the craft began flooding.

The Men "Jump For It"

After someone let the ramp down we still couldn't see land but someone yelled "jump for it" and the men with heavy packs slid down the ramp to become engulfed in spumes of water.

Before my turn came I heard

JUL 16 1943

men screaming in this merciless turmoil. I dropped my gas mask overside and jumped down the ramp. A breaker threw me on the jagged rocks, cutting my hands and legs and side and the current sucked me back into the sea under the boat. But I struggled free and twice more was thrown against the craft and again drawn seaward.

Battle With The Breakers

The fourth time I held a rock and gained three feet before the next breaker. I repeated this until I was out of range of the breakers and crawled ashore slowly vomiting salt water and bleeding from cuts.

The burst of our shells ahead suddenly reminded me that this was an enemy coast and I wished for a gun. I crawled until I reached the sand and unloaded my pack and crawled back to the boat where I found a naval lieutenant floundering in the water moaning. With the help of another lad I pulled him onto a rock.

A wave knocked me flat and I thought the end had come. I vaguely remembered I was the only correspondent in this assault sector and must carry on. I stretched up against the boat and the colonel handed me his binoculars. Clutching them in my right hand I staggered back to the casualty and stood by him until first-aid men came and applied splints to his broken leg while the waves broke over us.

Screams In The Darkness

I heard continuous screams in the darkness of "Help, I'm drowning" and tried to find the victims. No luck. Another wave threw me and the rifles on the rocks, and I climbed forward toward shore. I crawled until I found other boys crawling and vomiting. Most of them had lost their rifles. All were chilled but they were crawling toward the enemy. There was no turning back now.

Shots rang out and we lay still. We were too tired now to dig fox holes. At this point most of us cared little for life. We heard American voices ahead and a few minutes later the rush of feet.

Italians With Hand- High

We rushed blindly forward and found three Italians standing near a machine-gun nest with their hands high. We herded them into a trench after searching them and taking their rifles and pistols. Near by we found another machine-gun nest.

With guns loaded we also found trenches with barbed wire and learned that the rest of the garrison had fled to the sand dunes.

The colonel arrived and made us spread out to await dawn.

Land Mines And Booby Traps

Land mines and booby traps made our advance in the dark hazardous and we knew now that we had missed our beach. I hid behind a stone wall clutching an entrenching tool as a weapon. We expected counter-attacks. Shots rang out. Bullets whistled overhead till dawn. Prisoners, praying, came in with grimy Yanks who had seized Italian rifles as weapons.

A checkup showed the only equipment saved from the landing boat was a radio set without a generator. Meanwhile, our men scattered about with everything confused.

Colonel Sends Out Scouts

To my civilian eye we were lost. But the colonel, sizing up the situation, calmly sent out scouts to check our position. They returned with the information that we were east of our beach.

Our first objective was a piece of high land some miles inland. A trail to the west led to a pre-arranged assembly point. The colonel eyed our bedraggled little band and gave the orders to advance.

Captured Italian Officer Says Axis Knew Invasion Date —Describes Defeat

By HAROLD V. BOYLE
For the Combined American Press.

GELA, Sicily, July 12 (Delayed)—A tank officer described today how three American tanks and an artillery battery knocked out fourteen of thirty attacking German tanks and kept them from overrunning vital landing beaches.

The battle was the first major engagement for the victorious tank men, who fought like veterans to defeat the prized tanks of the Hermann Goering Division.

"They almost got away with it," said Lieut. Col. Briard Johnson of North Amherst, Mass., executive officer of the American command post that was directly in the path of the charging tanks east of Gela.

"A few already had cut across the main coastal road when we went into action," continued Colonel Johnson. "If they had ever got to the shore, they would have been in position to capture our supply dumps, shoot up unloading crews and even lay fire on our main transport force in the harbor."

Two-Purpose Howitzers

But before they could reach their objective, they were intercepted by a platoon of Sherman tanks, whose daredevil stand was helped by thunderous blasts from a battery of 105-mm. howitzers that were designed for other purposes than pot-shotting at tanks.

"They just turned down their muzzles and began laying shells directly in among the tanks advancing over the plain," said Colonel Johnson. "They were only three-quarters of a mile from the landing beach, so we couldn't waste time or miss many shots.

"One howitzer used as an anti-tank gun did phenomenal work in knocking out five or six Mark III and Mark IV tanks alone. All the time the artillery was drumming in its big shells our tanks were boring in at them at closer range.

"It was meant to be an attack in force—the Germans don't throw that many tanks around casually—but they couldn't stand up under our combined fire. They broke and made for the shelter of buildings and trees, firing back all the time with their 75-mm. guns.

"The battle lasted about an hour, and then the Germans began to retreat. They tried to get away under cover of smoke from their own burning tanks, but our Shermans kept picking them off one after another. When the firing finally stopped, there were fourteen Nazi tanks smoldering in the fields. It was a clean-cut victory."

Yankees Widen Conquest

American infantry and armored forces, with three bridgeheads established in southern Sicily and two airports seized, widened the area of conquest steadily, sending back Italian prisoners from the front lines by the hundreds in a continuous shuttle.

Approximately 2,000 Italians and a few Germans were taken in the first two days' fighting, and officers predicted the rate would be speeded up as additional men and supplies being ferried ashore were thrown against the crumbling Axis forces.

Americans Use Medium Tanks And 105 Howitzer Battery; Suffer No Loss

With the American Seventh Army at Gela, Sicily, July 12 (Delayed) — American infantry and armored forces with three bridgeheads established in southern Sicily and two airports seized widened the area of conquest steadily, sending back weary Italian prisoners from the front lines by the hundreds in a continuous shuttle.

Approximately 2,000 Italians and a few Germans were taken in the first two days of fighting, and officers predicted the rate would be speeded up as additional men and supplies being ferried ashore were thrown against the crumbling and retreating Axis forces.

30 German Tanks Attack

The greatest threat to the landing operations came yesterday morning when a force of thirty German Mark III and Mark IV tanks made a stubborn stab toward the beaches east of Gela.

A platoon of three medium American tanks bolstered by superb firing of a 105 howitzer artillery battery pressed into service as anti-tank guns broke up the German attack in a bitter battle lasting an hour.

When the smoke died away fourteen destroyed German tanks stood in the blackened ruin of a hayfield swept by flame.

Infantrymen, rugged rangers and parachute troops have fought continuously since they forced their way ashore through the coastal defenses at Gela Saturday morning. Other American units smashing ashore simulttaneously at two other points along the forty-five mile long beach stretch met only meager resistance and pushed inland quickly.

An American division won distinction in its first combat effort of the war by pushing through from the coast east of here and capturing Comiso, a town of more than 20,000 population, and Comiso airport.

Ponte Olivo airport, seven miles northeast of Gela, was captured shortly after daybreak, giving the Yankees a second base.

From this hillside almond grove this morning I watched as the reinforced American tanks and artillery beat back a second thrust by the Hermann Goering Division of tanks, north of the main coastal road east of here. At least three Nazi tanks were destroyed.

Axis Allegedly Knew Date

At a prison camp one Italian officer said that, although the civilian population was kept in ignorance, the military garrison was informed on July 7 that the Allies would attempt landings on July 10—as they did. Asked why no greater effort was made to stop the landings, if that were true, he replied indignantly:

"We fought bravely and well. But we could not stand up against your naval guns. They blew our guns and fortifications into the air and cut our friends in half. It was frightful."

When asked why they were not reinforced if they knew the points at which the Allies planned landings, he replied:

"We saw no need for reinforcements. We had been fortifying these positions for two years."

The town of Gela, which has a population of 32,000, was taken in the first few hours after the assault waves began coming ashore. The resistance at the town itself was feeble and no attempt was made to defend it. Situated on a plateau overlooking a small, blue harbor, it is a typical Sicilian small town—dirty, old and poverty-stricken.

'Chutists Fight As Guerrillas, Then as a Team

U. S. Air-Borne Troops Made Forced Marches, Won Sicily Objectives

WITH AMERICAN AIRBORNE TROOPS IN SICILY (Delayed).—It's quiet today, oddly quiet, in the cool shade of our Sicilian orchard. The noise of battle has passed and overhead is a Spitfire patrol which appeared for the first time yesterday, replacing what seemed to be the ever-present enemy fighters and bombers.

In this strange and unaccustomed quiet you glance through the grove at tired men improving the sand slit-trenches or cleaning their guns, and you marvel again at the ability and stamina of the American soldier, particularly these airborne soldiers. In fancy, they might be a band of Robin Hood's men bivouacking in Sherwood Forest, their olive green jump suits, often camouflaged with darker dapples of green, completing the picture. But these men are an even tougher breed.

You have just seen them in their first combat. They parachuted through the night into Axis strongpoints. They battled their way along the coast and inland, fighting as guerrillas, and then, drawn together into a small combat team and reinforced with tanks and artillery, they fought as well as any Yanks have ever fought.

Victorious in First Fight

It was their first fight, but you would have thought they were old hands at it. Some mistakes, naturally, were made, but these shock troops distinguished themselves brilliantly.

Dropped as they were in this operation, they made forced marches, lugging all their heavy equipment and sometimes managing to scrouge some extra transport.

The task force which they aided was able to provide only a few jeeps and trucks for a limited time. The industrious parachute troops have been coming up to this area in everything from captured Italian tankettes, trucks, hearses and bicycles to peasant carts, sedans, motorcycles, horses and jackasses. They had to appoint a stable officer and establish a picket line when thirty jackasses appeared.

Rations and water are an ever-present problem, as well as evacuation of the wounded from the busy front-line aid stations, where medical officers and first-aid men worked long hours to save the lives of both American and Axis soldiers.

There was the case of Private Robert Games, of Norfolk, Va., a clerk in a Headquarters Company. He should be dead. Attacking a pillbox, Games crept in close, when the enemy fired seventy rounds and then pitched three hand grenades at him, knocking him unconscious. He awoke inside the pillbox, stripped naked. Half an hour later the Americans attacked again and destroyed the pillbox, killing all the Italians, but he was not scratched.

There was Lieutenant H. H. Swingler, twenty-five years old, of St. Louis, of the Headquarters Company, who led the final assault on an enemy hill, in a battle two days ago, with a force that included riggers, company clerks, cooks and orderlies, as well as infantry and engineers. Two of his best men were killed on either side of him, but Swingler kept on, creeping under machine-gun cross-fire. In a defile, he came upon a Mark IV tank beside which stood two of its crew. One hand grenade killed both and the tank retreated, while Swingler hollered for an anti-tank gun.

Only Obstacle Canadians Meet In Sicily Is Dust

Italians Surrender Readily as Invaders Gain, but Trouble May Be Ahead

ON THE CANADIAN FRONT IN SOUTHEASTERN SICILY, July 13 (Delayed).—With Italians surrendering in droves and towns capitulating with scarcely any fight, these first three days of the amazing Sicilian campaign have been a sweep for Canadians in this sector. I finally caught up with the fast-moving front-line troops yesterday afternoon in a jeep, after pursuing them afoot for two days, and they were sitting atop the world.

Even the commanders were surprised by the meager defense the Italians were making of their homeland. The Canadians have taken every advantage of the weak stand of the enemy, and the American and British troops are having equal successes.

It has been a victory march so far through the vineyards, olive groves and plantations and over chalk-dust roads of this part of Sicily, but there may be trouble ahead.

Take a Breather

With a few battalion actions and numerous skirmishes, the Canadians have pushed inland more than thirty miles now and they are getting a breather before the next phase of this Allied operation. Yesterday they joined up with the Americans on the left and they have been keeping pace with a famous British division—which is no small achievement, considering the battle experience of these Tommies.

But for the presence of a few snipers in vineyards and on hills, the countryside was peaceful today. Canadians were everywhere, columns marching forward and convoys of trucks and guns rolling through the fog of chalk dust. We are all covered with this white dust. The Canadians look like real desert rats of the 8th Army to which they now belong.

We do not know which is worst, the heat, the flies, the dust or the mosquitoes—the latter being the best dive bombers we've seen round these parts.

The reaction of the Italian civilians has been rather surprising. We expected they might be sullen and completely uncooperative, but it has not been like that. Perhaps they are faking, but when the Canadians pass through the towns dozens of citizens stand on the sidewalks and give the "V for victory" sign, clap their hands and grin as if it were an Italian celebration.

Honor Dead Canadian

In Modica, a dead Canadian was lying by the roadside and the Italians had draped the body with a white sheet and placed flowers on it.

Just before we got to Modica late yesterday we passeed a batch of more than a thousand prisoners—the largest I had seen. They were wearing khaki or green uniforms and, completely unbelligerent, were guarded by a dozen Canucks. They crowded around and posed, pleased as punch when an army film unit of photographers took their pictures. This huge bag of Italians was captured by fifty Canadians after a short-lived skirmish.

POOR ITALIAN ARMS REFLECT GRAFTING

Tanks Are Outmoded, Planes and Aircraft 'Miserable'

While Food Is Bad

PRODUCTS OF FASCISM

Inefficiency and Inadequacy Spring From Bureaucratic Rule and Corruption

JUL 16 1943

By JOHN GUNTHER

For the Combined American Press

A COMMAND POST OF THE FIFTEENTH ARMY GROUP, Sicily, July 15—Italian aircraft is mostly out of date, Italian tanks are a miserable joke and Italian artillery is ludicrous—this is the price the Italian people are now paying for their "efficient" leadership.

Expert American and British observers advancing into Sicily continue to be amazed at what they called the pitiful inadequacy of Italian material and equipment. Even the food supplies for the troops are grossly bad.

Ration boxes were found with a thin layer of provisions on top and a pile of gravel underneath. Tins of meat were opened and found to be rotted and cans of soup are dishwater.

In former days many right wing folk in America and Britain were inclined to be sympathetic to Premier Benito Mussolini and fascism, largely because they thought the Italian regime was "efficient," but it is now manifest that corruption and inefficiency so ate their way into Il Duce's Italy that the Italian Army is not even capable of feeding and equipping its own soldiers.

As seen here the reasons for this are two. First, Italy was governed not merely by one bureaucracy but by two, the Fascist party on top of regular civil service. This made for a fantastic duplication of effort, maladministration and corruption. Second, in the Fascist set-up every man was complete boss to those below him and complete slave to those above.

Therefore, everybody played his own game and there was no cooperation or integration of the national effort.

Our officers haven't seen a decent Italian gun yet. The Italians are good mechanics and brave soldiers, but go into battle in tanks that are literal death traps. One hit and they burst into flames.

The Italians started the war with tanks known as Fiat 3000B, first designed in 1918. They also have French R35s, a tolerable enough light tank. But they weren't good enough against the Germans in 1940 and they are virtually useless now.

One reason for this lack of adequate production was the unwillingness of the Fascist industrialists to retool their plants. Corruption was rife in all aspects of civil and economic life. Nobody would do anything except with an eye to political favor. Front-line reports continue to emphasize the bad feeling between the Germans and the Italians. The Italians hate and despire the Germans who helped bring them this tragedy and the Nazis have nothing but contempt for their delapidated "allies."

Quantities of anti-German leaflets issued by the Italians have been picked up by our troops in various areas.

Invasion Guidebook Issued by Eisenhower

General Bids Troops to Drive Enemy 'Closer to Disaster'

AN ALLIED COMMAND POST IN NORTH AFRICA, July 15 (AP).—Shortly before American forces invaded Sicily they received a succinct little guidebook containing a brief description of the island, its history, currency information, disease warnings, maps, pictures and a dictionary.

A foreword, written by Allied Commander in Chief General Dwight D. Eisenhower, said:

"We are about to engage in the second phase of the operation which began with the invasion of North Africa.

"We have defeated the enemy's forces on the south shore of the Mediterranean and captured his army intact.

"The French in North Africa, for whom the yoke of Axis domination has been lifted, are now our loyal allies.

"However, this is not enough. Our untiring pressure on the enemy must be maintained, and as this book falls into your hands we are about to pursue an invasion and occupation of enemy territory.

"The successful conclusion of these operations will not only strike closer to the heart of the Axis but also will remove the last threat to the free sea lanes of the Mediterranean.

"Remember, this time it is indeed enemy territory we are attacking, and as such we must expect extremely difficult fighting.

"But we have learned to work smoothly alongside one another as a team, and many of you who will be in the first ranks of this force know full well the power of our Allied air and naval forces and the real meaning of air and naval superiority

"The task will be difficult, but your skill, courage and devotion to duty will be successful in driving our enemies closer to disaster and leading us toward victory and the liberation of Europe and and Asia."

WITH AMERICAN AIRBORNE TROOPS IN SICILY, (Delayed)—Spearheading the invasion of Sicily, an American parachute troop combat team has just completed a brilliant and tough mission, fulfilling expectations held for the largest airborne combat operation ever attempted by the United States Army.

Since late Friday night, when they landed by the light of a waning moon, they have been fighting crack German and Italian troops, killing and capturing hundreds. They have fought as small guerrilla bands, attacking pillboxes and strong points with grenades, antitank weapons and knives. They have fought as a small but rugged team against the Hermann Goering grenadiers and tanks.

Canadians Capture Airfield, Fly Off It

Somewhere in Sicily, July 13—Delayed—Canadian pilots now are flying off a Sicilian airdrome which was captured by Canadian infantry and brought into operation by a British airfield construction group soon after landing.

The Italians had plowed up this airfield before the invasion and the airfield construction group, including British pioneers and sappers who came in with the Canucks, went to work filling in the furrows which sometimes were two feet deep.

It was not long before fighters landed on the repaired drome, throwing up great clouds of chalky dust as they taxied to a standstill.

MESSINA HIT BY MORE THAN 200 BOMBERS

"Very Great Damage" Is Rained On Key City, 2 Miles From Mainland

Allies Rule Sicilian Skies, Planes Ranging All Over Island

JUL 16 1943

By RELMAN MORIN

[Associated Press Correspondent]

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, July 15—Hundreds of Allied bombers, striking from bases in both North Africa and at the Middle East, heaped "very great damage" upon Messina yesterday in one of the heaviest assaults ever delivered against the enemy's most important Sicilian port.

Other Allied planes, many of them operating from newly captured airfields in Sicily, continued their furious attacks against Axis positions throughout the island and enemy shipping in surrounding waters.

Barely 2 Miles From Mainland

More than 200 Flying Fortresses, Mitchells and Marauders, escorted by fighters, blasted harbor installations and railway communications at Messina, barely two miles from the Italian mainland and virtually the only port through which the enemy can reinforce his shrinking Sicilian defenses from the continent.

Seventy-five American Liberator bombers from the Middle East dumped more than 400,000 pounds of high explosives on Messina for their part in the devastating daylight assault. Attacking in three waves, the Liberators also concentrated on the ferry terminal and railroad yards, then continued on across the Messina Strait to bomb the opposite terminal at San Giovanni on the Italian mainland.

The heavy daylight blow followed a night attack on Messina by the Royal Canadian Air force, disclosed for the first time to be participating in the Sicilian campaign. R.C.A.F. Wellingtons also dumped their bombs on the port and railroad yards.

With Axis defenses in Sicily apparently stiffening and the Allies firmly in control of the sea and air, the importance of Messina was increasing steadily by the hour.

City Covered With Smoke

Bomber crews reported that the city was so clouded by smoke that they could not observe accurately the results of their attack but an Allied headquarters communique declared that "very great damage was caused and fires were started."

Although enemy fighter opposition was extremely light, the bombers were forced to smash their way through intense barrages of anti-aircraft fire to reach their targets.

The four-engined B-17s led the way, followed by the Mitchell and Marauder medium bombers which laid several strings of explosives squarely across buildings and barracks, causing new fires to break out.

Meanwhile, torpedo-carrying Beaufighters operating over the Tyrrhenian sea knocked another hole in the enemy's naval supply lines by blowing up one large tanker, setting fire to another and leaving a 7,000-ton merchant ship in a sinking condition. These R.A.F. Coastal command planes also shot up an enemy destroyer and a cargo vessel and blasted a Junkers-52 transport plane out of the air.

Tanker Destroyed

Sighting three tankers off Maddelena, Italian naval base on Sardinia, the Beaufighters picked out the largest and planted three torpedoes in her side which caused her to explode. Then they shelled a smaller tanker which was burning fiercely when they left.

The latest successes in the campaign to keep the Axis from sending supplies and reinforcements to Sicily by water brought the total to four freighters sunk, one left in a sinking condition, one tanker sunk, another left burning, and at least three destroyers heavily damaged.

At the same time, Allied planes from bases in North Africa, Malta, Pantelleria and Sicily ruled the sk over the entire island, tec g the ground forces dr forward against tougher enemy resistance and ripping up communications and transport lines in that portion of Sicily still held by the Axis.

In widespread operations throughout the day and preceding night, the Allied airmen shot down nine enemy planes, including the JU-52, while losing three craft of their own.

Medium and light bombers struck double-barreled blows at Palermo on the northwest coast and at Enna in central Sicily, while other Allied raiders attacked Gerbini, Termini, Lercara-Friddi, Leonforte, Vallelunga and Stefano.

Still other formations ranged the length and breadth of the island, hammering everything they could find along roads and rail lines.

Both stabs at Palermo were made by R.A.F. Wellingtons. The first wave delivered heavy loads of explosives on railway yards, sidings and the main station, while the second group, arriving almost before the debris had settled, scored hits on the rail yards, an anti-aircraft gun position and a big rail junction outside the city.

Lightnings Seek Targets

Hunting in packs, Lightnings roamed at will over the Sicilian countryside and shoreline, searching for targets. This is what they reported:

Half of the trucks in a convoy of 25 or 30 destroyed, two of them exploding when hit; five half-tracks set afire; two trucks hit directly and two others left ablaze from strafing; direct hits on docks and seaplanes at an eastern coastal base; a gasoline-carrying truck blown up; a bridge bombed and set afire; a tug towing two large barges hit and forced to run aground.

The former enemy air bases in Sicily now held by the Allies include those at Pachino, Biscari, Gela-Farello, Gela-Porte, Olivo, Licato and Syracuse, the last of which also is a seaplane base.

All of them show the marks of the hammering dealt by Allied airmen before they were captured. A number of enemy planes were found, some of them wrecked but others virtually undamaged.

Berlin Asserts Counter-Attack Checks Allies

JUL 16 1943

Says Invasion of Sicily Has Been Slowed by Use of Reserves Near Catania

Reports broadcast by the enemy are published with the warning that they frequently contain misleading statements intended for propaganda purposes.

LONDON, July 15 (AP).—Fresh German reserves were declared by the Berlin radio tonight to have counter-attacked the Allies invading Sicily in the region south of Catania, and Italian and Nazi communiques said violent British and American drives had been checked.

"Fighting in southern Sicily is continuing with undiminished violence," today's German high command communique said. "At several points enemy attacks launched with the support of tanks were repulsed."

Hours after the communique, a Berlin military commentator, Captain Ludwig Sertorius, told of the counter-attack south of Catania, which the British 8th Army is approaching.

In marked contrast to the more confident Axis tone was a Vichy radio statement that the Axis position in Sicily is "extremely serious," and that "further infiltration attempts must be checked in order to avoid endangering Axis defenses in the Catania plain." The Germans control the Vichy radio.

Most of the unofficial radio comment from the enemy camp was subdued, but broadcast quotations from Italian newspapers showed that Premier Benito Mussolini was striving desperately to bolster Italian morale. "Il Regime Fascista," of Milan, under the heading "Let Us Face Realities," hammered home the line that the landings in Sicily were possible only because of immense Allied material superiority.

"The hellish fire of heavy-caliber naval guns and a hail of bombs" made possible the landings, the German official news agency, D. N. B., contended.

The Rome radio declared the landing was "a breach in 'Fortress Europe' and the sooner it is sealed the sooner the freedom and independence of European peoples will be saved."

German and Italian communiques asserted there had been a resurgence of Axis air power, in contrast to Allied reports that enemy planes virtually had been driven from the air. The Axis reported considerable losses were inflicted on Allied shipping. The Italians said four ships of 27,000 tons and a destroyer had been sunk and two other cargo ships and a heavy cruiser damaged.

The Rome communique told of bombings which caused "considerable damage to civilian buildings" at Messina, in Sicily, on the strait between the island and the mainland, Palermo at the western end of Sicily and Naples on the mainland. Mussolini was reported to have extended the "active war zone" to include Naples, which meant that martial law had been extended over most of the foot of the Italian boot.

Nazis Force Green Men Into Battle for Sicily

Poles, Yugoslavs and Frenchmen Compelled to Fight Allies

LICATA, Sicily, July 13 (delayed) (AP).—Young Poles, Yugoslavs and Frenchmen with no battle experience are being thrown into the front lines in Sicily by the Nazis, who are so desperately short of man power they are using any kind of military scrap material to try to delay the Allied advance.

One group of eight German Army prisoners resting under the trees of a small Sicilian park serving as a prison bull pen included a Pole who once had fought against Germany in the Polish Army and another Pole who had a brother in a German concentration camp. There were four other Poles and two Yugoslavs eighteen and nineteen years old.

The Yugoslavs and some of the Poles had come to Sicily only a month ago and had never fought before. They were pushed into action two days ago.

Yanks Rescue Two Captive American Flyers At Ragusa

By CLIFTON GREEN

[American War Correspondent]

With the American Forces in Sicily, July 15—Two American flyers, the first Italian-held prisoners released by Yank invasion forces, were found lying wounded in a hospital in the small town of Ragusa.

They were First Sergt. Allen B. Huckabee, of Temple, Texas, 43, who holds the title of the oldest combat man in the United States Air Force; and Technical Sergt. David Fleming, of Jackson, Mich., formerly of Detroit.

The former had eleven bullet wounds, the latter five, but now they are all smiles, looking forward to their return to North Africa, after harrowing experiences which began when their formation of Flying Fortresses in a raid on Comiso airfield July 5 were attacked by more than 100 German and Italian planes.

ABOARD AN ALLIED DESTROYER IN THE MEDITERRANEAN, July 14 (Delayed).—Seated beside me in the ward room of this destroyer is the bulky fifty-five-year-old Italian general by the name of Achille D'Avet, captured in the Allied advance in Sicily.

He is trying to read what I am typing, but his watery blue eyes are drooping with sleep and his massive close-cropped head is nodding with fatigue.

He rouses himself with an effort and says in a husky voice: "Tella—tella da English peoples we thinks kindly of them, and tella my wife in Roma that I fight lika da gentleman until up comes this very fine gentleman Montgomery."

It is stifling hot in the ward room, but Achille D'Avet is clad in full kit—the kit of an Italian general in the field.

In the middle of three rows of decorations nestles the ribbon of a British military medal, but I suppose it's just another color patch to Achille D'Avet.

Bern, Switzerland, July 1[illegible] Roberto R. Farinacci in his Il [illegible] gime Fascista tonight demanded a change of military leaders in Sicily and assignment of Italy's best forces to defend the island.

In a violently phrased front-page editorial, the former secretary of the Fascist party in Italy attacked useless elements in the Fascist hierarchy and demanded a "hierarchy of values, a hierarchy that knows how to give the people a little sunshine after so many fiascos and so much bitterness."

Demands "Men Of Valor"

Most outspoken of the Fascist editors, Farinacci declared that Italy was living in exceptional moments and it "is absurd and extremely dangerous to measure the choices of men and decisions with the military annual as a yardstick."

"It is impossible that the Italian army has only one Messe," he declared. "We know of men of valor and these should be entrusted with the tremendous responsibility to save our Sicily."

He referred to Italian Gen. Giovanni Messe.

Raps Fascist Squadristi

Taking a slanting whack at the much-touted Fascist squadristi, Farinacci asserted "enough of hysterical hyper-sensitiveness, enough birthdays, old age, exceptional merits won in peacetimes."

The editorial said it was necessary that the best forces be assigned to Sicily along with the most able, prepared and resolute leaders who are fighting with the Germans to be able to defeat the Allies. It said also that Sicilian partisans were now at the back of the invaders and were determined to make any sacrifice necessary.

Jails Full Of Anti-Fascists

Michael Chinigo, American war correspondent in Sicily, in a dispatch received yesterday, said the Americans had found in occupied towns jails stuffed with anti-Fascists who said they had been rounded up two weeks before the Allied landings.

He added that the Germans apparently are bombing Italian civilians deliberately. German artillery has been shelling groups of Italian prisoners when they surrendered.

AIRMAN BAGS 150 ITALIANS

Naval Pilot Spots Pillboxes, Drops Bomb, Heads Defenders To U. S. Patrol

[By the Associated Press]

With the Allied Forces in Sicily, July 10 — (Delayed) — The war's latest Sergt. York of the airforce is Lieut. (j.g.) Paul E. Coughlin, an American naval aviator.

Coughlin captured 150 Italian soldiers in a unique and brainy maneuver at 1 P. M. today near Scoglitti.

Flying his slow scout plane over the sand hills, Coughlin spotted Italians manning pillboxes in the path of the advancing American troops. By radio he asked the captain of his ship for permission to drop some bombs.

Italians Come Out, Hands Up

The permission was granted, he let go and to his amazement the Italians, instead of taking cover, ran into the open with their hands held high.

In a quandary over what to do, Coughlin continued circling until he saw an advanced patrol from a combat team. With the machine guns he fired to the rear of the Italians, forcing them to run in the direction of the Americans—like a shepherd herding sheep. Finally he flew over the Americans signalling them the direction of the Italians.

Then he returned to the Italians, keeping them together with his guns until the Americans arrived and took them prisoner.

His job done, Coughlin returned to his ship.

I landed in Sicily today on a rolling, stony plain on the southeast coast near the village of Pachino, with its white stone, tile-roofed houses bunched together in a mass overlooked by the gaudy Fascist municipal building.

Our landing in broad daylight, with hundreds of troops and vehicles swelling the massed power that the Allies are pouring into this island, was without incident.

(The town of Palazzolo is 33 miles south-southwest of Catania, and about 22 miles west of Syracuse on the east coast of Sicily.)

At this moment the front on this inland sector is in mountains over 2,000 feet high in the area of a village about 10 miles northwest of here.

Palazzolo was the front yesterday—more than 30 miles from the beaches. The town capitulated yesterday after a thunderous aerial bombardment had convinced the Italians they faced overwhelming power.

Inhabitants Shocked.

Palazzolo was hit hard in that brief attack. The buildings, shops and homes are now piles of rubble, spilling into the narrow streets. The people are stunned and mumbling incoherently about casualties as they watch the flood of war pass on. They say many people were killed and wounded in the attack.

The British sympathize with them and care for their wounded, but they remind them that this is their war and unless they quit, they will get hurt.

This is the only one of the dozen or more Sicilian villages I saw today which showed any sign of war. The countryside, with its beautiful fields and green trees bearing olives and almonds, its expanses of yellow barley all marked off by low, gray stone walls, shows almost no sign of struggle.

As we drove through the Allied-held section of Sicily we saw the relief with which the people received British troops. They were not cheering or waving hysterically. Usually they smile from doorways and street corners, and occasionally wave their hands in the air, giving the "V" sign.

Refugees Returning.

The road inland from Pachino was jammed with scores of wobbly high-wheeled carts pulled by horses and donkeys, one to a cart, piled high with men, women and children and all their belongings. They were headed back to homes in Pachino from which they were evacuated when it became a military zone before the invasion.

Most of the women here, particularly the older ones, wear black dresses and black shawls which hang over their heads and keep off the hot sun. The men dress shabbily in black or gray suits and shirts.

The youngsters, including pretty, fair-haired, blue-eyed, buxom girls, seem to favor the gayer colors. Some of the carts in which the packed families were riding were painted blue and decorated with red flowers and birds, while many horses were bedecked with flashy tassels and shining harnesses.

Signs of the Times.

British pranksters had fun with Fascist slogans hailing Mussolini. Where one sign, painted in black on a white wall, had proclaimed "Viva Il Duce," a British soldier had painted out the words "Il Duce" and placed, "George VI," after the Viva.

A fat, elderly man wearing a slouch cap grinned broadly and bowed and tipped his hat as we drove through Pachino, saying, "Good Morning," in good English.

Once two children ran alongside the car, shouting for food, but there was surprisingly little begging here compared with North Africa where the constant cry everywhere was for cigarets and chocolate.

People here, largely supported by the farms thickly clustered around little villages, appear dirty and illiterate but cautiously friendly. The tension of waiting for invasion, enduring round the clock bombing of strategic objectives, is ended for those in this part of the island.

Sicilians Greet British With Grateful V-Signs

Palazzolo, Sicily, July 13 (Delayed).—British troops of the Allied invasion force pushed steadily deeper into Sicily and northward along the eastern coast toward Catania today as Axis defenses showed signs of stiffening.

RAF PLANES SWARM TOWARD CONTINENT

Raids Directed At Anti-Invasion Bases Rather Than Industrial Targets

[By the Associated Press]

London, Friday, July 16 — Th

30.24 6085

RAF roared toward the continent last tonight in strength that led one coastal observer to report "the sky seemed to be alive with planes" as the bombing offensive moved into a new stage directed chiefly at Axis anti-invasion bases rather than industrial targets.

The big Britain-based bombers started out after day-long sweeps by Typhoons and Bostons striking at Axis airfields.

Attacks On Italy Indicated

Air-raid alarms sounded in Basel and western Switzerland early in the day, indicating that Allied planes again might be attacking Italy from the north.

Axis radios at Calais and Paris also switched off suddenly twice, late last night and early this morning, a sign that Allied planes were over Europe.

In Britain anti-aircraft guns opened fire in the greater London district early today. County districts in the Thames estuary were bombed and one casualty was reported.

9 Nazi Fighters Destroyed

Nine German fighters were destroyed by RAF Spitfires in rooftop battles as they escorted Boston and Typhoon bombers in attacks on the Poix and Abbeville airfields yesterday, the Air Ministry news service announced.

Seven RAF aircraft were reported lost in the operations.

Great formations of Allied warplanes had been observed heading across the Channel earlier and the German radio reported violent air battles over northern France.

Havoc At Le Bourget

Meantime, famous Le Bourget Airport at the edge of Paris, where Charles A. Lindbergh landed after his transatlantic flight in 1927, was described as looking like a cemetery ready for a mass burial as a result of Wednesday's Flying Fortress attack.

Reconnaissance pictures showed the American bombs had left more than 200 gaping craters in the landing area alone, severely damaged four storage hangars and destroyed parts of three additional buildings.

Le Bourget had been converted by the Germans into an important air base and plane repair station for their air force and in defense of it they put up what the American crews described as the most terrific combat defense since the sanguinary battle June 13, over Kiel, Germany.

Many Nazi Fighters Downed

The Eighth Air Force announced that many German fighters were shot down there while all but four Flying Fortresses over this target returned.

Heavy damage also was inflicted on two other important German bases, Villacoublay military airport, southwest of Paris, and Amiens, in the daylight sweep which cost a total of eight bombers against the destruction of at least forty-five enemy fighters by the Flying Fortresses alone.

At Villacoublay, large aircraft works and the airfield were given a concentrated smashing with more than 400 bursts.

"I don't think it will be necessary to go back there for some time," said Lieut. Donald J. McGowan, of Jersey City, N. J., navigator of the bomber Lady Luck.

Attlee Calls New Annexations By Allies Possible

London, July 15 (AP)—Clement R. Attlee, Dominions Secretary, indicated to Commons today that the Atlantic Charter would not prevent the United Nations from taking permanent possession of the strategic strongholds of the Axis powers.

"Nothing in the Atlantic Charter would, in the opinion of the British Government, preclude the United Nations from taking any steps that might seem good to them, to afford to all nations the means of dwelling in safety within their own boundaries," he said.

Replying to William Nunn, conservative, who had asked whether the Charter would "preclude the United States and Great Britain from continuing to hold certain strategic points formerly in Axis hands, retention of which would seem to be vitally necessary for maintaining the future peace of the world," Attlee added:

"The point referred to would naturally be borne in mind, in company with many others in any discussions as to how best to give effect to Article Seven of the Atlantic Charter."

FAKE INVASION WARNING MADE

Dutch Radio In London Tells People To Guard Against German Trick

Dropping Of 'Chute Troops Garbed As British Might Expose Patriots

JUL 16 1943

[By the Associated Press]

London, July 15—The refugee Netherlands station Radio Orange warned the Dutch people tonight that the Germans were planning to stage a fake invasion of the Netherlands coast in order to trick patriots into exposing themselves.

"The intention seems to be," said the broadcast as reported by the Netherlands news agency Aneta, "that the Germans will undertake faked landings on the Netherlands coast. Apart from that they would drop German parachutists dressed in British uniforms.

Would Go In Streets

"The grand idea is that Dutchmen would go into the streets thinking that the day of liberation had come. The Germans believe they would probably take their arms with them. Therefore, together with the faked landings and dropping of parachute troops, raids and searches in the streets will take place."

The Allies have frequently warned the peoples of the Nazi-occupied countries to be alert for such false alarms, most recently in the case of the invasion of Sicily, when the people of France were so warned by General Eisenhower.

Gen. Anderson Heads 8th Air Force Bombers

New Commander, Known as 'Wild Indian,' Studied British Bombing Methods

LONDON, July 15 (AP).—Brigadier General Frederick L. Anderson has been appointed commanding general of the United States 8th Air Force bomber command, headquarters announced today. General Anderson, thirty-seven years old, is from Washington.

General Anderson, who won the nickname "Wild Indian" as a lacrosse and football player at West Point, first arrived in England in 1941 to study British bombing tactics. He has been associated with the bombardment end of aviation since 1931 and for a time was operations officer for the famous 7th Group serving under Major General Clarence Tinker.

Anderson returned to the United States in 1941 but came back in 1942 to represent General Henry H. Arnold, chief of the United States Army Air Forces, to study British bombing practices. Later he was commander of a Fortress wing in England. He was promoted to Brigadier General on Feb. 8.

Hitler Reported in Berlin After Yielding Command

By The Associated Press.

LONDON, July 15—A foreign diplomatic source reported today that Adolf Hitler, after having commanded the early phases of the latest German offensive in the Belgorod-Orel sector, had relinquished control of the stalled attack and had returned to Berlin for conferences with his military staff.

The source, who could not be further identified, said his information came from inside Germany. He said Herr Hitler had been directing the Russian offensive from the Castle Bninzka, near Bydgoszcz in the old Polish Corridor, where he maintained "front-line" headquarters.

He added that some observers believed Herr Hitler's return to Berlin might mean the end of the German offensive, for the time being at least.

Churchill at Sikorski Mass

LONDON, July 15 (AP).—Prime Minister Churchill and Mrs. Churchill joined 3,000 others in paying tribute to the late Premier Wladyslaw Sikorski, of the Polish government-in-exile, at a solemn requiem mass in Westminster Cathedral today. Detachments of Polish regiments with flags stood at each side of the coffin, which was guarded by Polish soldiers, sailors and airmen.

HIGHEST U. S. MEDAL GIVEN

Congressional Honor Award Presented Fortress Gunner, Sergt. M. H. Smith

Secretary Of War Makes Presentation At Airport In Great Britain

BRANHAM

[By the Associated Press]

A United States Bomber Station in England, July 15—Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson and high officials of the American Army assembled on a wind-swept airdrome somewhere in England today to honor a little Flying Fortress sergeant-gunner with his country's highest award for valor, the Congressional Medal of Honor.

Secretary Stimson presented the medal to Sergt. Maynard H. Smith, 32, of Caro, Mich., who was officially credited with having saved the lives of six crew mates on his first raid.

Three Bailed Out

After three of his comrades had bailed out of the Fortress, Smith singlehandedly beat out the raging flames which enveloped the battered bomber as she struggled back from an attack on St. Nazaire in France on May 1.

Smith, son of the late circuit Judge Henry Harrison Smith, of the Michigan Fourteenth judicial district, is the second man serving in the European theater of operations to win the Congressional Medal of Honor in the present war. But he is the first to live to wear it. The other was awarded posthumously.

Saluted By All

The little sergeant—he is only 5 feet 4 inches tall and weighs 140 pounds—now is entitled to receive salutes from every officer and enlisted man in the United States Army, from four-star generals on down.

Pinning the blue ribbon bearing the medal around Smith's neck at a ceremony staged in the shadow of a Flying Fortress, Stimson told the hundreds of officers and men present:

"This soldier's bravery is an inspiration to all the armed forces of the United States."

Reviewing the little sergeant's heroic exploit, the Secretary of War pointed out that the medal was awarded for "courageous gallantry above and beyond the call of duty," and told Smith, who was standing rigidly at attention, that "it is an honor for President Roosevelt and Congress to bestow upon you this medal."

Dual Congratulations

Then, shaking hands with Smith, Stimson concluded: "I extend my warmest congratulations as Secretary of War and as an American."

Introducing Smith, Lieut. Gen. Jacob L. Devers, commander of the American Forces in the European theater, said: "This is the first time this medal has ever been awarded in the European theater of operations in the present war, except posthumously. We are proud of Sergeant Smith because he typifies the young Americans in our armed forces."

In obvious reference to Nazi and Fascist youth movements, the general added: "Sergeant Smith is not a product of State-controlled youth groups, but of the American sandlots."

Maj. Gen. Ira C. Eaker, commander of American Air Forces in Britain, said he regarded Smith, "and every man in the Eighth Air Force" as heroes. "We all congratulate Smith and know he is worthy of the medal."

Troops Reviewed

During the ceremony several units of infantrymen and air crews stood in parade array on the airfield. After the ceremony Secretary Stimson reviewed the troops, with Sergeant Smith and Lieut. Col. G. L. Robinson, of Hanover, Ill., commander at this station, standing beside him.

Besides beating out the flames in his Fortress on his memorable first mission, Smith manned two machine-gun positions, helping to repeal the Focke-Wulfs that swarmed around the crippled bomber, and gave first aid to a wounded crew member, Sergt. Roy Gibson, of San Diego, Cal.

The pilot of the nameless bomber—designated simply as No. 649—was First Lieutenant P. Lewis Johnson, of Crummies, Ky. He said in an affidavit that Smith's acts, performed "in complete self-sacrifice and utmost efficiency, were solely responsible for the safe return of the aircraft and the lives of everyone aboard."

Now Instructor

Johnson now is serving as an instructor in the United States.

Other crewmen who returned safely that day included Second Lieutenant Robert McCallum, Omaha, Neb., copilot; First Lieutenant Stanley N. Kissoberth, Phoenix, Ariz., bombardier, and Sergt. William W. Fahrenheld, Mc-Keesrocks, Pa., top-turret gunner. Gibson, the tail gunner, since has recovered from his wounds.

Since his first raid, Smith has been on three additional missions and shot down one Focke-Wulf enemy fighter.

In civilian life, Smith said he was employed as an income-tax field agent for the Treasury Department at Detroit; later as assistant receiver for the Michigan State Banking Commission.

He enlisted in the army in September, 1942, and trained as an aerial gunner at Harlingen, Texas, before coming to England last March.

Sergeant Drops KP Tasks To Receive Hero Award

A UNITED STATES BOMBER STATION IN ENGLAND, July 15—(AP) When Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson and American Army officials came here to award the Congressional Medal of Honor, the country's highest award for valor, to a sergeant gunner today they found him—in the kitchen, peeling potatoes on KP.

Sgt.-Gunner Maynard H. Smith of Caro, Mich., had saved the lives of six crew mates on his first raid by beating out flames that enveloped their Flying Fortress. But he had also come back late from leave, twice.

So, he walked out of the kitchen to parade before the assembled dignitaries and hundreds of soldiers to receive the medal only twice awarded in this theater of war.

London-Moscow Air Link Opened by Way of Cairo

Journey Requires 3½ Days, Including Egypt Stop

LONDON, July 15 (AP).—Air service on a regular schedule has been opened between Britain and Moscow by British Overseas Airways, it was disclosed today. The journey requires three and a half days, with a twenty-four layover at Cairo, Egypt.

The route of the flight, it was disclosed, is over North Africa to Cairo, with stops at Habbaniyeh, Irak; Pahlevi, Iran; Astrakan, Kuybyshev and Moscow.

A spokesman for Overseas Airways said the service already has resulted in capacity bookings.

Turin Hard Hit by Raid

Power Off and Water Short After Monday's R. A. F. Visit

BERN, Switzerland, July 15 (AP).—As a result of the Royal Air Force raid on Turin Monday night, that northern Italian city is without electric power and is suffering a severe shortage of drinking water, private advices from Italy declared today.

The advices also reported that typhus had broken out in the city and that the few remaining public conveyances had been placed at the disposal of residents to enable as many as possible to leave for rural districts.

[The Rome radio, in a broadcast recorded by The Associated Press, quoted Thursday's Italian communique as saying 402 persons were killed and 601 injured in Monday night's raid on Turin, in northwestern Italy, by R. A. F. home-based bombers.]

Soviets Detail Atrocities By Nazis at Krasnodar

Report Captives Burned Alive, Tell of Hospital Massacres

MOSCOW, July 15 (AP).—Tass, official Soviet news agency, said today that hearings have started in the military trial of eleven persons charged with high treason for complicity in alleged atrocities committed during the German occupation of Krasnodar, in the Caucasus.

The news agency declared investigations had established that Russian prisoners had been burned alive, hospital patients massacred and "many thousands" of citizens suffocated with carbon monoxide "in specially equipped motor cars" in Krasnodar and the adjacent territory.

Tass said the atrocities were committed by units of the 17th German Army under command of Colonel General Ruof, the Gestapo "and their accomplices" late in 1942 before the territory was retaken by the Russians.

The hospital massacres were said to have taken place at the Krasnodar Municipal Hospital, the Berezan Hospital Colony and a territorial children's hospital in the Labinsnaya district.

Tass reported the motor cars used in the suffocations, which it said the population nicknamed "murderesses," were closed five and six ton trucks equipped with grates in the floors connected with the exhaust pipes. Sixty to eighty victims, Tass said, were herded into the trucks at a time, the doors closed and the motors turned on for a few minutes.

Then the trucks were driven to anti-tank ditches, where the bodies were dumped, Tass said the investigation revealed.

ROBERT ON WARSHIP

ALGIERS, July 15—(AP) The French Committee of National Liberation announced tonight that Admiral Georges Robert has left Martinique and is living on a warship offshore.

Land forces of the island have been placed at the committee's disposition.

(The island was recently turned over to the French committee at Admiral Robert's request. Henri-Etienne Hoppenot has been designated as plenipotentiary to take over the government from the pro-Vichy Admiral Robert, bringing the island over to the United Nations side.)

OTTAWA, July 15 (CP).—Dr. H. E. Evatt, Australian Minister of External Affairs, arrived in Ottawa today for two days of conference with officials of the Canadian government and representatives in Canada of the Australian government.

Canada Won Its Point

Mackenzie King Asked for Early Mention of Troops' Invasion Role

OTTAWA, July 15 (AP).—Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King told the House of Commons today that he had appealed to President Roosevelt last week to see that Canadians were mentioned in early communiques on the Sicilian invasion. He said Mr. Roosevelt replied that he agreed with his Mackenzie King's, point of view and would see that General Dwight D. Eisenhower, commander in chief, made mention of the Canadians.

Mackenzie King said that before the attack was announced early Saturday morning he had been informed of planned announcements of the action which spoke of "an Anglo-American force," without mention of the Canadians.

BEW Abolished, New Unit Set Up

JUL 16 1943

Wallace, Jones Reprimanded for Public Feud on Economic War Program.

WASHINGTON, July 15 —(AP) President Roosevelt, in a sweeping home front reorganization, tonight ordered Vice President Wallace and Commerce Secretary Jones relieved of all responsibility for foreign economic warfare and created a new office under Leo T. Crowley to take over this work.

The President severely reprimanded the vice president, head of the Board of Economic Warfare, and Secretary Jones, as supervisor of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, for publicly airing their dispute over purchases of foreign strategic materials.

In an executive order issued simultaneously he abolished the BEW and transferred its functions, along with all RFC subsidiaries engaged in foreign economic matters, to the new "Office of Economic Warfare," headed by Mr. Crowley.

The latter has accepted. He is now alien property custodian.

The White House also made public a Presidential letter to the heads of all government departments and agencies flatly telling them that if they disobey his previous instructions to bring interdepartmental disputes to him before airing them in the press, he will expect them to send in their resignations immediately.

Mr. Wallace recently brought the feud with Secretary Jones into the open by charging the latter with obstructing the war effort by acting too slowly in providing BEW with funds to purchase strategic materials from abroad. Secretary Jones replied hotly that the charges were malicious and untrue.

Mr. Roosevelt, in identical letters to his 1940 running mate and to Secretary Jones, said he had come to the conclusion that the "unfortunate and acrimonious public debate" between them made it necessary in the public interest to transfer their administration of foreign economic matters to other hands.

No Time for Investigation

"In the midst of waging a war so critical to our national security and to the future of all civilization," the President wrote, "there is not sufficient time to investigate and determine where the truth lies on your conflicting versions as to transactions which took place over a year and a half ago."

"The chief executive said his action tonight is not intended to decide who was right, but the important thing "is to clear the decks and to get on with the war at once."

"To do this," he added, "requires a fresh start with new men, unencumbered by inter-agency dissension and bitterness."

Future Cooperation Impossible

He said he was convinced that the present controversy indicated that future cooperative action between BEW and the RFC subsidiaries is impossible and that "without full cooperation between you the program of economic warfare cannot be carried out."

Besides transferring the entire BEW setup with its approximate 4,000 employes to the new Office of Economic Warfare, the President's order also gave Mr. Crowley's new organization the following RFC subsidiaries: The United States Commercial corporation, the Rubber Development corporation, the Petroleum Reserve corporation, Export-Import bank, and all other RFC and Commerce department agencies engaged in financing foreign purchases and imports.

The order directed the RFC to turn over to the new OEW all funds necessary to carry on its operations pending the appropriation of funds by Congress.

Byrnes to Coordinate Work

The order gave James F. Byrnes, director of the Office of War Mobilization, the responsibility of "unifying and coordinating the policies and programs of the agencies engaged in foreign economic matters in conformity with foreign policy of the United States as determined by the State department."

Mr. Crowley, 53-year-old bachelor, has been connected with the Administration since 1934 when he came from the chairmanship of the Wisconsin Banking Review board to become head of the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation.

In addition to being alien property custodian he still holds the FDIC and also is chairman and president of the Standard Gas and Electric company. He accepts no salary from the government.

A white-haired man of medium height, he is one of the most engaging figures in Washington but even before the war found little time for social life.

In his letters to department and agency heads, President Roosevelt called attention to his warning to them of August 21, 1942, not to air inter-agency disputes in the press, and added:

"By this letter I do not place any restriction upon your furnishing statements in response to congressional inquiries. But if when you have a disagreement with another agency as to fact or policy, instead of submitting it to me or submitting it to the director of War Mobilization for settlement under the terms of the order creating that office, you feel you should submit it to the press, I ask that when you release the statement for publication, you send to me a letter of resignation."

"If any subordinate of yours violates my instructions in this regard," the President continued, "I shall expect you to ask for his immediate resignation."

Mr. Wallace's removal as chairman of the BEW was unprecedented. Never before in the memory of veteran government authorities has a Vice President served in such an important capacity outside his Senate duties and hence an occasion to terminate such extra activity on the part of the second administrative officer of the land has never arisen hitherto.

Some legislators have contended recently that it was unconstitutional for Mr. Wallace to serve in an administrative capacity while Vice President. The capital immediately saw possible political results from tonight's sweeping Presidential moves in the light of recent speculation as to whether the President would seek a fourth term and whether Mr. Wallace would be asked to make way for a new second man on the ticket in case Mr. Roosevelt decided to run.

The President's letter to Mr. Wallace and Secretary Jones said he was sure the American people understood that both of them "have attempted to do your duty as you have seen it; but we must go forward without any further public debate as to matters which are now academic so far as winning the war is presently concerned."

In his letter the President enclosed a copy of his executive order for the information and guidance of each.

The new Office of Economic Warfare was established in the Office for Emergency Management, an overall Presidential outfit which serves as a liaison agency for a dozen or more war administrative organizations.

Officials Accept Roosevelt Order

WASHINGTON, July 15. — (AP) Here are the comments of Vice President Wallace and Secretary of Commerce Jones on the order of President Roosevelt relieving them of all responsibility for the nation's economic warfare and reprimanding them:

Mr. Wallace: "In wartime no one should question the overall wisdom of the Commander-in-Chief."

Secretary Jones: "I concur most heartily in the President's determination to have harmony and cooperation between government officials and agencies in the war effort. The Department of Commerce and the Reconstruction Finance corporation and its subsidiary corporations engaged in foreign purchases will render every possible assistance to the new director of economic warfare."

Kiska Shelled For 4th Time In Eight Days

Naval Action Is Seen as U. S. Step to Conquest of Foe's Last Aleutian Post

WASHINGTON, July 15 (AP).—The fourth naval bombardment of Japanese positions on Kiska Island in an eight-day period was reported by the Navy today. The attack aroused speculation that preliminary preparations for American conquest of the enemy's last position in the Aleutian Islands might be under way.

A Navy communique said that a light surface unit, probably either a destroyer or light cruiser, bombarded Gertrude Cove on Kiska Island early Wednesday morning. Enemy guns made no attempt to fight off the warship, presumably because the Japanese did not want to disclose the positions of their shore batteries.

Gertrude Cove is an inlet southwest of Kiska Harbor, center of the enemy's main operational area on the island. The cove itself is protected by gun positions and has been used by the Japanese for unloading supplies.

The weather is one of the determining factors in all operations in the Aleutians and enters strongly into current speculation about the possibility of retaking Kiska from the Japanese this year.

From now until October, fog, rain and winds will be prevalent over the western Aleutians area, making aerial activity difficult but not too greatly interfering with naval operations of a kind which would be necessary for an amphibious assault on Kiska. Beginning with October, the weather will grow much worse, the normal routine of fog and wind being complicated then by blizzards and sleet storms which would hamper operations by troops ashore.

Primarily for that reason the time to begin an assault on Kiska if it is to be recaptured this year, is growing short.

U. S. Flyers Get Credit For Attu Attack Plan

Washington, July 15 (AP)—Some of the army flyers who bombed Japanese-held Kiska Island were credited with suggesting the plan of attack which routed the enemy off Attu Island farther west in the Aleutian Islands.

Senator Wallgren (D., Wash.), a member of the Senate Military Affairs Committee, said in an interview that he brought back from Alaska last September the plan recommended by the flyers, presented it to high War Department officials and that the attack on Attu had followed the outline. He had gone to Alaska as a member of a subcommittee investigating defenses of the territories.

Asked To See Flyers

"When we saw pictures of how well the Japanese were entrenched on Kiska," Wallgren said, "I told the commanding officer I wished to talk with the flyers—alone. Several days later a group of flyers came to see me but were hesitant in discussing their own views. However, they later did give me an outline of what they considered to be the best way to capture Kiska. I brought the plan back with me and gave it to high army officers here.

"The flyers recommended that Attu or another island west of Kiska be occupied and the attack carried to the enemy from two directions. They said shutting off supplies to Kiska by air and sea would be possible if Attu was occupied and make it harder for the enemy to hold the island. That is just what was done and I feel a great deal of the credit for the capture of Attu should go to those flyers."

HEAVIER FIGHTING COMING IN SICILY, SAYS PATTERSON

JUL 16 1943

30-24- 6087

Allied Advance Is More Rapid Than Expected, War Official Reveals.

WASHINGTON, July 15. — (AP) Allied forces in Sicily have moved far more rapidly than expected but "heavy fighting" is in prospect before conquest of the island is completed, Acting Secretary of War Robert Patterson predicted today.

Saying that "In the center of the island and along the northern coast Italian and German forces occupy naturally strong positions" and are favored by good lines of communication, Mr. Patterson told a press conference:

"Our good fortune in escaping heavy losses at the beaches may not be repeated in subsequent operations.

300,000 Axis Troops

"It has been estimated that upwards of 300,000 Axis troops, including 60,000 Germans, are defending Sicily. They are capable of strong resistance, and they may be readily reinforced from the Italian mainland."

Since swarming onto the island at the toe of the Italian boot, Allied forces have swung far inland capturing the entire southeastern corner of the island, including several good ports and airfields from which fighter planes already are harrassing Axis troop concentrations, the acting secretary reported.

Now, he continued, the current phase of operations on Sicily has become "consolidating and enlarging our beachheads, reinforcing and supplying our troops, advancing inland and preparing to meet the inevitable counter-attacks of the mobile forces of the Axis."

Those counter-attacks, which may assume the proportions of a major battle, are likely to become a large-scale version of an unsuccessful assault by tank units of the Hermann Goering division. That attack, Mr. Patterson recalled, "was repulsed by American troops which destroyed several German tanks and captured a number of prisoners.

Counterattack Coming

"A counter-attack in force by German and Italian mobile divisions is expected at any time, but thus far it has failed to materialize."

He warned against considering the invasion of Sicily as "the opening of the second front," saying:

"I would rather think of it as the first important step in the liberation of Europe."

Noting advances by ground forces in the south Pacific during the last week, successes at sea in the Solomons area and continued surface and air attacks on the Japanese at Kiska in the Aleutians, Mr. Patterson commented:

"Generally the war news has been very good, but I think it should be regarded with cautious optimism.

We have not yet won the Sicilian campaign, and the war is far from over. The good news of the week should not bring complacency."

CONGRESS STUDIES PLANS FOR JOBS FOR U. S. SOLDIERS

JUL 16 1943

100 Bills Already Introduced for Bonuses, Rehabilitation After War.

WASHINGTON, July 15 — (AP) The job of blueprinting a post-war legislative plan for absorbing America's fighting millions back into the nation's civilian economy will furnish Congress in coming months with one of its toughest assignments, with a dispute already developing over who will take charge of the job.

A survey disclosed today that more than 100 measures, ranging from bonus bills to vocational rehabilitation legislation, have been introduced in preparation for the day when Johnny comes marching home.

Behind the most of this legislation is one chief objective: To avoid the chaos and confusion, the unemployment and heartaches that followed demobilization of World War No. 1 and to assure the new veterans jobs—not just relief.

Lawmakers conscious not only of the need for protecting the veterans' place at home but also of their potential future force in political affairs already are squabbling over which committee should gain jurisdiction, and the dispute may be settled only through creation of a special committee.

Meanwhile, several proposals have been advanced for the eventual return of those in the armed services to peacetime pursuits. Many are based on the thesis that there must be gradual demobilization to match reconversion of industry.

Along that line, there are bills to keep the men in uniform until they, are assured of a civilian job, others to continue their Army pay for a specific period after their discharge from service, still others to award them a bonus to tide them over until they find employment.

In coming months, congressional observers anticipate lengthy debate on the advisability of setting up a vast public works program on paper as insurance against a depression. One such proposal already drafted would call for construction of a transcontinental highway.

8 Navy Flyers Die Trying to Save R.A.F.Men

Survivor Describes Their Loss After Ship Crashed LandinginNorthAtlantic

WASHINGTON, July 15 (AP).—Eight of the nine-man crew of a Navy patrol bomber died in the far North Atlantic, the Navy reported today, in an unsuccessful attempt to rescue survivors of a Royal Air Force plane crash. The R. A. F. men, afloat in a dinghy, were rescued later by a British seaplane patrolling from the British Isles.

The story of the deaths and the rescue of the lone survivor, afloat on a raft for seven days, was told in a detailed account of the hardship and suffering that often dog the men who keep the Atlantic sealanes safe for movements of supplies to the war zones.

The story started on June 11 when an American naval air station in the North Atlantic received a message reporting: "Sighted R. A. F. dinghy an hour ago. Plane crew looks okay." Then: "We are going down for the landing now."

In a short time the men at the air station realized that something had gone wrong. To the search for the R. A. F. dinghy was added an anxious hunt for the patrol plane's crew.

On the seventh day of hunting an American minesweeper picked up a life raft carrying L. F. Pellitier, aviation radioman, first class, of Fall River, Mass., only survivor of the patrol plane.

Pellitier related that the dinghy was sighted in a heavy sea with the weather closing in fast. Lieutenant (j. g.) Douglas S. Vieira, of Myrtle Beach, S. C., decided to take a chance in putting his plane down lest the rescue never be made. But midway in the alighting a cross wave hooked a wingtip and swung the big boat into an adjoining wave, splitting her bow.

The crew of nine manned two rubber liferafts. The R. A. F. men paddled over to offer what assistance they could but heavy seas soon separated them from the rubber boats. The misery of freezing wetness joined hunger and thirst. The first evening two men died. Three more died next day. The third day the survivors saw flares and thought they heard a plane—possibly the craft which rescued the R. A. F men.

The fourth day two more men died and on the sixth Chaney succumbed, leaving only Pellitier. Those aboard the plane included Fred A. Cernek, aviation chief machinist's mate, of 226 Eighth Street, Palisades Park, N. J.

AIRLINES PROPOSE FREEDOM OF SKIES IN POST-WAR YEARS

JUL 16 1943

All But Three Endorse Exchange of Passage Rights.

WASHINGTON, July 15. — (AP) Most of the nation's airlines joined today in asking that the world skyways be opened to all after the war, with private ownership and operation fostered and encouraged by the government.

The declaration of principle, signed by 16 companies at the conclusion of a five-day conference made it clear that the American carriers were willing to exchange freely the rights they sought in other countries.

The statement was in the form of a supplement to a reply made jointly on post-war air problems posed by the Civil Aeronautics board. This statement served also as a formal notice to the CAB that the signing companies would file applications for certificates to operate on world-wide routes.

The government was asked to preserve for United States air lines the use of facilities which this country has been installing all over the world for military purposes, to plan for exchange of the right of innocent passage over foreign countries, and help the carriers prepare for the future developments in aircraft manufacture.

Missing from the list of signers were United Air Lines, a nationwide carrier; Pan American Airways, largest operator in the international field, and American Export Airlines, which had begun to enter the Atlantic field when the war began.

United said in a statement that it had declined to sign because the other lines would not accept its proposal that the statement not preclude it "from giving serious consideration to jointly financed and operated routes if it should be found that the best interests of the country can be served by such cooperative effort."

Pan American had no comment. It was the only American air carrier which did not join in the original reply to the questionnaire.

The joint statement of 16 airlines summarized their basic policies as follows:

"Free and open competition — world-wide — subject to reasonable regulation by the appropriate governmental agencies.

"Private ownership and management.

"Fostering and encouragement by the government of the United States of a sound world-wide air-transportation system.

"Freedom of transit in peaceful flight—world-wide.

"Acquisition of civil and commercial outlets required in the public interest."

PROBERS ACCUSED OF UNFAIR TACTICS BY FCC CHAIRMAN

Seizure of Headlines, Control of Proceedings to Influence News Is Alleged.

WASHINGTON, July 15. — (AP) A charge that the House committee investigating the Federal Communications commission is trying to seize the headlines and prevent FCC's side of the controversy from reaching the public was made today by FCC Chairman James Lawrence Fly.

He made public a memorandum which he alleged was prepared as a guide for the committee by Robert Humphreys, a reporter for International News Service.

Fly Reports on Memo

Mr. Fly, who has had repeated sharp exchanges with Chairman Cox (D-Ga) of the House committee, asserted that the principles outlined in the memo were "carefully designed to accomplish two results:

1. The seizure of the headlines.

"2. By adroit use of the gavel, the effectuation of the principle that the committee must keep the commission's side of the case from reaching the public."

The memorandum which Mr. Fly distributed included a covering note to the committee signed by "E.L.G.," the initials of Eugene L. Garey, committee counsel. The note was dated July 7. It said:

"Annexed hereto for your information is a copy of suggestions that were written out by a press representative with reference to principles that should come within our presentation. The man who wrote these suggestions is Bob Humphreys of International News Service. It is the same memorandum that I read to the committee at its meeting yesterday."

Suggestions to Committee

Among the suggestio made in the alleged memorandum were these:

"Decide what you want the newspapers to hit hardest and then shape each hearing so that the main point becomes the vortex of the testimony. Once that vortex is reached, adjourn.

"Don't ever be afraid to recess a hearing even for five minutes, so that you keep the proceedings completely in control so far as creating news is concerned.

"Do not space hearings more than 24 or 48 hours apart when on a controversial subject. This gives the opposition too much opportunity to make all kind of counter-charges and replies by issuing statements to the newspapers.

Mr. Humphreys was out of the city today on vacation and in his absence the Washington office of International News Service said it had no comment.

Mr. Fly said he could not believe that the House ever intended to authorize the committee to act in the manner recommended, or to authorize an investigation which would "treat the commission as 'the opposition,' from 'the opportunity to make x x x replies'."

The investigation was authorized in the spring. At the start of public hearings two weeks ago Mr. Garey made public a list of some 50 charges, including an allegation that FCC activities had impeded the war effort.

Mr. Fly has charged that Rep. Cox has joined hands with the "radio monopoly," Wall Street interests and the military to wreck FCC.

Congress Faces 100 Post-War Vet Plans

Washington, July 15 (AP) — The job of blueprinting a post-war legislative plan for absorbing America's fighting millions back into the nation's civilian economy will furnish Congress in coming months with one of its toughest assignments, with a dispute already developing over who will take charge of the job.

U. S. Relief Officials Ready To Feed Sicilians

Washington, July 15 (AP)—American relief officials are standing by to apply their Tunisian experience in supplying food to Sicilians, if called in by the army, Fred K. Hoehler, chief of the operations in North Africa, said today.

Hoehler, who headed the field staff of Director Herbert Lehman's Office of Foreign Relief and Rehabilitation Operations, told a press conference it was understood that the military already were taking some supplies to the island for the civilian population.

Herbert W. Parisius, chief agricultural officer, reported that French North Africa, as a result of rehabilitation work, would produce surpluses of grain, dry beans and peas this summer, which would be offered to the Allied armies.

WASHINGTON, July

JUL 16 1943

Six New York members of the Army Air Forces have received Air Medals, the War Department said today.

Cited for anti-submarine patrol flights over the Atlantic Ocean were the following:

Capt. Frederick A. Hartbrodt, Woodside, more than 200 hours as pilot.

Capt. Hugh O. McTague, Brooklyn, more than fifty operational flight missions as bombardier.

1st Lt. Austin W. Stitt, Frewsburg, more than fifty operational flight missions as bombardier.

Capt. Harold E. Thiele, Ozone Park, L. I., more than 200 hours as bombardier.

1st Lt. William F. Meenagh, New York City, more than fifty flight missions.

1st Lt. Albert T. Nice, New York City, more than fifty operational flight missions as navigator.

Gen. Freyberg Arrives in U. S.

WASHINGTON, July 15 (AP).—Lieutenant General Sir Bernard C. Freyberg, commander of the New Zealand division attached to the British 8th Army, has arrived on the west coast en route to Washington to confer with President Roosevelt and high-ranking Army officials, the New Zealand Legation reported tonight. The legation said that General Freyberg, who has passed the last four weeks conferring with the New Zealand government, would be met here tomorrow by General George C. Marshall, Army Chief of Staff. Presumably, he will rejoin his division after his conferences here.

Navy Lists More Casualties

One New Yorker Included Among Those Reported as Dead

WASHINGTON, July 15 (AP).—The Navy announced today fourteen casualties, including eight dead and six missing.

This brings to 27,134 the total of Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard casualties reported to next of kin since Dec. 7, 1941. The grand total includes 8,287 dead, 4,734 wounded, 10,244 missing and 3,869 prisoners of war.

The casualties included one man from New York, listed as dead. He was Lieutenant (j. g.) William Stephen O'Connell, whose mother, Mrs. William S. O'Connell, lives at 745 Fifth Avenue.

DISLOYAL JAPANESE TO BE SEGREGATED

Others to Be Released to Work, War Relocation Camps May Close.

WASHINGTON, July 15. — (AP) Disloyal Japanese in War Relocation authority camps will be segregated in a single center "within the next few weeks," Director Dillion S. Myer revealed tonight.

The WRA camps probably will be abandoned, he indicated in an address prepared for broadcast over the NBC network. The loyal Japanese will be allowed to leave the camps for work in factories, farms and "other places where their abilities can be used to best advantage," he said.

"We believe that it is possible to distinguish between the loyal and the disloyal people of Japanese ancestry, as well as with other national or racial groups, to a degree which will insure the national security," he declared.

Asserting that there are "some people" in the relocation centers who have indicated 'hey prefer to be Japanese rather than American, Mr. Myer said it had taken time to gather enough information for the segregation program.

"We expect to carry out the program as soon as transportation can be obtained to make the move," he said.

Mr. Myer did not give the proposed location of the pro-Japanese center.

Mr. Myer termed "untrue and misleading" much information which he said had been circulated about the centers.

A sub-committee of the Dies Committee on Un-American Activities has been investigating the camps.

Enemy aliens suspected of being subversive were arrested immediately after Pearl Harbor and were interned, Mr. Myer said, adding that they have never been in the relocation centers. He said the centers were established primarily to provide living quarters for the evacuees while long-range settlement plans were being worked out.

LEWIS PROBED BY TREASURY

JUL 16 1943

Report On Relationship To Dispute Six Years Ago Goes To Biddle

Question Raised On Whether There Was Conspiracy, Paper Says

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, July 15—The Justice Department has under "active study," an official said today, a Treasury report on relations of John L. Lewis and the United Mine Workers to an Illinois labor dispute of six years ago which the Chicago Daily News said had raised the question whether there was a conspiracy to violate the National Labor Relations Act.

Secretary Morgenthau had disclosed earlier, in response to a press conference question, that his department had turned certain information over to Francis Biddle, Attorney General, for "such action as he sees fit."

Question Involved

He also said it concerned relationships between Lewis and the Mine B Company, near Springfield, Ill.

The Mine B Company was involved in a dispute six years ago with two locals of the Progressive Mine Workers' Union, AFL rival of the United Mine Workers which Lewis heads.

The Daily News said the question involved was whether Lewis' group had given financial aid to the company in its struggle with the rival union and whether this involved a violation of the Labor Relations Act. The act guarantees to workers the right to free choice of their own collective bargaining agency.

Report Goes To Biddle

Ordinarily, agents of the Treasury's Internal Revenue Bureau concern themselves only with questions of tax violations. The Daily News said they began a checkup months ago on UMW records in connection with tax investigations, but found nothing out of order.

The paper said the agents did turn up some information concerning the Mine B matter, however, and prepared the report which Morgenthau said had been sent on to Biddle.

DRAFT OF FATHERS IS DELAYED AGAIN

JUL 16 1943

Men in 1-A Available for Quotas Until Oct. 1, Says Selective Service.

WASHINGTON, July 15 — (AP) Fathers living with and supporting children born before last Sept. 15 got today their first official and positive assurance that there will be no need to issue a general draft call for them before October at the very earliest.

Classes 1-A and 1-A-O (men who can be used for non-combatant military service) already contain enough men who will actually get into uniform to fill draft calls for July, August and September, Major Emett Solomon of the Selective Service manpower division told reporters.

Some to Be Reclassified

That will be true, he said, although some of the 1,566,000 men in these classes will be reclassified on appeal and many more will be rejected by physicians and psychiatrists, who are currently turning back 40 per cent of those examined.

Maj. Solomon declined to comment directly on the induction of fathers of children conceived before Pearl Harbor or predict when it would begin, but data he presented indicated that, generally speaking the drafting of their class might be delayed well past Oct. 1.

Approximately 50,000 of the 90,000 youths newly turned 18 each month can be counted upon for induction, he said, adding 150,000 to the pool of men who can be taken through September.

Furthermore, this number will be swelled by "recoveries" from the 2,976,000 men who were in class 4-F on July 1 because of disqualification for physical, mental, educational or moral reasons.

On the darker side of the picture, Maj. Solomon pointed out that of the total of 22,184,000 men aged 18 through 37, more than half already have either been taken into military service or rejected and placed in 4-F.

9,300,000 in Uniform

War Manpower commission officials said there are now 9,300,000 men and women in uniform and this number will grow to 10,800,000 by Jan. 1 and 11,300,000 by next July 1 as the Navy expands by some 500,000 in the first half of 1944 while the Army holds to a strength of 8,200,000.

Maj. Solomon's discussion of the draft situation was highlighted by statements that:

This month's draft call was larger than any of the four preceding months. The August and September quotas will be somewhat smaller, with September "slightly larger than August and just under July."

Local boards are rejecting and reclassifying to 4-F 6.5 per cent of the men they examine, while induction stations are rejecting about 33.5 per cent.

"Psychiatric rejections," covering cases of men believed unable to stand the mental strain of the shift from civilian to military life, are "at the highest point ever and a tremendous proportion" of all rejections. This situation is being studied carefully in an attempt to work out "more uniform standards" for psychiatric examinations.

Average Age Is 24

The average age of inductees at present is 24. The average age of the 6,559,000 men in class 3-A, composed almost exclusively of fathers, is 30.5. (Rejections rise steeply as age advances.) The Navy is taking for special service men with some ordinary disqualifications, but it is not following the Army practice of taking around five per cent for limited service. Much of the Army's limited service quota may be filled by general service soldiers who are disabled slightly in battle or otherwise.

"In isolated cases" men over 38 actually have been drafted after they refused to leave a non-deferable job for essential work. Waivers on their age were obtained from the Army.

Word earlier in the year that a general draft of fathers probably would have to start during 1943 apparently had a strong effect on local draft boards, causing them to speed the induction of single men deferred previously because of their work and shift the deferment emphasis from occupation to dependency.

(There is an official ban against induction of fathers living with and supporting children born before Sept. 15, provided they are not engaged in non-deferable work. Draft officials contend there have been few cases where it was disregarded, and say that some local boards have been "corrected after getting out of line.")

There is a strong probability that many of the 705,000 single or childless married men now deferred as necessary workers on farms will be reclassified for military service after the harvest season.

Battle casualties of the armed forces have been considerably lighter thus far than the allowance made for them in preparing quotas. Allowances for losses, however, are always made with a deliberately "pessimistic" view because the services "can't take chances."

ARMS OUTPUT FALLS BEHIND

Production For Army Is Below Schedule Again For June

Commerce Department Lays Trend To Shifts In Types Of Materials

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, July 15—For the second consecutive month production for the army fell below schedule in June, but the Commerce Department said tonight the general leveling off of arms output in recent months was due principally to a temporary factor—changes in types of needed war materials.

Once the required shifts in manufacturing processes and schedules are completed, the department said, production will resume its rise, although at a slower pace, until a wartime peak is reached.

Disclosed By Patterson

The failure to meet army production schedules in June was disclosed by Robert P. Patterson, Under Secretary of War, the acting secretary in the absence of Henry L. Stimson who is in London.

Patterson told a press conference that the supply program for the army ground forces increased in June 1.1 per cent. over May, but still was 2.3 per cent. below April and 4.9 per cent. below forecasts for June.

"The jobs remaining to be done vary widely," he said. "In the next six months we must produce sixty-one per cent. of the total number of airplanes scheduled for 1943.

"There is nothing in the production records for May and June to encourage belief that the task ahead can be accomplished easily. It is a real challenge to labor and industry."

Predicts Upward Trend

The production situation was discussed by the Commerce Department in its monthly publication, Survey of Current Business. It said a five-month plateau in production had brought the home-front war effort to its most critical stage, but then predicted the upward trend would be resumed.

In addition to changes in types of needed war materials, it listed as other causes of the leveled-off war output the growing scarcities of manpower and raw materials and, as contributing factors, the coal strikes, the Detroit race riots and the Mississippi Valley floods.

It reported, however, that despite the five-month sidewise movement in total production, output of some durable goods has continued to gain, notably transportation equipment which includes aircraft and shipbuilding.

Transfer Of Workers

The current production rate, the publication said, "is well below the peak level representing the full capacity output of our wartime economy and below the level required for the peak of the war effort," adding:

"The supreme test of the domestic economy in the months immediately ahead will be to achieve the wartime-peak-output objective with resources progressively more scarce relative to needs."

Of manpower, the article predicted that effective measures undoubtedly will be taken to bring about transfer of workers from less essential lines and to recruit the additional workers needed for the labor force.

"The civilian economy can hardly help being deeply affected by these impending changes," it declared.

BRITISH HOME GUARD STUDIED

House-To-House Combat, Simulated Attacks Proposed By State Organization

Brig. Gen. D. H. Mohr Gives Report On His Recent Observation Trip In England

[By the Associated Press]

Annapolis, July 15—Plans to introduce house-to-house combat-training, simulated attacks and special instructions on taking cover for country and city fighting, were under consideration by Maryland State Guard officials following the report of Brig. Gen. Dwight H. Mohr, commander of the State Guard, who has recently returned from England.

The General, Governor O'Conor

30.24-6089

said, has spent five weeks in the British Isles reviewing and inspecting the work of the British Home Guard.

"As a result of his experience with the British Home Guard," O'Conor stated, "General Mohr plans to add the additional tactical training to the course already programmed for the annual Maryland State Guard encampment at Fort Meade, later this month.

Series Of Training Film

"Further benefits to our guard units are expected from a series of nine training films, made while the State Guard officials were present at maneuvers in England, which now are at the British embassy in Washington for release in the near future. We hope to have one or more of the films available to show to our State Guardsmen at Fort Meade and arrangements may be made later to make one or more of them available to other guard units throughout the United States."

The Governor explained that "General Mohr, in a tour which took him more than 12,000 miles since leaving Baltimore, saw the members of the Home Guard in their exercises in the field and in special maneuvers in Edinburgh and other towns.

"The Home Guard, General Mohr has pointed out, are in a somewhat different category from what they are in this country. Service is compulsory for men between the ages of 17 and 65 who are not in the regular army, and all actual defense of England except at possible enemy landing points is in the hands of the Home Guard. All anti-aircraft batteries are in their charge. They are officered almost entirely by former regular army officers, and retired officers of grades as high as field marshal are serving in the Home Guard.

Reports On Schools

"One of the most interesting aspects of the visit to England," O'Conor stated, "was the inspection of the five Home Guard training schools, maintained for the instruction of officers and non-commissioned officers. Following a more detailed study of this aspect of the training system, consideration may be given to the establishment of a similar setup here."

General Mohr accompanied other officials of the Maryland State Guard and was guest of the British Crown, the Governor added. "On many of his inspections and reviews, General Mohr was accompanied by the Duke of Gloucester and the director general of the Home Guard, Major General the Viscount Bridgeman."

GIRAUD INSPECTS PLANTS AT DETROIT

French Command Visits Tank Arsenal, Willow Run Factory.

JUL 16 1943

DETROIT, July 15—(AP)—Gen. Henri Honore Giraud, commander-in-chief of the French North African army, today concluded a 24-hour visit to Detroit war plants where he observed the production of weapons which were used in North Africa to rout the Axis armies.

Arriving in the city on Bastille day to watch the output of tanks and planes he promised that "France will be on the American side until final victory."

Just before he took off from the airport at the sprawling Willow Run bomber plant for an undisclosed destination, the general said, through an Army interpreter, that he was "able to appreciate the importance of American production during my short stay in Detroit."

"The French army has great confidence in the American people and known that it will receive the weapons it needs. America may have full confidence in France, which will be at the American side until final victory," he declared.

This morning the general visited the Chrysler tank arsenal, and following a luncheon at Willow Run, he watched the assembly of B-24 Liberator bombers.

The tall, erect French leader, in a brief talk to Chrysler employes, said "I'd like to ask you to try to put out a few more of these for my French soldiers to fight with. I have seen in Tunisia the best tanks the Germans can put out, the M-6 Tiger, and I can tell you that although yours are not so heavy they certainly are superior in every way. I want to tell you the French troops in North Africa know how to use them most effectively against the common enemy, and I thank you again for all you are doing to make our common victory possible."

Giraud in Canada

OTTAWA, July 15 (CP).—General Henri Honore Giraud, commander in chief of the French Army in North and West Africa and joint chairman of the French Committee of National Liberation, arrived at near-by Rockcliffe Airport early tonight by airplane from Washington for a three-day stay in Canada, including visits to Montreal and Sorel, Que.

WILLKIE TO SEEK G.O.P. NOMINATION

Will Challenge Col. McCormick in Illinois Preferential Primary.

JUL 16 1943

NEW YORK, July 15. — (AP) Wendell Willkie chooses to run in 1944.

The 1940 Republican Presidential nominee in an interview made that plain today in challenging Col. Robert R. McCormick, publisher of the Chicago Tribune, to a hammer-and-tongs campaign for the Illinois preferential primary vote.

Reporters have been asking Mr. Willkie for some time about his future plans and he has parried questions with them without a definite commitment.

But he let go when the following question was put to him:

"Have you seen reports that Col. McCormick may run in the Illinois primary for the Republican Presidential nomination?"

Answers Question

Mr. Willkie answered in his own handwriting:

"I certainly hope it is true. For then I could really make the issue clear—the greatest issue of the day—American relations to the rest of the world and liberal internal domestic policies."

That is the only direct quotation he would permit, but he said he was anxious to have Col. McCormick take the stump because he said differences between them were so striking that the people would have clear-cut issues on which to vote.

Mr. Willkie said that if Col. McCormick became a primary candidate he would stump Illinois thoroughly and, if necessary, would walk from town to town to spread his doctrine.

U. S.-Born Dutchman Executed By Germans

New York, July 15 (AP)—Aneta, official Netherlands news agency, reported in a dispatch from Stockholm today, that Evert Ruivenkamp, described as born in 1915 in Philadelphia, had been executed by German authorities in occupied Holland for sabotage.

It said the report was published in Deutsche Zeitung In Den Niederlanden, official German language organ in Holland.

The American-born Netherlander, it said, was put to death along with Dominicus Middendorp, 24, of Kampen, Holland, and Gerard van der Laan, 30, of The Hague.

What's Behind the War News

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

The dazzling speed that marked earlier phases of Anglo-American invasion of Sicily was less evident as the first week of the operation neared its end; but the whole 100-mile Allied front from Naro in the west to north of Augusta in the east still was in forward motion.

The tipped jaws of American and British forces formed a huge vise set to bite down on the southern defenses of the Catania plain. American, Canadian and British troops, meantime, maintained unrelenting pressure against the center of the plain.

Axis commanders, apparently now aware of the tactical pattern of the attack, are putting up an increasingly stiff fight—particularly, according to official reports, against the far-ranging jaws of the closing Allied trap.

Yet the very nature of the defense they attempted testified to the success of the Allied strategic design. The initiative still lay with the Allied invaders. They had obviously forced the enemy to scatter his reserves on many fronts and denied him still opportunity to mass and mount a concentrated counter blow anywhere as this was written.

The Axis in Sicily thus far has been out-guessed as well as outfought. And unless the crunching jaws of the Anglo-American vise can be soon stopped short of deployment simultaneously into the Catania plain from east and west, that strategic key to control of all Sicily must fall to the invaders.

The hubs of Sicily's road and rail networks are in that rolling valley south of gigantic Mount Etna. The main Axis air fields, munitions and fuel stocks and supply reserves are there by every indication. Yet to avoid that trap without dangerously weakening the wide center sector now under Allied pressure along every road and rail route leading in from the south and east coasts poses a major problem for the defenders.

The Axis is being forced to fight dispersed preliminary actions in a dozen threatened sectors at the same time. Allied advance prongs and lighter troops range perilously close along its whole length to the secondary east-west road and rail system so vital to successful deployment of troops and armor to man the hill bastions guarding the center of the Catania plain.

The Axis line runs from American-threatened Agrigento and Canicatti in the west through Caltagirone in the center, menaced by both American and Canadian thrusts, to a junction with the Sicilian east coast trunk highway just north of Lentini, reported in British hands. Canadians pushing northward toward Vizzini above Ragusa are within a few miles of its main two-way traffic stem. Just west of them near Nicemi, an American column from the Gela beach-head is within half a dozen miles of Caltagirone.

Engulfment of that east-west communications lateral would be disastrous from the Axis. It would mean the battle of Catania plain must develop on a 100-mile front north of the hill bastions and in a terrain suitable for the heavy armor now unquestionably being set ashore everywhere by Allied forces and rushed forward to support and power all advance light elements.

That necessity as well and stiffer but scattered Axis resistance may account for what slowing up in the Allied general advance has occurred. Yet there is every indication that reinforcements in men and gear are coming ashore virtually without Axis plane interference. Smashing Allied air blows have sapped Axis air resistance heavily. It is reported waning instead of increasing as is the ground defense.

Nor can it yet be clearly discerned just how badly Axis ground troop movements have been and are being hampered by the long and short range air attacks to cover invasion operations. Some Allied air craft already are refueling at captured and repaired enemy air fields.

Collapse of the hill bastion guarding the Catania plain either through flanking operations from east or west or by forward surges in the center would spell the beginning of the end of the battle of Sicily. It would see Allied armor under an impenetrable Allied air umbrella roll into a region ideal for tank operations and probably mean final disaster for German and Italian forces on the island. That now could happen days if not weeks before it had been hoped for when General Eisenhower set the day and hour of the most ambitious over-water invasion attempt the world has yet known.

FIRST LEAD SICILIAN

BY LEWIS HAWKINS

JUL 16 1943

LONDON, JULY 15-(AP)-LONDON MILITARY OBSERVERS, AFTER READING TODAY'S ALLIED AND ENEMY COMMUNIQUES FROM THE SICILIAN FIGHTING FRONT, EXPRESSED THE OPINION THAT A MAJOR BATTLE MIGHT-BE SHAPING UP ON ONE OR BOTH FLANKS OF THE ALLIED ADVANCE INTO THE ISLAND.

ALTHOUGH THERE WAS NO HINT THAT THE ALLIES HAD ENCOUNTERED A SETBACK AT ANY POINT, IT WAS NOT THOUGHT IN LONDON THAT THE AXIS HAD YET BEEN SMASHED ENOUGH TO REMOVE THE POSSIBILITY OF THE GERMANS AND ITALIANS MAKING A STIFF STAND SOON OR COUNTER-ATTACKING IN STRENGTH.

GEN. SIR BERNARD L. MONTGOMERY'S EIGHTH ARMY WAS KNOWN TO BE ENCOUNTERING GERMAN ARMOR FOR THE FIRST TIME AS IT EDGED INTO THE CATANIA PLAIN. THE IMPRESSION HERE WAS THAT GENERAL MONTGOMERY'S FORCE CONSISTED MAINLY OF TROOPS PLACED UNDER HIS COMMAND SINCE THE FIGHTING IN NORTH AFRICA ENDED, WITH MANY OF HIS VETERAN, BATTLE-TOUGHENED UNITS OF THE DESERT CAMPAIGN STANDING BY FOR WHATEVER JOBS MAY BE COMING UP.

JUL 16 1943

THE MOST CHEERING NEWS FROM INFORMED QUARTERS IN LONDON WAS THAT THE ENEMY'S AIR EFFORT OVER SICILY HAD DWINDLED BY HALF SINCE THE FIRST DAYS OF THE INVASION AND THAT THE AXIS MIGHT SOON BE FORCED TO ABANDON BOTH THE STRATEGICALLY VALUABLE CATANIA AND GERBINI AIR FIELDS.

MILITARY SOURCES HERE WERE PUZZLED AT THE SUPPOSED APPEARANCE OF THE HERMANN GOERING DIVISION IN THE SICILIAN FIGHTING, POINTING OUT THAT THE ORIGINAL OUTFIT BEARING THE NAME OF THE NAZI AIR MARSHAL WAS WIPED OUT IN THE TUNISIAN DEBACLE.

THEY SUGGESTED THAT THE HIGHLY-PUBLICIZED UNIT HAD BEEN HASTILY RECONSTITUTED TO KEEP THE GERMAN PEOPLE FROM KNOWING IT HAD BEEN LOST IN AFRICA.

JUL 16 1943

TODAY'S GERMAN COMMUNIQUE SAID THE FIGHTING IN SICILY CONTINUED WITH "UNDIMINISHED VIOLENCE," WITH SEVERAL ALLIED TANK ATTACKS BEING REPULSED. THAT IT DID NOT GO INTO PARTICULARS OF THE FIGHTING WAS CONSIDERED SIGNIFICANT HERE.

THE NAZI-CONTROLLED VICHY RADIO DEPICTED THE SITUATION IN SICILY AS "EXTREMELY SERIOUS."

QUOTING BERLIN X X X 2ND GRAF PREV.

LONDON, JULY 15-(AP)-THE VICHY RADIO DEPICTED THE SITUATION OF THE AXIS IN SICILY TODAY AS "EXTREMELY SERIOUS."

QUOTING BERLIN AND ROME REPORTS, THE RADIO DECLARED THAT "FURTHER INFILTRATION ATTEMPTS MUST BE CHECKED IN ORDER TO AVOID ENDANGERING AXIS DEFENSIVE POSITIONS IN THE CATANIA PLAIN."

GEN. SIR BERNARD L. MONTGOMERY'S EIGHTH ARMY FORCES "ARE DEBOUCHING IN MASSES ON THE CATANIA PLAIN AND HAVE STRONG ARTILLERY, TANK AND AIR SUPPORT," SAID THE BROADCAST RECORDED BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

THE ROME COMMUNIQUE, RECORDED BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS FROM A BROADCAST, DECLARED, HOWEVER, THAT ALLIED PRESSURE FINALLY WAS BEING CONTAINED BY AXIS TROOPS, AND THAT STRONG ALLIED ATTACKS HAD BEEN REPULSED. PARACHUTE TROOPS WHICH HAD LANDED IN THE CATANIA PLAIN WERE WIPED OUT, THE OFFICIAL BULLETIN REPORTED.

JUL 16 1943

30.24-6091

THE ROME ANNOUNCEMENT CALLED THE BATTLE FIERCE AND CLOSE AND SAID AXIS AVIATION WAS SUPPORTING GROUND FORCES AGAINST "SUBSTANTIAL" ALLIED TANK UNITS.

JUL 16 1943

THE ITALIAN COMMUNIQUE ADMITTED ALLIED AIR RAIDS ON PALERMO AND MESSINA, SICILY, AND NAPLES ON THE MAINLAND. IN THESE RAIDS CONSIDERABLE DAMAGE WAS REPORTED TO BUILDINGS.

THE ROME BULLETIN PRAISED THE NAZI HERMANN GOERING ARMORED DIVISION AND THE TENTH BERSAGLIERI REGIMENT OF THE 207TH ITALIAN COASTAL DIVISION FOR THEIR RESISTANCE IN THE PAST FEW DAYS.

ITALIAN TORPEDO PLANES WERE SAID TO HAVE SUNK FOUR SHIPS YESTERDAY AND DAMAGED A HEAVY CRUISER AND TWO MERCHANT SHIPS. AN ALLIED DESTROYER WAS REPORTED SUNK BY AN ITALIAN TORPEDO BOAT.

THE ITALIAN ANNOUNCEMENT ASSERTED A TOTAL OF 14 ALLIED PLANES WERE SHOT DOWN, SEVEN OF THEM FOUR-ENGINED PLANES.

THE AXIS AIR EFFORT IN DEFENSE OF SICILY HAS DECREASED BY 50 PER CENT IN COMPARISON WITH THE PLANES PUT UP IN THE FIRST TWO OR THREE DAYS OF THE ALLIED INVASION, LONDON AIR SOURCES ESTIMATED TODAY.

WITH ITS SOUTHEASTERN FIELDS LOST AND CATANIA AND GERBINI, SITES OF OTHER IMPORTANT BASES, BEING HAMMERED FROM SEA AND AIR, THE GERMAN AIR FORCE MAY BE FORCED TO DEPEND ON MAINLAND AND WESTERN ISLAND FIELDS SHORTLY, THESE QUARTERS ADDED.

LONDON--FIRST ADD ANDERSON XXX WASHINGTON, D.C.

ANDERSON WHO WON THE NICKNAME "WILD INDIAN" AS A LA CROSSE AND FOOTBALL PLAYER AT WEST POINT, FIRST ARRIVED IN ENGLAND IN 1941 TO STUDY BRITISH BOMBING TACTICS. SKETCH

HE HAS BEEN ASSOCIATED WITH THE BOMBARDMENT END OF AVIATION SINCE 1931 AND FOR A TIME WAS OPERATIONS OFFICER FOR THE FAMOUS SEVENTH GROUP SERVING UNDER MAJ.GEN.CLARENCE TINKER.

ANDERSON RETURNED TO THE UNITED STATES IN 1941 BUT CAME BACK IN 1942 TO REPRESENT GEN.HENRY H.ARNOLD, CHIEF OF THE UNITED STATES ARMY AIR FORCE, TO STUDY BRITISH BOMBING PRACTICES. LATER HE WAS COMMANDER OF A FORTRESS WING IN ENGLAND. HE WAS PROMOTED TO BRIGADIER GENERAL FEB. 8.

JUL 16 1943

HE WAS DECORATED WITH ONE OF THE FEW DISTINGUISHED FLYING CROSSES AWARDED IN PEACE TIME FOR RISKING HIS LIFE TO PLUNGE HIS BURNING PLANE INTO THE SEA RATHER THAN CRASH IN A CONGESTED AREA IN SAN FRANCISCO. THAT WAS IN DECEMBER, 1934. HE BAILED OUT JUST BEFORE THE PLANE EXPLODED AND WAS DRAGGED FROM THE WATER UNCONSCIOUS.

MUCH OF THE CREDIT FOR THE SUCCESS OF THE FORTRESS-SMASHING OF THE TARGETS WAS GIVEN BY CREWS TO THE ESCORTING SQUADRONS OF P-47 THUNDERBOLTS AND RAF FIGHTERS WHICH COVERED THE WITHDRAWAL.

"THERE WERE SO MANY FIGHTERS UP THERE THEY LOOKED LIKE BLACKBIRDS," SAID SERGT.ERNEST C.KING OF CHANUTE, KAS., A WAIST GUNNER. "ONE MADE A PASS AT OUR TAIL BUT TWO P-47S DIVED IN AND TOOK HIM OUT."

MEANWHILE, THE AIR MINISTRY REPORTED SMOKE FROM 50 FIRES STILL WAS BURNING FOR 24 HOURS AFTER THE MONDAY NIGHT RAID ON TURIN BY A STRONG FORCE OF RAF LANCASTERS.

LONDON, FRIDAY, JULY 16-(AP)-ANTI-AIRCRAFT GUNS OPENED FIRE IN THE GREATER LONDON DISTRICT TODAY SHORTLY AFTER MIDNIGHT.

A UNITED STATES BOMBER STATION, SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, JULY 15 -(AP)-THREE VETERAN FLIERS BESIDES THE PILOT, FIRST LIEUTENANT ROBERT S.O'CONNOR, 24, OF MILWAUKEE, WIS., WERE AMONG THE CREW OF THE FLYING FORTRESS "THE MUGGER" WHICH WENT DOWN UNDER ATTACKS FROM 15 GERMAN FIGHTERS DURING A RECENT OPERATION.

JUL 16 1943

THEY WERE:

SERGEANT HARRY THOMPSON-BRUNDIGE, 24, OF ST.LOUIS, MO., A VETERAN OF 78 OPERATIONAL MISSIONS WITH THE RAF IN THE EUROPEAN AND MEDITERRANEAN WAR ZONES BEFORE HIS RECENT TRANSFER TO UNITED STATES FORCES. HE WAS ON HIS SECOND RAID AS A FORTRESS RIGHT WAIST GUNNER.

SERGT.BERNARD H.KOENIG, 20, OF SPENCER, NEB., TOP TURRET GUNNER ON HIS FINAL COMBAT MISSION BEFORE BEGINNING GROUND DUTIES IN THE EUROPEAN THEATER OR TAKING AN ASSIGNMENT BACK HOME.

SERGT.ALBERT V.CARROLL, 20, 110 WEST FANIN ST., MARSHALL, TEX., BALL TURRET GUNNER WHO WAS ON HIS NEXT TO LAST COMBAT MISSION AND WHO WAS TO RECEIVE HIS COMMISSION AS SECOND LIEUTENANT AND AN ASSIGNMENT AS GUNNER INSTRUCTOR AFTER ONE MORE RAID.

THE MUGGER WAS THE ONLY SHIP LOST FROM THIS BASE THAT DAY, BUT AIR FORCE OFFICIALS BELIEVE THERE IS AN EXCELLENT CHANCE THAT THE CREW SURVIVED.

JUL 16 1943

FROM FIVE TO SEVEN PARACHUTES WERE SEEN TO BILLOW OUT OF THE CRIPPLED AND BLAZING BOMBER AS IT WENT DOWN UNDER CONTROL SHORTLY BEFORE THE AIR FLEET REACHED ITS TARGET, RETURNED CREWMEN REPORTED.

BECAUSE OF CLOUDY WEATHER CONDITIONS EYEWITNESSES SAID IT WAS HIGHLY PROBABLE THAT ADDITIONAL PARACHUTES EMERGED UNOBSERVED.

SERGT. VIRGIL E.BROWN OF LITTLE ROCK, ARK., TAIL GUNNER ON THE FORTRESS "CHARLIE HORSE", PILOTED BY FIRST LIEUT. VINCENT LEMON 26, OF SACRAMENTO, CALIF., SAW "THE MUGGER" GO DOWN.

"ONE OF O'CONNOR'S ENGINES WAS KNOCKED OUT DURING THE FIRST ATTACK BY ENEMY FIGHTERS SHORTLY AFTER WE CROSSED THE CONTINENTAL COAST," HE SAID. "I THINK EVERY FIGHTER THE GERMANS SENT UP THAT DAY PICKED ON OUR SQUADRON.

JUL 16 1943

"AS SOON AS O'CONNOR LAGGED BEHIND OUR FORMATION ABOUT 15 FIGHTERS JUMPED HIM. THE 'MUGGER'S' CREW FOUGHT THEM OFF FOR ABOUT FIVE MINUTES. I SAW THEM SHOOT DOWN AT LEAST ONE FOCKE-WULF. THEN ANOTHER ENGINE CAUGHT FIRE."

OTHER MEMBERS OF THE CREW WERE SECOND LIEUT. DONOVAN B.MANIFOLD, GLENCASTER, PA., (THE ADDRESS GIVEN IN ARMY RECORDS, THOUGH IT IS NOT LISTED IN THE POSTOFFICE GUIDE) THE CO-PILOT; SECOND LIEUT. RICHARD W.PETERSON, OF DENVER, COLO., BOMBARDIER; FLIGHT OFFICER ANDREW N.HALIORIS OF ASBURY PARK,N.J., NAVIGATOR; SERGT. EARL HOGUE OF CINCINNATI, O., RADIO OPERATOR AND GUNNER; SERGT. EDWARD F. CHONSKIE OF SHENANDOAH, PA., LEFT WAIST GUNNER, AND SERGT. JOHN ZIONANCE OF PLYMOUTH, PA., TAIL GUNNER.

THOMPSON-BRUNDIDGE HAD A TOTAL OF 550 FLYING HOURS AS PILOT AND GUNNER WITH THE RAF BEFORE TRANSFERRING TO THE UNITED STATES ARMY AIR FORCES. HE JOINED THE RAF IN OCTOBER, 1940, AND FRIENDS SAID HE

JUL 16 1943
JUL 16 1943

ALSO HAS SERVED TWO YEARS IN THE AMERICAN NAVY.

CARROLL HAD THE REPUTATION OF BEING THE BEST GUNNER AT THIS STATION. HE WAS A SURVIVOR OF ONE OF THE MOST HAIR-RAISING EPISODES ANY FORTRESS CREW MEMBER IS REPORTED TO HAVE EXPERIENCED IN THIS THEATER.

JUL 16 1943

DURING AN ATTACK ON THE U-BOAT PLANT AT VEGESACK, GERMANY, ON MARCH 18, ANTIAIRCRAFT SHELL HITS CAUSED THE BALL TURRET HATCH TO FLY OPEN. THE WIND CAUGHT THE OPEN HATCH AND SWUNG IT AROUND, THROWING CARROLL OUT.

BUT AS HE PLUNGED OUT, MINUS HIS PARACHUTE, TOWARD THE EARTH FIVE MILES BELOW, HE GRASPED HIS MACHINEGUN WITH ONE HAND AND HELD ON FOR DEAR LIFE. FOR A FEW SECONDS HE DANGLED BELOW THE BIG BOMBER AS IT PLOUGHED THROUGH THE FLAK AND AN ENEMY FIGHTER ATTACK.

THEN HE PULLED HIMSELF BACK INTO THE TURRET. DESPITE HIS BADLY FROSTBITTEN HANDS, HE CONTINUED TO HELP FIGHT OFF THE GERMANS UNTIL HIS AMMUNITION WAS EXHAUSTED.

SHORTLY BEFORE THIS ACCIDENT CARROLL HAD SHOT DOWN ONE FOCKE-WULF. HE ALSO BAGGED THREE GERMAN FIGHTERS ON HIS LAST MISSION. HE HELD THE DISTINGUISHED FLYING CROSS AND THE AIR MEDAL WITH THREE OAK CLUSTERS.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN SICILY, JULY 12-(DELAYED)--CAPT.THOMAS F.O'BRIEN, 31, OF MAPLE ST., LINCOLN, N.H., TOOK HIS CANNON COMPANY FROM BEACH TO BATTLEFIELD IN 30 MINUTES TODAY. DESTROYED 12 ENEMY TANKS WHICH HAD COME WITHIN 1,000 YARDS OF THE BEACH, AND

30.24-6093

SAVED OUR FORCES FROM WHAT SEEMED IMMINENT AND ALMOST INEVITABLE DISASTER.

THIS WAS THE MOST CRITICAL MOMENT IN THE ENTIRE AMERICAN LANDING EFFORT. TWO OTHER AMERICAN ARTILLERY UNITS HELPED BUT O'BRIEN'S LIGHTNING STROKE IS GENERALLY CREDITED WITH HAVING CONTRIBUTED MORE TO RESCUE US FROM OUR GRAVEST TROUBLE THAN ANY OTHER SINGLE FEAT OF THIS CAMPAIGN.

JUL 16 1943

OUR INFANTRY HAD LANDED DURING 24 HOURS AND HAD MOVED INLAND, BUT OUR TANKS AND MUCH OF OUR ARTILLERY WERE STILL TO COME. THE GERMANS, ANTICIPATING THIS, HAD WAITED WITH AN OVERWHELMING FORCE OF 40 TO 60 TANKS HEADED BY GIANT MARK VI TIGERS. WHEN OUR FORCES WERE THINLY DEPLOYED AND WITHOUT ADEQUATE ARMOR OR GUNS, THE GERMANS STRUCK.

WE HAD NOTHING WITH WHICH TO HOLD THEM. THEIR SPEARHEAD OF 12 TANKS BURST THROUGH OUR INFANTRY LINES AND MADE FOR THE BEACH. TWO ARTILLERY UNITS OF OUR DIVISION RACED ACROSS COUNTRY INTO POSITION AND BEGAN INTENSE FIRING ON THE ADVANCING TANKS, BUT THEY WERE TOO LATE TO CHECK THE GERMANS' FORWARD UNIT.

AT THE FIRST NEWS OF THE GERMAN TANK BREAK-THROUGH, THE GENERAL OF OUR DIVISION ORDERED HIS BRIGADIER GENERAL TO THE BEACH WHERE THE CANNON COMPANY WAS DUE TO LAND. HE HAD URGED BY EVERY MEANS IN HIS POWER THE SPEEDIEST DEBARKATION OF THIS INVALUABLE UNIT, AND IT HIT THE BEACH AT EXACTLY 8:35 O'CLOCK THIS MORNING.

AN OBSERVER ON THE TOP OF A HILL WHICH FACES ME AS I WRITE COULD SEE OFF TO THE RIGHT GERMAN TANKS MOVING IN FAST ONTO GELA PLAIN

JUL 16 1943

AND AT THE SAME TIME, TURNING LEFT, HE COULD SEE THE CANNON COMPANY'S ARTILLERY BEING HUSTLED OFF LANDING CRAFT ONTO THE BEACH BY DESPERATELY SWEATING MEN.

HERE WAS THE RACE UPON WICH MIGHT DEPEND THE FATE OF THIS WHOLE SECTOR. IF THE TNKS REACHED THE BEACH, THEY COULDN'T BE STOPPED. THEY MIGHT HAVE RACED UP AND DOWN DESTROYING ALL OUR LANDING CRAFT, AND CREATING HAVOC. IF THEY HAD BEEN FOLLOWED BY SUFFICIENTLY STRONG ENEMY SUPPORTING FORCES, THEY MIGHT HAVE CUT US OFF ENTIRELY, CAPTURED OUR COMMAND POST AND PUT IN JEOPARDY THE KEYPOINT OF AMERICAN EXPEDITIONARY EFFORT.

JUL 16 1943

AFTER THE BATTLE WAS OVER, I STOOD ON A HILL WITH O'BRIEN OVER-LOOKING A PANORAMA OF WRECKED GERMAN TANKS, AND INDUCED HIM TO TELL ME ABOUT IT.

HE SCRATCHED HIS CLOSE-CROPPED RED HEAD AND REFUSED AT FIRST TO TALK, THEN BROKE DOWN.

"WELL, IT WAS PRETTY FAST WORK, AND I'VE GOT TO HAND IT TO OUR CREW," HE SAID. "WHEN WE HIT THE BEACH, THE GENERAL WAS THERE WAVING HIS STICK TELLING US TO HURRY LIKE HELL BECAUSE A BIG UNIT OF GERMAN TANKS WAS PRACTICALLY WITHIN TOUCHING DISTANCE.

"WE STRIPPED WATERPROOFING OFF OUR GUNS IN RECORD TIME--ALMOST A MATTER OF SECONDS WHERE IT NORMALLY TAKES MINUTES. THE WHEELS HARDLY STOPPEB ROLLING FROM THE MINUTE WE GOT OFF THE LANDING CRAFT.

"IT WAS TWO MILES TO THE POSITION WE WANTED. I HAD GREAT LUCK IN THAT I HAD GONE ASHORE WITH THE FIRST ASSAULT WAVES AND HAD RECONNOITERED ALL THIS GROUND. I KNEW WHERE I WANTED MY GUQ8

"WE SET THEM UP--TWO 105'S AND SIX 76'S--ON TOP OF A RIDGE IN PLAIN SIGHT AND IN POINTBLANK RAMGE OF THE ENEMY TANKS WHICH BY THEN WERE ONLY A FEW THOUSAND YARDS AWAY.

"WE HAD UNLOADED AND COVERED THOSE TWO MILES IN 30 MINUTES FLAT. WE FIRED OUR FIRST SALVO AT FIVE MINUTES AFTER NINE O'CLOCK IN THE MORNING.

JUL 16 1943

BS4

"WE FIRED WITH OPEN SIGHTS JUST LIKE YOU SHOOT DEER WITH A RIFLE OR BIRDS WITH A SHOTGUN. IT WAS MORE LIKE SHOOTING BIRDS BECAUSE WE HAD TO LEAD OUR TANKS JUST AS YOU DO BIRDS."

O'BRIEN SIGHED AND WANTED TO STOP TALKING.

"HOW LONG DID YOU FIRE AND HOW MUCH AMMUNITION DID YOU USE?" I ASKED.

"WE SHOT UP 1,000 ROUNDS IN ABOUT ONE HOUR AND A HALF," O'BRIEN ANSWERED.

; "WE SHOT UP 1,000 ROUNDS IN ABOUT ONE HOUR AND A HALF," O'BRIEN ANSWERED,

"HOW MANY TANKS DID YOU KNOCK OUT?"

"TWELVE."

"HOW MANY TANKS WERE THERE IN SIGHT?"

"TWELVE."

"THEN YOU DESTROYED EVERY ENEMY TANK IN SIGHT?"

"WELL, YOU SEE, AFTER ABOUT AN HOUR OR AN HOUR AND A QUARTER THOSE WHICH COULD STILL MOVE TURNED AROUND AND TRIED TO GET AWAY.

JUL 16 1943

30.24- 6095

BUT WHILE THEY WERE TURNING THEY MADE EASIER TARGETS, AND NONE OF THEM MADE IT."

I TOOK OUT OF MY POCKET AN IDENTIFICATION CARD OF THE NAZI JUGEND. I HAD JUST PICKED IT UP FROM BESIDE THE BODY OF A HANDSOME YOUNG BLOND GERMAN OF THE TANK CORPS WHO WAS LYING ON HIS BACK BESIDE HIS MARK VI TIGER TANK STARING SIGHTLESSLY AT THE ENORMOUS BLACK MUZZLE OF THE TANK'S 88-MILIMETER CANNON, NOW SILENCED FOREVER.

"THIS VS THE ONLY GERMAN DEAD I HAVE FOUND ON THE BATTLEFIELD," I SAID. "IT SAYS HIS NAME IS HANS GUBE AND HE'S 20 YEARS OLD ANK HE HAD JUST BEEN GIVEN THE MERIT BADGE OF HITLER'S YOUTH ORGANIZATION. WHAT BECAME OF THE OTHER GERMAN CASUALTIES?"

JUL 16 1943

"IT IS NOT NECESSARY AT ALL FOR THE CREW OF A KNOCKED-OUT TANK TO BE KILLED," SAID O'BRIEN. "THAT'S WHAT THE PUBLIC USUALLY DOESN'T REALIZE. WHEN A TANK IS KNOCKED OUT AND BEGINS TO BURN, THE CREW CAN USUALLY GET OUT AND TRY TO FIGHT THEIR WAY OUT WITH THEIR AUTOMATIC RIFLES--OR ELSE THEY'RE CAPTURED.

"WE COULDN'TMWAIT TO FIND OUT WHAT HAPPENED TO THE ENEMY CREWS BECAUSE WE HAD NO SOONER FINISHED WITH THESE TANKS AND HAD JUST ABOUT RUN OUT OF AMMUNITION WHEN ALONG CAME THE GENERAL WITH 120 ROUNDS FOR OUR LITTLE ONES AND 100 ROUNDS FOR OUR BIG OMES, AND TOLD US TO RACE ACROSS COUNTRY TO STOP ANOTHER ENMY TANK ATTAVK ANGB INFANTRY.

JUL 16 1943

"WE HAD LUCK THERE TOO, AND KNOCKED OUT FOUR TIGERS."

NONE OF THIS SHOULD DETRACT IN THE LEAST DEGREE FROM CREDIT DUE TO OTHER AMERICAN ARTILLERY UNITS WHICH POUNDED THE MIDDLE AND REAR OF ADVANCING GERMAN TANKS AND WHICH INDEED HELPED INDISPENSABLY INH STOPPING THEM. BUT MAIN CREDIT IS DUE TO O'BRIEN'S CANNONEECS.

THEIR BATTERY EXECUTIVE WAS LIEUTENANT JOHN S.WINTERS, 24, OF DRESDEN, KAN. THE SENIOR PLATOON SERGEANT WAS JOSEPH F.KROLESKI, 21, OF SOUTHOLD, L.I., N.Y., WHERE HIS FATHER AND TWO SISTERS LIVE.

KROLESKI SAID: "USUALLY MY JOB IS TO CORRECT FIRE BUT IN THAT BATTLE OUR MEN WERE ON THE TARGET ALL THE TIME. THERE WASN'T ANY NEED FOR CHANGING THEIR RANGE. THE ENEMY WAS IN PLAIN SIGHT 2,000 TO 2,600 YARDS AWAY AND WE TOOK THEM BY SURPRISE.

"WE FIRED SO FAST AND MADE SO MUCH SMOKE THEY PRACTICALLY NEVER FOUND US. THEY WERE BEWILDERED AS THEY'D BEEN TOLD THERE WAS NOTHING BETWEEN THEM AND THE BEACH."

W STROLLED FURTHER.

JUL 16 1943

"SEE THERE," SAID O'BRIEN. "THERE WAS AN INSTRUCTIVE LESSON FOR THE JERRIES. JUST A WHILE AGO AROUND THAT CURVE IN THE ROAD BELOW, ABOUT 50 GRMANS CAME UP IN TRUCKS. THEY UNLOADED AND STARTED MARCHING IN CLOSE FORMATION OF FOURS AS THOUGH THERE WASN'T ANY WAR, OR MAYBE THAT AMERICANS DON'T COUNT.

"WE SIMPLY LAID A COUPLE OF 75'S IN THEIR MIDDLE AND MOST OF THEM WILL NEVER MARCH AGAIN. NEVER SAW SUCH A SILLY WAY TO ACT."

WE BADE EACH OTHER GOODBYE. HALF AN HOUR LATER, A SHELL EXPLODED NEAR WHERE WE HAD BEEN TALKING TO O'BRIEN AND, AMONG OTHER EFFECTS, IT BURNED OFF THE SEAT OF O'BRIEN'S BREECHES. HE BORROWED ANOTHER PAIR, SWEARING REVENGE.

O'BRIEN IS OF AN OLD ARMY FAMILY. HE WAS BORN AT FORT SNELLING,

JUL 16 1943

MINN., HAS A MOTHER, WIFE, AND A BABY GIRL, VALERIE, IN LINCOLN. HE ENLISTED IN THE ARMY YEARS AGO AFTER UNSUCCESSFULLY TRYING TO GET INTO WEST POINT. NOW HE HAS SAVED A GOOD PART OF THAT ARMY FROM A BAD SETBACK.

HIS NICKNAME IN HIS REGIMENT--AND NOW THROUGHOUT THE DIVISION--IS "SCRAPPY."

(DISTRIBUTED BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN SICILY, JULY 10-(DELAYED)-MUSSOLINI'S WORDS STARED FROM EVERY BARN AND FARMHOUSE WALL--"COMBAT, CONFLICT, BATTLE. THIS IS LIFE" BUT MUSSOLINI'S PEOPLE IN THIS PART OF HIS "EMPIRE" FEEL DIFFERENTLY ABOUT IT. TODAY THEY SEE THAT HIS WORDS REALLY SHOULD HAVE READ "COMBAT, CONFLICT, BATTLE. THIS IS DEATH."

WITH SPECTACULAR EMPHASIS, TWO MEN OF THE HOME GUARD OF THE LITTLE FISHING CITY OF GELA POINTED OUT THIS MORAL TO THEIR VISITORS. ONE OF THEM LAY FACE UPWARD AND ONE LAY FACE DOWNWARD ON THE SIDEWALK. THEY HAD BEEN THERE SINCE EARLY MORNING WHEN THE FIRST AMERICAN FORCES OF LIBERATION ENTERED GELA. OBEDIENT TO ORDERS AS WELL TO MUSSOLINI, THEY HAD GONE INTO COMBAT BELIEVING PERHAPS THAT IT MEANT LIFE, THE JOYOUS, ABUNDANT LIFE OF FASCIST MILITARY PHILOSOPHY. ONE WONDERS WHETHER THEY KNEW THAT MUSSOLINI HAD TRICKED THEM, IN THAT LAST FLASH OF CONSCIOUSNESS BEFORE THEY WERE BLOTTED OUT.

DOWN THE STREET CAME ANOTHER REMINDER OF HOW WRONG "THE FOUNDER OF THE EMPIRE OF ITALY" CAN BE. IT WAS A CIVILIAN FUNERAL. WITHOUT HORSES, WITHOUT HEARSE, WITHOUT EVEN A COFFIN, ANOTHER ONETIME BELIEVER IN MUSSOLINI'S CULT OF "STRENGTH THROUGH BRUTALITY" WAS BEING DRAWN TO HIS GRAVE IN A CART PULLED AND PUSHED BY A DOZEN OF HIS NEIGHBORS, POOR, RAGGED, SUNKEN-CHEEKED AND HOLLOW-EYED, AS ARE ALL INHABITANTS OF THIS UNFRUITFUL COAST.

JUL 16 1943

NOW WITH BLINDING CLARITY, THERE CAME OVER ME A RECOLLECTION OF NEARLY TEN YEARS AGO, WHEN IN THE ABYSSIANIAN VILLAGE OF DESSYE I WATCHED ITALIAN CAPRONI BOMBERS DESTROY THAT DEFENSELESS PLACE AND KILL AND MAIM MORE THAN 300 BAREFOOT ETHIOPIANS, MOSTLY WOMEN AND CHILDREN, NOT ONE OF WHOM HAD EVER SEEN AN AIRPLANE, AND WHO WERE AS HELPLESS AS NEW-BORN BABIES.

THIS FIRST DAY OF OUR ASSAULT ON SICILY HAS PROVIDED AN INCOMPARABLE OPPORTUNITY FOR JUDGING ITALIAN MORALE AND THE ATTITUDE OF THE POPULATION TOWARD THE AMERICAN TROOPS. NONE HAD A BETTER CHANCE TO MAKE THIS OBSERVATION THAN THE SHOCK UNITS WHO WERE THE FIRST TO PUT FOOT ON ITALIAN SOIL. AT THE HEAD OF THEM WAS LIEUT.COL.WILLIAM DERBY OF FORT SMITH, ARK., WHO A YEAR AGO ORGANIZED THE RANGERS ON THE MODEL OF THE BRITISH COMMANDOS WHILE IN SERVICE NEXT TO THEM IN ENGLAND.

DARBY'S POPULARITY WITH HIS MEN WAS CARRIED TO THE APEX TODAY WHEN, SINGLE-HANDED IN A JEEP, HE BATTLED AND EVENTUALLY KNOCKED OUT ONE OF A GROUP OF 20 OR MORE ENEMY TANKS, WHICH COUNTERATTACKED AND CAME INTO THE HEART OF THE TOWN SEVERAL HOURS AFTER ITS NORMAL DEFENSES HAD CAPITULATED.

DARBY WAS TRAVELING TO HIS NEWLY-ESTABLISHED HEADQUARTERS IN A CHARRY [illegible]

30.24-6097

SHABBY HOTEL WHEN HE SAW ONE OF THE ITALIAN TANKS COMING. ARMED ONLY WITH A 30-CALIBER MACHINEGUN HE OPENED FIRE, DRIVING HIS JEEP DIRECTLY AT THE TANK. HIS BULLETS BOUNCED OFF THE TANK'S ARMORED SIDES, BUT DARBY KEPT GOING. THE TANK KEPT COMING. FINALLY, WHEN WITHIN A HALF BLOCK OF EACH OTHER, DARBY HAD FIRED 300 ROUNDS AT THE TANK WITH NO RESULT.

JUL 16 1943

MEANWHILE SOME OF DARBY'S MEN HAD BEEN THROWING HAND GRENADES AND SHOOTING BANGALORE TORPEJOES, FIRING WITH AUTOMATIC PISTOLS AND RIFLES AND EVERYTHING THEY HAD. THE TANK STILL KEPT COMING. DARBY, HIS AMMUNITION EXHAUSTED, WHIPPED THE JEEP AROUND AND SPED DOWN TO THE BEACH, WHICH WAS ONLY A FEW HUNDRED YARDS AWAY. THERE BY A LUCKY CHANCE, HE FOUND--FIRST TO BE DISEMBARKED--AN ANTI-TANK GUN WITH AMMUNITION. HE AND CAPT.CHARLES M.SHUNDSTROM OF NEW YORK CITY, WRESTLED THE ANTI-TANK GUN INTO THE JEEP AND WHIPPED BACK TO THE MAIN STREET, CORSO DEL VITTORIO EMMANUELE, WHERE THE ITALIAN TANK NOW LORDED IT.

THE TWO AMERICANS SWEATED THE ANTI-TANK GUN OFF ONTO THE SIDEWALK AND FIRED. DARBY LAUGHED HIS BIG INFECTIOUS LAUGH AS HE SAT IN HIS HEADQUARTERS AND TOLD THE STORY. ZXER FIFNZJY KNOW WHAT KICK THAT ANTI-TANK GUN HAD. IT KNOCKED SHUNDSTROM AND ME OVER BACKWARD, BUT THAT FIRST SHOT HIT THE ITALIAN TANK AND OUR NEXT SHOT KNOCKED IT OUT. THEN WE WENT ON AND FOUND ANOTHER ITALIAN TANK, APPARENTLY BOGGED DOWN, BUT ITS CREW BARRICADED THEMSELVES AND REFUSED TO COME OUT.

JUL 16 1943

"I THREW A HAND GRENADE UNDER IT, BUT THEY STILL WOULDN'T SHOW. FINALLY I WENT UP AND LAID AN INCENDIARY BOMB ON TOP OF THE TANK AND SET IT OFF AND PRETTY SOON, AS FIRE BEGAN DRIBBLING DOWN INTO THE TANK, ITS HATCH POPPED OPEN AND UP CAME THE ITALIANS. I MUST SAY THESE ITALIANS FOUGHT BETTER THAN ANY I SAW IN TUNISIA. THOSE TANKS KEPT COMING THROUGH EVERY KIND OF FIRE WE COULD GIVE THEM AND NOTHING COULD CHECK THEM BUT ANTI-TANK GUNS, WHICH PUT SHELLS STRAIGHT THROUGH THEM".

JUL 16 1943

THERE IN DARBY'S HEADQUARTERS WAS, HOWEVER, ANOTHER PIECE OF EVIDENCE OF ANOTHER KIND OF ITALIAN BEHAVIOR. IN ONE ROOM OF THE WRETCHED HOSTELRY WERE THREE GOLD-BRAIDED CAPS OF ITALIAN OFFICERS, MIXED WITH PILES OF THEIR UNDERWEAR AND PERSONAL BELONGINGS. THE PROPRIETOR OF THE HOTEL TOLD US THAT THESE OFFICERS HAD BEEN AWAKENED THIS MORNING ABOUT 3:25 A.M. AND TOLD THAT THE AMERICANS HAD LANDED A HALF HOUR BEFORE. WITHOUT WAITING TO DO MORE THAN PULL ON THEIR TROUSERS THESE THREE MUSKETEERS HAD "TAKEN A POWDER" AND DISAPPEARED INTO THE HILLS.

ONE OF DARBY'S LIEUTENANTS, MARIO E.BROD, OF WHITE PLAINS, N.Y., HAS ANOTHER BIT OF EVIDENCE ON ITALIAN REACTION TO THE AMERICANS. SOON AFTER THE CAPTURE OF GELA, BROD COMMANDEERED THE TOWN CRIER, WHO WITH HIS PREDECESSORS HAVE BEEN PRACTICING THEIR PROFESSION SINCE THE MIDDLE AGES, AND ORDERED HIM TO WALK THROUGH THE STREETS WITH AN ANNOUNCEMENT FROM THE AMERICANS.

BROD WALKED THROUGH GELA WITH THE TOWN CRIER, WHO CALLED OUT IN LOUD, SONOROUS TONES, COMPLETELY BELYING HIS SHRIVELED, FEEBLE APPEARANCE:

JUL 16 1943

"CITIZENS, KNOW THAT AMERICAN TROOPS HAVE ARRIVED. THEY HAVE COME TO HELP YOU. YOU MUST HELP THEM. FROM NOW ON UNTIL FURTHER NOTICE REMAIN INDOORS. NO HARM WILL COME TO YOU. ALL ITALIANS WHO BEHAVE WELL WILL BE TREATED WELL. ITALIAN SOLDIERS WHO SURRENDER WILL BE TREATED WELL. REMEMBER THE AMERICANS ARE HERE TO HELP YOU. THEY ARE HERE TO LIBERATE YOU. LONG LIVE FREEDOM! LONG LIVE AMERICA!"

JUL 16 1943

THE SICILIANS COMPLETELY IGNORED THE ADVICE TO STAY AT HOME. THEY SWARMED OUT INTO THE STREETS SHOUTING, "BRAVO! AMERICANO!" AND ACCORDING TO SEVERAL EMBARRASSED AMERICAN SOLDIERS, THE LOCAL MALE CITIZENRY CHOSE TO DEMONSTRATE THEIR FEELINGS BY KISSING THE DOUGHBOYS ON THEIR CHEEKS. SERGT.HERMAN HEGYI OF SYRACUSE, N.Y. WAS SKEPTICAL, "ITS A LITTLE TOO GOOD TO BE TRUE," HE SAID." WE HAD ALL LEARNED ONE PHRASE TO SAY TO THE PEOPLE, 'SIAMO QUI PER AIUTARVI,' MEANING 'WE ARE HERE TO HELP YOU'. THEY SEEMED TO LIKE THAT BUT ITS FUNNY THAT THEY ALL SAY THEY HAVE A SISTER IN BROOKLYN OR SOME RELATIVE IN AMERICA AND THEY ALL SAY THEY WANT TO GO TO AMERICA. WE MET ONE OLD GUY THIS MORNING WHO SAID HE HAD BEEN TO AMERICA AND HAD SPENT TWO YEARS IN CHICAGO 25 YEARS AGO, BUT THAT 23 YEARS AGO HE CAME BACK TO SICILY."

WE WONDERED, TOO, WHY ANYONE SHOULD HAVE COME BACK FROM AMERICA TO THIS POVERTY-STRICKEN PLACE, WHEN WE LEFT DARBY'S HOTEL HEADQUARTERS AND WENT DOWN INTO THE STREET TO BE SURROUNDED BY OBVIOUSLY HUNGREY MEN AND BOYS STRETCHING OUT THEIR HANDS AND BEGGING, "GIVE US FOOD."

JUL 16 1943

FROM ENGLAND TO AFRICA AND NOW IN SICILY I MEET ONE ON EVERY SIDE, IN EVERY OUTFIT OF THE ARMY, NAVY, AIR FORCE AND COAST GUARD--SCORES OF EAGER YOUNG MEN FROM CHICAGO, PROUD OF THEIR UNIFORM BUT, IF ANYTHING, EVEN PROUDER OF THEIR CITY.

TEXAS MAY HAVE REAPED MORE GLAMOR, BUT THERE'S MANY AN OUTFIT ON AMERICA'S FAR-FLUNG BATTLE LINE WHERE "DEEP IN THE HEART OF CHICAGO" WOULD BE MORE APT THAN THE ORIGINAL DITTY.

HERE, FOR EXAMPLE, IS 21-YEAR-OLD WILLIAM F.O'CONNOR, WHOSE WIFE AND THREE-MONTHS-OLD SON LIVE WITH HIS MOTHER AND FATHER AT 2040 ROSCOE STREET, CHICAGO, AND WHO TODAY SHARED WITH SIX OTHER COMRADES THE UNUSUAL EXPERIENCE OF CAPTURING IN THE HEAT OF BATTLE 120 ITALIANS.

I MET HIM AT THE ENTRANCE OF THE TOWN OF GELA A FEW HOURS AFTER ITS CAPTURE BY OUR ASSAULT RANGERS. HE OFFERED US WATER, WHICH IS PRECIOUS IN THESE PARTS, AND WILLINGLY TOLD HIS STORY:

"WE LEFT SHIP AT 12:45 AFTER MIDNIGHT AND LANDED ON THE BEACH AT 10 MINUTES TO ONE. THAT WAS THE MOST EXCITING MOMENT BECAUSE THE ITALIANS HAD THEIR BIG SEARCHLIGHTS ON AND THEY WERE SHELLING US WHILE WE CAME IN. BUT THEY DIDN'T HIT US.

"AS FAR AS I KNOW WE ONLY LOST TWO SCOUTS. A LITTLE LATER ON WE WERE CLEANING UP THE TOWN AND GOING FROM HOUSE TO HOUSE. NOW THAT'S A FUNNY THING. THE ITALIANS WON'T COME OUT AND SURRENDER UNLESS YOU

30.24-6099

YELL AT THEM. WE SOON LEARNED THAT.

"AT FIRST WE JUST WENT ALONG THE STREET WAITING TO SEE ITALIAN SOLDIERS AND MAKE THEM GIVE UP. BUT ALL THE TIME THERE WERE PLENTY OF ITALIANS IN THE HOUSES WAITING FOR US TO TELL THEM TO COME OUT."

O'CONNOR, WHO WILL DOUBTLESS SOON BE PROMOTED FROM PRIVATE FOR HIS WORK TODAY, QUERIED "HOW DID WE SEVEN GUYS CAPTURE 120 ITALIANS?"

"WHY, IT WAS EASY. THEY WANTED TO GIVE UP SO BAD THEY CAME OUT WITH THEIR SUITCASES PACKED AND HANDED US THEIR RIFLES, ALREADY UNLOADED.

JUL 16 1943

"WE WENT FROM HOUSE TO HOUSE AND YELLED 'COME ON OUT' AND OUT THEY CAME, BUT THEY COULDN'T COME UNTIL WE YELLED AT THEM. AS SOON AS THEY CAME OUT SOME OF OUR BOYS WOULD START TALKING ITALIAN TO THEM AND THEY ALL SEEMED PRETTY GLAD. SOME OF THEM CARRIED A WHITE FLAG, TOWEL OR HANDKERCHIEF."

A FEW BLOCKS UP THE STREET OF DESERTED, FORLORN GELA, ANOTHER CHICAGOAN THREW MORE LIGHT ON ITALIAN MORALE. THIS WAS SERGEANT THADEUS STEFANIK OF 1617 WEST 31ST STREET, CHICAGO, WHERE HIS MOTHER AND FATHER LIVE. HE LANDED WITH THE FIRST ASSAULT WAVE TODAY.

"DID YOU KILL ANY OF THE ENEMY?" I ASKED.

JUL 16 1943

"NOT THIS TIME," HE SAID, "BUT IN 1939 I DID.

"YES, IN 1939 I WAS IN WARSAW UNTIL THE GERMANS ARRIVED. I KILLED SOME OF THEM BUT THEY CAPTURED ME AND SENT ME TO PRISON IN KOENIGSBERG. I ESCAPED AND NOW I AM HERE TO KILL SOME MORE. I UNDERSTAND THERE ARE PLENTY OF HUNS HERE IN THE INTERIOR."

I ASKED STEFANIK WHAT HE THOUGHT OF ITALIANS AS MILITARY OPPONENTS.

"WELL," HE SAID, "I CAN ONLY DESCRIBE THE WAY THREE OF THEM BEHAVED WHEN WE HIT THE BEACH NONE OF US STOPPED TO DIG IN BUT PUSHED ON FAST FOR OUR OBJECTIVE WHICH WAS THE CUSTOMS HOUSE SOME HUNDREDS OF YARDS AWAY WHERE WE WERE TO SET UP A TEMPORARY COMMAND POST. AFTER A FEW SECONDS OF RUNNING ONE OF OUR NAVAL GUNS HIT CLOSE BY AND SUDDENLY OUT OF NOWHERE CAME THREE ITALIAN SOLDIERS HOLDING UP THEIR HANDS.

JUL 16 1943

"WHEN THEY CAME NEAR THEY THREW THEMSELVES DOWN ON THEIR KNEES AND BEGGED US TO SPARE THEIR LIVES. WE ASKED THEM A LOT OF QUESTIONS AND THEY ANSWERED EVERYTHING WITHOUT APPARENTLY CARING WHAT IT MEANT."

LATER, STEFANIK'S SUPERIOR OFFICER, LIEUT.BROD, SAID STEFANIK DESERVED A DECORATION FOR HIS INTREPID WORK THROUGHOUT THE OPERATION.

BUT THE LIST OF CHICAGOANS IN THIS OPERATION ALONE WILL EXTEND ALMOST INDEFINITELY.

ON OUR SHIP ALONE I MET CAPT.CHARLES B.MELDRUM, MEDICAL CORPS, OF 3515 WEST ADAMS STREET, CHICAGO, WHO SMILED HAPPILY AS HE REPORTED HE HAD HAD A LETTER FROM HIS MOTHER DATED AS LATE AS JUNE 13. ANOTHER CHICAGO BOY IN MELDRUM'S OUTFIT WAS PFC KENNETH C.MUELLER OF 1615 WEST OHIO STREET. THEN CHIEF GUNNER'S MATE NICHOLAS TANNACI OF FIFTH AVENUE, GENEROUSLY INVITED ME TO BE INTRODUCED TO ALL THE CHICAGO BOYS HE KNEW ABOARD.

ALSO AMONG THE CREW OF OUR TRANSPORT WERE ROBERT AUSTERA, SEAMAN

FIRST CLASS, 7041 WEST 40TH PLACE, CHICAGO; ARTHUR H.OLSON, SEAMAN FIRST CLASS, 1633 SOUTH 16TH AVENUE, MAYWOOD, ILL.; EBERHARD STEVRICH, 3650 NORTH DAMEN AVENUE, CHICAGO; GEORGE RAFTIS, 7456 COTTAGE GROVE AVENUE, CHICAGO.

AN IMPORTANT GROUP OF CHICAGOANS WERE IN ARTILLERY "N" UNIT WHO AT THIS MOMENT ARE BATTERING THE ENEMY WITH DETONATIONS THAT SHAKE THIS TYPEWRITER. THEY INCLUDE RALPH PROVENZANO, 7154 WOODLAWN AVENUE; SAMUEL A.CONDE, 321 NORTH SIXTH STREET, GENEVA; HENRY J.ROGERS, JR., 8018 SOUTH MORGAN STREET; HAROLD J.KISKES, 7329 SOUTH CARPENTER ST.; KENNETH GROSS, FRANKLIN GROVE, ILL.; ROBERT F.KNIGHT, ROCKFORD, ILL.; ROBERT P.TALMADGE, 1251 LELAND AVENUE, CHICAGO; TRENTON C.DAVEY, 123 OGDEN STREET, BELVEDERE, ILL.; BILLIE W.HOPKINS, NORMAN, ILL.; WENDELL H.HARMON, MATTOON, ILL.; AND ELBERT REED, CHICAGO.

WITH AMERICAN TROOPS IN SICILY, JULY 10-(DELAYED)-WE LANDED WITHOUT CHEERS, BUT WITH OUR GENERAL'S FACE GRIMMER THAN EVER. SHORTLY AFTER DAWN TODAY WITH FAMOUS TROOPS, AND BY NIGHTFALL AMERICAN BOYS FROM EVERY STATE IN THE UNION HAD DRIVEN THE ITALIAN AND GERMAN ENEMIES BACK BEYOND ADEQUATE BRIDGEHEADS.

IT WAS A UNIQUE EXPERIENCE TO STEAM SILENTLY AND IN AN UTTER BLACKOUT INTO THIS SOUTHERN ITALIAN PORT AND RIDE GENTLY AT ANCHOR AFTER A DAY'S STORM WHICH HAD SEEMED TO MENACE OUR ENTIRE EXPEDITION WITH DESTRUCTION.

CHOSEN FOR ITS ALMOST UNIFORMLY GOOD WEATHER IN THIS PART OF THE WORLD, THIS MONTH OF JULY PROVED THE EXCEPTION THAT PROVED THE RULE. OUR IMMENSE CONVOY WAS CAUGHT AT NOON IN GRADUALLY ASCENDING TROUBLE, BEGINNING WITH A LIGHT BREEZE, THROUGH A STIFF BREEZE INTO A MODERATE GALE. BY LATE AFTERNOON IT APPEARED CERTAIN THAT IF WE CONTINUED WE SHOULD BE UNABLE TO DISEMBARK. YET TO TURN BACK WOULD BE ONLY SLIGHTLY LESS DISASTROUS.

JUL 16 1943

OUR DECISION WAS MADE FOR US, LUCKILY, BY THE HIGHEST ALLIED AUTHORITIES. WE WERE TO GO AHEAD. UNTIL LONG AFTER DARK WAVES BEAT SPRAY CLEAR OVER THE HIGHEST SIGNAL BRIDGE OF A COAST GUARD TRANSPORT, AND THE STOUTEST SPIRIT ABOARD WAS SEIZED WITH ANXIETY AS WE MEASURED THE SIZE AND CRASHING POWER OF THE WHITE-PLUMED SEAS AGAINST OUR FRAGILE LANDING CRAFT.

THEN, JUST AS IN THE LANDING LAST NOVEMBER AT ORAN, WHERE A STORM HAD RAGED UP TO THE LAST MINUTE, HERE OFF THE PARCHED WHITE SHORES OF SICILY THE WIND SUDDENLY CEASED.

"IT WILL TAKE SIX HOURS FOR THIS SEA TO DIE DOWN," REMARKED ONE WHO TOOK A DIM VIEW OF ALMOST EVERYTHING.

BUT IT DIDN'T.

AT MIDNIGHT, AS WE ENTERED THE APPROACHES TO THE PORT, THE SEA HAD BECOME SO QUIET WE COULD STAND WITHOUT SUPPORT AND WATCH WITHOUT STRAIN THE SPECTACULAR BOMBING BY OUR AIR FORCE OF TACTICAL POSITIONS AROUND THE PORT AND BEACH WE WERE ABOUT TO ASSAULT. THE SKY WAS LIT FOR MILES AROUND BY THE FLAMES FROM THE AIRPORT AND DOCKS.

PRESENTLY A HUGE ITALIAN COAST GUARD SEARCHLIGHT FLUNG ITS VAST BEAM INTO THE DARKNESS OF THE HORIZON AND SWEPT ACROSS OUR BOWS. WE HELD OUR BREATH. AROUND US WERE AN IMMENSE NUMBER OF CONVOY CRAFT. WE HAD SEVERAL TIMES MORE VESSELS THAN HAD EVER BEFORE BEEN USED IN A SINGLE MILITARY OPERATION--EVEN MANY MORE THAN IN THE ALLIED LANDING ON NORTH AFRICA.

THE GREAT FLEET OF THESE VESSELS LAY AROUND US AND BEYOND AS FAR AS THE EYE COULD SEE. TO OUR EYES THE ITALIAN SEARCHLIGHT SILHOUETTED ALL THESE FOREST OF MASTS AND SMOKESTACKS AGAINST THE GLITTERING, STAR-HUNG SKY BUT APPARENTLY THE SEARCHLIGHT OPERATORS WERE DAZZLED AND UNABLE TO SEE US. NOT A SIGN CAME FROM THE SHORE THAT WE HAD BEEN DISCOVERED.

WE HOVERED MANY HUNDREDS AND THOUSANDS AND TEN OF THOUSANDS STRONG, AWAITING ONLY THE HOUR TO INVADE AND TO CAPTURE OR DESTROY THE ENEMY WHO HAD BEEN SO MANY YEARS COMMITTING CRIMES WITHOUT PUNISHMENT.

THAT ENEMY HAD LIFE AND DEATH REASONS FOR BEING ALERT BUT NOW HE SEEMED ONLY AWARE THAT HIS AIRPORT AND HARBOR WERE BEING HARSHLY "SOFTENED" BY ALLIED BOMBERS.

JUL 16 1943

JUST A FEW MILES AWAY MEN CROWDED THE DECKS OF INNUMERABLE WARSHIPS, TRANSPORTS AND LANDING CRAFT WATCHING THEIR VICTIM TURN WITH BEWILDERMENT TO HIS SEARCHLIGHT AND SEEK SOMEWHERE ON THE SURFACE OF THE SEA AN ANSWER TO THE QUESTION THAT TROUBLED HIM.

THE ENEMY KNEW SOMETHING WAS WRONG BUT COULDN'T TELL WHAT. HIS BIG GUNS IN COASTAL DEFENSE FORTS WERE STRONG ENOUGH TO SINK ANY SHIP IN OUR CONVOY. IF HE'D ONLY TRAINED HIS SEARCHLIGHT LONG ON ONE SHIP HE COULD HAVE LOCATED AND BOMBARDED ALL OF US.

BUT WITH TYPICAL ITALIAN MEDITERRANEAN NERVOUSNESS HE BRUSHED HIS BEAM BACK AND FORTH ACROSS US UNTIL SUDDENLY SPRAYS OF TRACER BULLETS APPEARED ON THE BEACH.

30.24 - 6101

WE KNEW WHAT THAT WAS. IT WAS THE AMERICANS. THEY HAD LANDED. THEY WERE STORMING THEIR FIRST OBJECTIVES. IMMEDIATELY, AS THOUGH SET OFF BY THE PUSHING OF A BUTTON, THE SKY WAS FILLED WITH A PYROTECHNICAL DISPLAY WHICH SELDOM IF EVER HAS BEEN EQUALLED.

A BIG ITALIAN SEARCHLIGHT WAS LEVELLED ALONG THE BEACH IN THE DIRECTION OF THE GELA FORT AND ALL THE GUNS OF A LONG LINE OF COASTAL DEFENSES WERE TURNED UPON THE LANDING CRAFT AND MEN OF THE SPEARHEAD.

THE ITALIANS ARE NOTORIOUSLY FOND OF BRIGHT COLORS AND USE THEM WITH MARKED EFFECT IN THEIR CLOTHING, DOMESTIC DECORATION AND ICE CREAM BUT NOWHERE ELSE HAVE THEY HAD SUCH AN OPPORTUNITY TO REVEL IN CHROMATIC EXTRAVAGANCE AS IN THEIR USE OF TRACER BULLETS. THOUSANDS OF RED ONES, GREEN ONES, YELLOWS, BLUES, FIERY WHITES AND ALL SHADES OF CRIMSON, SCARLET, MAGENTA AND PURPLE TRACED INTRICATE PATTERNS OVER THE BEACH.

JUL 16 1943

THE ITALIAN ARTILLERY ALSO HAD SOMETHING WE HAD NOT SEEN BEFORE: A CRIMSON TRACER BULLET OR SMALL CANNON SHELL WHICH EXPLODED A FEW FEET ABOVE THE GROUND AND SENT UP AND DOWNWARD A CURTAIN OF WHAT LOOKED LIKE BLAZING OIL.

THIS BECAME KNOWN AS THE "ANTI-PERSONNEL INCINERATOR." AS FAR AS IS KNOWN NONE OF OUR MEN SUFFERED INJURY FROM IT.

FOR THE NEXT FEW MINUTES AFTER THE ITALIANS DISCOVERED OUR INITIAL ASSAULT PARTY THEY SEEMED TO HAVE IT ALL THEIR WAY BUT WITHIN TEN MINUTES SUDDENLY A FOUNTAIN OF FIRE BEGAN POURING TOWARD ITALIAN POSITIONS, PARTICULARLY TOWARD THE SEARCHLIGHT. ITS BEAM CEASED.

SILENT REJOICING SPREAD THROUGHOUT OUR CONVOY. THE SEARCHLIGHT

JUL 16 1943

DISAPPOINTINGLY CAME ON AGAIN. IT HAD ALL BEEN A TRICK. ONCE MORE OUR MEN SHOWERED THE LIGHT WITH BULLETS. THE LIGHT FLICKERED AMD WENT OUT, ONLY TO REAPPEAR A FEW MINUTES LATER.

EVERY TIME IT APPEARED THERE CAME TO LIFE THE DANGER THAT ITALIAN SHORE BATTERIES WOULD BEGIN TO SHELL THE CONVOY. FINALLY FROM SEAWARD CAME TRIPLE MISSILES FROM SOMETHING UPWARD OF A THREE-INCH GUN.

JUL 16 1943

ALL THREE WERE TRACERS. WE COULD WATCH THEIR SLOW, GRACEFUL TRAJECTORY AS THEY RELENTLESSLY MADE THEIR BLOOD-RED WAY TO THE HEART OF THE ITALIAN SEARCHLIGHT. THIS TIME THERE WAS NO TRICK. IT DISAPPEARED INTO DARKNESS.

BEFORE DAWN OUR ASSAULT TROOPS HAD THE COAST FORTRESSES WITH THEIR POWERFUL ARTILLERY.

DIRECTLY IN FRONT OF US AND FROM OUR SECTION OF THE CONVOY WAVE AFTER WAVE OF SHOCK ELEMENTS TOOK OFF IN AN UNBELIEVABLY CALM SEA AND LANDED SUCCESSFULLY IN PITCH DARKNESS.

AS THE SUN ROSE THE AMERICANS WERE SEVERAL MILES INLAND. FOR THE SECOND TIME IN THIS GREATEST OF ALL WARS, AMERICANS HAD PERFORMED THE MOST DIFFICULT OF ALL MILITARY OPERATIONS: LANDING TROOPS AGAINST DEFENDED POSITIONS.

BUT IT WOULD BE TOO OPTIMISTIC TO PARAPHRASE THE MARINES AND SAY, "TROOPS LANDED, SITUATION UNDER CONTROL." TO GET IT UNDER CONTROL WAS OUR NEXT TASK.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: THE AMERICAN FORCES INVADING SICILY HAD A CRISIS ON SUNDAY, FINALLY WINNING A 10-HOUR BATTLE TO HOLD THEIR BEACHHEAD ON THE CENTRAL FRONT AFTER THE ENEMY HAD FOUGHT TO WITHIN 1,000 YARDS OF THEM, DON WHITEHEAD, ASSOCIATED PRESS CORRESPONDENT WITH THE INVASION ARMY, DISCLOSES IN THE FOLLOWING EYE-WITNESS DISPATCH. AFTER THIS CLOSE CALL, THE AMERICANS RALLIED AND WITHIN 48 HOURS OF THE LANDING HAD WIPED UP THREE ENEMY DIVISIONS, INCLUDING THE VAUNTED NAZI HERMANN GOERING DIVISION. WHITEHEAD, BORN IN VIRGINIA AND EDUCATED IN KENTUCKY, UNDERWENT AMPHIBIOUS TRAINING FOR THE PAST MONTH IN PREPARATION FOR HIS PRESENT ASSIGNMENT.)

WITH THE AMERICAN INVASION TROOPS ON SICILY, JULY 12-(DELAYED) -(AP)-THE COMPLETE COLLAPSE OF THE ITALIAN COASTAL DEFENSES GAVE IMPETUS TO THE AMERICAN INVASION OF SICILY, WHILE THE BREAKDOWN IN THE VAUNTED GERMAN MILITARY EFFICIENCY SAVED THE BRIDGEHEAD IN THE CENTRAL SECTOR.

THIS BECAME CLEAR TODAY AS THE TROOPS BATTLED THEIR WAY INTO THE ISLAND AND HUNDREDS OF ITALIAN AND GERMAN PRISONERS STREAMED BACK TO THE PRISONER-OF-WAR PENS.

THE CRISIS ON THE AMERICAN FRONT CAME JULY 11 WHEN A VETERAN INFANTRY DIVISION FOUGHT FOR 10 SAVAGE HOURS TO STEM ENEMY ATTACKS THAT SWEPT TO WITHIN 1,000 YARDS OF THE VITAL BEACHHEAD WHICH WAS THE HIGHROAD TO VICTORY.

30.24-6103

A MILITARY SPOKESMAN SAID THE ONLY THING THAT SAVED THE CENTRAL FRONT FROM BEING OVERRUN WAS THE MAGNIFICENT FIGHTING OF THE FRONT LINE TROOPS AND THE LACK OF COORDINATION IN THE ENEMY'S THREE-PRONGED DRIVES THAT CAME SIMULTANEOUSLY FROM THE EAST, THE WEST AND THE NORTH.

WITHIN 48 HOURS AFTER LANDING THE TROOPS HAD MET AND DEFEATED THREE ENEMY DIVISIONS ON SICILY, INCLUDING THE HERMANN GOERING PANZER DIVISION.

IT IS SIGNIFICANT THAT THE PRISONERS FROM THE GOERING DIVISION WERE MOSTLY YOUTHS IN THEIR EARLY TWENTIES, WITH LITTLE OR NO COMBAT EXPERIENCE AND VERY LITTLE TRAINING.

SOME MILITARY OBSERVERS TAKE THIS TO MEAN THAT HITLER HAS COMMITTED HIS VETERAN DIVISIONS ON THE RUSSIAN FRONT AND THEY BELIEVE HE HAS BLUNDERED.

JUL 16 1943

THE GOERING DIVISION, WHICH HAS A MOBILE RESERVE FORCE TO BACK UP THE ITALIAN COASTAL DEFENSES, WAS SCATTERED FROM COMISO TO CALTIGIRONE. THE TROOPS WERE ALERTED TWO WEEKS AGO FOR THE INVASION AND TOOK A DEFENSIVE STATION, BUT WHEN THE ALLIED MOVE FAILED TO MATERIALIZE THE ALERT TURNED INTO AN INVASION MANEUVER AND THEN THE TROOPS RETURNED TO THEIR GARRISONS.

WHEN THE AMERICANS SWARMED INTO THE CITY OF GELA SATURDAY ONE OF THE FIRST THINGS THEY DID WAS TO CUT TELEPHONE WIRES. THIS BROKE COMMUNICATIONS BETWEEN COMISO AND CALTIGIRONE.

ONE GOERING TANK BATTALION AT CALTIGIRONE WAS NOT NOTIFIED OF THE INVASION UNTIL FIVE HOURS AFTER THE TROOPS WERE ASHORE. OTHER UNITS WERE NOT NOTIFIED UNTIL NINE HOURS LATER.

THE ENEMY'S TANK BATTALION AT CALTIGIRONE WAS ORDERED TO MOVE AGAINST GELA AND TO PENETRATE THE AMERICAN BRIDGEHEAD. AND THEN THE GERMANS COMMITTED THEIR GREATEST MISTAKE--A MISTAKE WHICH UNQUESTIONABLY SAVED THE AMERICANS THOUSANDS OF LIVES AND MILLIONS OF DOLLARS WORTH OF EQUIPMENT.

JUL 16 1943

AND IT WAS THIS: WHEN THE TANKS DROVE IN THEY WERE NOT FOLLOWED BY INFANTRY SUPPORT. THE GERMANS THREW AN OVERPOWERING WEIGHT OF TANKS AGAINST THE CENTER FRONT WHILE WE HAD ONLY A FEW TANKS AND FIELD GUNS ASHORE FOR DEFENSE. BUT THERE WAS NO INFANTRY BEHIND TO CAPITALIZE ON THE ARMORED DRIVE WHICH WAS STOPPED JUST SHORT OF THE BEACHHEAD BY ARTILLERY FIRE.

EVEN AS IT WAS, THE BEACHHEAD WAS THREATENED AND ONLY A STOUT-HEARTED DEFENSE TURNED THE TIDE.

THE YOUTH AND INEXPERIENCE OF MANY GERMAN TROOPS PROBABLY WAS A FACTOR IN THE ABORTIVE PUSH. PRISONERS' PAY-BOOKS SHOWED SOME OF THEM HAD BEEN IN THE GERMAN ARMY ONLY THREE MONTHS.

PHYSICIALLY THEY APPEARED STRONG AND HEALTHY, BUT THEY DID NOT HAVE THE COCKY ATTITUDE OF THE GERMAN PRISONERS TAKEN IN THE NORTH AFRICAN WESTERN DESERT AND TUNISIA.

"THEY FELT THAT SOMETHING WENT WRONG IN THE HIGH COMMAND," AN

JUL 16 1943

OFFICER SAID. "THEY WERE NOT HAPPY OVER BEING CAPTURED. ONE COLONEL WAS STUNNED BY HIS CAPTURE. HE HAD BEEN TOLD THAT THE ROAD WAS CLEAR AND HE DROVE RIGHT INTO THE HANDS OF OUR MEN."

AS FOR THE ITALIANS MANY OF THEM WERE HAPPY TO BE OUT OF THE WAR.

JUL 16 1943

"ALL THEY WANT IS PEACE AND QUIET," AN INTERPRETER SAID. "THEY DON'T CARE ANY MORE ABOUT THE ITALIAN EMPIRE SINCE THE WAR IS AT THEIR FRONT DOOR, AND IN THEIR BACK YARD AS WELL."

LIEUT.-COL.KENNETH CUNIN OF ALLIANCE, OHIO, SUMMED UP THE ITALIAN WILL TO FIGHT IN THIS WAY:

"AS LONG AS THE ITALIAN IS WELL EMPLACED, AS LONG AS HE CAN SEE YOU AND KNOWS WHERE YOU ARE HE WILL FIGHT LIKE HELL. BUT ONCE YOU SURPRISE HIM AND GET THE JUMP ON HIM OR GET BEHIND HIM HE FOLDS UP LIKE THAT."

AND CUNIN SNAPPED HIS FINGER.

WITH THE AMERICAN INVASION TROOPS AT SICILY, JULY 11-(DELAYED)-(AP)-A COUPLE OF LOST PARACHUTISTS WANDERED OUT OF THE SICILIAN HILLS YESTERDAY--AND BROUGHT 40 ITALIAN PRISONERS ALONG WITH THEM.

MEMBERS OF A PARACHUTE INFANTRY COMPANY WHICH DROPPED SHORT OF THEIR OBJECTIVE ON THE EVE OF THE INVASION, STAFF SERGEANT RONALD SNYDER OF 1346 WEST SELTZER ST., PHILADELPHIA, PA., AND PRIVATE MICHAEL ZOLVIK OF 530 WEST 141ST ST., NEW YORK CITY, BROUGHT IN ONE OF THE STRANGEST ADVENTURE STORIES OF THE INVASION.

JUL 16 1943

SLENDER, DARK-HAIRED SNYDER WAS TIRED AND BEDRAGGLED AFTER MILES OF HIKING OVER ROUGH COUNTRY AND HE SAT IN A FOXHOLE IN A LEMON GROVE AS HE TOLD HIS STORY:

"WE TOOK OFF FROM AN AIRFIELD IN NORTH AFRICA ABOUT 8 P.M. THE NIGHT BEFORE THE INVASION," HE SAID. "WE HAD BEEN STUDYING THE RAID TABLES AND AERIAL PHOTOGRAPHS OF THE OBJECTIVE FOR DAYS. OUR JUMP HOUR WAS 11:46 P.M.

JUL 16 1943

"AFTER WE GOT UP IN THE PLANE I TOLD THE MEN WHERE THEY WERE GOING. WE HADN'T TOLD ANYONE BEFORE.

"THE DIRECTIONS WERE THAT WE WOULD FLY OVER THE COAST OF SICILY, CROSS THE LAKE AND THEN THE RAILROAD AND JUMP ON THE PLATEUA NORTHEAST OF THE CITY OF GELA.

"WE CIRCLED AROUND NORTH AFRICA AT ABOUT 5,000 FEET AND THEN HEADED OUT TO SEA FLYING AT ABOUT 100 FEET. WE WERE SO LOW WE COULD SEE THE WAVES LAPPING.

"WE BLACKENED OUR FACES WITH BURNT CORK AND THERE WAS A LOT OF HORSEPLAY IN THE PLANE. WE SANG A LOT.

"THERE WERE ABOUT TEN PLANES IN OUR FLIGHT. WE HAD BEEN STANDING IN THE PLANE READY TO JUMP FOR ABOUT AN HOUR WHEN THE RED LIGHT CAME ON A SECOND TIME. THAT MEANT WE WERE NEARING OUR OBJECTIVE.

"I WAS LOOKING FOR MARKERS ON THE GROUND WHEN THE GREEN LIGHT FLASHED ON. YOU HAVE TO JUMP WHEN THE GREEN LIGHT GOES.

"SO WE WENT OUT. SOME OF THE BOYS LANDED IN TREES AND WE SCATTERED ALONG THE RIDGE BUT IT WAS NOT OUR OBJECTIVE.

30.21-6105

"OUR COMPANY COMMANDER, CAPT.JAMES MCGINNITY WHO LIVES IN KANSAS FLASHED A LIGHT SIGNAL TO GET THE MEN TOGETHER. I SAW TWO OR THREE BOYS WITH BROKEN LEGS. WE LEFT THEM IN THE CARE OF THE FIRST AID MAN AND HEADED TOWARD SOME FIRES WHICH WE FIGURED WERE OUR OBJECTIVE.

"I WAS ON THE END COLUMN KEEPING STRAGGLERS IN LINE. IT WAS PRETTY EASY AT NIGHT TO GET SEPARATED WHEN CARRYING MORTARS, MACHINEGUNS, MINES AND AMMUNITION AND I GOT SEPARATED FROM THE MEN IN THE DARKNESS. I KEPT WALKING AND PRETTY SOON MET UP WITH ZOLVIK. WE PICKED UP SEVEN OTHERS AND STARTED OFF AGAIN. THE NAVY BEGAN A BARRAGE AND WE HAD TO DIG IN BECAUSE THE SHELLS WERE FALLING ALL AROUND US.

"MIKE AND I WENT OUT TO LOOK FOR OUR COMPANY. WE WALKED MOST OF THE NIGHT AND COULDN'T FIND THEM. AT DAWN WE CAME ACROSS TWO ITALIAN PEASANTS, AN OLD MAN AND A WOMAN. THEY WERE SCARED. I THOUGHT IF I TOLD THEM WE WERE AMERICANS IT WOULD EASE THEIR MIND. I POINTED TO THE SMALL UNITED STATES FLAG ON MY SLEEVE AND THE WOMAN WENT INTO HYSTERICS. SO WE LEFT THEM. JUL 16 1943

"FROM THE TOP OF A KNOLL WE SAW SOLDIERS MOVING TOWARD US. WE CLIMBED A TREE AND I THOUGHT THEY WERE GERMANS UNTIL I SAW THE GOGGLES ON ONE OF THEM.

"I YELLED, 'HOLD FIRE YANKEE'. THEY WERE FROM AN AMERICAN LANDING PARTY AND TOLD US THERE WAS NO ONE BEHIND SO WE STARTED OUT TO FIND DIVISION HEADQUARTERS.

"THREE ITALIAN SOLDIERS WALKED OUT TOWARD US FROM THE WOODS. THEY MUST HAVE THOUGHT WE WERE ITALIANS BECAUSE OUR UNIFORMS LOOK SOMETHING LIKE THEIRS. WHEN THEY WALKED UP CLOSE I KNOCKED THE RIFLES OUT OF THEIR HANDS WITH MY TOMMY GUN AND WE MADE THEM SIT UNDER A TREE.

"AN ITALIAN CAPTAIN CAME UP AND WE TOOK HIS PISTOL. GROUPS OF THREE OR FOUR WERE COMING TOWARD US. WE WERE IN SOME TRENCHES WHICH THEY WERE APPARENTLY GETTING READY TO OCCUPY. AS THEY WOULD COME UP WE WOULD DISARM THEM AND PUT THEM UNDER THE TREE. PRETTY SOON WE HAD 40 OF THEM, THE GUNS STACKED THREE FEET HIGH. JUL 16 1943

I WENT DOWN TO THEIR GARRISON AND FOUND IT EMPTY. I RIPPED OUT THE RADIO AND THEN REJOINED MIKE WHO WAS STANDING GUARD. TWO OF THE PRISONERS WANTED TO GO BACK TO BARRACKS AND GET NEW UNIFORMS BEFORE BEING TAKEN IN. WE LET THEM GO AND A FEW MINUTES LATER THEY CAME BACK. THEN THEY ALL WANTED TO GO BACK FOR UNIFORMS. WE LET THEM GO TWO AT A TIME WITH NO GUARD AND THEY ALL CAME BACK.

"THEY WERE LAUGHING AND JOKING. WHEN WE MENTIONED MUSSOLINI'S NAME THEY WOULD MAKE A MOTION LIKE CUTTING THEIR THROATS AND LAUGH.

"I TRIED TO TURN THE PRISONERS OVER TO THE PLATOON LANDING PARTY BUT THEY COULDN'T BE BOTHERED. WE MARCHED IN COLUMN OF TWOS TO THE BEACH. I MET A CAPTAIN AND TURNED OVER THE PRISONERS TO HIM BUT I HAD HIM GIVE ME A RECEIPT FOR THEM."

AND SNYDER'S RECEIPT SAID "JULY 10, RECEIVED 38 PW FROM SGT. R.SNYDER. SIGNED M.F.OAKLEY, 1ST. LIEUT."

(DISTRIBUTED BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS)

SOUTHERN SICILY, JULY 14-(DELAYED)--THIS IS HOW ANY SICILIAN SMALL TOWN GETS BACK ONTO ITS FEET AFTER THE ALLIES OCCUPY IT.

AT FIRST THERE IS CHAOS. EVERY HOUSE IS SHUTTERED AND BARRED. THERE MAY BE VEHICLES AND TANKS SMOULDERING IN THE STREETS. THERE ARE

JUL 16 1943

LITTLE HEAPS OF SHELL CASES IN THE GUTTERS AND THE STREETS ARE STREWN WITH PAPER, STRAW AND FILTH. HALF THE INHABITANTS HAVE FLED TO THE COUNTRY. THE REST ARE BARRICADED INSIDE THEIR HOUSES. YOU HARDLY KNOW WHERE TO START.

JUL 16 1943

FIRST YOU LOOK FOR THE BIGGEST BUILDING--SCHOOLS, HOSPITALS, MUNICIPAL OFFICES--SO AS TO GET SOME SORT OF HEADQUARTERS. YOU COLLECT WHAT ARCHIVES YOU CAN FIND AND PROBABLY DISCOVER THE NAME AND ADDRESS OF THE MAYOR. THEN YOU GET TO WORK.

A FEW COWED, FASCINATED PEOPLE CREEP TIMIDLY OUT INTO THE STREETS. YOU GET HOLD OF ONE OF THEM AND SEND FOR THE MAYOR. PROBABLY THEY SAY THEY DON'T KNOW WHERE HE IS OR IF HE'S ALIVE. BUT IN THE END YOU PERSUADE SOMEONE TO FETCH HIM. SOON A QUIET LITTLE MAN, UNSHAVEN AND DRESSED IN A SHAPELESS ERSATZ SUIT COMES IN BOWING AND FLASHING HIS GOLD TEETH IN A SICKLY SMILE. YES, HE'S THE MAYOR, ENTIRELY AT OUR DISPOSITION. BUT HE SAYS THE SITUATION IS TERRIBLE AND HE DOUBTS IF ANYTHING CAN BE DONE. HE SHRUGS HIS SHOULDERS AND SPREADS HIS HANDS. HE OFFERS TO HELP IF HE CAN.

FIRST THERE IS THE MATTER OF CORPSES. THE BODIES OF ENEMY SOLDIERS AND PERHAPS CIVILIANS, TOO, KILLED IN BOMBING AND SHELLING AND FIGHTING, STILL ARE LYING AROUND TOWN. THEY MUST BE BURIED.

THE MAYOR AGREES. IF THE ALLIED FORCES WILL PROVIDE TRUCKS, HE WILL ARRANGE IT. BUT THE ALLIED FORCES NEED THE TRUCKS FOR FIGHTING BATTLES. ITALIAN VEHICLES CAN'T BE USED BECAUSE THERE IS NO GASOLINE. SO FINALLY, THE MAYOR CALLS IN A FEW SHABBY, UNSHAVEN FRIENDS WHO HAVE GAUDILY PAINTED MULE CARTS. YOU SEND THEM OFF WITH A GANG OF ITALIAN PRISONERS TO BURY THE DEAD.

JUL 16 1943

THEN YOU TURN TO THE WATER SUPPLY. IN THIS MEDITERRANEAN JULY WEATHER, WITH ALL THE FILTH OF WARFARE AROUND, CLEANLINESS IS ABSOLUTELY VITAL. THE MAYOR SAYS THERE IS NO WATER. PIPELINES FROM THE RESERVOIR HAVE BEEN CUT BY SHELL. THE WELLS ARE DIRTY OR DRY.

JUL 16 1943

BUT FINALLY, HE ADMITS THERE IS AN OLD RESERVOIR THEY USED TO USE WHEN HE WAS A BOY. IT SHOULD BE POSSIBLE TO FIX IT UP AGAIN. SO YOU SEND A PARTY OF ENGINEERS TO LOOK AT IT. SOON YOU HAVE THE WATER FLOWING FROM THE FOUNTAINS AND PUMPS IN THE PUBLIC PLACES AND THE POPULATION COMES OUT WITH SAUCEPANS AND HUGE EARTHENWARE CROCKS TO CARRY SOME HOME.

IT IS LUCKY YOU HAVE PLENTY OF ITALIAN PRISONERS, FOR YOU CAN SET THEM TO WORK CLEANING THE STREETS. YOU MAKE THEM SWEEP OUT THE DIRTY SCHOOL HOUSE, WHICH THEY THEMSELVES HAD BEEN USING AS BARRACKS. AND SOON, THEY ARE HAPPILY TOPPLING THINGS OUT OF THE UPPER WINDOW INTO THE COURTYARD--BUG-RIDDEN WOODEN BEDSTEADS, TORN UNIFORMS, UNDERWEAR, HUGE BUNDLES OF OLD LETTERS, PACKETS OF CARTRIDGES, ITALIAN ARMY BILLYCANS, STACKS OF FASCIST PROPAGANDA AND EVEN PORTRAITS OF MUSSOLINI. THEY WORK AWAY MERRILY AND WILLINGLY, PAUSING ONLY TO BEG CIGARETTES FROM GUARDS.

AT THIS STAGE, YOU FIND YOURSELF IN A TRICKY INTERIM PERIOD. THE TOWN IS CEASING TO BE A BATTLEFIELD AND BECOMING AN OCCUPIED AREA. THE LOCAL CARABINIERI OF POLICE, WHEN THEY APPEAR ON THE STREETS, ARE APT TO GET ARRESTED BY OVER-ZEALOUS SOLDIERS. THE MAYOR COMES TO COMPLAIN THAT HE CAN'T GET INTO THE MUNICIPAL OFFICES BECAUSE OF SENTRIES ON THE DOORS.

JUL 16 1943

ALL SORTS OF LITTLE TROUBLES LIKE THAT KEEP CROPPING UP.

30.24-6107

THEN YOU TURN TO THE FOOD QUESTION. ALREADY CITIZENS ARE COMING IN TO COMPLAIN THEY HAVE HAD NOTHING TO EAT FOR DAYS AND THAT THEIR BABIES ARE STARVING AND THEIR WIVES ARE ILL IN BED.

WHAT ARE THE ALLIES GOING TO DO ABOUT IT? JUL 16 1943

THEY LISTEN POLITELY BUT UNBELIEVINGLY WHEN THEY TELL THEM THERE IS A BATTLE ON AND WAR MATERIAL HAS THE FIRST PRIORITY AND WE HAVEN'T ANY TOO MUCH TO EAT OURSELVES. THEN THEY START OFF AGAIN PROTESTING THAT THE ALLIES HAVE OCCUPIED THE COUNTRY AND MUST FEED THE PEOPLE.

YOU FEEL LIKE LOSING YOUR TEMPER WITH THEM, REMINDING THEM THAT THIS IS WAR AND ITALY CHOSE TO DECLARE IT AND THEY CANNOT EXPECT NOT TO SUFFER FROM IT.

BUT YOU SEND FOR THE MAYOR AGAIN AND GO INTO THE FOOD QUESTION.

IT TURNS OUT TO BE VERY DIFFICULT. FIRST, ALL THE MAIN MILLS ARE RUN BY ELECTRICITY AND THE POWER HAS BEEN TURNED OFF. THE OTHER MILLS ARE RUN BY DIESEL ENGINES AND THERE IS NO FUEL.

ANYWAY, THE WHOLE PROCESS IS HOPELESSLY ENTANGLED IN SOME FASCIST SYSTEM OF COLLECTIVE FARMING WHICH HAS REMOVED ALL THE MILLS FROM PRIVATE OWNERSHIP AND NO ONE SEEMS TO UNDERSTAND THE LEGAL POSITION. JUL 16 1943

SO YOU HAVE TO CHOP THROUGH A GOOD DEAL OF FASCIST RED TAPE TO TAKE EMERGENCY MEASURES. YOU CALL TOGETHER MILLERS AND BAKERS FOR A CONFERENCE TO TRY TO GET THE MANUFACTURE OF BREAD AND MACARONI GOING AGAIN.

THEN YOU STICK UP AN ALLIED PROCLAMATION IN THE MAIN SQUARE. THE CITIZENS GATHER AROUND AND THOSE WHO CAN READ EXPLAIN IT TO THOSE WHO CANNOT.

THE PEASANT WOMEN THROW UP THEIR HANDS IN DESPAIR AT THE PROSPECT OF MATHEMATICAL CALCULATIONS WHICH THE NEW CURRENCY REGULATIONS WILL INVOLVE. THE PEOPLE LEARN THEY MAY ONLY MOVE A CERTAIN DISTANCE FROM TOWN. THOSE WHOSE TOMATO OR MELON PATCHES ARE FURTHER AWAY COME AROUND TO COMPLAIN. JUL 16 1943

BUT GRADUALLY, IT IS SETTLING DOWN. TOWNSPEOPLE ARE GLAD TO FIND THERE IS SOME SORT OF PATTERN AND REGULARITY TO LIFE AGAIN AFTER THE CHAOS OF THE BATTLE PERIOD. THEY TAKE DOWN SHUTTERS AND OPEN FRONT DOORS. OLD WOMEN START TO SWEEP OUT HOUSES. MEN BRING OUT CHAIRS AND SIT ON THE PAVEMENT WATCHING WHAT HAPPENS. CHILDREN --TO WHOM ALL THIS IS THE MOST EXCITING THING THAT EVER HAPPENED-- HANG AROUND THE ALLIED TROOPS HOPING TO GET CANDY.

HOUSEWIVES START UP THEIR KITCHEN STOVES AGAIN WITH CHARCOAL AND DRIED ORANGE PEEL.

A FEW SQUALID SHOPS ARE OPEN ONLY TO SELL UTTERLY UNWANTED THINGS LIKE BABIES' BONNETS AND HIDEOUS ART. THE MEN HARNESS THEIR MULES TO THEIR PAINTED CARTS AND START MOVING BELONGINGS AROUND.

LIFE IS BEGINNING TO FLOW THROUGH THE TOWNS' VEINS ONCE MORE.

YOU TAKE A DEEP BREATH AND MOVE ON TO THE NEXT PLACE AND GO THROUGH IT ALL AGAIN.

WITH AN AIR-BORNE FORCE ON SICILY, JULY 12-(DELAYED)-LIKE A

JUL 16 1943

WELLSIAN FANTASIA THE BIG PLANES WERE STRUNG OUT BEHIND US, PULLING TROOP-FILLED GLIDERS TUGGING AT THE END OF TOW LINES LIKE KITE TAILS.

OUR COURSE WAS PLANNED TO CARRY US SOME 400 MILES, AT THE END OF WHICH WE ARE GOING TO ATTEMPT TO LAND IN THE HALF LIGHT OF THE MOON ON HOSTILE TERRITORY.

JUL 16 1943

THE ATTEMPT WAS SUCCESSFUL AND THE MOST AMBITIOUS GLIDER-BORNE INVASION IN HISTORY STARTED SHORTLY AFTER 10 P.M. JULY 9.

AT THE START A HIGH WIND SWIRLED DUST CLOUDS ACROSS THE AIR FIELD AS OUR AMERICAN GLIDER BEGAN TO MOVE ALONG THE RUNWAY AT THE END OF THE ROPE WHICH LINKED US WITH OUR DOUGLAS TOW PLANE.

WE WORE RED BERETS, LEAVING OUR METAL HELMETS BEHIND FOR IT HAD BEEN DECIDED IT WOULD BE A GOOD THING FOR THE ITALIANS TO LEARN QUICKLY THAT THE "RED DEVILS" OF THE AIR-BORNE FORCE HAD ARRIVED.

ONCE WE GOT INTO THE AIR SOLDIERS WITH SUPREME NONCHALANCE WERE DIGGING STICKY CANDY OUT OF A JAR WITH THEIR FIGHTING KNIVES AND MUNCHING CHEERFULLY.

JUL 16 1943

WE BOUNCED CRAZILY AT TIMES IN A NEAR GALE AND THE GLIDER OFFICER PILOTING US WAS STRIVING WITH HIS CONTROLS IN A FASHION THAT CANNOT BE COMPARED WITH ANYTHING ELSE, FOR FLYING A GLIDER UNDER THESE HIGH WIND CONDITIONS IS NERVE-WRACKING AND DIFFICULT.

RIVULETS OF SWEAT TRICKLED THROUGH THE BLACKING WHICH, LIKE ALL OF US, HE HAD SMEARED OVER HIS FACE AND IN THREE AND ONE-HALF HOURS HE WAS ONLY TWICE ABLE TO LIFT HIS HAND FROM THE CONTROLS.

WHEN DARKNESS CAME TINY LIGHTS WERE SWITCHED ON BY THE TUG PLANE AND THESE PIN POINTS IN THE BLACKNESS WERE THE ONLY ORIENTATION WITH WHICH TO TELL WHETHER WE WERE FOLLOWING OUR TUG COURSE. TO DEVIATE FROM IT WOULD HAVE MEANT CRASHING INTO THE SEA.

ABOUT 10:10 P.M. WE SIGHTED THE COAST AND CAME UNDER IMMEDIATE FIRE FROM LIGHT ACK-ACK AND SIGHTED MORE SEARCHLIGHTS THAN WE HAD EXPECTED.

JUL 16 1943

THE TOW ROPE WAS RELEASED WITH A CLATTERING JAR.

TRACERS AND SMALL CALIBER SHELLS WENT THROUGH THE TAIL BUT NONE EXPLODED AND DAMAGE WAS MINUTE. WHEN WE WERE NOT MORE THAN 200 OR 300 FEET FROM THE GROUND SEARCHLIGHTS WERE CRISSCROSSING IN BLINDING FLASHES.

"I CAN'T FIND IT. I CAN'T FIND IT," SHOUTED THE PILOT, WHO SOUGHT VAINLY FOR THE FIELD ON WHICH THE LANDING HAD BEEN PLANNED.

"WE WILL HAVE TO CRASH-LAND. DROP THE WHEELS OFF," HE CALLED TO THE CO-PILOT.

THE CO-PILOTED SEEMED TO BE HAVING DIFFICULTY WITH THE RELEASE GEAR AND WE WERE ONLY ABOUT 50 FEET FROM THE GROUND.

"DROP IT! DROP IT!" THE PILOT SHOUTED.

WE STILL WERE BEING FIRED ON WHEN SUDDENLY THERE WAS A GRINDING CRASH AND THE SMELL OF BURNING. I THOUGHT WE WERE HIT. THEN WE WERE AIR-BORNE AGAIN FOR AN INSTANT; THEN THERE WAS ANOTHER GRINDING CRASH; AND WE CAME TO REST.

WHAT HAD ACTUALLY HAPPENED WAS THAT THE CO-PILOT HAD MANAGED TO DROP THE UNDERCARRIAGE A FEW SECONDS BEFORE WE HIT AT 90 MILES AN HOUR. WE HAD BOUNCED INTO THE AIR AGAIN AND THEN COME TO A HALT ON HARD, ROCKY GROUND.

THE SIDES OF THE GLIDER HAD BROKEN LOOSE; EQUIPMENT HAD CRASHED INTO THE BACK OF THE PILOT'S SEAT. WE ALL WERE BRUISED AND SHAKEN BUT NONE OF US WAS A CASUALTY.

AN ADVANCED AIRDROME IN TUNISIA, JULY 14--THE FALL OF ANCIENT SYRACUSE TWO DAYS AFTER GLIDER-BORNE BRITISH TOMMIES, TOWED ABOUT THE OUTSKIRTS BY AMERICAN TROOP CARRIER PLANES, WAS HASTENED BY THE PIONEERING OF THESE NOCTURNAL SHOCK TROOPS, PHOTO RECONNAISSANCE AND FRAGMENTARY REPORTS NOW INDICATE.

THIS PORT, AN OBJECTIVE IIN WARS GOING BACK 3,000 YEARS, WAS QUICKLY SURROUNDED AND TAKEN AFTER THE GLIDER ARMADA APPEARED APPROXIMATELY FOUR HOURS AHEAD OF THE SURFACE INVADERS.

DESPITE THE PYROTECHNICS, THE BIGGEST PERCENTAGE OF THE GLIDERS LANDED SUCCESSFULLY AND IMMEDIATELY ORGANIZED A RECEPTION COMMITTEE FOR THE APPROACHING ALLIED CRAFT. THE ITALIANS, AS EVIDENT FROM THE LOW ALTITUDE AT WHICH THE CAST-OFF WAS MADE, WERE UNABLE TO FIGURE OUT WHAT WAS HAPPENING AND AFTER HAPHAZARD VOLLEYS INTO THE SKY TRIED LIGHTING THE BEACHES TO PICK UP ALLIED CRAFT. THE GLIDER BOYS' STRIKING FROM THE REAR WAS AN IMPORTANT FACTOR IN KEEPING OUR LOSSES NEGLIGIBLE AS THE BEACHHEADS WERE SEIZED ON CAPE MURRO DI PORCO.

FROM LIEUT.IRVIN KINNEY, 22, OF BIRMINGHAM, ALA., WHO WITH FLYING OFFICER JACK BATES, 29, OF DEARBORN, MICH., WAS RESCUED A QUARTER OF A MILE FROM SHORE, CAME THE STORY OF THE GLIDER'S DESCENT.

"WE BOTH VOLUNTEERED TO JOIN A BRITISH DETACHMENT," KINNEY SAID. "WE USED AMERICAN GLIDERS IN THIS OPERATION, ALL BUT ABOUT 20 PILOTED BY ENGLISHMEN. I WAS THE ONLY LIEUTENANT IN THE UNITED STATES GROUP, REST BEING FLYING OFFICERS. IT WAS A BUMPY TRIP GOING OVER BUT OUR PLANES TOWED US TO THE EDGE OF THE PENINSULA AT SYRACUSE WHERE FLAK WAS THE LIGHTEST AND AT THE PROPER TIME WE CUT LOOSE.

"THE WIND WAS BLOWING 35 MILES PER HOUR AND CARRIED US OFFSHORE AGAIN DESPITE ANYTHING I COULD DO TO PUT HER DOWN WITHOUT INJURING ANYONE.

JUL 16 1943

THE GLIDER FLOATED A LONG WHILE WITH US ON THE WING WAITING FOR HELP. THE WATER WAS NICE AND WARM AND LIFE BELTS WERE ON SO WE DIDN'T WORRY MUCH UNTIL IT BECAME 3 O'CLOCK IN THE MORNING AND OUR BOATS BEGAN PASSING US.

"FINALLY, WE BEGAN HOLLERING TO ATTRACT ATTENTION, THOUGH IT SEEMED THEY COULD SEE US. IMAGINE MY SURPRISE WHEN AN ENGLISH OFFICER ON A DESTROYER REPLIED 'PIPE DOWN, YOU FELLOWS. YOU'LL WAKE UP THE ITALIANS.' THEY WE REALIZED THEY HAD A MORE PRESSING ENGAGEMENT, WHILE OUR GANG DRIFTED OUT TO SEA.

"ABOUT FOUR IN THE MORNING THE CAPTAIN OF A LANDING CRAFT ON AN ASSAULT BOAT CAME ALONGSIDE AND RESCUED US."

BATES' STORY WAS ALMOST IDENTICAL EXCEPT THAT THREE OF HIS PASSENGERS DROWNED WHEN THEIR LIFE BELTS BECAME SOGGY. HE REPORTED SEEING OTHER GLIDERS FLOATING NEAR SHORE BUT THOUGHT MANY OCCUPANTS HAD REACHED THE BEACH.

"IN SPITE OF THE WET IT WAS A DARN GOOD SPOT TO WATCH THE INVASION," BATES OBSERVED. "THE BOATS WRE COMING IN SO FAST AND SO THICK I THOUGHT THEY WOULD RUN US DOWN. IT WAS QUITE AN AIR SHOW, TOO, AND THAT RED-GREEN TRACER BULLET THE ITALIANS SHOOT LOOKS PRETTIER FROM BELOW."

BOTH GLIDER PILOTS, UNSHAKEN BY THE EXPERIENCE, WERE KEEN TO TRY AGAIN.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: PART OF THE ALLIED FORCES WHICH INVADED SICILY WERE TAKEN ALL THE WAY FROM THE UNITED STATES FOR THE ATTACK, AND THE FOLLOWING IS THE FIRST EYE-WITNESS ACCOUNT OF HOW THESE TROOPS HIT THE ROCKY SICILIAN SHORES ONLY A FEW DAYS AFTER SAILING FROM HOME PORTS. IT IS WRITTEN BY JOHN A.MOROSO III, ASSOCIATED PRESS CORRESPONDENT WHO SAILED WITH THESE SOLDIERS AND RACED ASHORE WITH THEM. SKETCH

ON THE CANADIAN FRONT IN SOUTHEAST SICILY--SECOND ADD CANADIANS (BY MUNRO) X X X ~~CANADIANS LANDED.~~ X X SKIRMISH.

WITH THE CANADIAN ATTACK IMMINENT, THE GENERAL ASKED FOR TERMS AND WAS TOLD "UNCONDITIONAL SURRENDER."

JUL 16 1943

HE ACCEPTED AND MAJOR DICK MALONE OF WINNIPEG WENT INTO MODICA TO ARRANGE THE CAPITULATION. THEY CAME AWAY WITH THE GENERAL AND HIS STAFF AND TOOK THEM TO A CANADIAN GENERAL.

I WAS AT HEADQUARTERS WHEN THE GENERAL AND HIS PARTY ARRIVED. WEARING SHORTS AND A BUSH SHIRT THE CANADIAN GENERAL RECEIVED THEM IN HEADQUARTERS UNDER THE TREES.

THE (ITALIAN) GENERAL TOLD HIM A FEW THINGS ABOUT HIS DEFEATED DIVISION AND ASKED IF HE COULD RETAIN HIS REVOLVER AS A GESTURE OF MILITARY HONOR.

THAT WAS APPROVED BUT IT WAS ORDERED THAT THE GENERAL'S AMMUNITION BE TAKEN FROM HIM.

THIS ITALIAN GENERAL WAS DECORATED WITH THE (BRITISH) MILITARY CROSS IN THE LAST WAR BY THE DUKE OF CONNAUGHT, ONE-TIME GOVERNOR GENERAL OF CANADA, AND THE INTERPRETER WENT TO SOME LENGTHS TO INFORM THE CANADIAN GENERAL OFFICER COMMANDING OF THIS.

AFTER TWO AND ONE-HALF PRACTICALLY SLEEPLESS DAYS TRYING UNSUCCESSFULLY TO KEEP UP WITH THE INFANTRY ON FOOT, I GOT HOLD OF A JEEP YESTERDAY AND ZOOMED TOWARD THE FRONT IN THE WAKE OF THE VICTORIOUS CANUCKS.

JUL 16 1943

ALONG THE ROAD TO ISPICA WE SAW SMASHED HORSE-DRAWN ITALIAN GUNS AND AMMUNITION WAGONS. PILLBOXES AND ROAD BLOCKS WERE PILES OF RUBBLE AFTER BEING SHATTERED BY OUR GUNS.

BUT FOR THE PRESENCE OF A FEW SNIPERS IN VINEYARDS AND ON HILLS THE COUNTRYSIDE WAS PEACEFUL.

CANADIANS WERE EVERYWHERE, COLUMNS MARCHING FORWARD AND CONVOYS OF TRUCKS AND GUNS ROLLING THROUGH THE FOG OF CHALK DUST. WE ARE ALL COVERED WITH THIS WHITE DUST. THE CANADIANS LOOK LIKE REAL DESERT RATS OF THE EIGHTH ARMY TO WHICH THEY NOW BELONG.

THERE WAS DUST IN OUR HAIR, IN THE TEA, BOOTS AND BLANKETS.

IT IS NECESSARY TO WEAR GOGGLES AT ALL TIMES ON THE ROAD.

WE DO NOT KNOW WHICH IS WORST, THE HEAT, THE FLIES, THE DUST OR THE MOSQUITOS--THE LATTER BEING THE BEST DIVE-BOMBERS WE'VE SEEN ROUND THESE PARTS.

WE PASSED CANUCKS RIDING UP TO THE LINE IN COMMANDEERED MULE CARTS OR USING CAPTURED ITALIAN TRUCKS, MOTORCYCLES AND STAFF CARS.

THEY ARE HAVING A FIELD DAY OF IMPROVISATION BEFORE ALL THEIR

JUL 16 1943

30.24-6111

TRANSPORT REACHES THEM.

CANADIAN TANKS HAVE BEEN RUMBLING TOWARD THE FRONT AND GUNS WERE GOING UP IN SUPPORT OF THE INFANTRY.

WE WENT INTO ISPICA, POPULATION 13,000 NORMALLY, AND ONLY A FEW WOMEN, CHILDREN AND DOGS WERE ON THE STREETS.

THE TOWN HAD BEEN KNOCKED ABOUT BY NAVY GUNFIRE AND RUBBLE LITTERED THE NARROW STREETS AND ONE WIDE AVENUE.

THERE WERE MANY PAINTED SIGNS ON THE WALLS READING IRONICALLY "EVVIVA IL DUCE" AND "DUCE A NOI."

(THE LATTER IS A FASCIST RALLYING CRY; THE FORMER MEANS "LONG LIVE, IL DUCE.")

JUL 16 1943

LIKE MOST OF THESE SICILIAN TOWNS ISPICA IS A PILE OF CROWDED STONE HOUSES WITH TILE ROOFS ABOUT AS INTERESTING AS A BLANK PIECE OF PAPER.

WE LEFT THE TOWN AND HEADED NORTHWEST TOWARD MODICA. EN ROUTE TROOPS WERE SITTING BY THE ROADSIDE MUNCHING MELONS, GRAPES, AND TOMATOES WHICH ARE IN SICILY WHAT EGGS AND ORANGES WERE IN TUNISIA.

PITCHED HIGH ON THE CLIFF COMMANDING THE WHOLE PLAIN SWEEPING DOWN TO OUR LANDING BEACH ISPICA LOOKED LIKE A NATURAL DEFENSIVE POINT AND WE WERE PUZZLED WHY THE ITALIANS GAVE IT UP SO EASILY.

THE NAVAL SHELLING HAD A LOT TO DO WITH IT, OF COURSE, AND BESIDES THERE WERE HUNDREDS OF DETERMINED CANUCKS WAITING TO STORM THE PLACE BEFORE IT HOISTED THE WHITE FLAG.

MODICA IS A SMALL TOWN OF ABOUT 50 HOUSES AND A CHURCH. IN THE CENTER IS AN UNIMPOSING SQUARE WITH THE IMPOSING NAME OF PIAZZA CIANO. HERE I MET SOME PARACHUTE TROOPERS WHO CAME DOWN IN THE AREA AND ESTABLISHED THE FIRST LINK WITH THE CANADIANS.

JUL 16 1943

THE AMERICANS HAVE TAKEN RAGUSA, THE CHIEF CITY OF THIS PART OF SICILY AND 30 MILES FROM THE TIP OF PACHINO PENINSULA.

UP AT THE FRONT HERE THERE IS BETTER AGRICULTURAL LAND THAN ON STONY PACHINO PENINSULA. TOWNS ARE CLEANER AND THERE ARE IMPROVED SURFACE ROADS WHERE WE CAN GET AWAY FROM THE HORRIBLE DUST.

THE ALLIES CONTINUE TO HAVE AIR SUPERIORITY OVER OUR OPERATIONAL ZONE BUT WE DO SEE SOME ENEMY PLANES. THEY ATTACKED OUR SHIPPING OFF THE COAST SUNDAY NIGHT AND YESTERDAY AT DAWN AND AGAIN THERE WAS A BRILLIANT DISPLAY OF FIREWORKS AS OUR ACK-ACK LET GO.

ONE PLANE CAME DOWN IN FLAMES.

THERE HAS BEEN SOME STRAFING OF ROADS AND I HAVE BEEN DOING THE OLD TUNISIAN JOB OF SPOTTING FROM OUR JEEP AS WE ZIP ALONG THE ROADS.

HERE I SAW GENERAL SIR BERNARD L. MONTGOMERY FOR A FLEETING MOMENT SUNDAY ON A ROAD NEAR THE BLEAK TOWN OF PACHINO.

HE WAS RIDING AROUND IN ONE OF THE AEC TRUCKS USED SO SUCCESSFULLY TO BRING IN MEN AND STORES AFTER THE ASSAULT LANDINGS.

MONTY WAS WEARING HIS BLACK BERET AND LOOKING VERY DUSTY AND GRIM.

SEVERAL CANADIANS SAW HIM ON THE BEACH AND PRIVATE PETE

JUL 16 1943

SUNDAY OF LONDON, ONTARIO, SAID THAT WHEN HE LANDED ON THE BEACH WITH A TRUCK ON SUNDAY MONTY WAS THERE IN A JEEP WITH OTHER SENIOR OFFICERS.

DUNSAY SAID THE EIGHTH ARMY COMMANDER CALLED THE CANUCKS INTO A GROUP SAYING: "GATHER 'ROUND, BOYS, AND I WILL GIVE YOU SOME NEWS."

THEN HE TOLD THEM OF THE FALL OF SYRACUSE AND ADDED THAT HE WAS VERY GLAD HAVING THE CANADIANS WITH HIM ON THIS TASK.

AFTER THE CANADIANS ESTABLISHED THEIR BRIDGEHEAD HE TOLD SOME CANADIAN OFFICERS:

"I AM QUITE SATISFIED THAT THE CANADIANS ARE AS GOOD AS ANYTHING IN THE EIGHTH ARMY."

JUL 16 1943

SICILY - GEN THOMPSON'S 1ST TANKS.

THEY HAVE TAKEN RATHER HEAVY LOSSES BUT THEY NEVER GAVE GROUND, AND IT WAS LARGELY THROUGH THEIR SLASHING, DEMORALIZING ATTACKS ON STRONGLY PREPARED ENEMY POSITIONS THAT THE ADVANCE OF THE MUCH LARGER SEABORNE FORCE COMING IN BEHIND THEM WAS ACCOMPLISHED IN THE AREA AROUND VITTORIA.

IT WOULD TAKE A BOOK TO TELL THE FULL STORY OF THIS OPERATION AND IT WILL BE DAYS BEFORE ALL DETAILS ARE EVEN LEARNED, FOR ALMOST EVERY MAN WHO JUMPED DID A JOB WORTHY OF AN ARMY MEDAL. BUT THIS MUCH AT LEAST CAN BE TOLD BY A CORRESPONDENT WHO JUMPED WITH THEM TO MAKE HIS SECOND COMBAT JUMP AND THIS BY NIGHT.

ACTUALLY THIS MISSION STARTED UNDER most AUSPICIOUS CIRCUMSTANCES FOR THE ENTIRE TEAM WAS DROPPED BY TROOP CARRIERS 30 TO 50 MILES FROM THE PLANNED OBJECTIVES. INSTEAD OF JUMPING INLAND IN FRONT OF THE CENTER FORCE TO CUT OFF ENEMY REINFORCEMENTS, DESTROY STRONG POINTS AND OTHERWISE SOFTEN UP THE SEABORNE LANDING, THE ENTIRE GROUP OF PARATROOPS JUMPED IN FRONT OF ANOTHER FORCE FARTHER OUT.

WHILE THE MOON WAS DIPPING LOW ALONG THE WESTERN HORIZON WE CAME IN OVER THE SEA, A MIGHTY ARMADA OF TRANSPORT PLANES FLYING IN PERFECT FORMATION. THE TERRAIN LOOKED UNFAMILIAR TO THE TEAM COMMANDER, A COLONEL FROM MOUNT CARMEL, PA., BUT A RED LIGHT FLASHES FROM THE PILOT CONTROLS.

JUL 16 1943

WE HAD BEEN STANDING FOR SEVERAL MINUTES IN OUR HEAVY PARACHUTES, THE SOLDIERS WEIGHTED DOWN WITH LOADS OF AMMUNITION, GUNS AND DEMOLITIONS AND THIS REPORTER SAGGING UNDER HIS OWN LOAD OF NONCOMBATTANT EQUIPMENT.

THE RED LIGHT MEANT THAT WE WOULD BE OVER OUR OBJECTIVE IN A FEW MINUTES.

THEY PASSED QUICKLY. THE GREEN JUMP LIGHT FLICKERED, THERE WAS A RUSH DOWN THE ISLE TOWARD THE DOOR AND IN A MOMENT WE WERE HURLING THROUGH SPACE. THEN THERE WAS THE SNAP OF SHOULDERS AS THE 'CHUTE OPENED.

A BRILLIANT GLARE ILLUMINATED THE GROUND REVEALING AN OLIVE GROVE INSTEAD OF THE EXPECTED WHEAT FIELD. FOR A MOMENT MOST OF US THOUGHT THAT GROUND TROOPS HAD SENT UP FLARES AND WERE OPENING FIRE. THEN THE SICKENING REALIZATION CAME THAT THE FLARE WAS FROM ONE OF OUR TRANSPORTS WHICH HAD BROKEN IN TWO AND HAD BURST INTO FLAMES.

THE NEXT MOMENT WE WERE LANDING.

THIRTY FEET FROM THE GROUND THE OSCILLATION SWUNG MY BODY HORIZON-

JUL 16 1943

30.24-6113

TAL AS I SMASHED THROUGH AN OLIVE TREE AND THEN TO THE GROUND. IT WAS A GOOD LANDING, ALL THINGS CONSIDERED. THE OTHERS DIDN'T FARE AS WELL.

YOUR CORRESPONDENT EMERGED FROM HIS TANGLED SHROUD WITH A WRENCHED KNEE, SKINNED KNUCKLES AND BRUISES, AND WHAT WAS NOT TO APPEAR UNTIL LATER--A CRACKED RIB.

THAT NIGHT WE WENT PROWLING ABOUT IN SMALL GROUPS, TRYING TO REACH SOME GROUND THAT WE COULD RECOGNIZE. BEFORE DAWN AS IT TURNED OUT LATER, EVERYWONE REALIZED, WE HAD LANDED IN THE WRONG LOCALITY AND WE HAD TO CHECK TO FIND OUT IN WHAT PART OF SOUTHERN SICILY WE WERE. THEN WE STARTED A GENERAL MOVEMENT TO THE NORTHWEST TOWARD OUR ORIGINAL OBJECTIVE.

JUL 16 1943

MANY MEN JUMPED INTO THE FIGHT RIGHT AWAY, LANDING ON MACHINE-GUN NESTS OR PILLBOXES. OTHERS SOON FOUND THEIR HANDS FULL AS THEY RAN INTO ITALIAN STRONG POINTS ALONG THE COAST OR FURTHER INLAND ALONG STRANGE HIGHWAYS.

WE BEGAN TO LOSE MEN, BUT NOT MANY, AS THE TOUGH WILY TROOPERS RUSHED THE PILLBOXES. THESE EMPLACEMENTS WERE WELL DESIGNED WITH THREE-FOOT CEMENT WALLS, SLITS COMMANDING ALL APPROACHES, 47-MILLIMETER GUNS AND MACHINE-GUNS, AND A GREAT DEAL OF WIRE.

BUT THE TROOPERS HAD COME TO KILL AND THEY DID. THEIR ANTI-TANK WEAPONS AND GRENADES DROVE THE GUNNERS FROM THE SLITS OF THE PILLBOXES TO BE RUSHED. WELL-AIMED GARAND RIFLE FIRE OFTEN ACCOMPLISHED THE SAME PURPOSE AND WITHIN A SHORT WHILE EACH PILLBOX SURRENDERED ITS LOAD OF ITALIANS OR A FEW GERMANS.

THAT WAS ALONG THE BEACHES. INLAND THE FIGHTING CONTINUED THROUGH-OUT THE DAY.

OUR OWN GROUP BY DAYLIGHT HAD INCREASED, INCLUDING THIS CORRESPONDENT AND TWO MEDICAL OFFICERS, ALSO UNARMED, WHO HAD BEEN "SWEATED OUT" IN THE DARK HOURS TOGETHER, TO 25 ASSORTED TROOPERS.

AND HERE IT MIGHT BE POINTED OUT THAT EVERY MAN WHO JUMPS, WITH THE ABOVE EXCEPTIONS, JUMPS READY TO FIGHT, WHETHER HE'S A COOK, COMPANY CLERK, A RIGGER OR ONE OF THE SERVICE COMMAND, AND THEY FOUGHT HARD AND VICIOUSLY.

JUL 16 1943

OUR EXECUTIVE OFFICER HAD JOINED UP WITH US AND AT HIS COMMAND WE MOVED OFF IN COLUMN, WITH FLANKING SCOUTS, INTENDING TO SWING NORTH AROUND VITTORIA. THAT WAS A DAY WE WON'T SOON FORGET, PARTICULARLY THIS REPORTER, WHO HAD SELDOM WALKED MORE THAN TWO MILES AT A TIME AT HOME.

THE SICILIAN COUNTRYSIDE WAS BEAUTIFUL IN ITS GREEN AND YELLOW COLORS. MOST OF THE NATIVES GREETED US IN FRIENDLY FASHION AS WE PASSED, OFFERING WINE, WATER OR BREAD. WE TRUDGED ALONG UNDER A HOT SUN, OVER PLOWED FIELDS, THROUGH VINEYARDS, GRAIN STUBBLE AND CANE BRAKES, AND ALONG DUSTY LIMESTONE ROADS UNTIL WE GOT TO THE OUTSKIRTS OF VITTORIA IN THE MORNING.

MY TYPEWRITER, A SECONDHAND PORTABLE WEIGHING AT LEAST 15 POUNDS, HAD BEEN SAFELY DROPPED IN A PARACHUTE BUNDLE AND RECOVERED. UNDER THE COMMAND OF A STURDY SERGEANT MAJOR WE HAD GOTTEN THE LOAD THIS FAR.

JUL 16 1943

JUST AS WE REACHED THE OUTSKIRTS OF THE TOWN WHICH WE LEARNED CONTAINED AN ITALIAN GARRISON, SNIPERS OPENED UP ON OUR SCOUTS A FEW YARDS AHEAD OF ME. WE BEAT A HASTY WITHDRAWAL BEHIND A STONE FENCE AND THERE MY TYPEWRITER WAS LEFT HIDDEN AMONG THE ROCKS--LATER TO BE STOLEN WHILE THE TROOPERS FOUGHT BACK AND THEN WITHDREW TO A POINT SOUTH AROUND VITTORIA.

JUL 16 1943

IT WAS MARCH, MARCH, MARCH ALL AFTERNOON AND PART OF THE NIGHT UNTIL WE MADE A BIVOUAC. A PARACHUTIST CARRIES NO BLANKETS OR CLOTHING OTHER THAN HIS JUMP SUIT, BUT DESPITE THE CHILLINESS OF THIS COUNTRY WE SLEPT AND AT DAWN WERE OFF AGAIN.

FAR OUT OF TOWN WE ENCOUNTERED OUR COLONEL AND A SMALL PARTY PREPARING TO ATTACK THE ENEMY HOLDING THE HILL UP A ROAD 29 KILOMETERS OUT OF GELA.

OUR OWN GROUP HAD INCREASED IN FORCE. IT FOUGHT A HARD BATTLE TO ACCOMPLISH ITS ORIGINAL MISSION.

DESPITE THE SMALLNESS OF HIS FORCE THE COLONEL WENT INTO POSITION ON THE LOWER HILL IN THE ORCHARD AND THEN BEGAN WORKING THROUGH THE TALL GRASS, GNARLED LITTLE TREES AND VINEYARDS.

THE ARMORED GRENADIERS--FOR THAT IS WHAT THE OPPOSITION PROVED TO BE--FOUGHT BACK WITH THEIR FAST FIRING MACHINEGUNS, MAUSERS, ARTILLERY AND MORTARS.

JUL 16 1943

OUR FIRST RUSH SHOVED THE ENEMY BACK UP AND OVER THE HILL ALTOGETHER. HE OUTNUMBERED US THEN ABOUT THREE TO ONE. THE TROOPERS HAD HIM ON THE RUN, BUT WE CAME BACK STRONG WITH MORE ARTILLERY FIRE AND THEN TANKS, NOT ONLY MARK IV'S, BUT HIS HUGE MARK VI TIGER TANKS MOUNTING 88 MILLIMETER GUNS IN THE TURRET.

THE NEXT HOUR WAS OUR WORST. EVERYONE EXPECTED AN ATTACK BY THE TANKS IN FORCE AND IT LOOKED AS IF THERE WERE A GOOD CHANCE THAT WE WOULD BE OVER-RUN. THE COLONEL HAD SENT WORD BY A RUNNER TO TASK FORCE HEADQUARTERS, SAYING:

"IF YOU WANT THIS POSITION HELD WE MUST HAVE MORE FIRE POWER. BUT WHATEVER HAPPENS WE AREN'T MOVING OFF THIS HILL."

HE AND HIS STAFF WERE DUG INTO FOXHOLES WHILE THE COMMAND POST WAS UNDER HEAVY FIRE. ONE STAFF MEMBER, CAPT.A.W.IRELAND OF BALTIMORE TOOK EN TO THE

JUL 16 1943

WAS UNDER HEAVY FIRE. ONE STAFF MEMBER, CAPT.A.W.IRELAND OF BALTIMORE TOOK 10 MEN TO THE RIGHT FLANK WITH ORDERS TO HOLD AT ALL COSTS.

ANOTHER HELD THE LEFT FLANK.

WE WAITED, THIS REPORTER BEING SOME 100 YARDS TO THE REAR SHELTERED BY A CULVERT WHILE THE ROAR OF ENEMY TANK ENGINES GREW LOUDER.

OUT IN FRONT THE PARACHUTISTS KEPT UP A CONSTANT FIRE. THE CREWS KNOCKED OUT TWO MARK IV'S, BUT OTHER CREWS WERE BLOWN UP. ONE YOUNGSTER AFTER CAPTURING A SMALL ITALIAN TANK SIMILAR TO THE BRITISH BREN GUN CARRIER CHARGED OFF IN IT WITH THE AVOWED PURPOSE OF "SCARING THOSE BLANKS." A DIRECT HIT KILLED HIM.

THEN THE COLONEL CALLED ON HIS LAST HOPE AND ORDERED THREE AVAILABLE HOWITZERS WHEELED UP FOR DIRECT FIRE. I SAW ONE GUN COME UP THIS HILL INTO POSITION.

ONE TROOPER RODE ITS BARREL WHILE OTHERS MUSCLED THE PIECE UP THE SLIPE TO A RIDGE BESIDE A SMALL WHITE STONE HOUSE. THE TANKS BEGAN REGISTERING HITS ALL AROUND THE GUN ALMOST IMMEDIATELY, BUT WITH THE COOLNESS OF VETERANS THESE MEN PLACED THEIR GUN.

30.27-6115

THEY OPENED FIRE AT 1,800 YARDS, KNOCKING OUT TWO TANKS.

BY THIS TIME HIGHER HEADQUARTERS HAD BROUGHT UP SOME 105'S WHICH WERE FIRING RAPIDLY AND THE TANK ATTACK WAS STOPPED. BY EVENING MORE TROOPERS HAD ARRIVED AND THE COLONEL ORDERED A COUNTERATTACK IN ORDER TO RECOVER OUR DEAD AND WOUNDED. THEN, LIKE IN THE LAST MINUTES OF A HOLLYWOOD ENDING, CAME OUR GENERAL SHERMAN TANKS AND SOME HALF-TRACKS TOWING ANTI-TANK GUNS. YOU COULD HEAR THE PARACHUTE TROOPERS' CHEERS EVEN ABOVE THE CLATTER OF THE TANKS.

AT 8:10 OUR TANKS OPENED FIRE AND WE CHARGED IN TWO WAVES WHILE THE GERMANS REPLIED WITH INTENSE MORTAR FIRE AND SWEEPING MACHINEGUN FIRE. OVERHEAD THEIR MESSERSCHMITTS PROWLED TO OBSERVE OR STRAFE.

JUL 16 1943

RICOCHETING BULLETS SANG THEIR BEE-LIKE SONG OF DEATH PAST MY CULVERT WHILE SHELL FRAGMENTS WHIRLED THROUGH THE AIR. HALF AN HOUR LATER IT WAS QUIET. AND IN THE GLOOM OF THE GATHERING NIGHT OUR MEN CAME BACK TO THEIR LINES WHILE THE TANKS WITHDREW, HAVING DESTROYED FROM THE REAR A HUGE TIGER TANK.

WE COUNTED MANY DEAD AND WOUNDED BUT IT WAS A VICTORY BEYOND QUESTION.

THE ATTACK HAD DRIVEN THE ENEMY OFF HIS HILL BACK THROUGH THE VILLAGE AND HE HAD ABANDONED TONS OF EQUIPMENT. IN FACT, RECONNAISSANCE LATER SHOWED HE RETREATED COMPLETELY FROM THIS SECTOR.

AS A RESULT THE COMBAT TEAM OF THIS TASK FORCE WHICH HAD BEEN HELD UP BY THE ENEMY'S STRONG POINT WAS ABLE TO PUSH ON THROUGH IN THE SAME MANNER AS THE PARACHUTISTS' ATTACK ON PILLBOXES AND THE REAR AREAS HAD ENABLED THE COMBAT TEAM ON THE SOUTHERN FLANK TO ADVANCE.

THERE WAS ANOTHER CONTRIBUTING ELEMENT. THE ENEMY'S HUGE PILLBOXES AND STRONG POINTS PROTECTING HIGH GROUND FROM THE WEST HAD DURING THE HEIGHT OF THE BATTLE COME UNDER FIRE OF HEAVY NAVAL GUNS AND ONE OF OUR WARSHIPS.

JUL 16 1943

FIRE OF THESE GUNS WAS DIRECTED BY RADIO FROM TWO YOUNG NAVAL ENSIGNS WHO HAD JUMPED WITH US AND WHO HAD BEEN OUT IN FRONT IN THE WORST FIGHTING ALL DAY.

THAT WAS YESTERDAY AND TODAY THE MEN ARE RESTING, REORGANIZING AND OFTEN EATING FOR THE FIRST TIME. YOU FIND DURING THE FIERCE THROB OF BATTLE THAT HUNGER IS NON-EXISTENT, BUT IT COMES BACK ONCE YOU'VE HAD A CHANCE TO RELAX.

WITH AMERICAN AIRBORNE TROOPS--FIRST ADD ORCHARD (BY THOMPSON) X X X AXIS SOLDIERS.

AND THE FACT THAT WE ALWAYS HAD FOOD AND WATER AS WELL AS AMMUNITION AND OTHER VITAL SUPPLIES WAS DUE ALMOST ENTIRELY TO THE INGENUITY OF THE COMBAT TEAM'S SUPPLY OFFICER, MAJOR EDWARD KAJ, FROM HAMTRAMCK, MICH. NO REQUEST SEEMED TO BE BEYOND HIS POWER TO FULFILL. HIS SUPPLY PROBLEMS CAME LATER. FOR THE FIRST 24 HOURS, LIKE EVERY OTHER OFFICER, HE WAS FIGHTING WITH A SQUAD GOING TO THE NORTHWEST, NEAR VITTORIA. PILLBOXES BECAME HIS SPECIALTY AND KAJ WAS HAPPY.

ANOTHER GROUP OF SIX PARACHUTISTS, LATER AUGMENTED TO 14 AND HEADED BY LIEUT. RICHARD JANNEY, 26, OF BALTIMORE, MD., AND SERGT. CARL HEARN, 25, OF COLUMBUS, IOWA, KNOCKED OFF HALF A DOZEN PILLBOXES ALONG THE COAST, TAKING 250 PRISONERS. SOMETIMES OUR MEN WERE WOUNDED OR KILLED BUT MORE OFTEN IT WAS THE ENEMY.

JUL 16 1943

SOMETIMES OUR MEN DID NOT TAKE MANY PRISONERS, AFTER RESCUING SOME OF OURS AND FINDING THEM NAKED OR OTHERWISE MISTREATED.

THEN THERE WAS PRIVATE LEONARD ROSENTHAL, 28, OF 1221 INDEPENDENCE BLVD. (EDITORS: CITY AND STATE MISSING). ROSENTHAL BLEW THE ROOF OFF A PILLBOX, WOUNDING THREE ITALIANS. ONE CAME OUT WITH A WHITE FLAG AND THEN STARTED FIRING. ROSENTHAL KILLED HIM AND THE REMAINING TWO SURRENDERED.

JUL 16 1943

"IT WAS OUR FIRST FIGHT," HE SAID, "SO WE GAVE THE DEAD MAN A PROPER BURIAL." THIS COULD GO ON INDEFINITELY. THERE WAS LIEUT. H. H. SWINGLER, 25 OF ST. LOUIS, MO., OF THE HEADQUARTERS COMPANY, WHO LED THE FINAL ASSAULT ON AN ENEMY HILL IN A BATTLE TWO DAYS AGO. WITH A FORCE THAT INCLUDED RIGGERS, COMPANY CLERKS, COOKS AND ORDERLIES, AS WELL AS INFANTRY AND ENGINEERS.

TWO OF HIS BEST MEN WERE KILLED ON EITHER SIDE OF HIM BUT SWINGLER KEPT ON, CREEPING UNDER MACHINEGUN CROSS-FIRE. IN A DEFILE HE CAME UPON A MARK IV TANK, BESIDE WHICH STOOD TWO OF ITS CREW. ONE HAND GRENADE KILLED BOTH AND THE TANK RETREATED, WHILE SWINGLER HOLLERED FOR AN ANTI-TANK GUN.

OR PRIVATE PHILIP FOLEY OF BOSSTON. HE AND TWO OTHERS WERE THE FIRST TO REACH A POINT FROM WHICH THEY COULD OBSERVE THE ENEMY BEFORE THE COLONEL'S TEAM CAME INTO ACTION. SOON THEY WERE UNDER FIRE.

ONE OF HIS PALS WAS KILLED BY A SNIPER WHO FELL A FEW MOMENTS LATER TO FOLEY'S ACCURATE GARAND FIRE. A SECOND MAN LOST AN ARM AND FOLEY HAD HIS HEEL CREASED TRYING TO HELP THE WOUNDED MAN. LATER, BACK IN THE LINES, HE STARTED BACK A MILE TO RECOVER HIS MUSETTE BAG BUT CHANGED HIS MIND, FEARING HE WOULD MISS THE NEXT ACTION. HE DIDN'T MISS IT. I SAW HIM AGAIN BEHIND A TREE HUNTING SNIPERS.

OR SERGT. DAVID ROSENKARANTZ, OF LOS ANGELES, AND CORP. LEE BLACK, OF JACKSON, TENN. THEY STUMBLED UPON 200 ITALIANS AND WERE CAPTURED. BUT THE ITALIANS HELD A CONFERENCE AND DECIDED THEY WANTED TO SURRENDER TO THE AMERICANS. ROSENKARANTZ AND BLACK AGREED TO TURN THEM OVER AT THE FIRST OPPORTUNITY. THEN EVERYONE SAT DOWN TO DINNER AND WINE PROVIDED BY THE MAYOR. AS SOON AS THE YANKS APPEARED AFTER DAYLIGHT, THE ITALIAN COLONEL FORMED HIS COMMAND, AND HEADED BY ROSENKARANTZ AND BLACK THEY MARCHED, SINGING, TO GIVE THEMSELVES UP.

OR OUR OFFICIAL AIRBORNE OBSERVERS, LIEUT. COL. WILLIAM T. RYDER, THE ARMY'S FIRST PARACHUTIST, AND FORMER COMMANDANT OF THE PARATROOP SCHOOL AT FT. BENNING; AND CHARLES BILLINGSLEA, OF SAN FRANCISCO, WHO JUMPED WITH THE BRITISH PARACHUTE TROOPS IN TUNISIA. THEY CAME TO WATCH AND REMAINED TO FIGHT. EACH STARTED OUT WITH A SQUAD, FIGHTING AND MARCHING DAY AND NIGHT WITHOUT ANY SLEEP AND WITH LITTLE FOOD. RYDER PITCHED IN, HELPING THE COLONEL AS TROOP DIRECTOR AND LIAISON OFFICER--BEFORE, DURING AND AFTER THE BATTLE. LATE ON THE DAY OF THE BATTLE BILLINGSLEA WAS SIGHTED COMING UP THE ROAD AT THE HEAD OF A "COXEY'S ARMY" OF SEVERAL HUNDRED PARACHUTE TROOPS WITH THEIR STRANGE ASSORTMENT OF TRANSPORT. BY THE TIME THE FIGHTING WAS OVER THESE TWO LOOKED LIKE GAUNT AND BLACKENED SCARECROWS.

THERE HAVE BEEN MANY STRANGE SIGHTS HERE DURING THE PAST SEVERAL DAYS. THE LUSH GREEN FIELDS OF TOMATO PLANTS OR UNRIPENED GRAPES, AND IN THEIR CENTER, A SQUAT, UGLY TIGER TANK BELCHING SMOKE AND SHELLS. THE ROADS, CONGESTED WITH TINY, TWO-WHEELED SICILIAN CARTS, THEIR SIDES PAINTED IN BRILLIANT REDS AND BLUES, ILLUSTRATING

30.24 - 6117

HEROIC PASSAGES OF HISTORY OR THE SCRIPTURES, THEIR HORSES OR JACKASSES BELLED AND TASSELED AND THE CARTS PILED HIGH WITH HOUSEHOLD GOODS.

ONE BLACK-COATED PEASANT WAS TRAPPED ON THE ROAD NEAR THE U.S. HEADQUARTERS DURING THE BATTLE. HE AND HIS CART AND JACKASS TOOK SHELTER BENEATH A TREE 25 YARDS FROM THE COLONEL. THERE THEY REMAINED THROUGHOUT THE DAY UNTIL OUR EVENING ATTACK WHEN THE GERMANS COUNTERED WITH HEAVY MORTAR.

JUL 16 1943

THEN THE OLD MAN LED HIS HORSE RAPIDLY TO THE REAR.

MEDICAL MEN WERE UNDER FIRE ALL THE TIME YET PERFORMING HEROIC WORK CARRYING THE WOUNDED BACK FROM THE FRONT LINES, TREATING THEM AT IMPROVISED AID STATIONS IN THE ORCHARD WHERE LIFE-GIVING BLOOD PLASMA CANS LITTERED THE PLACE. SOME WERE CARRIED BACK TO THE TINY RAILROAD STATION WHERE OPERATIONS COULD BE PERFORMED UNTIL GERMAN SKIP-BOMBERS BLASTED A FEW YARDS FROM THE BUILDING. THEN THERE WAS A STRUGGLE TO GET AMBULANCES, TRUCKS AND THINGS IN WHICH TO CARRY THEM FARTHER TO THE REAR TO A CIVILIAN HOSPITAL OR DOWN TO BEACHES.

THERE THEY LAY ON STRETCHERS SHIELDED FROM THE HOT SUN AND TENDED BY OTHER DOCTORS AND FIRST AID MEN, AWAITING THE TIME WHEN LANDING CRAFT WOULD BE UNLOADED OF SUPPLIES AND THEY COULD BE PUT ABOARD SHIPS BOUND FOR AFRICA.

IT WAS THERE ON THE HOT SANDS AMIDST THE ORDERLY CONFUSION OF THE BEACHHEAD THAT I MET ANOTHER CHICAGOAN, ENSIGN RANDOLPH HERMAN, 28, OF 348 LINDEN AVE., HIGHLAND PARK. AS BEACHMASTER HE AND HIS SHORE PATROL AND ARMY ENGINEERS HAD THE TASK OF UNLOADING SUPPLIES AND GETTING THEM MOVED OVER IMPROVISED ROADS INLAND.

HERMAN'S HIGHEST PRAISE WAS FOR THE ARMY'S "DUCKS," THOSE AMPHIBIOUS TRUCKS. THEY PROVED SUPERIOR TO ANY LANDING CRAFT.

THERE WAS AN OLD FRIEND AND TUNISIAN CAMPAIGNER, LIEUT. COL. P. YARBOROUGH FROM NEW YORK. HE AND HIS MEN HAD SEEN THEIR COMRADES GO DOWN IN BLAZING SHIPS BUT HAD JUMPED SAFELY THROUGH A HAIL OF FIRE, SOME COMING DOWN WITH RIDDLE CHUTES, BUT ORGANIZING INTO FIGHTING UNITS ONCE THEY WERE ON THE GROUND AND PUSHING ON TO JOIN US WITH THEIR EQUIPMENT.

IT WAS A MISSION WORTHY OF THE BEST PARACHUTE TROOP EFFORTS--THIS ENTIRE OPERATION--AND NOW THE MEN ARE REORGANIZING FOR THE NEXT MISSION WHEN NEEDED.

ASSOCIATED PRESS CORRESPONDENT, REPRESENTING THE COMBINED AMERICAN PRESS

WITH THE AMERICAN SEVENTH ARMY IN SOUTHERN SICILY, JULY 13-(DELAYED)-(AP)-TWENTY-FOUR HOURS AFTER THEY LANDED IN SICILY UNDER STRAFING ATTACKS BY NAZI PLANES, AMERICAN SOLDIER ENGINEERS ACCOMPANYING THE INVASION TROOPS HAD BUILT AND READY FOR SERVICE A COMPLETE LANDING FIELD FOR ALLIED FIGHTER PLANES.

"WE JUST GRABBED THE FLATTEST WHEAT FIELD WE COULD FIND AND WENT TO WORK," SAID LIEUT. EDWIN MUNROE OF TALLADEGA, ALA.

"IN 24 HOURS WE HAD A TAXI TRAIL ALL AROUND THE FIELD, THE RUNWAY READY AND GASOLINE, AMMUNITION AND OIL TO SUPPLY THE PLANES.

"OUR EQUIPMENT WAS LANDED THE DAY AFTER THE INVASION OR WE COULD HAVE BEEN IN OPERATION EVEN SOONER. WE LANDED AT 11 A.M. ONE DAY AND BY 5 P.M. THAT SAME DAY WE WERE TURNING THAT WHEAT PATCH INTO AN AIRPORT."

JUL 16 1943

THE FIRST CUSTOMER WAS AN AMERICAN P-40 WITH ENGINE TROUBLE WHICH MADE A FORCED LANDING.

THEN A WOUNDED P-38 PILOT WHO HAD BEEN SHOT THROUGH AN ARM BY AN ME-109 AND TWO P-38 FELLOW PILOTS BROUGHT DOWN THEIR CRAFT. AFTER SEEING THE WOUNDED FLIER OFF TO A HOSPITAL, THE OTHER TWO TOOK OFF TO RETURN TO THE BATTLE.

THE ENGINEERS DIDN'T EVEN KNOCK OFF TO HUNT STANDARD ARMY GRUB, FEASTING BRIEFLY ON TOMATOES AND MELONS IN THE FIELDS AND THEN PITCHING IN AGAIN ON THE ARDUOUS LABOR OF CLEARING AND SMOOTHING THE RUNWAY.

AS MUNROE PRIDEFULLY TOLD HOW THE WHEAT FIELD WAS WHIPPED INTO MILITARY SERVICE AN AMERICAN SPITFIRE IN A GROUP PATROLLING OVERHEAD CIRCLED AND LANDED.

JUL 16 1943

CAPT. W.C.BRYSON OF CASTLEGATE, UTAH, FLIGHT LEADER, STEPPED OUT.

"HAVE YOU GOT PLENTY OF ACK-ACK GUNS, FOOD AND GASOLINE?" HE ASKED.

"WE ARE SET UP TO DO BUSINESS," ANSWERED MUNROE.

"WE HAVE SCORES OF AIRCRAFT AND HUNDREDS OF MEN. CAN YOU TAKE US?" CAME THE QUESTION.

"OKAY, COME ON IN," SAID MUNROE.

A MINUTE LATER BRYSON TOOK OFF.

IT WAS AS OFFHAND AS THAT--MOVING DAY DURING A MILITARY OPERATION. YOU PICK THE BEST HOME YOU CAN AND SETTLE DOWN ON IT BEFORE SOME OTHER UNIT BEATS YOU THERE.

AMONG THE GROUP OF SOLDIER ENGINEERS WITH MUNROE WERE LIEUT. ESTELL DRAPER OF 809 SOUTH FIFTEENTH ST., KNOXVILLE, TENN.; LEONARD FALLON OF ELKHORN, NEB.; MUREL R.WILLIAMS OF BLANCHARD, OKLA.; AND CORPORAL LORAN M.CULLEN OF LUCAS, KAS.

LICATA, SICILY, JULY 13-(DELAYED)-(AP)-ANTIAIRCRAFT GUNS WERE USED TO BLAST SHORE PILLBOXES FOR FAMOUS INFANTRY WHO, AFTER DESTROYING DEFENSES AT FOUR SICILIAN LANDING BEACHES, CONQUERED SOME HUNDREDS OF SQUARE MILES OF ITALIAN-HELD TERRITORY IN THREE DAYS OF AN UNRELENTING DRIVE.

THEY WERE MAD--THESE SOLDIERS OF A HISTORIC WORLD WAR DIVISION--BECAUSE AFTER SMASHING THROUGH AT CASABLANCA LAST NOVEMBER, THEY HAD BEEN COMPELLED TO COOL THEIR HEELS IN MOROCCO FOR SIX MONTHS, REACHING TUNISIA ONLY IN TIME TO POLICE THE BATTLEFIELDS OTHER AMERICAN FORCES HAD WON.

"THIS HELPS US MAKE UP FOR THE TIME WE LOST," GRINNED CAPT. NORMAN P.BARNES OF WILLIAMETTE, ORE.

"WE DIDN'T WANT THAT LONG REST BUT IT LOOKS LIKE IT DID US GOOD," SAID CORP. ROBERT C.PICKRELL OF 2824 35TH AVE. WEST, SEATTLE, WASH.

THE EXPERIENCE GAINED WHEN THEY SPEARHEADED THE AMERICAN INVASION INTO FRENCH MOROCCO STOOD THESE BOYS IN GOOD STEAD IN THE CURRENT INVASION WHEN THEY GUARDED THE ALLIED LEFT FLANK.

CAPT. HUGH A.SCOTT, OF SOUTHWEST HUMPHREY BOULEVARD AND MAPLE LANE, PORTLAND, ORE., DESCRIBED THE LANDINGS THUS:

"AS SOME OF OUR CRAFT APPROACHED THE SHORE, ITALIAN GUNS OPENED FIRE ON THEM FROM HEAVY PILL BOXES. THE HEAVIEST GUNS WE HAD IN THE BOAT WERE 20 MILLIMETER ANTIAIRCRAFT CANNON. THEY WERE NOT VERY BIG, BUT THEY WERE EXTREMELY ACCURATE. FIRING AT POINT BLANK RANGE, THE GUNNERS QUICKLY KNOCKED OUT THE PILLBOXES AND THE MEN LANDED SAFELY. OUR CASUALTIES WERE EXTREMELY LIGHT."

JUL 16 1943

ALTHOUGH THE OPPOSING COASTAL FORTIFICATIONS WERE VERY DENSE, THE TROOPS PUSHED QUICKLY THROUGH THEM AND BY NOON HELD THE HIGH GROUND CONTROLLING THE AREA SURROUNDING THIS CITY OF 30,000 POPULATION.

JUL 16 1943

"WE SHOT THE WORKS," SAID SCOTT, "AND EVERY REGIMENT WENT THROUGH ON TOP. THE CITY OF LICATA WAS TAKEN BY 11:30 ON THE DAY OF THE INVASION AND THE TROOPS FOUND ABOUT A THIRD OF THE POPULATION THERE. THE REST HAD BEEN EVACUATED IN THE LAST TWO WEEKS. THE CIVILIAN POPULATION WAS SHORT OF FOOD, BUT GAVE NO ORGANIZED OPPOSITION --NOTHING BUT A LITTLE LOOTING AND RIOTING WHICH WE QUICKLY STOPPED."

ON THE FIRST DAY, THE TROOPS WERE SUPPOSED TO TAKE A CERTAIN AREA BUT THEY WENT BEYOND THEIR QUOTA. IN THEIR CONTINUING ADVANCE, THE DOUGHBOYS SEIZED APPROXIMATELY 5,000 PRISONERS INCLUDING 150 GERMANS.

FANNING OUT AS AN ADVANCED DIVISION,THEY MADE A FOUR-PRONGED ATTACK WHICH SOON NETTED THEM THE TOWNS OF RIESI, NARO, PALMA DI MONTECHIARO, AND CAMPOBELLO. THEY ARE WORKING TOWARD THE MAIN ROAD NETWORK BETWEEN CALANISSETTA AND AGRIGENTO.

THESE DOUGHBOYS FELT THEY WERE ON THEIR METTLE TO SHOW IT WOULD BE A MISTAKE NOT TO BE GIVEN A BETTER CHANCE TO DEMONSTRATE THEIR FIGHTING PROWESS IN AFRICA--AND THEY ARE PROVING THEIR POINT WITH EVERY MILE THEY CAPTURE.

"WE DON'T WANT TO TAKE A CHANCE THAT THEY WILL LEAVE US OUT ON THE NEXT SHOW," SAID CAPT. BARNES, "OUR BOYS ARE STILL BITTER ABOUT THAT LONG SIEGE OF RESTING WE HAD IN MOROCCO."

JUL 16 1943

AS THE BATTLE RAGED ON EITHER SIDE OF THE TOWN THE PANIC-STRICKEN RESIDENTS GRABBED UP THEIR FEW HOUSEHOLD BELONGINGS AND BEGAN PLODDING THROUGH THE NARROW, COBBLE-STONED STREETS, SEEKING SANCTUARY. THEY WANDERED AIMLESSLY FROM ONE OF THE CITY TO THE OTHER, RETRACING THEIR FOOTSTEPS WHENEVER THEY CAME WITHIN SOUND OF SMALL ARMS FIRE. THEY FAILED TO REALIZE THAT THEIR HOMES WERE THE SAFEST PLACES, AS THE CITY WAS NOT BEING SHELLED DIRECTLY BY EITHER SIDE.

THE BLOODIEST FIGHTING FELL TO ONE OF THE INFANTRY DIVISION REGIMENTS WHO FOUND THEMSELVES OPPOSED BY UNITS OF THE HERMANN GOERING DIVISION. AFTER THE GERMANS COMPELLED THEM TO WITHDRAW THEY MADE A HEAVY COUNTERATTACK EARLY THIS MORNING WITH COLD STEEL, GAINED BACK THE LOST TERRITORY, AND AFTER A SEVERE STRUGGLE, DURING WHICH THEY INFLICTED HEAVY CASUALTIES, THEY PUSHED ON AHEAD.

HIT AND RUN GERMAN AIR RAIDERS WERE THE GREATEST HANDICAP TO THE LANDING OPERATIONS AFTER THE INITIAL LANDINGS, BUT THE NAVAL AND SHORE ANTI-AIRCRAFT KEPT THEM HIGH UP DURING MOST OF THE ATTACKS AND THEIR BOMBING WAS HIGHLY INACCURATE. SHIP LOSSES WERE EXCEPTIONALLY LOW FOR THE SIZE OF THE OPERATIONS, AND MANY TIMES SMALLER THAN THE

WITH AMERICAN TROOPS IN SICILY, JULY 15--"IT ISN'T EVERY DAY IN THE WEEK THAT A CAPTAIN IN THE ENGINEERS CAPTURES AN ITALIAN GENERAL, BUT I DID IT," CAPT. JAMES BEVEMEK OF ALBUQUERQUE, N.M., SAID TODAY.

HIS RIGHT ARM IN A SLING, INJURED WHEN HE FELL FROM A JEEP, CAPT. BEVEMEK RECALLED HOW HE WAS STANDING ON A STREET CORNER IN THE TOWN OF COMISO.

"APPARENTLY THE GENERAL RECOGNIZED MY CAPTAIN'S BARS AND DECIDED HE DIDN'T WANT TO SURRENDER TO A PRIVATE," SAID BEVEMIK.

"THAT WAS OKAY WITH ME. HE HAD HIS TWO SONS WITH HIM. THEY WERE ABOUT 12 OR 15 YEARS OLD AND DIDN'T LOOK VERY HAPPY ALTHOUGH THE GENERAL DIDN'T SEEM TOO UNHAPPY.

"HE SALUTED ME AND I RETURNED THE SALUTE, AND WHEN HE RAISED HIS HANDS I KNEW WHAT HE WANTED. WE WALKED DOWN TO HEADQUARTERS TOGETHER WITH THE KIDS ALONGSIDE.

"NOW I'VE GOT SOMETHING TO TELL THE FOLKS BACK HOME.

"WHO SAYS THE ENGINEERS NEVER CAPTURE ANY PRISONERS, AND A GENERAL TO BOOT?" DEMANDED THE AMERICAN.

WITH THE WESTERN TASK FORCE (DELAYED)--AXIS WAR PRISONERS UNANIMOUSLY HAVE VOICED SURPRISE OVER THE FACT THAT AMERICAN TROOPS EVER PENETRATED THROUGH THE DEFENDERS' ARTILLERY HAIL.

AXIS AIR ACTIVITY DECREASED MARKEDLY DURING THE LAST DAY AND NIGHT.

THE GERMANS APPARENTLY ARE BOMBING ITALIAN CIVILIANS DELIBERATELY, AND GERMAN ARTILLERY HAS BEEN SHELLING GROUPS OF ITALIAN PRISONERS WHENEVER THEY SURRENDERED TO US.

IN OCCUPIED TOWNS THE AMERICANS FOUND JAILS STUFFED WITH ANTI-FASCISTS, WHO SAID THEY HAD BEEN ROUNDED UP TWO WEEKS BEFORE THE LANDING.

OBSERVERS BELIEVE THE SICILIAN BATTLE IS LIKELY TO DEVELOP INTO A MUTUAL STRUGGLE TO KNOCK OUT OPPOSING SUPPLY LINES.

THE ENEMY'S SITUATION REGARDING AMMUNITION SUPPLY ALREADY APPEARS TO BE SERIOUS.

AT THIS, ANOTHER ITALIAN SITTING OPPOSITE, SAYS QUICKLY IN GOOD ENGLISH, "YES, YES TO ENGLAND WE HOPE. IF IT CANNOT BE ITALY THEN LET IT BE ENGLAND."

JUL 16 1943

THIS MAN IS ABOUT HALF AS BIG AS ACHILLE, IS BALD-HEADED, 10 YEARS YOUNGER AND HAS SPARKLING BLUE EYES. HE IS DRESSED IN THE WINTER RIG OF ITALIAN NAVAL CAPTAIN.

BRUNO PRENEY IS HIS NAME AND NEW BAGULOI STREET IN NAPLES IS WHERE HE HOPED TO RETIRE AFTER THE PROSPECTIVE DEFEAT OF THE BRITISH IN 1940.

GENERAL D'AVET IS THE FIRST ITALIAN GENERAL IN SICILY TO FALL INTO THE HANDS OF THAT GREAT COLLECTOR OF ITALIAN GENERALS, GEN.SIR BERNARD L.MONTGOMERY. CAPT.PREMEY IS, OR WAS UNTIL 24 HOURS AGO, HIS NAVAL LIAISON OFFICER.

I'VE HAD THE HAGGARD GENERAL AND THE SMILING CAPTAIN ON MY HANDS BECAUSE THOSE OFFICERS WHO ARE NOT RUNNING THE SHIP ARE SLEEPING IN BUNKS FOR THE FIRST TIME SINCE WE BEGAN THE INVASION OF SICILY FIVE DAYS AGO.

THE GENERAL WAS TOO WEARY TO GO INTO DETAILS OF HIS DOWNFALL--HE SURRENDERED JUST SOUTH OF SYRACUSE--BEYOND TELLING ME IN A TONE THAT SUGGESTED HE WAS PIQUED THAT HE HAD EXPECTED US TO LAND IN SICILY ON JUNE 6.

WHEN I TOLD HIM THAT WAS JUST MUSSOLINI'S GUESS, HE THREW OUT HIS HANDS IN THAT GRAND MACARONIAL GESTURE AND SAID, "[illegible] POLITICS," AND LET HIS HEAD SINK BETWEEN HIS HANDS.

THE LITTLE CAPTAIN, HOWEVER, WAS ANXIOUS TO TELL HIS STORY. HE WAS VERY UPSET, HE SAID, THAT MUSSOLINI DIDN'T SEND THE ITALIAN FLEET TO PROTECT SICILY.

"OF WHAT USE IS A NAVAL LIAISON OFFICER WITHOUT A NAVY AT HIS BACK," HE ASKED ME.

JUL 16 1943

HE BLAMED THE GERMAN AIR FORCE FOR NOT PICKING UP OUR GREAT INVASION ARMADA AT SEA (I SMILED AT THIS AND HE HASTILY ADDED, "AND THE ITALIAN AIR FORCE.")

HE AND THE GENERAL WERE JUST RISING FROM A LEISURELY DINNER WHEN THE NEWS WAS BROUGHT TO THEM OF OUR PARACHUTE TROOPS LANDING SATURDAY NIGHT.

"WE THOUGHT IT WAS JUST A SABOTAGE RAID," THE CAPTAIN TOLD ME, "AND WE SENT WORD THROUGH TO ROME. MY GENERAL, WHO WAS DIVISIONAL COMMANDER FOR ALL THE INVASION AREA, THOUGHT THE ALLIES WOULD NOT INVADE IN MOONLIGHT, AND PROCEEDED TO TAKE STEPS TO DEAL WITH PARACHUTE TROOPS. BUT SUDDENLY EVERYTHING WENT POOF.

"IN DAYLIGHT, WHEN OUR PLANES REPORTED THAT MANY MORE THAN 1,000 SHIPS WERE ANCHORED ALONG THE COAST DISCHARGING TROOPS AND GUNS WE FELT TERRIBLE."

THE LITTLE CAPTAIN SHUDDERED.

"WE KNEW THIS WAS SERIOUS. NOT ONE WORD HAD WE FROM ROME; ALAS, NEVER AGAIN DID WE HEAR FROM ROME. WE KNEW IT WAS TOO BIG FOR US.

"THEN CAME GEN.MONTGOMERY'S MEN, ABOUT WHOM WE HAD HEARD, AND WE THOUGHT IT WOULD BE HONORABLE TO SURRENDER TO SUCH HONORABLE SOLDIERS

LIKE THE EIGHTH ARMY. SO WE SURRENDERED."

THE GENERAL AND CAPTAIN HAVE MADE ONE REQUEST OF ME. IT WAS THIS. "TELL THE BBC TO MENTION OUR NAMES; THEN OUR PEOPLE WILL KNOW WE ARE SAFE."

"EVERYTHING WAS GOING FINE UNTIL WE WERE ABOUT 10 MINUTES FROM THE TARGET AND THEN WE WERE ATTACKED BY SWARMS OF ME-109'S AND MACCHI-202'S, BUT WE KEPT ON AND DROPPED BOMBS. AS WE WERE PULLING OFF FROM THE TARGET MORE OF THE ENEMY KEPT COMING AT US AND ACK-ACK KNOCKED OUT OUR NUMBER FOUR ENGINE SETTING IT AFIRE. IT SLOWED US UP AND WE WERE FORCED TO DROP BACK FROM THE FORMATION.

"ACK-ACK LATER HIT OUR NUMBER ONE ENGINE AND WE WERE LOSING ALTITUDE FAST AND ACCOMPANYING WINGSHIPS HAD TO LEAVE US TO PROTECT THEMSELVES.

JUL 16 1943

"THERE WE WERE ALL ALONE AND THOSE 109'S AND 202'S STARTED POURING IN ON US, WE COUNTED AT LEAST 20 ENEMY PLANES ATTACKING US."

IN A MATTER OF MINUTES THE TAIL GUNNER, ONE WAIST GUNNER, THE CO-PILOT AND THE BALL TURRET GUNNER WERE KILLED. BEFORE THE TAIL GUNNER, STAFF SERGEANT ROBERT W.MILLS OF PALATKA, LFA., DIED FROM HIS WOUNDS HE MANAGED TO CRAWL INT THE WAIST ANDHELPED TNE OF THE WAIST GUNNERS FEEDING AMMUNITION.

THE KILLED CO-PILOT WAS SECOND LIEUTENANT ALLEN J.EWOLT OF IOWA. THE BALL TURRET GUNNER WAS STAFF SERGEANT FRANK M.ESPOSITO, CROTON AVENUE, THE BRONX, N.Y. THE WAIST GUNNER WAS SERGEANT CARSON E.LOGAN OF MANSFIELD, OHIO.

ALTHOUGH THEY HAD ONLY A TOP TURRET GUN, OPERATED BY HUCKABEE, WHO WAS ASSISTANT ENGINEER, AND ONE RADIO GUN OPERATING, THEY MANAGED TO SHOOT DOWN 11 ENEMY PLANES.

"I GOT AT LEAST FIVE OF THEM," SAID HUCKABEE.

JUL 16 1943

ONE LIBERATOR WAS MISSING FROM THE RAID. THE COMMUNIQUE SAID THE BOMBERS ENCOUNTERED NO FIGHTER PLANE OPPOSITION BUT THAT ANTI-AIRCRAFT FIRE OVER MESSINA WAS SEVERE.

GREAT DESTRUCTION WAS CAUSED AMONG PORT AND TRANSPORTATION FACILITIES, THE REPORT SAID, DIRECT HITS BEING SCORED ON FREIGHT YARDS AND ON RAILWAY TRACKS.

THE COMMUNIQUE SAID A GREAT EXPLOSION AMONG NAVAL OIL STORAGE TANKS WAS FOLLOWED BY A HUGE FIRE, WITH FLAMES RISING HIGH IN THE AIR. NUMEROUS OTHER EXPLOSIONS WERE REPORTED OVER A WIDE AREA BETWEEN MESSINA'S CENTRAL RAILWAY STATION AND THE ROUNDHOUSE. RAILWAY WORKSHOPS AND A POWER STATION ALSO WERE POUNDED.

MADRID, JULY 15-(AP)-THE RAILWAYS OF SOUTHERN FRANCE AND NORTHERN ITALY HAVE BEEN PRACTICALLY MONOPOLIZED SINCE THE INVASION OF SICILY BY THE MOVEMENT OF AXIS MILITARY SUPPLIES TOWARD SOUTHERN ITALY AND TODT ORGANIZATION WORKERS TO THE PO VALLEY AND FLORENCE, TRAVELLERS RECENTLY RETURNED FROM THAT REGION REPORT.

THE INVASION RESULTED IN GERMAN ORDERS TO SPEED UP TWO LONG-PLANNED NORTHERN DEFENSE LINES--IN THE NORTHERN APENINES AND ALONG THE PO VALLEY FROM FERRARA TO THE ALPS AT NICE, THE TRAVELLERS SAID.

THEY DECLARED THAT UNTIL RECENTLY BOTH THE PO VALLEY AND APENINES DEFENSE LINES HAD BEEN LEFT TO THE ITALIAN ARMY AND LABOR UNITS WORKING WITH GERMAN EXPERTS OF THE TODT ORGANIZATION, BUT THAT NOW TODT CONSTRUCTION CREWS ARE BEING RUSHED FROM THE "ATLANTIC WALL" FORTIFICATIONS INTO NORTHERN ITALY.

THE TRAVELLERS SAID THIS MOVE APPARENTLY WAS INSPIRED BY THE GERMAN CONVICTION THAT IF THE SICILIAN OFFENSIVE LEADS THE ALLIES TO BELIEVE ITALY IS SOFT AND RIPE FOR INVASION THEIR NEXT PUSH WILL BE

STRAIGHT INTO THE HEART OF MUSSOLINI'S MAINLAND.

REPORTS FROM NAPLES CONCERNING INCIDENTS IN CATANIA IMMEDIATELY PRIOR TO THE ALLIED INVASION OF SICILY INDICATED THE IMPORTANCE OF THE FOODSTUFFS WHICH THE ALLIES ARE TAKING WITH THEM FOR THE CIVIL POPULATION.

DURING THE HEAVY BOMBINGS WHICH PRECEDED THE LANDINGS, THESE REPORTS SAID, ALLIED BOMBERS SCORED A DIRECT HIT ON THE BIG FLOUR MILL AT PALERMO WHICH TURNS OUT MOST OF THE FLOUR AND BREAD FOR THE ISLAND.

JUL 16 1943

CATANIA AND OTHER CITIES DEPENDED ON BI-WEEKLY RAIL SHIPMENTS OF BREAD FROM PALERMO, AND WHEN BREADSHOPS WERE FORCED TO CLOSE AS A RESULT OF THE BOMBING, ANGRY STREET DEMONSTRATIONS SOON DEVELOPED IN CATANIA, SAID THE REPORTS.

ITALIAN MILITARY AND FASCIST PARTY UNITS REFUSED TO INTERFERE IN THE DISTURBANCES, THESE SOURCES SAID, AND THE CATANIA POLICE FINALLY TURNED TO THE ALLIED RAIDS THEMSELVES AS A SOLUTION TO THE PROBLEM.

EVERY TIME THE CATANIANS DEMONSTRATED AGAINST THE LACK OF BREAD, THE POLICE SIMPLY SOUNDED THE AIR RAID ALARM AND THE DEMONSTRATORS SCURRIED FOR COVER.

THIS HAPPY SOLUTION BOOMERANGED, HOWEVER, FOR BEFORE THE CATANIANS LEARNED TO DISTINGUISH BETWEEN A REAL AND FALSE ALARM THE ALLIES HAD LANDED.

JUL 16 1943

INCREASED AXIS RESISTANCE IS REPORTED FROM SICILY TODAY BUT THE INCUBATION OF THE ALLIED INVASION HAS PROCEEDED FAR ENOUGH SO THAT WE CAN DO NO HARM BY COUNTING THAT CHICKEN AND LOOKING ABOUT FOR OTHER FIELDS TO CONQUER.

THERE SEEMS TO BE A WIDESPREAD PUBLIC EXPECTATION HERE AT HOME THAT THE NEXT MAJOR VENTURE OF THE BEAUTIFULLY SYNCHRONIZED UNITED NATIONS FIGHTING MACHINE WILL BE OCCUPATION OF THE ITALIAN MAINLAND. INDEED, A MADRID DESPATCH THIS MORNING SAYS THE GERMANS BLIEVE THIS WILL BE THE PROGRAM IF EXPERIENCE IN SICILY LEADS THE ALLIES TO THINK ITALY IS RIPE FOR THE PLUCKING. THE NAZIS ARE SAID TO BE RUSHING PREPARATION OF DEFENSES IN NORTHERN ITALY.

A DRIVE INTO ITALY COULD HAPPEN, OF COURSE, BUT SO COULD ONE OR MORE OF SEVERAL OTHER THINGS. AS A MATTER OF FACT, THIS UNCERTAINTY IN ITSELF REPRESENTS A TACTICAL TRIUMPH FOR THE ALLIES. THEY'VE SO CLEVERLY MIXED THE PIECES OF THE JIG-SAW PUZZLE OF INVASION THAT THE AXIS HAS BEEN WHOLLY UNABLE TO FIT IT TOGETHER THUS FAR. EVEN AFTER IT WAS PERFECTLY CLEAR THAT SICILY WAS TO BE ONE OF THE FIRST POINTS OF ATTACK, BERLIN AND ROME WERE FOOLED AS TO THE EXACT TIME AND PLACE OF LANDING.

JUL 16 1943

AND IN THE HEAT OF OPERATIONS IN SICILY THE HOCUS-POCUS HAS BEEN CONTINUED. THE GREAT MONTGOMERY, CROMWELLIAN LEADER OF THE FAMOUS BRITISH EIGHTH ARMY, ISSUED AN ORDER OF THE DAY TO HIS TROOPS DECLARING THAT "THE TIME HAS NOW COME TO CARRY THE WAR INTO ITALY AND INTO THE CONTINENT OF EUROPE."

WAS HE NAIVELY GIVING AWAY THE SECRET AT LAST, OR (BUSINESS OF PUCKERING BROWS) WAS HE STICKING HIS TONGUE IN HIS CHEEK AND LEADING THE HITLERITES UP THE ALLEY? WELL, I'VE ENCOUNTERED MONTGOMERY PERSONALLY AND KNOW HE'S FAR FROM NAIVE, BUT IT'S ANYBODY'S GUESS WHAT HE WAS UP TO.

WHAT ADVANTAGES WOULD THE ALLIES SECURE BY TAKING OVER ITALY? ONE OF THE CHIEF GAINS WOULD BE THE TREMENDOUS MORAL EFFECT RIGHT ROUND THE WORLD. IT WOULD WEAKEN THE MORALE OF THE AXIS, STRENGTHEN THAT OF THE ALLIES, AND TEND TO SWING NEUTRAL NATIONS TOWARD THE UNITED NATIONS.

FROM THE MILITARY STANDPOINT IT WOULD ENSURE ALLIED DOMINATION OF THE MEDITERRANEAN, AND GIVE THEM CONTROL OF THE ADRIATIC, THUS OPENING UP FRESH LINES INTO THE BALKANS. HOWEVER, IT MUST BE SAID THAT APART FROM THESE ADVANTAGES ITALY ALREADY IS SO NEARLY IMPOTENT AS TO BE OF LITTLE VALUE TO ITSELF OR ANYBODY ELSE.

30.24- 6127

NOT ALL THAT THE PROSPECTORS SEE GLIZZENING IN ITALY IS GOLD, BY A LONG SHOT. THE ALLIES ARE BOUND TO CONSIDER WHETHER IT WOULDN'T PUT THEM INTO THE RED TO TAKE OVER MUSSOLINI'S SORRY STATE.

ON THE DEBIT SIDE WE SHOULD FIND THE TASK OF PROVIDING A NATION OF 45,000,000 WITH LARGE QUANTITIES OF FOOD, CLOTHING AND EVEN FUEL, SINCE THE COUNTRY IMPORTS MOST OF ITS COAL. THAT WOULD BE A BIT OF A JOB, WHAT WITH THE WHOLE WORLD CALLING FOR THE NECESSITIES OF LIFE. BESIDES THAT THERE WOULD BE A VAST JOB OF ADMINISTRATION AND POLICING.

JUL 16 1943

ON THE WHOLE THERE ARE A LOT OF FOLK WHO ARE WONDERING WHETHER IT COULDN'T BE ABOUT AS PROFITABLE FOR THE ALLIES TO LET ITALY STEW IN ITS OWN FAT FOR A WHILE. IT CAN'T DO MUCH MORE DAMAGE MILITARILY, AND HAS CEASED TO BE AN ASSET TO THE HARRASSED HITLER.

WHATEVER THE ANSWER MAY BE TO THAT, THE ALLIES ARE IN THE ENVIABLE POSITION OF NOT BEING COMMCTTED (OR AT LEAST COMPELLED) TO PURSUE ANY CUT AND DRIED COURSE AS REGARDS ITALY. THEY CAN TAKE IT OR LEAVE IT.

MANY MILITARY EXPERTS INCLINE TO THE VIEW THAT THE ALLIES ARE LIKELY TO FINISH CLEANING UP SOME MORE STRATEGIC ISLANDS WHEN SICILY HAS BEEN DEALT WITH. ONE WOULD EXPECT BIG SARDINIA TO FOLLOW, AND PERHAPS CORSICA. THEN THERE ARE CRETE AND SOME OF THE DODECANESE ISLANDS AT THE OTHER END OF THE MEDITERRANEAN.

ONCE THE THOROUGHFARES OF THIS GREAT SEA ARE SECURE, THE ALLIES CAN MAKE THEIR CHOICE OR CHOICES--THE BALKANS, ITALY, UP THE RHONE VALLEY OF FRANCE, ACROSS THE ENGLISH CHANNEL INTO WESTERN FRANCE, INTO NORWAY FROM BRITAIN. IT WOULDN'T BE SURPRISING IF SEVERAL OF THESE OPERATIONS WERE PUT INTO EFFECT SIMULTANEOUSLY. WHAT A SQUEEZE THAT WOULD BE!

WITH THE WESTERN TASK FORCE IN SICILY-(DELAYED)-THE ENEMY'S POSITION IN SICILY WITH REGARD TO AMMUNITION AND SUPPLY ALREADY APPEARS TO BE SERIOUS.

THE GERMANS ARE APPARENTLY BOMBING ITALIAN CIVILIANS DELIBERATELY. GERMAN ARTILLERY HAS BEEN SHELLING GROUPS OF ITALIAN PRISONERS WHEN THEY SURRENDERED.

IN OCCUPIED TOWNS AMERICANS FOUND JAILS STUFFED WITH ANTI-FASCISTS WHO SAID THEY HAD BEEN ROUNDED UP TWO WEEKS BEFORE THE ALLIED LANDINGS.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, JULY 15-(AP)-FOUR AMERICAN RANGERS, LANDING IN ONE OF THE MOST HEAVILY DEFENDED POINTS ON THE SOUTH SICILIAN SHORE SATURDAY, CHARGED THROUGH GERMAN MINES AND INTO THW TOWN OF GELA WHERE THEY CAPTURED 52 ITALIAN OFFICERS IN ONE BUILDING.

DESPITE ENEMY MACHINEGUN FIRE AND THE MINES THAT JUMP FOUR FEET IN THE AIR ON CONTACT AND SPRAY FRAGMENTS OVER A WIDE AREA, THE

JUL 16 1943

RANGERS QUICKLY CROSSED THE FIELD OF FIRE.

OTHER AMERICAN FORCES LANDING ON NEARBY BEACHES ENCOUNTERED GERMAN TELLER MINES, THE HEAVY TYPE CAPABLE OF DAMAGING ARMORED VEHICLES.

OBSERVERS SAID ITALIAN COASTAL TROOPS FOUGHT POORLY AFTER WHICH THEY RAN FROM THEIR GUNS, LEAVING THEM UNDAMAGED.

"NO ITALIAN GUN CREWS FOUGHT TO THE FINISH," THEY SAID.

THE ENEMY AIRFORCE WAS "HOGTIED" BY HUNDREDS OF ALLIED FIGHTERS WHEN ATTEMPTING TO STRIKE AT A FLEET OF AMERICAN WARSHIPS AND TRANSPORTS OFFSHORE, IT WAS SAID.

ONE RAIDING FORMATION, ESTIMATED AT 100 ENEMY PLANES, SET OUT FOR GELA BUT WAS INTERCEPTED FIERCELY AND ONLY SEVEN BOMBERS GOT THROUGH TO THE VICINITY OF THEIR OBJECTIVE.

AMERICAN NAVAL GUNNERY SAVED AMERICAN LAND FORCES FROM A REPULSE SUNDAY BY ENGAGING A LARGE COLUMN OF GERMAN TANKS WHICH PENETRATED TO WITHIN ABOUT A MILE OF GELA.

JUL 16 1943

"WHEN THOSE PANZERS GOT STRUNG OUT ON THE ROAD ALMOST PARALLELING THE SEA OUR WARSHIPS SMACKED THEM HOT AND HEAVY AND THEY HAD TO WITHDRAW TO HIGH GROUND OUT OF RANGE," THE OBSERVERS DECLARED.

"AS THE PANZERS LEFT WE COULD SEE BURNING WRECKS LITTERING THE ROAD. AT THE TIME OUR LAND FORCES WERE SHORT ON ARTILLERY, BUT THE NAVY WAS THERE TO SUPPLY THE PUNCH."

THE CIVIL POPULATION LOOKED FAMISHED AND TOLD THE AMERICANS THEY HAD BEEN RATIONED TO TWO POUNDS OF SPAGHETTI AND ONE POUND OF BLACK BREAD PER PERSON EACH THREE DAYS.

THE TOWN OF GELA AND ITS ITALIAN MILITARY HOSPITALS WERE "INDESCRIBABLY DIRTY" THE AMERICANS SAID. "THE FIRST THING THE ITALIAN AUTHORITIES WERE ASKED TO DO WAS TO ASSIGN SANITARY SQUADS TO BURY THEIR DEAD WHICH LAY IN THE STREETS AND HOSPITALS."

MORE THAN 200 FLYING FORTRESSES, MITCHELLS AND MARAUDERS WERE THROWN AGAINST MESSINA, THE MAIN ENTRY POINT FOR AXIS SUPPLIES FROM THE CONTINENT, IN YESTERDAY'S DEVASTATING DAYLIGHT ATTACK. THEY ENCOUNTERED INTENSE BARRAGES OF ANTI-AIRCRAFT FIRE BUT PLOWED THROUGH THE CURTAIN OF STEEL TO RAIN EXPLOSIVES ON THEIR TARGETS.

THE CREWS SAID IT WAS DIFFICULT TO OBSERVE THE RESULTS BECAUSE OF BILLOWING CLOUDS OF SMOKE WHICH ROSE AS THE BOMBS EXPLODED.

"IT WAS A LOT BETTER THAN OUR FIRST ATTACK ON THIS TARGET, THANKS TO THE SUPERIORITY WE'VE GAINED IN THE AIR," SAID SERGT. KENNETH C. THOMPSON OF VENTURA, CALIF. "THE LIGHTNINGS THAT ESCORTED US DESERVE A LOT OF CREDIT."

LIEUT. FREDERICK J. CARMAN OF 1312 BUCHANAN ST., TOPEKA, KAS., SAID HE HEARD THE BOMBARDIER ABOARD HIS FORTRESS, LIEUT. JORG P. SIMONSON OF MADISON, MINN.,VCALLING OUT HITS. "TMEY MADE A SMOKY TRACK DOWN THE LENGTH OF THE MARSHALLING YARDS," HE SAID. "ONE OF THE BOMBS TOUCHED OFF AN EXPLOSION THAT PUT A SHADOW OVER THE WHOLE CITY."

LIEUT. THOMAS B. LINDAHL OF 2409 CARROLTON AVE., INDIANAPOLIS, IND., SAID: "THE SMOKE FROM THAT EXPLOSION ROSE 12,000 FEET. WE COULD STILL SEE IT WHEN WE WERE WELL ON THE WAY OUT."

"MESSINA REALLY TOOK IT TODAY," SAID SERGT. BEN FLOYD OF LUMBERTOWN, N.D.

THE MITCHELLS AND MARAUDERS FOLLOWED THE BIG B-17'S OVER MESSINA AND LANDED SEVERAL STRINGS OF BOMBS ACROSS BUILDINGS AND BARRACKS, CAUSING NEW FIRES TO BREAK OUT.

JUL 16 1943

TUESDAY NIGHT'S ASSAULT ON MESSINA WAS CARRIED OUT BY WELLINGTONS OF THE ROYAL CANADIAN AIR FORCE, UNITS OF WHICH WERE REPORTED FOR THE FIRST TIME TO BE OPERATING IN THE SICILIAN CAMPAIGN.

A MIDDLE EAST COMMUNIQUE SAID 75 FOUR-ENGINED LIBERATORS ATTACKED MESSINA IN THREE WAVES YESTERDAY, DUMPING MORE THAN 400,000 POUNDS OF HIGH EXPLOSIVES ON THE SMOKING CITY. ONE OF THE BOMBERS FAILED TO RETURN.

THEY SCORED MANY DIRECT HITS, SET OFF EXPLOSIONS AND STARTED FIRES AMONG OIL STORES IN THE RAILWAY YARDS.

THE IMPORTANCE OF MESSINA IS INCREASING HOURLY AS AXIS GROUND RESISTANCE STIFFENS IN SICILY. WITH THE ALLIES FIRMLY IN CONTROL OF BOTH THE AIR AND SEA, THIS CITY WHICH IS ONLY A SHORT FERRY RIDE FROM THE ITALIAN MAINLAND IS VIRTUALLY THE ONLY AVAILABLE PORT THROUGH WHICH THE ENEMY CAN BRING IN REINFORCEMENTS AND SUPPLIES.

AT SAN GIOVANNI, THE LIBERATORS SCORED HITS AMONG WAREHOUSES AND ON RAILWAY AND HARBOR INSTALLATIONS.

THE TORPEDO-CARRXING BEAUFIGHTERS OF THE RAF WHICH HIT THREE ENEMY SHIPS IN THE TYRRHENIAN SEA ALSO SHOT UP A DESTROYER AND A LARGE CARGO VESSEL AND DOWNED A JUNKERS-52 TRANSPORT.

THE NEWEST VICTORIES IN THE BATTLE TO PREVENT THE ITALIANS FROM BRINGING SEABORNE ASSISTANCE TO THE AXIS FORCES IN SICILY INCREASED THE TOTAL TO FOUR FREIGHTERS SUNK, ONE LEFT IN A SINKING CONDITION, ONE TANKER SUNK, ANOTHER LEFT BURNING, AND AT LEAST THREE DESTROYERS HEAVILY DAMAGED.

JUL 16 1943

THE BEAUFIGHTERS PICKED OUT THE LARGEST OF THREE TANKERS SIGHTED OFF MADDELENA, ITALIAN NAVAL BASE IN NORTHERN SARDINIA, AND PLANTED THREE TORPEDOES IN HER SIDE, CAUSING THE SHIP TO EXPLODE.

A SMALLER TANKER WAS CANNONADED AND WAS BURNING FIERCELY WHEN THE BEAUFIGHTERS LEFT. THE MERCHANT SHIP WHICH FELL VICTIM TO THE TORPEDO-CARRYING COASTAL COMMAND CRAFT WAS A 7,000-TON VESSEL.

IN ADDITION TO THE THREE ENEMY AIRCRAFT DOWNED BY FIGHTERS MAINTAINING THEIR AERIAL COVER OF ALLIED SHIPPING BEACHES AND THE BATTLE AREAS, FIVE OTHERS WERE SHOT DOWN BX NIGHT FIGHTERS OPERATING OVER SICILY AND SOUTHERN ITALY.

THE FORMER ENEMY AIRDROMES NOW IN ALLIED HANDS ALL SHOW MARKS OF THE BATTERING THEY RECEIVED BEFORE THEIR OCCUPATION. A NUMBER OF WRECKED AIRCRAFT WERE FOUND ALONG WITH OTHERS WHICH WERE VIRTUALLY UNDAMAGED.

AMERICAN BOMBERS TEAMED WITH SOUTH AFRICAN BALTIMORES AND BOSTONS IN A SWEEP COVERING CENTRAL SICILY TUESDAY NIGHT. THEY ATTACKED ENEMY POSITIONS AND LINES OF COMMUNICATIONS CONFRONTING AMERICAN-HELD AREAS.

LIEUT. COL. ADOLF POKEZ OF WALPOLE, MASS., WHO COMMANDED ONE OF THE FORMATIONS SAID "WE SAW FIRES ALL OVER THE ISLAND."

CAPT. H.J. SCHREINER OF COLUMBUS, O., REPORTED THAT CATANIA HARBOR WAS CROWDED WITH SHIPPING.

DESCRIBING ONE OF THE DAYLIGHT BOMBINGS YESTERDAY, SERGT. WILLIAM DURIE OF SPRING CITY, TENN., SAID "THE LAST I SAW OF A COUPLE OF TWO-STORY BUILDINGS THEY WERE 20 STORIES IN THE AIR."

JUL 16 1943

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC,JULY 15-(AP)- THE BLOODY JOB OF BLOWING THE JAPANESE OUT OF THEIR FOXHOLES AND LOG BUNKERS BEFORE MUNDA WAS TACKLED TODAY BY UNITED STATES JUNGLE FIGHTERS WITH SOUND REASON FOR HOPING THE ENEMY WOULD BE UNABLE TO DRAG OUT HIS RESISTANCE AS HE DID BEFORE BUNA, NEW GUINEA, AND ON GUADALCANAL.

THE JAPANESE DEFENDERS OF BUNA, WHO FACED A LESS FORMIDABLE AMERICAN AIR FORCE, PROLONGED THE FIGHT WITH MEN AND SUPPLIES SNEAKED TO THEM AT NIGHT ON COASTAL BARGES. THE ENEMY TRIED THE BARGE METHOD YESTERDAY IN THE MUNDA SECTOR, WITH DIRE RESULTS.

OUR ALERT MITCHELL BOMBERS, ONE OF SEVERAL CATEGORIES OF PLANES NOW ON HAND IN CONSIDERABLE STRENGTH, SPOTTED TWO BIG ENEMY BARGES ABOVE MUNDA IN THE BLACKETT STRAIT. THEIR BOMBS DESTROYED THEM. NORTH OF THERE OFF VELLA LAVELLA ISLAND, MITCHELLS ALSO SANK AN ENEMY CARGO BOAT.

GUADALCANAL'S JAPANESE DEFENDERS DRAGGED OUT THE FIGHT BECAUSE THE "TOKYO EXPRESS" -- FAST CRUISERS AND DESTROYERS -- SLIPPED IN AT NIGHT WITH REENFORCEMENTS. TWO SECTIONS OF THE REVIVED "TOKYO EXPRESS" SEEKING TO AID MUNDA ALREADY HAVE BEEN DERAILED IN THE KULA GULF, WITH A TOTAL LOSS TO JAPAN OF BETWEEN 13 AND 17 CRUISERS AND DESTROYERS. THERE WERE NO FURTHER INDICATIONS IN TODAY'S COMMUNIQUE THAT THE ENEMY WAS PREPARED TO TRY A THIRD TIME AGAINST THE AMERICAN WARSHIPS IN THAT AREA.

JUL 16 1943

THE AMERICAN AIRFORCE GAVE THE BOMB-PITTED ENEMY FIELDS OF THE NORTHERN SOLOMONS NO CHANCE TO GET BACK IN SHAPE TO COME TO MUNDA'S AID. LIBERATORS AND FLYING FORTRESSES STARTED NEW FIRES ON AIRDROMES AT BUKA, KAHILI AND BALLALE. SOME COULD BE SEEN 50 MILES AWAY.

THE ACTUAL OPENING OF THE ALLIES' MUBO DRIVE WAS PRECEDED BY AN UNSUCCESSFUL ATTEMPT BY ENEMY DIVEBOMBERS YESTERDAY TO ATTACK AUSTRALIAN AND AMERICAN POSITIONS IN THE AREA. KITTYHAWK FIGHTER PLANES TACKLED THE JAPANESE BOMBERS AND DOWNED THREE AT A COST OF ONE ALLIED FIGHTER. ITS PILOT WAS SAVED.

CLEARING THE JAPANESE FROM THE MUBO ZONE, A REGION REGARDED AS EXTENDING ROUGHLY SOUTH FROM THE FRANCISCO RIVER, WOULD PIN THE JAPANESE TO THEIR PERIMETER DEFENSES AROUND SALAMAUA. IT ALSO WOULD PLACE THE ALLIES IN A STRONG POSITION TO DEFEND MUBO, SHOULD IT BE CAPTURED, AS WELL AS WAU, MOROBE AND OTHER OUTLYING SETTLEMENTS PREVIOUSLY TAKEN, AGAINST ANY ENEMY ATTEMPT AT INFILTRATION.

THERE WAS NO INDICATION, HOWEVER, THAT THE "DECISIVE ACTION" REFERRED TO IN THE HEADQUARTERS STATEMENT, MEANS AN

30.24-6131

IMMEDIATE ASSAULT DIRECTED AT THE CAPTURE OF SALAMAUA ITSELF.

PRESSURE ON MUBO FIRST WAS APPLIED BY AUSTRALIAN JUNGLE PATROLS SHORTLY AFTER THE ELIMINATION OF THE JAPANESE FROM THE PAPUAN PENINSULA, SOUTH AND EAST OF SALAMAUA, EARLY THIS YEAR.

IN A SERIES OF SECONDARY CLASHES, THESE ALLIED FORCES SUCCEEDED IN CAPTURING A NUMBER OF ADVANTAGEOUS POSITIONS AROUND THE CENTRAL DEFENSE POINT, BUT UNTIL NOW APPARENTLY HAVE NOT HAD SUFFICIENT STRENGTH TO ATTEMPT AN ALL-OUT OFFENSIVE.

JUL 16 1943

A PRELUDE TO THE BIG DRIVE NOW STARTING WAS THE LANDING OF AMERICAN TROOPS AT NASSAU BAY, BELOW SALAMAUA, ON JUNE 30, AN OPERATION WHICH HAD THE EFFECT OF FLANKING MUBO FROM THE EAST.

THIS AMERICAN FORCE FIRST MADE CONTACT JULY 3 WITH THE AUSTRALIANS FROM MUBO, AND ON JULY 10 JOINED THEM IN SOME FORCE AT KITCHEN CREEK ON THE OUTSKIRTS OF THE ENEMY BASTION, BRINGING ALONG ARTILLERY HAULED BY HAND THROUGH THE JUNGLE.

THE EARLIER CAPTURE ON MAY 6 OF BOBDUBI, ONLY FIVE MILES SOUTHWESTERLY FROM SALAMAUA, FURTHER TENDED TO ISOLATE MUBO FROM ITS COASTAL BASES ON HUON GULF.

SINCE JULY 3 ALLIED AIR POWER IN THE NORTHEASTERN NEW GUINEA THEATER HAS CONCENTRATED ON BOMBING AND STRAFING THE SUPPLY LINES BETWEEN SALAMAUA AND MUBO, THROWING HUNDREDS OF TONS OF EXPLOSIVES ON THESE TENUOUS LINKS THROUGH THE JUNGLE. GREEN HILL AND THE PREVIOUSLY CAPTURED OBSERVATION HILL AND PIMPLE WOOD ISLAND ALL WERE ISOLATED STRONG POINTS DOMINATING THE TRAILS.

NOW, APPARENTLY, THE ALLIES, GROUPED IN FORCE, ARE PREPARED TO OVERWHELM THE MUBO GARRISON AND THUS REMOVE ONE OF THE LAST MAJOR BARRIERS TO THE CAPTURE OF SALAMAUA ITSELF AND ITS NEIGHBORING BASE OF LAE. BITTER JUNGLE FIGHTING IS EXPECTED TO FOLLOW MUBO'S FALL AS ALLIED FORCES MOVE IN TO DRIVE THE JAPANESE FROM THEIR ENTRENCHED POSITIONS.

JUL 16 1943

SOMEWHERE IN NEW GUINEA, JULY 14-(DELAYED)-(AP)-THE STORY OF THE AMERICAN TROOP LANDINGS AT NASSAU BAY AND THE SUBSEQUENT PROGRESS OF THESE FORCES INLAND IS A COMPLICATED ONE INVOLVING ALL UNITS.

IT IS THE STORY OF AN OPERATION WHICH HAD ITS ORIGINAL TIME TABLE RUDELY DISRUPTED BY UNPREDICTABLE WEATHER ONLY TO HAVE THAT TIMETABLE PARTLY RESTORED BY SHEER GUTS AND DETERMINATION.

THERE IS GLORY IN THE STORY FOR INFANTRYMEN. THERE IS GLORY AS WELL FOR THE AMPHIBIAN ENGINEERS WHO WENT INTO COMBAT FOR THE FIRST TIME IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC -- MANY OF THEM BECOMING INFANTRYMEN PERFORCE WHEN THEIR BOATS WERE DAMAGED IN LANDING IN A 15 FOOT SURF AND THEY WERE LEFT ASHORE STRANDED.

THERE'S AMPLE CREDIT FOR THE REGULAR ENGINEERS WHO FIRST FOUGHT ON THE GROUND AND THEN SWEATED AND CURSED AND STRAINED TO BUILD A TRACK INLAND SO THE ARTILLERY COULD BRING GUNS INTO POSITION FOR FIRING ON THE JAPANESE DEFENSES AROUND MUBO.

BEFORE THAT, THE ARTILLERY ALSO WON PRAISE FOR CLEANING OUT A JAPANESE POCKET IMMEDIATELY TO THE NORTH OF THE LANDING AREA.

THE ACTUAL COMBAT TROOPS WHICH GOT ASHORE THE FIRST NIGHT ESTABLISHED THEIR FIRST PERIMETERS TO THE NORTH AND SOUTH OF THE LANDING

JUL 16 1943

SPOT ON THE BEACH.

THERE THE ENGINEERS UNDER CAPTAIN MILAN CASPER OF RIGBY, IDAHO, ERECTED A PORTABLE HOSPITAL DIRECTED BY MAJOR BEN MERIWEATHER OF ASHEVILLE,N.C.

FROM THE REPORTS WHICH CAPTAIN ALFRED E.COFFEY, DALLAS,TEX., MADE AVAILABLE, I LIFTED AN EARLY PHRASE THAT THE ENEMH HAD "GOOD OPPORTUNITY TO OBSERVE OUR LANDING AND SUBSEQUENT ACTIVITIES." IN SPITE OF THAT THE LANDING PARTY ENCOUNTERED LITTLE TROUBLE THE FIRST DAY -- JUNE 30 -- BUT HAD A BAD TIME THAT NIGHT.

JUL 16 1943

THE REPORT MENOIONED HOW THE JAPANESE TRIED TO HARASS OPERATIONS "WITH NOISE AND SHOUTING," BUT SOME AMPHIBIAN ENGINEERS SUCH AS PFC.THOMAS AURIEMMA (54 CHURCH ST.,) SOUTH ORANGE,N.H.; PVT. ERNEST HUBAHEK, (1344 NEWTON AVE.) MINNEAPOLIS, AND CPL.GEORGE LIVINGSTON OF WHITEHALL,ILL., WERE MORE EXPLICIT.

THEY TOLD OF JAPANESE RUNNING AROUND SHOUTING, "HEY, 'A' COMPANY, YOUR BOATS ARE IN," OR "HEY, 'A' COMPANY, LET'S PULL OUT OF HERE. WE ARE SURROUNDED."

AURIEMMA TOLD OF LYING IN THE DARK NEXT TO A MAN WEARING NEW SNEAKER-GIKE JUNGLE SHOES. THE TWO MEN WERE PINNED DOWN BY MACHINE GUN FIRE. A JAPANESE CAME ALONG AND FELT THE OTHER MAN'S FEET AND THEN LEFT THEM ALONE, APPARENTLY DECIDING THEY WERE JAPANESE BECAUSE OF THE SNEAKERS.

WHAT KEPT THE AMERICAN FORCES FROM SUFFERING TOO HEAVILH IN THE EARLY JAPANESE BOMBING AND STRAFING RAIDS WAS THAT THE INVADERS THEN WERE STICKING CLOSE TO THE BEACH, WHEREAS THE JAPANESE, THINKING THEY HAD MOVED INLAND, DROPPED MOST OF THEIR BOMBS BACK IN THE JUNGLE.

WHEN I LEFT NASSAU BAY JULY 9, ANTI-AIRCRAFT DEFENSES WERE STRENGTHENED SUFFICIENTLY TO KEEP BOMBERS AND STRAFING FIGHTERS FLYING HIGH.

JUL 16 1943

BY THAT TIME THE TASK FORCE COMMANDER HAD MOVED HIS OWN HEADQUARTERS A DAY'S FULL HIKE INLAND. THE MAIN COMBAT FORCE WAS ASTRIDE BIOTI RIDGE AIMING TO MOVE IN A NORTHWESTERGY DIRECTION AND GET BEHIND THE JAPANESE HOLDING PIMPLE AND GREEN HILLS IN THE MUBO SECTOR AND ALSO CUT THE NIPPONESE SUPPLY LINE FROM SALAMAUA. THE AUSTRALIANS WERE TO MAKE A FRONTAL ATTACK WITH THE AMERICAN ARTILLERY POUNDING ANY CENTERS OF JAPANESE RESISTANCE.

COMPARED WITH SUCH AN OPERATION AS THE LANDING ON SICILY, PERHAPS OUR WAR HERE SEEMS SMALL SCALE STUFF. YET IT MAY BE IN ITS WAY THE MOST RUGGED KIND OF A WAR TO BE FOUND ANYWHERE. AT NASSAU BAY, MEN STAYED IN FOX HOLES FROM DARK TO DAYLIGHT ON PENALTY OF GETTING SHOT IF THEY SO MUCH AS STUCK THEIR NOSES OUT OF A SLIT TRENCH. AND THAT WAS IN THE REAR AREA.

BY TOM YARBROUGH

SOUTH PACIFIC HEADQUARTERS, JULY 15-(AP)-AMERICAN AIRMEN OUTFOUGHT THE JAPANESE IN COMBAT ON A RATIO OF MORE THAN 8 TO 1 OVER THE SOLOMON ISLANDS DURING THE PERIOD FROM JUNE 30 THROUGH JULY 13, A SPOKESMAN FMR ADMIRAL WILLIAM F. HALSEY, JR. DISCLOSED TODAY.

JAPANESE LOSSES IN BOMBERS AND FIGHTERS THAT FORTNIGHT, THE FIRST OF THE AMERICANS' CENTRAL SOLOMONS INVASION, WERE 211. OF THESE, 101 WERE SHOT DOWN THE OPENING DAY OF THE ATTACK JUNE 30.

JUL 16 1943

(THE AMERICAN LOSSES WERE NOT GIVEN OFFICIALLY, BUT FROM THE RATIO STATED, IT WAS EVIDENT THAT THEY NUMBERED ABOUT 25.)

DESPITE THEIR LOSSES, THE JAPANESE STILL HAVE SEVERAL HUNDRED PLANES AVAILABLE FOR COMBAT IN THE SOLOMONS AREA AND THEREFORE ARE ABLE TO MAKE A STRONG ASSAULT UPON OUR FORCES CLOSING IN ON MUNDA AIRDROME IF THEY ARE WILLING TO STAND THE HEAVY COST.

OUR GROUND FORCES ARE OFFICIALLY REPORTED TO BE MAKING "SATISFACTORY PROGRESS" TOWARDS MUNDA AND THERE IS NO INDICATION THAT ITS GARRISON HAS BEEN REINFORCED.

JUL 16 1943

IN A MINIATURE SEA BATTLE OFF BATUNA MISSION ON THE NORTHEAST CORNER OF VANGUNU ISLAND, TWO OF OUR LCT'S (LANDING CRAFT FOR TANKS) INTERCEPTED A JAPANESE LANDING CRAFT AND SANK IT WITH HEAVY MACHINE GUNS, KILLING ALL 50 OCCUPANTS. THE LCT'S WERE ALREADY UNLOADED AND CARRIED ONLY THEIR CREWS.

EACH OF THE MEN HAS MORE THAN 600 FLIGHT HOURS TO HIS CREDIT, MORE THAN HALF OF THIS TIME WITH THE CANADIAN FORCES.

TOUGH, ALERT AND ABSORBED IN THEIR JOBS, THE YOUNG AMERICANS ARE EAGER FOR A CRACK AT THE ENEMY. ALTHOUGH THEY KID EACH OTHER A LOT AND LAUGH A GRAT DEAL, THEY FLY WITH A SERIOUSNESS SELDOM FOUND IN MEN OF THEIR AGE AND ARE LOOKING FORWARD IMPATIENTLY TO THE DAY WHEN THEY SEE A JAPANESE TARGET IN THEIR SIGHTS.

WHEN THEY DO, I'D HATE TO BE ANYWHER NEAR THAT TARGET.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC,JULY 16-(FRIDAY) -(AP)-AMERICAN TROOPS CLASHED WITH THE JAPANESE ON JUNGLE ISLANDS 700 MILES APART IN TWO OFFENSIVE DRIVES IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC TODAY.

A NEW ATTACK TO SWEEP THE ENEMY FROM THE MUBO AREA OF NORTHEAST NEW GUINEA WAS ANNOUNCED BY THE HEADQUARTERS OF GENERAL DOUGLAS MACARTHUR IN A SPECIAL STATEMENT LAST NIGHT. AMERICANS AND AUSTRALIANS WERE REPORTED CLOSING IN ON THE JAPANESE THERE FOR "DECISIVE ACTION."

THIS DEVZOPMENT FOLLOWED CLOSELY THE ALL-AMERICAN DRIVE AGAINST

JUL 16 1943

THE IMPORTANT ENEMY AIR BASE OF MUNDA ON NEW GEORGIA ISLAND, 700 MILES TO THE EAST IN THE CENTRAL SOLOMONS.

BOTH MOVES ARE INTENDED TO CLEAR VITAL AIR AND SEA LANES OF JAPANESE INTERFERENCE.

JUL 16 1943

THE MUBO OFFENSIVE BROUGHT EARLY RESULTS IN THE CAPTURE OF GREEN HILL, A STRONG POINT IN THE ENEMY DEFENSE SYSTEM. SUCCESSFUL CONCLUSION OF THE DRIVE WOULD PIN THE JAPANESE TO THEIR DEFENSES AROUND SALAMAUA, A POWERFUL BASE JUST 12 MILES NORTH ON THE COAST.

ALLIED OCCUPATION OF MUBO WOULD REMOVE ONE OF THE LAST BARRIERS TO AN ADVANCE UPON SALAMAUA AND ITS NEIGHBORING BASE OF LAE, 20 MILES FURTHER NORTH ON THE COAST. THERE WAS NO INDICATION THAT AN ASSAULT AGAINST SALAMAUA WAS IMMINENT.

AS A PRELIMINARY MOVE IN THE MUBO ACTION AMERICAN TROOPS LANDED AT NASSAU BAY, BELOW SALAMAUA, WHEN THE ALLIED OFFENSIVE IN THE FAR-FLUNG PACIFIC AREA OPENED ON JUNE 30. THESE FORCES MADE A CONTACT WITH AUSTRALIANS ON JULY 3, OPENING THE WAY FOR THE PRESENT OPERATION.

JUL 16 1943

HUNDREDS OF TONS OF BOMBS HAVE BEEN DROPPED BY ALLIED PLANES SINCE JULY 3 ON THE ENEMY SUPPLY LINES BETWEEN MUBO AND SALAMAUA.

IN THE MEANTIME AMERICAN JUNGLE FIGHTERS CONTINUED THEIR TEDIOUS JOB OF DRIVING THE JAPANESE FROM THEIR LOG BUNKERS AND FOXHOLES BEFORE MUNDA. SOME AMERICAN FORCES WERE LESS THAN TWO MILES FROM MUNDA ON THE EAST WHILE OTHERS PRESSED IN FROM THE NORTH.

THE ENEMY MADE ANOTHER UNSUCCESSFUL ATTEMPT WEDNESDAY TO LAND SUPPLIES AND REINFORCEMENTS AT MUNDA. MITCHELL BOMBERS SPOTTED TWO LARGE ENEMY BARGES ABOVE MUNDA IN THE BLACKETT STRAIT AND DESTROYED THEM WITH BOMBS. NORTH OF THERE AN ENEMY CARGO SHIP WAS SUNK.

TWO PREVIOUS ATTEMPTS TO AID MUNDA COST THE JAPANESE BETWEEN 13 AND 17 CRUISERS AND DESTROYERS IN TWO NAVAL BATTLES IN KULA GULF AT THE NORTHEAST END OF NEW GEORGIA ABOVE MUNDA.

JUL 16 1943

OTHER BLOWS TO PREVENT AID FOR THE BESIEGED BASE WERE STRUCK BY UNITED STATES FLIERS IN THE NORTHERN SOLOMONS. FLYING FORTRESSES AND LIBERATORS STARTED NEW FIRES AT AIRDROMES AT BUKA, KAHILI AND BALLALE AND BOMBED AIR STRIPS IN EFFORTS TO KEEP THE ENEMY PLANES GROUNDED.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, AUSTRALIA, JULY 11-(DELAYED)-(AP)-

FOR MORE THAN 200 HOURS OF OPERATIONAL FLIGHT MISSIONS AGAINST THE JAPANESE, AND FOR "OUTSTANDING ABILITY AND DEVOTION TO DUTY," 13 OFFICERS AND MEN HAVE BEEN AWARDED THE DISTINGUISHED FLYING CROSS BY LIEUT.GEN.GEORGE C.KENNEY, COMMANDER OF ALLIED AIR FORCES IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC.

THE OPERATIONS, WITH ENEMY CONTACT PROBABLE AND EXPECTED, CONSISTED OF LONG-RANGE BOMBING MISSIONS AGAINST JAPANESE AIR-DROMES, HARBORS, SHIPPING AND NAVAL FORCES.

July 5 1943

CAPTAIN HIDEO HIRAIDE, DIVISIONAL CHIEF OF THE NAVY PRESS SECTION, HAS BEEN TRANSFERRED TO THE NEW POST OF SECTION CHIEF OF THE NAVY GENERAL STAFF, THE JAPANESE PROPAGANDA AGENCY, DOMEI, SAID TODAY IN AN ENGLISH-LANGUAGE DISPATCH TO EAST ASIA.

JUL 16 1943

AS REPORTED BY UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT MONITORS, DOMEI SAID THAT HIRAIDE SERVED AS "SPOKESMAN FOR THE NAVY FOR THREE YEARS, SINCE HIS RETURN TO JAPAN FROM ITALY IN JULY, 1940," AND HAD "WON FAME FOR HIS MASTERLY HANDLING OF HIS DUTIES INCLUDING TIMELY AND BRILLIANT COMMENTS ON WORLD, NAVAL AND GENERAL MILITARY SITUATIONS."

HIRAIDE IS CHANGING POSITIONS WITH CAPTAIN ETSUZO KURIHARA, SECTION CHIEF OF THE NAVY GENERAL STAFF SINCE NOVEMBER, 1940, WHO WILL SERVE AS THE NEW PRESS SPOKESMAN, ACCORDING TO DOMEI.

KURIHARA, AGED 50, WAS IN THE NAVY PRESS SECTION IN 1937, AND IN 1939 WAS TRANSFERRED TO THE POSITION OF STAFF OFFICER OF THE SHANGHAI SPECIAL LANCING CORPS, DOMEI STATED.

london, july 15-(ap)--because of the increase in juvenile delinquency in the united states, which she described as "highly alarming," mrs. john whitehurst of baltimore, md., president of the general federation of women's clubs, said ~~xxxxxx~~ today she intended to devote considerable time to the study of how britain is handling this wartime problem.

she said that prior to coming to england she had just completed a three-month nationwide tour of the united states, addressing women's clubs, and that the first question she was asked was: "what can we do about juvenile delinquency."

JUL 16 1943

"women are worrying more about this even than over the fate of their menfolks going into the service," she added.

mrs. whitehurst also is interested in nursery schools and communal feeding. she predicted that both would have to come to the united states if women can be expected to go into industry in the numbers needed. she expects to spend a month in britain. lap 1636 gt 11a stockholm, july 15-(ap)--a shooting in the heart of copenhagen on july 6 in which four persons were wounded by gunfire was caused by a danish woman wearing a red, white and blue cap such as had been forbidden by german occupational authorities, reliable sources here said they had learned.

the shooting was reported on july 7, but the nazi censorship suppressed news of its cause.

Information reaching here said that when a danish policeman new york, july 15-(ap)--In the first such ceremony ever held on an american field of active operations, secretary of war henry l. stimson today pinned the congressional medal of honor on an american air hero, staff sergt. maynard h. smith of caro, mich., in a ceremony at an air base "somewhere in england," nbc reported in a broadcast.

the secretary, together with lieut. gene jacob l. devers, commanding general in the european theater, and maj. gen. ira c. eaker, commanding the american 8th air force, participated in the presentation.

smith was honored for "conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity in action above and beyond the call of duty" during a flying fortress raid may 1 on st. nazaire on the french coast. He is the first living man to receive america's highest military decoration in the european theater.

the citation, as broadcast by nbc, said that with intense fires blazing in the radio compartment and waist sections of the fortress, sergeant smith passed up a chance to bail out along with three other members of the crew.

JUL 16 1943

instead, he remained aboard the crippled craft, alternately

JUL 16 1943

giving first aid to a wounded [illegible] fighting the flames, and firing his guns at enemy planes. the fortress was hit several times by anti-aircraft fire and cannon shells and the oxygen system was shot away. the escaping oxygen fanned the fire to such an intense heat that the ammunition in the radio compartment began to explode.

nevertheless, according to the citation read by secretary stimson, smith finally succeeded in extinguishing the flames by wrapping himself in protective clothing and beating them out by hand.

His action enabled the fortress to make its base in england and saved the lives of several of his comrades trapped in the forward compartments. It was smith's first combat mission. he since has been on several and has at least one enemy plane to his credit.

After reading the citation, secretary stimson extended his personal congratulations and said "we are all very proud of you, sergeant."

(advance) london, friday, july 16-(ap)--Eight survivors of a coastal command flying fortress which crashed into stormy north atlantic waters three minutes after the sinking of a ~~gm~~ u-boat were rescued after four days afloat, but help arrived too late to save eight out of nine americans from a u. s. navy catalina flying boat which also crashed trying to pick up the raf fliers.

the americans in two dinghies lost touch with the british fliers and when a u. s. surfacevessle reached the scene on the sixth day only one was found alive.

meanwhile on the fourth day, an raf catalina had found the british survivors ~~x~~ and in high seas rescued them. all suffered shock and exposure.

raf sunderlands, catalinas, fortresses, hampdens, and hudson made 60 sorties covering 10,000 miles of the north atlantic in adverse weather searching for the crews, the air ministry news service disclosed. american catalinas ~~from~~ and hudsons based in iceland joined the search.

Picking up the story at the start: the Patrolling fortress planted depth charges around the u-boat and saw ~~em~~ it sink, leaving 20 or 30 germans in the sea. Three minutes later the plane crashed into a wave and the eight crewmen scrambled into a rubber dinghy but lost their food, water, paddles and ~~wingmen~~ signals.

On the evening of the first day an american navy catalina sighted the survivors but crashed when the pilot attempted to set the plane down.

On the second day the americans in their two dinghies lost contact with the british in a heavy gale. a number of fliers battled to keep afloat in waves 50 feet high.

the third day another plane spotted the british and dropped food and water, but the seas were too rough to permit a landing.

on the f urth day many planes appeared and this a catalina with a skeleton crew of five men aboard alighted and made a successful take-off with a total of 13 men aboard.

JUL 16 1943

the search continued for the americans and on the fifth day a coastal command catalina spotted them and dropped and extra dinghy.

on the sixth day a u. s. escort ship picked up the lone american survivor and found one dinghy overturned and empty.

none of the names of the men were released.

scoglitti, sicily, july 12 (delayed)---mother giuseppina giacchi was overjoyed by the occupation of this town by american forces.

mother giacchi was happy because she has a son living at 77 graham avenue, paterson, n.j., and a daughter living in new york city. she was also happy because, she said, she knew america would treat the people here decently, see they get food and clothing.

i met her after a dusty, hot drive to an american general's command post. she had opened up her former ice cream store to serve vermouth to dry americans. when she heard i was a correspondent she told me about her children in america and begged me to 'phone them for her.

from her bedroom, she quickly produced a letter from her son. it was his last letter to her, post-marked five years back.

clothing and shoes are unobtainable here at any price. the last pair of shoes went for $10. five hundred grams of bread now cost $1. no meat has been available for five months.

the people in town were all ragged. little boys wore no pants.

the town suffered little from the american attack. the principle job now is to consolidate the local government and to demolish the barbed wire emplacements.

i missed my ship on my return to anchorage but managed to sail on the flagship.shortly after we left the nazis came back with their bombs and some of us thumbed our noses in their direction.

SOUTHERN SICILY, JULY 14-(DELAYED)--THIS IS HOW ANY SICILIAN SMALL TOWN GETS BACK ONTO ITS FEET AFTER THE ALLIES OCCUPY IT.

AT FIRST THERE IS CHAOS. EVERY HOUSE IS SHUTTERED AND BARRED. THERE MAY BE VEHICLES AND TANKS SHOULDERING IN THE STREETS. THERE ARE LITTLE HEAPS OF SHELL CASES IN THE GUTTERS AND THE STREETS ARE STREWN WITH PAPER, STRAW AND FILTH. HALF THE INHABITANTS HAVE FLED TO THE COUNTRY. THE REST ARE BARRICADED INSIDE THEIR HOUSES. YOU HARDLY KNOW WHERE TO START.

FIRST YOU LOOK FOR THE BIGGEST BUILDING--SCHOOLS, HOSPITALS,

30.24-6145

MUNICIPAL OFFICES--SO AS TO GET SOME SORT OF HEADQUARTERS. YOU COLLECT WHAT ARCHIVES YOU CAN FIND AND PROBABLY DISCOVER THE NAME AND ADDRESS OF THE MAYOR. THEN YOU GET TO WORK.

JUL 16 1943

A FEW COWED, FASCINATED PEOPLE CREEP TIMIDLY OUT INTO THE STREETS. YOU GET HOLD OF ONE OF THEM AND SEND FOR THE MAYOR. PROBABLY THEY SAY THEY DON'T KNOW WHERE HE IS OR IF HE'S ALIVE. BUT IN THE END YOU PERSUADE SOMEONE TO FETCH HIM. SOON A QUIET LITTLE MAN, UNSHAVEN AND DRESSED IN A SHAPELESS ERSATZ SUIT COMES IN BOWING AND FLASHING HIS GOLD TEETH IN A SICKLY SMILE. YES, HE'S THE MAYOR, ENTIRELY AT OUR DISPOSITION. BUT HE SAYS THE SITUATION IS TERRIBLE AND HE DOUBTS IF ANYTHING CAN BE DONE. HE SHRUGS HIS SHOULDERS AND SPREADS HIS HANDS. HE OFFERS TO HELP IF HE CAN.

FIRST THERE IS THE MATTER OF CORPSES. THE BODIES OF ENEMY SOLDIERS AND PERHAPS CIVILIANS, TOO, KILLED IN BOMBING AND SHELLING AND FIGHTING, STILL ARE LYING AROUND TOWN. THEY MUST BE BURIED.

THE MAYOR AGREES. IF THE ALLIED FORCES WILL PROVIDE TRUCKS, HE WILL ARRANGE IT. BUT THE ALLIED FORCES NEED THE TRUCKS FOR FIGHTING BATTLES. ITALIAN VEHICLES CAN'T BE USED BECAUSE THERE IS NO GASOLINE. SO FINALLY, THE MAYOR CALLS IN A FEW SHABBY, UNSHAVEN FRIENDS WHO HAVE GAUDILY PAINTED MULE CARTS. YOU SEND THEM OFF WITH A GANG OF ITALIAN PRISONERS TO BURY THE DEAD.

B39

THEN YOU TURN TO THE WATER SUPPLY. IN THIS MEDITERRANEAN JULY WEATHER, WITH ALL THE FILTH OF WARFARE AROUND, CLEANLINESS IS ABSOLUTELY VITAL. THE MAYOR SAYS THERE IS NO WATER. PIPELINES FROM THE RESERVOIR HAVE BEEN CUT BY SHELL. THE WELLS ARE DIRTY OR DRY.

JUL 16 1943

BUT FINALLY, HE ADMITS THERE IS AN OLD RESERVOIR THEY USED TO USE WHEN HE WAS A BOY. IT SHOULD BE POSSIBLE TO FIX IT UP AGAIN. SO YOU SEND A PARTY OF ENGINEERS TO LOOK AT IT. SOON YOU HAVE THE WATER FLOWING FROM THE FOUNTAINS AND PUMPS IN THE PUBLIC PLACES AND THE POPULATION COMES OUT WITH SAUCEPANS AND HUGE EARTHENWARE CROCKS TO CARRY SOME HOME.

IT IS LUCKY YOU HAVE PLENTY OF ITALIAN PRISONERS, FOR YOU CAN SET THEM TO WORK CLEANING THE STREETS. YOU MAKE THEM SWEEP OUT THE DIRTY SCHOOL HOUSE, WHICH THEY THEMSELVES HAD BEEN USING AS BARRACKS. AND SOON, THEY ARE HAPPILY TOPPLING THINGS OUT OF THE UPPER WINDOW INTO THE COURTYARD--BUG-RIDDEN WOODEN BEDSTEADS, TORN UNIFORMS, UNDERWEAR, HUGE BUNDLES OF OLD LETTERS, PACKETS OF CARTRIDGES, ITALIAN ARMY BILLYCANS, STACKS OF FASCIST PROPAGANDA AND EVEN PORTRAITS OF MUSSOLINI. THEY WORK AWAY MERRILY AND WILLINGLY, PAUSING ONLY TO BEG CIGARETTES FROM GUARDS.

AT THIS STAGE, YOU FIND YOURSELF IN A TRICKY INTERIM PERIOD. THE TOWN IS CEASING TO BE A BATTLEFIELD AND BECOMING AN OCCUPIED AREA. THE LOCAL CARABINIERI OF POLICE, WHEN THEY APPEAR ON THE STREETS, ARE APT TO GET ARRESTED BY OVER-ZEALOUS SOLDIERS. THE MAYOR COMES TO COMPLAIN THAT HE CAN'T GET INTO THE MUNICIPAL OFFICES BECAUSE OF SENTRIES ON THE DOORS.

ALL SORTS OF LITTLE TROUBLES LIKE THAT KEEP CROPPING UP.

JUL 16 1943

THEN YOU TURN TO THE FOOD QUESTION. ALREADY CITIZENS ARE COMING IN TO COMPLAIN THEY HAVE HAD NOTHING TO EAT FOR DAYS AND THAT THEIR BABIES ARE STARVING AND THEIR WIVES ARE ILL IN BED.

WHAT ARE THE ALLIES GOING TO DO ABOUT IT?

THEY LISTEN POLITELY BUT UNBELIEVINGLY WHEN THEY TELL THEM THERE IS A BATTLE ON AND WAR MATERIAL HAS THE FIRST PRIORITY AND WE HAVEN'T ANY TOO MUCH TO EAT OURSELVES. THEN THEY START OFF AGAIN PROTESTING THAT THE ALLIES HAVE OCCUPIED THE COUNTRY AND MUST FEED THE PEOPLE.

JUL 16 1943

YOU FEEL LIKE LOSING YOUR TEMPER WITH THEM, REMINDING THEM THAT THIS IS WAR AND ITALY CHOSE TO DECLARE IT AND THEY CANNOT EXPECT NOT TO SUFFER FROM IT.

BUT YOU SEND FOR THE MAYOR AGAIN AND GO INTO THE FOOD QUESTION.

IT TURNS OUT TO BE VERY DIFFICULT. FIRST, ALL THE MAIN MILLS ARE RUN BY ELECTRICITY AND THE POWER HAS BEEN TURNED OFF. THE OTHER MILLS ARE RUN BY DIESEL ENGINES AND THERE IS NO FUEL.

ANYWAY, THE WHOLE PROCESS IS HOPELESSLY ENTANGLED IN SOME FASCIST SYSTEM OF COLLECTIVE FARMING WHICH HAS REMOVED ALL THE MILLS FROM PRIVATE OWNERSHIP AND NO ONE SEEMS TO UNDERSTAND THE LEGAL POSITION.

SO YOU HAVE TO CHOP THROUGH A GOOD DEAL OF FASCIST RED TAPE TO TAKE EMERGENCY MEASURES. YOU CALL TOGETHER MILLERS AND BAKERS FOR A CONFERENCE TO TRY TO GET THE MANUFACTURE OF BREAD AND MACARONI GOING AGAIN.

THEN YOU STICK UP AN ALLIED PROCLAMATION IN THE MAIN SQUARE. THE CITIZENS GATHER AROUND AND THOSE WHO CAN READ EXPLAIN IT TO THOSE WHO CANNOT.

THE PEASANT WOMEN THROW UP THEIR HANDS IN DESPAIR AT THE PROSPECT OF MATHEMATICAL CALCULATIONS WHICH THE NEW CURRENCY REGULATIONS WILL INVOLVE. THE PEOPLE LEARN THEY MAY ONLY MOVE A CERTAIN DISTANCE FROM TOWN. THOSE WHOSE TOMATO OR MELON PATCHES ARE FURTHER [illegible]ME AROUND TO COMPLAIN.

but gradually, it is settling down. townspeople are glad to find there is some sort of pattern and regularity to life again after the chaos of the battle period. they take down shutters and open front doors. old women start to sweep out houses. men bring out chairs and sit on the pavement watching what happens. children -- to whom all this is the most exciting thing that ever happened -- hand around the allied troops hoping to get candy.

housewives start up their kitchen stoves again with charcoal and dried orange peel.

a few squalid shops are open only to sell utterly unwanted things like babies' bonnets and hideous art. the men harness their mules to their painted carts and start moving belongings around.

life is beginning to flow through the towns' veins once more.

A United States Bomber Base in England, July 16 --(AP)-- First Lieutenant Calvin D. Swaffer, 22, of Memphis, Tenn., a tall, blond young southerner with a slow and charming drawl, wound up his combat career in the European Theatre of operations as a Flying Fortress pilot with a splash Wednesday today -- into the English channel-- but he and his entire crew were rescued uninjured.

Swaffer's flak-riddled bomber "Memphis Blues" "ditched" into the channel about 20 miles off the French coast, only a short distance outside an enemy mine field, with three engines shot out. It was returning with other American heavy bombers from Villa Coublay near Paris where they had pounded a Luftwaffe assembly plant and airdrome.

The crew was picked up an hour and a half later by British air and sea rescue craft.

Swaffer related that he "cussed bitterly" and said over and over to himself "this would have to happen to me on my last raid", all the while he and his co pilot, First Lieutenant John R. Johnston, 22, of Orlando, Fla., were struggling with the damaged controls of their floundering bomber in an effort to coax it beyond the mined coastal waters of enemy-held France.

Swaffer, who expects to be sent back to the United States for duty, said that "after we made it past the French coast, I knew the only thing between me and going home was the English Channel, and I was determined to get back. I had so much faith in the British air and sea rescue service that I felt sure we would be picked up.

"I got every ounce of power we could out of our one remaining engine and we stayed up until we got past the minefield."

"Memphis Blues" received a terrific pounding over Paris from enemy flak which Swaffer and Johnston described as exceptionally intense.

JUL 16 1943

"The barrage was sometimes so intense," Johnson related, "that a cluster of flak bursts would leave clouds of smoke so thick we couldn't see the formation of Fortresses above us."

pinning the blue ribbon bearing the medal around smith's neck at a ceremony staged in the shadow of a flying fortress, stimson told the hundreds of officers and men present:

"this soldier's bravery is an inspiration to all the armed forces of the united states."

reviewing the little sergeant's heroic exploit, the secretary of war pointed out that the medal was awarded for "courageous gallantry above and beyond the call of duty," and told smith, who was standing rigidly at attention, that "it is an honor for president roosevelt and congress to bestow upon you this medal."

then, shaking hands with smith, stimson concluded: "I extend my warmest congratulations as secretary of war and as an american."

introducing smith, lieut. gen. jacob l. devers, commander of american forces in the european theater, said: "this is the first time this medal has ever been awarded in the european theater of operations in the present war, except posthumously. we are proud of sergeant smith because he typifies the young americans in our armed forces."

in obvious reference to nazi and fascist youth movements, the general added: "sergeant smith is not a product of state-controlled youth [redacted] groups, but of the american sandlots."

major gen. ira c. eaker, commander of american air forces in britain, said he regarded smith "and every man in the eighth airforce" as heroes. "We all congratulate smith and know he is worthy of the medal."

during the ceremony several units of ~~xxx~~ infantrymen and air crews stood in parade array on the airfield. after the ceremony secretary stimson reviewed the troops, with sergeant smith and lieut. col. g. l. robinson of hanover, ill., commander at this station, standing beside him.

besides beating out the flames in his fortress on his memorable first mission, smith manned two machinegun positions, helping to repel the ~~xxxxxxx~~ focke-wulfs that swarmed around the crippled bomber, and gave first aid to a wounded crewmember, sergt. roy ~~xx~~ gibson of san diego, calif.

the pilot of the nameless bomber--designated simply as no. 649--was first lieut. p. lewis johnson of crummies, ky. He said in an affidavit that smith's acts, ~~xxx~~ performed "in complete self-sacrifice and utmost efficiency, were solely responsible for the safe return of the aircraft and the lives of everyone aboard."

Johnson now is serving as an instructor in the united states.

other crewmen who returned safely that day included second lieut. robert mccallum, omaha, neb., copilot; first lieut. stanley n. kissoberth, phoenix, arix., bombardier; and sergt. william w. fahrenheld, mckeesrocks, pa., topturret gunner, ~~xxxx~~ Gibson, the tailgunner, since has recovered from his wounds.

since his first raid smith has been on three additional missions and shot down one focke-wulf enemy fighter.

in civilian life smith said he was employed as an income tax field agent for the treasury department at detroit; later as assistant receiver for the michigan state banking commission.

he enlisted in the army in september, 1942, and trained as an aerial gunner at harlingen, tex., before coming to england last march.

ROOSEVELT, CHURCHILL WARN ITALY TO END FASCIST RULE OR FACE RUIN; ALLIES ADVANCE WIDELY IN SICILY

Italy May Surrender Or Face Utter Defeat

Choice Offered on Point of Sword By F.D.R. And Churchill—World Eagerly Awaits Reaction in Italy.

JUL 17 1943

By James D. White

WASHINGTON, July 16. (AP)—On the point of a sword, President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill today offered harried Italy the choice of "honorable capitulation" or utter defeat—and the world watched eagerly tonight for any sign of a crack-up in Mussolini's regime.

No Quick Action Expected

Few expected an immediate general uprising in a land ridden by Black Shirt militia and German Gestapo. But as time goes on and Allied armies drive closer to the heart of Italy, the High Command hopes the Roosevelt-Churchill words will bear fruit among a people already bereft of empire, pounded by blockbusters and retreating before invasion.

The Roosevelt-Churchill message to the Italian people was beamed to the beleagured peninsula from many broadcast stations and showered in printed leaflets upon Italian cities from Allied planes.

"At this moment," the message began, "the combined armed forces of the United States and Great Britain under the command of General Eisenhower and his deputy, General Alexander, are carrying the war deep into the territory of your country.

"This is the direct consequence of the shameful leadership to which you have been subjected by Mussolini and his Fascist regime."

Almost as the message went out, Allied bombs were laying the Italian cities of Naples, San Giovanni, and Foggia in ruins.

Huge aerial bombs drove home the words of the Allied leaders:

"Mussolini carried you into this war as the satellite of a brutal destroyer of peoples and liberties.

"Mussolini plunged you into this war which he thought Hitler had already won. In spite of Italy's great vulnerability to attack by air and sea, your Fascist leader sent your sons, your ships, your air forces, to distant battlefields to aid Germany in her attempt to conquer England, Russia and the world."

Debt to Romans

The spokesmen for the armies of democracy reminded the descendants of the Romans:

"This association with the designs of Nazi-controlled Germany was unworthy of Italy's ancient traditions of freedom and culture traditions to which the peoples of America and Great Britain owe so much.

"Your soldiers have fought not in the interests of Italy but for Nazi Germany. They have fought courageously, but they have been betrayed and abandoned by the Germans on the Russian front and on every battlefield in Africa from El Alamein to Cape Bon."

There was no indication of Italian reaction as Roosevelt and Churchill described the hopelessness of Italy's position:

"Today, Germany's hopes for world conquest have been blasted on all fronts. The skies over Italy are dominated by the vast air armadas of the United States and Great Britain. Italy's sea coasts are threatened by the greatest accumulation of British and Allied sea power ever concentrated in the Mediterranean.

"The forces now opposed to you are pledged to destroy the power of Nazi Germany—power which has ruthlessly been used to inflict slavery, destruction and death on all those who refuse to recognize the Germans as the master race."

Prime Minister Churchill, when last in Washington, predicted that "we shall operate upon the donkey, in the case of Italy, with a carrot as well as a stick."

Here was the carrot:

"The sole hope for Italy's survival lies in honorable capitulation to the overwhelming power of the military forces of the United Nations."

Wave Stick Again

And the stick again:

"If you continue to tolerate the Fascist regime which serves the evil power of the Nazis, you must suffer the consequences of your own choice. We take no satisfaction in invading Italian soil and bringing the tragic devastation of war home to the Italian people.

"But we are determined to destroy the false leaders and their doctrines which have brought Italy to her present position."

Continued resistance, said the Roosevelt-Churchill message, would "serve only one purpose: To give the Fascist and Nazi leaders a little more time to escape from the inevitable consequences of their own crimes."

"All your interests and all your traditions have been betrayed by Nazi Germany and your own false and corrupt leaders; it is only by disavowing both that a reconstituted Italy can hope to occupy a respected place in the family of nations."

After this frank invitation to revolt, the message concluded with a clear-cut call for a decision—now:

"The time has now come for you, the Italian people, to consult your own self-respect and your own interest and your own desire for a restoration of national dignity, security and peace. The time has come for you to decide whether Italians shall die for Mussolini and Hitler—or live for Italy, and for civilization."

This joint message came as the climax of a war of nerves which has been bombarding Italy with ideas since late in 1940, when Prime Minister Churchill first openly invited the Italians to overthrow Mussolini.

JUL 17 1943

Text of Roosevelt-Churchill Call To Italian People to Quit Fighting

Washington, July 16 (A. P.).—Following is the text of a message from the President of the United States and the Prime Minister of Great Britain which is being sent today to the people of Italy:

At this moment the combined armed forces of the United States and Great Britain under the command of Gen. Eisenhower and his deputy, Gen. Alexander, are carrying the war deep into the territory of your country.

This is the direct consequence of the shameful leadership to which you have been subjected by Mussolini and his Fascist regime.

Mussolini carried you into this war as the satellite of a brutal destroyer of peoples and liberties.

Mussolini plunged you into this war, which he thought Hitler had already won. In spite of Italy's great vulnerability to attack by air and sea, your Fascist leaders sent your sons, your ships, your air forces, to distant battlefields to aid Germany in her attempt to conquer England, Russia and the world.

This association with the designs of Nazi-controlled Germany was unworthy of Italy's ancient traditions of freedom and culture—traditions to which the peoples of America and Great Britain owe so much.

Italian Soldiers Betrayed.

Your soldiers have fought not in the interests of Italy but for Nazi Germany. They have fought courageously, but they have been betrayed and abandoned by the Germans on the Russian front and on every battlefield in Africa from El Alamein to Cape Bon.

Today Germany's hopes for world conquest have been blasted on all fronts. The skies over Italy are dominated by the vast air armadas of the United States and Great Britain. Italy's sea coasts are threatened by the greatest accumulation of British and Allied sea power ever concentrated in the Mediterranean.

The forces now opposed to you are pledged to destroy the power of Nazi Germany—power which has ruthlessly been used to inflict slavery, destruction and death on all those who refuse to recognize the Germans as the master race.

The sole hope for Italy's survival lies in honorable capitulation to the overwhelming power of the military forces of the United Nations. If you continue to tolerate the Fascist regime which serves the evil power of the Nazis, you must suffer the consequences of your own choice. We take no satisfaction in invading Italian soil and bringing the tragic devastation of war home to the Italian people.

To Destroy False Leaders.

But we are determined to destroy the false leaders and their doctrines which have brought Italy to her present position.

Every moment that you resist the combined forces of the United Nations—every drop of blood that you sacrifice—can serve only one purpose: To give the Fascist and Nazi leaders a little more time to escape from the inevitable consequences of their own crimes.

All your interests and all your traditions have been betrayed by Nazi Germany and your own false and corrupt leaders; it is only by disavowing both that a reconstituted Italy can hope to occupy a respected place in the family of European nations.

The time has now come for you, the Italian people, to consult your own self-respect and your own interest and your own desire for a restoration of national dignity, security and peace. The time has come for you to decide whether Italians shall die for Mussolini and Hitler—or live for Italy, and for civilization.

B. B. C. Repeating Message.

London, July 16 (A. P.).—Every two hours today, the British Broadcasting Corporation repeated the surrender message of President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill to the Italian people, and shortly after noon began pouring it out in some twenty other languages. The message also was being broadcast at frequent intervals from Algiers and Italian listeners were asked to spread the news to their friends.

Obvious Conclusions

These were the most obvious conclusions suggested by many sources:

(1) The proclamation was long prepared and would not have been broadcast at this time if military developments had not added full weight to its arguments.

(2) The message—which is being broadcast at frequent intervals by the BBC and sent out in Italian and 20 other different languages—will reach the bulk of the Italian people within a day or two through the radio, through

Ultimatum to Italy Indicates Progress

Demand for Surrender Taken as Strong Evidence of Swift Invasion Progress and Good Augury of Quick Italian Defeat.

By Lewis Hawkins

LONDON, July 16. (AP)—The Allied ultimatum to the Italian people to surrender was widely accepted in London today as the strongest evidence of the splendid progress of the Sicilian invasion, and a good augury for the swift removal of the Axis junior partner from the war.

pamphlets dropped from planes, and possible underground circulation inside Italy.

(3) If the reaction inside Italy is favorable as expected, the general admonition to overthrow Fascism might be supplemented by direct suggestions to various groups for specific action. For example, war plant workers might be urged to stay away from their jobs, transportation workers told to refuse to haul more supplies or troops to the front ,soldiers called upon to lay down their arms, and housewives asked to demonstrate for peace.

(4) Further appeals for blows against the Fascist masters are likely to be coupled with assurances of protection against the Germans and perhaps more specific pledges of lenient peace if fighting ends soon. These would be coupled with still stronger warnings on what happens if peace is not sought.

No Time Estimate

No responsible source was willing to hazard an estimate on the time which might be required to knock Italy out of the war by combined military and psychological blows, but it was agreed that the biggest obstacle to the success of any sponsored revolution would be the secret police, and Fascist militia.

The Fascist militia particularly is strong. In a speech on June 24 to the Fascist party directorate, Mussolini boasted that "the armed guard of our revolution is the Fascist militia which numbers hundreds of thousands and has an armored division received from the German SS."

This is generally interpreted as a blunt warning to all active or incipient anti-Fascists that the Duce is not prepared to step down without fighting to the last with his private army.

The ultimatum crowded the news of the fighting into secondary position in London afternoon newspapers with the London Star topping it with the single word "capitulate" in large type. The Evening News carried the streamer, "Peace Ap- Standard headline said Standard headline said "Italians peal to Italy," and the Evening Told 'Choose Now'."

Italian Uprising Unlikely, Say Diplomats

By Richard G. Massock

(Former Chief of the Associated Press Bureau in Rome)

Washington, July 16 — Italians were presented by President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill today with a supreme test of their willingness to overthrow their Fascist regime in the person of its dictator, Mussolini.

It was not the first time that the two leaders had urged Italians to revolt and abandon the war. But this time their words had the added force of United Nations soldiers marching deep in Italian soil, of planes and warships dominating the Mediterranean skies and waters.

Diplomats Doubt Revolt Near

Will the Italians respond by overthrowing Il Duce? They may rise in revolt against him, but diplomats here expressed doubt that the day of revolution had arrived.

We who were in Rome fourteen months ago are skeptical of the Italian will to rebel. But we may be old fogies by this time. who don't know the feeling of the Italian masses.

The invitation to quit the war may be timed about right. American experts on psychological warfare in North Africa may have reason to believe, from the latest intelligence reports, that the Italian home front is ripe for action. The circumstances would seem to favor that belief.

German Factor Seen

It has generally been assumed that the Germans would keep the Italians in the war, by force if necessary, that Mussolini's Black Shirt militia would be used to stamp out any incipent uprising and that an anti-Fascist coup would be foredoomed to failure unless American and British troops were inside Italy to follow up with a knockout blow, thereby protecting the revolutionaries against a setback disastrous to their hopes.

The Germans now are so busy on the Russian front and defending the coasts of western Europe that they have been unable, so far as is known here, to rush many divisions to the defense of Italy.

American and British troops are forging ahead in Sicily, within striking distance of the mainland.

But Mussolini knows that the unconditional surrender required by Roosevelt and Churchill would spell his own personal doom, as well as the one-party tryanny that has ruled Italy for almost a generation. He, therefore, is not likely to give up so long as his own skin is not in immediate danger.

And to protect his skin, his vanity and his power, he is likely to call on his "M" battalions. These battalions were formed in 1941 of Black Shirt veterans of the Ethiopian and Spanish wars.

Super-Handpicked

To be a Fascist militiaman, the Italian had to be a handpicked believer in the infallibity of Mussolini whose loyalty was unquestionable. The "M" battalions were super-handpicked, as a thoroughly reliable Pretorian guard.

They were sent off to "the zone of war operations," then presumably Russia, with a great deal of fanfare apparently designed to hoodwink the unknowing. But in reality, three Italians with Fascist connections assured me, they were sent to garrisons in the countryside not far from Rome.

Duce—Elder Statesman

Fascist propaganda, furthermore, has sought to restore Mussolini's personal prestige among the Italians, at least ninety per cent. of whom were estimated to have lost all faith in their discredited Duce. Reliable reports, which come directly from Rome through neutral channels, say Mussolini is being represented to the Italian people as an elder statesmen who is not to blame for the sorry plight of his country because he has grown prematurely old in the service of Italy and its aspiration to grandeur.

The effectiveness of that propaganda is impossible to estimate. The same reports, however, tell of the Italian feeling toward Carlo Scorza, the current secretary general of the Fascist party, who apparently has taken over the active direction of Italian affairs.

"Americano Without Scorza"

The Italians have a popular drink known as Americano (American), made of vermouth, in which is twisted the peel (scorza) of a lemon. The story goes that the Italians are asking in the bars for an Americano without scorza. The implication is obvious.

Italian Press Avoids Surrender Ultimatum

By Thomas F. Hawkins

BERN, Switzerland, July 16. (AP) —The Italian press tonight avoided direct discussion of the Roosevelt-Churchill call for Italians to quit fighting or be blasted out of the war, but editorials gave indirect confirmation that the Fascists were well aware of its importance in a nation which is alarmed even though uninformed in detail of the battle in Sicily.

(The Rome radio in an overseas broadcast declared the Italians would fight on, and said that "the real and true decision" in Sicily "will be reached in the new battle which has already virtually started on the Catania plain.")

La Tribuna expressed confidence that the people were ready to fight to the end "for the future, honor and their rights" but did not speak of victory.

Giornale D'Italia similarly avoided talk of victory and expressed only "a firm decision to resist to the end"—thus leaving the way open for the end to be brought about whenever the people or the army decide the end has arrived.

Affirms Allied Pressure

This same newspaper, however, affirmed that despite heavy Allied pressure "not a single soldier or plane," that is, German, had been sent from the Russian front to Sicily.

(The Italian propaganda agency Stefani reacted quickly, declaring in a broadcast to North America: "The spirit of the Roosevelt-Churchill message accords perfectly with the ferocious egoism of the Anglo-Saxon. The Italian people at this moment do not hear these enemy messages. There are no Darlans in Italy. The Italian people know only that the national territory is invaded by the enemy. The suffering of the population unites all in a will to oppose the invasion at any cost.")

The German radio broadcast an "unofficial message" which quoted Berlin sources as saying that the Roosevelt-Churchill message was "typically Anglo-American—making political capital from certain military initial successes in the fase assumption that a wedge could be driven between Germany a Italy."

"The arguments that this message uses," the broadcast went on, "are according to Berlin opinion so clumsy and partly so grotesque that no reply is necessary and the re-

Political Developments Hinted

BERN, Switzerland, July 16 (AP). —Informed circles at Rome hinted tonight at unexpected political developments as the Italian official news agency, Stefani, at a late hour, announced the Roosevelt-Churchill appeal to the Italian people to abandon the struggle.

What the developments would be was not suggested, but a Swiss telegraphic agency dispatch said there was much discussion about "non-military surprises." Foreign observers believed it would involve at least some rearrangement of the regime in an effort to bolster national morale.

A political writer for the Stefani agency, in a reply to the Roosevelt-Churchill message, declared that "feeble morale doesn't exist" but that the people regretted the lack of a greater quantity of arms with which to make the invader "pay a higher price in blood." He declared that if "the Allies want to batter Italy, they must do so with arms."

But wise money gave a more accurate index to Italian morale. At Milan, Italian stocks took a sharply weaker turn on the market and some shares went down as much as seventy-five points, others from ten to fifty points. Since July 9 the market has been irregular and weak.

General Assault Continues

JUL 17 1943

Twelve New Towns And Upwards of 20,000 Prisoners Taken in Sicily.

BRITISH EIGHTH SLUGS FORWARD

Nazis Seeking to Stave Off Disaster—Fighting Doggedly But With Little Air Support.

By Daniel De Luce

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 16. (AP)—Allied invasion forces, sweeping over 12 new towns and increasing their total of enemy prisoners to more than 20,000, advanced along all the Sicilian front today with the British Eighth Army slugging its way against German armored forces to a point within 15 miles of Catania.

(In London, the Daily Express said that it had learned that American and Canadian troops were pouring into the Catania plain after the capture of Vizzini to attack the main Axis flank defenses while the British Eighth Army continues its frontal assault.)

Virtually all German forces thus far officially identified as being in Sicily now are concentrated on the Catania Plain, seeking to stave off the strategic catastrophe that would be implied by the quick fall of the city itself.

Unsupported by their own air units, the Germans were reported fighting doggedly against growing odds.

Nazi Tank Force Defeated

Encountering units of the Hermann Goering armored division north of Lentini, where it had gathered to attempt a counterattack, the battlewise Eighth Army veterans of Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery hurled it back and inflicted severe losses to continue their northward surge up the island's east coast to the edge of the Catania Plain.

After dumping hundreds of tons of high explosives on Sicily and the Italian mainland, Allied planes today dropped leaflets bearing the message of President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill, who told the people the time had come "to decide whether Italians shall die for Mussolini and Hitler—or live for Italy and civilization."

Hundreds of thousands of the leaflets, carrying to the Italian people the virtual ultimatum of the Allied leaders to surrender honorably or be blasted out of the war, fluttered down from skies now largely dominated by Allied air forces.

Allies Confident

Observers, who believed the enemy had staked everything on the success of a counterattack, were confident that the Allies, with an "appreciable number of tanks" already in Sicily, could deal successfully with the armored forces sent by Hitler to help the Italians resist invasion.

Thereafter, observers declared, the enemy will be forced to launch a defensive rearguard action and begin a withdrawal from the island.

Although British gunners had smashed the first-line tanks of the Goering Division, the 15th German Armored Division was believed being held in reserve for further attempts to oppose the onrushing British columns.

The 15th division was said to be a collection of units originally destined for Tunisia. Organized after the fall of Tunisia, the units were given the name of the old 15th division which was wiped out in North Africa last May.

Earlier reports said the 15th German armored division entered the fight against the British along with the Goering division, but confirmation was lacking.

Vizzini Changes Hands Several Times

Other British troops ran into stubborn resistance at Vizzini, about 25 miles inland from the east coast at a vital road junction on the second line of communications to which the enemy had fallen back.

The town changed hands several times before the British finally brought it securely under their control, putting them in command of the central highway connecting the eastern and western fronts of the Axis A further British advance from Vizzini would immediately menace the towns of Militello and Scordia at the western entrance to the Catania plain.

While Axis troops sought desperately to halt the ground advance, the enemy was powerless to cope with the overwhelming might of Allied air and naval forces, whose ceaseless bombardment of Catania engulfed Sicily's ranking eastern port in flames.

The harbor city near the base of Mt. Etna was smoking like a volcano itself, according to the German radio, which reported the fuel dumps were ignited by repeated naval shelling and air attacks.

Warships Bombard Catania Airfield

Allied warships bombarded the Catania airfield and other coastal positions of the enemy while fleets of Allied sky raiders pounded the Axis at every point of concentration on the island and smashed at vital shipping and industrial centers on the Italian mainland, almost at will.

On the southwestern front, the American Seventh Army of Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton, Jr., which took five of the 12 new towns, some of them of the greatest strategic importance, was credited with the capture of 15,922 of the more than 20,000 prisoners now in Allied hands.

The Allied Headquarters communique said "severe losses were inflicted upon the enemy" by the American Seventh Army which "advanced several miles across difficult hill country and captured further important positions."

The British Eighth Army, the communique said, "made further progress against German troops who desperately contested every inch of the ground."

While the Allied war bulletin declared "the speed of the advance is very satisfactory," it called attention to the limiting factor of Allied transport and supporting weapons at the present stage of the campaign.

JUL 17 1943

Rome Says Decisive Battle Starts

(In a broadcast heard in London, the Rome radio declared that "the real and true decision for the island will be reached in a new battle which has already virtually started in the Catania plain.")

At an Allied Command post it was disclosed that in the British drive northward an important communication point near the coast was secured by the cooperation of air-borne and ground troops.

Official sources also disclosed that large numbers of tanks, guns and other booty had been captured.

Commenting on Italian claims that all Allied parachute troops had been rounded up, these sources said: "All air-borne operations that have been carried out accomplished their missions. It is true that the Italians have announced several parachute attacks in areas where no such attacks were ever made and they may have rounded up those non-existent parachutists."

With the announcement of the capture of 12 more towns, it was disclosed for the first time that parish priests have negotiated with Allied military authorities in enlarging the occupied zone after the Fascist bosses fled.

The towns listed in today's communique as captured include Canicatta, Niscemi, Vittoria, Campobello and Palma Dei Montechiaro, taken by the Americans; and Canicattini Bagni, Comiso, Biscari, Vizzini, Sortino, Modica and Riese.

Vizzini is on the slopes of the Iblei Mountains, about 25 miles west of Augusta.

Niscemi is about nine miles from Caltagirone on the same highway, southwest of Vizzini.

Canicatti is 15 miles northeast of Agrigento, on the extreme western flank and about 13 miles inland.

Vittoria is on the coastal railway, a few miles west of Comiso, which was seized earlier by the Allies.

Biscari is about six miles inland and east of Gela.

Campobello is to the rear of the American western front at Naro and Canicattini Bagni are on the Eighth Army front, the former about 12 miles southwest of Agusta and the latter about the same distance west of Syracuse.

Non-Stop Aerial Assault Continues

The non-stop aerial assault against Axis positions throughout the island continued in all its fury and spread deep in Italy itself.

The important mainland port of Naples was left a mass of smoking ruins by huge American and British sky fleets which dealt it the same staggering blow inflicted the previous day on the Sicilian supply port of Messina.

Thus in two days Allied bombs had pulverized one of the principal ports through which Axis supplies could be sent to Sicily and virtually the last point of entry for these supplies on the island, also blocking at least partially any attempt to evacuate enemy troops from Sicily through Messina.

Within 24 hours Allied coastal aircraft sank or severely damaged at least 20,000 tons of enemy shipping.

Sixteen enemy aircraft were destroyed yesterday against the loss of seven Allied planes, and an official announcement today said enemy aerial resistance was decreasing by the hour.

British Within 15 Miles Of Catania

JUL 17 1943

[By the Associated Press]

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, July 16—The hard-punching British Eighth Army was reported within fifteen miles of Catania in a northward surge up the Sicilian coast today after falling upon two German armored divisions and severely mauling them.

Allied headquarters announced the capture of twelve more towns, as Americans, British and Canadians advanced all along their moon-shaped front, and more than 20,000 prisoners were in Allied hands when Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's veterans administered another whipping to the Herman Goering and fifteen German armored divisions.

The American Seventh Army of Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton, Jr., seizing a number of towns on the western sector, some of them of the greatest strategic importance, had taken nearly 16,000 of the prisoners.

Enemy Smashed Back

This time Montgomery fell upon the Germans north of Lentini, where the Axis had gathered important armor for a strong counter-attack, and smashed them back.

Observers believed the enemy had staked his all on counter-attack.

With an "appreciable number of tanks" already in Sicily, observers were confident the German tank forces would be dealt with, and that thereafter the enemy would be obliged to fight a defensive rear-guard action while conducting a withdrawal from the island.

Fleet Guards Flank

The Axis appeared powerless to keep the Allied fleet in check as it gave strong seaward support to Montgomery's right flank and bombarded the enemy's coastal positions at will.

The Fifteenth German Armored Diviison was believed to be a collection of German units which had been assembled to go to Tunisia before its fall. It was then given the name of the enemy division that was wiped out in the Tunisian fighting.

Town Changes Hands

Another hot struggle also was reported inland about twenty-five miles from the east coast at Vizzini, one of the newly captured towns.

This town on a vital second line of communications upon which the Axis had been obliged to fall back, changed hands several times before the British got it securely in their control.

Continuation of the advance from Vizzini would quickly menace the town of Militello and Scordia at the western entrance of the Catanian plain. At Lentini the British already were fighting at the southern edge of that plain.

(The Rome radio, in a broadcast recorded in London, said "the real and true decision for the island will be reached in a new battle which has already virtually started in the Catania plain.")

"Severe losses were inflicted upon the enemy" by the American Seventh Army which "advanced several miles across difficult hill country and captured further important positions," the communique added.

Progress "Satisfactory"

Although the headquarters bulletin said the "speed of the advance is very satisfactory," it called attention to the limiting factor of Allied transport and supporting weapons at this stage of the operations.

Reviewing the day's operations here, observers said that the enemy may henceforth be compelled to fight a defensive rear-guard action while withdrawing from Sicily. They expressed the opinion that with only limited and doubtful forces at his disposal, the enemy had staked all on his one counter-attack at Augusta on Wednesday and that, as a result, his defenses are disintegrating.

With an appreciable number of tanks already in Sicily, these observers said, the Allies are in a position to deal satisfactorily hereafter with any counterattack the enemy may choose to mount. In addition, they declared, the Allied forces are likely to be further reinforced by air borne and seaborne troops.

An aerial supply service was inaugurated as a fleet of transport aircraft landed safely in Sicily at dawn on Wednesday last. As this achievement greatly alleviates transportation difficulties and relieves considerable personnel for combat duty, it is considered of paramount importance.

The twelve towns listed as captured by the communique included several already known to be in Allied hands. They were:

Canicattini Bagui, Comisco, Biscari, Canicatti, Vizzini, Vittoria, Niscemi, Campobello, Palma di Montechiaro, Sortino, Modica and Riesi.

Canicatti, Niscemi, Bagni, Vizzini, Vittoria, Campobello and tured in the American sector of the Palma Dei Montechiaro were capfront.

Astride Highway

The taking of Vizzini put General Patton's men astride the central highway connecting the Axis' eastern and western front. Vizzini is on the slopes of the Iblei Mountains and about twenty-five miles west of Augusta.

Niscemi is only about nine miles from Caltagirone, on the same highway, and is southwest of Vizzini.

Canicatti is fifteen miles northeast of Agrigento, on the extreme western flank, and about thirteen miles inland.

Vittorio is on the coastal railway and a few miles due west of Comiso, already reported captured.

Biscari is about six miles inland and east of Gela.

Campobello is to the rear of the American western front at Naro and Canicatti.

Sortino and Canicattini Bagni are on the Eighth Army front. Sortino is about twelve southwest of Augusta and Canicattini Bagni is about the same distance west of Syracuse.

The taking of Vizzini put the Eighth Army astride the central highway connecting the enemy's east and west fronts. Vizzini is on the slopes of the Iblei mountains about twenty-five miles west of Augusta.

Catania Battle Seen Vital

LONDON, July 16 (AP).—The Rome radio asserted today that the "real and true decision" for Sicily "will be reached in the new battle which has already virtually started in the Catania plain." It said that there lay "the most serious enemy threat" and that the Axis command "has taken all necessary measures for facing it." The broadcast was recorded by The Associated Press.

The Berlin radio said that 10,000 Allied parachute troops had been dropped behind Axis lines on the Catania plain and that all had been disposed of."

Allies Direct Fury At Port of Naples

JUL 17 1943

Bombers Transform City Into Blazing Inferno, Possibly Knocking It Out for War's Duration—Four Fortress Waves.

By Daniel De Luce

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 16. (AP)—Adopting the RAF's tactics of crushing and burning one Axis industrial city at a time, the great Allied North African Bomber Force yesterday turned its fury against Naples, Italy's chief seaport, and transformed it into a blazing inferno—possibly knocked it out as a factor in the waning Italian war effort.

Four Fortress Waves

Four huge waves of American Flying Fortresses deluged the stricken port with thousands of explosive and incendiary bombs, shattering the royal armory, demolishing acres of harbor and industrial installations and wreathing the city, famed for its one-time beauty, in smoke that billowed 20,000 feet into the air.

Allied headquarters estimated the damage done by the staggering blow to be as great as that inflicted upon the Sicilian port of Messina during the previous day and night, when an area two miles long and one mile wide was gouged from the heart of its harbor section.

It is through Naples, port for the capital of Rome, that the bulk of reinforcements and supplies for the hard-pressed Axis defenders of Sicily must be moved now that the more conventient route across from the toe of the Italian boot apparently has been knocked out by the devastating attack on Messina.

The enemy's aerial defense of Sicily itself rapidly was approaching complete collapse as clouds of Allied bombers and fighters swept the island, demoralizing Axis communications and shooting up everything in sight.

Few Axis Planes

"Very few enemy aircraft were seen during the day and few attempted to fight, although our fighters and bombers flew back and forth at will," said an Allied announcement.

"You get the impression that the whole of Sicily is slowly burning up," was the graphic description given by a crewman of one of the hundreds of medium bombers engaged in the deadly assault. "Targets are becoming scarcer by the hour."

Dovetailing with the ceaseless onslaught from North Africa, American Liberator bombers of the Middle East command struck at the foot of the Italian mainland, setting forest fires with their incendiaries and ripping apart three enemy airfields at Foggia. Many planes were caught on the ground and destroyed in a repetition of the pre-invasion aerial attack on Sicily.

Big RAF Lancasters flew the long route across the Alps to pour bombs on communications in northern Italy as the Allied aerial arm embraced the unhappy peninsula. The Italian High Command communique indicated that Genoa was the object of the Lancasters' bombs.

Blow at Naples

The daylight Fortress blow at Naples came when fires still were blazing from a night attack by RAF Wellingtons. As the unescorted American bombers criscrossed the famous port they were jumped by 23 enemy fighters, of which their gunners destroyed four. As they rained their bombs down on selected targets the smoke from innumerable fires rose until the last two waves of Fortresses were unable to observe the results.

Sergt. Morris Seiler of New York city said: "We plunked our eggs in anyway. I'm sure glad I wasn't on the Naples platform waiting for a train."

American Mitchell bombers carried out attacks on selected targets on Sicily. One of their heaviest blows hit the town at Paterno, near Catania on the east coast, against which the British Eighth Army is driving. Other Mitchell formations dropped nearly 100 tons of bombs on Palermo, important port on Sicily's northern coast, leaving a blanket of fire in the already ravaged city.

Warhawk, Lightning and Mustang fighters engaged in continuous sweeps behind the enemy lines on Sicily: their sharp-eyed pilots attacking and destroying scores of railroad cars and trucks and generally demoralizing Axis troop movements. Others kept careful watch over Allied ground troops throughout the invasion area. Many were operating from captured Sicilian airdromes that had been hurriedly repaired by Allied engineers.

In all yesterday's multitudinous activities, the Allied airmen destroyed 16 more enemy planes while themselves losing seven craft. The Italian radio claimed four four-engined bomb[illegible] were shot down over Naples, [illegible]t this was not confirmed fro[illegible] Allied sources.

Port A Shambles; Foggia Is Battered

JUL 17 1943

[By the Associated Press]

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, July 16—The great Italian mainland port of Naples lay in smoking ruins today, crushed under the same staggering Allied aerial assault that virtually wiped Messina from the soil of Sicily the previous day. Twenty-four solid hours of bombardment by the heaviest bomber formations from North Africa left Naples, fountainhead of enemy reinforcements and supplies for Sicily, a blazing inferno, its arsenal all but demolished and smoke rising more than 20,000 feet over the stricken city.

(An Italian communique reported that Naples, Foggia and Genoa were raided by Allied planes. As there was no mention of an attack on Genoa in Allied dispatches, it was possible that the Lancasters dropped their bombs on or near that northern city. The Italians said their fighters shot down four four-engined Allied planes over Naples.

204 Killed, Rome Says

(The Rome report said casualties at Naples were 204 killed and 390 injured.)

The Allied aerial offensive was spreading deep into Italy itself. While Naples was bearing the brunt of yesterday's smashing attack, American Liberator bombers from the Middle East tore into two important enemy airdromes in southern Italy by daylight and heavy RAF Lancasters swung down over the Alps from England to pulverize communications in northern Italy.

Medium bombers and fighter-bombers scourged the enemy in Sicily by night and day, raking road and rail communications and giving tight overhead protection to Allied forces fighting in the south and east of the island. Sixteen enemy aircraft were destroyed during the day, an Allied announcement said, against the loss of seven Allied craft.

Foggia Battered

Meanwhile, seventy Liberators, striking in three waves at Foggia airdrome on the Adriatic side of the Italian peninsula, "made a flaming shambles of the main and two satellite fields and left a large number of aircraft burning on the ground," an American communique at Cairo said.

Tremendous Battering

The Allies' famous one-two punch, delivered by four waves of American Flying Fortresses in daylight and by the RAF's Wellingtons at night, was employed to give Naples a tremendous battering.

The twenty-four-hour bombardment was described here as comparable to the previous day's "annihilation" attack on Messina, which literally destroyed an area two miles long and one mile wide.

Aerial photographs showed that an ammunition train had exploded in the Messina port area. Docks, warehouses and locomotive sheds still were seen burning furiously.

Air Resistance Declines

It was officially announced that enemy aerial resistance was decreasing by the hour. "Very few enemy aircraft were seen during the day and few attempted to fight, although our fighters and bombers flew back and forth at will, strafing transport and communications," an announcement said.

Besides the Royal Arsenal and torpedo factory at Naples, direct hits were reported on depots, storage buildings, a roundhouse and a railroad overpass in an area mushrooming with fires and explosions. The last two waves of Fortresses were unable to observe results because of smoke. Four of twenty-three enemy interceptors were shot down by the unescorted fortresses.

Caught By Surprise

"We plunked our eggs in, anyway," said Sergt. Morris Seiler, of New York. "I'm sure glad I wasn't on the Naples platform waiting for a train."

Squadron Commander Llewellyn T. Boatwright, Jr., of Brownwood, Texas, said his formation caught the Naples defenders "completely by surprise."

"It's as quiet in Sicily as Sunday night in a small town," reported Lieut. Lester J. Ruegsegger, of Salina, Kan., a Warhawk pilot participating in the continual sweeps behind the enemy lines by American Warhawk, Mustang and Lightning fighters. "I didn't see a single enemy plane and had only one burst of flak shot at me," he added.

Four Ships Damaged

These demoralizing forays caused damage to four enemy merchant ships at Termini, destroyed scores of railroad cars and trucks and damaged stations, barracks and bridges.

American Mitchells in two strong waves dropped almost one hundred tons of explosives on the city and port of Palermo. They reported that a blanket of fire spread over the city during the four hours the raids persisted.

Paterno, an eastern Sicilian town near Catania, which is the next objective of the British Eighth Army, received a severe blasting by Mitchells. "I could see fires caused by my own bombs spring up, and in the distance there were three or four fires in Catania," said Lieut. Sidney Cornsbee, of Capitole, Cal.

Flying Fortress gunners who scored victories in the Naples raid included Sergt. Merline S. McCloud of Maddock, N. J.

Allied coastal aircraft sank or damaged at least 20,000 tons of enemy shipping within 24 hours. One large merchantman was torpedoed off the north coast of Sardinia.

The daylight Liberator attack from the Middle East struck the main airdrome and two satellite fields at Foggia in Southern Italy, causing many fires and explosions. A communique said three enemy craft were left burning at one field and that bombs fell among twelve othercraft. Hangars, workshops and administration buildings were heavily hit.

On the trip to Italy the Liberators strewed incendiaries over the countryside, and upon the return journey reported seeing forest fires at Metaponto on the Gulf of Taranto. Four oil fires also were started. One plane was missing from the Middle East raids.

A British communique offered scant details of the long flight made by its four - engined Lancasters to hit northern Italy, saying merely that an electric transformer and switching stations were attacked. The purpose of the raid apparently was to upset communications between the northern Italian industrial areas and the invaded southern region.

JUL 2 1943

Report on Raids.

The Italian communique reported air attacks against Allied shipping, including the sinking of a 10,000-ton merchant ship by torpedo planes and damage to three more ships.

Allied air attacks were said to have been carried out on objectives in Alessandria, Savona, Parma, Bologna and Reggio Emilia.

The Rome bulletin said that four four-engined planes were knocked down at Naples and that two others crashed in the Parma and Modena areas. Eleven Allied torpedo planes also were listed as shot down during an attack on an Axis convoy.

The Rome report said casualties at Naples were 204 killed and 390 injured.

Halifax bombers of the Royal Air Force raided the Peugeot motor works in Montbeliard, France. The plants produce two-ton trucks and the output was second only to that of the Renault plant before Renault was flattened by air attack.

The Peugeot plant is reported to turn out between 6,000 and 8,000 trucks a year and employ 10,000 men.

Montbeliard is about ten miles south of Belfort in eastern France, near the Swiss border, and the German radio said in a broadcast recorded by the Associated Press that the raiders had violated Swiss territory.

Malta Downs Four Planes.

Valletta, Malta, July 16 (A.P.)—Allied intruders shot down twelve more enemy aircraft over Sicily and Italy on Wednesday night, an official report said today. The total of enemy planes destroyed by Malta-based aircraft since the Sicilian invasion thereby rose to 141.

U. S. Attacks Foggia.

Cairo, Egypt, July 16 (A. P.).—Striking in three waves at Foggia airdrome on the Adriatic side of the Italian peninsula, seventy Liberators of the United States Air Force "made a flaming shambles of the main and two satellite fields and left a large number of aircraft burning on the ground," an American communique said today.

The big bombers adopted a new technic on this journey—that of scattering incendiaries over the countryside. These were dropped on the outward trip, the communique said. On the return trip forest fires were observed at Metaponto on the Gulf of Taranto.

At Foggia, located on the east side of Italy opposite Naples, the communique said, hits were scored among the hangars, one of which was left burning, and on workshops and station buildings.

Wellington Bombers again swept over the west coast of Greece during Wednesday night, scoring direct hits on a merchant vessel in the Levkas Channel.

One Allied plane was reported missing from these and other operations.

Italians Assail Nazis

Say German Mines Barred Their Retreat From Sicily Front Lines

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 16 (AP).—Italian prisoners are complaining bitterly of the system of defense in Sicily by which they were put in the front line with a German mine field laid at their backs.

They said the Germans refused to tell them where the mines were located and remained well to the rear while the Italians had to bear the first shock of the Allied attack. The Italians suffered many casualties when they had to retreat through the mine fields.

U.S. Stopped 100 Tanks at Gela

Weary Troops Used Everything but Bare Hands to Save Sicily Beachhead.

With American Troops in Sicily, July 12 (Delayed) (A. P.).—Battling more than 100 tanks with everything but their bare hands and attacking while being attacked, weary American troops fought for hours yesterday to beat off any enemy drive which threatened to collapse the entire central sector of the American invasion front.

On three sides they fought desperately with their backs to the wall. Tanks literally ran over and around them, smashing their way to within 1,000 yards of the beachhead at Gela. But still the Yanks fought to whip the enemy. With magnificent courage, three tanks and a few field guns, they whipped the Italians and the Hermann Goering Panzer Division to a standstill.

Today this veteran American infantry division, toughened by the Tunisian campaign, has the situation in hand.

Shooting Point Blank.

At one crucial period late yesterday morning, artillerymen were shooting at point blank range over open sights to break up the enemy tank attack. Anti-aircraft guns were dug into position as the troops were digging in on the beach. A colonel was manning an anti-tank gun and staff officers were on the beach to see that ammunition and guns kept coming ashore. Even the Navy joined in with its big guns to help stop the enemy drive.

"In my opinion it was the greatest exhibition of guts and discipline in the history of the American Army," said Lieut. Col. Curtis of Amarillo, Texas.

More than thirty enemy tanks were knocked out in the day's fighting. The attack began at 8 A. M., when we had only three tanks ashore, one of them with a broken tread. We also had forty-two field guns and fifteen anti-tank guns. A great many more have come ashore since then.

Troops Use Grenades.

The Second Battalion withdrew 3,000 yards in the face of shelling from the enemy tanks and performed with the First Battalion in a compact defense. But the tanks came on, ran through their position and by-passed them. One cannon company arrived late in the morning to battle the tanks, while the troops were using grenades.

When the tanks withdrew late in the afternoon the regiment had not given up another inch of ground, although they had the enemy on three sides.

Then a battalion of Italians attacked on the right flank along the beach. In jeeps, command cars and trucks, a hastily formed defense force rushed to the danger point. Engineers were taken from the beach and sent in as combat troops. Some members of the division headquarters staff grabbed carbines and machine guns and went into battle. Together, they put the Italians to rout.

During the early morning fighting twenty German tanks came charging down from Gela Plain. The tanks shot up amphibious "ducks" and supply dumps while lunging for the beachhead. Then our field guns on the sand dunes opened up.

18 Tanks Knocked Out.

Our troops on the beach were ready with rifles, machine guns, and grenades in case the tanks came over the crest of the dunes, and engineers were ready to lay mines. But the artillery stopped the tanks by knocking out eighteen of them.

A force of Italians, meanwhile, was attacking on the left flank, but they were beaten off by our Rangers, supported by fire from a cruiser lying offshore.

Even while all this was going on, the Commanding General sent a message to our troops: "We attack tonight."

By nightfall our regiment had only nine rounds of mortar ammunition left, and the enemy was returning to the attack on both flanks, but our troops carried up ammunition under machine gun and shell fire. Then in the moonlight the yattacked. Most of our troops had had no sleep for more than forty-eight hours. They had had nothing to eat for two days except hard rations. But they attacked, and by dawn one regiment had captured Ponte Olivo Airport five miles north of Gela and another had driven nearer to Niscemi.

It is significant that the prisoners from the Goering Division were mostly youths in their early twenties, with little or no combat experience and very little training. Some military observers take this to mean that Hitler has committed his veteran divisions on the Russian front and they believe he has blundered.

Axis Putting Up Stiff Resistance Before Catania

Enemy Forces, Mostly Nazis, Battle Vainly to Hold Up Advancing British Army

AT A 15TH ARMY GROUP COMMAND POST, July 16.—The enemy is fighting fiercely to hold up the British 8th Army in its advance on the important town and port of Catania.

Throughout yesterday enemy forces, the majority of which were German, put up the stiffest resistance in an endeavor to prevent our troops getting through to the Catania plain, and there was exceptionally heavy fighting on the road leading north from Augusta before our armored units succeeded in breaking through. Later the motorized infantry followed and had to battle their way through very difficult defensive positions that the enemy had prepared.

There was also very heavy fighting yesterday at Vizzini-Licodia, which is about forty miles northwest of Syracuse. Our troops occupied the town, driving the enemy out, but before our troops could get firmly established the enemy launched a heavy counter-attack, which in turn forced our troops out of the village.

A ding-dong struggle for possession of the town developed, and the town changed hands several times during the day before our troops gained a hold in the late afternoon.

American troops have also made further advances and continue to deepen their bridgehead, although they have to move through a difficult, hilly country.

Duel With Nazi Tanks Fought By U. S. Ships

Gela, Sicily, July 11 (Delayed)—When you take something away from Italian soldiers, they shrug philosophically and back off to a new position. When you take something away from a German, he goes and gets his gang and comes back to let you know he doesn't like it.

Yesterday we took a big chunk of Sicilian real estate in which Adolf Hitler felt he had some remote property rights, and today he sent his flying gorillas over to show their muscle.

Blasts Rock Transports

Early in the morning a series of heavy blasts rocked our headquarters transport and tumbled us sleepy-eyed from our bunks. The transport continued to sway as every soldier grabbed his clothes and ran up on deck.

On each side of the vessel the blue Mediterranean was stained a dirty gray where air bombs had straddled the ship. Water bubbled and frothed where the bombs had exploded.

The surprise attack had knocked out several electric circuits and the ship's refrigeration system, but had done no other damage. Ack-ack guns had kept the Nazi wingmen too high to bomb accurately. But more were on the way.

Few Planes Slip Through

Close-circling Allied air cover turned most of them back. A few slipped through, however, flying so low at times that American planes overhead could not pick them out in time to intercept them.

By ones, twos or threes they sneaked through in straddling, hit-and-run raids, strafing and bombing hurriedly, and then swooping off in a storm of anti-aircraft bullets and shells.

Behind they left cursing troops, but few casualties, and the assault boats and beach parties continued unloading supplies, ammunition and vehicles, stopping only to leap into slit trenches when the enemy planes swept down.

Patton Goes Ashore

Lieut. George S. Patton, Jr., commander of the American Seventh Army, came ashore early today between raids. Twenty minutes after he waded ashore, a German bomb struck at the exact spot where he had landed.

▲ call rang out over our ship's public address system for a boat to go at once to station Number Three.

That was our signal. We were glad enough to leave. A few minutes before a German fighter bomber had dropped a second string of bombs off our bow, and the earth seemed a more welcome place than the sea.

Ships Duel With Tanks

We knew the Germans only a few hours before had launched a great tank attack toward the beaches. Coming to the aid of hard-pressed American army armored forces, navy cruisers and destroyers steamed to within a few hundred yards of the shore to shell the Nazi tanks.

It was one of the few cases in the war where naval vessels have engaged in duels with tanks ashore.

When we left our transport, we knew the beaches were still in our hands, but we did not know if the German drive had been stopped or merely interrupted.

Planes Strafe Beaches

Our assault boat held a coxswain, a jeep and a motorcycle and their drivers, Capt. Stanley Gates, of Webster Grove, Mo.; Alex Clifford, London Mail Mail correspondent, and myself.

We were one hundred yards from the ship when Captain Gates shouted, "Look at the shore!" Three Nazi planes had swooped from the sun and were strafing and bombing the beaches.

Shore crews scurried to safety, as the bombs exploded harmlessly in the sea, shooting great geysers of water skyward. Ground batteries sent a stream of bullets into the wing of one plane, but all three Germans flew away.

Our gunners eased back from their weapons, rubbing their shoulders.

They Wade Ashore

As the bottom grated against the sand we leaped into the knee-deep surf and waded ashore. The motorcycle and jeep splashed after us.

As far as the eye could reach the beach swarmed with sailors, soldiers, food, ammunition, gas dumps, artillery pieces and trucks moving the supplies inland. It looked like chaos, but it was organized "chaos."

Swiftly and certainly, despite a thousand mischances, the war stuffs were streaming steadily to the front.

Patton's Order of Day Terse

Read to Men En Route to Sicily, It Said: 'Keep Punching—God Is With Us.'

American Seventh Army Headquarters, Zero Hour (Delayed).—Lieut.-Gen. George S. Patton Jr., commander of the Seventh Army, told his men in an order of the day just before they hit Sicily's beaches to keep attacking.

When we came aboard we knew almost nothing. Of course we made guesses and discussed theories. Not until we were well out at sea—the center piece in a proud convoy with a screen of American warships all around us—did the secret begin to emerge.

There was the issue of Italian phrase books. That narrowed down the choice. For a day all over the ship you could hear people running through Italian verbs, pronouncing them with broad, honest American vowel sounds which I swear no Sicilian would ever understand.

Honor to Be Selected.

Then Lieut.-Gen. Patton wrote his secret order of the day and a colonel climbed a gun turret to read what he had written.

"We are indeed honored in having been selected by Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower as the American component of this new and greater attack against the Axis," the order said.

"We are teamed with the justly famous British Eighth Army which attacks on our right and we have for the Army group commander that veteran and distinguished soldier, General Sir Harold Alexander.

"When we land we will meet German and Italian soldiers whom it is our honor and privilege to attack and destroy.

"Many of you have in your veins German and Italian blood, but remember that these ancestors of yours so loved freedom that they gave up home and country to cross the ocean in search of liberty. The ancestors of the people we shall kill lacked the courage to make such a sacrifice and continued as slaves.

"Remmeber that we as attackers have the initiative. We must retain this tremendous advantage by always attacking, rapidly, ruthlessly, viciously, without rest. However tired and hungry you may be, the enemy will be more tired, more hungry. Keep punching. God it with us. We shall win."

Then we definitely were told what most of us already had suspected—it was Sicily.

In a curious way our spirits rose abruptly as soon as we knew our destination for certain.

There was spaghetti for lunch that day and it led to a good deal of rather obvious joking. The same afternoon maps, plans and aerial photographs were issued and we began studying the thing in earnest.

We became familiar with the geography of Gela, the large village that was the center point of the American bridgehead area. We discussed the possibilities of its thousand-foot pier from which in peacetime coastal schooners took aboard Gela's exports of sulphur and wine. We heard about curious, irregular sandbars that the waves and currents build up near the shore.

We memorized the positions of the airfields of Comiso, Biscari, Licata and Porto Olivo.

We saw how the Americans' plan was integrated with plans of the Eighth Army and airborne troops.

There was General Patton himself, 57 years old, typically American in appearance, with gray hair, a bald patch and wrinkles at the corners of his eyes.

He was very genuinely anxious to avoid personal publicity and would not allow himself to be quoted, because he doesn't believe generals should be quoted.

But he is keen for his troops to receive recognition for what they do. More than once he has written long letters to the parents of enlisted men who have been killed under him.

Now his men are going ashore and he is standing on the bridge peering after them in the darkness. It is a big and anxious moment for General Patton.

Sicilians Urged To Behave By Town Crier

By Don Whitehead

[Associated Press Correspondent]

With American Troops in Sicily, July 10 (Delayed)—While snipers were still shooting at the invading Americans from windows and rooftops, a barefoot town crier walked the streets of Gela shouting to the inhabitants that they would be treated "decently and honorably" if they behaved themselves.

It is difficult to get an accurate picture of the people's reaction to the Yanks swarming over their native soil. Some were overjoyed to see the American troops and when the opposition was overrun they poured into the streets to cheer and kiss the soldiers.

Instructed By Yank

Lieut. Mario Brod, who speaks Italian fluently, instructed the town crier on what to say and went with him on the rounds of the city.

They ordered the people to stay in their houses and obey orders. "It was necessary for them to stay inside for their own protection as well as ours," Brod said.

Sergt. John W. Schultz, of Altadena, Cal., and Alfred Grey, of New York City, were covering the street where the snipers were shooting when the people rushed out of the houses.

"They kissed us on the cheeks as the shooting was still going on," Schultz said.

Italian Tanks In Action

While the crier was broadcasting his mesage to the people, Italian tanks entered the city in a counter-attack. Schultz grabbed him and dragged him into a doorway while Rangers beat off the attack.

"He didn't want to go inside," Schultz said. "He wanted to keep on shouting his message even though fighting was going on."

One of the first things the troops did when they entered the city was to release about twenty prisoners from jail. Some of them were anti-Fascist political prisoners who promptly offered to help the Americans.

Reported Pleased

"Many people here are only paying lip service to Fascism," Brod said. "They are genuinely happy that the Americans are here. While that is true here, it may not be true in other parts of the island."

Apparently the people are well informed on the North African situation and knew the Allied armies had control of the entire African continent.

Looked Like Stalingrad.

With the American Forces in Comiso, Sicily, July 15 (Delayed).—Two days of heavy fighting won for the American soldiers the huge airfield at Comiso—the first airfield in Sicily to fall into our hands.

The smashed, blacked buildings, the pitted field of fallen wires, glass, rubble and debris-filled hangars reminds one of the pictures of Stalingrad.

Italians and a handful of Germans offered stubborn resistance in the early hours and then began withdrawing from the field and buildings to the outskirts of the field itself, where they attempted to continue resistance.

Hours after the field was in our hands Messerschmitts continually were over the field, strafing and occasionally bombing.

"There is no rest for the weary," said Private Francis G. Hermon of Providence, R. I., who worked for seventeen years in the treasurer's department of the Providence Journal.

There were at least a dozen enemy planes overhead when they were engaged by a few P-38s. In the space of five minutes three enemy flyers were shot down, but not before a couple of them came swooping down near the field.

"It's a hell of a feeling, isn't it?" asked Private Raphael Degennaro, formerly employed in the circulation department of the New York Journal-American, as we ran for shelter.

Yanks on duty on the field were Privates Phillip Disano of Providence; Paul Caughlin of Norwood, Mass; Louis Pastore, New York city; Edward D. Niedziela of Wallingford, Conn., and John Kruszewski, New London, Conn.

With American Forces in Sicily (Undated). — Two young American paratroopers returned to this Armored Post Command tonight after spending seventy-two hours behind the enemy's lines disrupting communications, knocking out guns and gathering information.

They are Sergt. Henry Cummings, 22 years old, of Eunice, La., and Private Douglas Clark, 20, of 308 West 26th street, New York city, who became separated from the rest of their units when they jumped behind enemy lines.

"We had to shoot our way out of a couple of tight spots," Private Clark said.

"One time we were hiding alongside the main road behind a tree when a whole column of Italian trucks passed by us. We could have reached out and touched them," he said.

"The last truck stopped right by our tree. The driver spotted us and yelled, so I let him have it. Then the other guy started yelling for help, but we didn't want him to give our position away so we poured a little lead into him. He stopped yelling.

"Then we high-tailed it out of there, crawling on our bellies and all the time cutting wires and doing all the damage we could."

Italians Found Shot In Back By Germans

By John A. Moroso
Associated Press Correspondent

At the Southern Sicilian Front, July 11 (Delayed)—We had started our advance across the hot, dry Sicilian sand dunes near Scoglitti when the expected Axis planes came overhead to comb our ships.

They seemed to come from every direction. One squadron numbered twenty-four, while others were grouped in fours. From our hill we looked seaward to witness one of the most powerful naval anti-aircraft barrages in history.

Bombs Miss Ships

We knew it would take courage for those planes to get in close enough to drop their eggs and we watched them carefully while they were still over land. Four dropped their bombs, banked right, and started back to base. The bombs fell behind us, scaring the Italian prisoners.

The rest of the planes flew on, circling and diving. When they let go the splashes told plainly that not an American ship had been hit. The same performance was repeated a few minutes later with no casualties. Our unit decided to ignore them, and tramped forward.

We were to advance thirteen miles to get a bit of high ground.

Italians Rounded Up

As the troops plodded along under the merciless sun, they rounded up some of our men and scores of Italians who had hidden in vineyards. Some of these hapless, ragged soldiers fired a few shots in our direction and then gave up.

We found one Italian with five bullet holes in his back. He said a German officer shot him down when he tried to surrender.

(Later we found several score of Italians shot in the back by Germans.)

This dying man declared the Germans had stolen food and left the area before we came. The only ones left, he said, were a few officers bossing Italian units and some gun crews at strategic points.

Battery Opens Fire

One of these gunners opened fire with a battery of 88's. Shells whistled overhead toward our ships, but no hits were made.

During part of the journey we took roads that led through enemy-held territory and eventually reached our first objective. The outfit had walked thirteen miles, taken its objective and had already left for the next objective, eight miles away—a piece of high ground overlooking Comiso city and airport.

Many tales of bravery were heard. One concerned an unidentified soldier who broke his leg when a boat capsized 500 yards off shore. He swam ashore and tried to join the troops in the advance. Pain finally stopped him.

Corp. Russell F. Looney, 26 years old, of Newcastle, Va., a paratrooper, had joined our gang with a sprained ankle. He said: "I came with the paratroops and was knocked out in the landing near a cactus plant. An Italian soldier shot at me and I killed him with two hand grenades. I walked all night and didn't see any one. This morning I found these men."

First Lieut. William Edmondson of Berthoud, Col., said an Italian soldier surrendered and asked permission to visit his home to get two suitcases and civilian clothes for a trip to New York.

The commanding officer finally stopped at a hut on the side of the trail and put up the battalion's first command post. The hut was checked for booby traps and was so dirty we did our work outside under an olive tree.

It was one of the oddest command posts of the war. It had no communications, only three officers and a handful of men.

The commanding officer ordered an advance. I stayed behind to rest and watch the naval bombardment proceed. The navy was tearing up strong points miles ahead.

Sicilians Don't Look Upon Yanks As Conquerors

By Alexander Clifford
Representing the Combined British Press
[Distributed by the Associated Press]

With the Americans in Southern Sicily, July 15 (Delayed)—We are well dug into Sicily now. That first dangerous stage when we merely had narrow beaches, has been surmounted.

The center point of this coast is Gela, an ancient town which lies on a ridge alongside the sea. On the other side it drops to a flat fertile plain where the first and fiercest battles of this front were fought.

Girls Are Beautiful

Plenty of inhabitants are still here. They wander round the streets all day, moving belongings.

The old women with brown wrinkled faces and white hair wrapped in black shawls look almost like witches. But the young girls are beautiful and their clothes are surprisingly smart and modern.

The attitude of the Sicilians to Americans is rather strange. Naturally we didn't expect to be enthusiastically welcomed, but there is a general atmosphere of politeness and friendliness which surely is unusual in war.

They're Not Afraid

Quite clearly, these people do not regard the Americans as conquerors at all. They regard them as authorities who have simply taken over from the Italians, and nothing more. They are at least not afraid.

It is only fair to say that the Americans have behaved better than any troops I have ever seen. They have so far given the Sicilians no reason whatever to be afraid, and it is proving to be a good policy.

Italian prisoners are odd, too. They seemed no different from the thousands of prisoners I have seen in Libya. There was the same lack of interest in war and the same apparent relief that for them it was now all over.

Coast Heavily Fortified

Italian resistance here has been neither better nor worse than might have been expected on the basis of the experience in Libya. The coast really was fortified with guns, searchlights, mines and wire. All around there were pillboxes, emplacements, tank traps across roads, and well-placed observation posts.

The positions were well manned and there was an adequate communications system. As long as the Italian gunners were safely behind their concrete they went on firing well.

But when the hard crust of resistance was crushed on the beaches their whole defense system seemed to collapse.

Nazi Tanks Attack

On the second day here we had the first taste of the Germans. Some thirty German tanks—Marks II and III and some IV's—made a bold bid to invade our beach and wipe out our entire landing. They swooped down from the hills northeast of Gela and got almost into the trees on the eastern slope of Gela's cigar-shaped ridge before they were brought to a halt.

At first three American tanks engaged them. Several German tanks erupted violently in flames. But three against thirty wasn't enough so the American 105-mm. field guns swung down their barrels and fired at the enemy over open sights.

They did superbly. Something like nineteen German tanks were destroyed and the rest retired. That engagement saved our beaches.

With magnificent detachment, the Americans went on unloading right through the fight.

Little Air Opposition

Our fighter protection had been doing a wonderful job during all the tricky landing business. On the first day we never saw so much as an enemy plane, and we had expected continuous bombing. On the second day, enemy air forces recovered themselves and adopted a policy of hit-and-run raids, apparently all they could afford to do.

Half a dozen Messerschmitts came hedge-hopping along the beach with machine guns blazing. One was hit by small-arms fire and catapulted onto the beach in a smudge of purple smoke.

A furious bayonet attack in the starlit darkness was necessary Sunday night to force the enemy away from their foothill positions and capture the Ponte Olivo airfield.

it was impossible to get a vehicle through the soft sand of the beaches," he added, "but inch by inch the men drove their trucks through to the assault points.

"Occasionally a jeep or a truck would flounder but along would come a bulldozer and pull it out."

Airfield Built In 24 Hours

[Distributed by the Associated Press]

With the American Seventh Army in Southern Sicily, July 14 (Delayed)—Twenty-four hours after they landed in Sicily under strafing attacks by Nazi planes, American soldier engineers accompanying the invasion troops had built and ready for service a complete landing field for Allied fighter planes.

"We just grabbed the flattest wheat field we could find and went to work," said Lieut. Edwin Munroe of Talladega, Ala.

"In twenty-four hours we had a taxi trail all around the field, the runway ready and gasoline, ammunition and oil to supply the planes.

"Our equipment was landed the day after the invasion or we could have been in operation even sooner. We landed at 11 A. M. one day and by 5 P. M. that same day we were turning that wheat patch into an airport."

Paratroop Chaplains Jumped From Planes With Communion Sets

With the Glider Forces in Sicily, July 14 (Delayed).—Flying British chaplains went into action on Sicily from gliders and parachute transport planes in the early stages of the Allied invasion of this island.

One padre parachuted down with invading troops carrying a communion set in a special container.

Three other chaplains accompanied soldiers into action in gliders, wearing their traditional clerical collars and carrying communion sets.

Amid the confusion of the fighting in southeastern Sicily, an Italian unit approached the Rev. Allan Buchanan, Episcopal chaplain, while he was attending the wounded, and asked him to lead them to the British lines so they could surrender.

He had no idea where the nearest British party was, but acceded to the request and walked around with the Italians until he found some Allied troops.

No Roads From Africa.

An Allied Force Command Post in North Africa, July 16 (A. P.).—The residents of Sicily stared in amazement and commented, "There are no roads from North Africa, how did you get here?" when American Army trucks, jeeps and other vehicles rolled down the glistening white highways.

The story was related by Phil Stern, Brooklyn photographer for the Army newspaper Stars and Stripes, who accompanied the troops on the south coast assault and returned to North Africa by plane.

"I am sure the Italians thought

DARBY REFUSES COMMAND

Rangers' Chief Accepts D. S. C. but Declines a Colonelcy

WITH THE UNITED STATES SEVENTH ARMY IN SOUTHERN SICILY, July 15 (Delayed) (AP)—Lieut. Col. William O. Darby, leader of the American Rangers, accepted a Distinguished Service Cross from Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton Jr. yesterday, but declined his offer of a full colonelcy and the command of an infantry combat command.

It was the third time that the young Ranger Chieftain from Fort Smith, Ark., had turned down similar offers. Twice during the Tunisian campaign he rejected offers to command combat teams.

"I feel I can do more good with my Ranger boys than I could with a combat team," he explained.

He waded into several scraps as his men swept through Gela on the invasion day, capturing 500 prisoners. Lieut. Col. Darby and eighteen Rangers cornered fifty-two Italian officers in one hotel and went in after them with hand grenades and automatics. When it was all over the surviving Italians came out with their hands up.

ITALY CRITICAL OF GERMANY

Minister Declares Sicilian Defense Up to Nazis.

Berne, July 16 (A. P.).—Rome has let it be known clearly that the battle of Sicily is Germany's fight.

On top of the continued pessimistic tone of the Fascist press, preparing the people for further setbacks, Minister of Culture Alessandro Pavolini added an appeal to Berlin which implied both criticism and a lack of Italian ability or will to support the struggle alone.

Germany is "defending her own soil in Sicily," said Signor Pavolini in the newspaper Il Messaggero.

Dispatches from Rome further alluded, for the first time since the invasion of Sicily, to the reaction of the Italian people against propaganda. Some newspapers, trying to lighten the gloom, have published frivolous articles like the one that parachute troops were sent on ahead to locate good tennis courts for the relaxation of advancing Allied troops.

"This does not react well on the people," said a Rome report to the Neue Zuercher Zeitung. This was the first published confirmation of private information in foreign diplomatic circles that when the theory of invasion became a reality, the propagandist-inspired optimism turned into quick gloom and apathetic resignation.

Italians Gloomy Over Future.

Despite references to counter movements on the plains of Catania, the Fascists continued to talk gloomily about the military situation.

Guido Baroni in Il Popolo di Roma told the people that they must realize that the situation on the eastern front is such that Italy could count only on her present fighting resources plus what might come from Germany proper — in other words Axis troops cannot be withdrawn from the Balkans, France or other points that Berlin is busily trying to guard.

Although Germany was reported to be sending reinforcements to Italy, editorial comment tended to support reliable private information from Rome and Berlin that the Nazis are basing their present plans of strategy on the supposition that Italy can be put out of the war.

Signor Baroni paid tribute to American resources. He said Italy's food prospects are not comparable to those of England after France fell because "we don't have the prospect of American provisioning." Here again, Italy must count on continental resources which Baroni avoided praising.

Fascist Editor Asks Change.

Fascist Editor Roberto R. Farinacci, making the first open attack on Italian military leadership since the start of the war, demanded a change in generals and a shake-up in the Fascist party hierarchy last night, dispatches from Rome disclosed.

Writing in the newspaper Regime Fascista, the former party secretary demanded that Italy's best forces be rushed to Sicily along with the most able, prepared and resolute leaders.

The increasingly gloomy tone of the Italian press generally was reported to have resulted in mounting pessimism and apathy among the Italian people.

10,000 'Chutists 'Disposed Of'

London, July 16 (AP)—The German radio reported today in a broadcast heard by the Associated Press that 10,000 Allied parachute troops had dropped behind Axis lines on the Catania plain and that all had "been disposed of." (An Allied communique yesterday reported glider and parachute troops had made new landings in Sicily, presumably in this area.)

VITAL RAILWAYS OF SICILY RUINED

London, July 16 (A. P.).—Some of the most vital rail lines of Italy and Sicily have been knocked out by the unprecedented Allied air campaign, the Air Ministry announced today. In a report on photographic reconnaissance last Monday after day and night poundings which began with the assault last Saturday, the Air Ministry said:

1. The main line track from Palmero to Syracuse has been destroyed.

2. The main line from Messina to Catania was blocked.

3. The main line from Messina to Palermo was cut near the junction with the main Catania line.

On the toe of Italy's boot, the main line south of Reggio Calabria was damaged and railways sidings of the south ferry terminus of San Giovanni were destroyed by direct hits of the Liberators.

"Just as the Axis is finding it more and more difficult to use the airfields of Sicily," the Air Ministry said, "their rail communications are becoming more and more unworkable at a time when they are of vital importance to the Sicilian campaign."

Allied Gains Discounted

[By the Associated Press]

London, July 16—The Berlin radio quoted Nazi Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels today as warning the German people against "defeatists" who, he said, are spreading propaganda "exaggerating real or alleged enemy successes."

The announcer read excerpts from an article written by Goebbels for his weekly paper, Das Reich, in which he declared that recent Allied victories, "by comparison with our decisive successes in this war, are only of secondary importance."

"Trying To Catch Up"

"Now, as before," Goebbels said, "Germany and her allies are fighting with far greater success than the enemy, who is only trying desperately to catch up with us."

Railway Yards In France Hit By Americans

Medium Bombers Visit Abbeville, France—RAF Crosses Alps.

LONDON, Saturday, July 17—(AP)—United States medium bombers smashed at the railway yards at Abbeville, France, yesterday, while reports of a Swiss air alarm early today indicated another RAF night attack on Italy.

Move In At Dusk

Moving in at dusk with a thick blanket of Allied fighters, the American bombers started fires in the German-occupied railway area as British and Dominion fighters engaged German interceptors, a communique said. Three Focke-Wulf 190s were destroyed by the Allied fighters, while one bomber was missing.

The Swiss alarm was reported from Zurich while later dispatches reported alerts sounded in Lugano in Southern Switzerland and Basel. The Italian shortwave radio also shut down twice—indicating that Italy might be getting a first hand demonstration of the mighty Allied air power that President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill told the Italians about in calling on them to overthrow Mussolini.

Additional details on Thursday night's raid upon Italy were released by the Air Ministry which said the attacks were on electrical nerve centers and closely tied up with the battle of Sicily. They were calculated to have an immediate effect on the Italian railway system which is largely electrified.

Three of the four transformer stations hit were in the neighborhood of Bologna, one of the most important rail junctions in Italy. Through it runs the Brenner Pass line from Munich by which reinforcements from Germany must travel.

Another attack was 20 miles north of Genoa on the main line serving the Italian west coast and feeding one of the two principal routes of supplies to Sicily.

The bombardment of Abbeville followed a night attack by the RAF which cut an arc of destruction through occupied territory from the low countries to northern Italy.

In hitting Abbeville Junction four important rail lines and control points for all rail traffic to the north were attacked.

It was the home grounds of crack Nazi air squadrons but few of the planes were seen.

The junction had been bombed three times before by Flying Fortresses.

Hit Motor Works

The RAF's big bombers which have been following a practice of knocking out German war plants in rotation, picked off a brand new target in the moonlight last night, delivering what a communique described as a concentrated and effective attack on the great Peugeot motor vehicle works at Montbeliard, France.

Montbeliard, near the Swiss frontier 10 miles south of Belfort, was raided for the first time.

The Peugeot works are second only to the Renault plant, and since the virtual destruction of the latter factory, Peugeot has become one of the key spots of Hitler's reshuffled war industry. The plant employs 10,000 workers and turns out 6,000 to 8,000 trucks a year.

Cross the Alps

While auxiliary intruders were plastering airfields and railways in Germany, France and the low countries, home-based Lancasters jumped across the Alps, hitting an electric transformer and switching stations at an unidentified site. This was the northern end of a squeeze joined in on Southern Italy by Mediterranean-based bombers.

Seven bombers were lost in the night's operations from English bases.

Returning airmen said anti-aircraft fire at the Peugeot works was negligible, and the Air Ministry News Service said the Germans apparently had few guns to spare for defense outside their homeland.

Bomb hits were concentrated in a group of buildings, and smoke from fires rose 2,000 feet. Bright moonlight made it almost like daylight, the pilots reported.

Bombers Pound French Plant, North Italy

[By the Associated Press]

London, July 16—Halifax bombers of the RAF attacked the Peugeot motor vehicle works at Montebliard in France last night, the Air Ministry announced today, and Lancasters swung across the Alps to pummel targets in northern Italy.

The Peugeot motor plants produce two-ton trucks and the output was second only to that of the Renault plant before the latter was flattened by air attack.

Near Swiss Border

The plant is reported to turn out between 6,000 and 8,000 trucks a year and employs 10,000 men.

Montbeliard is located about ten miles south of Belfort in eastern France, near the Swiss border, and the German radio said in a broadcast recorded by the Associated Press that the raiders had violated Swiss territory.

In Italy the Lancasters blasted an electric transformer and switching stations, the announcement said, but the site of the attack was not given.

Airfields Railways Hit

Auxiliary raids by RAF Intruders on airfields and railways in Germany, France and the low countries also were reported.

Seven bombers were listed as missing. One enemy plane was shot down.

The communique said weather over Montebeliard was clear and preliminary reports indicated the attack was "concentrated and effective."

Keeping up the air offensive, two waves of Allied planes swung across Dover Strait this morning in the direction of Boulogne and Calais.

Last night's foray by the fighter-bombers was their second assault in as many nights against landing fields and rail targets.

20 Locomotives Shot Up

At least a dozen airfields were plastered with bombs and strafed with machine-gun fire and twenty locomotives were shot up, an Air Ministry announcement said.

One of the airdromes attacked was in the Paris area. Another airfield at St. Dizier was bombed three times by air formations, which then roared off to strafe railway lines and gun emplacements.

A Beaufighter was credited with destroying a German ME-110 over the Rheims area.

Minor enemy air activity was reported over Britain during the night, bombs being dropped at scattered points in southeast England, East Anglia and the Greater London area.

Gen. Gerow Directs U. S. Army in Britain

LONDON, July 16 (AP)—Maj. Gen. Leonard Townsend Gerow, former chief of the United States Army staff's war plans division and later commander of the 29th Division, was named today commander of the expanding United States forces in Britain as they were being primed to strike at the continent.

He succeeded Maj. Gen. Russell P. Hartle who, as commanding officer of U. S. field forces in the European theatre, brought the first U. S. troops to Europe.

The appointment came as a birthday present for the Virginia Military Institute graduate who was 55 years old yesterday.

3024 - 6157

LONDON, July 16 (AP).—Major General Leonard Townsend Gerow has succeeded Major General Russell P. Hartle as commanding officer of United States field forces in the European theater, Army headquarters announced today. Hartle's new assignment was not disclosed.

Gerow (pronounced ja-roe) is a fifty-four-year-old native of Petersburg, Va., and, like General George C. Marshall, chief of staff, is a graduate of Virginia Military Institute.

Headed War Plans Division

General Gerow is a former chief of the United States Army staff's war plans division, a post which he took on Dec. 16, 1940. Assigned to command the 29th Division on Feb. 24, 1942, he was succeeded in the war plans division post by General Dwight D. Eisenhower, now commander in chief in the Mediterranean theater.

General Gerow has a record of service on the Mexican border, in the World War, in the Philippines and in China, as well as at various Army posts in the United States.

As chief of the war plans division he had to have at his finger tips the plan of combat for every possible part of the world where American troops might be called upon to fight.

Known to his men as "General Gee" and called Townsend by his old friends, General Gerow is regarded as a field soldier who is a stickler for perfection in training. He has a brother, Lee Saunders Gerow, who is a brigadier general.

During the Carolina maneuvers of 1942 he was known as one of the hardest working officers, up by lantern light to shave, and out in the "battle area" by jeep to urge his men along. He celebrated his fifty-fourth birthday by "capturing" three prisoners himself during these war games.

"You can't throw spitballs at the Japanese and the Germans," he said, in explaining his preference for being out among his troops.

In the World War he won the Distinguished Service Medal and the decoration of the French Legion of Honor for his work in Paris as officer in charge of purchasing and disbursing for the signal corps.

Fears War News Leak

Laborite Opposes Giving Reporters Advance News on Battles

LONDON, July 16 (AP).—Thomas E. Naylor, Laborite, served notice in the House of Commons today that he would ask Prime Minister Churchill to warn British commanders against giving war correspondents advance information such as General Dwight D. Eisenhower gave on the Sicilian invasion.

Referring to Eisenhower's mid-June conference at which he tipped off newsmen, Naylor said he would ask the Prime Minister "whether, in view of the possibility of such advance information leaking out to the enemy notwithstanding its non-publication in the press, steps will be taken to warn British commanding officers against giving information to newsmen concerning prospective military operations."

A 'Former Governor of New York' Is Reported Aboard Invasion Vessel

LONDON, July 16 (AP).—Alexander Clifford, writing for the combined British press from the American 7th Army readquarters in Sicily, said in a dispatch today that a former Governor of New York was aboard the vessel on which he sailed with invasion troops. The dispatch did not name the former Governor.

Britains Give U.S. Big Military Depot

LONDON, Saturday, July 17 (AP)—The United States Army announced today that the British government had turned over to it a great military depot in England on reverse lend-lease.

Acres of fireproof buildings constructed of British and American material will house quartermaster and ordnance stores and maintenance shops.

The quartermaster section of the depot will be directed by Major George J. Scott of New Britain, Conn.

The warehouses were described as comparable to those of Detroit motor plants.

Doubts Racial Discrimination

LONDON, July 16 (AP)—Rudolph Dunbar of Baltimore, representing The Associated Negro Press of America, told Secretary Stimson today that he believed racial discrimination had been applied extensively against American Negro troops in Britain and asked if the Secretary could do something about the situation which, Mr. Dunbar said, had resulted in "very low morale" among the Negro soldiers.

Mr. Stimson said that his understanding of the facts did not agree with Mr. Dunbar's, but, he added, "I expect to see the colored troops over here. I have made it a particular point to visit them in the United States and I certainly shall coninue to do so over here."

Lifeboat Parachuted To 6 Flyers in Dinghy

London, July 16 (A. P.).—During a furious dogfight, a lifeboat was parachuted from a plane yesterday for the rescue of six dinghy-riding airmen who had been forced to abandon their Wellington bomber thirty-four hours earlier, the Air Ministry said today.

The lifeboat was dropped within sight of the French coast by an air-sea rescue plane, and its escorting Typhoons destroyed two Focke-Wulf 190s in the fight. Later, Spitfires escorting a rescue launch to the lifeboat scared off more than thirty enemy planes without a fight.

New Polish Premier For Accord With Russia

London, July 16—(A. P.).—Polish Prime Minister Stanislaw Mikolajczyk declared today it is "the sincere wish of the new Polish government that relations with Russia be re-established and that his regime would not stand in the way of any one attempting to settle the dispute."

Beveridge Back in London.

London, July 16 (A. P.).—Sir William H. Beveridge, author of the British post-war social security plan, returned to England yesterday after a two-months visit to the United States and Canada.

Sulzberger in London

LONDON, July 16 (AP).—Arthur Hays Sulzberger, president and publisher of "The New York Times," arrived here today from Soviet Russia, where he visted the fighting front on a mission in behalf of the Red Cross. He flew by way of Cairo. Accompanying him was James B. Reston, editorial assistant.

King's Secretary Resigns

LONDON (Saturday) July 17 (AP).—Sir Alexander Hardinge, private secretary to the King since 1936, resigned today on the advice of his physicians. Before his retirement, the King made him Knight of the Grand Cross of the Order of the Bath. He will be succeeded by Sir Alan Lascelles, who has been his assistant.

Swiss Down 2 British Planes

BERN, Switzerland, July 16 (AP).—The Swiss government announced today that two British bombers which fell on Swiss soil three days ago were knocked down by Swiss anti-aircraft fire. The fourteen dead crew members were buried yesterday with full military honors.

Withdrawal Denied

Stockholm, July 16 (AP)—Italian commentators are making it clear that Germany is not transferring a single man or plane from the Russian front and that the Italians in the main are defending themselves, Rome dispatches to the Dagens Nyheter said today.

German Reserves Smashed

JUL 17 1943

Reds Add Six to Ten Miles More in Advance on Nazi Base.

PROGRESS ALSO MADE AT KURSK

Overall Enemy Losses Placed at 62,000 Men, 3,247 Tanks And 1,766 Planes.

By Lynn Heinzerling

LONDON, Saturday, July 17. (AP)—Smashing through new German reserves hastily rushed into the threatened Orel area, Russian forces added six to ten miles yesterday in their advance on the vital city which the Germans have been fortifying for a year and a half.

The Soviet midnight communique and a special bulletin earlier said the advancing Soviet troops met 11 counter-attacks with concentrated fire power and repulsed the Germans with heavy losses.

Within 15 Miles of Orel

Previous announcements had told of gains of 12 to 28 miles on the Orel front, and one Russian broadcast, recorded by Reuters, said the Soviets had reached a point within 15 miles of the city as they pushed in from three sides.

(The British radio said that the plight of Orel was so desperate the Germans were forming a "taxicab army" using every type of truck and automobile to rush troops northward and eastward of Orel in an attempt to stem the Russian drive. The broadcast was heard by the United States Foreign Broadcast Intelligence Service).

The Germans were reported frantically strengthening their lines on the Orel-Bryansk railway which also was menaced by the Soviet counter-offensive.

Stalin Visits Front

The Reuters Moscow correspondent said that Premier Stalin made a special visit to the Orel front recently where he personally directed the plans for the present Soviet drive.

The midnight bulletin recorded by the Soviet monitor said that in one sector of the Orel area the Red Army shattered 36 of 80 tanks flung at them by the Germans and routed two enemy regiments.

An "advance to some extent" in the Kursk area south of Orel was reported in the special bulletin while the midnight communique said the Germans lost 2,000 men in a Russian attack that resulted in the capture of an enemy defense sector.

Twenty-five German tanks were disabled or hit by the attackers while prisoners were taken and war material captured in this thrust.

American Sherman and British Churchill tanks were reported spearheading the Red Army drive.

Enemy's Losses Grow

It was presumed that the midnight bulletin's total of 2,000 Germans killed, 61 tanks disabled and four planes destroyed were in addition to tabulations given in the earlier special communique. This would boost overall German losses in 12 days to about 62,000 men, 3,242 tanks, and 1,766 planes.

In the Belgorod direction where the earlier German offensive had been smashed there were only "intensive reconnaissance activities," the communique said.

The German radio said Marshal Semeon Timoshenko was directing the Russian attack which "is now extended to the whole Orel bulge." The broadcast by Transocean's military correspondent, Capt. Ludwig Sertorius, recorded by the Associated Press, admitted that the Russians had begun counter-attacks in the sector south of Orel.

The Germans suggested that another Russian offensive was in the making in the Leningrad area. Berlin broadcast a DNB dispatch saying the Russians had attacked south of the old Czarist capital after a heavy artillery preparation, and had been repelled. The Russians partly lifted the long siege of Leningrad during the Winter.

Trying To Seal Off Base

The Russian objective at Orel was apparent. They were striving to converge their columns moving south and north behind Orel and seal off the base and its masses of men in a maneuver closely akin to that which fashioned the German catastrophe at Stalingrad. Orel is the base 200 miles south of Moscow from which the Germans sprang their own abortive offensive July 5 to pinch off the Russians' Kursk bulge in similar fashion.

The capture of Orel would hardly be less than another German debacle, provided the Russians could slam shut the escape corridor behind Orel into the northern Ukraine.

Germans Admit Breaks

For the first time, the German radio admitted breaks in their lines guarding Orel without the customary claim that the breaches had been sealed. The Germans said the Russian offensive was a "relief attack" to ease pressure in the 165-mile Kursk salient just southt. They said the new front extended 90 miles north of Orel to Sukhinichi and the Transocean propaganda agency remarked:

"Merely in some places of the Orel-Sukhinichi section have the Russians been able to break into German lines to a minor extent and fighting continues. Great numbers of tanks are being used."

Far-reaching Russian penetrations, which Moscow said ranged up to 28 miles by last night, were denied as "absolutely incorrect."

Transocean went further than the German communique, which said the Russians "were repelled everywhere." The Nazis asserted that they destroyed 530 tanks and 49 planes and made more gains in the Belgorod area, 165 miles south of Orel, and had encircled a strong Rusisan tank group. Russian counterattacks near Belgorod were said to be weakening. The German assertions all were recorded from the Berlin radio by the Associated Press.

The battle in the Kursk bulge was by no means ended. The Germans still were attacking bitterly on the southern end at Belgorod, but Russian dispatches said the Red Army was methodically whittling down the lone German gains.

Enemy Bled White

On the northern end, the Russians said the Germans, "having been bled white," were hurled onto the defensive and that the Red Army had gone over to the attack. This was in the Orel-Kursk direction, at once the southern flank of Orel and the northern extremity of the Kursk bulge.

The Russian attack from the north of Orel appeared at the moment to be the most dangerous threat to the Germans. In three days, the Russians said they had advanced 28 miles along a 25-mile front to within 15 miles of the Orel-Bryansk railway.

At Klen, one of the 110 towns and villages captured, the Red Army stood within 50 miles of Bryansk itself, another vital German base and hedgehog position. One German comment said the Rusisans were attemtping to capture Bryansk ;an earlier assertion said the Russian masses had the grandiose objective of knifing through to Kiev to liberate all the rich Ukraine. Kiev is 290 miles southwest of Orel, however.

The Russian offensive was prepared in a thunder of massed artilelry barrages which pulverized a path through thick German defenses of steel and concrete, strengthened for a year and a half. Then came the tanks and infantry. Moscow said the first definite exploitation of German retreat was under way by 2 a. m. after a violent combat which started at dawn, around 2 or 3 a. m. in that region of long white, Summer nights.

Five Divisions Routed

The Russians said officially that five German divisions were routed and that five others "suffered a heavy defeat." Four of the ten were armored.

JUL 17 1943

Dispatches from Moscow said the Germans were in somewhat disorderly retreat through the rain-soaked, heavily wooded forests north of Orel and on the more open country to the east. The fifth German tank division was said by the Moscow press to have "succumbed to disorganization."

East of Orel, the Russians said they repulsed a dozen successive German counterattack mounted in vain effort to halt the oncoming Reds. German reserves were sent into battle straight from marches on the double.

The Russians appeared to have excellent generalship, outflanking the Germans time and again wherever they tried to make a resolute stand. The Russians said the pace was slow at first because of profuse minefields and because of the intervention of the German air force, which flew 1,500 sorties in a single day.

Cautioning against too abundant enthusiasm, the army newspaper Red Star commented:

"We must be ready for even hotter battles."

Russ Driving On Orel From Two Directions

[By the Associated Press]

Moscow, July 16—The Russians struck fresh blows at the Germans today from points thirty-seven miles north and twenty-five miles east of Orel, sending elements of ten Nazi divisions reeling back and scattered in rain-soaked forests and fields.

Other Red divisions whittled down the minor German gains in the Belgorod bulge some 165 miles to the south and repulsed all fresh enemy attacks which continued at a furious pace, dispatches said.

German tank losses had reached the enormous toll of 3,052; 1,686 planes had been destroyed; and upwards of 54,000 men had been killed or captured in the twelve-day battle of attrition, on the basis of official Russian estimates.

"Relief Attacks," Nazis Say

(The German communique persisted in calling the Russian offensive north and east of Orel "relief attacks," but said the drive was on a ninety-mile front between Orel and Sukninichi. The Berlin broadcast said 530 tanks and forty-nine planes were destroyed there yesterday. The Nazi command asserted that their army made additional gains north of Belgorod and encircled a strong Soviet group. Russian counterattacks were said to have weakened.)

In a special communique last night announcing the counter-offensive launched three days ago, the Russians said their swift thrusts on Orel, 200 miles south of Moscow, had resulted in a twenty-eight-mile advance that recaptured 110 towns, left more than 12,000 Germans dead and destroyed 109 Nazi tanks, 294 planes and 47 guns besides capturing piles of supplies.

28-Mile Penetration

The special bulletin said the column attacking from the north of Orel had penetrated twenty-eight miles into the German line to within eighteen miles of the Orel-Bryansk railway, and the other column driving from the east had pushed ahead fifteen miles on an eighteen-mile front to within twenty-eight miles of the city.

In the Belgorod area at the southern end of the active front, where the Nazis registered minor gains at the start of their offensive on July 5, the Russians said the Germans threw more men and tanks into the fighting in a renewed effort to crack the Red army's defenses, but declared the attacks had been repulsed.

Started With Barrage

The Russians said their counter-offensive began at dawn with a heavy artillery barrage and that German defenses in the Orel sector had been broken at several points by 2 P. M.

Infantry, supported by tanks and planes, then surged into the breach and routed ten Nazi divisions in three days of savage fighting.

In attacking the Orel sector the Russians drove on one of the strongest-defended positions behind the German lines.

Heavily Fortified

Pravda, the Communist party organ, pointed out that the Nazis have spent a year and a half fortifying the area, which was used as the springboard for their seemingly short-lived 1943 offensive.

...gers, supported by fire from a cruiser lying offshore.

Even while all this was going on, the Commanding General sent a message to our troops: "We attack tonight."

RUSSIANS DRIVE 6 MILES AHEAD ON OREL FRONT

Gain After Smashing Back Eleven Counter-attacks by Germans.

London, July 16 (A. P.).—The Russians announced in a special communique tonight that their troops had advanced by from six to ten miles on the Orel front repulsing eleven counter-attacks by the Germans.

In a communique broadcast by the Moscow radio and recorded here by the Soviet monitor, the Russians declared that the Germans met with heavy losses in attempting to stem the offensive. Below Orel also the Germans were on the defensive and the Russians advanced somewhat, the communique added. It reported only "intensive reconnaissance activities" in the Belgorod sector.

In all three sectors, the Russians said, they destroyed or disabled 129 tanks today and brought down seventy-six German aircraft.

Reported 15 Miles From City.

Earlier today Reuters quoted the Moscow radio as reporting that the Russian Army had driven to within fifteen miles of the great German base of Orel in their developing offensive from three directions.

Where the closest penetration toward the city — 200 miles south of Moscow—had been made was not specified, but the Russians appeared to be nearer Orel from the south than either the east or north.

Tonight a Reuters dispatch from Stockholm said that according to unconfirmed reports the Russians were already in the suburbs of Orel.

The Berlin radio said that Marshal Timoshenko was directing the new Russian offensive.

Italian Mass Purge Reported in Geneva

MOSCOW, July 16 !—A Tass dispatch from Geneva today reported that the Italian government had effected a "mass pudge" of officials of state institutions cooperative organizations and the Fascist party in northern Italy.

The dispatch said that in the past few days hundreds of officials had been dismissed, many of whom until recently were regarded as loyal adherents of the Fascist regime. It said strict police surveillance had been placed over all more or less important state officials and Fascist party functionaries.

Strong Teeth Save Crew Of Bomber

Valletta, Malta, July 16 (AP)—Six members of a Liberator crew who bombed Lecce, Italy, but crashed into the sea and were rescued by a British minelayer, were brought to Malta and are recovering from their comparatively minor injuries.

They crashed after a shell from a Messerschmitt damaged their plane.

At least three of them owe their lives to the quick thinking and strong teeth of the plane's copilot, Lieut. Robert Lennhausen, of Peoria, Ill.

Chewed Through Rope

Lennhausen chewed through a rope holding their rubber dinghy to the sinking plane, setting it free just in time.

With Lennhausen were Lieutenants Wilmer Garrett, pilot, Fresno, Cal., and Carl Johnson, navigator, Los Angeles, and Sergeants Adolph Brzozowhy, Turners Falls, Mass.; Melvin J. Cole, Waterbury, Conn., and Edward R. Waite, Charleroi, Pennsylvania.

After bombing the Italian airfield on July 2, their Liberator, "Miss Virginia," had a brush with three Messerschmitts. The pilot said he had believed the plane had been hit, but that a careful investigation showed no damage.

Two Engines Quit

But some one hundred miles northeast of Bengasi, two engines quit, and a third spluttered. It developed the fuel system had gone haywire.

As the plane struck the sea its nose broke off. Garrett, Lennhausen and Johnson were thrown through the gap.

One dinghy floated free, but the second, inflated by Lennhausen, was bound to the plane by a sturdy rope. Lennhausen had no knife so he went to work on the rope with his teeth.

Then he dragged Garrett and Johnson, who were unconscious, into the dinghy.

"I'm glad it was a light rope," grinned Lennhausen, who is suffering from a cut on the nose. "It probably took two minutes to chew it in two."

Said Garrett, who was banged on the head:

"He must chew faster than an African locust."

Turks Believe Conflict In Aegean Is Impending

JUL 17 1943

By Frank O'Brien

IZMIR, Turkey, July 14. (Delayed) (AP)—Residents of this second largest Turkish city are keeping a weather eye turned seaward where, a few miles off their long, deep harbor, lies Chios, one of the Axis-occupied Aegean islands.

This Week-end

With the Allied invasion of Sicily apparently going forward without a hitch, rumor here says the coming week-end may be critical for the Dodecanese and Greek Aegean islands.

Automobile owners in Izmir haven't received their gasoline rations for two days, possibly indicating that the Turks have decided to economize on existing stocks because they are afraid a campaign in the Aegean would cut them off from Syrian supplies.

It is persistently rumored here that the Izmir-Istanbul mail boat, which usually makes two round-trips weekly, will not sail for the next few days due to danger in the Aegean.

What these rumors and indications add up to is uncertain, for the Allied Command is keeping its plans to itself, but there is a definite air of expectancy here which, of course, may have no foundation.

The Aegean Islands including the Dodecanese are a long Archipelago stringing out from near Salonika to Crete, and form a barrier which must be broken down before an invasion of Greece could be undertaken.

The southern islands are under Italian command and largely garrisoned with Italian troops. Lately, troopships have left Salonika with between 9,000 and 10,000 German coast guards, artillerymen and signal corps troops intended to stiffen the Italian defense.

For many years the Italians have fortified Rhodes and Leros, the two main bases among 12 major Dodecanese Islands which were given to Italy after the last war. For the past two years since the defeat of Greece the Germans have been busy turning a number of Greek islands into forts guarding Salonika Bay.

Rhodes After Crete

Next only to Crete as an outer defense bastion for Greece and the Balkans is Rhodes, 50 miles long, 25 wide, about 300 miles from Cyprus and within rowboat range of the Turkish shore. The egg-shaped island has sandy beaches with deep water approaches almost all the way around. A high spine of mountains, some of which reach 4,000 feet, cuts through its center. A fine gravel road circles it and cuts through it from Lindos, on the southeast coast, to the northeast coast. The beaches south of Lindos would make an ideal landing spot for Allied invasion boats, and Lindos itself would provide an excellent base for assault on the rest of the island.

The town of Rhodes lies on the extreme northwest tip.

Three airfields guard the island, one at Lindos and the others at Mariza and Kalathos, near Rhodes. All are first class airports capable of handling any type of ship in any weather and in large numbers. These fields have long served as station points for German reinforcements traveling from Greece to Crete.

The Rhodes garrison is principally Italian, and large, although no figures are available. Estimates place it in the neighborhood of 30,000, exclusive of recent German reinforcements.

The Italians evacuated all women and children from the island almost two months ago.

The next most important Dodecanese island is Leros, a few miles northwest of Rhodes. Some experts rate it the most important. It is a natural submarine base, its coastline pitted with great deep-water caves which Italian engineers have converted into modern shelters. A large number of Italian submarines are based there, from which they would operate against any Allied fleet in the area.

The principal bases are in Lagos bay and Aghia Marina Bay, both of which are also bases for fleets of seaplanes which have made long-range patrols over the Aegean daily for many years during which yachts have not been permitted to enter. Leros is garrisoned by approximately 7,000 Italian marines.

North of the Dodecanese and 118 miles south of Izmir is the next Axis fortress—Samos—so close to the Turkish shore that a man can be distinguished across the strait. It is guarded by the Italian Cuneo Division, and land mines are planted along the beaches of Miscoampo Bay and around the port of Tighani on the south side.

The northernmost Aegean defense post is Lemnos, directly off the Dardanelles near the Turkish island of Imbros. It has an elaborate air field guarded by approximately 4,000 German infantrymen. Greek laborers were taken there recently to work on the Mudros Bay seaplane base.

Refugees reaching neutral territory from the Dodecanese say the morale of Italian troops there is very low, due to insufficient food and long confinement. But they emphasize that the Axis means to fight hard to keep this outer ring of defenses intact. Recent German arrivals mean that any Allied debarkation in the Aegean will be no picnic.

Munda Airfield Hit With 82 Tons of Bombs

JUL 17 1943

U. S. Planes Unload Heavy Cargo on Japanese Base.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Saturday, July 17—(AP)—More than 100 American planes unloaded 82 tons of bombs on Japan's defense of the Munda Air Base Friday in one of the largest and heaviest air attacks delivered in a single day against one area since the opening of the New Georgia campaign.

3024-6159

Strong Formations

Strong formations of Avenger torpedo bombers and Dauntless dive bombers rained high explosive and fragmentation bombs on enemy positions around Lambeti two miles East of the airdrome.

In the afternoon, another large formation of raiders struck at the Munda Airfield, key point in the Central Solomons.

The absence of any reports on the further progress of American jungle fighters bearing down on Munda led to the belief that heavy rains may have slowed the pace of the land drive. Last reports indicated the drive was settling down to the methodical liquidation of enemy strong points, which are made up of foxholes and log bunkers.

Seven hundred miles to the southwest where Australians and Americans were last reported moving on Komiatum, within seven miles of the enemy air base of Salamaua, New Guinea, Boston attack planes struck at Japanese positions around Bobdubi, two miles nearer the base.

Above Australia on the Aroe Islands, Hudson bombers started large fires at the enemy eaplane bae of Taberfane.

Strafe Barges, Villages

The night raiders on Taberfane were followed in daylight by long range fighters who strafed barges and villages in the area. One enemy floatplane tried to intercept, was damaged. driven off and its rear gunner was believed killed.

The air raid on Munda, virtually a daily performance in the Solomons sector, exceeded in extent even that of July 10 when over 100 American planes plastered the air base defenses with 70 tons.

"Our (Avenger) torpedo and (Dauntless) dive bombers in two strikes in close support of our ground forces dropped 82 tons of high explosives and fragmentation bombs on enemy positions in the Munda area," the communique said.

To the north of New Georgia, Allied planes for the third straight day struck at enemy shipping off Vella Lavella Island.

Four patriling fighters strafed and set an enemy barge afire in Tambala Bay.

After Allied attacks planes over the New Guinea jungle front raided the enemy positions at Bobdubi, a four-engined bomber flew over the isthmus on which Salamaua is located in the Huon Gulf and start three large fires with its bombs.

The menace to Salamaua h. been increased by the capture of Japanese positions at Mubo, 12 miles below it.

The great airdromes at Salamaua and Lae, only 20 miles north along the coast, were taken by the Japanese late in January, 1942, the second month of the war. The enemy found well-developed airports there. Before the war they were bases for one of the world's largest freight airlines which handled supplies for gold mines in the interior.

As wartime bases they have been of great value to the Japanese. Capture of one or both by the Allies would force the enemy to fall back to bases farther north and more distant from the shipping routes and air lanes of the southwest Pacific.

Infiltration Tactics

Infiltration tactics, long used by the Japanese, were employed by the Americans and Australians in taking Mubo. The Allied soldiers stole up from behind to wipe out 950 surprised defenders. It was the most significant Allied victory in New Guinea since mid-January when a Japanese army of 15,000 was wiped out in the battle of Buna and Gona on the Papuan peniusula, about 150 miles southeast of the present action.

"Our ground forces have now cleared the Mubo area of all organized enemy resistance and are pressing on Kimiatum (five miles from Salamaua)," the Friday communique from General Douglas MacArthur's headquarters said.

The communique also disclosed a spectacular air victory over Rendova in the central Solomon islands, 700 miles to the east. Forty-five out of approximately 80 Japonese planes attacking American positions were shot down. The Americans, who did not have 45 plans in the air, lost only three of their own fighters.

The air battle brought the enemy plane losses to more than 260 since the start of the offensive on June 30. Allied losses are under 50.

The Munda air base on New Georgia Island, objective of the Solomons drive, was further isolated. United States troops threw off a counter attack and crept closer through the jungle to Munda's defenses.

Japanese supply bases north of Munda were heavily bombed and in the waters above Munda Allied planes sank one enemy merchant ship, left a second in flames, sank two barges and set a third on fire.

The U. S. destroyer Gwin was so badly damaged in the second battle of Kula Gulf July 13, the communique disclosed that she sank while being towed to port. The Gwin was the third American warship lost in Kula Gulf actions. The Japanese lost from 13 to 17 cruisers and destroyers.

MacArthur Captures Mubo; Munda's Fate Sealed Tighter

Jungle Tactics Are Turned Against the Japs Successfully—Destroyer Gwin Lost in Kula Gulf.

JUL 17 1943 Spencer

Allied Headquarters in the Southwest Pacific, July 16 (A. .).—Outwitting the wily Japanese at his own jungle game of stealing up from behind, American and Australian fighters of Gen. Douglas MacArthur possessed the Mubo gateway to Salamaua today after wiping out 950 surprised defenders in a brilliant New Guinea maneuver.

The abrupt collapse of hill positions bestride which the Japanese for months barred the way along the jungle track leading to their Salamaua air base, twelve miles to the north, was announced in a communique which also recorded a spectacular air victory.

45 Jap Planes Bagged

Over Rendova Island in the Central Solomons, forty-five Japanese planes were shot down out of a formation of about eighty while on nearby New Georgia American jungle fighters edged still closer to the enemy's key air base of Munda.

On June 30, while the right prong of the present Pacific offensive got under way against Munda, the left prong was established by American forces who braved the treacherous reefs to land at Nassau Bay on northeast New Guinea.

These forces, some lugging heavy guns by hand over jungle paths, moved inland along the valley of the Bitoi river toward Mubo's rear.

Advanced 150 Miles

After Americans and Australians conquered southeastern New Guinea in mid-January by destroying a Japanese army of 15,000, Australians had moved through the jungle north more than 150 miles toward Salamaua.

But they found the Japanese entrenched on Observation Hill, Green Hill, the Pimple and other Mubo strongpoints. From spring until the current offensive, it was a stalmate.

MacArthur, who now is in the field in New Guinea in personal charge of the campaign, disclosed that the Americans who moved inland from Nassau Bay joined the Australians July 10 at Buigap Creek, cutting communications and isolating the Japanese on Observation and Green hills.

Bombed 45 Minutes

Observation Hill was overrun after Allied planes dropped 106 tons of bombs on its defenders in less than forty-five minutes. From front and rear, other enemy defenses at Mubo were stormed.

"Our ground forces have now cleared the Mubo area of all organized enemy resistance and are pressing on Komiatum (five miles from Salamaua)," the communique said.

The sky fight over the central Solomons, where the Japanese have expended more than 260 planes since the current offensive started, found the Americans shooting down more planes than they had in the air tackling the twenty-seven enemy bombers and their escort of between fifty and sixty zeros.

Over Rendova Island in the central Solomons forty-five Japanese planes were shot down out of a formation of approximately eighty, while on nearby New Georgia American jungle fighters edged still closer to the enemy's key air base of Munda.

Munda Sealed Tighter.

The focal point of the Solomons drive, the Munda air base on New Georgia, was further menaced and isolated. Throwing off an enemy counter-attack, United States troops moved through the jungles still nearer Munda's foxhole and log bunker defenses. Our artillery blew up four enemy guns near the airdrome yesterday.

In inter-island waters above Munda, one Japanese merchant ship was sunk, a second left aflame, two barges sunk and a third set on fire by roving Mitchell medium bombers.

On the enemy's garrison of Bairoko, supply port for Munda on the Kula Gulf, a heavy force of dive bombers poured 1,000 and 2,000 pound bombs yesterday. Across the gulf, fifty-four tons of bombs spilled by Avenger torpedo bombers and Dauntless dive-bombers on Vila, Kolombangara Island, started huge fires at that Munda supply depot.

Another Destroyer Lost.

The communique today also disclosed that in the second Navy battle in the Kula Gulf July 13, the United States destroyer Gwin was damaged so severely she sank later while being towed to port. She was the third American warship lost in Kula Gulf actions. The destroyer Strong was torpedoed and sunk on July 5 while shelling Bairoko, and the light cruiser Helena was sunk July 6 in the first Kula Gulf battle. Japanese losses in the two battles have been reported as at least thirteen and probably seventeen cruisers and destroyers.

Baltimorean Films Ordeal

By Tom Yarbrough

[Associated Press Correspondent]

South Pacific Headquarters, July 16—United States Marines and army soldiers who slogged through the sodden New Georgia Island jungle for five almost incredible, difficult days from Rice Anchorage to Enogai point endured plain torture in finishing their assigned job of wiping out a well-entrenched Japanese position.

Dramatic details of their achievement where related here today by the three members of a marine movie camera crew who stayed with their comrades every step of the way and got pictures all along in spite of the worst the Japanese and the jungle could throw in their way.

Baltimorean Along

The principal narrator was Technical Sergeant Edward Adolph, 33, of New York city, former copy reader on the New York Herald Tribune, free lance writer and radio drama director. His teammates were Staff Sergeant Heber Maxwell, 21, Mountain City, Tenn., and Pfc. James Poole, 24, of Baltimore, Maryland.

Adolph has short red hair which sticks straight out. His weight was 145 pounds when he went into this thing the night of July 4 but was considerably less when he came out. Here are some highlights of the story he told in measured phrases at Marine headquarters:

"The air distance from our landing point to our objective was two and a half or three miles, but through the jungle we had to travel thirteen miles—sometimes up to our necks in mire . . . we used up our 'last energy' several times . . . it was plain torture . . .

Awakened By Gunfire

"If you couldn't keep going, there was no one to help you and you dropped out and rested awhile . . . We were awakened one morning by a burst of gunfire from Japanese in trees above us—they'd crept up without a sound in the night . . . The Japanese don't surrender, but they are not better in the jungle than we . . .

"After we took Enogia on the sixth day, we caught hell from the air for three days in succession with practically no sleep. Our wounded were wonderful. They took a beating but I never heard a single squawk . . . Enogai is located on Dragon's peninsula."

Adolphe had a 4-F rating before he joined the marines. Neither he nor Maxwell was considered a cameraman before they started this job, but they made test shots en route, and headquarters found them satisfactory. Maxwell used to be a jeep driver. If their film survived the elements some pictures may be released.

Adolphe said: "The fireworks started at midnight July 4 in Kula Gulf when we let go at land batteries in Rice Anchorage. Guided by flares, these batteries shelled us throughout the landing, and we were very scared.

"From the blackest hole I've ever seen, right in the jungle, we started the big march about 6 a. m. July 5, going single file in a very long line. The Japanese said it couldn't be done, but we did it. Went right through marshy jungle and swamp—even the sides of the hills were swampy.

"The morning of July 6 we still were in pretty good spirits, but then the going really got tough. We started throwing our gear off. We got rid of our waterlogged blankets, flashlights, cigarette lighters and even our extra knives. By the night of the 6th, we had only one day's emergency rations left.

"It rained like hell. Foot trouble came first. Feet swelled and big water blisters came up. We went single file all the way. Sometimes we forded streams on logs, sometimes we were pulling ourselves through tangled undergrowth by our hands.

"It Was Plain Torture"

"It was plain torture. By the night of the 7th we weere carrying nothing but our guns, ammunition and essential gear. We had eaten our last rations. There was water all around, but none to drink. The medical officers wouldn't let us.

"The late afternoon of the 7th, we hit the first Japanese outpost—just a small watch station—and it was eliminated quickly. There I got my first smell of dead Japanese (probably killed in a recent bombing), and believe me it is a smell that stays with you.

"The night of the 7th, we destroyed a bigger Japanese post and captured some wormy rice and biscuits.

"The morning of the 8th there was a sudden burst from snipers in the trees above us. They caused some casualties, but our men got rid of them by spraying the foliage with machineguns. We went on in the muddy jungle and, feeling the lack of food, dug in to let the others catch up with us.

"Midday of the 9th, we reached the Japanese defenses at Enogai. There the enemy was well dug in, and held out until the afternoon of the 10th. Our mortars got them, however—broke their morale. Our planes were over two days before, and we used the bomb craters in the coral of our mortar positions.

Many Japanese Casualties

"We had some casualties, including very few dead. The Japanese had many more. Their last two positions centered on as many machine-gun nests. Our grenades got one, but the other kept going all night, and our hospital corps men went in under direct fire to administer first aid to our wounded.

"We got into a Japanese supply shack and got some dry clothes and good rice and salmon, and four or five bottles of saki (rice wine) which helped out the evening considerably.

"The Japs had a lot of sweet-smelling lotions and a surprisingly large amount of pornographic stuff.

"We captured four good five-and-a-half-inch naval guns.

"The next three days we caught hell from the air—a lot of anti-personnel daisy-cutters that went off when they hit the trees. A single plane or two dropped bombs every now and then through the night just to keep us awake. That was tough on our wounded, but I never heard a single squawk."

Hazardous Trek

JUL 17 1943

By Leif Erickson

[Associated Press Correspondent]

Guadalcanal, July 12 (Delayed) (AP)—Twenty-two-year-old George Rounds, Jr., came out of the hip-deep mud of northern New Georgia today with the first eyewitness account of the Americans' hazardous and difficult but successful fighting trek from Rice anchorage to Dragon's peninsula.

Rounds was with a combined force of Marine raiders and army troops from Guadalcanal assigned to do this job—a flanking movement from the northeast against the Japanese on Munda point.

Five-Day March

The force struggled five days through the root-tangled, rain-mired jungle, wiped out two enemy outposts, exterminated snipers and climaxed the march with the capture of four 140 millimeter Japanese naval guns mounted on the western point of Enogai inlet.

"I never had so much fun in my life," said Rounds, the son of a General Motors personnel executive of Birmingham, Mich. "It was seven days of goo and hell, but we wiped out 350 to 400 Japs. I tell you those Marine boys are rugged. I don't think there is any kind of country that can stop them."

A junior at Dartmouth College before he volunteered for the navy, Rounds is a lieutenant junior grade and pilot of a Dauntless divebomber.

A month ago he asked for assignment with the troops detailed to land at Rice anchorage, on Kula Gulf, in the central Solomons invasion which began to develop two weeks later. He said he was bored by the routine bombing strikes at Munda and wanted to learn about ground fighting.

The marines and veteran army troops made a successful landing in Higgins boats at Rice anchorage the morning of July 5.

Pouring Rain

"It was pouring rain," Rounds related. "We got ashore about 2 A. M. We just sat down on our ponchos and let it rain.

"At dawn we started marching through mud up to our hips. By night we had made six miles to the Gizo Gizo river. It poured rain again all night, and we had stopped too late to rig any shelter.

"I was pretty low that night. The water was running in the top of my poncho and out the bottom. I tried to sleep with my back bowed and my knees pulled up to my chest.

Expected Turn-Back Order

"I felt sure we would get an order to turn back. I didn't think any commanding officer could expect his men to struggle through that kind of going and then fight Japs when they found them.

"But after I got going on the trail again the third morning, I began to feel better, and I felt better about the whole deal each day after that."

The column advanced only two miles the second day, reaching the Tamako river, which flows into the head of Enogai inlet. The next morning the troops crossed the stream on a bridge of two logs. The main force of marines then headed north up the west shore of Enogai inlet.

Outpost Surprised

That afternoon the marines surprised a Japanese marine outpost garrison at Maranusa, which is no more than a clearing dotted with a few small huts. Eight Japanese were killed.

Although four guns from the enemy base at Bairoko had lobbed shells at a destroyer escorting the landing convoy off Rice Anchorage the morning of July 5, the Japanese at Maranusa apparently did not believe it possible any force could have cut its way through the jungle toward Enogai. Rounds said the outpost was surprised completely.

This engagement, however, tipped off the enemy. On the fourth day of the advance, the force fought its way to Triri. Substantial bamboo huts were taken from the Japanese there and were used as sickbays for the wounded.

Harassed By Snipers

"Enemy snipers' fire raised a little hell in our headquarters area before the snipers were shot down from the trees," Rounds said. The next day the Marines pushed farther toward Enogai.

On this day, July 9, headquarters had to be moved into the jungle because, Rounds remarked, "there were so many dead Japs it wasn't healthy."

It was that day, too, that Rounds, while watching a plane overhead, heard two sniper bullets plunk into a tree directly above him.

"I got myself down fast," he said.

On the morning of July 10, the advance party of marines sent back an urgent request for food, ammunition and water. Rounds joined the detachment carrying a load of supplies and three canteens of water each.

Losing its way in the jungle, Rounds said, the column was half way to Bairoko harbor when it heard firing break out behind. This was the start of the attack on the enemy's Enokai gun positions.

"At the finish, more than 100 Japs threw down their guns and tried to run across a sandspit to the west," Rounds said. "Our machine-guns were bearing on that sandspit, and they mowed down every one of those Japes. Not one got away."

On the night of July 10, the tired Americans moved into the enemy's comfortable quarters. The next day their rest was disturbed by two Japanese bombing raids, but their casualties were light in comparison to those suffered by the enemy.

Bombs Fall Marine Bathes

"When the bombers came over, I saw one Marine about twenty feet out in the war washing himself," Rounds said. "He didn't have time to take cover before the bombs fell, so he just kept on washing. I decided I might just as well get a sitting as running.' "

Before getting out of Enogai inlet on one of three navy Catalina flying boats which landed there after the successful action, Rounds had to man the machine gun of his Catalina and help drive off two Japanese float biplanes.

The enemy planes strafed the Catalinas on the inlet before they could take off.

Bomb Aimed At His Plane

One, coming down in an almost perpendicular dive, aimed a bomb at Round's plane. The bomb exploded fifty yards ahead of the Catalina, and a fragment of shrapnel struck the right arm of the flying boat's pilot, who was standing on the bow lifting the anchor.

SIX NEW YORKERS GET FLYING CROSS

Pilots and Crewmen Honored for Missions in South Pacific

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, July 16 (AP)—Six New Yorkers, pilots and crewmen of American bombers have received the Distinguished Flying Cross for service against the Japanese.

The citations presented by Lieut. Gen. George C. Kenney, commander of Allied air forces in the southwest Pacific, said:

"For extraordinary achievement while participating in 200 hours of operational flight missions in the southwest Pacific area during which hostile contact was probable and expected. These operations consisted of long-range bombing missions against enemy airdromes, harbors, shipping and naval forces. Throughout these flights, outstanding ability and devotion to duty were demonstrated."

The men honored were as follows:

First Lieut. Howard J. Lonergan of Woodhaven, L. I.; Second Lieut. George K. Shako Jr. of Watervliet, Staff Sgt. Clifford Casselbury of Harpersville, Staff Sgt. Harvey C. Bancroft of Watertown, Staff Sgt. Arthur Sansone of Brooklyn, Sgt. Paul N. Capen of Liverpool.

General Kenney also awarded an Oak Leaf Cluster in lieu of an additional award of the air medal to Sergeant Bancroft for meritorious achievement while participating in 100 hours of operational flight missions from March 5 to April 26, 1943. It was his third Oak Leaf Cluster.

Sergeant Sansone was awarded the Oak Leaf Cluster in lieu of a second award of the Distinguished Flying Cross for 200 hours of flight missions, the Air Medal for 100 Hours and an Oak Leaf Cluster in lieu of a second award of the Air Medal for 100 Hours.

Pacific Bases Built Up

JUL 17 1943

[By the Associated Press]

Honolulu, T. H., July 16—Lieut. Gen. Robert C. Richardson, Jr., commander of the Hawaiian Department, declares: "The Pacific has undergone in the last few months an extraordinary development."

"Without mentioning any names of islands, this whole great area is a series of magnificent bases from which our aircraft can operate and which form a great line of communications to Australia," he told the Chamber of Commerce yesterday.

Now On Offensive

"At present, the offensive has been grabbed by us from the Japanese. Instead of being on the receiving end, we now are on the giving end, hammering the defensive perimeter. Slowly, surely the center of gravity of operations is moving north and northwest toward Japan with the idea of depriving her of her air bases.

"It is no secret that our compass is set to defeat Germany and Italy first. We now are on the perimeter, slowly closing the ring around the continent. When that is accomplished, and Germany and Italy, fall, the full weight of the United Nations will be turned to the Pacific."

Martinique's Governor Pledges Aid To Allies

[By the Associated Press]

Fort-De-France, Martinique, July 16—Assurance was given today by Henri-Etienne Hoppenot, new Governor of long-troubled Martinique, that his administration would do everything possible to assist the United Nations war effort.

Asked if French military and naval forces in this area might join the other Allies, Hoppenot said this matter had not yet been discussed, although he believed all concerned were anxious to contribute all they could for victory.

Tells Of Army Revolt

Admiral Georges Robert, Vichy follower who acceded to the wishes of the United Nations and stepped down from the Martinique post a week ago, was forced to capitulate, Hoppenot said, following a "revolt" of the army garrison.

The garrison, Hoppenot said, left Fort-de-France June 18, gathered at a post on the other side of the island, and declined to obey the admiral.

Although Robert asked for cooperation in several radio addresses, the civil population began street demonstrations. The Admiral fled to the aircraft carrier Bearn and the soldiers sent word they would assist the population if naval forces were employed in an attempt to halt the demonstrators.

Taken To Puerto Rico

Admiral Robert and about ten of his closest followers, Hoppenot said, were being taken aboard a French vessel to San Juan, Puerto Rico.

An agreement already has been signed with United States authorities, Hoppenot said, providing for importation of food, clothing and other badly-needed commodities. Two shiploads of food offshore were to begin unloading at once.

Some $40,000,000 in French gold which was moved here when France fell still is intact, Hoppenot said, and the French Committee of National Liberation will assume possession.

(Earlier acounts had placed the value of the gold treasure at Martinique at about $250,000,000. There was no immediate explanation of the smaller figure.)

Robert Arrives in Puerto Rico

Flight Precipitated by Garrison Revolt—Martinique Natives Dance in Streets.

San Juan, Puerto Rico, July 16 (A. P.).—Admiral Georges Robert, former Governor of Martinique, arrived here today. Among a few followers accompanying him were the former commanders of the cruiser Emile Bertin and the aircraft carrier Bearn, two of the French warships that have been immobilized at Martinique since France fell. The party was met at the dock and taken to a San Juan hotel.

Martinique Garrison Revolted.

Fort-de-France, Martinique, July 16 (A. P.).—Admiral Georges Robert, who stepped down from his post as Governor of Martinique following a revolt of the army garrison, was en route to San Juan, Puerto Rico, today as Henri-Etienne Hoppenot, the new Governor, said his administration would aid the United Nations war effort in every possible way.

Martinique's three years of repressed exuberance broke out last night when excited, wild-eyed natives danced in the streets, sang the Marseillaise and hurled uncomplimentary remarks at Admiral Robert and his fellow-Vichyites.

Shortly after midnight, Major eJan Sarrat, former commander ofthe garrison, who escaped from the island last December, was acclaimed by the parading Negroes. They had discovered him strolling along the water front. The Negroes streamed out of a dance hall where they were holding their holy-roller-like activities and pressed around Major Sarrat's group, skipping and singing through the streets behind them.

Robert Gets Escort.

Earlier M. Hoppenot and his Cabinet had escorted Admiral Robert and about ten of his closest followers to the boat in which they sailed later today. Major Sarrat and other anti-Vichyites stood by, saluted and shook hands with Admiral Robert without any signs of bitterness.

Asked if French military and naval forces in this area might join the other Allies, M. Hoppenot said in an interview that this matter had not yet been discussed, although he believed all concerned were anxious to contribute all they could for victory.

Economic life on the island is still paralyzed because of a lack of commodities, although automobiles are freely running on a mixture of 8 per cent gasoline and 90 per cent rum. The populace is eagerly awaiting the unloading of foodstuffs from the United States now standing offshore.

Fort-de-France residents reported that in recent weeks that tension between native Negroes and white French sailors over Admiral Robert's pro-Vichy attitude had grown acute and that there were several incidents that had threatened to develop into race feelings. During this time, they said, Admiral Robert had ordered street lights to be kept burning all night.

Members of Mr. Hoppenot's cabinet said it was likely that Victor Severe, ex-mayor of Fort-de-France, who returned to the island just before Admiral Robert stepped down, would be reinstalled in office.

Alfred De Marigny To Face Hearing

NASSAU, Bahamas, July 16 (AP)—Alfred De Marigny faces a magistrate's preliminary investigation Monday on a charge of murdering Sir Harry Oakes but there appeared little likelihood today that he would be tried before October if indicted.

Chief Justice Sir Oscar Daly said the supreme court quarterly session will close Monday. The next session of the court, before which De Marigny would be tried if indicted by the magistrate, begins in October. Justice Daly could call a special session, however.

The government could ask a second postponement of the magistrate's hearing, but if held as scheduled Monday all evidence against De Marigny must be made public. English court procedure requires the prosecution to fully disclose its allegations.

Sir Harry was found dead of four head wounds in a partly burned bed July 8 in his home, Westbourne. De Marigny, 35-year old husband of Oakes' daughter, Nancy, 19, was arrested the next day and booked on a charge of murder.

GIRAUD OPTIMISTIC

Ottawa, July 16 (A. P.).—Gen. Henri Giraud, joint chairman of the French Committee of National Liberation, said today that "Germany is defeated; all that is left is for her to admit defeat."

Speaking at a press conference in the Parliament Building here, Gen. Giraud said:

"I want a strong French Army, as strong as possible, to march into France with our American, British and Canadian friends and liberate my country; and then go into Germany to free all French prisoners of war and civilians drafted for work."

Paraphrasing the words of Lord Baldwin, former British Prime Minister, Gen. Giraud said: "Canadians: Remember that your frontier is not at the mouth of the St. Lawrence. Your frontier is on the Rhine."

"The situation at the present is good," the General added.

Baby Carrier Planes Smash Ten U-boats

JUL 17 1943

'Baby Flat Tops' Playing Important Part in Driving Axis Subs From Atlantic, Knox Reveals at Luncheon.

By Hamilton W. Faron

WASHINGTON, July 16. (AP)—"Baby flat tops" are playing a major part in driving Axis submarines from the Atlantic, the Navy revealed today in telling how fliers from a single escort carrier beat off two Nazi wolf-pack attacks on convoys, probably sinking ten U-boats.

Two 'Certain Kills'

Two "certain kills"—submarines from which a total of 41 prisoners were picked up by U. S. destroyers—were credited to planes from the stubby and ugly little carrier. Eight other U-boats disappeared after being straddled by bombs. Presumably they sank without tangible evidence of destruction.

Navy Secretary Knox, speaking at a luncheon in honor of Brazilian journalists, declared that the campaign against the submarine menace in the North Atlantic has tended to drive the underseas craft south. He said the United States and Brazilian navy now are operating as a unified force off the coast of Brazil "which has become one of the fighting fronts against the submarine."

Throughout the battles against the wolf-packs—approximately 38 hours of fighting—merchant vessels guarded by the little "Carrier B" and its planes plodded eastward with vital war supplies. Not a merchantman was damaged.

Surfaced in the dusk, apparently in preparation for an attack as darkness fell, the first submarine was bombed by one of the escort carrier's planes. Depth bombs straddled the U-boat, which was not seen again. But a "kill" was not claimed—one anti-sub pilot explained that "to get credit for a kill you've got to bring back the submarine's periscope or the captain's hat."

Pursued Convoy

Slipping along in the darkness, the wolf-pack pursued the convoy throughout the night, then moved in for an attack at dawn, when half-light outlines transports and cargo ships but conceals low lying superstructures of a submarine.

Dead ahead of the convoy the second submarine was attacked by planes in semi-darkness. Anti-aircraft guns barked as a plane dived in to attack. But the dive continued; the anti-aircraft guns were silenced; two bombs apparently hit the U-boat's stern; the raider circled crippled for an hour, then sank stern first.

Meantime another plane, this time a Wildcat fighter, enroute to aid the Avenger bomber in that fight, had spotted another U-boat. Other Avengers were called and again the submarine commander ordered a fight. Again the planes were victorious. Depth bombs exploded on all sides of the U-boat and it sank stern first, but again without tangible evidence of a "kill."

Fourth Sub Spotted

At noon a fourth submarine cruising boldly on the surface, was spotted. Depth bombs struck on its port side, it settled beneath the surface without forward motion, but again no positive evidence of sinking was obtained.

Through the afternoon the wolf-pack remained submerged to resume the attack near sunset. An Avenger found the fifth U-boat running on a course to intercept the merchant ships. Its crew was caught napping when the bomber screamed down in a dive and released its depth bombs. The submarine went out of control and submerged. It apparently came back an hour later and this time was hit by an entire load of bombs directly beneath its stern.

Definitely out of control, it settled, climbed back above the surface on a sharp angle, started down again, came back, and crewmen scrambled overside. A destroyer picked up 21 enlisted men, two petty officers and the U-boat's skipper, thus registering a "definite kill."

That wolf-pack was licked, and more important, not a single had been able to get within miles of the convoy.

Beats Off Pack

Back in action again on convoy patrol in the Atlantic, the little carrier beat off a second wolf-pack which slipped in to attack at dusk converging on the merchantmen from all directions.

Two Avengers scored the first hits, dumping their depth bombs around a submarine, which "was unquestionably damaged."

Simultaneously other bombers attacked two U-boats on sides of the convoy. Each straddled its target, but neither pilot claimed "the captain's hat" although both said they were sure they had inflicted damage.

In a parting shot at this wolf pack the following morning, another U-boat was bombed miles away from the convoy, with tangible evidence of a kill.

The second wolf-pack had been driven off in 14 hours compared with almost 24 hours of fighting the first pack.

Three Avenger bombers joined in the next engagement, attacking a surfaced submarine which was damaged severely, but succeeded in putting ack-ack shells into one of the planes. The plane, however, made the deck of its carrier safely.

The final engagement in the series, the Navy said, was one of the shortest, lasting only 28 minutes and ending in "bringing back the captain's hat." Four Avenger bombers and two Wildcat fighters cooperated to destroy a submarine on the surface in a series of quick punching bombing and strafing attacks. The submarine blew up and 17 of its crew were captured.

Navy in each report has told only of single units—presumably cruisers or destroyers—engaging in the attack.

The sole opposition came from Japanese artillery on July 9 when a warship stood off shore for several hours sending shell after shell into enemy installations.

Twenty miles by overland route from Kiska harbor where most of the enemy strength is located, Gertrude Cove could be an observation point from which the Japanese obtain advance warning of aerial raids on their main positions.

The cove, although shoals are located in near by waters, also could be the sight of one phase of an invasion thrust when the time comes to put American troops ashore. Silencing gun positions there by naval bombardment would smooth the way toward establishing a beach head which could become a point for an overland drive against Kiska proper.

U.S. to Push Japs Out of Aleutians

JUL 17 1943

Fact Revealed By Knox in Terse Statement, While Naval Guns Bombard Kiska—Declines Further Comment.

WASHINGTON, July 16. (AP)—Navy Secretary Knox tersely asserted today that "we propose to drive the Japanese out of the Aleutians," while naval guns thundered emphasis to his words in regular bombardments of the enemy's island shore establishments at Kiska.

Can't Talk About It

Amid indications that the repeated pounding of Kiska may be part of a "softening up" process in preparation for an invasion, Knox qualified his remark by saying: "But just when and how we're going to do it, I can't talk about."

His statement followed quickly a communique telling of a United States warship standing off shore and shelling the enemy positions at Gertrude Cove on the southwestern shore of the island without opposition.

Knox said he did not know what type of defenses the enemy has placed in Gertrude Cove, which has been bombarded five times in the last ten days.

Japs Replied Once

Knox Says MacArthur To Give Information

WASHINGTON, July 16 (AP)—Secretary Knox today officially laid down the general rule that the initial release of operational information about the current offensive in the south and southwest Pacific areas would be made by General Douglas MacArthur's headquarters.

MacArthur has strategical direction of the campaign, Knox told a press conference, and "it is proper" therefore that he should be the authority on releasing battle reports. From time to time the War and Navy Departments may make exceptions to this rule.

"Every effort," Knox said, "will continue to be made to clear promptly the special stories of news correspondents assigned to the United States forces in the south and southwest Pacific. With the exception that the initial release of an action in these areas is to be made by General MacArthur, it is not expected that there will be any material change in the mechanics of clearing correspondent's stories which have prevailed for the last several months."

HELLDIVERS COMING ON

Washington, July 16 (A. P.).—Secretary of the Navy Knox said today that "the production log-jam has been broken" on the Helldiver aircraft being manufactured at the Curtiss-Wright plant at Columbus, Ohio.

Mr. Knox at his press conference referred to previous comments he had made on the Helldiver last Tuesday, saying:

"Regarding the Curtiss-Wright plant at Columbus, I made a statement that the Helldiver aircraft were not as yet in production. The assistant Secretary for Air (Artemus Gates) was inspecting the plant on the same day that I made the statement. He informs me that this plane is in production, and that real progress is now being made in producing it. As you know, the Navy is in great need of this combat plane, and we believe the production log jam has now been broken."

Asked if any planes had been delivered, he said that the Navy had accepted "quite a number" but that he did not know whether they had been in action.

The Helldiver is a large long range bomber capable of carrying a heavy load. Powered by a single engine, it has a speed in excess of 300 miles an hour.

U.S. French Policy Critics Are Flayed

F. D. R. Accuses Them of Spreading Vicious Propaganda—States This Nation's Policy Steadfast, Consistent, Successful.

By William T. Peacock

JUL 17 1943

WASHINGTON, July 16. (AP)—President Roosevelt today accused critics of his French policy of spreading vicious propaganda. He said the United States has followed a steadfast and consistent policy—one of working with Frenchmen everywhere who are patriotically resisting the Axis.

Has Kept Aloof

It has kept aloof from French internal affairs, he added at his press-radio conference, and has not taken sides with any personalities.

The Chief Executive's volunteered statement was the second time this week that he has emphasized the view that where France is concerned questions of personalities must be submerged in the general aim of beating the Axis and freeing French soil from the enemy.

On last Tuesday, he issued a statement in honor of Bastille Day which said:

"There can be one symbol only for Frenchmen—France herself. She transcends all parties, personalities and groups: They live indeed only in the glory of French nationhood."

Mr. Roosevelt brought up the subject today by commenting that a difficult problem had been disposed of with the capitulation of Admiral Georges Robert, who so long maintained allegiance to Vichy, as administrator of Martinique and Guadaloupe, and his replacement by Henri-Etienne Hoppenot, representing the French National committee of Liberation.

Criticism Unfair

He went on to say there had been a great deal of criticism of this government's French policy, much of it unfair, incorrect and vicious propaganda.

Though he did not mention it specifically, presumably he referred among other things to criticism from enthusiasts for General Charles De Gaulle, leader of the Fighting French, and others of the policy of working with the late Admiral Jean Darlan, ex-Vichyite, in North Africa. There has been criticism also that this country showed favoritism for General Henri Honore Giraud by having him visit Washington for military conversations. Giraud is co-chairman with De Gaulle of the French National committee.

Specifically, Mr. Roosevelt did mention those he said have accused the government of temporizing with Robert. He said there were some, among them persons he termed isolationists, who wanted the American battle fleet to go to Martinique and oust Robert by force of arms.

Took It On Chin

For two years, he said, the administration took it on the chin while waiting in belief the situation could be settled without bloodshed damaging to the over-all war effort.

And by waiting it out, he added, using a baseball phrase, it had got a base on balls.

A prime concern of this country's French policy, he said, had been to keep the French fleet from falling into Axis hands. All in all, he concluded, he thought the American policy had worked out pretty well: The Axis did not get the fleet and virtually all the French Empire not occupied by the Axis is fighting against it.

Meanwhile, Secretary of State Hull, taking cognizance of a published report that Mr. Roosevelt had on two occasions asked Prime Minister Churchill to arrest De Gaulle, denounced it as fantastic and told his press conference that no person in this country had dreamed or even thought remotely of any such action.

Wallace Is Through Politically, Say Many

JUL 17 1943

Both Democrat and Republican Congressmen Express Same Opinion—Crowley Appointment Seen as Victory for Jones.

WASHINGTON, July 16. (AP)—Some members of Congress, commenting on President Roosevelt's reorganization of the economic warfare set-up, were ready today to write off Vice President Wallace as a 1944 political factor whether or not Mr. Roosevelt should agree to seek a fourth term.

'Wallace Dead Politically'

"Henry Wallace was already dead politically," Senator Smith (D-S. C.) told reporters, "but this thing buries him."

Senator Nye (R-N. D.) commented, "it looks to me like the end of Wallace's plans for milk routes all over the world."

Nye also said he regarded the appointment of Leo Crowley, the alien property custodian, to head a newly-created Office of Economic Warfare as tantamount to a victory for Secretary of Commerce Jones in the latter's dispute with Wallace over purchases of foreign war materials.

"To my way of thinking," Nye said, "Crowley represents the more conservative element in the administration, the same element that Jones represents."

In creating the Office of Economic Warfare, Mr. Roosevelt abolished the Board of Economic Warfare (BEW), headed by Wallace, and also placed under Crowley's new agency a group of subsidiaries of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, supervised by Jones, which have been concerned with foreign purchases.

F. D. R. Rebuked Both

He also rebuked both Wallace and Jones for publicly airing their differences, and told heads of all government agencies that he would expect them to send him their resignations if they released public statements criticizing other government departments.

On second reading today of Mr. Roosevelt's order, many at the capitol and in the government were impressed with the grant of power it gave to James F. Byrnes, the War Mobilization director.

A spokesman for the now-abolished BEW, unwilling to be quoted by name, said it appeared to him, in fact, that Byrnes would have most of the powers formerly exercised by Wallace and that Crowley would be in about the position formerly occupied by Milo Perkins, right-hand man to Wallace.

The Chief Executive's order gave the War Mobilization committee, headed by Byrnes, broad control over policies of Crowley's new agency.

Powers Limited

It forbids the agency to spend any money outside the United States except "for the purpose of executing general economic programs or policies formally approved in writing by a majority of the War Mobilization committee" and filed with the State department.

On this committee, in addition to Byrnes, are secretaries Stimson and Knox, Chairman Donald Nelson of the War Production Board, Harry Hopkins and Fred M. Vinson, Economic Stabilization director.

Byrnes alone was given power to order transfer of additional functions from the RFC subsidiaries to other corporations, or to authorize foreign purchases by agencies outside Crowley's agency. In addition, he was directed to arrange for "unification and coordination of activities of the federal government relating to foreign supply, foreign procurement and other foreign economic affairs" in conformity with State department policy.

The new grant of authority to Byrnes, who already has been dubbed the "assistant president" because of his powers in domestic matters, brought fresh talk in political circles that he might be the second man on a Roosevelt fourth-term ticket, although Byrnes said recently that he had no political ambitions. Another mentioned, on the presumption that Wallace is not to be considered, was Speaker Rayburn.

Milo Perkins Out Of Job, Says BEW Aide

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, July 16—A Board of Economic Warfare spokesman said today that President Roosevelt's action in reorganizing the BEW into an Office of Economic Warfare undoubtedly meant that Milo Perkins, BEW director, was out of a job.

This authorized spokesman said merely that he did not expect much to be doing around BEW today, adding:

"Mr. Perkins was fired yesterday, and that seems to be all there is to it."

Considers Himself Out

The spokesman said he did not know whether Perkins had submitted a formal resignation, but he added there was no room for doubt that the executive director considered himself out of a job.

The spokesman said he interpreted Mr. Roosevelt's action as putting the activities formerly in the hands of Vice-President Wallace under Stabilization Director James F. Byrnes and those held by Perkins under Leo T. Crowley, newly named director of the OEW.

Neither Perkins nor Crowley could be reached for comment. Crowley was out of town.

For almost three weeks, Mr. Roosevelt watched—as he said, with surprise — Vice-President Wallace and Commerce Secretary Jones slam each other in print over methods of stock-piling strategic war materials.

BEW Is Abolished

Then, last night, in a sweeping order, the President—

1. Abolished the Board of Economic Warfare, of which Wallace was the policy-making head.

2. Took away from Jones' Reconstruction Finance Corporation four major agencies dealing with foreign purchasing.

3. Established a new Office of Economic Warfare with Leo T. Crowley, now alien property custodian, as the director.

4. Told all administrative officials that any time they disagree with another agency and "feel you should submit it to the press, I ask that when you release the statement for publication you send to me a letter of resignation." Minor officeholders who violate this are to be dismissed by their superiors promptly, the President added.

No Decision On Charges

The President, in letters to Wallace and Jones, said there wasn't time in the midst of war to find out "where the truth lies, the important thing being to clear the decks and to get on with the war at once. . . . A fresh start with new

DRAFT QUOTAS ARE ANALYZED

Early Call Improbable for Pre-Sept. 15 Fathers.

Washington, July 16 (A. P.)—Most of the nation's fathers will still be in civilian clothes by October, perhaps much longer, say draft officials who are counting on single and childless married men, and the teen-age group to meet the armed forces' requirements.

This continued immunity from Selective Service applies however only to those fathers living with and supporting children born before last September 15 and working at jobs outside the non-deferrable list. About 6,500,000 have those qualifications.

This was the draft picture given to reporters by Major Emmett Solomon of the Selective Service man-power division yesterday.

The 1,566,000 single and childless married men already classified as available for immediate induction will fill the quotas for July, August and September.

Supplementing this were these factors:

1. At least 50,000 youths of the 90,000 who reach 18 each month can be counted upon with certainty to land in uniform.

2. An indefinite number will be recovered from the pool of 2,976,000 men rejected before because of physical, mental, educational or moral disqualifications.

3. Many of the 705,000 single and childless married men now holding occupational deferment for farm work are likely to be called by local boards after harvest.

4. Occupational deferments for non-agricultural work expire constantly and most of this group of 1,373,000 are single or childless.

The armed forces already have a strength of 9,300,000 men and women and, though casualties thus far have been considerably below the allowance, the officially projected size of the armed forces is 10,800,000 by the end of this year and 11,300,000 by the middle of next year.

Viereck Convicted As Foreign Agent

WASHINGTON, July 16 (AP)—A federal court jury tonight convicted George Sylvester Viereck, alleged pro-German propagandist, of violating the foreign agents registration act.

The jury, out for about nine hours, found him guilty on all six counts, charging him with failing to list all foreign principals for whom he worked prior to Pearl Harbor and failing to give the State Department a comprehensive statement of his activities.

Justice Bolitha J. Laws had instructed the jury of nine men and three women that they could find Viereck guilty of any one or all of the six counts.

He stressed, however, that Viereck had the right to carry on propaganda activities in behalf of his foreign employers—"even the German Reich"—so long as he revealed required information to the State Department.

Viereck was convicted in March, 1942, and served a year of an eight months to two years sentnece before the original case was remanded by the supreme court.

Under the new conviction, Viereck faces a possible maximum sentence of 12 years and $6,000 fine.

It was expected sentence would be imposed about July 23.

RESCUERS DROWNED

Washington, July 16 (A. P.)—Eight members of a Navy patrol bomber crew, including a New Jersey man, died in the far North Atlantic in an unsuccessful attempt to rescue survivors of an R. A. F. crash, the Navy said yesterday.

The New Jersey man was Aviation Chief Machinist's Mate Fred A. Cernek of 226 Eighth street, Palisades Park.

On June 11, a naval air station in the North Atlantic received a report from the patrol plane that a dinghy had been sighted and the plane was going down for a landing.

Several days later an American minesweeper picked up a life raft carrying L. F. Pellitier, aviation radioman, of Fall River, Mass., the only survivor of the nine-man crew.

Pellitier said that in landing a cross wave hooked a wing-tip and swung the big ship into an adjoining wave, splitting her bow.

The British airmen were picked up by a British seaplane.

FREYBERG IN U. S.

Washington, July 16 (A. P.)—Lieut.-Gen. Sir Bernard C. Freyberg, V. C., commander of the New Zealand division attached to the British Eighth Army, has arrived on the West Coast en route to Washington to confer with President Roosevelt and Army officials, the New Zealand legation reported tonight.

The legation said that Gen. Freyberg, who has spent the last four weeks conferring with the New Zealand Government, would be met here today by Gen. George C. Marshall, Army Chief of Staff.

Urge Japanese Be Drafted As Other Citizens

Recommendation Made By Senate Military Affairs Body.

WASHINGTON, July 16 (AP)—The Senate Military Affairs committee recommended today that Japanese be drafted "in the same manner" as other residents of the United States.

Based on Findings

In a report based on findings of a subcommittee headed by Senator Chandler (D-Ky), the committee quoted Army spokesmen as saying "we would like to use these people as soldiers." It also said the War department has satisfactory methods for "screening out the bad ones" and that already more than 7,500 Japanese are in the Army.

The committee also recommended:

1. That disloyal Japanese be placed in interment camps.

2. That loyal, able-bodied Japanese be allowed to work under proper supervision "in areas where they will be accepted, and where the Army and Navy authorities consider it safe for them to go."

Asserting that in relocation camps operated by the war relocation authority, "there is little or no real discipline, and there are many clashes of authority," the committee recommended that the regularly constituted arms of the government, "including the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the Department of Justice, and the Army and Navy" should assume "full and complete responsibility" for determining the loyalty of Japanese.

TWO BRIGADIERS HONORED

Generals Jones and Littlejohn Win D. S. M. for Services

WASHINGTON, July 17 (AP)—To two brigadier generals have been awarded the Distinguished Service Medal for meritorious service in connection with American Army operations in Africa and the Aleutians, the War Department announced today.

They are Lloyd E. Jones of Columbia, S. C., who commanded an Army force in establishing an advance base in the Aleutians, and Robert McG. Littlejohn of Washington, D. C., who was deputy commanding general, Services of Supply, in the European theatre immediately preceding the African invasion.

New 'Guide' Explains U. S. For Soldier After War

[By the Associated Press]

New York, July 16—American soldiers needn't worry about getting readjusted to conditions at home when they return from the wars abroad. Sergt. Leon D. Held has it all figured out for them.

Sergeant Held, 24, was a radio operator for the Associated Press' short-wave listening post at North Castle, N. Y., before the army picked him up and set him down in the Southwest Pacific war theater.

There, in due time, he came across the War Department's various short guides for soldiers, advising them to refrain from criticism of cricket, the King and currency in England; to boil their drinking water in China, to eat with the right hand only and be generous with cigarettes in Africa.

List Is Compiled

"But they aren't going to stay away forever," Sergeant Held wrote his ex-boss. "When they return, accustomed as they are to behavior governed by the printed page, they may not find it easy to adapt themselves to our quaint ways.

"That is why I have compiled the following list of dos and don'ts for the returning soldier, to be included in a handbook entitled 'A Short Guide to the United States.'

"Americans usually open a conversation by asking, 'Well, what's new?' It is not necessary to reply to this except by saying, 'Well, what's new with you?'

Money Is Explained

"The monetary system is rather confusing. Regardless of their denomination, five, ten and twenty dollar bills are all the same size. A nickel (worth only 5 cents) is almost twice as large as a dime (worth 10 cents). Two-dollar bills are tabu and the natives are extremely superstitious about them.

"Listen patiently when veterans of the first World War tell you how much tougher things were in their day. Remember they had to listen to the Spanish-American War veterans, who in turn had to listen to the Civil War veterans.

"In some parts of the United States, eggs in powdered form are unobtainable, and you will have no choice but to eat them directly from the shell. However, it is always advisable to boil them first. In the rural districts it is also difficult to get dried vegetables owing to a lack of dehydrating equipment.

Vegetables "Palatable"

"You may be shocked to see beets, turnips and potatoes displayed in the market in their natural state, with bits of garden soil still clinging to them. Yet when mashed and properly prepared, these vegetables can be quite palatable. The natives seem to thrive on them.

"In churches and auditoriums and other public places you will often see women surreptitiously slipping their feet out of their shoes and wiggling their toes. This is strictly a feminine prerogative, and has no religious significance. Do not attempt to imitate them.

"Always be tactful. If, for example, you notice that your Aunt Beulah has had her extra chin removed by plastic surgery, don't congratulate her. This operation is known as 'losing face' and the natives are very sensitive about it.

Are "Friendly People"

"But after all, the best way to understand the Americans is to settle down and actually live with them. They are really a very friendly people despite the apparent ferocity of their handshakes and their violent backslapping.

"They mean well. Remember their civilization is much younger than that of Europe and Asia. They are just great big overgrown children at heart and should be treated as such.

"In fact, any woman under 35 may safely be addressed as 'baby' and when you can do that, buddy, you know you are home again."

Allied Troops in Sicily More Than Making Good

Invasion Forces Making Quick Gains in All Departments—Churchill-F. D. R. Warn People of Italy to Surrender Now.

JUL 17 1943

Interpreting the War News
By Kirke L. Simpson

Anglo-American fighting men afoot, in tanks and in ships of air and sea, were more than making good in Sicily and over the Italian mainland last night the grim warning voiced to the people of Italy by President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill of what was in store for them unless they surrender—and surrender now.

Pace Accelerated

The pace of the Allied advance on a 100-mile front, sweeping in prisoners by the thousand, accelerated as the first week of the great sea-borne invasion ended. It stirred speculation at Allied headquarters in North Africa as to whether an attempted Axis sea evacuation of Sicily might not be impending.

Yet the events which held out the greatest promise of ultimate and perhaps relatively early collapse of Axis in Europe were taking place in central Russia, not Sicily. The Moscow-disclosed Red Army pincer attack on the Nazi Orel salient, protecting the main German war communication line in central Russia, filled in for high Allied strategists a segment of the victory pattern.

Following their usual custom, Moscow authorities concealed the fatc of the drive for three days until they could announce the capture of definite objective to indicate its strength and purpose. Washington and London alike had been hoping for a Russian offensive synchronized with the Anglo-American drive into Sicily and the again stepped-up air attack from the west. It came in perfect integrating.

Admit Red Gains

Nazi propagandists, admitting Russian gains against the northeast and east flanks of the Orel salient, describe them as attacks for relief of Kursk. There is strong evidence, however, that the recent Nazi mass attack on the Kursk bulge from Orel southward to Belgorod was itself primarily a relief attempt that failed. It was calculated to forestall the very Russian offensive that has now opened aid is definitely threatening the Bryansk communications key to the whole Axis front in Russia from Vitebsk to the Tagonrog Axis anchor point to the south on the Sea of Azov coast.

Yet what to Allied strategists is more significant than any gains yet scored by Russia against the Orel salient is the fact that they could be made at all. tI means that powerful Russian shock-troop forces just north of the battle that raged for nearly three weeks to stem Nazi efforts to crack the Kursk bulge were never needed in that offensive action.

The same miracle of Red Army defense of the Kursk bulge that marked the defense of Stalingrad is indicated. In both cases it was done without calling in all reserves or impeding preparations for going over to the offensive. That speaks volumes not only for available Russian manpower but also for the stores and equipment that have been piled up for both defensive and offensive action during the Spring and Summer lull.

It appears now that Stalin, whether advised in advance of the Allied attack date in Sicily, waited until it had gripped beach landings and made good its footing inshore before he signalled the attack on the Orel salient. And if that attack is what it seems to be, it underscores General Marshall's recent statement that in Russia the "bulk" of Hitler's arms is in in constant and deadly danger.

NIGHT LEAD AXIS REACTION

BY GORDON TAIT

LONDON, JULY 15-(AP)-FRESH GERMAN RESERVES WERE DECLARED BY THE BERLIN RADIO TONIGHT TO HAVE COUNTER-ATTACKED THE ALLIES INVADING SICILY IN THE REGION SOUTH OF CATANIA, AND BOTH THE ITALIAN AND NAZI COMMUNIQUES SAID VIOLENT BRITISH AND AMERICAN DRIVES HAD BEEN CHECKED.

"FIGHTING IN SOUTHERN SICILY IS CONTINUING WITH UNDIMINISHED VIOLENCE," THE GERMAN COMMUNIQUE SAID. "AT SEVERAL POINTS, ENEMY ATTACKS, LAUNCHED WITH THE SUPPORT OF TANKS, WERE REPULSED."

HOURS AFTER THE COMMUNIQUE, THE BERLIN MILITARY COMMENTATOR, CAPT. LUDWIG SERTORIUS, TOLD OF THE COUNTERATTACK SOUTH OF CATANIA, WHICH THE BRITISH EIGHTH ARMY IS APPROACHING.

JUL 17 1943

"IN SICILY, ENEMY PRESSURE IS BEING CONTAINED BY AXIS TROOPS WHO REPULSED STUBBORN ENEMY ATTACKS LAUNCHED WITH THE SUPPORT OF SUBSTANTIAL ARMOR," THE ITALIAN BULLETIN SAID.

ALL THE AXIS ACCOUNTS WERE RECORDED FROM RADIOS CONTROLLED BY THEIR PROPAGANDA MINISTRIES.

THE COMMUNIQUES WERE AT VARIANCE WITH ALLIED REPORTS OF ITALIANS SURRENDERING IN THE THOUSANDS.

IN MARKED CONTRAST TO THE MORE CONFIDENT TONE WAS THE VICHY RADIO ACCOUNT SAYING THE AXIS POSITION IN SICILY IS "EXTREMELY SERIOUS" AND THAT "FURTHER INFILTRATION ATTEMPTS MUST BE CHECKED IN ORDER TO AVOID ENDANGERING AXIS DEFENSES IN THE CATANIA PLAIN." THE GERMANS CONTROL THE VICHY RADIO.

A GERMAN COMBAT CORRESPONDENT IN SICILY WROTE THAT THE "ALLIES HAD PLANNED A PAUSE IN FIGHTING WEDNESDAY TO REGROUP THEIR FORMATIONS FOR IMPENDING HEAVY FIGHTING" BUT THAT AXIS FORCES HAD NOT ALLOWED THE INVADERS TO REST. ANOTHER SAID THE AMERICAN SEVENTH ARMY HAD BEEN REPELLED WITH HEAVY LOSSES IN AN ATTEMPT TO PENETRATE AXIS LINES.

SOME 43 U.S. TANKS WERE KNOCKED OUT BY ONE UNIT IN 12 HOURS, THE REPORT SAID.

JUL 17 1943

MOST UNOFFICIAL RADIO COMMENT FROM ENEMY CAMPS WAS SUBDUED, BUT BROADCAST QUOTATIONS FROM ITALIAN NEWSPAPERS SHOWED THAT MUSSOLINI WAS STRIVING DESPERATELY TO BUCK UP ITALIAN MORALE.

REGIME FASCISTA OF MILAN UNDER THE HEADING "LET US FACE REALITIES," HAMMERED HOME THE LINE THAT THE LANDINGS IN SICILY WERE POSSIBLE ONLY BECAUSE OF IMMENSE ALLIED MATERIAL SUPERIORITY.

"THE HELLISH FIRE OF HEAVY CALIBER NAVAL GUNS AND A HAIL OF BOMBS" PERMITTED THE LANDINGS, THE GERMAN AGENCY DNB CONTENDED.

MESSAGGERO OF ROME PROMISED THAT "THE ENEMY'S DIFFICULTIES WILL INCREASE MORE AS HE ADVANCES INTO THE INTERIOR. IN HIS LANDING ON SICILY, THE ENEMY HAS THROWN IN MASSED MEN AND MATERIAL OUT OF PROPORTION TO THE OBJECT OF HIS ATTACK."

THE ROME RADIO DECLARED THE LANDING WAS "A BREACH IN THE FORTRESS EUROPE AND THE SOONER IT IS SEALED, THE SOONER THE FREEDOM AND INDEPENDENCE OF EUROPEAN PEOPLES WILL BE SAVED."

"THREE YEARS OF ANGLO-AMERICAN WAR EFFORT HAVE BEEN HURLED AGAINST ITALY," THE ROME COMMENTATOR SAID. HE EMPHASIZED THE DIFFICULTY GERMAN AND ITALIAN TROOPS WERE HAVING IN "CONTAINING" THE INVADERS.

GERMAN AND ITALIAN COMMUNIQUES ASSERTED A RESURGENCE OF AXIS AIR POWER, IN CONTRAST TO ALLIED REPORTS THAT ENEMY PLANES VIRTUALLY HAD BEEN DRIVEN FROM THE AIR. THE AXIS CLAIMED CONSIDERABLE LOSSES WERE INFLICTED ON ALLIED SHIPPING. THE ITALIANS SAID FOUR SHIPS OF 27,000 TONS AND A DESTROYER WERE SUNK; TWO OTHER CARGO SHIPS AND A HEAVY CRUISER WERE DAMAGED. THERE WAS NO CONFIRMATION OF THESE

3024 - 6165

ASSERTIONS. AXIS COMMUNIQUES SAID PARACHUTE TROOPS DROPPED BEHIND THEIR LINES WERE WIPED OUT.

LIKE AN EPITAPH, THE ITALIAN COMMUNIQUE PRAISED THE 207TH ITALIAN COASTAL DIVISION WHICH THE ALLIES SAID YESTERDAY HAD BEEN ELIMINATED. ROME ALSO PRAISED THE NAZI HERMANN GOERING ARMORED DIVISION WHICH THE AMERICANS MAULED THE DAY BEFORE.

MORE REALISTICALLY, THE ROME COMMUNIQUE TOLD OF BOMBINGS WHICH CAUSED "CONSIDERABLE DAMAGE TO CIVILIAN BUILDINGS" AT MESSINA ON THE STRAIT TO THE MAINLAND, PALERMO AT THE WESTERN END OF SICILY AND NAPLES ON THE MAINLAND. MUSSOLINI WAS REPORTED TO HAVE EXTENDED THE "ACTIVE WAR ZONE" TO INCLUDE NAPLES, WHICH MEANT THAT MARTIAL LAW HAD BEEN EXTENDED OVER MOST OF THE FOOT OF THE ITALIAN BOOT.

IT WAS DELIVERED AS ITALIAN SOLDIERS WERE REPORTED SURRENDERI BY THE THOUSANDS IN SICILY, WHERE THE POPULATION WAS RECEIVING THE INVADERS WITH NO SIGNS OF ANIMOSITY. IT COINCIDED WITH A STRONG RUSSIAN OFFENSIVE IN THE EAST.

AS FOR THE WESTERN EUROPEAN FRONT, U.S. SECRETARY OF WAR HENRY L. STIMSON TOLD A PRESS CONFERENCE, AMERICAN TROOPS ARE "GETTING READY TO FIGHT."

FOLLOWING THE ESTABLISHED AMERICAN AND BRITISH LINE OF APPEALING TO THE FRIENDLINESS OF THE ITALIAN PEOPLE OVER THE HEADS OF THEIR LEADERS, THE ROOSEVELT-CHURCHILL STATEMENT STRESSED THE UNWORTHINESS OF GERMANY'S WAR AIMS AND THE USELESS SACRIFICE WITH WHICH THE ITALIANS THEMSELVES WERE THREATENED.

JUL 17 1943

THERE WAS LITTLE REASON TO DOUBT FROM NEWS DISPATCHES THAT THOUSANDS OF EVERYDAY ITALIANS WHO GREETED THE ALLIES IN SICILY IN A FRIENDLY MANNER, MARVELLED AT ALLIED MILITARY SKILL AND EQUIPMENT AND SULKED ABOUT THE GERMAN TREATMENT OF THEIR SOLDIERS, WOULD WELCOME PEACE.

THE QUESTION OF WHETHER MUSSOLINI'S POLICE STILL ARE STRONG ENOUGH TO PREVENT THE ITALIAN PEOPLE ACTING ON THE ADVICE REMAINS TO BE SEEN. AT LEAST, THE STATEMENT SHOULD HELP COUNTERACT THE FRIGHTENING INTERPRETATION OF THE ALLIES' "UNCON- -TIONAL SURRENDER" POLICY GIVEN TO THE ITALIANS BY FASCIST PROPAGANDISTS.

U.S. BOMBER BASE IN ENGLAND, JULY 15-((AP)-FIRST LIEUTENANT CALVIN D.SWAFFER, 22, OF MEMPHIS, TENN., YESTERDAY WOUND UP HIS COMBAT CAREER AS A FLYING FORTRESS PILOT IN THE EUROPEAN THEATRE OF OPERATIONS WITH A SPLASH--INTO THE ENGLISH CHANNEL--BUT HE AND HIS ENTIRE CREW WERE RESCUED UNINJURED.

SWAFFER'S FLAK-RIDDLED BOMBER "MEMPHIS BLUES" "DITCHED" INTO THE CHANNEL ABOUT 20 MILES OFF THE FRENCH COAST, ONLY A SHORT DISTANCE OUTSIDE AN ENEMY MINE FIELD, WITH THREE ENGINES SHOT OUT. IT WAS RETURNING WITH OTHER AMERICAN HEAVY BOMBERS FROM VILLA-COUBLAY NEAR PARIS WHERE THEY HAD POUNDED A LUFTWAFFE ASSEMBLY PLANT AND AIRDROME.

THE CREW WAS PICKED UP AN HOUR AND A HALF LATER BY BRITISH AIR AND SEA RESCUE CRAFT.

ONE OF THE MEMPHIS BLUES' ENGINES WAS SHOT OUT OF COMMISSION AND SET AFIRE BEFORE THE TARGET WAS REACHED. DROPPING A THOUSAND FEET BELOW THE BOMBERS' FORMATION, SWAFFER DOGGEDLY CONTINUED ON TO THE TARGET SO BOMBARDIER 2ND LIEUT.WILLIAM F.SWEET, 25, OF ATLANTA, GA., COULD DROP EXPLOSIVES.

AS IT TURNED OFF TOWARD HOME, THE SHIP WAS ATTACKED BY THREE

FOCKE-WULFS BUT HER GUNNERS DROVE THEM OFF. A SHORT TIME LATER THE BOMBER WAS CAUGHT IN THE MIDST OF A VERITABLE FIELD OF ANTI-AIRCRAFT FIRE BURSTS. IT WAS BUFFETED VIOLENTLY BY SERIOUS HITS AND NEAR MISSES WHICH SOMETIMES KNOCKED IT 100 FEET UPWARD OR 50 FEET TOWARD ONE SIDE, TEARING GREAT HOLES IN THE WINGS AND FUSELAGE.

THE CREW WAS THROWN ALL AROUND THE PLANE BUT NONE WAS INJURED.

JUL 17 1943

ONE TERRIFIC BLAST KNOCKED SGT.JAMES E.MILLS, 27, OF OKLAHOMA CITY, OKLA., RIGHT WAIST GUNNER, SIX FEET BACK TOWARDS THE REAR OF THE BOMBER BUT HE WAS ONLY MOMENTARILY STUNNED.

TWO MORE ENGINES WERE SHOT OUT LEAVING ONLY ONE NOW FUNCTIONING, AND THE RIGHT WING WAS RIPPED ALMOST TO SHREDS. THE BOMBER'S RIGHT ELEVATOR WAS SHOT COMPLETELY AWAY. SO WAS PART OF HER RIGHT HORIZONTAL STABILIZER. THERE WAS A BIG HOLE IN THE RADIO COMPARTMENT.

THE CONTROLS WERE SO BADLY SHATTERED THAT SWAFFER COULD NOT KEEP THE BOMBER ON AN EVEN KEEL AND WAS LOSING ALTITUDE AT THE RATE OF 400 FEET PER MINUTE.

HE RETARDED THE BOMBER'S SPEED TO ABOUT 80 MILES PER HOUR FOR A CRASH LANDING INTO THE SEA AND THE CREW QUICKLY SCRAMBLED OUT AND CLIMBED ABOARD A RUBBER DIGHY. "MEMPHIS BLUES" SANK IN THREE MINUTES.

BEFORE CRASHING, THE RADIO OPERATOR-GUNNER, SERGEANT JAMES O.MATTHEWS 23, OF VICTORIA, TEX., HAD CONTACTED AN AIR-SEA RESCUE BOAT AND IT WAS SPEEDING TO THE SCENE BEFORE THE BOMBER HIT WATER.

THE OTHER CREWMEN: SECOND LIEUT.WILLIAM H.KARRAKER, 23, LEXINGTON, KY., NAVIGATOR; SERGEANTS RUDOLPH S.LOPEZ, 21, SAN ANTONIO, TEX., TOP TURRET GUNNER, EDWARD T.CUBB, 21, BUFFALO, N.Y., LEFT WAIST GUNNER; JOHN P.MOODY, 19, MONTGOMERY, ALA., TAIL GUNNER; AND EDWARD W.GRIFFIN, 20, WASHINGTON, D.C., BALL TURRET GUNNER.

AN EIGHTH AIR FORCE SUPPORT COMMAND BOMBER BASE IN ENGLAND, JULY 16-(AP)-MEDIUM BOMBERS OF THE EIGHTH AIR FORCE IN A SURPRISE DUSK ATTACK ON FRANCE HIT THE IMPORTANT FREIGHT YARDS OF ABBEVILLE TODAY.

IT WAS THE THIRD UNITED STATES MEDIUM BOMBER RAID IN THIS THEATER AND THE FIRST UNDER THE EIGHTH AIR FORCE'S "TACTICAL" BRANCH.

NONE OF OUR BOMBERS WERE LOST AND ONLY ONE MAN WAS INJURED IN THE COURSE OF A SHORT FLAK BARRAGE NEAR THE TARGET 15 MILES INSIDE THE FRENCH COAST.

BRIGADIER GENERAL ROBERT C.CANDEE, CHIEF OF THE AIR SUPPORT COMMAND, AFTER ATTENDING THE INTERROGATION OF THE MEN INVOLVED IN THIS ARM'S FIRST ACTION IN THIS THEATER, SAID:

"IT WAS SWELL--A GOOD START AND WE'LL KEEP IT UP UNTIL WE SMASH THEM FOR GOOD AND ALL."

THE FLIERS WERE AWAY FROM THEIR BASE ONLY A SHORT WHILE. THEY FLEW AT MEDIUM LEVEL AND WERE ESCORTED BY RAF SPITFIRES AROUND THEM AND EIGHTH FIGHTER COMMAND P47 THUNDERBOLTS AT A HIGH ALTITUDE OVERHEAD.

THEY SAW ONLY A FEW FIGHTERS AT TOO GREAT A DISTANCE TO EVEN

JUL 17 1943

IDENTIFY THEM.

THEY DROPPED SEVERAL TONS OF BOMBS.

THE ATTACK WAS LED BY COL. HERBERT B.THATCHER OF 3 WEST IRVING ST., CHEVY CHASE, MD.

ONE OF THE FLIERS WAS CAPTAIN FRANK KAPPLER, 2992 JOHNSON AVE., ALAMEDA, CALIF., A NAVIGATOR IN THE DOOLITTLE RAID ON TOKYO MAKING HIS FIRST MISSION, EXCEPT FOR ONE OPERATION IN CHINA, SINCE THE ATTACK ON JAPAN.

(MORE)

JUL 17 1943

WM859PEW

COL. THATCHER SUMMED UP THE MISSION:

"THE BOMBING WAS ONLY FAIR BUT THE EXPERIENCE GAINED WAS INCALCULABLE AND THEY'RE NOT SO TOUGH.

"WE NEVER MADE A BETTER BOMBING RUN. THE WEATHER SEEMED TO OPEN UP JUST FOR US--THERE WAS A RIFT IN THE CLOUDS RIGHT OVER THE TARGET. THE BOYS WORKED LIKE A BUNCH OF OLD-TIMERS."

THE EIGHTH AIR FORCE'S TWO PREVIOUS MEDIUM BOMBER RAIDS ON EUROPE --AT LOW ALTITUDE ON VELSEN, HOLLAND, MAY 13, AND WITH HEAVY BOMBERS IN A COMBINED ATTACK ON LORIENT AND BORDEAUX MAY 17, WERE UNDER THE EIGHTH BOMBER COMMAND.

TODAY'S OPERATION WAS THE FIRST DISCLOSURE THAT MEDIUM BOMBERS HAD BEEN TRANSFERRED TO THE AIR SUPPORT COMMAND.

ONE OF THE NEW ARMOR FLAK SUITS WORN BY U.S. BOMBER CREWS PROBABLY SAVED THE LIFE OF LIEUT. THOMAS G.TRAINOR, 13 15TH AVE., HAVERHILL, MASS., A BOMBARDIER-NAVIGATOR ON THE BOMBER "MISS EMILY".

"WE HIT KIND OF HEAVY FLAK OVER THE TARGET," HE SAID. "ABOUT THE THIRD OR FOURTH BURST I SAW CAME PAST MY NOSE. I SAW A PIECE RICOCHET RIGHT PAST MY EYE."

IT RICOCHETED, HE FOUND OUT, OFF THE BACK OF HIS FLAK VEST, TEARING A HOLE IN THE CANVAS COERING.

JUL 17 1943

OTHER "MISS EMILY" CREWMEN WERE THE PILOT, LIEUT.JAMES DAVIS, ELLIJAY, GA.; SERGEANT JOSEPH S.WHITE, GLENCOE, MO., RADIO GUNNER; SERGEANT RICHARD C.KING, 5223 DENTON DRIVE, DALLAS, TEX., TURRET GUNNER; SERGEANT GEORGE LEMBERGER, OSHKOSH, WIS., TAIL GUNNER.

"ALL WE NEEDED WAS LUNCH--WE HAD A PICNIC," SAID SERGEANT GASTON POULIN, SKOWHEGAN, ME., TURRET GUNNER OF "MISS SAFARTUS RICKENSCHRICKER", PILOTED BY LIEUT. ALBERT SATTERWHITE OF HENDERSON, N.C. OTHER CREWMEN WERE: LIEUT.RICHARD J.BAKER, 656 TACOMA ST., BUFFALO, N.Y., NAVIGATOR; LIEUT. GEORGE J.FRIESNER, 4842 BELLEPLAINE ST., CHICAGO, BOMBARDIER; SERGEANT CHARLES KETCHAM, 513 SIXTH AVE., ASBURY PARK, N.J., RADIO GUNNER; SERGEANT VICTOR ROGERS, 241 SIXTEENTH AVE., NEWARK, N.J., TAIL GUNNER.

IT WAS A SECOND CRACK AT THE GERMANS FOR MAJOR WILSON WOOD, CHICO, TEX., EVEN THOUGH IT WAS HIS FIRST OPERATION IN THIS THEATER. IN THE MONTHS JUST AFTER PEARL HARBOR HE WAS CREDITED WITH SINKING A GERMAN U-BOAT OFF JACKSONVILLE, FLA. HE ALSO BOMBED A JAPANESE SUBMARINE OFF SEATTLE.

WOOD PILOTED THE "SUZY Q". OTHER CREWMEN: CO-PILOT, LIEUT.JOSEPH

J.PATTON, MEDFORD, ORE.; NAVIGATOR, LIEUT. VINCENT P.HANNLEY, 2662 CHRISTIANSON AVE., AKRON, O.; BOMBARDIER, LIEUT. ANDY C. STOLEN, MADISON, WIS.; SERGEANT RICHARD MORGAN, PHILLIPSBURG, PA., TURRET GUNNER; SERGEANT HOWARD E. SHIELDS, 3709 JAY ST., GALVESTON, TEX., TAIL GUNNER.

THE GUNNERS HAD NO CHOICE TO DO ANY SHOOTING TODAY.

"I SPENT ALL MY TIME JUST LOOKING FOR PURSUITS. I DIDN'T SEE ANY," SAID SERGEANT CLIDE BRAGG, GAMBRILLS, MD., TURRET GUNNER ON "HONEST INJUN".

"IT WAS A SWELL TRIP," SAID THE "HONEST INJUN'S" BOMBARDIER-NAVIGATOR, SERGEANT DAVID JOHNSON, FORMER STONE-CUTTER OF GAINESVILLE, TEX.

CAPT.KAPPLER, 29, SAID HIS FIRST RAID OVER EUROPE WAS TOUGHER THAN THAT OVER TOKYO.

U.S. EIGHTH ARMY AIR FORCE HEADQUARTERS, ENGLAND, JULY 16-(AP)-THE FLYING FORTRESS "TS" COLLIDED HEADON WITH A FOCKE-WULF FIGHTER PLANE WHOSE PILOT APPARENTLY HAD BEEN KILLED BUT THE BOMBER LIMPED HOME TO ENGLAND TO COMPLETE ITS FIFTH RAID.

TS MADE A PERFECT BOMB RUN OVER ITS TARGET, THE GERMAN AIRDROME AT AMIENS-GLISY WEDNESDAY, AND HEADED FOR HOME UNDER A STRONG COVER OF AMERICAN THUNDERBOLT FIGHTERS WHEN IT SMACKED STRAIGHT INTO TROUBLE.

JUL 17 1943

THE FORMATION HAD JUST CROSSED THE FRENCH COAST WHEN IT ENCOUNTERED THREE FOCKE-WULF-190S WHICH SLIPPED THROUGH THE FIGHTER ESCORT AND [illegible]VED ON THE BOMBERS.

SERGT. JAMES J.O'DONNELL OF DUMONT, N.J., TOP TURRET GUNNER, OPENED UP ON ONE AT THE LEFT.

SECOND LIEUT. ROBERT C.BLACK OF PEACH BOTTOM, PA., THE BOMBARDIER, PICKED OUT THE RIGHT SHIP.

THE BALL TURRET GUNNER, SERGT. ARTHUR L.TUCKER OF RIVER BANK, CALIF., TOOK ON THE THIRD.

O'CONNELL'S BULLETS RIPPED INTO THE FUSELAGE OF THE FIRST NAZI FIGHTER WHICH BURST IN TO FLAMES AND PLUMMETED DOWN. BLACK, WATCHING HIS TRACERS POUR INTO THE BELLY OF THE SECOND FIGHTER, SAW THE ATTACKING AIRCRAFT ZOOM UP OUT OF CONTROL. HIS LAST BURST EVIDENTLY HIT THE PILOT.

IN A SPLIT SECOND, THE FOCKE-WULF HURTLED FORWARD CRAZILY AND CRASHED INTO THE FORTRESS' NO. 3 ENGINE WITH AN IMPACT THAT KNOCKED THE BIG BOMBER OUT OF FORMATION.

THE COLLISION TORE OFF THE PROPELLER, CUT HALF WAY THROUGH THE WING AND A THIRD OF THE WAY THROUGH THE HORIZONTAL STABILIZER. THE TOP AND BALL TURRETS WERE JAMMED. GLASS IN THE BALL TURRET WAS

JUL 17 1943

SHATTERED AND ALL THE INSTRUMENTS WENT BAD, ACCORDING TO SECOND LIEUT. EDWIN R. MANCHESTER OF WESTOVER HILL, WILMINGTON, DEL., THE PILOT.

THE NO. 3 PROPELLER CRASHED INTO THE NO. 4 ENGINE, TEARING OFF THE TOP COWLING AND PART OF THE VALVE ALLOWING OIL TO SPLATTER OUT.

THE CREW WAS TOSSED ABOUT.

JUL 17 1943

SERGT. WADE MCCOOK OF HOWELL, MICH., THE TAIL GUNNER, RECOV.. JUST IN TIME TO BLAZE AWAY AS OTHER FIGHTERS MADE PASSES AT THE CRIPPLED FORTRESS FROM ABOVE. MCCOOK GOT ONE OF THE NAZI FIGHTERS, AND HIS VICTORY WAS CONFIRMED BY PILOTS OF FIVE THUNDERBOLTS WHICH SENT THE LAST ENEMY FIGHTERS HURRYING FOR HOME.

THE DAMAGED PLANE WAS LOSING ALTITUDE AT THE RATE OF ABOUT 500 FEET A MINUTE.

AS THE SHIP CROSSED THE CHANNEL, CREWMEN LIGHTENED THE PLANE BY THROWING OUT EVERYTHING THAT COULD BE SPARED. AS THEY HEAVED THE STUFF OVERBOARD, THEY SANG "PRAISE THE LORD AND PASS THE AMMUNITION."

MANCHESTER WAS UNABLE TO DROP THE LANDING GEAR AND WAS FORCED TO MAKE A BELLY LANDING WITH THE HELP OF THE CO-PILOT, SECOND LIEUT. ROBERT L.VENIGER, JR., OF 1206 MISSOURI AVE., HOUSTON, TEXAS.

"WE LANDED SO GENTLY, WE NEVER EVEN FELT THE JAR," ONE OF THE CREW SAID.

AXIS BERN — Nl. Axis Reaction

ANOTHER BERLIN BROADCAST, QUOTING DR.RUDOLF FISCHER, DIPLOMATIC CORRESPONDENT OF THE TRANSOCEAN PROPAGANDA AGENCY, SAID THAT "AT THIS MOMENT WHEN THE SITUATION MIGHT EASILY BECOME CRUCIAL FOR THE ANGLO-AMERICANS, ROOSEVELT AND CHURCHILL ARE REQUESTING THE ITALIAN PEOPLE TO STAB IN THE BACK THEIR SOLDIERS WHO ARE DEFENDING ITALIAN SOIL WITH THEIR LIVES."

JUL 17 1943

ONE GERMAN BROADCAST, OBVIOUSLY ATTEMPTING TO COUNTERACT THE EFFECTS OF THE ROOSEVELT-CHURCHILL ULTIMATUM, DECLARED: "WHERE ITALIAN SOIL IS TO BE DEFENDED IT WILL BE DEFENDED JOINTLY AND GERMANY ADHERES TO THE PRINCIPLE THAT THE SOIL OF ITS ALLIES IS AS SACRED AS GERMANY'S OWN SOIL. THIS IS THE REASON WHY FROM THE VERY BEGINNING THERE HAVE BEEN GERMAN TROOPS IN SICILY."

A LITTLE LATER IN THE SAME BROADCAST THE COMMENTATOR SAID: "IT IS POINTED OUT THAT SICILY IS NOT ITALY BUT ONLY AN INSULAR OUTPOST OF EUROPE WHICH MOREOVER DOES NOT OFFER THE DEFENDERS THE ADVANTAGES OF A STRONG FORTRESS."

ALLIED OBSERVERS BELIEVED THAT WHAT THE ITALIAN PEOPLE COULD DO AT THIS STAGE, DESPITE THEIR WISHES FOR PEACE, STILL DEPENDED ON FASCIST REACTION TO THE SICILIAN BATTLES. IF CONVINCED THAT THE CHANCES OF HOLDING THE MAINLAND ARE SLIGHT, IT WAS BELIEVED THAT FASCIST LEADERS THEMSELVES MIGHT OPEN THE WAY FOR THE PEOPLE TO BRING ABOUT THE WAR'S END.

POPOLO DI ROMA TOLD THE ITALIANS THEY "MUST GRIT THEIR TEETH FOR THE MOMENT," BECAUSE NO OTHER ASSISTANCE IS POSSIBLE EXCEPT THAT FROM AN ALLY WHO IS COMPELLED TO CONTINUE TO FIGHT ON THE

JUL 17 1943

3024-6173

EASTERN FRONT. ROBERT FARINACCI, EDITOR OF THE REGIME FASCISTA, BLUNTLY DEMANDED A CHANGE IN ITALIAN MILITARY LEADERSHIP.

THE ITALIANS COULD FIND A FURTHER CAUSE FOR PESSIMISM IN AN OFFICIAL GAZETTE ANNOUNCEMENT THAT THE ITALIAN BOOT, AS FAR NORTH AS NAPLES, NOW HAS BEEN DECLARED IN A STATE OF WAR. THE ROME DISPATCHES REPORTED THAT PARTS OF THE PROVINCES OF NAPLES, AVELLINO, BENEVENTO, SALERNO, POTENZA AND MATERA, UNTIL NOW NOT UNDER A WAR REGIME, HAVE BEEN DECLARED IN A STATE OF WAR PREPARATION FOR POSSIBLE AND GENERALLY EXPECTED NEW ALLIED LANDINGS.

JUL 17 1943

THERE WERE SUGGESTIONS IN DISPATCHES FROM ROME THAT THE "NON-MILITARY SURPRISES" WOULD BE IN THE FORM OF A SWEEPING POLITICAL CHANGE IN FASCISM'S LAST EFFORTS TO FORM A GOVERNMENT WHICH COULD CARRY ON THE WAR UNTIL THERE WOULD BE AN OPPORTUNITY TO TRY FOR A COMPROMISE SETTLEMENT WITH THE ALLIES.

THE ROOSEVELT-CHURCHILL MESSAGE WAS A LEADING STORY IN SWITZERLAND UNDER HEADINGS LIKE: "ULTIMATUM TO THE ITALIAN PEOPLE; ALLIES DEMAND SUBJUGATION AND REJECTION OF FASCISM; MESSAGE OF ROOSEVELT AND CHURCHILL TO THE ITALIAN PEOPLE."

ITALIAN
BY THOMAS F.HANKINS

BERN, SWITZERLAND, JULY 16-(AP)-FASCIST EDITOR ROBERTO R.FARINACCI, MAKING THE FIRST OPEN ATTACK ON ITALIAN MILITARY LEADERSHIP SINCE THE START OF THE WAR, DEMANDED A CHANGE IN GENERALS AND A SHAKE-UP IN THE FASCIST PARTY HIERARCHY LAST NIGHT, DISPATCHES FROM ROME DISCLOSED.

WRITING IN THE NEWSPAPER REGIME FASCISTA, THE FORMER PARTY SECRETARY DEMANDED THAT ITALY'S BEST FORCES BE RUSHED TO SICILY ALONG WITH THE MOST ABLE, PREPARED AND RESOLUTE LEADERS.

"IT IS IMPOSSIBLE THAT THE ITALIAN ARMY HAS ONLY ONE MESSE," (GENERAL GIOVANNI MESSE) HE WROTE. "IT IS ABSURD AND EXTREMELY DANGEROUS TO MEASURE THE CHOICE OF MEN AND DECISIONS WITH THE MILITARY ANNUAL AS A YARDSTICK."

JUL 17 1943

ATTACKING WHAT HE DESCRIBED AS USELESS ELEMENTS IN THE FASCIST HIERARCHY, FARINACCI CALLED FOR A "HIERARCHY OF VALUES, A HIERARCHY THAT KNOWS HOW TO GIVE THE PEOPLE A LITTLE SUNSHINE AFTER SO MUCH BITTERNESS."

THE INCREASINGLY GLOOMY TONE OF THE ITALIAN PRESS GENERALLY WAS REPORTED TO HAVE RESULTED IN MOUNTING PESSIMISM AND APATHY AMONG THE ITALIAN PEOPLE.

TYPICAL OF THE ATTITUDE OF THE PRESS WAS THE ADMISSION BY CORRIERE DELLA SERA THAT THE BATTLE FOR SICILY GOES FAR BEYOND THE QUESTION WHETHER THE ISLAND COULD BE HELD. IT COULD BE OF "DECISIVE IMPORTANCE TO THE OUTCOME OF THE WAR FOR EUROPE," THE PAPER SAID.

IN WORDS WHICH OBSERVERS FOUND REMINISCENT OF DECLARATIONS THAT CAME FROM FRANCE SHORTLY BEFORE HER FALL, THE NEWSPAPER DWELT UPON "THE DECISIVELY SUPERIOR SEA AND AIR FORCES" OF THE ALLIES.

IN RECENT DAYS THE PRESS HAS GIVEN THE ITALIANS A FAIRLY CLEAR PICTURE OF THE SITUATION AND HAS TOLD THEM THAT IT IS CRITICAL. THESE WARNINGS, FOLLOWING INITIAL ATTEMPTS TO GIVE AN OPTIMISTIC IMPRESSION, APPARENTLY HAVE RESULTED IN APATHY.

JUL 17 1943

RELIABLE INFORMATION THROUGH ITALIAN CIRCLES IS THAT THE CURRENT FEELING OF MERELY WAITING FOR DEVELOPMENTS WITHOUT TAKING POLITICAL ACTION EXTENDS EVEN TO THE ROYAL FAMILY.

JUL 17 1943

A24

WELL INFORMED DIPLOMATIC CIRCLES BELIEVE THAT KING VITTORIO EMMANUELE, WHO MIGHT INSPIRE SOME POPULAR ACTION BY TAKING INDEPENDENT STEPS TO ALTER THE FASCIST REGIME, IS DETERMINED TO LET DEVELOPMENTS TAKE THEIR COURSE.

THE BIG QUESTION YET TO BE DETERMINED IS THE ITALIAN REACTION SHOULD SICILY FALL. THE ISLAND HAS BEEN CONSIDERED THE BASE OF THE COUNTRY'S DEFENSE, AND MUSSOLINI REGARDED IT AS SO STRONG IN 1937 THAT HE DECLARED "NOT ONE SOLDIER" COULD LAND THERE.

PERSONS WHO KNOW ITALY WELL BELIEVE THAT SICILY'S FALL WOULD COME CLOSE TO IMMOBILIZING THE NATION WITHOUT FURTHER DIRECT ATTACK UPON IT.

SOME TRUCKS AND JEEPS OVERTURNED TRYING TO FOLLOW THE INFANTRY UP THE TRAIL.

I RETURNED TO THE COMMAND POST AND RAN INTO A FORMER ASSOCIATED PRESS MAN, PETE ELDRED, NOW AN ARMY PUBLIC RELATIONS OFFICER, HEADING FOR THE FRONT. I HEARD HERE THAT FIRST LIEUTENANT GORDON L.KINLEY, 23, OF 4208 46TH AVENUE, SOUTH MINNEAPOLIS, HAD DONE A FINE JOB KNOCKING OUT AN ITALIAN BATTERY. A RECONNAISSANCE OFFICER, KINLEY SNEAKED UP BEHIND THE BATTERY, RADIOED ITS POSITION TO SHIPS, AND NAVAL GUNS BLEW IT SKYWARD.

JUL 17 1943

I ALSO HEARD SECOND LIEUTENANT FRANCIS P. FARLEY, 21, OF BONTEMAN AVENUE, PLYMOUTH, MASSACHUSETTS, HAD LED HIS COMPANY FAR FORWARD IN A SUCCESSFUL ACTION. A FORMER FOOTBALL PLAYER, FARLEY HAD PROMISED TO DO JUST THAT.

I MET LIEUTENANT HARRY O. ANDERSON, OF CHICAGO, AND RODE WITH HIM IN A JEEP TO THE FRONT LINE. ANDERSON WAS BUSY TAKING WATER AND AMMUNITION TO THE FORWARD LINE.

ONE OF THE MOST DEPRESSING SIGHTS OF GELA IS THE ABJECT POVERTY OF THE PEOPLE. NORMALLY THIS PART OF THE ISLAND SHOULD SUPPORT AN INDUSTRIOUS FAMILY DECENTLY, BUT MUCH OF THE FOOD HAS GONE TO FEED THE GERMAN AND ITALIAN ARMIES AND AS A RESULT CIVILIANS HAVE SUFFERED.

WE PASSED AN ANTI-TANK GUN AT THE EDGE OF GELA WITH WHICH SGT. PATRICK KANE OF EL PASO, TEX., KNOCKED OUT A TANK AND ARMORED CAR THAT WERE ADVANCING ON THE CITY FROM THE NORTH.

SGT.EDWARD HOGAN, OF 1300 PUTMAN AVE., BROOKLYN, SHARES CREDIT IN THE VICTORY BECAUSE HE BROUGHT THE GUN TO THE PIER IN THE EARLY ASSAULT WAVE.

AFTER LOSING THREE TANKS AND AN ARMORED CAR THE ENEMY WITHDREW AND THE RANGERS HAD A CHANCE TO TAKE STOCK FOR THE FIRST TIME.

JUL 17 1943

THE POVERTY-RIDDEN CITY WAS A DEPRESSING SHAMBLES. BODIES OF DEAD ITALIANS LAY SPRAWLED ON THE COBBLESTONED STREETS HOURS AFTER THE FIGHTING HAD ENDED.

THE ITALIAN RED CROSS USED AN AMBULANCE AS A HEARSE TO CARRY AWAY THE BODIES WHILE THE PEOPLE LOOKED ON APATHETICALLY, SEEMINGLY STUNNED BY THE SWIFTNESS OF THE AMERICAN INVASION.

A GROUP OF 17 AMERICAN SOLDIERS "POACHED" ON CANADIAN TERRITORY TO TAKE THE TOWN OF RAGUSA. IT WAS ON THE DIVIDING LINE BETWEEN THE CANADIANS AND THE AMERICANS.

THE AMERICANS MET WITH LESS RESISTANCE, HOWEVER, AND REACHED THE AREA FIRST. THEY COULDN'T RESIST THE TEMPTATION TO TAKE THE TOWN, POLISHING OFF A FEW SNIPERS IN THE PROCESS. WHEN THEY HEARD THE SOUND OF CANADIAN GUNS IN THE DISTANCE THEY THOUGHT THE GERMANS WERE ON THE WAY BACK AND FACED FOR A COUNTER-ATTACK. MESSAGES FROM HEADQUARTERS, HOWEVER, SET BOTH GROUPS STRAIGHT. THE AMERICANS WENT THROUGH AND THE CANADIANS MARCHED IN AS ANGRY AS BEES

BECAUSE NOWHERE HAD THE ITALIANS STOOD IN FORCE ENOUGH TO GIVE THEM THE GOOD FIGHT THEY HAD BEEN SPOILING FOR.

THE FIRST MAN TO GREET GEN. PATTON, COMMANDER OF THE 7TH ARMY, AS HE STEPPED ASHORE FROM HIS HEADQUARTERS TRANSPORT WAS A NEGRO TROOPER WHO HAD BEEN HIS STABLE BOY 30 YEARS BEFORE. ALTHOUGH THE BEACH WAS UNDER INTERMITTENT ATTACK BY GERMAN PLANES THE GENERAL STOPPED AND CHATTED WITH HIS OLD FRIEND FOR SEVERAL MINUTES BEFORE DRIVING UP UNDER FIRE TO INSPECT HIS NEW FRONT IN SICILY.

JUL 17 1943

THERE WAS A REASON FOR THE LACK OF POLICEMEN IN GELA'S STREETS. THE ARMY GOT TOGETHER WITH LOCAL TOWN OFFICIALS AND DECIDED THAT THE ITALIAN POLICEMEN SHOULD REMAIN ON THE JOB TO MAINTAIN ORDER AMONG THE CIVIL POPULATION. THEIR UNIFORMS RESEMBLED THOSE WORN BY THE ITALIAN TROOPS. AS SOON AS THEY APPEARED ON THE STREETS AMERICAN SOLDIERS QUICKLY ROUTED THEM OFF DESPITE THEIR VEHEMENT PROTESTS AND MARCHED THEM OFF TO A PRISON STOCKADE. NO ONE COULD UNDERSTAND WHAT THEY WERE SAYING AND, STILL PROTESTING AT THE TOP OF THEIR LUNGS, THE POLICEMEN WERE HERDED WITH OTHER PRISONERS OF WAR ABOARD A SHIP THAT PROMPTLY PUT OUT TO SEA.

THAT'S WHY THE GELA GENDERMARIE IS IN AFRICA INSTEAD OF POLICING THE STREETS OF THEIR HOME TOWN.

TWO RANGERS, CAPTAIN JACK STREET AND SERGEANT SHIRLEY JACOB, WERE ALL OUT OF AMMUNITION EXCEPT FOR A 15-POUND CHARGE OF TNT WHEN THEY SAW AN ITALIAN TANK ROLLING THROUGH GELA.

THEY RAN UP TO THE TOP OF A NEARBY BUILDING AND WHEN THE TANK PASSED DIRECTLY BENEATH THEM THEY DROPPED THE TNT ON IT.

"IT WAS A NEAT AND SIMPLE JOB," SAID STREET.

ONE OF A BATCH OF PERSPIRING SICILIANS HAD THE NEATEST HITCH-HIKING SYSTEM YET DEVISED. WHEN A MILITARY VEHICLE APPROACHED HIM ON THE ROAD HE TURNED AND MADLY WAVED AN AMERICAN FLAG WITH HIS LEFT HAND. HE HAD A GRIN AS WIDE AS THE GRAND CANYON. WHEN YOU GOT CLOSER YOU SAW HIM JERKING HIS RIGHT THUMB OVER HIS SHOULDER IN THE TRADITIONAL AMERICAN GESTURE FOR "GOING MY WAY?".

THE TROOPS LAUGHED AND WAVED AT HIM BUT DID NOT STOP. ARMY REGULATIONS PROHIBIT PICKING UP CIVILIANS IN MILITARY VEHICLES.

HELL, I'M NOT HELPLESS YET," SAID THE SERGEANT. "GIVE ME SOME PRISONERS TO GUARD OR SOMETHING."

HIS WAS NOT AN ISOLATED CASE. THERE WERE HUNDREDS OF INSTANCES OF EQUAL VALOR.

ONE OF THE FRESH RECRUITS TO THE AMERICAN CAUSE IN SICILY WAS GIOS GENNERO WHO ONCE LIVED IN NEW YORK CITY. BEGINNING ON "D" DAY HE STARTED CARRYING WATER TO PARACHUTISTS WITH HIS HORSE AND CART.

HE WORKED PURELY ON A VOLUNTARY BASIS. WHEN HE BEGAN EVACUATING AMERICAN WOUNDED SOLDIERS TO A COMBAT TEAM FIRST AID STATION HE WAS UNDER FIRE HIMSELF AND LAST NIGHT HE WAS STRUCK BY SHRAPNEL.

HIS NEW FRIENDS ARE SEEING THAT GENNERO IS GETTING THE BEST OF CARE. HE TOLD DOCTORS HE HAD TAKEN OUT HIS FIRST CITIZENSHIP PAPERS IN NEW YORK IN 1931 BUT LATER RETURNED TO SICILY AND NEVER BECAME AN AMERICAN CITIZEN.

IN THE INVASION OPERATIONS SO FAR, THE ENEMY HAS MADE AN EXTREM[illegible] SORRY SHOW--AND FRONT LINE DISPATCHES SUGGEST THIS MAY CONTINUE, ALTHOUGH A CONCERTED COUNTERATTACK IS EXPECTED.

THE ITALIANS, EXPRESSING EVERY INDICATION OF BEING GLAD TO BE OUT OF THE WAR, ARE SURRENDERING IN DROVES. AMONG THE NEW PRISONERS ARE ANOTHER ITALIAN GENERAL, COMMANDING THE 54TH NAPOLI DIVISION, WHO SURRENDERED TO THE AMERICANS YESTERDAY SOUTH OF VIZZINI.

ONE CORRESPONDENT WITH THE AMERICANS IN THE WEST REPORTED THE ENEMY POSITION WITH REGARDS TO AMMUNITION AND SUPPLY ALREADY APPEARS TO BE SERIOUS. THIS SAME CORRESPONDENT SAID THE GERMANS HAD DELIBERATELY SHELLED SURRENDERING ITALIANS

ATELY SHELLED SURRENDERING ITALIANS.

ANOTHER AMERICAN NEWSPAPERMAN, JOHN GUNTHER, DECLARED ITALIAN AIRCRAFT IS MOSTLY OUT OF DATE, THEIR TANKS "ARE A MISERABLE JOKE" AND THEIR ARTILLERY "LUDICROUS." ITALIAN RATION BOXES, HE WROTE, WERE FOUND WITH A LAYER OF PROVISIONS ON TOP AND GRAVEL IN THE BOTTOM. MANY TINS OF MEAT WERE SPOILED.

EVEN THE VAUNTED NAZI HERMANN GOERING DIVISION, WITH ITS FORMATIONS OF GIANT TIGER TANKS, HAS NOT PROVED TOO FORMIDABLE WHEN FACED BY THE DETERMINED AMERICAN, BRITISH AND CANADIAN INVASION FORCES.

ASSOCIATED PRESS CORRESPONDENT DON WHITEHEAD, WHO WITNESSED ONE ASSAULT BY TROOPS FROM THE GOERING DIVISION ON THE CENTRAL FRONT LAST SUNDAY, REPORTED:

"IT IS SIGNIFICANT THAT THE PRISONERS FROM THE GOERING DIVISION WERE MOSTLY YOUTHS IN THEIR EARLY TWENTIES, WITH LITTLE OR NO COMBAT EXPERIENCE AND VERY LITTLE TRAINING."

HAROLD V.BOYLE, ASSOCIATED PRESS CORRESPONDENT ON ANOTHER SECTOR OF THE AMERICAN FRONT, GAVE SIMILAR INFORMATION. YOUNG POLES, YUGOSLAVS AND FRENCHMEN WITH NO BATTLE EXPERIENCE, HE SAID, ARE BEING THROWN INTO BATTLE IN SICILY BY THE NAZIS.

MESSINA

BY RELMAN MORIN

JUL 17 1943

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, JULY 16-(AP)-YESTERDAY AND THE DAY BEFORE THE U.S. ARMY AIR FORCE AND THE RAF TURNED THE POWER OF THEIR TITANIC BOMBER STRENGTH AGAINST THE ITALIAN PORTS OF MESSINA AND SAN GIOVANNI AT OPPOSITE SIDES OF THE MESSINA STRAIT.

RECONNAISSANCE PICTURES NOW ARE COMING BACK, AND THIS IS WHAT THEY SHOW:

A SQUARE MILE OF BUILDINGS TOTALLY BLOTTED FROM SIGHT BY SMOKE FROM ONE GIGANTIC OIL FIRE.

AN AREA ABOUT TWO MILES LONG AND A MILE WIDE BURNING AS A SINGLE FIRE.

MORE THAN 150 BOMBS CONVERGED ON THAT REGION, AND THEY LANDED AND EXPLODED AT PRECISELY THE SAME INSTANT. THE BLAZING SKELETON OF AN AMMUNITION TRAIN AND THE MELTING WALLS OF WAREHOUSES CAN BE CLEARLY SEEN IN THE PICTURES.

JUL 17 1943

AND FINALLY A TREMENDOUS BANNER OF WHITE SMOKE SPREADING ACROSS THE SKY FROM STORAGE SHEDS THAT APPEARED TO HAVE BEEN BURNING FOR SEVERAL DAYS.

MEANWHILE, ADVANCING ALLIED FORCES SAW AT CLOSE RANGE THE DEVASTATING EFFECT OF THEIR AIR POWER. WHEN RAF GROUND PERSONNEL TOOK OVER THE COMISO AIRDROME IT FOUND HANGARS, GUN EMPLACEMENTS AND BUILDINGS SMASHED.

JUL 17 1943

ON THE RUNWAYS THEY FOUND LARGE NUMBERS OF SERVICEABLE ENEMY PLANES, ALL BOMBED-UP AND READY TO GO. THEY HADN'T BEEN ABLE TO GET OFF THE GROUND, SO PITTED WERE THE RUNWAYS. EVEN LARGER NUMBERS OF WRECKED AIRCRAFT WERE IN THE DISPERSAL AREAS.

ITALIAN AIR PERSONNEL CAPTURED AT AND AROUND THE GERMAN AIRDROMES NOW IN ALLIED HANDS DECLARED BITTERLY THAT THE GERMANS HAD TREATED THEM LIKE "POOR RELATIONS."

THE EVIDENCE BORE THEM OUT. ALL THE STONE BUILDINGS AT ONE AIRFIELD HAD BEEN TAKEN BY THE GERMANS FOR LIVING QUARTERS, WHILE THE ITALIAN AIRMEN HAD BEEN SHUNTED INTO WOODEN HUTS AND FARMHOUSES AROUND THE FIELD.

HOW WELL THE GERMANS ARE EATING ON THE PRODUCTS OF OCCUPIED COUNTRIES WAS SHOWN BY THE FOOD THEY LEFT BEHIND--DANISH BUTTER, BELGIAN CANTELOUPE AND FRENCH SAUSAGES. THEIR WINE CELLARS WERE FOUND TO BE WELL STOCKED, TOO.

LICATA, SICILY, JULY 13-(DELAYED)-(AP)-ANTIAIRCRAFT GUNS WERE USED TO BLAST SHORE PILLBOXES FOR FAMOUS INFANTRY WHO, AFTER DESTROYING DEFENSES AT FOUR SICILIAN LANDING BEACHES, CONQUERED SOME HUNDREDS OF SQUARE MILES OF ITALIAN-HELD TERRITORY IN THREE DAYS OF AN UNRELENTING DRIVE.

JUL 17 1943

THEY WERE MAD--THESE SOLDIERS OF A HISTORIC WORLD WAR DIVISION--BECAUSE AFTER SMASHING THROUGH AT CASABLANCA LAST NOVEMBER, THEY HAD BEEN COMPELLED TO COOL THEIR HEELS IN MOROCCO FOR SIX MONTHS, REACHING TUNISIA ONLY IN TIME TO POLICE THE BATTLEFIELDS OTHER AMERICAN FORCES HAD WON.

"THIS HELPS US MAKE UP FOR THE TIME WE LOST," GRINNED CAPT. NORMAN P.BARNES OF WILLIAMETTE, ORE.

"WE DIDN'T WANT THAT LONG REST BUT IT LOOKS LIKE IT DID US GOOD," SAID CORP. ROBERT C.PICKRELL OF 2824 35TH AVE. WEST, SEATTLE, WASH.

THE EXPERIENCE GAINED WHEN THEY SPEARHEADED THE AMERICAN INVASION INTO FRENCH MOROCCO STOOD THESE BOYS IN GOOD STEAD IN THE CURRENT INVASION WHEN THEY GUARDED THE ALLIED LEFT FLANK.

CAPT. HUGH A.SCOTT, OF SOUTHWEST HUMPHREY BOULEVARD AND MAPLE LANE, PORTLAND, ORE., DESCRIBED THE LANDINGS THUS:

"AS SOME OF OUR CRAFT APPROACHED THE SHORE, ITALIAN GUNS OPENED FIRE ON THEM FROM HEAVY PILL BOXES. THE HEAVIEST GUNS WE HAD IN THE BOAT WERE 20 MILLIMETER ANTIAIRCRAFT CANNON. THEY WERE NOT VERY BIG, BUT THEY WERE EXTREMELY ACCURATE. FIRING AT POINT BLANK RANGE, THE GUNNERS QUICKLY KNOCKED OUT THE PILLBOXES AND THE MEN LANDED SAFELY. OUR CASUALTIES WERE EXTREMELY LIGHT."

JUL 17 1943

ALTHOUGH THE OPPOSING COASTAL FORTIFICATIONS WERE VERY DENSE, THE TROOPS PUSHED QUICKLY THROUGH THEM AND BY NOON HELD THE HIGH GROUND CONTROLLING THE AREA SURROUNDING THIS CITY OF 30,000 POPULATION.

JUL 17 1943

"WE SHOT THE WORKS," SAID SCOTT, "AND EVERY REGIMENT WENT THROUGH ON TOP. THE CITY OF LICATA WAS TAKEN BY 11:30 ON THE DAY OF THE INVASION AND THE TROOPS FOUND ABOUT A THIRD OF THE POPULATION THERE. THE REST HAD BEEN EVACUATED IN THE LAST TWO WEEKS. THE CIVILIAN POPULATION WAS SHORT OF FOOD, BUT GAVE NO ORGANIZED OPPOSITION --NOTHING BUT A LITTLE LOOTING AND RIOTING WHICH WE QUICKLY STOPPED."

ON THE FIRST DAY, THE TROOPS WERE SUPPOSED TO TAKE A CERTAIN AREA BUT THEY WENT BEYOND THEIR QUOTA. IN THEIR CONTINUING ADVANCE, THE DOUGHBOYS SEIZED APPROXIMATELY 5,000 PRISONERS INCLUDING 150 GERMANS.

FANNING OUT AS AN ADVANCED DIVISION,THEY MADE A FOUR-PRONGED ATTACK WHICH SOON NETTED THEM THE TOWNS OF RIESI, NARO, PALMA DI MONTECHIARO, AND CAMPOBELLO. THEY ARE WORKING TOWARD THE MAIN ROAD NETWORK BETWEEN CALANISSETTA AND AGRIGENTO.

THESE DOUGHBOYS FELT THEY WERE ON THEIR METTLE TO SHOW IT WOULD BE A MISTAKE NOT TO BE GIVEN A BETTER CHANCE TO DEMONSTRATE THEIR FIGHTING PROWESS IN AFRICA--AND THEY ARE PROVING THEIR POINT WITH EVERY MILE THEY CAPTURE.

"WE DON'T WANT TO TAKE A CHANCE THAT THEY WILL LEAVE US OUT ON THE NEXT SHOW," SAID CAPT. BARNES, "OUR BOYS ARE STILL BITTER ABOUT THAT LONG SIEGE OF RESTING WE HAD IN MOROCCO."

JUL 17 1943

WITH THE AMERICAN INVASION TROOPS ON SICILY, JULY 14-(DELAYED)-(AP)-LIEUT.-COL. BILL DARBY PICKED UP A FIELD TELEPHONE IN HIS COMMAND POST ON A HILL OVERLOOKING THE PLAIN OF GELA.

"JIM," HE SAID, "WE'RE GOING TO ATTACK. WE'RE GOING INTO A DEEP INLAND TOWN.

"NOW, LISTEN, I'M SENDING UP SOME ASSAULT GUNS. I'M GOING TO PUT FOUR SELF-PROPELLED 75'S IN YOUR POSITION. SO RECONNOITRE A SPOT FOR THEM.

"I'M SENDING IN ONE COMPANY. IF THEY ARE FIRED ON WE'LL BLAST THE HELL OUT OF THE ENEMY. I WANT YOU TO SHOOT ANYTHING THAT MOVES WHILE WE'RE GETTING OUR STUFF UP. OKAY?"

"ROGER," (OKAY) CAME THE REPLY OF CAPTAIN JIM LYLE OF SAN ANTONIO, TEX.

DARBY, BROAD-SHOULDERED, TWO-FISTED COMMANDER OF THE RANGER BATTALIONS WHICH STORMED GELA ON THE MORNING OF THE INVASION OF SICILY--A PRODUCT OF FORT SMITH, ARK.,--PUT THE TELEPHONE ON THE HOOK.

JUL 17 1943

"CHUCK!" HE CALLED.

CAPTAIN CHARLES SHUNSTRUM OF FOUR BOLTEN PLACE, RADBURN-FAIRLAWN, N.J., STEPPED FROM THE GROUP OF SOLDIERS LOUNGING NEAR THE COMMAND POST.

"CHUCK, YOU'RE THE LEAD-OFF MAN. I KNOW YOUR BOYS ARE TIRED. THEY'VE FOUGHT HARD AND THEY NEED A REST. BUT THEY ARE THE BEST FOR THIS JOB. YOU UNDERSTAND?"

"YES, SIR."

JUL 17 1943

CHUCK MOVED OFF DOWN THE HILL.

DARBY PULLED OUT A BOTTLE OF COGNAC FROM A BAG.

"I FOUND THIS AFTER WE DROVE THE ITALIANS OFF THIS HILL," HE SAID. "THAT'S WHEN I KNEW THEY LEFT IN A HURRY. YOU DON'T LEAVE COGNAC BEHIND UNLESS YOU'RE IN A HURRY."

THERE WAS ONLY A SWALLOW AROUND--A TOAST TO THE SUCCESS OF THE NIGHT'S OPERATION.

BELOW US LAY THE PLAIN OF GELA. GELA WAS SPREAD OUT ON THE COAST LIKE A TOY VILLAGE, BUT ONLY THREE DAYS BEFORE THE RANGERS WERE BATTLING IN THE STREETS AND BODIES LAY SPRAWLED ON THE BLOODSTAINED PAVEMENTS GROTESQUELY. BEYOND THE VILLAGE THE INVASION TRANSPORTS LAY IN THE HARBOR WITH SMALL CRAFT SHUTTLING THEIR CARGOES TO THE BEACH.

THIS WAS A PERFECT OBSERVATION POST. NOTHING COULD MOVE ON THE PLAIN WITHOUT BEING SEEN FROM THE POST NOW OCCUPIED BY DARBY IN A NICHE DUG INTO THE HILL.

"THIS WAS ONE TOUGH POSITION TO TAKE," DARBY SAID. "IF WE HADN'T HAD HELP FROM THAT CRUISER WE COULDN'T HAVE TAKEN IT. WE LAID SALVO AFTER SALVO ON THESE POSITIONS AND THE ITALIANS WENT STREAMING OUT. WE HAD TO KNOCK OUT SOME MACHINE GUNS BUT THE SHELLING DID THE TRICK."

JUL 17 1943

HE WALKED TO THE CREST OF THE HILL AND LOOKED AT THE ROAD. TWISTING UP THE VALLEY TOWARDS THE TOWN, IT CLIMBED THE SIDE OF A RIDGE AND DISAPPEARED THROUGH A GAP WHICH WOULD BE DARBY'S COMMAND POST FOR THE OPERATION.

BELOW US THE VALLEY WAS DARKENING WITH SHADOWS. OUR ARTILLERY OPENED UP, REGISTERING ON THEIR TARGETS. THE SOUND OF THE EXPLOSIONS CAME TO US SECONDS LATER. THROUGH THE VALLEY MARCHED THE FIRST COMPANY OF RANGERS GETTING OFF TO THE STARTING LINE.

SECOND LIEUT. CLIFTON W.ROE OF 590 OCEAN STREET, SOUTH PORTLAND, ME., PLATOON COMMANDER, REPORTED TO DARBY.

"I WANT YOU TO PUT YOUR TANKS BY THAT STONE HOUSE YOU SEE ON THE RIDGE," DARBY SAID. "I MAY USE YOU AS SUPPORTING ARTILLERY. WE ARE GOING INTO SOMETHING WE KNOW NOTHING ABOUT. WE'RE GOING TO FACE IT OUT. WE MAY TAKE THIS PLACE WITHOUT A FIGHT. WE MAY WALK INTO A TRAP. WE CAN'T TELL. SO GET IN POSITION."

THERE WERE NO WRITTEN ORDERS AND NO PAPERWORK FOR THIS ATTACK. THE INSTRUCTIONS WERE SIMPLE AND DIRECT. OBVIOUSLY THE MEN IDOLIZED DARBY, WHO ORGANIZED THE FIRST AMERICAN RANGER BATTALION IN ENGLAND. FIFTY OF HIS MEN WERE ON THE DIEPPE RAID.

"HERE COMES SAMMY," SOMEONE SAID. A SLIGHT BLONDE YOUNG CAPTAIN

JUL 17 1943

30.24 - 6185

WITH A HANDLEBAR MUSTACHE WALKED UP.

"I'VE LIFTED 19 GERMAN TELLER MINES OUT OF THE ROAD MYSELF, JUST BEYOND THE GAP," SAID SAMMY. "I WENT OVER EVERY YARD PROBING WITH A BAYONET BEFORE DARKNESS GOT ME, BUT I'M POSITIVE THERE ARE NO MORE MINES. I'LL DRIVE OVER THE ROAD FIRST IF ANYONE FEELS BASHFUL."

"NO ONE DOUBTS YOU, SAMMY," DARBY SAID. "YOU'VE DONE A GOOD JOB."

"WELL," SAID SAMMY, "I REACHED DOWN ONCE AND SHOOK HANDS WITH A DEAD GERMAN. I SAW THREE BODIES OUT THERE ON THE ROAD WHERE THE MINES WERE. THEY WENT UP ON ONE OF THEIR OWN MINES."

"SAMMY, YOUR MUSTACHE IS DROOPING," DARBY CHUCKLED. "YOU BETTER GET GOING AND GOOD LUCK."

JUL 17 1943

IT WAS 10:30. WE CLIMBED INTO JEEPS AND DROVE DOWN THE HILL ONTO THE ROAD WHERE TROOPS WERE MARCHING TO THEIR ASSEMBLY POINTS.

NEAR THE GAP IN THE RIDGE WE PULLED OFF THE ROAD UNDER A GROVE OF TREES. DARBY AND HIS COMPANY COMMANDERS HUDDLED OVER A MAP AND STUDIED IT BY THE FAINT GLOW FROM A FLASHLIGHT.

"YOU'LL MOVE ON IN EXACTLY 20 MINUTES," THE COLONEL SAID. "IF YOU ARE NOT FIRED ON DO NOT FIRE. ONE MILE FROM THE TOWN, SHUNSTRUM, YOU WILL HOLD ON THE TOWN. AT THE EDGE OF THE CITY, IF YOU GET IN TROUBLE FIRE A STEADY STREAM OF RED ROCKETS. THAT WILL BE THE SIGNAL FOR OUR ARTILLERY. IF YOU'RE SUCCESSFUL, SHOOT TWO GREEN FLARES. THAT WILL BE THE SIGNAL FOR ALL THE RANGERS TO MOVE INTO TOWN.

"GENTLEMEN, THE BEST OF LUCK, AND WE'LL SEE YOU TOMORROW MORNING."

JACK BELDEN OF TIME MAGAZINE AND I JOINED THE LEADING COLUMN. SHUNSTRUM GATHERED HIS PLATOON COMMANDERS ABOUT HIM.

JUL 17 1943

"I WANT 15 YARDS INTERVAL BETWEEN EACH MAN. MARCH AT A SLOW PACE. WE GO IN ALONE AND WITH FIXED BAYONETS. BE SURE TO KEEP PLENTY OF DISTANCE. WE DON'T WANT TO BE CAUGHT BUNCHED IN AN AMBUSH."

NONE OF US KNEW WHAT TO EXPECT EXCEPT THAT THERE WAS A GARRISON OF ABOUT 400 ENEMY TROOPS IN THE TOWN. THIS COUNTRY IS A SERIES OF TREELESS HILLS. YOU FIGHT YOUR WAY ONTO ONE HILL AND THEN HAVE TO FIGHT TO THE TOP OF ANOTHER--TERRAIN GREATLY IN FAVOR OF ITS DEFENDERS.

WE MARCHED IN SINGLE FILE STRUNG IN A LONG WAVERING LINE ALONG THE ROADSIDE. THERE WAS NO SOUND EXCEPT THE CRUNCH OF BOOTS ON GRAVEL AND THE SINGING OF CRICKETS.

A SOLDIER STOPPED AND WHISPERED TO BELDEN AND HE WHISPERED TO ME "THE PASSWORD IS 'HAUNTED HOUSE'."

THERE WERE CONSTANT REMINDERS THAT THE ENEMY WAS NEAR -- CLOTHING AND EQUIPMENT STREWN ALONG THE ROADSIDE WHERE IT WAS ABANDONED BY THE ENEMY OR WHERE THEY WERE KILLED OR WOUNDED BY SHELLFIRE.

IT WAS 12:40 A.M. WHEN WE REACHED THE TOP OF A RIDGE AND LOOKED OUT ACROSS THE VALLEY TO SEE A VERITABLE FORTRESS CAPPING THE BARE SHEER SIDES OF A PEAK. IT WAS SQUARE, SOLID AND FORMIDABLE AGAINST THE STARLIT SKY.

THE COLUMN STOPPED ON THE ROADSIDE AND SHUNSTRUM PICKED UP THE RADIO.

JUL 17 1943

"WE ARE GOING TO MOVE IN A FEW MINUTES FOR THE ATTACK."

WE LEFT THE RIDGE AND FOLLOWED THE ROAD WINDING INTO A DEEP GORGE.

IN A NARROW DEFILE FAR BELOW THE WALLS OF THE TOWN LAY THE BODIES OF SIX MEN. A SHELL HAD LANDED NEAR TWO VEHICLES, HAD BLOWN THEM INTO THE ROADWAY. ONE WAS NAKED, HIS CLOTHES EITHER BLOWN OR BURNED OFF.

THE ROAD BEGAN WINDING UPWARD. THERE WERE ONLY TWO WAYS TO REACH THE STRONGHOLD, EITHER TO FOLLOW THE ROAD OR CLIMB THE STEEP MOUNTAIN SIDE.

JUL 17 1943

AT 3:30 A.M. WE STOPPED, LOOKING UPWARD. IT SEEMD THAT THE TOWN WAS JUST ABOVE US, QUIET AND MENACING. WE CROUCHED UNDER THE BANK.

SHUNSTRUM CALLED HIS OFFICERS TOGETHER.

"KENDRICK (FIRST LIEUT. COLLINS KENDRICK, MACON, GA.) WILL LEAD THE FIRST PLATOON ALONG THE SIDE OF THE ROAD. THE SECOND PLATOON WILL GO UP THE HILL AND COVER HIS FLANK. LET'S GO!"

IT WAS SLOW, HARD CLIMBING. FREQUENTLY THE PLATOON LEADER WOULD WHISPER A WARNING AND WE FLATTENED OURSELVES AGAINST A HILL PEERING INTENTLY AT THE SKYLINE ABOVE US AND THEN WE CRAWLED FORWARD AGAIN.

WE WERE ALMOST TO THE TOP OF THE SLOPE WHEN MACHINE GUN AND RIFLE FIRE CRASHED ON OUR RIGHT. THE RANGERS FELL TO THE GROUND, GUNS READY.

"SHUNSTRUM TO KENDRICK...SHUNSTRUM TO KENDRICK...WHAT HAS HAPPENED?" THE RADIO CRACKLED.

IT WASN'T KENDRICK'S VOICE THAT ANSWERED.

"LIEUT. KENDRICK HAS BEEN WOUNDED. WE RAN INTO TROUBLE," CAME THE ANSWER. "WE HAD TWO CASUALTIES BUT NEITHER IS BADLY HURT."

"THEN PULL YOUR MEN OUT," SHUNSTRUM SAID. "WE'LL SHELL THE DAMNED PLACE."

"YOU MEAN YOU DON'T WANT US TO GO ON?"

"DO YOU THINK YOU CAN?"

JUL 17 1943

"WE'D LIKE TO TRY IT."

"O.K., BUT DON'T TAKE TOO MANY CHANCES."

THEN CAME AN ORDER FOR OUR PLATOON TO WITHDRAW TO THE ROAD, AFTER WE HAD STRUGGLED ALMOST TO THE TOP OF THE SLOPE. SO DOWN WE WENT.

OUR LEADER HALTED THE PLATOON BEFORE WE REACHED THE ROAD.

"SERGEANT, TAKE CHARGE," HE SAID. "I'M GOING INTO THAT TOWN. THEY CAN'T DO THAT TO US."

"YOU CAN'T STORM A CITY BY YOURSELF, SIR," THE SERGEANT SAID. "WAIT A FEW MINUTES AND SEE WHAT HAPPENS."

A LITTLE LATER WE WERE ORDERED AGAIN TO THE CREST OF THE SLOPE AND AGAIN WE HAULED OURSELVES BACK OVER THE GROUND WE COVERED ONCE. WE EXPECTED TO SEE THE TOWN IN FRONT OF US AT THE TOP. BUT WHEN WE CLIMBED OVER THE RIDGE WE WERE LOOKING ACROSS THE PLATEAU AND THE TOWN WAS STILL ABOVE US.

"SOMETHING'S MOVING OUT THERE," THE PLATOON LEADER SAID. "OPEN FIRE."

TOMMY GUNS AND CARBINES POURED FIRE AHEAD OF US. THE CRASH OF NOISE ECHOED AGAINST THE HILLS. THERE WAS NO ANSWERING FIRE, SO WE MOVED AHEAD OF THE ROAD AND FOLLOWED IT TOWARDS THE TOWN.

JUL 17 1943

30.24 — 6187

ON THE ROAD WERE TWO ANTI-TANK GUNS AND AROUND US THE BODIES OF 10 ITALIAN SOLDIERS, MOWED DOWN BY THE RANGERS' FIRE.

AND JUST AS WE WERE NEAR THE ENTRANCE OF THE CITY THE GREEN VICTORY FLARES ARCHED ACROSS THE SKIES. IT HAD FALLEN TO TWO PLATOONS OF RANGERS--A FORTRESS THAT MIGHT HAVE BEEN HELD AGAINST A DIVISION.

JUL 17 1943

WE FILED THROUGH THE DARK COBBLED STREETS. DAWN WAS BEGINNING TO SOFTEN THE SHADOWS. THE TOWN WAS BARRED AND SHUTTERED. NO ONE MOVED IN THE STREETS EXCEPT THE RANGERS.

SHUNSTRUM HAD HIS COMMAND POST IN A SMALL COURTYARD NEAR THE CENTER OF TOWN, A PLACE WELL-PROTECTED FROM SNIPERS. KENDRICK LAY ON A PILE OF BLANKETS AGAINST A WALL, SMOKING AND TALKING TO HIS COMRADES. WITHIN A FEW HOURS HE WAS BACK IN ACTION AGAIN.

"IF THERE'S A MEDAL OR PROMOTION POSSIBLE CONSTANTINE SH[illegible] HAVE IT," HE SAID. "HE WAS GREAT."

SHUNSTRUM'S PRAISE WAS FOR PRIVATE FIRST CLASS JOHN CONSTANTINE OF 407 FIRST STREET, BROOKLYN, N.Y., WHO STARTED THE ADVANCE ON THE TOWN WITH PRIVATE JOHN C.SEE OF MOUNT KISCO, N.Y.

"WE SAW THE ITALIANS IN THE ROAD WITH GUNS," CONSTANTINE SAID. "SO WE WALKED UP TO ABOUT 25 YARDS OF THEM AND I TOLD THEM IN ITALIAN TO SURRENDER OR WE'D BLAST THEM OUT.

"THE ITALIANS WERE READY TO SURRENDER BUT THEY HAD TWO GERMAN OFFICERS WITH THEM WHO WOULDN'T LET THEM. THEN ONE OF THE MEN SHOT KENDRICK AS WE OPENED FIRE BUT THE GERMANS GOT AWAY."

SEE CHASED THEM INTO THE CITY BUT LOST THEM IN THE SHADOWS.

WITH AMERICAN AIRBORNE TROOPS IN SICILY, (DELAYED)--SPEARHEADING THE INVASION OF [illegible] AN AMERICAN PARACHUTE TROOV COMBAT TEAM HAS JUST COMPLETED A BRILLIANT AND TOUGH MISSION, FULFILLING THE EXPECTATIONS OF THIS THE LARGEST AIRBORNE COMBAT OPERATION EVER ATTEMPTED BY THE U.S. ARMY.

SINCE LATE FRIDAY NIVHT, WHEN THEY LANDED BY THE LIGHT OF A WANING MOON, THEY HAVE BEEN FIGHTING CRACK GERMAN AMD ITALIAN TROOPS, KILLING AND CAPTQRING HUNDREDS AND HUNDREDS. THEY HAVE FOUGHT AS SMALL GUERRILLA BANDS, ATTACKING PILLBOXES AND STRONG POINTS WITH GCENADES, ANTI-TANK WEAPONS AND KNIVES AND TMEY HAVE FOUGHT AS A SMALL BUT RUGGED TEAM AGAINST THE HERMANN GOERING GRENADIERS AND TANKS.

JUL 17 1943

THEY HAVE TAKEN RATHER HEAVY LOSSES BUT THEY NEVER GAVE GCOUND. AND IT WAS LARGELY THROUGH THEIR SLASHING, DEMORALIZING ATTACKS ON STCONGLY PREPARED ENEMY POSITIONS THAT THE ADVANCE OF THE MUCH LARGER SEABORNE FORCE COMING IN BEHIND THEM WAS ACCOMPLISHED IN THE AREA AROUND VITTORIA.

JUL 17 1943

IT WOULD TAKE A BOOK TO TELL THE FULL STORY OF THIS OPERATION AND IT WILL BE DAYS BEFORE ALL DETAILS ARE EVEN LEARNED, FOR ALMOST EVERY MAN WHO JUMPED DID A JOB WOGTHY OF AN ARMY MEDAL. BUT THIS MUCH AT LEAST CAN BE TOLD BY A COCRESPONDENT WHO JUMPED WITH THEM TO MAKE HIS SECOND COMBAT JUMP AND THIS BY NIGHT.

ACTUALLY THIS MISSION STARTED UNDER AUSPICIOUS CIRCUMSTANCES FOG THE ENTIRE TEAM WAS DROPPED BY TROOP CARRIERS 30 TO 50 MILES FROM THE PLANNED OBJECTIVES. INSTEAD OF JUMPING INLAND IN FRONT OF THE CENTER FOCCE TO CUT OFF ENEMY REINFORCEMENTS, DESTROX STRONG POINTS AND OTHERWISE SOFTEN UP THE SEABORNE LANBING, THE ENTIRE GROUP OF PARATROOPS JUMPED IN FRONT OF ANOTHER FORCE FARTHER OUT.

WHILE THE MOON WAS DIPPING LOW ALONG THE WESTERN HORIZON WE CAME IN OVER THE SEA, A MIGHTY ARMWDA OF TRANSPORT PLANES FLYING IN VEGFECT FORMATION. TME TERGAIN LOOKED UNFAMILIAR TO THE TEAM COMMANDER, A COLONEL FROM MOUNT VARMEL, PA., BUT A RED LIGHT XLASHES FROM THE PILOT CONTROLSM

WE HAD BEEN STANDING FOR SEVEVAL MINUTES IN OUR MEAVY PARACHUTES, THE SOLDIERS WEIGHTED DOWN WITH LOADS OF AMMUNITIONN GUNS AND DEMOLITIONS AND THIS REPOCTER SAGGING UNBER MIS OWM LOAD OF NONCOMBATTANT EQUIPMENT.

THE RED LIGHT MEANT THAT WE WOULD BE OVEC OUC OBJECTIVE IN A FEW MINUTES.

TMEY VASSED QUICKLY. THE GREEN JUMP LIGHT FLICKERED, THERE WAS A RUSH DOWN THE ISLE TOWACD THE DOOR AND IN A MOMENT WE WERE HURLING THROUGH SPACE. THEN THERE WAS THE SNAP OF SHOULDERS AS THE 'CHUTE OPENED.

A BRILLIANT GLARE ILLUMINATED THE GROUND REVEALING AN OLIVE GROVE INSTEAD OF THE EXPECTED WHEAT FIELD. FOR A MOMENT MOST OF US THOUGMT THAT GROUND TROOVS HAD SENT UP FLARES AND WECE OPENING FIRE. THEN THE SICKENING REALIZATION CAME THAT THE FLARE WAS FROM ONE OF OUR TRANSPORTS WHICH HAD BROKEN IN TWO AND HAD BURST INTO FLAMES.

JUL 17 1943

O THE NEXT MOMENT WE WERE LANDING.

THIRTY FEET FROM THE GROUND THE OSCILLATION SWUNG MY BODY HORIZONTAL AS I SMASHED THROUGH AN OLIVE TREE AND THEN TO THE GROUND. IT WAS A GOOD LANDING, ALL THINGS CONSIDERED. THE OTHERS DIDN'T FARE AS WELL.

YOUR CORRESPONDENT EMERGED FROM HIS TANGLED SHROUD WITH A WRENCHED KNEE, SKINNED KNUCKLES AND BRUISES, AND WHAT WAS NOT TO APPEAR UNTIL LATER--A CRACKED RIB.

THAT NIGHT W[illegible] WENT PROWLING ABOUT IN SMALL GROUPS, TRYING TO REACH SOME GROV[illegible] THAT WE COULD RECOGNIZE. BEFORE DAWN AS IT TURNED OUT LATER, EVER.WONE REALIZED, WE HAD LANDED IN THE WRONG LOCALITY AND WE HAD TO CHECK TO FIND OUT IN WHAT PART OF SOUTHERN SICILY WE WERE. THEN WE STARTED A GENERAL MOVEMENT TO THE NORTHWEST TOWARD OUR ORIGINAL OBJECTIVE.

MANY MEN JUMPED INTO THE FIGHT RIGHT AWAY, LANDING ON MACHINE-GUN NESTS OR PILLBOXES. OTHERS SOON FOUND THEIR HANDS FULL AS THEY RAN INTO ITALIAN STRONG POINTS ALONG THE COAST OR FURTHER INLAND ALONG STRANGE HIGHWAYS.

WE BEGAN TO LOSE MEN, BUT NOT MANY, AS THE TOUGH WILY TROOPERS

JUL 17 1943

RUSHED THE PILLBOXES. THESE EMPLACEMENTS WERE WELL DESIGNED WITH THREE-FOOT CEMENT WALLS, SLITS COMMANDING ALL APPROACHES, 47-MILLIMETER GUNS AND MACHINE-GUNS, AND A GREAT DEAL OF WIRE.

BUT THE TROOPERS HAD COME TO KILL AND THEY DID. THEIR ANTI-TANK WEAPONS AND GRENADES DROVE THE GUNNERS FROM THE SLITS OF THE PILLBOXES TO BE RUSHED. WELL-AIMED GARAND RIFLE FIRE OFTEN ACCOMPLISHED THE SAME PURPOSE AND WITHIN A SHORT WHILE EACH PILLBOX SURRENDERED ITS LOAD OF ITALIANS OR A FEW GERMANS.

THAT WAS ALONG THE BEACHES. INLAND THE FIGHTING CONTINUED THROUGHOUT THE DAY.

JUL 17 1943

OUR OWN GROUP BY DAYLIGHT HAD INCREASED, INCLUDING THIS CORRESPONDENT AND TWO MEDICAL OFFICERS, ALSO UNARMED, WHO HAD BEEN "SWEATED OUT" IN THE DARK HOURS TOGETHER, TO 35 ASSORTED TROOPERS.

AND HERE IT MIGHT BE POINTED OUT THAT EVERY MAN WHO JUMPS, WITH THE ABOVE EXCEPTIONS, JUMPS READY TO FIGHT, WHETHER HE'S A COOK, COMPANY CLERK, A RIGGER OR ONE OF THE SERVICE COMMAND, AND THEY FOUGHT HARD AND VICIOUSLY.

OUR EXECUTIVE OFFICER HAD JOINED UP WITH US AND AT HIS COMMAND WE MOVED OFF IN COLUMN, WITH FLANKING SCOUTS, INTENDING TO SWING NORTH AROUND VITTORIA. THAT WAS A DAY WE WON'T SOON FORGET, PARTICULARLY THIS REPORTER, WHO HAD SELDOM WALKED MORE THAN TWO MILES AT A TIME AT HOME.

X X X AXIS SOLDIERS.

AND THE FACT THAT WE ALWAYS HAD FOOD AND WATER AS WELL AS AMMUNITION AND OTHER VITAL SUPPLIES WAS DUE ALMOST ENTIRELY TO THE INGENUITY OF THE COMBAT TEAM'S SUPPLY OFFICER, MAJOR EDWARD KAJ, FROM HAMTRAMCK, MICH. NO REQUEST SEEMED TO BE BEYOND HIS POWER TO FULFILL. HIS SUPPLY PROBLEMS CAME LATER. FOR THE FIRST 24 HOURS, LIKE EVERY OTHER OFFICER, HE WAS FIGHTING WITH A SQUAD GOING TO THE NORTHWEST, NEAR VITTORIA. PILLBOXT

NORTHWEST, NEAR VITTORIA. PILLBOXES BECAME HIS SPECIALTY AND KAJ WAS HAPPY.

ANOTHER GROUP OF SIX PARACHUTISTS, LATER AUGMENTED TO 14 AND HEADED BY LIEUT. RICHARD JANNEY, 26, OF BALTIMORE, MD., AND SERGT. CARL HEARN, 25, OF COLUMBUS, IOWA, KNOCKED OFF HALF A DOZEN PILLBOXES ALONG THE COAST, TAKING 250 PRISONERS. SOMETIMES OUR MEN WERE WOUNDED OR KILLED BUT MORE OFTEN IT WAS THE ENEMY.

JUL 17 1943

WOUNDED OR KILLED BUT MORE OFTEN IT WAS THE ENEMY.

THERE WAS THE CASE OF PRIVATE ROBERT GAMES, OF NORFOLK, VA., A CLERK IN THE HEADQUARTERS COMPANY. HE SHOULD BE DEAD. ATTACKING A PILLBOX, GAMES CREPT IN CLOSE, WHEN THE ENEMY FIRED 70 ROUNDS AND THEN PITCHED THREE HAND GRENADES AT HIM, KNOCKING HIM UNCONSCIOUS. HE AWOKE INSIDE THE PILLBOX, STRIPPED NAKED. HALF AN HOUR LATER THE AMERICANS ATTACKED AGAIN AND DESTROYED THE PILLBOX, KILLING ALL THE ITALIANS, BUT HE WAS NOT SCRATCHED.

SOMETIMES OUR MEN DID NOT TAKE MANY PRISONERS, AFTER RESCUING SOME OF OURS AND FINDING THEM NAKED OR OTHERWISE MISTREATED.

THEN THERE WAS PRIVATE LEONARD ROSENTHAL, 28, OF 1221 INDEPENDENCE BLVD. (EDITORS: CITY AND STATE MISSING). ROSENTHAL BLEW THE ROOF OFF A PILLBOX, WOUNDING TWELVE ITALIANS. ONE CAME OUT WITH A WHITE FLAG AND THEN STARTED FIRING. ROSENTHAL KILLED HIM AND

JUL 17 1943

THE REMAINING TWO SURRENDERED.

"IT WAS OUR FIRST FIGHT," HE SAID, "SO WE GAVE THE DEAD MAN A PROPER BURIAL." THIS COULD GO ON INDEFINITELY. THERE WAS LIEUT. H. H. SWINGLER, 25 OF ST. LOUIS, MO., OF THE HEADQUARTERS COMPANY, WHO LED THE FINAL ASSAULT ON AN ENEMY HILL IN A BATTLE TWO DAYS AGO. WITH A FORCE THAT INCLUDED RIGGERS, COMPANY CLERKS, COOKS AND ORDERLIES, AS WELL AS INFANTRY AND ENGINEERS.

TWO OF HIS BEST MEN WERE KILLED ON EITHER SIDE OF HIM BUT SWINGLER KEPT ON, CREEPING UNDER MACHINEGUN CROSS-FIRE. IN A DEFILE HE CAME UPON A MARK IV TANK, BESIDE WHICH STOOD TWO OF ITS CREW. ONE HAND GRENADE KILLED BOTH AND THE TANK RETREATED, WHILE SWINGLER HOLLERED FOR AN ANTI-TANK GUN.

JUL 17 1943

OR PRIVATE PHILIP FOLEY OF BOSSTON. HE AND TWO OTHERS WERE THE FIRST TO REACH A POINT FROM WHICH THEY COULD OBSERVE THE ENEMY BEFORE COLONEL'S TEAM CAME INTO ACTION. SOON THEY WERE UNDER FIRE.

ONE OF HIS PALS WAS KILLED BY A SNIPER WHO FELL A FEW MOMENTS LATER TO FOLEY'S ACCURATE GARAND FIRE. A SECOND MAN LOST AN ARM AND FOLEY HAD HIS HEEL CREASED TRYING TO HELP THE WOUNDED MAN. LATER, BACK IN THE LINES, HE STARTED BACK A MILE TO RECOVER HIS MUSETTE BAG BUT CHANGED HIS MIND, FEARING HE WOULD MISS THE NEXT ACTION. HE DIDN'T MISS IT. I SAW HIM AGAIN BEHIND A TREE HUNTING SNIPERS.

OR SERGT. DAVID ROSENKARANTZ, OF LOS ANGELES, AND CORP. LEE BLACK, OF JACKSON, TENN. THEY STUMBLED UPON 200 ITALIANS AND WERE CAPTURED. BUT THE ITALIANS HELD A CONFERENCE AND DECIDED THEY WANTED TO SURRENDER TO THE AMERICANS. ROSENKARANTZ AND BLACK AGREED TO TURN THEM OVER AT THE FIRST OPPORTUNITY. THEN EVERYONE SAT DOWN TO DINNER AND WINE PROVIDED BY THE MAYOR. AS SOON AS THE YANKS APPEARED AFTER DAYLIGHT, THE ITALIAN COLONEL FORMED HIS COMMAND, AND HEADED BY ROSENKARANTZ AND BLACK THEY MARCHED, SINGING, TO GIVE THEMSELVES UP.

OR OUR OFFICIAL AIRBORNE OBSERVERS. LIEUT. COL. WILLIAM T. RYDER, THE ARMY'S FIRST PARACHUTIST, AND FORMER COMMANDANT OF THE PARATROOP SCHOOL AT FT. BENNING; AND CHARLES BILLINGSLEA, OF SAN FRANCISCO, WHO JUMPED WITH THE BRITISH PARACHUTE TROOPS IN TUNISIA. THEY CAME TO WATCH AND REMAINED TO FIGHT. EACH STARTED OUT WITH A SQUAD, FIGHTING AND MARCHING DAY AND NIGHT WITHOUT ANY SLEEP AND WITH LITTLE FOOD. RYDER PITCHED IN, HELPING THE COLONEL AS TROOP DIRECTOR AND LIAISON OFFICER--BEFORE, DURING AND AFTER THE BATTLE. LATE ON THE DAY OF THE BATTLE BILLINGSLEA WAS SIGHTED COMING UP THE ROAD AT THE HEAD OF A "COXEY'S ARMY" OF SEVERAL HUNDRED PARACHUTE TROOPS WITH THEIR STRANGE ASSORTMENT OF TRANSPORT. BY THE TIME THE FIGHTING WAS OVER THESE TWO LOOKED LIKE GAUNT AND BLACKENED SCARECROWS.

THERE HAVE BEEN MANY STRANGE SIGHTS HERE DURING THE PAST SEVERAL DAYS. THE LUSH GREEN FIELDS OF TOMATO PLANTS OR UNRIPENED GRAPES, AND IN THEIR CENTER, A SQUAT, UGLY TIGER TANK BELCHING SMOKE AND SHELLS. THE ROADS, CONGESTED WITH TINY, TWO-WHEELED SICILIAN CARTS, THEIR SIDES PAINTED IN BRILLIANT REDS AND BLUES, ILLUSTRATING HEROIC PASSAGES OF HISTORY OR THE SCRIPTURES, THEIR HORSES OR

ONE BLACK-COATED PEASANT WAS TRAPPED ON THE ROAD NEAR THE U.S. HEADQUARTERS DURING THE BATTLE. HE AND HIS CART AND JACKASS TOOK SHELTER BENEATH A TREE 25 YARDS FROM THE COLONEL. THERE THEY REMAINED THROUGHOUT THE DAY UNTIL OUR EVENING ATTACK WHEN THE GERMANS COUNTERED WITH HEAVY MORTAR.

THEN THE OLD MAN LED HIS HORSE RAPIDLY TO THE REAR.

MEDICAL MEN WERE UNDER FIRE ALL THE TIME YET PERFORMING HEROIC WORK CARRYING THE WOUNDED BACK FROM THE FRONT LINES, TREATING THEM

JUL 17 1943

30.24 -6191

AT IMPROVISED AID STATIONS IN THE ORCHARD WHERE LIFE-GIVING BLOOD PLASMA CANS LITTERED THE PLACE. SOME WERE CARRIED BACK TO THE TINY RAILROAD STATION WHERE OPERATIONS COULD BE PERFORMED UNTIL GERMAN SKIP-BOMBERS BLASTED A FEW YARDS FROM THE BUILDING. THEN THERE WAS A STRUGGLE TO GET AMBULANCES, TRUCKS AND THINGS IN WHICH TO CARRY THEM FARTHER TO THE REAR TO A CIVILIAN HOSPITAL OR DOWN TO BEACHES.

THERE THEY LAY ON STRETCHERS SHIELDED FROM THE HOT SUN AND TENDED BY OTHER DOCTORS AND FIRST AID MEN, AWAITING THE TIME WHEN LANDING CRAFT WOULD BE UNLOADED OF SUPPLIES AND THEY COULD BE PUT ABOARD SHIPS BOUND FOR AFRICA.

JUL 17 1943

IT WAS THERE ON THE HOT SANDS AMIDST THE ORDERLY CONFUSION OF THE BEACHHEAD THAT I MET ANOTHER CHICAGOAN, ENSIGN RANDOLPH HERMAN, 28, OF 348 LINDEN AVE., HIGHLAND PARK. AS BEACHMASTER HE AND HIS SHORE PATROL AND ARMY ENGINEERS HAD THE TASK OF UNLOADING SUPPLIES AND GETTING THEM MOVED OVER IMPROVISED ROADS INLAND.

HERMAN'S HIGHEST PRAISE WAS FOR THE ARMY'S "DUCKS," THOSE AMPHIBIOUS TRUCKS. THEY PROVED SUPERIOR TO ANY LANDING CRAFT.

THERE WAS AN OLD FRIEND AND TUNISIAN CAMPAIGNER, LIEUT. COL. P. YARBOROUGH FROM NEW YORK. HE AND HIS MEN HAD SEEN THEIR COMRADES GO DOWN IN BLAZING SHIPS BUT HAD JUMPED SAFELY THROUGH A HAIL OF FIRE, SOME COMING DOWN WITH RIDDLE CHUTES, BUT ORGANIZING INTO FIGHTING UNITS ONCE THEY WERE ON THE GROUND AND PUSHING ON TO JOIN US WITH THEIR EQUIVMENT.

IT WAS A MISSION WORTHY OF THE BEST PARACHUTE TROOP EFFORTS--O THIS ENTIRE OPERATION--AND NOW THE MEN ARE REORGANIZING FOR THE NEXT MISSION WHEN NEEDED.

GELA, SICILY, JULY 12-(DELAYED)-(AP)-A TANK OFFICER DESCRIBED TODAY HOW THREE AMERICAN TANKS AND AN ARTILLERY BATTERY KNOCKED OUT 14 OF 30 ATTACKING GERMAN TANKS AND KEPT THEM FROM OVERRUNNING VITAL LANDING BEACHES.

JUL 17 1943

THE BATTLE WAS THE FIRST MAJOR ENGAGEMENT FOR THE VICTORIOUS TANK MEN, WHO FOUGHT LIKE VETERANS TO DEFEAT THE PRIZED TANKS OF THE HERMANN GOERING DIVISION.

"THEY ALMOST GOT AWAY WITH IT," SAID LIEUT. COL. BRIARD JOHNSON OF NORTH AMHERST, MASS., EXECUTIVE OFFICER OF THE AMERICAN COMMAND POST WHICH WAS DIRECTLY IN THE PATH OF THE CHARGING TANKS EAST OF GELA.

"A FEW ALREADY HAD CUT ACROSS THE MAIN COASTAL ROAD WHEN WE WENT INTO ACTION," CONTINUED JOHNSON. "IF THEY HAD EVER GOT TO THE SHORE THEY WOULD HAVE BEEN IN POSITION TO CAPTURE OUR SUPPLY DUMPS, SHOOT UP UNLOADING CREWS AND EVEN LAY FIRE ON OUR MAIN TRANSPORT FORCE IN THE HARBOR."

BUT BEFORE THEY COULD REACH THEIR OBJECTIVE THEY WERE INTERCEPTED BY A PLATOON OF SHERMAN TANKS WHOSE DAREDEVIL STAND WAS HELPED BY THUNDEROUS BLASTS FROM A BTTERY OF 105 HOWITZERS WHICH WERE DESIGNED FOR OTHER PURPOSES THAN POT-SHOTTING AT TANKS.

"THEY JUST TURNED DOWN THEIR MUZZLES AND BEGAN LAYING SHELLS DIRECTLY IN AMONG THE TANKS ADVANCING OVER THE PLAIN," SAID JOHNSON. THEY WERE ONLY THREE-QUARTERS OF A MILE FROM THE LANDING BEACH SO WE COULDN'T WASTE TIME OR MISS MANY SHOTS.

"ONE HOWITZER USED AS AN ANTI-TANK GUN DID PHENOMENAL WORK IN KNOCKING OUT FIVE OR SIX MARK III AND MARK IV TANKS ALONE. ALL THE

JUL 17 1943

TIME THE ARTILLERY WAS DRUMMING IN ITS BIG SHELLS OUR TANKS WERE BORING IN AT THEM AT CLOSER RANGE.

"IT WAS MEANT TO BE AN ATTACK IN FORCE--THE GERMANS DON'T THROW THAT MANY TANKS AROUND CASUALLY--BUT THEY COULDN'T STAND UP UNDER OUR COMBINED FIRE. THEY BROKE AND MADE FOR THE SHELTER OF BUILDINGS AND TREES FIRING BACK ALL THE TIME WITH THEIR 75 MM GUNS.

"THE BATTLE LASTED ABOUT AN HOUR AND THEN THE GERMANS BEGAN TO RETREAT. THEY TRIED TO GET AWAY UNDER COVER OF SMOKE FROM THEIR OWN BURNING TANKS BUT OUR SHELLS KEPT PICKING THEM OFF ONE AFTER ANOTHER. WHEN THE FIRING FINALLY STOPPED THERE WERE 14 NAZI TANKS SMOLDERING IN THE FIELDS. THEY DIDN'T GET A SINGLE TANK OF OURS AND WE HAD NO CASUALTIES. IT WAS A CLEAN-CUT VICTORY."

LICATA, SICILY, JULY 14-(DELAYED)-BEHIND THE RAILINGS OF THE FLOWER-FILLED PUBLIC GARDENS OF LICATA A LITTLE GROUP OF GERMAN PRISONERS WERE SITTING IN THE SHADE THIS AFTERNOON.

WHEN SPOKEN TO IN GERMAN THEY ANSWERED IN POLISH. ALL OF THEM WERE POLES EXCEPT TWO, WHO WERE JUGOSLAVS.

THEY WERE ALL WEARING GERMAN UNIFORMS, BUT THERE WAS ONLY ONE AMONG THEM WHO SPOKE DECENT GERMAN.

TWO OF THEM HAD BROTHERS WHO HAD FOUGHT IN THE POLISH ARMY AND WHO ARE NOW PRISONERS IN GERMAN PRISON CAMPS. THEY HAD HAD LETTERS FROM THEIR BROTHERS ENCLOSING PHOTOGRAPHS OF BRITISH PRISONERS IN THE SAME CAMP.

ONE OF THESE POLES HAD ACTUALLY FOUGHT IN THE POLISH ARMY AGAINST THE GERMANS, HAD BEEN CAPTURED AND RELEASED, AND THEN CONSCRIPTED INTO THE GERMAN ARMY.

MOST OF THEM CAME FROM THE POLISH CORRIDOR, DANZIG, OR UPPER SILESIA, AND BECAUSE OF THEIR GERMAN NAMES WERE LISTED AS VOLKSDEUTSCHE OR RACIAL GERMANS. THAT MEANT THAT THEY WERE FORCIBLY CONSCRIPTD INTO THE GERMAN ARMY AND HAD HAD THE HONOR OF FIGHTING FOR HITLER'S NEW ORDER, WHICH HAD ALREADY DESTROYED THEIR HOMES, KILLED THEIR PARENTS AND FLUNG THEIR BROTHERS INTO PRISON CAMPS.

MOST OF THEM WERE 19 AND 20-YEAR-OLDS WHO HAD HAD FROM SIX TO EIGHT MONTH'S TRAINING AND HAD THEN BEEN SENT TO SICILY.

THEY SPOKE NOTHING BUT POLISH IN THEIR BARRACKS AND THE GERMANS REGARDED THEM ALWAYS AS POLES. IT WAS OBVIOUS THAT THEY COULD NOT BE TRUSTED TO GARRISON ANY OCCUPIED COUNTRY, BECAUSE IT WAS OBVIOUS WHERE THEIR SYMPATHIES MUST LIE.

SO THEY HAD BEEN SENT TO SUPPORT GERMANY'S ALLIES AND FINALLY HAD FOUND THEMSELVES IN THE FRONT LINE.

THE GERMANS CAN HARDLY HAVE EXPECTED THEM TO FIGHT. AS SOON AS POSSIBLE THEY GOT ACROSS THE ISLAND TO THE AMERICANS AND NOW THEY SCARCELY COULD FIND GERMAN WORDS ENOUGH TO EXPRESS THEIR DELIGHT IN BEING CAPTURED.

JUL 17 1943

30.24 -6193

ABOUT THE YUGOSLAVS, IT'S NOT POSSIBLE TO SAY ANYTHING, BECAUSE THEY WERE VERY YOUNG AND BEWILDERED AND COULD SPEAK NOTHING BUT SLOVENE. BUT THEY, TOO, WERE MEMBERS OF SOME ALLEGED GERMAN MINORITY IN NORTHERN YUGOSLAVIA AND THEIR HOMES HAD BEEN SCOOPED INTO GREATER GERMANY AS A PROVINCE CALLED LOWER STYRIA.

IT WOULD BE TOO MUCH TO DEDUCE ANYTHING FROM THIS, BUT ITS ANOTHER GLARING EXAMPLE OF HITLER'S DESPERATE SHORTAGE OF MANPOWER.

THE GERMAN ARMY IN ITS PRIME WOULD NEVER HAVE SENT INTO THE FRONT LINE TROOPS WHO COULD NOT SPEAK GERMAN AND WHO MUST, FROM THEIR PERSONAL EXPERIENCES, BE ANTI-GERMAN.

AT SEA WITH U.S. TASK FORCE ENROUTE TO SICILY, JULY 6-(DELAYED)-(AP)-WE ARE ON OUR WAY AT LAST! WE RIDE ON A TIDE OF ARMS PLEDGED NEVER TO EBB FROM EUROPE UNTIL THE LAST GERMAN AND ITALIAN SOLDIER IS DEAD OR A CAPTIVE.

WE MOVED IN A RISING MIST THROUGH A LANE OF BRITISH WARSHIPS AND THEIR NAMES WERE A ROLLCALL OF HONOR AND VALOR IN THE BATTLE FOR THE MEDITERRANEAN.

JUL 17 1943

A FRIENDLY YOUNG NAVAL LIEUTENANT BY WHOM I WAS STANDING AT THE RAILSIDE NAMED THEM FOR ME AS WE PASSED.

AFTER I WALKED AWAY A YOUNG ARMY OFFICER ASKED IF I KNEW WHO THE NAVAL LIEUTENANT WAS. I REPLIED I DIDN'T.

"THAT WAS DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS,JR., THE MOVIE STAR," SAID THE ARMY OFFICER.

LATER AS I WAS STROLLING WITH A MAJOR, THE LATTER STOPPED BRIEFLY TO EXCHANGE GREETINGS WITH ANOTHER OFFICER.

"LOOK MAJOR," I SAID, "IF YOU'VE GOT PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT HIDDEN IN ANY OF THESE HATCHES, LET ME KNOW SO I'LL RECOGNIZE HIM WHEN I BUMP INTO HIM."

THE PRESIDENT, OF COURSE, WAS STILL IN WASHINGTON, BUT TAKING THE AIR ON THE TOP DECK WERE TWO OF AMERICA'S FAMOUS WARRIORS, LIEUT.GEN.GEORGE S.PATTON,JR., COMMANDER OF THE AMERICAN SEVENTH ARMY, AND VICE ADMIRAL H.K.HEWITT, U.S. NAVAL COMMANDER IN THE AFRICAN THEATER.

AGAIN THEY WERE TEAMED TOGETHER AS THEY WERE IN FRENCH MOROCCO AS MILITARY AND NAVAL COMMANDERS OF INVADING AMERICAN FORCES.

THE LAST TIME I HAD SEEN VICE ADMIRAL HEWITT WAS ON THE BEACH AT FEDALA, MOROCCO, LAST NOVEMBER 8, WHEN HE AND PATTON LANDED TOGETHER UNDER SHELL FIRE.

BOTH WERE IN FINE SPIRITS AS THEY GAZED SEAWARD. PATTON'S CHIEF OF STAFF REMARKED:

"I HOPE WE ARE AS LUCKY AS THE LAST TIME."

PATTON AND HEWITT SMILED SIMULTANEOUSLY, RAISED BOTH HANDS AND CROSSED THEIR FINGERS. OTHER OFFICERS AND MEN AROUND THE DECK LAUGHED.

JUL 17 1943

THERE WAS MUCH LESS TENSION IN THE START OF THIS INVASION THAN IN THE LAST, PERHAPS BECAUSE MOST OF THESE MEN HAVE NOW FACED DANGER AND SURVIVED IT.

ON THE UPPER DECK VICE ADMIRAL HEWITT WATCHED, PLEASED AS A FATHER, AS GUNNERS MATE JAMES MEADOWS OF MOUNT HOPE, W.VA., SHOWED A GROUP OF SOLDIERS HOW TO LOAD AND OPERATE A 20 MILLIMETER ANTI-AIRCRAFT CANNON HE KEEPS IN REPAIR.

JUL 17 1943

ONLY 17 YEARS OLD AND BLITHE AS A CRICKET THE YOUNG SEAMAN SWUNG THE CANNON LIKE A POPGUN WHILE THE SWEATING SOLDIERS LOADED AND REMOVED MAGAZINES.

"YOU'VE LESS THAN TEN SECONDS OF FIRE IN EACH OF THOSE MAGAZINES," HE TOLD THEM, "SO YOU GOT TO KEEP HOPPING."

GENERAL PATTON AND OTHER ARMY OFFICERS WERE SO TICKLED THEY CAME OVER FOR A LECTURE TOO.

ALL THIS RANK UNNERVED MEADOWS FOR A MOMENT, BUT HE RALLIED AND DID A GOOD JOB.

"BOY THEY-THEY-THEY HAD ME GOING FOR A MINUTE,--" HE STUTTERED AS THE OFFICERS LEFT. "AIN'T USED TO SHOWING THIS GUN OFF TO MEN AS IMPORTANT AS M-M-MISTER PATTON AND THOSE OTHER G-G-GENERALS.

"D-D-DARN THOSE GENERALS. THEY'LL HAVE ME S-S-STUT-STUTTERING FOR A W-W-WEEK."

ABOARD AN ALLIED DESTROYER IN THE MEDITERRANEAN, JULY 14-(DELAYED)-SEATED BESIDE ME IN THE WARD ROOM OF THIS DESTROYER IS THE BULKY 55-YEAR-OLD ITALIAN GENERAL BY THE NAME OF ACHILLE D'AVET, CAPTURED IN THE ALLIED ADVANCE IN SICILY.

JUL 17 1943

HE IS TRYING TO READ WHAT I AM TYPING BUT HIS WATERY BLUE EYES ARE DROOPING WITH SLEEP AND HIS MASSIVE, CLOSE-CROPPED HEAD IS NODDING WITH FATIGUE.

HE ROUSES HIMSELF WITH AN EFFORT AND SAYS IN A HUSKY VOICE:

"TELLA---TELLA DA ENGLISH PEOPLES WE THINKS KINDLY OF THEM, AND TELLA MY WIFE IN ROMA THAT I FIGHT LIKA DA GENTLEMAN UNTIL UP COMES THIS VERY FINE GENTLEMAN MONTGOMERY."

IT IS STIFLING HOT IN THE WARD ROOM BUT ACHILLE D'AVET IS CLAD IN FULL KIT--THE KIT OF AN ITALIAN GENERAL IN THE FIELD.

IN THE MIDDLE OF THREE ROWS OF DECORATIONS NESTLES THE RIBBON OF A BRITISH MILITARY MEDAL, BUT I SUPPOSE IT'S JUST ANOTHER COLOR PATCH TO ACHILLE D'AVET.

HE MAKES A FRESH EFFORT.

"AND NOW," HE SAYS, WITH WHAT SEEMS A TRACE OF HOPE IN HIS VOICE, "WE GO TO ENGLAND, NO?"

AT THIS, ANOTHER ITALIAN SITTING OPPOSITE, SAYS QUICKLY IN GOOD ENGLISH, "YES, YES TO ENGLAND WE HOPE. IF IT CANNOT BE ITALY THEN LET IT BE ENGLAND."

THIS MAN IS ABOUT HALF AS BIG AS ACHILLE, IS BALD-HEADED, 10 YEARS YOUNGER AND HAS SPARKLING BLUE EYES. HE IS DRESSED IN THE WINTER RIG OF ITALIAN NAVAL CAPTAIN.

JUL 17 1943

30.24 - 6195

BRUNO PRENEY IS HIS NAME AND NEW BAGULOI STREET IN NAPLES IS WHERE HE HOPED TO RETIRE AFTER THE PROSPECTIVE DEFEAT OF THE BRITISH IN 1940.

GENERAL D'AVET IS THE FIRST ITA[illegible] GENERAL IN SICILY TO FALL INTO THE HANDS OF THAT GREAT COLLECTOR [illegible]TALIAN GENERALS, GEN.SIR BERNARD L.MONTGOMERY. CAPT.PRENEY IS, OR WAS UNTIL 24 HOURS AGO, HIS NAVAL LIAISON OFFICER.

JUL 17 1943

I'VE HAD THE HAGGARD GENERAL AND THE SMILING CAPTAIN ON MY HANDS BECAUSE THOSE OFFICERS WHO ARE NOT RUNNING THE SHIP ARE SLEEPING IN BUNKS FOR THE FIRST TIME SINCE WE BEGAN THE INVASION OF SICILY FIVE DAYS AGO.

THE GENERAL WAS TOO WEARY TO GO INTO DETAILS OF HIS DOWNFALL--HE SURRENDERED JUST SOUTH OF SYRACUSE--BEYOND TELLING ME IN A TONE THAT SUGGESTED HE WAS PIQUED THAT HE HAD EXPECTED US TO LAND IN SICILY ON JUNE 6.

WHEN I TOLD HIM THAT WAS JUST MUSSOLINI'S GUESS, HE THREW OUT HIS HANDS IN THAT GRAND MACARONIAL GESTURE AND SAID, "AH, AH POLITICS," AND LET HIS HEAD SINK BETWEEN HIS HANDS.

THE LITTLE CAPTAIN, HOWEVER, WAS ANXIOUS TO TELL HIS STORY. HE WAS VERY UPSET, HE SAID, THAT MUSSOLINI DIDN'T SEND THE ITALIAN FLEET TO PROTECT SICILY.

"OF WHAT USE IS A NAVAL LIAISON OFFICER WITHOUT A NAVY AT HIS BACK," HE ASKED ME.

HE BLAMED THE GERMAN AIR FORCE FOR NOT PICKING UP OUR GREAT IN-

VASION ARMADA AT SEA (I SMILED AT THIS AND HE HASTILY ADDED, "AND THE ITALIAN AIR FORCE.")

HE AND THE GENERAL WERE JUST RISING FROM A LEISURELY DINNER WHEN THE NEWS WAS BROUGHT TO THEM OF OUR PARACHUTE TROOPS LANDING SATURDAY NIGHT.

JUL 17 1943

"WE THOUGHT IT WAS JUST A SABOTAGE RAID," THE CAPTAIN TOLD ME, "AND WE SENT WORD THROUGH TO ROME. MY GENERAL, WHO WAS DIVISIONAL COMMANDER FOR ALL THE INVASION AREA, THOUGHT THE ALLIES WOULD NOT INVADE IN MOONLIGHT, AND PROCEEDED TO TAKE STEPS TO DEAL WITH PARACHUTE TROOPS. BUT SUDDENLY EVERYTHING WENT POOF.

"IN DAYLIGHT, WHEN OUR PLANE REPORTED THAT MANY MORE THAN 1,000 SHIPS WERE ANCHORED ALONG THE COAST DISCHARGING TROOPS AND GUNS WE FELT TERRIBLE."

THE LITTLE CAPTAIN SHUDDERED.

"WE KNEW THIS WAS SERIOUS. NOT ONE WORD HAD WE FROM ROME; ALAS, NEVER AGAIN DID WE HEAR FROM ROME. WE KNEW IT WAS TOO BIG FOR US.

"THEN CAME GEN.MONTGOMERY'S MEN, ABOUT WHOM WE HAD HEARD, AND WE THOUGHT IT WOULD BE HONORABLE TO SURRENDER TO SUCH HONORABLE SOLDIERS LIKE THE EIGHTH ARMY. SO WE SURRENDERED."

THE GENERAL AND CAPTAIN HAVE MADE ONE REQUEST OF ME. IT WAS THIS, "TELL THE BBC TO MENTION OUR NAMES; THEN OUR PEOPLE WILL KNOW WE ARE SAFE."

FLYING HIS SLOW SCOUT PLANE OVER THE SAND HILLS COUGHLIN SPOTTED ITALIANS MANNING PILLBOXES IN THE PATH OF THE ADVANCING AMERICAN TROOPS. BY RADIO HE ASKED THE CAPTAIN OF HIS SHIP FOR PERMISSION TO DROP SOME BOMBS.

JUL 17 1943

THE PERMISSION WAS GRANTED, HE LET GO AND TO HIS AMAZEMENT THE ITALIANS, INSTEAD OF TAKING COVER, RAN INTO THE OPEN WITH THEIR HANDS HELD HIGH.

IN A QUANDARY OVER WHAT TO DO, COUGHLIN CONTINUED CIRCLING UNTIL HE SAW AN ADVANCED PATROL FROM A COMBAT TEAM. WITH THE MACHINEGUNS HE FIRED TO THE REAR OF THE ITALIANS, FORCING THEM TO RUN IN THE DIRECTION OF THE AMERICANS--LIKE A SHEPHERD HERDING SHEEP. FINALLY HE FLEW OVER THE AMERICANS SIGNALLING THEM THE DIRECTION OF THE ITALIANS.

THEN HE RETURNED TO THE ITALIANS, KEEPING THEM TOGETHER WITH HIS GUNS UNTIL THE AMERICANS ARRIVED AND TOOK THEM PRISONER.

HIS JOB DONE, COUGHLIN RETURNED TO HIS SHIP.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, JULY 15-(AP)-FOUR AMERICAN RANGERS, CHARGING A HEAVILY-MINED BEACH AT GELA DURING THE AMERICAN OPERATIONS THERE, CAPTURED 52 ITALIAN OFFICERS IN ONE BUILDING AFTER A SHORT FIGHT, AMERICAN OBSERVERS REPORTED TODAY.

THE RANGER DETACHMENT LANDED AT ONE OF THE MOST HEAVILY DEFENDED POINTS ON TME SOUTH SICILIAN COAST SATURDAY. GERMAN MINES--THE TYPE WHICH JUMP FOUR FEET IN THE AIR ON CONTACT AND SPRAY FRAGMENTS OVER A WIDE AREA---HAD BEEN THICKLY SOWN BY THE ENEMY.

BUT THE AMERICAN SPEARHEAD, DESPITE ENEMY MACHINE-GUN FIRE, CROSSED THE DEADLY SHORE STRIP AND QUICKLY BEGAN MOPPING UP THE TOWN ITSELF.

WITH THE WESTERN TASK FORCE (DELAYED)--AXIS WAR PRISONERS UNANIMOUSLY HAVE VOICED SURPRISE OVER THE FACT THAT AMERICAN TROOPS EVER PENETRATED THROUGH THE DEFENDERS' ARTILLERY HAIL.

AXIS AIR ACTIVITY DECREASED MARKEDLY DURING THE LAST DAY AND NIGHT

THE GERMANS APPARENTLY ARE BOMBING ITALIAN CIVILIANS DELIBERATELY, AND GERMAN ARTILLERY HAS BEEN SHELLING GROUPS OF ITALIAN PRISONERS WHENEVER THEY SURRENDERED TO US.

IN OCCUPIED TOWNS THE AMERICANS FOUND JAILS STUFFED WITH ANTI-FASCISTS, WHO SAID THEY HAD BEEN ROUNDED UP TWO WEEKS BEFORE THE LANDING.

OBSERVERS BELIEVE THE SICILIAN BATTLE IS LIELY TO DEVELOP IMTO A MUTUAL STRUGGLE TO NOCK OUT OPPOSING SUPPLY LINES.

THE ENEMY'S SITUATION REGARDING AMMUNITION SUPPLY ALREADY APPEARS TO BE SERIOUS.

WITH THE AMERICAN FORCES IN SICILY, JULY 15-(DELAYED)-RAGUSA WAS CAPTURED BY 17 AMERICAN SOLDIERS IN TWO JEEPS WHO AT THE SAME TIME RESCUED TWO WOUNDED AMERICAN FLIERS, THE FIRST ITALIAN-HELD PRISONERS RELEASED BY THE YANKEE INVASION FORCES.

THE TWO FLIERS ARE FIRST SERGT.ALLEN B.HUCKABEE, 43, OLDEST COMBAT MAN IN THE AIR FORCE, AND TECHNIC SERGT.DAVID FLEMING OF JACKSON,MICH. HUCKABEE HAD ELEVEN BULLET WOUNDS AND FLEMING FIVE. WHILE THEY WERE IN THE RAGUSA HOSPITAL, AMERICAN PLANES BOMBED THE TOWN FIVE TIMES.

JUL 17 1943

FLEMING AND HUCKABEE WERE IN A FORMATION OF FLYING FORTRESSES THAT RAIDED THE COMISO AIRFIELD ON JULY 5. THEY WERE ATTACKED BY MORE THAN 100 ITALIAN AND GERMAN PLANES, BUT THEY FOUGHT THEIR WAY THROUGH THE SWARM OF ENEMY FIGHTERS AND SUCCEEDED IN DROPPING THEIR BOMBS. THEN THEY RAN INTO MORE TROUBLE.

"AS WE WERE PULLING OFF THE TARGET MORE ENEMY PLANES KEPT COMING AT US," FLEMING SAID. "THE ANTI-AIRCRAFT FIRE KNOCKED OUT SOMEONE4ENGINE, SETTING IT AFIRE AND SLOWING US UP. WE WERE

COMING AT US," FLEMING SAID. "THE ANTI-AIRCRAFT FIRE KNOCKED OUT OUR NO.4 ENGINE, SETTING IT AFIRE AND SLOWING US UP. WE WERE FORCED TOP

BY THIS TIME ONLY TWO GUNS WERE WORKING, BUT THE FORTRESS GOT ELEVEN ENEMY PLANES. HUCKABEE GOT AT LEAST FIVE WHILE OPERATING THE TOP TURRET, HE SAID.

JUL 17 1943

THEN HUCKABEE'S GUN AND THE RADIO GUN WENT OUT OF COMMISSION AND THE PILOT, FIRST LIEUT.ALBERT E.DAVIS OF MODESTO,CALIF., GAVE ORDERS TO BAIL OUT.

OVER THE SIDE WENT WAIST GUNNER JOHN WITHROW, OF GRAND JUNCTION,COL.; SERGT.DOOR, A PHOTOGRAPHER MAKING HIS FIRST TRIP; FIRST LIEUT.VINCENT SHANK, OF CALIFORNIA, BOMBARDIER; FIRST LIEUT. HERBERT O.PERRY OF HOLLYWOOD,CALIF., FORMER MUSIC ARRANGER FOR THE WALT DISNEY STUDIOS; PILOT DAVIS AND THEN FLEMING. HUCKABEE WENT LAST.

FIFTEEN MINUTES AFTER THEY HIT THE GROUND, ITALIAN TROOPS HAD THEM SURROUNDED. THEY WERE ALL SENT BY AMBULANCE TO THE CATHOLIC HOSPITAL IN RAGUSA, WHERE THEIR WOUNDS WERE TREATED. DAVIS AND WITHROW WERE UNWOUNDED.

LATER ALL EXCEPT FLEMING AND HUCKABEE WERE MOVED TO VENICE.

"THOSE RAIDS OVER THE HOSPITAL WERE AWFUL," SAID FLEMING, "BUT WE WERE FULLY REPAID WHEN THE AMERICAN SOLDIERS FINALLY TOOK OVER AND CAME TO THE HOSPITAL. I COULD HAVE KISSED A SERGEANT.

"THOSE 17 SOLDIERS TOOK THE TOWN WITH TWO JEEPS. THEY GOT AN AMBULANCE AND MOVED US TO COMISO."

A FRIENDLY ITALIAN SOLDIER HAD TOLD FLEMING AND HUCKABEE THAT THE AMERICANS HAD LANDED ON THE ISLAND AND THEY PROTESTED THAT THEIR CONDITION WAS SO SERIOUS WHEN THEY MOVED THE OTHERS TO VENICE THAT THEY WERE ALLOWED TO REMAIN.

AN ADVANCED 8TH ARMY POST IN SICILY, JULY 15-(DELAYED)- IN AN INTERVIEW WITH CANADIAN WAR CORRESPONDENTS, GEN.SIR BERNARD Z.MONTGOMERY SAID "THE CANADIANS WERE TERRIFIC ON THE BEACHES AND IN THE ATTACK INLAND" AND TOLD US OF THE LATEST SUCCESSES IN THE REMARKABLE ADVANCE OF HIS 8TH ARMY.

HE SAID AUGUSTA HAD FALLEN AND LEADING BRITISH FORMATIONS ON THE CANADIANS' RIGHT FLANK WERE 60 MILES INTO SICILY. VIZZINI, 25 MILES WEST OF THE GULF OF AUGUSTA ON THE EAST COAST OF THE ISLAND, ALSO HAS BEEN CAPTURED.

IN THE NORTH, IN THE DIRECTION OF CATANIA, THE 8TH ARMY IS MEETING GERMAN TROOPS FOR THE FIRST TIME HERE.

WE HAD SPENT THE NIGHT IN A CAMP OF THE 8TH ARMY AND GEN. MONTGOMERY HAPPENED TO BE THERE. THIS MORNING (THURSDAY) HE GRANTED INTERVIEWS TO PETER STURSBERG OF THE CANADIAN BROADCASTING CORPORATION AND MYSELF.

JUL 17 1943

WE WERE THE FIRST CORRESPONDENTS TO TALK WITH THE 8TH ARMY COMMANDER IN SICILY.

GRIMY AND DUSTY AFTER THREE DAYS OF RACING AROUND IN THE HEAT, WITH SCARCELY ANY SLEEP, WE HADN'T HAD OUR CLOTHES OFF SINCE THE LANDING.

WE WENT INTO THE GENERAL'S DESERT CARAVAN UNDER AN OLIVE TREE, PROBABLY THE MOST BEDRAGGLED LOOKING CORRESPONDENTS GEN. MONTGOMERY EVER HAD SEEN.

JUL 17 1943

I HAD TO BORROW A WEDGE CAP FROM AN OFFICER BEFORE THE INTERVIEW BECAUSE I HAD LOST MY OWN AND WAS WEARING AN ITALIAN SOLAR TOPI WHICH I HAD PICKED UP FROM A CAPTURED ENEMY POSITION. I DIDN'T THINK THE GENERAL WOULD APPRECIATE SUCH HEADGEAR.

I ALSO REMEMBERED GEN. MONTGOMERY'S TEETOTAL RULES AND DROPPED INTO A HANDY BUSH MY WATER BOTTLE FULL OF CHIANTI WINE.

HE SHOOK HANDS WITH US, SMILED AND SAID:

"I AM DELIGHTED TO SEE CANADIANS HERE. I AM ALWAYS GLAD TO [illegible] AROUND. I KNEW THEM WELL IN ENGLAND, YOU KNOW."

I RECALLED A MANEUVER WHICH HE HAD DIRECTED, CALLED THE "TIGER EXERCISE," MORE THAN A YEAR AGO, WHEN HE WAS THE COMMANDER OF BRITAIN'S SOUTHEAST COAST. THE CANADIAN CORPS PARTICIPATED IN THE MANEUVER AND MARCHED NEARLY 300 MILES IN 10 DAYS, ONE OF THE TOUGHEST THE CANADIANS EVER WERE ON.

"OH, YES, YOU WERE ON THAT ONE," HE EXCLAIMED.

THE GENERAL LOOKED A LITTLE WEARY FROM THE LONG DRIVES OVER THESE TERRIBLY, DUSTY ROADS BUT HE WAS MOST AFFABLE AND IN GREAT FORM. HE SAT DOWN ON THE STEPS OF HIS CARAVAN, A BIG TRUCK FITTED OUT ESPECIALLY FOR HIM AND IN WHICH HE RODE FROM EL ALAMEIN TO TUNIS. HE WAS IN SHORTS AND A BUSH SHIRT.

IN HIS HAND HE CARRIED HIS FAMOUS BLACK BERET AND A GREEN COMMANDO BERET.

"THEY JUST GAVE ME THIS COMMANDO BERET," HE SAID, "NICE, ISN'T IT?"

I ASKED HIM HOW HE FELT THE OPERATION WAS GOING GENERALLY AND HE SAID: "I AM SATISFIED."

JUL 17 1943

HE REPEATED THIS AND WENT ON:

"I AM VERY PLEASED INDEED TO HAVE CANADIANS UNDER MY COMMAND. THEY HAVE DONE WELL. IN FACT, THEY WERE TERRIFIC ON THE BEACHES AND IN THE ATTACK ON THE ISLAND.

"THE TROUBLE IS THEY HAVE BEEN COOPED UP ON SHIPS FOR SO LONG. YOU HAVE TO BE CAREFUL HOW YOU TREAT TROOPS LIKE THESE. THEY AREN'T USED TO THE SUN--IT'S PRETTY HOT HERE."

TO EMPHASIZE IT, HE HELD OUT HIS BARE ARMS WITH THE DARK SUNTAN, AND SAID: "THAT'S FROM A YEAR IN THE DESERT."

THE GENERAL TALKED FREELY. HIS FACE WAS TANNED BY THE WIND AND SUN, JUST LIKE LEATHER. HE KEPT FINGERING HIS NEW BERET.

"I KNOW THE CANADIANS ARE SORRY THEY HAVEN'T HAD MUCH FIGHTING HERE BECAUSE THE ITALIANS HAVE BEEN RUNNING SO FAST," HE SAID, "BUT THEY'LL GET A BELLYFUL BEFORE THEY'RE THROUGH."

JUL 17 1943

30.24 - 6201

GEN.MONTGOMERY TOLD THEN OF THE FALL OF AUGUSTA AND THE PUSH NORTHWARD TOWARD CATANIA.

"WE HAVE REALLY HIT THEM FOR SIX," HE SAID, USING A CRICKET EXPRESSION THAT MEANS ABOUT THE SAME AS HITTING A HOMERUN IN BASEBALL.

"WE HAVE HIT THEM WITH TERRIFIC CONCENTRATION OF FORCE IN THIS OPERATION," HE ADDED.

ASKED HOW LONG HE THOUGHT THE CAMPAIGN MIGHT LAST, HE THREW UP HIS HANDS. THEN, AFTER A PAUSE, HE SAID:

"O I CAN'T SAY. IT MAY TAKE A MONTH, BUT THEN, AGAIN, IT MAY TAKE SIX MONTHS--OR IT MAY TAKE TWO WEEKS."

HE GOT UP FROM THE STEPS.

"I MUST GO NOW. THERE ARE THINGS TO DO."

HE WAVED HIS BERET--THE NEW ONE--AND THE INTERVIEW WAS OVER.

WITH AMERICAN TROOPS IN SICILY, JULY 19--THE TOUGHEST, ROUGHEST YANKS I HAVE MET SINCE LANDING WITH AMERICAN INVASION FORCES IN SICILY FIVE DAYS AGO ARE OUR PARATROOPS.

THE EASIEST WAY OF DESCRIBING THEM IS TO SAY THAT THEY ARE ALWAYS LOOKING AND SPOILING FOR ACTION.

THEY OVERCAME ALL KINDS OF OPPOSITION AND DIFFICULTIES, WHICH BEGAN WHEN THEY WERE DROPPED SOME MILES FROM THEIR OBJECTIVES AND ROUNDED UP HUNDREDS OF PRISONERS PRACTICALLY SINGLE-HANDED.

ALONG THE DRY, DUST-COVERED HIGHWAY OUTSIDE THE TOWN OF COMISO I FOUND SERGT.DAVID ROSENKRANTZ OF LOS ANGELES AND CORP. LEE BLACK OF JACKSON, TENN., WHO CAPTURED MORE THAN 200 ITALIANS AND IN TURN WERE ROYALLY FETED BY THE CHIEF OF POLICE OF THE SMALL TOWN SCICLI.

WHEN THEY HIT THE GROUND IN THE EARLY MORNING DARKNESS OF JULY 10, ROSENKRANTZ SPRAINED HIS ANKLE. HE AND BLACK HID OUT UNTIL DAYLIGHT, AND SHORTLY AFTER THEY STARTED WALKING. THEY MARCHED RIGHT INTO A CONCENTRATION OF 200 ITALIAN SOLDIERS.

"THEY CAPTURED US," SAID ROSENKRANTZ, "BUT THEN STRANGE THINGS BEGAN TO HAPPEN. THEY HELD A CONFERENCE AND DECIDED TO TURN THEMSELVES OVER TO US, FOR THEY HEARD THAT THE AMERICANS WERE ONLY EIGHT KILOMETERS AWAY.

JUL 17 1943

"THEY PRESENTED US TO THE CHIEF OF POLICE OF THE NEARBY TOWN AND HE FED US, WINED US, GAVE US GOOD BEDS AND DECLARED ON HIS HONOR THAT HE WAS GLAD TO SEE US. IN FACT, EVERYONE WAS HAPPY, INCLUDING OUR PRISONERS.

"AROUND 4 O'CLOCK THAT AFTERNOON THE ITALIANS MARCHED INTO SCICLI, WHERE THEY SURRENDERED. THEY GAVE US THEIR GUNS AN HOUR BEFORE, SO WE LET THEM GO IN ALONE. THEY WERE SINGING AND JUST ABOUT RAISING HELL AND A COUPLE OF THEM REMARKED THAT THEY HOPED THEY WOULD BE SENT TO A PRISON CAMP IN THE UNITED STATES."

THIS AFTERNOON THE ENEMY SENT DOWN 30 ZEROS IN A SWEEP OVER NEARBY RENDOVA ISLAND. IN THE ENSUING DOGFIGHT, GRUMMAN WILDCATS SHOT DOWN THREE ZEROS AND AN ARMY AIRACOBRA DOWNED ONE. ONE OF OUR WILDCAT PILOTS IS MISSING.

THE DEADLY MID-MORNING BOMBING OF MUNDA WITH DAISY CUTTERS ANTI-PERSONNEL BOMBS FOLLOWED HOURS OF SHELLING IN THE EARLY MORNING BY FOUR OF OUR DESTROYERS.

IN HENDERSON FIELD'S READY ROOMS, EXHILARATED PILOTS TOLD TONIGHT OF THE COMPLETELY SUCCESSFUL EXECUTION OF THE DAY'S AERIAL STABS WITH ALL THE GRINNING EXCITEMENT OF A VICTORIOUS FOOTBALL TEAM IN ITS DRESSING ROOM.

"IF THERE WERE ANY JAPS IN THERE WHO WEREN'T CRAZY BEFORE, THEY SURE MUST BE BOMB-HAPPY NOW," SAID ENSIGN JOHN YEAMAN OF MARYVILLE, MO. THE YOUNG PILOT WAS FIRED UP. HIS WORDS TUMBLED OUT AT MACHINEGUN RATE.

"IF IT WASN'T DOWN THE MUZZLE, IT WAS RIGHT BETWEEN THE GUNS, BECAUSE I'M SURE I SAW PIECES OF GUN FLYING IN THE AIR," GENTRY SAID. THE ENTIRE AREA WAS COVERED WITH A SOLID CLOUD OF BOMB SMOKE. WHEN THIS CLEARED, HE COULD SEE A LARGE FIRE AT THE EAST END OF THE RUNWAY AND REDDISH SMOKE RISING FROM THE REVETMENTS AND TAXI-WAYS OFF THE SOUTH RUNWAY.

DIVEBOMBERS WENT IN FIRST TO HIT THE ANTI-AIRCRAFT POSITIONS THEN THE GRUMMANS FOLLOWED WITH HEAVY DAISY CUTTERS. THE WHOLE POSITION WAS COVERED FROM LAMBETI PLANTATION BEACH ACROSS THE AIRDROME TO THE WOODED RIDGE INLAND, THE AIRMEN SAID.

LIEUTENANT COMMANDER FREDERICK L. ASHWORTH OF WENHAM, MASS., LED THE GRUMMAN SECTION WHICH DROPPED BATCHES OF BOMBS ALONG THE RUNWAY.

THE WAR TODAY

JUL 17 1943

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE

THE ROOSEVELT-CHURCHILL ULTIMATUM TO THE PEOPLE OF ITALY IS AN ASTUTELY LOGICAL DEVELOPMENT, DELIVERED WITH WHAT APPEARS TO BE FINE TIMING.

THE ITALIAN PUBLIC AS A WHOLE NEVER HAS HAD ITS HEART IN THIS WAR. THE COUNTRY WAS SWEPT INTO THE CONFLICT BY MUSSOLINI'S SUDDEN TREACHERY AGAINST FRANCE AND, ONCE CAUGHT IN THE MILL-RACE, COULDN'T GET OUT.

AS I PREVIOUSLY HAVE REPORTED IN THIS COLUMN, BACK AS FAR AS THE FATEFUL MUNICH CONFERENCE, WHEN THE POWER-MAD BUT PUSILLANIMOUS DUCE WAS BEGINNING TO SNIFF THE HITLERIAN HEELS, I FOUND IN ITALY A WIDESPREAD FEELING OF ABHORRENCE FOR THE NAZI LEADER AND HIS WORKS. THE AVERAGE ITALIAN HAD NO USE FOR HITLER, AND DECIDEDLY HAD NO INTENTION OF GOING TO WAR TO SUPPORT HIM.

EVEN THEN THERE WAS A GREAT UNDERCURRENT OF UNREST AND RESENTMENT AT THE REPRESSION OF THE DICTATORSHIP. THE PEOPLE LIVED IN CONSTANT FEAR--SO MUCH SO THAT THEY WERE AFRAID TO SPEAK THEIR MINDS OPENLY, AND SO SUFFERED IN SILENCE.

THEIR TROUBLE WAS THAT THEY HAD NO CHAMPION TO LEAD THEM IN REVOLT AGAINST MUSSOLINI. THE KING AT THAT TIME HAD LOST HIS HOLD ON THE RESPECT OF MANY OF HIS PEOPLE, AND WAS REGARDED MORE OR LESS AS A FIGUREHEAD AND HELPLESS IN THE HANDS OF THE DUCE.

SINCE THEN, HOWEVER, THERE HAS BEEN A CHANGE IN ITALY. THE ROYAL HOUSE SEEMS TO HAVE MADE A RECOVERY IN THE ESTEEM OF THE PUBLIC, AND THE OLD KING HAS BEEN ASSERTING HIMSELF.

COINCIDENTLY, WE HAVE SEEN THE CURIOUS SPECTACLE OF ITALIAN STAFF OFFICERS COOLLY SURRENDERING EN BLOC IN SICILY, AND THEIR SOLDIERS HAPPILY FOLLOWING SUIT. OBVIOUSLY MANY OF THE ROMAN TROOPS HAD NO INTENTION OF RESISTING THE INVASION BUT, ON THE CONTRARY, WELCOMED IT. THAT'S NOT BECAUSE THEY ARE UNWILLING TO FIGHT FOR THEIR COUNTRY BUT BECAUSE IT'S CLEAR TO THEM THAT THEY AREN'T BATTLING FOR THE FATHERLAND BUT ARE MERELY PROVIDING CANNON FODDER FOR HITLER.

A115

JUL 17 1943

BACK AT THE TIME OF TUNISIA, ITALIAN PRISONERS WERE BITTER IN THEIR DENUNCIATION OF THE BOCHE. AND IT MAY BE SAID THAT THE GERMANS THOROUGHLY DESPISE THEIR ALLIES.

SO IT IS INTO SUCH AN ATMOSPHERE THAT PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT AND PRIME MINISTER CHURCHILL HAVE PITCHED THEIR ULTIMATUM. THERE'S NO MINCING OF WORDS IN WARNING THAT "THE SOLE HOPE FOR ITALY'S SURVIVAL LIES IN HONORABLE CAPITULATION," BUT IT HOLDS OUT THE FAIR PROMISE OF "RESTORATION OF NATIONAL DIGNITY, SECURITY AND PEACE" TO THE ITALIANS.

OF COURSE, THE PRESSURE FROM HITLER IS VERY GREAT, AND HE HAS MANY

JUL 17 1943

TROOPS AND SECRET POLICE IN ITALY TO MAINTAIN HIS POWER. THAT IS CALCULATED TO HAVE A RESTRAINING INFLUENCE ON A LOT OF FOLK. STILL, THERE CAN BE NO QUESTION THAT A LARGE PERCENTAGE OF THE PEOPLE ARE READY FOR REVOLT AND ONLY NEED A STRONG LEADER TO SET THEM MARCHING.

THIS IS THE CRUCIAL MOMENT WHEN THE KING MIGHT STEP IN AND SAVE HIS COUNTRY FROM FURTHER SUFFERING. IT'S DOUBTFUL IF HITLER COULD DO MUCH TO RESTRAIN A CONCERTED MOVEMENT, FOR HE IS UP TO HIS NECK IN TROUBLES NORTH OF THE ALPS. CERTAINLY THE ALLIED LEADERSHIP HAS GAUGED THE SITUATION SHREWDLY IN ISSUING THE ULTIMATUM.

JUL 17 1943

WHATEVER ELSE THAT DOCUMENT DOES, IT WILL FOREVER LIVE IN HISTORY AS A CASTIGATION OF THE TREACHEROUS MUSSOLINI. HIS SINS ARE DEFINITELY ON RECORD.

JAPAN LOSES 7 SHIPS, 49 PLANES TO U. S. FLIERS IN SOLOMONS FIGHT; ALLIES SPEED ADVANCE IN SICILY

GREAT AIR FLEET SMASHES HARBOR NORTH OF MUNDA

200 U.S. Bombers, Fighters Carry Out Brilliant Attack.

JUL 18 1943

49 JAPS SHOT DOWN

Cruiser, Two Destroyers, Tanker Among Vessels Sunk.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Sunday, July 18.—(AP) More than 200 United States torpedo bombers, dive bombers, heavy bombers and fighter planes—greatest force ever sent against Japan in the south and southwest Pacific — sank seven ships, including a cruiser and two destroyers, and downed 49 Japanese planes Saturday in 20 minutes of dazzling action in the northern Solomons.

The big force struck at the Buin-Faisi harbor—northern terminal of the "Tokyo express", those fast warships which the Japanese try to slip in at night to aid garrisons in danger of falling, such as their imperilled air base at Munda to the south of yesterday's brilliant action.

Half of Flotilla Destroyed

Dauntless dive bombers, Avenger torpedo bombers, Liberator and Flying Fortress four-engined heavy bombers, Corsairs and Lightnings started great fires and destroyed nearly half of the warships and merchant men in the harbor at Buin-Faisi, southern Bougainville.

In addition to the light cruiser—the communique said it was either that or a destroyer leader—and the two destroyers, a submarine chaser, a tanker and two cargo ships were blasted to the bottom of the anchorage.

The price the Americans paid for the big aerial victory was six planes.

A third cargo vessel was so badly damaged by the raiders that it had to be beached.

Below Bougainville on New Georgia, Dauntless dive bombers supporting our jungle fighters moving south toward Munda attacked enemy positions in the Bairoko area.

No Action on Munda

There was no further report of ground action around Munda, where some of our advanced patrols have penetrated within less than two miles of the air base.

As the forerunner for the heavy assault on the Buin-Faisi shipping, a heavy force of Liberators and Flying Fortresses attacked the nearby Kahili airdrome, starting early in the evening of July 16. The series of attacks lasted nine hours, starting many fires and probably knocking out a number of grounded Japanese planes.

At 9:20 a. m. yesterday, Dauntless, Avenger and Liberator bombers in great force, escorted by fighters, moved in for the attack.

Zero float planes — land planes equipped with pontoons for alighting in the water—rose to meet them and the battle was on.

The bombers steadily pressed toward the target of 15 warships and merchantmen our reconnaissance planes had reported earlier were in the harbor.

Our bombers must have made almost every bomb count because they sank seven out of 15 and caused an eighth to be beached. What also is important is they bagged their principal target, the light cruiser or destroyer leader.

Japanese planes dropped out of the skies in an almost steady stream, some burning brightly, others trailing long plumes of smoke, to crash into the sea.

20 Minute Battle

It was brief but deadly. In 20 minutes it was all over.

The Buin Faisi anchorage is the point from which Japanese supplies are moved south to Solomons points by fast groups of cruisers and destroyers.

In two naval actions against the "Tokyo Express" since the start of the current operations in the Solomons, at least 13 and probably 17 cruisers and destroyers have been sunk.

The forty-nine Japanese fighters lost exceeded the previous big single day's bag July 15 in another big sky battle over Rendova island, when 45 were shot down out of a formation of approximately 80.

In the New Guinea sector of the Pacific offensive, 30 tons of bombs were dropped by Allied planes on Salamaua and Lae, Japanese air bases on the Huon gulf.

Today's communique reported that an attack by American bombers lasting nearly nine hours was made on the Kahili airdrome near Buin, a potential source of air for imperilled Munda.

Communique Reports Attack

"Following this preparation, our heavy torpedo and dive bombers in force, with a strong fighter cover, attacked enemy shipping in the anchorage with brilliant results," it related.

"Seven vessels were sunk comprising one light cruiser or destroyer leader, two destroyers, a submarine chaser, a tanker and two cargo vessels; a third cargo vessel was damaged and beached.

"The enemy's air force in strength unsuccessfully attempted to protect the shipping. Forty-nine enemy fighters were shot down in a great aerial combat which resulted. Six of our planes are missing."

Medium bombers made the heavy strike against Salamaua, the northeastern New Guinea air base on which Australian and American jungle fighters are pressing less than 10 miles away. The bombers scored direct hits on ammunition and fuel dumps. Large explosions and numerous fires resulted.

Above Salamaua, big four-engined bombers made a midday attack on Lae.

Above the ground fighting scene of Munda, an Allied bomber on reconnaissance attacked and set afire a small Japanese cargo ship yesterday off the west coast of Vella Lavella island.

This sector, from which the Japanese could make efforts to aid their New Georgia island garrisons by sea, is one in which several small ships and barges have been hit by our bombers this week.

Northwest of Australia on the island of Timor, our medium bombers struck at Lautem and started fires which could be seen for 60 miles.

Other air attacks were made on the Tanimbar islands and Dutch New Guinea.

JAPS AT MUNDA NOW AWAITING COUP DE GRACE

JUL 18 1943

82 Tons of Bombs Dropped on Foe's Base Singled Out for Destruction.

NAVAL FIRE TERRIFIC TOO

Ammunition and Gasoline Dumps Are Blasted and Thousands of Enemy Killed.

Allied Headquarters in the Southwest Pacific, July 17 (A. P.).—Munda is being dive-bombed to destruction. Eighty-two more tons of bombs burst Friday upon the Japanese air base.

More than 100 Dauntless and Avenger planes delivered the latest low-level attack.

Today's communique reported: "Our torpedo and dive bombers, in two strikes in close support of ground forces, dropped eighty-two tons of high explosives and fragmentation bombs on the enemy positions in the Munda area."

Heavy Rains Experienced.

The Lambeti plantation positions of the Japanese two miles east of the airdrome and the air field itself were yesterday's targets. The communique made no further reference to United States jungle fighters who have been closing in on Munda. Heavy rains swept the fighting sector.

On northeast New Guinea, where Australian and American conquerors of Mubo now are moving against Komiatum, within seven miles of their objective of Salamaua, the Japanese air base, Douglas attack planes bombed and strafed in support of the ground troops. The positions they raided were at Bobdubi, five miles below Salamaua.

The enemy's bombers didn't risk a single run on the ships, which reached port safely.

Four Zeros of an enemy fighter force trying to draw off our protecting fighters were shot down. Not a single U. S. plane was lost. The Admiral commanding our naval forces in the Solomons said:

"We certainly would have lost those ships if it had not been for our fighter planes. Our kids have done a big job in this campaign. It's an inspiration to know the feeling of confidence and security those fighter planes overhead gave the officers and crews of those ships."

A Bomber Pilot's View.

Guadalcanal, July 13 (Delayed) (A. P.).—A Navy patrol bomber scouting over the central Solomons early today sighted an approaching Japanese flotilla, radioed the word to a United States task force and then stood by to watch an hour's blistering surface action—the second battle of Kula Gulf.

The story of this engagement was told by the bomber's two pilots, Lieuts. (j. g.) William H. Carter, 28, of Coushatta, La., and Harry G. Sharp Jr., 23, of Greensboro, N. C.

A little after midnight, they spotted a line of six enemy destroyers and one cruiser bearing toward Kula Gulf, off which a United States task force previously had sunk nine Japanese cruisers and destroyers in a brief night engagement July 6.

Lieut. Carter flew low along one side of the line of ships to silhoutte them against the moon and make their identification positive. He then radioed the position and strength of the enemy to the commander of our task force. The American ships at that time were about thirty-five miles away and heading in the direction of the enemy.

The Action Is Joined.

Not long afterward the action was joined.

"Our ships opened fire first," Carter said. "The enemy cruiser trained a searchlight on our ships. Not long after the cruiser turned on her lights, there was a big, red explosion aboard her. That must have been a hit on the magazine."

"Our tracers, as far as we could tell, were going right on in there. Our shooting couldn't have been any better."

When the firing started Carter's plane was flying at about 1,000-foot altitude and directly between the two forces, which stood approximately 14,000 yards apart.

"Those big shells came by just aft of us and right on our level," the pilot said. "We were in dangerous territory."

Carter swung westward and ranged back and forth over the enemy ships, observing the results of our ships' firing. Intense shelling lasted only five minutes, he said. The enemy cruiser and a destroyer were silenced quickly.

But four destroyers, running for cover in a storm squall, kept returning fire until covered by rain. (The official reports on the battle said that, in addition to the Japanese destroyer immobilized at the outset, two others and perhaps four were sunk, indicating that only one ship in the flotilla escaped without at least severe damage.)

Through Severe Ack-Ack.

Carter followed the ships into the squall. Finding them emerging from the western edge of the storm, he made two glide-bombing runs, releasing his bombs from a low level on one enemy vessel and scoring a near-miss.

On the second run, Carter related, "both destroyers really let us have all the ack-ack they could throw."

Navy's Kula Wounds Revealed

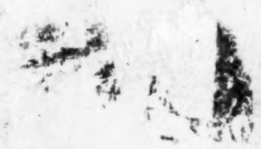
Damaged Cruisers Reached Port Safely, but Destroyer Gwin Had to Be Sunk.

Guadalcanal, July 17 (A. P.).—The U. S. S. Gwin, a destroyer, was so badly damaged by a Japanese torpedo in the second naval battle of Kula Gulf July 12-13 that she had to be abandoned and sunk by our own fire.

After the night battle a strong cover of our fighter planes drove off enemy dive-bombers attempting to attack our damaged cruisers as they turned homeward at fifteen knots speed in daylight off the New Georgia east coast.

[This mention of damaged cruisers is the first indication the United States Navy suffered any losses other than the Gwin. The engagement cost the Japanese a cruiser and three destroyers sunk and two other destroyers probably sunk.]

JUL 18 1943



One shell gouged a hole three feet in diameter in the leading edge of the right wing. Fragments slashed many smaller holes in the bomber and one fragment sliced through the trouser leg of one crewman who was unhurt. With that, the bomber turned home.

Other members of the bomber's crew included: Ensign Raymond Hempen of St. Louis, Mo.; Ensign Paul Pfester of Terre Haute, Ind.; R. D. Doull of Staten Island; L. G. Black, Bozeman, Mont.; E. M. Bruce, Portland, Ore.; A. S. Monell, Suffield, Conn.; B. J. Woodruff, Wilburton, Okla., and J. D. Geddes, Woodland, Cal.

Flyers Have 'Air-Side' Seats At Kula Battle

By Leif Erickson JUL 18 1943

Guadalcanal, July 13 (Delayed). A navy patrol bomber scouting over the central Solomons early today sighted an approaching Japanese flotilla, radioed the word to a United States task force and then stood by to watch an hour's blistering surface action—the second battle of Kula Gulf.

The story of this engagement (which later reports said cost the Japanese one cruiser and at least three destroyers sunk against American losses of one destroyer sunk and an unstated number of other warships damaged) was told by the bombers' two pilots, Lieutenants (j. g.) William H. Carter, 28, of Coushatta, La., and Harry C. Sharp, Jr., 23, of Greensboro, N. C.

Seven Craft Spotted

A little after midnight they spotted a line of six enemy destroyers and one cruiser bearing toward Kula Gulf, off which a United States task force previously had sunk nine Japanese cruisers and destroyers in a brief night engagement July 6.

Heavy Munda Shelling Described By Newsman

By Rembert James JUL 18 1943

[Associated Press Correspondent]

Aboard a United States Warship off New Georgia Island, July 12 (Delayed)—This naval task force has just given Munda, the Japanese air base nearest to Guadalcanal, a half-hour bombardment comparable in magnitude to some of the great raids by Allied flyers against Germany.

It hurled 400 tons of explosives onto the enemy, starting two large and many small fires, blowing up ammunition and gasoline dumps and killing uncounted Japanese soldiers.

Japanese shore batteries that for a time sent shells whistling over our heads have been silenced.

Jap Guns Useless

An enemy airplane now is trying to silhouette us with flares and is getting itself shot at. But if the flares light us up, that should only enrage the Japanese artillerymen ashore, because evidently they lack the guns to fire.

So now at 2.46 A. M., the way is cleared for American ground forces already landed on New Georgia to move in upon Munda from two sides.

The shelling started lazily. One by one, the ships began to lob tracers on the Japanese.

Heaviest Ever On Munda

Munda, which has suffered more than a hundred air raids, never before felt anything like this. The bombardment walked all over the area, then centered itself on certain spots.

Standing beside a naval observer, I watched through field glasses at the explosions and the fires which followed.

Japs Cease Firing

The Japanese batteries flung several shells overhead. They burst along Rendova beach. Then the shore batteries suddenly stopped, deadened by our naval gunners, who had spotted their flashes.

Several minutes ago our anti-aircraft stopped firing at the Japanese plane, which has disappeared.

FOE IN RETREAT

May Make Desperate Stand in Effort to Save Catania.

ITALIAN UNITS ROUTED

Allied Invasion Force Nears Gerbini's Nest of Airfields.

JUL 18 1943

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 17.—(AP) The British Eighth army fought a stubborn German foe on the edge of flaming, shell-pitted Catania today, and the battle for that port prize halfway up the eastern Sicilian coast had entered the final stage.

On the southern Sicilian coast American troops occupied Agrigento, a key road junction and Axis troop concentration center. Agrigento represents a 12-mile gain from the last known American position, and is 25 miles northwest of the original beachhead at Licata. The town is three miles inland from Porto Empedocle.

Still another Italian general, erstwhile commander of a coastal division was captured. His name was not announced immediately.

Americans in Rail Junction

Seizure of Agrigento put the Americans on railways running northward to Palermo, and also gave them access to three roads leading into northwestern Sicily.

Capturing Lentini, 15 miles below Catania, and Scordia, nine miles inland, Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's troops broke the back of one German armored division and parts of another in one of the most decisive engagements yet fought in Sicily. Enemy remnants then retreated toward Catania in a last effort to prevent capture of that city, whose fall would give the Allies control of a great part of Sicily.

Southwest of the tank-strewn Catania plain Canadian troops captured Caltagirone, and farther west the Americans had penetrated 30 miles inland in the Allied invasion only a week old.

While the Eighth army rolled up the Axis coastal flank, the Canadians pushed on through Caltagirone to hit the enemy on the other side. Caltagirone's fall denied to the Axis a vital east-west road needed for the mobilization of German-Italian strength around Catania.

Military Government Set Up

An Allied announcement that a joint American-British military government had established its headquarters in Sicily was accepted as meaning that complete Allied occupation of the island will be only a matter of time.

(An NBC radio report from an Allied cruiser off the east Sicilian coast said German forces were "attempting to rally their forces at the foot of Mt. Etna, after combined warship and artillery bombardments had blasted a path for British armored units into the suburbs of Catania." Mt. Etna is just north of Catania. He said naval artillery since early Friday afternoon had been pounding roads north of Catania.)

Gen. Montgomery's forces have captured Lentini, 15 miles south of Catania, and Scordia, nine miles inland, Allies headquarters said, and advices from the battle area said the warriors were mopping up pockets of Italian resistance north of those places.

Italians Retreat

Other Italian units had cracked and retreated, leaving the pockets at the base of the hills fringing the Catania plain and it was apparent that the Allied forces were within grasping distance of the nest of enemy airfields of Gerbini as well as Catania. Gerbini is 12 miles southwest of Catania.

American and Canadian troops to Gen. Montgomery's left struck deep into the heart of the enemy's defenses in central Sicily, pulling their line up abreast of the Eighth army's.

By a rapid march, the Canadians occupied Caltagirone, 28 miles due west of Lentini, without any fighting at all, and captured Grammichele, six miles east, after a minor fracas.

The American Seventh army of Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton, Jr., was reported to have struck far north and west of Caltagirone, reaching a distance of about 30 miles from the sea, and probably was emerging from the screen of hills fringing its beachheads.

(A penetration of 30 miles in this area would represent a dangerous spearhead aimed either at Caltanissetta or Enna, communication and concentration centers in the middle of Sicily. The comparative silence concerning the Seventh army's movements might be explained by the importance of these objectives. Caltanissetta is 28 miles from the coast and almost due north of Riesi, already in American hands. Enna is about 32 miles inland.

Warships Patrol Strait

Strong Allied naval forces, patrolling the narrow waters off the east coast almost in the shadow of Mussolini's mainland air bases and with complete disrespect for his navy, were paving the way for Gen. Montgomery by throwing shells into Axis defenses at will.

Again Allied motor gunboats ventured into the two-mile wide Messina strait in their war to cut the island's communications with the mainland and routed a formation of Italian motor torpedo boats, sinking one and damaging two others.

For the same purpose cloud-darkening fleets of Allied bombers—Fortresses, Mitchells, Marauders and blockbuster-toting Wellingtons—again shook up the already smoking targets on the ferry line between Sicily and Italy.

Around the clock air fleets hammered at such targets as San Giovanni, Reggio Calabria and Vibo Valentia on the mainland side of the strait and Crotone on the Gulf of Taranto, battering airfields, docks, sidings and ferry terminals, while the Middle Eastern Liberators covered with bomb bursts the big air base of Bari on the upper part of the Italian heel.

Randazzo, a big enemy concentration center across smoking Mt. Etna from Catania, also came in for a major airblow.

(The R.A.F. from Britain, renewing "combined operations" against Italy from its homeland bases, attacked Munich on the German-Italian Brenner Pass route and bombed electrical targets in northern Italy after a flight across the Alps. The Italians said La Spezia, naval base on the northern west coast, was one of the targets.)

Gen. Montgomery's battle-hardened veterans smashed the Hermann Goering and parts of the 15th armored divisions after having been in contact with these Germans since early Wednesday.

These forces were regarded by Allied military observers as the backbone of Axis resistance in Italy, forced into battle to prevent the United Nations forces from reaching Catania and threatening their lifeline at Messina.

Rivers Hamper British

The Catanian plain into which Gen. Montgomery emerged, however, was still favorable to Axis defense, crisscrossed as it is by many waterways, including three large rivers which run at right angles to the line of his advance.

These rivers were the Gornalunga, Dittiana and the Sinetta. In addition there are many deep crevices to delay tanks.

The Canadians, by their swift advance to Caltagirone and Grammichele, had made the deepest penetration of any of the Allied forces.

They had sliced into the heart of Axis defenses in central Sicily, and now controlled a strategic east-west highway and river valley which facilitated communications between the Allied left and right wings.

Possession of these towns forced the Axis to fall back for 30 miles to find a new line of lateral communications.

If the defenders wished to move troops from the west to the threatened east they had only three remaining highways available. One is 30 miles north of Caltagirone through Enna, the second through Nicosia and the third along the north coast.

Catania Cut Off

This meant that except for secondary roads, too narrow for large troop movements and unsuited to heavy traffic, Catania was cut off from highway communication through central Sicily.

It appeared obvious to Allied military observers that the force of 60,000 Germans reported in Sicily was not equal to the job cut out for it.

In addition to these troops, which included the two armored divisions and line of communications troops forced into combat duties, it was estimated that Gen. Alfredo Guzzoni, the Italian commander, had no more than 250,000 Italians at his disposal when the invasion started.

Of these seven Italian divisions—two regular field divisions and five coastal divisions—it seemed likely that at least three, the 206th and 207th coastal divisions and the 47th Livorno—already had been put out of action.

Axis prisoners already totaled 20,000, more than 16,000 of them captured by Americans.

The British, however, were fighting their way across terrain which greatly favored the defending forces. It is crisscrossed with waterways and contains three large rivers which run at right angles to Montgomery's advance.

Pour Onto Plain

(The London Daily Express said American and Canadian troops also were pouring onto the Catania plain from the Vizzini area, apparently threatening the Gerbini airfields in an advance from the west which supplemented the Eighth Army's push.

Allies Battering At Port; Nazis Smashed Back

JUL 18 1943

New York, July 17 (AP)—Alfred Wagg, of the National Broadcasting Company, in a radio report from a British cruiser off the east Sicilian coast, said today that Germans now are "attempting to rally their forces at the foot of Mount Etna, after combined warship and artillery bombardments had blasted a path for British armored units into the suburbs of Catania."

[By the Associated Press]

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, July 17—The Axis' situation around Catania in eastern Sicily was reported in front-line dispatches tonight to be growing more critical by the hour.

The Allied announcement that a joint American-British military government had been established ashore and was beginning to take control was interpreted as meaning that complete occupation of Sicily was considered to be only a matter of time.

General Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's desert army was believed to be approaching the outskirts of Catania after smashing back the Hermann Goering and elements of the Fifteenth German Armored divisions in the biggest battle yet fought for Sicily.

With French Goumiers, fierce knife and tommy-gun wielding warriors from the Moroccan hills on their left flank, the Americans of Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton, Jr., were believed to have emerged from the hilly ground that ringed their beachheads and to have penetrated inland for perhaps thirty miles.

Cut Into Defenses

The Canadians had cut into the heart of the enemy's defense system in central Sicily by their capture of Caltagirone, about twenty-eight miles due west of Montgomery's forces at Lentini.

The whole Allied line in that sector had moved up almost abreast of Montgomery, and the new surge gave the Allies possession of a lateral east-west highway and a valley running east-west which will greatly facilitate the task of maintaining unbroken communications with the British Eighth Army.

Reported Six Miles Away

The Axis would now be forced back approximately thirty miles, it seemed, before reaching the next major east-west road running through Caltanissetta, Enna and Gerbini to Catania.

Fighting was still going on between Lentini and Catania, but Montgomery was believed to be very close to Catania harbor after engaging the Hermann Goering division since Wednesday morning. (A BBC broadcast from Algiers, recorded by CBS, said the Eighth Army "is less than six miles from Catania.")

Airfields Threatened

It was assumed also that the capture of the nest of airfields in and around Gerbini, twelve miles southwest of Catania and at the edge of the Catania plain, was now threatened by British forward elements.

Going forward with a powerful Allied war fleet on his seaward flank gunning the enemy's positions, Montgomery has captured both Lentini and Scordia, at the entrance to the Catania plain, Allied headquarters announced, while on all other parts of the Allied front the advance continued.

15 Miles From Base

Lentini is about fifteen miles below Catania, the prize seaport and air base half way up the east Sicilian coast, and Scordia is nine miles inland from Lentini.

Rounding out the capture of four more towns by the Allies, the Canadians took Caltagirone, twenty miles inland from the American bridgehead at Gela, and Grammichele, six miles to the east.

American western sector, the Italian communique indicated the American Seventh Army was putting on a powerful drive to broaden its coastal base to the west. The Italians said bitter fighting was raging near Agrigento.

20,000 Captured

(Agrigento is about twelve miles west of Naro, captured by the Americans a few days ago, and only three or four miles inland from Porto Empedocle.)

More than 20,000 Axis troops had been captured, some 16,000 of them by the Americans, in spreading far to the west and north of Caltagirone.

The Seventh Army, it was announced, includes five divisions, among them the First Infantry Division under Maj. Gen. Terry Allen, Third Infantry Division under Maj. Gen. Lucian Truscott, Forty-fifth Infantry Division under Maj. Gen. Troy H. Middleton, Second Armored Division under Maj. Gen. Hugh Gaffey and the Eighty-second Airborne Division under Maj. Gen. Matthew W. Ridgway.

It was believed here that Gen. Alfredo Guzzoni, Axis commander in Sicily, had no more than 250,000 Italians and 60,000 Germans at his disposal when the invasion began.

These forces included two field divisions and five coastal divisions of Italians, besides the two German armored divisions and German line of communication troops.

These latter Germans have now been welded into the combat forces, it was reported.

Nearly Wiped Out

The Italian radio singled out three Italian divisions for special praise, but Allied observers noted that all three have been entirely or for all practical purposes put out of commission.

They are the Two Hundred and Sixth and the Two Hundred and Seventh Coastal divisions and the Fourth Livorno Division. Observers noted that special mention by the Italian radio of any particular Italian army unit usually has been tantamount to a disclosure that the unit has been put out of action.

Poor Leadership

Allied military observers said that the 60,000 Germans were too few to defend the island and were being used mainly to brace the Italians at Catania where the Nazis apparently are in the majority.

Poor leadership and inferior equipment appeared to be a serious handicap to the Italians, dispatches from the front said. The resistance by the Germans, with good officers and first-class equipment, however, continued to be very stiff.

The Canadians made a very rapid advance to take Grammichele, which fell after only slight resistance. Caltagirone was taken with no fighting at all.

The occupation of these two key points, however, probably sealed off another large area between the Allied flanks.

[The London Daily Express said American and Canadian troops also were pouring onto the Catania Plain from the Vizzini area, joining hands with Gen. Montgomery for a push on Catania. The Algiers radio said the British were attacking the outer defenses of Catania itself.

[Indicating that the Americans were putting on a powerful push to broaden their coastal base to the west also, the Italian High Command announced in its communique that a bitter battle was raging near Agrigento, as well as near Catania. Capture of Agrigento would give the Allies possession of well over half of the Sicilian south coast and occupation of about 150 miles of Sicily's coastline.]

Allies Control Key Roads.

At the end of a week's campaign the Allied armies were thus firmly established at bridgeheads all along the southeast coast and in control of two of the most strategically important roads in the area.

While it was announced that a joint American-British military government already had established headquarters in Sicily, with Lord Rennell of Rood, son of a former British Ambassador to Italy as the chief civil affairs officer, Allied air and sea forces maintained their crippling blows to isolate the island and reduce its defenders to impotence.

Again penetrating Messina Strait, the shortest water route by which Axis reinforcements and supplies can flow from the mainland, Allied motor gunboats scattered destruction amid Italian motor torpedo boats Thursday night, sinking one of the enemy craft and damaging two others.

Solidly Linked Line Reaches Well Inland; Heroes of Hill 41 Describe Battle

By Alexander Clifford

AMERICAN 7TH ARMY HEADQUARTERS IN SICILY, July 15 (delayed).—The American front line in Sicily now is solidly connected by a string of crucial strong points well inland.

Fighting is going on all along it, but so far there has been no strongly organized counter-attack and no really powerful resistance.

The American line has been pushed firmly and evenly ahead and up into the hills which form the backbone of Sicily. The main forces opposite the Americans are Germans of the Hermann Goering Division and the Italian Livorno Division.

ALLIES ESTABLISH RULE OVER SICILY

JUL 18 1943

Military Government Organized by New Branch of Army.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 17—(AP) The invasion of Italy was barely hours old before AMGOT—a brand new branch of the Allied army—had waded ashore and unlimbered for action.

AMGOT was so new that not even the troops had heard of it.

It means "Allied Military Government of Occupied Territory" and it is composed of British and American officers who have received special training in government.

Its function is to administer occupied territories to relieve the actual fighting forces of the job of securing the areas in their rear and at the same time to alleviate hardships of the native population.

AMGOT's job is to restore order and organization as rapidly as possible after the wave of battle passes.

Alexander Is Governor

The landing of military government officers on Sicily was disclosed only today. Gen. Sir Harold Alexander is the military governor of Sicily, and AMGOT officers will carry out his proclamations.

AMGOT itself is headed by Maj. Gen. Lord Rennell of Rodd, as chief civil affairs officer. Brig. Gen. Frank J. Mosherry of the United States is deputy chief.

(Former Gov. Charles Poletti of New York is in Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's civil government division, but it is not known whether he now is in Sicily. A British correspondent reported a former New York governor was in the invasion fleet but did not give his name.)

No Political Ties

An official announcement said AMGOT had "no political implications of any kind," that it would be benevolent to civilians but would destroy the "influence of Fascism," abolish the Fascist party, and make "no negotiations with exiles or refugees." AMGOT, it added, "will attempt to govern the people of occupied provinces and cities through their own officials who are not active members of the Fascist party."

In a typical case, AMGOT might move into a town partly destroyed in fighting, with no public utilities functioning, no gas or water, with hundreds of hungry, homeless people. Epidemics would be threatened, medicine and food and other supplies would be needed quickly, buildings would have to be converted into hospitals, a police force formed to combat looting, proclamations and instructions for citizens printed and distributed, courts reopened, and banks reopened. And that is only an outline of the real tasks.

For all this Italian-speaking officers would be needed. It would be impossible to find enough interpreters.

Such men have been trained secretly for months. They were selected for special qualifications—doctors, lawyers, engineers, police and civil administrators—from the army or civilian ranks. They were given language lessons, listened to lectures by experts on the history, geography, psychology, customs, and government systems of Italy.

When they went ashore, the AMGOT officers knew Italy as well as they knew their own country, or perhaps better.

SICILY'S CIVIL RULE SET UP

JUL 18 1943

Alexander Is Top Man and McSherry of U. S. Is Aid.

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, July 17 (A. P.).—The first combined American-British military Government of its kind accompanied the Allied invasion Army to govern Sicily, it was announced today.

Hundreds of American and British officers and men, who were trained secretly for months to govern occpied enemy territory, quickly established headquarters.

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower designated Gen. Sir Harold Alexander as Military Governor with supreme authority in Sicily.

The Allied military government organization itself is headed by Major-Gen. Lord Rennell Rodd as chief civil affairs officer. Brig.-Gen. Frank J. Mcsherry of the United States is deputy chief officer.

It was officially declared that establishment of the Allied military government has no political implications of any kind.

The action was authorized by Washington and London through a directive from the combined chiefs of staff in Washington to Gen. Eisenhower.

AMGOT, jointly organized by British and American authorities months before the invasion, was set up to do a specific task in a specific area. Similar schools already existed, such as at Charlottesville, Va., but they were more generalized and more theoretical than this.

Much of the actual planning was done by a former New York lawyer, Lieut. Col. C. M. Spofford, working with experienced World war one occupation authorities. The problem was divided into six general categories—legal, financial, civilian supply, public health, public safety, and senior civil affairs. Qualified men were sought for each division.

Three section leaders were British and three Americans. Eacn British section chief had an American assistant, and vice versa.

Method Is Defined.

"Amgot"—Allied military government organization — officers are responsible for the obedience of Sicilian civilians to proclamations of the military governor.

Although the administration of Sicily is to be benevolent so far as the civilian population is concerned, the influence of Fascism will be destroyed, it was officially stated.

"The Fascist party will be abolished and the ringleaders of Fascism will be removed from office," said the announcement. "Fascist militia and so-called Fascist youth organizations will be abolished. No political activity of any kind will be permitted by Amgot.

"There will be no negotiations with exiles or refugees.

"No local politicians will be given preferential treatment.

"Amgot will attempt to govern the people of occupied provinces and cities through their own officials who are not active members of the Fascist party.

"Rationing will be supervised by Amgot."

Freedom of Worship.

"When found necessary medical supplies and food for the destitute will be provided.

"Freedom of religious worship will be upheld and the position of the Catholic church and all religious institutions will be respected."

It was officially stated that "all laws which discriminate on the basis of race, creed or color will be annulled.

"Physical symbols of the culture of true Italy, buildings, libraries, monuments, archives and works of art will be protected from damage.

"Within military necessity free press and free speech will be promulgated.

"Those accused of crimes against the Allies will be tried by Allied military courts under Amgot.

"Today the Stars and Stripes and the Union Jack fly side by side at every Amgot headquarters in Sicily. They will be flown together as symbols of the Allied military government's authority until the Allied forces attain their final objective: to liberate the Italians."

Furious Air Attack Pressed On Sicilian, Italian Targets

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 17.—(AP) Allied air units, which scored one of the war's most decisive aerial victories by virtually clearing the Mediterranean skies of Axis planes, closed out the first week of the Sicilian invasion with furious new attacks on enemy supply ports and air bases all along the southern coast of the Italian mainland.

While fighters and fighter-bombers continued their non-stop assault on Axis positions all over Sicily yesterday, heavy and medium bombers from North Africa and the Middle East battered San Giovanni, Vibo Valentia, Reggio Calabria and Bari in daylight attacks which carried the aerial onslaught again around the clock.

San Giovanni, Vibo Valentia and Reggio Calabria also were hit the previous night along with an air field at Crotone, and an Allied headquarters communique said many bombs were seen to burst in the target areas, starting numerous fires.

San Giovanni, mainland ferry port directly across the strait from the vital Sicilian harbor of Messina and principal embarkation point in the Axis lifeline from Italy, was hit in daylight by American Flying Fortresses after R.A.F. Wellingtons had pounded it by night.

Devastating loads of high explosives were dumped on docks, railroad sidings and the ferry line itself and aerial photographs showed at least 50 direct hits in the target area.

American Liberators from Middle East bases attacked the Bari airdrome, enemy fighter base high on the Italian boot, covering hangars, administration buildings, dispersal areas and runways with concentrations of bombs.

Mitchell and Marauder medium bombers, escorted by Lightning fighters, pounded the air fields at Reggio Calabria and Vibo Valentia after formations of Wellingtons had bombed the same targets the previous night.

The Allied headquarters communique said planes from North African and island bases shot down 13 Axis aircraft yesterday while losing four of their ov. . The Liberator raid on Bari resulted in the destruction of 11 enemy planes, the probable destruction of seven others and damage to two more. Three four-engined bombers were lost.

ing San Giovanni smashed their way through heavy and accurate anti-aircraft barrages to reach their targets.

On Sicily itself, the principal target was the vital enemy communications center at Randazzo, just across Mt. Etna from Catania, the immediate goal of British ground armies in the east. American Mitchells blasted the town in daylight, following up night attacks by R.A.F. and South African Bostons and Baltimores.

Lightnings, sweeping the island from end to end, were credited with destroying at least 100 motor trucks and inflicting heavy damage on rail traffic throughout the area behind the enemy lines.

Although the aerial onslaught against transport and communications on Sicily continued virtually unmolested, some of the fliers attacking mainland targets reported meeting increased opposition.

The Liberators encountered heavy enemy fighter squadrons at Bari. Flying Fortress formations attack-

Axis Supply Lines Battered.

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, July 17 (A. P.).—Allied air units struck new paralyzing blows at the Axis lifeline from Italy to Sicily yesterday and the previous night with heavy attacks on the Messina strait transport system and enemy air bases from heel to toe on the Italian boot.

American Flying Fortresses battered San Giovanni, mainland terminus of the Messina ferry route, following up a night attack on the same target by Wellingtons of the R. A. F. The big bombers planted rows of explosives on docks, railroad sidings and the ferry line itself. Aerial reconnaissance showed that at least fifty direct hits were scored in the target area.

Other Allied raiders battered air fields at Reggio Calabria and Vibo Valentia in daylight raids, continuing assaults that started the previous night on these objectives and another air field at Crotone, and air units operating over Sicily kept up their pounding of Axis communications in support of Allied invasion forces.

American Liberators from Middle East bases again joined in the daylight offensive, striking this time at Bari airdrome, Axis fighter and fighter-bomber base on the Adriatic coast of southern Italy. Hangars, administration buildings, dispersal areas and runways were covered by concentrations of bomb bursts and at least four grounded aircraft were set afire, a Ninth Air Force communique said.

In this raid the Americans bumped into heavy fighter opposition, destroying eleven enemy planes, probably destroying seven others and damaging two more. Three of the Liberators were lost.

13 Enemy Planes Downed.

Allied air units operating from North African and island bases meanwhile, accounted for thirteen enemy planes, four of them downed by night fighters, while losing four aircraft of their own.

Mitchells, Marauders and Wellingtons also crossed the Messina Strait to strike at Reggio Calabria and Vibo Valentia on the toe of the Italian boot. A large amount of enemy motor transport was destroyed or damaged and the concentration center of Randazzo was bombed.

Allied air units operating from North African and island bases meanwhile accounted for thirteen enemy planes four of them downed by night fighters, while losing four aircraft of their own.

Vibo Valentia, on the Italian toe, was hit twice, first by Wellingtons and then by Mitchells and Marauders, escorted by Lightning fighters.

Allied fighter-bombers roved at will over Sicily, almost unmolested, but raiders attacking targets on the Italian mainland reported heavier resistance.

Flying Fortresses went out in strength for their renewed attack on San Giovanni. They were forced to fly through heavy and accurate anti-aircraft fire but reached the target area and strung necklaces of bombs over the ferry terminus, barracks and railway yards.

Lightnings on sweeps over "targets of opportunity" were credited with the destruction of 10 motor trucks and with having inflicted heavy damage on railroad traffic throughout the area behind the Axis lines. They were forced to sweep the island several times to find suitable targets.

Warhawks Sink Boats.

American Warhawks went out to sea on their operations and sank five or six small boats in Mozara Harbor. They also shot up radio installations at the eastern end of the island.

Fighter and intruder sweeps became increasingly evident at night as the Germans, who are concentrating their efforts on Allied shipping and supply beachheads, virtually abandoned the daylight skies to Allied airmen. With the intruders, the night fighters remained in the air from dusk to dawn and shot down six Axis aircraft.

Their reports agreed with previous descriptions of the island as "slowly burning up." The pilots said they saw fires on all sides of them.

Hard to Find Targets.

Fighter-bombers had to go down as low as fifty feet frequently to find their targets. They worked over the Enna area in central Sicily, hitting some transport, a railway bridge and a mountain road where some observers thought they saw a landslide start.

Some Axis troops caught in a motor convoy on the road running north from Cape Bianca in the western sector deserted their vehicles and machine-gunned the planes which shot up the trucks.

"They apparently ducked into trenches and blazed away at us," said one pilot. "After we finished with the trucks we turned our guns on the trenches and the fire stopped."

ALLIED WARPLANES SEIZE SUPREMACY OF SICILIAN SKIES

JUL 18 1943

163 Enemy Craft shot Down Since Invasion Started.

AN ALLIED COMMAND POST IN NORTH AFRICA, July 17—(AP) Since the zero hour last week when they swept across in uncounted hundreds to spearhead the invasion, Allied planes have been over embattled Sicily every single minute of the day and night.

In that time they have won complete mastery of the Sicilian skies—air supremacy as great or greater than that held by the Nazis when they operated over Poland, Greece and Crete.

The combined American, British, Canadian and South African air forces have shot down 163 enemy planes in aerial combat and destroyed hundreds of others on the ground. Their own losses totalled 69. A general officer affirmed today that the enemy airforce in the Mediterranean now was "hopelessly outnumbered."

Three Objectives

During the first week our airmen had three objectives: To hunt out and destroy the enemy's force, to provide cover and support for Allied land forces, and to hit the enemy's reinforcements in bunches before they could reach the front. Their present ability to range over the island at will is a yardstick of their success.

Spitfires, Warhawks, Lightnings and Boston attack bombers provided almost 100 percent protection for ground troops, patrolling around the clock. The largest group of enemy fighters to challenge them—40 planes—was broken up within a few minutes and sent running home.

In the past three days only a handful of Axis craft have been seen, and they did not attempt to fight. Sicily's air defense was described as "pitiful" by one veteran flier.

Use Fields On Second Day

R.A.F. service commandos and advance American units went ashore on Sicily with the ground troops to put captured airfields in condition for quick use. Allied fighters landed on the island the first day of the invasion and began operating from it on the second.

Allied fighter-bombers have ranged far and wide on strafing missions after dumping their bombs. In one instance Mustang P-36s caught 1,000 enemy ground troops marching in column, and in another they smashed half of a convoy of 200 trucks on the road.

Even the highways through Sicily's deep gorges have not been safe for enemy transport. Allied flight leaders heroically dived alone to shoot up columns and to see if gorges were wide enough for a plane to pass through. If they lived, their teammates followed them.

These planes also developed a new convoy and bridgebusting technique, knocking out the trucks first and then blasting bridges fore and aft to bottle them up.

Sicilian Invasion Leaders Are Identified.

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, July 17 (A. P.).—The United States Seventh Army fighting in Sicily includes the First Infantry Division under Major-Gen. Hugh Gaffey and the Eighty-second Airborne Division under Major-Gen. Matthew Ridgway.

Simonds In Command

[By the Associated Press]

Ottawa, July 17—Maj. Gen. Guy Simonds, of Kingston, Ont., is commanding Canadian forces in the Mediterranean, including Sicily, Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King told the House of Commons today.

King said the landings on Sicily had been completed "with very light casualties," and that resistance in the first week of battle had been comparatively slight.

He cautioned against undue optimism, but said the Canadian people "have every reason to rejoice at the results so far achieved in the first major operations in which the Canadian army has taken part."

Major At War's Start

Simonds, only 40 years old, was a major at the beginning of the war and went to North Africa as a brigadier.

He was at the battle of the Mareth Line and the fall of Sfax in Tunisia. Then he was recalled to Britain and made a general and divisional commander. Born in England, Simonds came to Canada as a boy.

FEUD MAY HURT SICILY DEFENSE

Richthofen and Kesselring Have Clashed in Past.

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, July 17 (A. P.).—Friction between Field Marshal Baron von Richthofen, directing Axis air operations in Sicily, and Field Marshal Gen. Albert Kesselring, supreme Axis commander in the Mediterranean, may disrupt Axis defense plans, an Allied Air Force statement indicated today.

Recalling that there has been friction between the two men in the past, the statement said:

"Those who know the two men are wondering how Richthofen will get along with Kesselring who is now in supreme command of all armed forces, land, sea and air, German and Italian, in Sicily, Sardinia, Greece and Crete. In the past there has been friction between them."

Richthofen was recently assigned to the Mediterranean theater by Hitler. In the Allied statement he is described as "tough, brutal, devil may care." His exploits include leading the Condor Legion of German Flyers for Generalissimo Francisco Franco in the Spanish civil war and his command of the Nazi squadrons which blasted Sevastopol.

See 'Tight Corner.'

"Sending Richthofen from the Russian front to southern Europe is regarded as a sign that the German air force is in a tight corner," the Allied statement said. "He usually appears when things are critical for he is the man with the reputation for ruthlessly carrying out his plans regardless of losses.

"Wherever German aggression has reached out in this war, Richthofen has been there. He served in the Polish campaign, in the Low Countries and in France. His air corps was used against Britain in the autumn of 1940 and later in the Balkans. When Hitler turned on Russia Richthofen was sent there.

"A firm believer in close army-air co-operation, he has been able to put his pet theories into practice and is believed to have been largely responsible for the Nazis' costly drive into the Caucasus last year.

"He is known as a man of great personal courage but is believed not to have flown since 1936 when he was appointed to the German general staff. A Nazi party adherent, he has been mentioned as a possible successor to Hermann Goering," the statement said.

ENEMY PLANE MISSES U. S. GENERAL'S AUTO

JUL 18 1943

WITH THE AMERICAN TROOPS IN SICILY, July 17 — A narrow escape from serious injury or death for Major General Troy H. Middleton came early in the Sicilian campaign, according to Lieut. General George S. Patton, Jr.

The latter told newsmen that the commander of the 45th division was riding along a road with another officer when an enemy plane swooped low over the general's car but apparently failed to recognize the insignia and kept going without firing a shot.

Gen. Patton reported Gen. Middleton told him the plane was going so fast that he was unable even to get a rifle out to take a pot shot at it.

"And was the general sore," said Gen. Patton.

"Our transport landed us and we went ahead and seized high ground for the infantry which was being landed," he related. "Then we started working back to the beach, destroying enemy pillboxes and strong points on the way.

Shot Them in Pillboxes.

"One concrete pillbox was held by a single Italian gunner. I got a bead on him through a slit in the pillbox and shot him. They have a habit of hiding in those places and spraying you with rifles and machine guns and then giving up when you get in position to crack down on them.

"The second fellow I plugged was in another pillbox just above the beach. While he was peppering at us I put a bullet through his neck. A little later a third pillbox opened up on us. I had handed my rifle to one of the fellows who had picked up a light Italian machine gun, and I was looking his new weapon over.

"I had never fired it before, but I laid a few rounds on the pillbox with it. The Italian soldier bolted out and tried to get away. I cut him in half with the machine gun. It's a pretty good gun."

Got Three Nazi Marines.

Private Prine was with six other parachute troopers when they ran into three German Marines.

"As we turned a corner they shot at us with a machine pistol, killing one of our boys and wounding another," he said.

"Then the rest of us turned loose on them and blew two Germans to pieces. The third was shot directly between the eyes.

"He remained conscious and after a while got up for a drink and a smoke. We gave him a morphine shot to ease the pain. The bullet had gone clear through the center of his head and come out the back. We helped him all we could, but he bled so much nothing could save him. After about three hours he died."

As Prine finished speaking the barber turned toward the two Americans with a questioning look. The chair was empty. Thomas walked over to it and sat down. The parachute trooper who had slain three Italians in combat looked slowly at the little Sicilian barber waiting with a razor in his hand. Then he leaned back and bared his throat.

"Shave," Thomas said calmly.

Sicilian Barber Had Big Chance

Pvt. Thomas, Parachutist Who Picked Off Three Italians, Came In for Shave.

With the American Seventh Army in Southern Sicily, July 14 (Delayed) (A. P.).—Two mild-looking American soldiers in stained and dirty uniforms sat in a little Sicilian barber shop patiently waiting their turn in the chair.

They were parachute troopers, and they had killed three Italian soldiers and helped knock off three German Marines since they plunged 600 feet to earth Saturday night from a transport plane.

As they waited Privates Wilfred J. Thomas of Milton, Ore., and Cecil E. Prine of Barton, Fla., told their stories. Thomas, an expert rifleman, used both a rifle and a borrowed machine gun to pick off the three Italians.

U. S. HELD HILL WITH ONE GUN

Infantry Halted Nazi Tank Attack in Sicily.

With American Division Troops at Niscemi, Sicily, July 13 (Delayed) (A. P.).—There was hell on Hill 41 that morning when the infantry took on a German tank attack with one lone anti-tank gun.

That's what the boys of the Second Battalion of an American infantry regiment will tell you whenever Hill 41 is mentioned. The enemy counter-attacked on three sides with at least twenty tanks. The tanks over-ran the hill but the men held on to Hill 41 and then put in a counter-attack.

"I swear I never saw anything like it," said Capt. Robert Irvine of Framingham, Mass. "You're supposed to have anti-tank guns against tanks and you're not supposed to fight them with your hands, but that's almost what we had to do.

"I saw tanks knocked out by mortars. I saw men stand up in their slit trenches and shoot pistols and grenades at them. One man even threw an anti-tank rifle grenade at a tank from close range and we set it afire.

Fight Was Family Affair.

"Who was outstanding in the fight? That would be hard to say. It was sort of a family affair."

The men praised Capt. Edward F. Wozenski of Terryville, Conn., for the manner in which he fought.

"A tank went over my foxhole once," he said, "but then it seems to me that tanks went over almost everyone's foxhole. Once there were eight tanks within twenty-five yards of me. Troops were shooting pistols, rifles, tommy guns and throwing hand grenades at them at close range.

"Some of the men ran off when the tanks came in one them. I wanted to take off, too, but then my men were looking at me and I couldn't run. In fact I didn't know what to do so I stayed."

At the height of the battle about noon there were forty-five men and nine officers on Hill 41 and they couldn't be knocked off.

When the battalion commander was wounded by a machine-gun bullet, Capt. Bryce F. Denno of Long Island took over the command and carried on the fight.

Captain Helped Man Gun.

Capt. Denno managed to get one 37-millimeter gun onto the hill and he helped man it during the fight.

"We really had some great fighters with us in the parachute troops," Capt. Fred Hall of Hudson, N. H., said. "Thirty-five of them joined us under Capt. Edwin Sayre of Breckenridge, Tex., and although this was their first time in combat they did a great job. They're the best troops I ever saw."

Second Lieut. Thomas F. Ellzey of St. Augustine, Fla., credited Lieut. Obie Clements of San Francisco with knocking out one tank.

"We really manhandled that anti-tank gun, swinging it around and shooting as fast as we could," he said.

Sergt. Randell Cassell of Oneonta, N. Y., knocked out one tank by dropping a mortar shell down the turret.

"And he didn't even have a baseplate on the mortar when he did it," Lieut. Ellzey said.

At night Bostons, Baltimores and Mitchells flown by Americans and South Africans crisscrossed the island as "intruder raiders," flying low to search valleys and wadis for any signs of enemy activity.

The night fliers were supplemented by one of the biggest formations of R.A.F. Wellington bombers ever to leave the Africa coast. They participated in the initial attack, striking deep into Sicily against airfields, key highways, railways and strong points while allied troops were landing on the beaches.

Frequently, in their merciless attacks on some 20 of Sicily's main cities and towns, Allied day raiders dropped hundreds of incendiaries to guide their nightflying comrades to the targets.

Shuttle Service

Beaufighters, Bostons, Lightnings and A-36s formed the Allied spearhead behind the enemy's lines, running a virtual shuttle service to the island in search of "targets of opportunity." At the end of the seventh day their scoreboard showed they had destroyed at least 800 enemy trucks and vehicles, many of them armored; 13 locomotives, 140 railroad cars, a dozen tanks of all sizes and at least 13 ships destroyed or damaged.

Torpedo-carrying Beaufighters and Wellingtons of the coastal command played an important part in the week's operations, sinking as much as 20,000 tons of enemy shipping in one 12-hour period. Among their victims were two destroyers which were left in flames.

Reconnaissance planes, principally Lightnings and A-36s, operated so efficiently on invasion morning that photographs they took were being used to select fighter and bomber targets 50 minutes after our troops hit the beaches of Sicily.

At an Advanced Airdrome in Sicily, July 14 (Delayed).—The first American fighter group landed and occupied this field today and immediately began a day-long patrol of an important beachhead, covering American landings.

Veterans of air battles over England, France, Algeria and Tunisia, the men of this outfit were chosen to lead the air battle over Sicily. Their leader is young Col. Fred Dean of St. Petersburg, Fla., who just has been promoted to full colonel and now is leaving Headquarters Group to accept a more important mission in Washington.

"A thorough program of in-

"This probably will be my last scrap for a little while, but when I was so near it I could not help getting in on it," said Col. Dean.

Col. Dean's successor as group leader is Major Frank Hill of New Jersey (address unavailable), who will soon be promoted to lieutenant - colonel.

Record of Group.

This group which shot down twenty-seven enemy planes when the Allies took Pantelleria already has shot down twelve enemy planes since the start of operations against Sicily. The flyers had been based on Malta from where they furnished constant air cover to the huge invasion armada heading for Sicily. As soon as the ground troops had cleared the landing field of mines and booby traps the group moved in.

No sooner had they landed when huge "ducks" or amphibious ton and half ton trucks began pouring in from landing barges carrying thousands of gallons of high octane gasoline for the group's Spitfires.

ITALIAN CAPTIVES IRKED BY DELAY

An Allied Force Command post in North Africa, July 15 (A. P.).—A train loaded with Italian soldiers captured in Sicily rolled slowly through the African tableland and a Yank riding along an adjacent highway in a jeep couldn't restrain himself.

"Hey, where you fellows been?" he called.

Back came the reply in perfect English:

"We've been packed and waiting for three weeks. Where have you been?"

German Youth Dissatisfied.

With the United States Seventh Army in Sicily, July 15 (Delayed) (A. P.).—"Life in Germany today is the most modern form of slavery." Those words came from a young German prisoner who surrendered to Americans fighting to deepen the bridgehead on Sicily.

There is evidence that the youth of Germany—at least the youth fighting on the island of Sicily—do not like the way of life Adolf Hitler has forced on the Fatherland. And students of psychology among the Army officers interpret this as a definite sign of a crack growing in the German home front.

One German prisoner told questioners that he expected the Allies to conquer Sicily, but said that the Germans would deliver a smashing defeat if invasion of the continent proper was ever attempted.

Apparently the news has spread over the island that soldiers who either surrender or enter the Allied lines in civilian clothes have nothing to fear if their conduct is circumspect, for there have been hundreds of prisoners who have surrendered voluntarily.

By H. R. Knickerbocker

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN SICILY, July 14 (delayed).—Italian soldiers are surrendering by the thousands and are being gladdened and their smiles broadened every day by rations "C" and "K" so that today their thoughts are beginning to turn to politics.

Large concentrations centers have been set up for them, but these could hardly be called camps or cages or stockades, since the Italians' disinclination to leave good food makes it possible for a half-dozen American soldiers to guard hundreds of their willing guests.

Many Italian prisoners already have been sent back to North Africa, presumably to be transported thence to places better supplied with food, possibly the United States or Canada.

Meanwhile, the prospect of their number swelling from thousands to hundreds of thousands presents a problem of supply which is beginning to burden our comissary officers.

The United States Army is sticking rigorously to the principle of feeding the prisoners the same as our soldiers. The Italians receive breakfast, dinner and supper exactly as the Americans and they are finding some difficulty in finding their way about in our scientific food boxes.

Whoop for Joy Over Coffee

In the "K" breakfast box the Italians dig around, eat the biscuits, devour the cheese and then find a little silver foil package of instant coffee. They whoop with joy. They love coffee more than any people on earth and for four years they haven't had any.

The Italian Army, although favored above all civilian elements, has had no coffee for two years. Their first sight of American coffee sent Italians into ecstasies. It impressed them more than the sight of our troops marching with endless lines of tanks and guns or our innumerable ships or our fleets of airplanes.

Now on "D plus four," or four days after landing day, Italian civilians are coming out of their holes and doing everything possible to prove that they really welcome these invaders.

It May Be Propaganda

Capatin Bonsignor took his medical degree at the University of Rome. He knows the Italians better than most of us ever can. Bonsignor has had many conversations with intelligent and well placed Italians in this area. What they told him may be propaganda to make the best of a situation they can't help, but it is interesting just the same.

Their views may be summed up about as follows: "All Italians know that Germany is no ally, but has been an enemy from the beginning until right now. We all knew from the first that if Germany were to win we should lose, just as we shall lose if Germany loses—but we think we won't lose as much as if Germany won."

"All Italians are glad the Americans are here," insisted Captain Bonsignor's new friend.

"But why did the Italian soldiers shoot at us?" they were asked.

"Ask yourself, my friend," came the reply, "why were not more Americans hit by our shooting? They did not shoot to kill; they shot to perform their duty until they could decently surrender."

FASCISTS DESERT CAPTURED TOWNS

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, July 16 (Delayed) (A. P.).—Parish priests in Sicily are taking the place of Fascist municipal officials in small towns and villages captured by the Allied armies, front-line dispatches said today.

The Fascist officials were said to be deserting almost en masse.

ITALIANS QUIT ON THEM

Lieutenant Complains of Foe That Had Ammunition in Plenty but Fired No Shot

By HAROLD V. BOYLE

For the Combined American Press.

WITH ALLIED FORCES IN SOUTHERN SICILY, July 14 (Delayed)—The most unhappy soldiers in Sicily are not the defeated Axis troops but thousands of victorious Canadians, broken-hearted because they are unable to force the fleeing enemy to stand and battle them.

These cocky lads, immensely proud to be enlisted members of the Canadian Army, sheared their way through heavy fortifications in landing at the beach at Pachino at the southeast corner of the island. In triumphant marches through Ispica, Modica and Ragusa, a town of 40,000 population that is one of the key cities of southern Sicily, the Canadians captured more than 3,000 prisoners in three days. But their success only aggravated their discontent.

[The Canadians, capturing Caltagirone and Grammichele on the central front at the end of the week, were now apparently getting more fighting.]

For three and a half years, during which they helped to protect the British Isles against invasion, they were spoiling for a good fight, and they still are. They feel a bit cheated, because they think Sicily is only a sideshow to the main battle.

Looking for Germans

A group of these husky, bloodthirsty neighbors of the United States, who were assigned to the task of policing Ragusa, explained the source of their discontent while munching oranges on a street corner.

"It's too slow for us here," said Corp. William Purves of Grand Prairie, Alba. "We want to fight—we want to kill our enemy."

"I expect we will be going faster soon," said Pvt. William Korbett of Edmonton. "Those Germans ought to give us some fun."

Lieut. Maxwell Saville of Edmonton was one of the most bitter because the Italians failed to afford sufficient competition.

"We floated in on Sunday morning with very light casualties," he said. "Then eighteen of us rolled into Ispica and the whole Italian garrison came swarming out of the walls and holes to surrender. They had bushels of ammunition, enough for a whole fortress, and if they really had wanted to fight they could have made it miserable for us. But they have so damn little they don't seem to care what happens.

"We took 300 prisoners without losing a man or firing a single shot. Our greatest risk was being crushed to death by people trying to beg cigarettes."

Italy Unable to Quit War, Leaders Reply to Ultimatum

"We've been carrying this damned ammunition for three and a half years, and if we can get the Italians to stop long enough to fight we could have some fun out of them," observed Lieut. Albert O. Newberg of Victoria, B. C. "But sending us here was certainly a step in the right direction."

Foe Left Guns Unmanned

Sgt. Robert Acheson, a tall, yellow-mustached soldier from Winnipeg, said his outfit threw 186 mortar bombs and knocked out an Italian mortar company that had held up the Commandos all day, but he added mournfully:

"They have been running ever since. They left guns pointing at us, but nobody stays behind to pull the trigger."

"Yes," broke in Capt. George Street of Welland, Ont., "every time we catch up with them they surrender. That's the main trouble. It's bloody good to be here. We were afraid we'd be stuck with guarding England for the rest of the war. But we want to kill them. We want some real opposition."

The thing that incensed the Canadians most, they said, was that most of their few casualties were caused by snipers, civilians as well as soldier sharpshooters. They said a number of Italian soldiers were taking off their uniforms and trying to slip through the lines posing as civilians.

HUGE RUSSIAN CANNON ABANDONED IN SICILY

By HAROLD V. BOYLE

AMERICAN SEVENTH ARMY HEADQUARTERS IN SOUTHERN SICILY, July 15.—(Delayed)—(AP) Huge abandoned 240-millimeter Russian artillery field guns have been captured by advancing troops of the Seventh army, which has taken more than 13,000 Axis prisoners since invading Sicily Saturday.

The mammoth guns were apparently brought by Germans who had taken them during the Russian campaign. They were found on the battlefield by infantry pushing north of Gela. The artillerymen manning them had been forced to flee before they could do damage of any consequence. The Germans found that the huge guns, like their huge 52-ton Tiger tanks, were of no use against the sweeping, rough-and-ready American tactics.

Rome Publishes Full Text of Allied Demand.

JUL 18 1943

By HENRY B. JAMESON

LONDON, July 17.—(AP) Stefani, official Italian news agency, declared tonight that the entire text of the Roosevelt-Churchill demand for Italy's surrender had been printed by the Fascist press, which answered it by reiterating Mussolini's words that if defeated the Italians would be "left only their eyes to weep with."

(Allied planes dropped leaflets containing the message over Italy, and tonight the Rome radio broadcast the text to North America, and presumably elsewhere in the world. This was a curious development, indicating that Italian propagandists could no longer conceal the contents, or had other undisclosed reasons for wishing to give greater circulation to the message.)

Only One Choice

Swiss dispatches said the Rome correspondent of the Tribune de Geneve reported that the press had reminded the Italians of the presence of their Nazi allies and generally expressed the opinion that Italy now has only one choice—"not the best but the least bad."

That choice was said to be to try to stop the invasion, and if unable to do so then try to hold the Allied position on a determined line.

The most disastrous of Italy's possibilities, the newspaper said, would be an effort to step out of the conflict and make Italy the base of an attack on Europe with demands on it greater than those it must now meet.

"It is very improbable that the Germans on Italian soil would withdraw without resistance and Italy therefore would become a battlefield," the dispatch quoted the press as saying.

Even if the Allies' intentions are the best, the newspaper told the people, "vigorous German resistance about which there should be no doubt in the event of Italian capitulation" would compel the Allies to treat Italy as France has been treated by occupation troops—"exploitation to an extreme degree."

Swiss dispatches said the Journal de Geneve, commenting on the Roosevelt-Churchill message, declared there was no doubt that Italy is "tired of w r" and that there were "millions" discontented but not a single organization in the country capable of uniting the opposition.

2d-Front Plans Seen Proved In Sicily

JUL 18 1943

[By the Associated Press]

London, July 17—The imminent prospect of a clean-cut victory in Sicily has confirmed the Allied formula for an amphibious assault on western Europe and suggests strongly in the view of some observers that the same pattern will work against Adolf Hitler's Atlantic wall of western France.

There is no intention to imply, these sources pointed out, that the Germans are relying on mere scarecrow defenses. However, reports from the Mediterranean front of surprisingly-low Allied casualties and rapid progress throw a clearer light on the Nazi theme of impregnability.

Task For Gerow

The ascendancy of Allied air power leaves little doubt, it was said, that the RAF and the Eighth United States Air Force will be able to lay down the same ruinous preliminary bomb shower and maintain the same efficient umbrella over an Allied landing on the French coast as over the Sicilian coast.

To Maj. Gen. Leonard Townsend Gerow, former chief of the United States Army's staff war plans division and newly-appointed commander of American forces in Britain, goes part of the task of preparing and executing any invasion move in this theater.

General Gerow, it was announced yesterday, replaces Maj. Gen. Russell P. Hartle, who brought the first American troops to Europe at the start of the present war. Hartle's new assignment was not disclosed.

(General Gerow formerly was in command of "Maryland's Own" Twenty-ninth Division, to which he was assigned February 24, 1942. General Hartle is a native of Maryland.)

Bases Are Closer

British bases are closer to the West Wall than the Allied Mediterranean bases are to Sicily. Although the German air force in the West is undobtedly superior to that in Sicily, the Allies have proved repeatedly that they can control the skies over France.

A simple fact illustrated by Sicily seems to be that the Axis, for all its reserves, cannot maintain a adequate front against the Russian army and still man the whole rim of the Continent, observers here said.

In their own broadcasts the Germans and Italians said they were fully aware of the impending attack on Sicily. Thus the only surprise element was where the Allies would strike.

Problem Is Magnified

It was obvious that even with 250,000 to 400,000 men estimated by the Allies to be in Sicily they could not be thinned out to man the 500-mile coast and still have sufficient for a mobile reserve.

That same problem is magnified to cover an 8,000-mile coastal front on western Europe.

The message, the editorial said, seemed to forget that Italy is "not mistress of her own destiny; that she is bound by the Reich; that even if the regime wished to end hostilities—which it does not dream—it is unable to stop them."

The Rome radio, making its first direct reply to the Roosevelt-Churchill demand, intimated that Italy had strung along with Hitler too long to turn back because "even if Italy surrendered it would not mean that she would have found peace once again."

"If, as the British and Americans say, their goal is Berlin, then their way to it is Italy," the broadcast declared.

Would Remain in War

"The Italian people would still be in the war; they would be asked by the invaders to turn their weapons against Germany. Italians know full well that for them this war is one of life or death."

It declared that "common sense tells us that Italy will become a battlefield in any case" and warned Italians against betraying their cause "by placing themselves at the disposal of the invaders."

Too Late To Quit, Rome Says

JUL 18 1943

[By the Associated Press]

London, July 17—In the first direct reply to the Roosevelt-Churchill surrender demand, the Rome radio intimated today that Italy had strung along with Adolf Hitler too long to turn back now.

"Even if Italy surrendered," it would not mean she would have found peace once again. If, as the British and Americans say, their goal is Berlin, then their way to it is Italy.

"The Italian people would still be in the war; they would be asked by the invaders to turn their weapons against Germany.

War To Life Or Death

"Italians know full well that for them this war is one of life or death."

The broadcast came soon after the Italian high command communique had announced that Allied planes flew over Rome last night and dropped copies of the Churchill-Roosevelt proclamation issued yesterday demanding that Italians capitulate or suffer the consequences.

Counter-Propaganda Active

Fascist propagandists hastily marshalled arguments today against an Italian capitulation.

The Italian newspaper Corriere Della Sera was quoted in a Berlin broadcast as saying that "capitulation would only bring us shameful peace and more fighting, destruction and suffering."

Allies Must "Pay The Price"

The official Italian news agency, Stefani, was quoted in the London morning press as saying that "if Britain and the United States want to defeat Italy they must defeat her with weapons in their hands and pay the price."

The timeliness of the Roosevelt-Churchill [illegible] at Italian morale, meanwhile, was emphasized anew by dispatches from Bern to the London Daily Express that Italian press and spokesmen were bitterly remarking on the scantiness of German forces in Italy and calling for aid.

Allies "Not Conquerors"

The British attitude was summed up by Sir Archibald Sinclair, British Air Minister, who said that the Italian people should receive the Allied armies as liberators, not as conquerors, and added that there were signs they were doing so.

This expression came as London continued to hail the Roosevelt-Churchill statement as generous and humane. Londoners were firm, however, in their insistence that there be no bargaining.

FORTRESSES DOWN 50 NAZI FIGHTERS

Two Bombers Lost in Attacks on German Industrial Centers

LONDON, July 17.—(AP) Tight-flying formations of U. S. heavy bombers, returning from northwest Germany unescorted, beat off more than 200 enemy fighters in one of the most clear-cut victories of the bomber-versus-fighter war over western Europe today while another group, with fighter escort, gave Amsterdam its first American bombing.

The Americans downed upwards of 50 enemy fighters against a loss of two bombers in a running battle that lasted half an hour. Some crews reported between 50 and 75 Messerschmitt and Focke-Wulf attacks.

100 to 10 Score

Thus the Fortresses brought their lop-sided score for two conflicts in four days to almost 100 fighters downed against perhaps 10 bombers lost.

In the Amsterdam raid the Americans were escorted by Thunderbolt fighters and returning crews reported that few enemy planes got far enough through the protective screen even to be seen by the bombers.

The unusually large number of fighters encountered by the bombers indicated that "the enemy is apparently maintaining its strong defenses over northwest Germany despite demands from other fronts," air force headquarters said.

Major Virgil L. Emerson, 26, of Ames, Iowa, who led one group of Fortresses, said the Nazis were "as persistent as hell. It was obvious from the way they flew that they were not cadets."

In their latest previous raids on Bastille day over France—the bombers were credited with at le 45 of the 51 fighters shot down. tal Allied losses that day v eight Fortresses and R.A.F. m um bombers.

Industrial Targets Hit

The American communique tod said the big bombers succeeded hitting selected industrial targets. They were only part of massive formations of Allied bombers and fighter-intruders which paraded across the channel from sunrise to late afternoon, one series of formations in late afternoon stretching all the way from London to Folkestone on the coast.

They followed night forays in which the R.A.F. again winged across the Alps to strike at northern Italy and Munich in southwestern Germany.

The Air ministry said British heavy bomber attacks on electrical nerve centers—transformer and switching stations—in Italy were closely connected with the Allied operations in Sicily. They were aimed at breaking the flow of current from Alps generators which keep traffic moving on the Axis railways.

The day raids followed attacks by Britain-based RAF bombers on Italy's transportation system in their second straight assault across the Alps and upon Munich.

Last night's targets in Italy, as was the case Thursday night, were transformer and switching stations through which flow the current generated in the Alps to keep Italian rail supplies moving.

The Air Ministry also announced this afternoon that an R. A. F. Beaufighter squadron caught a heavily laden, medium-size enemy supply vessel off the Norwegian coast this morning and set her afire with bombs.

The strength of the raiding force was not given immediately, but the fact that the R. A. F. bombers set alarms wailing in Western and Central Switzerland would indicate it was a powerful one.

At sunrise today the daylight precision assault on Continental targets was resumed in great strength, with hundreds of two-engined and four-engined bombers and fighter-intruders shuttling across the channel.

Forts Bomb Amsterdam, Bag 50 Planes In Air

JUL 18 1943

[By the Associated Press]

London, July 17 — American heavy bombers raided industrial targets at Amsterdam in the Occupied Netherlands and in northwest Germany today, it was officially announced.

Bombs were seen to burst in the target areas.

The unescorted Flying Fortresses encountered clouds of enemy fighters on their way home, and early claims indicated that upward of fifty were destroyed by Fortress gunners.

Two bombers were missing from the daylight raid.

Nazis Lost 51 Wednesday

This was the second time in four days that the Germans have lost fifty or more fighters. On Wednesday at least fifty-one fighters were destroyed during raids on aircraft works and airfields in France, least forty-five of them by [illegible] tresses.

Abbeville, important French railway center, was the target for American medium bombers which struck at dusk yesterday to leave great fires burning in that control point for all rail traffic to the north.

Raiders Well Protected

The raiders were protected by a thick blanket of Allied fighters. One bomber was lost.

Flying Fortresses had bombed Abbeville in three previous assaults.

The dusk attack followed up night blows by the RAF which cut a path of ruin from northern Italy to the Low Countries.

The Air Ministry announced that an RAF Beaufighter caught a heavily laden, medium sized enemy supply vessel off the Norwegian coast this morning and set it afire with bombs.

In releasing additional information on the Thursday night raids over northern Italy, the Air Ministry said the attacks were on electrical nerve centers and were closely tied up with the battle of Sicily in crippling the Italian railway system.

Vichy Reports 300 Dead

The RAF's Thursday night raids on France were concentrated on the great Peugeot motor vehicle works at Montbeliard.

The Vichy radio, describing the Thursday night raids, said casualties in an eastern French town, which was presumed here to be Montbeliard, were 300 dead and 500 injured.

Auxiliary intruders plastered airfields and railways in Germany, France and the Low Countries.

ACCORD WITH RUSSIA SEEN BY SULZBERGER

Soviet Ready to Join in Collective Security, He Believes

LONDON, July 17 (AP) — Arthur Hays Sulzberger, president and publisher of THE NEW YORK TIMES, said today that he had returned from a three weeks' visit to Russia greatly encouraged by what he had seen of that country's determination to continue in close collaboration with Britain and the United States until Adolf Hitler is defeated, as well as by Russia's readiness to take her full part in a system of collective security after the war.

"The Russians refer to themselves and the Allies constantly as 'freedom-loving' people, and my contention is that if that is so, then we can work with them through the war and afterward regardless of differences in our language and economic systems," he said.

Mr. Sulzberger said he went to Russia officially as a special representative of the American Red Cross and unofficially "to see what is going on, see how we can ge along with Russia, because there is no doubt in my mind that our three countries are going to have to work together."

"I came away more convinced than ever that a world war cannot be allowed to happen again," he added. "Let's set up some real system of collective security. We need Russia as much as she needs us, and I am confident she is ready to join such a scheme."

JUL 18 1943

Mr. Sulzberger declined to comment on a reported food shortage in Russia, but remarked that there appeared to be a difference in the physical condition of ordinary civilians and men in the armed forces. He construed this as evidence that Russia's resources had been thrown without restriction into the war effort.

SHIP REPORTED SUNK

2 Other Enemy Craft Damaged by British Naval Units

LONDON, July 17 (AP)—An enemy ship probably was sunk and two others were damaged when light coastal forces of the Royal Navy attacked a convoy off the Netherland coast early today, the Admiralty announced.

The surprise attack was made at close range and without damage or casualties to British forces, the announcement said.

The Berlin radio broadcast a DNB dispatch asserting that one of four British E-boats was damaged in a clash with German escort vessels off the Netherlands.

ETNA EMITS SMOKE

London, July 17 (A. P.).—Volcanic Mount Etna, which towers more than 10,000 feet above the eastern coast of Sicily where Allied and Axis forces are now locked in combat, has begun to throw heavy smoke from a lower crater after a long period of inactivity, Reuters reported today in a dispatch from Sicily.

RAF Bombers' June Nazi Bag 2

LONDON, Sunday, July 18 (AP)—Gunners on the RAF's night bombers from Britain destroyed twenty-two Nazi fighter planes during June, the greatest month of the European aerial offensive, the Air Ministry announced today. The British bombers are not as heavily armored or armed as their American counterparts, which have set a sensational record for shooting down Axis planes in daylight.

Turks Mass Troops in Anatolia

LONDON, July 17 (AP)—The Nazi-controlled Paris radio said today in a broadcast recorded by The Associated Press that reports from Ankara revealed that Turkish troops had been concentrated in southwestern Anatolia opposite the Italian-held Dodecanese Islands.

NO NEWS OF ROMMEL

London, July 17 (A. P.).—The Algiers radio, which said it was quoting a reliable Swiss source, reported today that Nazi Field Marshal Erwin Rommel hurriedly left Aix Les Bains, France, for Lyons the night of the Allied landings in Sicily and that since then no news has been received of his whereabouts. The broadcast was recorded by the Associated Press.

A report that Rommel was shot down in a transport plane en route to Sicily was broadcast over an underground German radio station Tuesday night. The broadcast was recorded in Sweden and the story was relayed to Great Britain. There was no Allied confirmation of the report.

Planes Over Bulgaria Reported by Algeria

London, July 17 (A. P.).—The Algiers radio reported today in a broadcast recorded by the Associated Press that planes of unknown nationality have been making daily flights over Bulgaria.

Two flights within the last few days resulted in air raid alerts, the broadcast said.

Third New Base in Three Days.

An American Medium Bomber Base In England, July 17 (A. P.).—The Eighth United States Air Force Support Command, which delivered its first blow against the Axis yesterday with a medium bomber attack on Abbeville, today formally accepted the third airport to have been taken over from the United States Engineer Corps within three days.

This base, the estimated value of which is $8,000,000, represents the fastest piece of work yet done by the Army Engineers in their whirlwind campaign of building American military airfields throughout the British Isles. Materials were supplied by the British, and work was begun on August 20, 1942.

Appeal Published in Italy.

Berne, Switzerland, July 17 (AP.).—Further Italian reaction to the Roosevelt-Churchill appeal to abandon the struggle was awaited today following hints from within Italy that non-military surprises were forthcoming.

The exact nature of the expected developments was not stated. Dispatches from Rome suggested they would take the form of a sweeping political change to bolster morale and form a regime to carry on the war pending an opportunity to reach a compromise settlement with the Allies.

The Allied leaders' direct appeal to the Italian people was made public in Italy late last night by the Fascist News Agency, after it had been broadcast repeatedly in Italian yesterday by Allied radio stations and scattered in pamphlets over a wide area from planes.

Papal Displeasure On Note Reported

Bern, Switzerland, July 17 (AP)—The Basler Nachrichten, in a Rome dispatch, reported today that Pope Pius XII had sent by special Vatican courier an answer to President Roosevelt's message received at the start of the Sicilian invasion.

The newspaper quoted Vatican sources as asserting that the letter was personal and would not be made public and said these sources indicated the Pope was not pleased at the lack of distinction between the Nazi and Fascist regimes.

(In the message to the Pope, made public a week ago today, the President gave assurances that "throughout the period of (invasion) operations the neutral status of Vatican City as well as of the Papal domains throughout Italy will be respected.")

It quoted Vatican sources as saying that strong expressions against Germany possibly could be overlooked but not so with Italy with which the Vatican has normal diplomatic relations "different from those with Nazi Germany."

Bern, July 17 (AP)—The Neue Zuercher Zeitung reported today that Italian troops were withdrawing from the Savoie and Haute Savoie departments of France. It said all motor trucks and busses in the two departments had been commandeered to transport them, presumably back to the home front.

GERMANS BOLSTER FRENCH GARRISONS

More Troops Shifted to Southern Area Near Italian Border.

BERN, Switzerland, July 17 — (AP) Nazi troops are pouring into the Lyon region of southern France and a dispatch to the Tribunede Geneve said they now number two complete armies.

Puzzled inhabitants of the region, the dispatch said, at first thought these were intended to relieve Italian contingents, many of which left for Italy. The Italians, however, were immediately replaced by other troops from Italy.

It was assumed that the Germans were taking additional precautions for strong cover of the Alpine frontier between France and Italy.

A Paris dispatch to the same newspaper said German officers expected one or more Allied thrusts at the French Normandy coastline as cover for what they believe is the scene of the next major invasion thrust—Greece.

From Paris the Tribune also reported that people were disturbed by a British radio report that France would be compelled by Germany to go to war with Russia so that more than a million young men now in the Nazi labor mills could be put at the front. The correspondent said the report was not true although Germany offered high wages to volunteers for the eastern front and many youths have been sent to the Ukraine for industrial and agricultural work.

LONDON, Sunday, July 18.—(AP) The Red army smashed six to eight miles closer to the Nazi fortress of Orel yesterday, capturing four more villages and cutting down thousands of German reserves hastily hurled into the breach in a furious effort to halt the massive Soviet drive on that city, it was announced early today in Moscow.

Battlefront dispatches said Soviet heavy artillery now was within range of the vital communications hub seized by the Germans in the fall of 1941.

Positions Restored

A special communique and a midnight bulletin also announced that Russian troops had "completely restored" their positions in the sector between Orel and Kursk to the south where the German offensive, begun July 5, had failed "with unprecedented losses in manpower and equipment."

The special communique issued late last night said that in Friday's fighting in the Orel-Kursk sectors, 168 German tanks were knocked out, and 106 planes shot down.

In Saturday's battles the later bulletin said that a total of 77 tanks were knocked out and 94 artillery and mortar batteries destroyed along with hundreds of enemy supply trucks.

At least 4,300 more Germans fell yesterday as the Russians swept on, beating down German reserves and gravely menacing Orel's defenses-in-depth and the railway behind the city running northwest to Bryansk.

Use Tanks as Pillboxes

German tank crews again were burying their machines and using them and their guns as immobile pillboxes, the Russians said.

The Red airforce was laying down a hail of fire to cover the advancing Russians who, admittedly, were meeting desperate resistance but were not being stopped in their effort to unhinge the entire German line in south-central Russia.

The new gains around Orel on the fifth day of the great Russian counteroffensive were in addition to advances of 12 to 28 miles made in the first three days and gains of six to 10 miles made yesterday. Strong German opposition was beaten down by an avalanche of Soviet machines, including sturdy American-made Sherman tanks.

At the southern end of the active front, the war bulletin noted only ...uting engagements in the Bel...od sector, 165 miles below Orel.

Germans drove a wedge into ...sian positions there early this ...th, but were contained by the time the Soviets struck their huge counterblow in the north.

Three-Sided Drive

The specific areas where the fresh advances occurred were not disclosed in the bulletin, but the Russians had been reported only 27 miles north of Orel, 25 or 28 miles on the east, and 25 miles to the south in their three-sided onslaught.

There was no indication whether the Russian big guns had begun pouring shells into the bastion city thrusting a huge bulge into the Russian lines.

From the new forward positions, the Soviets also could plump shells upon the railroad running from Orel northwest to Bryansk, a supporting base.

A third Soviet column pushing in from the south was reported to be 25 miles or less from Orel.

Everywhere, the Russians said, strong German counterattacks were beaten back. Berlin, while declaring that Soviet assaults had been halted, said there was "fierce fighting" in a 'hard, fluctuating struggle" yesterday. Moscow said the Germans hurled an armored and one infantry division into the battle, but without success.

Soviet War News, a publication of the Soviet embassy in London, declared that "defense lines which the enemy spent over 18 months in building have been broken."

"Every Soviet patriot knows that the victory of freedom-loving peoples over the perfidious and hated enemy is approaching," it added.

The Russian columns stabbing in from the north and east are within heavy artillery range of Orel, the dispatches said, but it was not disclosed whether any shelling had actually begun yet. They were also in a position to pound the Orel- Bryansk railroad.

[In a communique broadcast by the Berlin radio, the German High Command reported that "fierce fighting of defense continued in the Orel area" yesterday, that Russian attacks were repulsed in a "hard, fluctuating struggle," and that 251 Russian tanks were destroyed.]

Overcome Counter-attacks.

The dispatches said the Russians were sending motorized infantry with tanks and mobile cannon to comb the forest clearings for Nazi troops.

One of the most stubborn battles took place around a village on the west bank of an unidentified river not far from the Russian wedge in the German line, it was reported. The Russians said they captured the village.

Dispatches reported that the northern column of the Russian counter-offensive against Orel was advancing southward and had progressed another six to ten miles after overcoming eleven heavy German counter-attacks.

The war bulletin gave the day's bag as 129 German tanks and seventy-six planes raising the twelve-day total to 3,181 tanks and 1,762 planes. German losses in personnel also continued to mount, the communique said, listing the total at 62,000.

Russian reports said that in some sectors the Germans were in somewhat disorderly retreat. Of ten divisions facing the Red Army, five were reported routed while the remainder suffered a heavy defeat. Four of the ten divisions were armored, the communique said.

Four Villages Recaptured, Thousands of Nazi Soldiers Slain.

Moscow, July 17 (A. P.).—The German High Command has thrown two new divisions, one armored and one infantry, against the Russian spearhead now threatening Orel, front-line dispatches said today, but the Russians were beating off every thrust and continuing to advance.

Fighting also broke out in the Caucasus where Russian troops recaptured a "height of great strategical importance" northeast of Novorossisk, the bulletin said. More than 600 Germans were killed, some prisoners were taken, and 35 mortars and machineguns destroyed, it added.

One wing of the Red Army's smashing counter-attack was reported to have rolled to within twenty-five miles of the heavily fortified Nazi base as the Germans frantically rallied all available man power and equipment in a desperate effort to stave off a major break-through.

The Russians said the advance was heavily opposed by the German Air Force, which was said to have flown 1,500 sorties in a single day. Heavily mined areas over which the Soviet tank divisions were advancing also slowed down the attack.

At the southern end of the Kursk salient, where the Germans in the first few days of the battle made their only gains, the Russians said they still were whittling the wedge which the Nazis have held for the last ten days.

Heavy, medium and fighter bombers made nearly 330 sorties against the Japanese and completed forty-seven missions, he said.

London, July 17 (A. P.).—The Russian forces advanced another six to eight miles on the vital Orel front today, according to a special Russian communique broadcast from Moscow tonight and recorded here by the Soviet radio monitor. These were on top of advances of from twelve to twenty-eight miles the first three days of the offensive, and six to ten miles yesterday.

Reds Again Talk Of Second Front

Moscow, July 17 (AP)—Russian press comment today on the Allied invasion of Sicily took an optimistic view of developments but again talked of a second front in western Europe.

"The Allies now have every possibility to take Sicily and not only turn Sicily into a theater of hostilities but also to cut off Italian troops in the Balkans and annihilate them," the Moscow News said.

"The events of the first few days have already clearly revealed that the Germans have left Italy to shift for herself. This shows that, as before, the Germans attach the greatest and decisive significance to the Soviet-German front. They would unquestionably attach the same significance to the second front in western Europe."

BURMA IS BOMBED FOR 12 OF 15 DAYS

New Delhi, July 16 (Delayed) (A. P.).—Major-Gen. Clayton L. Bissell, commander of the United States Tenth Air Force, announced today that his fliers had smashed at Burma through the monsoon with heavy and medium bombers on twelve of the first fifteen days of July.

Buffeted by driving rains and strong winds and curtained by thick, black and seemingly endless monsoon clouds, the planes averaged three missions a day in the first half of the month.

Major-Gen. Bissell said that during the first week of July there was executed what he believed to be the longest medium bomber mission of any war theater of the world. A B-25 medium bomber winged round trip 1,500 miles from India to bomb the Shweli Road bridge near the border between Burma and China's Yunnan Province. The pilot was Second Lieut. John R. Amenn, of Brooklyn, N. Y.

8 RUSSIANS TO HANG, CONVICTED OF TREASON

LONDON, July 17—(AP) Eight of 11 Russians charged with high treason in connection with the slaying of Soviet citizens by the Germans when they occupied Krasnodar in the Caucasus last fall have been condemned to death by hanging, the Moscow radio announced early today.

The other three were sentenced to prison for 20 years, said the broadcast, recorded by the Soviet Monitor. One woman was among those condemned to death.

FRANCO MAY ACCEPT MONARCHY IN SPAIN

MADRID, July 17.—(AP) Generalissimo Francisco Franco, in a long-awaited statement on domestic policy, said today that he did not oppose the possibility of a restoration of the Spanish monarchy but added that the monarchy should never serve as a tool for foreign propaganda.

The Phalange party and its program, he said, was "the only just and true solution" of Spain's problems.

Franco also indicated that the question of restoration was being used by foreign propaganda in Spain, although he did not say how.

He made it clear that he conceived of the monarchy's return at the moment he decided it was propitious, and then it would be "adopted" by the Phalange party movement which he heads.

FIRST SHIP FROM U. S. DOCKS AT MARTINIQUE

FORT-DE-FRANCE, Martinique, July 17—(AP) Enthusiastic crowds swarmed to the quayside today when the first food ship to reach Martinique in many months docked for unloading of 5,000,000 pounds of staples and clothing.

The supplies will be distributed through local rationing organizations.

(Food shipments to Martinique were suspended last November by the United States government while Admiral Georges Robert, governor of Martinique, clung to Vichy. The ties were snapped this week.)

AIRCRAFT PLANT IS 'REAL'

Pennsylvania Aide Says He Was Misquoted on Canadian Firm

TORONTO, July 17 (AP)—Sidney Lipsett, secretary-treasurer of the Maple Leaf Aircraft Corporation, issued today the following statement regarding a Philadelphia court action against three officers of a Canadian securities concern:

"Maple Leaf Aircraft is very far from being a fictitious company. Our plant at Lucknow, Ont., making airplane parts, is operating 24 hours a day. The corporation has been shipping for about a year."

At Philadelphia, Arthur J. Spragg, chief investigator for the Pennsylvania Securities Commission, declared that he was incorrectly quoted in an Associated Press dispatch of June 8 which said that he described the Maple Leaf company as fictitious.

BOMBERS RESUME HEAVY ASSAULT ON KISKA ISLAND

Warship Also Joins in Bombardment of Japs in Aleutians.

WASHINGTON, July 17—(AP) The North Pacific command, increasing its pressure on Japan's Kiska island outpost, threw heavy and medium bombers as well as warships into the most recently reported onslaughts against the enemy garrison there the Navy disclosed today.

An American warship, probably a cruiser or destroyer, started the assault, which could be in the nature of softening up operations for a landing on Kiska, with an attack on Gertrude cove, southwest of Kiska harbor, on Thursday. Enemy guns failed to return the fire—possibly a bit of playing dead by the Japanese for the purpose of concealing their key defense positions.

The attack by naval guns was followed up, today's communique revealed, by a force of Army Liberator heavy bombers, Mitchell medium bombers and Lightning fighters which made a total of four raids over the mountainous, fog blocked island.

"Several fires were observed in the vicinity of the enemy aircraft batteries," the Navy said in the only line in the communique which gave a clue to the targets of our bombers.

The aerial forays were the first against Kiska since Monday when three attacks were made. They raised the total for the month to 16 whereas in April, the heaviest month of attack to date, 140 assaults were made. Navy men said that fog and poor operating conditions at this season forced the reduction in the air attacks from the American base at Amchitka island, only 63 nautical miles to the southeast of Kiska.

The aerial activity has been supplemented by naval bombardments, however, and while results of these have not been reported the belief here is that they have been very effective. Enemy positions, especially those near Gertrude cove, have been shelled five times this month so far. Naval shellings are ordinarily highly accurate and a large ship can throw an immense amount of metal and explosives into a shore target in a very short time.

HOOVER SAYS U. S. HAS FOILED SPIES

Washington, July 17 (A. P.).—J. Edgar Hoover, head of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, declared today that "not a single successful act of foreign-directed sabotage has occurred to hinder our war efforts."

Addressing the graduating class of the FBI National Police Academy, Mr. Hoover said the co-ordinated efforts of Federal, State and local law enforcement agencies have curbed activities of foreign espionage agents "before they could accomplish their fiendish aims."

"We have, by planning and co-ordination, avoided the hysteria which prevailed in world war 1, when innocent persons were persecuted and harmed as the result of ill-advised vigilante activities," he said. "We have kept the home front secure."

William M. Jeffers, Rubber Administrator, told the graduates "there is unusual room for improvement" in law enforcement, particularly in communities where politics still play a major part in the selection of police officials.

"Even today, there are many communities wherein sheriffs and police officers must spend a great portion of their time campaigning if they are to hold their jobs," he said, and added that often law enforcement posts go to "popular" men who possess "no fundamental equipment for their jobs."

Byrnes Says War Situation Will Govern Restrictions on Japanese Descendants

GIVES RULES ON RELEASES

Background of Each Person Is Checked Before Outside Job Is Allowed, He Asserts

WASHINGTON, July 17 (AP)—James E. Byrnes, War Mobilization Director, gave notice tonight that "the present restrictions against persons of Japanese ancestry will remain in force as long as the military situation so requires."

Mr. Byrnes issued a statement, prepared by the War Department and War Relocation Authority (WRA) at President Roosevelt's request, which made clear there was little likelihood the evacuated West Coast area would be opened in the near future for the return of former residents of Japanese ancestry. The Senate had asked for a report on their treatment.

Without referring to the charges, the report took issue with recent contentions by members of the Dies Committee on Un-American Activities that disloyal Japanese were being released from war relocation centers to accept outside employment.

Mr. Byrnes' statement said that before permission was granted for such releases "the evacuee's background and record of behavior are carefully checked, and the attitude of the community toward receiving evacuees is ascertained."

"If there is evidence from any source that the evacuee might endanger the war effort," it said, "permission for leave is denied."

Segregation Plan Under Way

In answer to recent demands in Congress for separation of loyal and disloyal Japanese, Mr. Byrnes reported that the War Relocation Authority was now attempting "to segregate those evacuees whose loyalties lie with Japan."

"The segregated group will be quartered in a center by themselves, and will not be eligible for leave," he said. "The other people, however, will continue to be eligible for leave and will be encouraged by WRA to take useful employment in normal communities outside the evacuated area."

Discussing soldiers of Japanese ancestry now serving with United States fighting forces, the report said:

"They are all citizens of the United States and they have all volunteered for service. Thus far their record has been excellent.

"Other American soldiers of Japanese descent have performed useful and hazardous services in connection with our operations in the Pacific and a number have already been decorated for meritorious services. It is the policy of the War Department and the Army in all respects to accord American soldiers of Japanese ancestry the rights and privileges of all other American soldiers."

JUL 18 1943

...sions for Evacuees Cited

...luded in the review were state-...s that:

1. Military police have been summoned only once to "quell a disturbance" in the relocation centers.

2. In milk shortage areas, milk is provided only to small children, nursing or expectant mothers and special dietary cases.

3. Beef served at the centers is "third grade" and "no fancy meats" of any kind are furnished.

4. In general, the food is "nourishing but definitely below Army standards," with the average cost a person a day ranging from 34 to 42 cents.

5. Evacuees who work are paid at the rate of $12, $16 or $19 a month and are provided, in addition, with clothing allowances ranging from $24 a year for small children in the southerly centers to $45 a year for adults in centers where winters are severe.

Admiral Ramsey Named To Aeronautics Post

Washington, July 17 (A. P.).—Rear Admiral De Witt Clinton Ramsey, a former Neptune (N. J.) high school athlete now commanding a task force in the South Pacific, has been named chief of the Navy Bureau of Aeronautics.

He was appointed yesterday to succeed Rear Admiral John Sidney McCain, advanced to vice-admiral and made deputy chief of naval operations for air. This is a new office created, the Navy announcement said, "to correlate and co-ordinate all military aspects of naval aviation within the Navy Department while the Bureau of Aeronautics will continue to deal with the design, procurement and upkeep of aircraft and aircraft equipment."

Admiral Ramsey is the son of Mrs. L. C. Ramsey of 1700 Webb street, Asbury Park, N. J.

NAVY CASUALTIES

Washington, July 17 (A. P.).—The Navy announced today nine casualties, including six dead, one wounded and two missing. In addition the names of eleven whose status has changed from prisoner of war to dead are listed.

This brings to 27,144 the total of Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard casualties reported to next of kin since December 7, 1941. The grand total includes 8,304 dead, 4,736 wounded, 10,246 missing and 3,858 prisoners.

The casualties announced today (those listed are Navy and non-commissioned personnel unless otherwise specified):

NEW YORK.

KILLED

LAZAREK, GEORGE, Marine. (Reported prisoner of war released May 25, 1943.) Father, Mike Lazarek, 5 Spring Forest avenue, Binghamton.

WALDRON, DOUGLAS WARREN, father, Harvey Macy Waldron, 222-17 92d Road, Queens Village.

WHITNEY, GEORGE MELVIN, father, Frederick Melvin Whitney, 83 Catherine street, Saratoga Springs.

MISSING

BURNS, EUGENE JOSEPH, parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Burns, 54-15 Arnold avenue, Maspeth.

NEW JERSEY.

KILLED

CHAMPION, WILLIAM GEORGE, father, William Champion, 40 Pine street, Mount Holly.

SENATORS TO WEAR UNIFORMS ON TRIP

Washington, July 17 (A. P.).—The Army is all set to put five United States Senators into uniform, complete with dog tags, shots in the arm and helmets, for a trip around the world battle fronts.

Just when the five Senators officially assigned to investigate the war situation over a 30,000-mile itinerary will start on their trip is a military secret. The War Department has about completed its routine for guiding the quintet, composed of Senators Russell (D.-Ga.), their spokesman, Lodge (R.-Mass.), Chandler (D.-Ky.), Mead (D.-N. Y.) and Brewster (R.-Me.).

They will represent both the Military Affairs Committee and the Truman Committee, which has been inquiring into domestic phases of the war effort.

Each Senator will wear an Army uniform during the time he is under the direct charge of the Army, so that in the event of capture, he will have an official status entitling him to treatment as a military prisoner of war.

Each Senator has had to undergo a series of inoculations for protection against various diseases that could be contracted on the twenty-four-day jaunt.

Just like a soldier each one will wear around his neck two metal tags strung on a cord, giving his name, nearest relative and home address.

PUERTO RICO PLAN WILL BE DRAFTED

JUL 18 1943

Committee to Prepare Recommendations for Island's Home Rule.

WASHINGTON, July 17.—(AP) At President Roosevelt's bidding, Interior Secretary Ickes and seven men will go into a huddle Monday on how to grant Puerto Rico home rule in harmony with the Atlantic Charter's respect for "the right of all people to choose the form of government under which they will live."

The President's committee of eight—four mainlanders and four insular citizens—is about to begin sessions out of which, in the words of Mr. Roosevelt, are to come recommendations for legislation to "permit the people of Puerto Rico to elect their own governor, and to redefine the functions and powers of the Federal government and the government of Puerto Rico respectively."

The President, in telling Congress of what he has in mind for the island, pointed out that "it has long been the policy of the government of the United States progressively to reinforce the machinery of self-government in its territories and island possessions."

Father Raymond A. McGowan, assistant director of the social action department of the National Catholic Welfare conference, is the only non-administration mainland representative on the committee. Others from the states, in addition to Secretary Ickes as chairman, are Abe Fortas, undersecretary of the Interior, and Rexford G. Tugwell, governor of Puerto Rico.

Tugwell, like all his predecessors since Uncle Sam raised the flag over the small Caribbean island in 1898, is a presidential appointee. More than a year ago he suggested that governors of this possession which contains 2,000,000 persons, should be elected at home rather than appointed in Washington.

DRAFT OFFICIALS MUST KEEP MUM

Warned That Revealing Secrets Is Espionage Law Violation.

WASHINGTON—(AP) From now on Selective Service System people will weigh their words before speaking because they could forfeit their lives for the wrong one.

They have been told that giving out secret, confidential or restricted information will be considered a violation of the Espionage Act, which carries the death penalty.

Penalties under the Selective Act are as high as five years' imprisonment and $5,000 fine, but draft officials and the Army apparently felt that wasn't tough enough as a silencer.

Major objectives are to prevent disclosure of the size of quota calls, to prevent creditors from using draft records for collection purposes, and to protect registrants against revelation of highly personal information.

Still publishable are the names of men accepted at induction centers and ordered to active duty.

Will Weed Out Japs

Soritng Japanese-Americans: The War Relocation Authority (WRA), custodian of 100,000 Japanese and Japanese - Americans, plans to tackle in September a big job it says it's been wanting to do from the beginning—get the 90 per cent pro-Americans away from the 10 per cent pro-Japanese in relocation camps.

WRA says it would have done this long ago—conflicts between these elements have caused most of the troubles behind the barbed wire of the 10 relocation centers—but that it had to have full information about each adult individual. This, it says, has been gathered, partly by the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) partly by WRA.

WRA Director Dil' 1 S. Myer says probably 25,000 persons will be moved one way or another as the pro-Japanese are weeded out and placed in one center by themselves. Then WRA will go about the business of releasing the pro-Americans into civilian life.

More Meat In Fall

Beef-eaters: Meat will be much more plentiful this fall than now, but that doesn't mean butcher shops will be bulging with beef.

The armed forces still will get a big share of it.

The Office of Price Administration (OPA) scoffs at any suggestion that meat will be too abundant, although g.eat quantities are expected to move to market soon.

147 WAR CRIMINALS SEIZED BY FBI IN YEAR

WASHINGTON, July 17.—(AP) Arrest and conviction of 147 persons for war crimes—espionage, sabotage, sedition and failure to register as foreign agents—during the 12 month period ending June 30 was reported today by the Department of Justice.

J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, said:

"The keynote of FBI war work has been the safeguarding of the American home front against the spy, saboteur, and foreign agent. Spy rings have been broken up and [illegible] of foreign-directed sabo[illegible]s have been thus far ineffec[illegible]"

HULL WORKS ON PLAN TO AID WAR PRISONERS

WASHINGTON, July 17. — (AP) The State department announced today it was working on a plan to send medicines and other relief supplies through Soviet Russia to American war prisoners and internees in the Far East, subject to Japanese agreement.

The Soviet government has expressed its readiness to assist by facilitating shipment through Soviet territory to Japan if satisfactory arrangements are made by the United States with Japan, the announcement said, and the Japanese government has agreed to consider the proposal.

The mechanics of carrying out this plan now are being worked out with the governments concerned. Americans in the Philippines are included among the proposed beneficiaries.

ESSENTIAL WAR SHIPPING NEEDS ARE BEING MET

JUL 18 1943

Much More Daylight Can Be Seen Through Bottleneck Now.

BY JAMES D. WHITE

WASHINGTON — (AP) Much more daylight can be seen these days through the shipping bottleneck in the war effort.

Precisely how much is a military secret, but the nation's Maritime planners declare we have met and will meet essential war shipping needs.

But they warn in the same breath that the fight will go on and will not be won until victory itself.

Global war moves into action mainly in ships, and as the armed forces deploy at battle stations around the world, shipping is what puts the "over" in "over there," to quote Rear Admiral Howard L. Vickery of the Maritime Commission.

Prime factors—though there are many others—behind the recent improvement in shipping are successful anti-submarine warfare and mounting construction of new ships.

JUL 18 1943

Six months ago, for reasons of security, the best that could be said publicly about the war against the submarine was that we were building ships faster than Hitler was sinking them.

Best Month of War

Yet in the month of June, says Britain's Prime Minister Winston Churchill, "scarcely a single merchant ship has been sunk in the North Atlantic," and shipyards in England, Canada, and the U. S. produced between "seven and ten times as much as our losses from enemy action" during that month, which he described as "the best month we have ever known" in this war.

Many things helped to squelch the submarine—including new escort vessels for convoys, air protection all the way across the North Atlantic, off-shore patrols by planes and blimps, guncrews on the merchantships, new technical devices like radar. Experiments are reported going forward in the use of helicopters.

But Allied leaders warn against over-optimism. In the back of their mind may be these thoughts: that the Germans may have something up their sleeve, that losses may mount again, and that even if they don't, more shipping will be needed as military operations expand.

The United States is building the most colossal merchant armada in history. By the end of this year the Maritime Commission figures this nation will have constructed a fleet equal to two-thirds of all the merchant tonnage in the world in January, 1941.

JUL 18 1943

F New Ships Daily

The goal for 1943 has been upped be Presidential directive from 16,000,000 deadweight tons to 19,000,000. Five new ships now are launched every day.

In the first half of this year we built 879 ships, weighing 8,818,622 deadweight tons, whereas in all of 1942 we built 746 totaling 8,089,732 deadweight tons.

After a ship is built, it must be manned, and that takes, says Vice-Admiral Emory S. Land, chairman of the War Shipping Administration, "heroes in dungarees."

Merchant seamen who habitually go back to sea after they've been torpedoed and rescued are among the marvels of this war, but there still aren't enough of them.

The War Shipping Administration (WSA) has organization to supply United States and in some United Nations ships with officers and men.

There are shortages in all ranks, but at present the pinch is felt most among engineers, mates, advanced seamen and cooks.

WSA is scouring the country for ex-sailors, coaxing them back to sea.

The huge and still-growing American merchant marine is becoming one of the most detailed and extensive organizations of its kind in history. Just now, it is one of the most secret.

System Hides Information

All shipping is operated by the WSA, whose system is designed to let the fewest possible people actually know the whereabouts, routes and cargoes of its hundreds of ships over the world.

But in spite of size, shipping operations have been conducted in such a way that millions of tons of shipping have been saved, WSA says.

Matching cargoes with requirements, imports with exports, and routes with sources of needed materials are matters that claim the attention of experts sent by WSA to all important ports in the globe where American vessels call. Many of these ports were relatively unknown a few years ago.

Docking and loading facilities, harbor conditions, fueling accommodations and convoy routes and timing are things about which the most precise knowledge is required if time is to be saved.

New wrinkles have been worked out. Goods are stowed scientifically, by weight as well as by bulk, so the ship will ride evenly. A large proportion of U. S. fighter planes now move to the European theater on the decks of oil tankers.

Cargoes, ships and routes are sometimes swapped with other United Nations if by doing so space and time are saved, WSA says.

all this planning and effort has eased the shipping situation remains unanswered for the average person.

"Never Enough Ships"

President Roosevelt recently told Congress that "with the improvement in the war against the submarine, we may even be able soon to remove sugar and possibly later coffee from the ration list."

But his is the only authoritative hint in this direction.

Lewis W. Douglas, deputy War Shipping administrator, calls this an unlimited unpredictable war, cites the "accepted fact" that there never will be enough ships to meet all its requirements and contingencies.

Essential military and Lend-Lease shipping demands have been and will continue to be met, he said, but he claims the situation is tight and will remain so until the war ends.

Admiral Land recently gave some figures on the allocation of shipping which might be interprete further to discourage optimism about increased shipping for civilian purposes. He said a recent report showed that out of total dry-cargo, 41 per cent had been allotted to Army operations, 13 per cent to the Navy, 30 per cent to Lend-Lease, and 16 per cent to the essential civilian economy of this nation and Latin America.

SHIP SUNK IN CARIBBEAN

WASHINGTON, July 17. — (AP) The Navy reported today that a small United States merchant vessel was torpedoed and sunk by an enemy submarine in the Caribbean early in July. Survivors landed at Miami and Norfolk.

SPELLMAN HAILS U.S. FIGHTING MEN

Valor Proved Around the World, Says New York Archbishop.

NEW YORK, July 17.—(AP) The Most Rev. Francis J. Spellman, archbishop of New York, who has been visiting American Army and Navy stations all over the world during the past nine months, said today "My admiration for the valor and the value of my countrymen whom I meet and whom I see everywhere grows almost daily."

30.24-6225

The archbishop's words were transmitted by short wave from Lourenco Marques, Portuguese East Africa, and broadcast nationally from here by NBC.

Speaking of the American people, Archibshop Spellman said:

"I observe their mighty accomplishments in every part of the world. I note the transformation of the American people from a peace-loving, peace-exemplifying people to a people still peace-loving but nevertheless an eficient, hard-fighting people—a brave, strong, right-eous-minded people who believe that they are waging war for justice and for freedom for themselves and for other peoples."

He said his admiration for Americans grew as he saw "evidence of the quantity and quality of food and other commodities and supplies that come across the ocean from the factories and homes of America to our soldiers, sailors and flying men."

The archbishop added:

"America has time and time again declared that she wishes no additional territory. And time and time again she has declared that she wished well to all the world. She also has wished for the world national, racial, social and economic stability which must be the crux of any enduring charter or world order of peace. Thus is America doing now and with God's help she will so continue."

BULLITT WILL SEEK PHILADELPHIA OFFICE

PHILADELPHIA, July 17.—(AP) William C. Bullitt, former U. S. ambasador to France and Soviet Russia, announced himself as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for mayor of Philadelphia today.

His formal announcement came from Washington, where he is confined to his home by a foot injury, a few hours after James P. Clark, Democratic city chairman, reported he was the nearly unanimous choice of the party organization here.

Bullitt is now a special assistant to Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox.

The Republicans have made no choice of a candidate, but ward committeemen are understood to be planning action next week. Acting Mayor Bernard Samuel has been in the forefront of G.O.P. possibilities.

British Honor Chinese Steward

New York, July 17 (AP)—The Chinese steward of a torpedoed British freighter who floated alone on a life raft 133 days, living on a diet of raw fish and sea gulls, has been awarded the British Empire Medal.

Poon Lim, 25, the steward, was invited to England yesterday to receive the award personally from King George VI, by Leonard H. Leach, acting British consul general.

Leach said Lim was "a living example of the toughness of the Chinese—a toughness that bodes ill for Japan."

PRISONERS TO RECEIVE ATHLETIC EQUIPMENT

NEW YORK, July 17. — (AP) American merchant seamen in German prison camps will get a chance to play the games they enjoy.

Douglas P. Falconer, national executive director of the United Seamen's Service, said today a request for athletic equipment had been received from 60 seamen in prison camps. On the first ship available will go boxing gloves, baseball and softball equipment, footballs, volley balls and sets of horseshoes.

Distribution will be made by the war prisoners aid of the Y.M.C.A. in Geneva, Switzerland.

WOUNDS REUNITE 2 ARMY BUDDIES

Veterans of 'Fighting First' Meet Again in Devens Hospital.

FORT DEVENS, Mass.—(AP) Two buddies in training with the "Fighting First" infantry division were shipped out some months ago —"destination unknown." Neither saw or heard from the other, though they fought through the swirling dust and hell of the Tunisian campaign, until they were strangely united again at Fort Devens by their wounds.

Raymond Villeneuve, 22, of Tupper Lake, N. Y., and Raymond L. Zeller, 22, of Weedsport, N. Y., are the two boys whose wounds reunited them. Villeneuve lost his sight when shrapnel ripped into his face and Zeller's ankle and arm were shattered and his back plastered by shrapnel.

Under Heavy Fire

Zeller, telling of his experience in North Africa, said he received his wound near mateur while moving his squad into a valley under heavy German mortar fire. He had just been made acting corporal.

Zeller explained that his captain had told the men to move up a hill at the end of the valley to get between the Nazis and their fire.

"As I neared the top a shell dropped very close and I hit the dirt for all I was worth," he reminisced. "One of my men ran back and started to help me up. Then I noticed I was hurt. I couldn't move my left arm and my ankle was busted. I realized shrapnel had sprayed nearly all of me.

"The medics carried me by litter for about two miles until we met a jeep carrying ammunition to the front. I waited there until the driver returned and took me to a field station."

Villeneuve was wounded at El Guetar when Rommel's army counter-attacked with mechanized forces. A shell burst close to the machine gun he was spurting at the Germans.

"One of them burst right next to us," he recalled, "and I could feel something sharp hit me in the face. It smarted but it didn't knock me out. A lieutenant noticed I was hit and crawled with me until we were out of range of fire. He told me to keep going straight and left me to return to his gun. I kept going for nearly 100 yards when the medics met me and got me back to a field station."

Hopes To Regain Sight

He lost one eye but hopes to regain sight in the other. Villeneuve came home by boat little dreaming that his pal, Zeller, had made a similar casualty voyage.

Neither knew the other was wounded and convalescing at Devens. Then one day Villeneuve expressed a desire to revisit many of the spots he had known from his training here. A Red Cross worker took the blind boy around the camp.

Near the end of the ride the Red Cross worker remembered that there was another wounded veteran from the same regiment at New Station hospital a short way from the hospital where Villeneuve was staying. She suggested a visit and over they went.

The meeting between the wounded friends was mixture of tonishment and riotous emoti

TRADE EXPANSION URGED IN REPORT ON MEXICAN TIES

Commission Says Economic Cooperation Will Aid Both Nations.

WASHINGTON, July 17.—(AP) Full economic cooperation between the United States and Mexico during and after the war "for the maximum development of both nations" was urged today by the Mexican-American Commission for Economic Cooperation.

A report to President Roosevelt and President Avila Camacho said:

"The days of exploitation or economic imperialism, whether by nations or by powerful private groups, are past—no future Mexican or United States government will condone or permit their reappearance."

Recommendations for Mexico included full development of food supply, immediate and long-range industrial projects, concentration on production of war materials, a program of public works products, and expansion of transportation, communications, merchant marine and fisheries.

Named by the two governments after President Roosevelt and President Avila Camacho conferred in April, the commission seeks to correct Mexico's disturbed international trade, thrown out of kilter by the war, and at the same time keep strategic materials flowing to the United States.

President Avila Camacho expressed "sincere satisfaction" with the commission's conclusions. President Roosevelt said the recommendations "are indeed in the spirit of friendliness and mutual understanding."

A joint statement released by the State department said "the governments of Mexico and the United States of America manifest their determination to take without delay the necessary steps to carry into effect the conclusions" in the report.

The report said Mexico's imports from the United States shrunk from $159,000,000 in 1941 to $147,000,000 in 1942, while her exports to the United States increased from $141,000,000 to $179,000,000. Her imports were $59,000,000 in the first four months this year and exports $73,000,000.

The increase in imports and "restricted availability" of important items Mexico desires to purchase, the report said, contributed to her balance-of-payments problem.

NAZI COMMANDER HONORED

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Berlin radio said today that Rudolph von Ribbentrop, 22-year-old son of the Reich foreign minister, has been decorated with the Knight's insignia of the Iron Cross north of Belogorod in Russia.

Ribbentrop is a commander of a tank company in Adolf Hitler's bodyguard, said the broadcast, recorded by the Associated Press.

What's Behind the War News

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

Events of earth-shaking significance trod on each other's heels as another critical week of the global war ended.

From the jungles of New Guinea to the orange groves of Sicily, from the rich plains of central Russia to the far islands of the North and South Pacific the tide of United Nations attack upon the Axis arch of conquest is mounting in fury and power. On the ground and over it, on all the seven seas, the pattern of victory is being wrought in a manner to buoy the belief of free men everywhere that the end is certain and perhaps nearer than any have dared believe.

That was embodied in the stern joint warning by President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill to the war-sick people of Italy to surrender now, before they feel the full havoc of destruction which their ill-omened fellowship with Hitlerized Germany has invited. And it was strikingly implicit in the President's abrupt rebuke of two high ranking war aides for wrangling in public over policy.

The matters in public debate between them, Mr. Roosevelt told Vice President Wallace and Commerce Secretary Jones, "are now academic so far as winning the war is presently concerned."

The Axis on every active war front, that was a striking pronouncement. A survey of the week's events on battle fronts half the world apart tends to bear out that interpretation of the President's words. Presidential impatience with ill-timed and acrimonious disputes among his home front lieutenants speaks of knowledge they may not possess of impending events designed to smash the foe and shorten the war.

The revealed elements of that pattern of victory as the war news set them out this week are dramatic enough. First among them in significance and glowing possibilities stands the Russian counter-attack on a stalled Nazi foe, carving savagely at the Orel salient that is the keystone of the German war arch in Russia.

That transcends even the continuing swift forward rush of American, Canadian and British forces in Sicily to set all Italy tottering. It means that the massive Nazi offensive, whatever its purpose or objective, which failed even to delay Red army preparations for attack.

It was halted without detriment to the offensive deployment of Russian armies ringing the Orel salient for concerted thrusts at the communication lifeline of the whole center and south sectors of the Nazi front in Russia, the Vitebsk-Smolensk-Bryansk-Orel rail network. The Orel outwork and the Bryansk section of that vital feeder system are in peril. If they fall to Russian arms, a Nazi retreat in Russia behind the Dnieper river line from Vitebsk to the Black sea, a withdrawal on a front a thousand miles or so in length, would seem inevitable. It would mean ultimate disaster in Russia for Hitler.

With the launching of that Russian offensive grave apprehension in highest Anglo-American military circles was eased. The Russian blow definitely ended uneasy doubts whether Russia intended to sustain the Allied demands for unconditional surrender of the common foe.

The effect is the same as if the Russian thrust had been mapped also at strategic council tables in Casablanca or in Washington. It nips the Axis in a continent-wide, three-pronged pincer attack, makes multi-fronted war a reality for Hitler.

Nor can he look to Japan for aid. Gen. MacArthur's men are surging forward to stamp out the last Nipponese footholds on New Guinea, and American ships and planes are taking an ever-rising and disproportionate toll of enemy surface and air craft in the Solomons theater. Sooner or later the Nipponese enemy must send his main fleet into action, with all its risks, or fall back and leave a fatal dent in the southeast perimeter of his conquest zone.

And anytime now another Japanese island foothold in the Aleutians, Kiska, may go the way of Attu.

The steady and now undenied waning of Nazi U-Boat menace in Atlantic sealanes is another and dominant factor in the brightening war scene. All in all, there is some justification for those who hope that less than another twelve-month will see the end of Hitler in Europe and a beginning made on massed and over-powering Anglo-American attack upon Japan.

GEN. HODGES BUSY HELPING MORALE, RAIDING NAZIS

JUL 18 1943

Son Is in Air Force, Daughter Married to Air Force Officer.

BOMBER HEADQUARTERS IN ENGLAND—(AP) The thousands of American parents whose sons are serving under Brigd. Gen. James P. Hodges, commander of the Liberator Bomber Force in England, may be assured their boys are overseen with fatherly solicitude.

Gen. Hodges is a professional soldier, an expert on air power and a veteran of half a dozen raids on Europe, but at heart he's a family man.

A stocky, cherub-faced individual of 49 who looks as if he ought to be behind the wheel of a Buick sedan, five minutes after he meets you he will be chatting animatedly about his daughter, who is married to an Air Force officer, and his son, James P. Jr., who has just gone into the Air Force.

JUL 18 1943

When new crews arrive from the United States, Hodges welcomes them with an informal, candid talk. There is no military pomp about it. The men are assembled, Hodges walks down front and, without any introduction, starts talking, in a low, even voice.

He talks of the difficulties his small force has operated under, and takes them into his confidence on plans for the future. He indulges in no pep-talking.

Lost Over North Sea

He illustrates his points from his own experience, noting casually in the course of an account of being completely lost over the North sea for several hours, "I was never so scared in my life...."

His equanimity has served him well in his present post, because in an air force which at the outset was predominated by B-17 Flying Fortresses, his B-24 Liberators played a secondary role. Even when they did something spectacular, headline writers often referred to them out of habit as "Fortresses," which for the Liberator men was the same thing as having an accomplishment credited to Joe Smith when your name is Bill Brown.

This anonymity, in the face of a steady toll of casualties and little relief of replacements, might have sapped morale to the point where Hodges' men would have been a mass of jitters. It is a testament to his leadership that the morale has been kept so high that his men, far from having any group inferiority complex, are just as amiably oblivious of the Fortress crowd as the Fortress men are of them.

Smooths Over Rivalry

In fact, the esprit de corps was so great that two of the Liberator groups developed a rivalry in which sharp words were being said. Hodges just got the two groups together at a cocktail party and, having had a look at each other, they parted fast friends and boosters.

You don't get this kind of savvy right out of a hat. Hodges has been learning the business, like most of the top-ranking Air Force men, ever since the World War.

Son of an Oakley, Md., tobacco planter, Hodges, after his mother died when he was quite young, grew up with his grandmother in Washington, D. C., going through the public schools there and then to work as a handy man in a little coffee store on 14th street. It was the John H. Wilkins Company, which since has grown into a big wholesale grocery house, and Hodges sometimes muses that if he had stayed there, he might be president of the company.

Instead, he enlisted in the Army as a flying cadet in 1917, trained at Georgia Tech, and like his Eighth Air Force boss, Maj. Gen. Ira Eaker, spent the war as a flying instructor in the United States —at Payne Field, Miss.

He was on the staff of the GHQ Air Force when it was commanded by Frank M. Andrews, commanded successively the 21st Reconnaissance Squadron in Miami, Fla., and the 29th Bombardment Group at Tampa, Fla., and then became chief of staff of the Third Bomber Command at Tampa, acquiring an intimate knowledge of both Fortresses (to which he confesses an initial partially) and Liberators.

He flew his first Liberator at Macdill Field, Tampa, last spring, and shortly afterward was sent over here in charge of them.

Few people knew he had been going on raids until a routine check for the five-raid air medal awards disclosed that Hodges was practically a regular commuter to Europe. He was given the Silver Star.

Trips News to Wife

That was the first that Mrs. Hodges—the former Eunice Fadeley of Washington—had heard about his trips, and although she "sweated out" the last war with him, she wrote that if he was going to start doing dangerous things like going on raids, it was high time he came home.

Hodges' favorite diversions are golf, at which he says he asks only a reasonable handicap; bridge, at which he says he "asks no quarter"; and just sitting back thinking about the employment of air power.

WORLD'S WORST HEAT IN IRAN

JUL 18 1943

And Mess Call in Iran Still Gets Good Response.

By CLYDE FARNSWORTH

WITH THE PERSIAN GULF SERVICE COMMAND (AP)—In one of the hottest places in the world, the heat's on in the Gulf region and Americans arming and provisioning the Red army through the vital Iranian corridor can take it.

Despite temperatures such as none of them ever experienced before, they are keeping up the schedule of deliveries to Soviet Russia over truck and rail routes with a surprisingly low rate of heat cases.

Here where the weathermen would have no end of grim fun keeping hourly temperature records, there is little scientific recording yet but an ordinary thermometer exposed in the afternoon easily tops 150 degrees Fahrenheit. Shaded, it hovers betwen 120 and 130 degrees.

Refrigeration is scarce, ice is a precious thing and there are no soft drinks. Rationed beer gave out before the heat really started.

Crude air conditioning in field hospitals—the only air conditioning available—is considered successful when it keeps the temperature below 100.

Turn Hose On Patients

One ward of a hospital where I visited had a temperature of 99 degrees after the patients—beds and all—had been wet down with a hose from a water truck parked outside. They acted much like tenement kids under a stream from a fire hose.

Persian Gulf Service Command hospitals need fever thermometers of higher graduation than the regular 108-degree instruments because the temperature of heat victims is likely to run past 108 degrees, which already is 9.4 above normal.

The treatment for heat cases is to bring the body temperature down as quickly as possible. Stricken men, under sheets or towels, are drenched with ice water, placed in front of electric fans and fed cold drinks.

One hospital has an air conditioned unit containing 24 beds where a temperature of 60 or 70 degrees may be maintained, but there is only one of these in Iran.

Most of the Persian Gulf Service Command personnel lives now in thick-walled barracks, though 1,000 men still are under canvas.

In the Gulf and desert districts men work split shifts, spending the afternoons in their quarters.

Effects of Heat

The best way to describe the heat is not with thermometer readings but with its effects.

My typewriter, though in the shade, feels like a steam radiator in January.

The touch of a belt buckle, collar ornament or metal button to the bare flesh, even out of the sun, is enough to make a man jump as with a "hot foot."

Most men have put away the brass identification discs supposed to be worn around the neck.

Men sleep naked, covered with wet towels, or with their matresses soaked.

A man can launder his shirt on the way to a shower and don it, dried, when he has finished his bath.

A cold shower in unknown. Heating tanks are unnecessary. Water standing in the pipes must be run off before a shower to avoid scalding.

A ma nis likely to drink three or four gallons of water daily. Americans have adopted the native jugs which cool drinking water through evaporation from their porous surfaces, and likewise the skin-shaped canvas water bags of British-Indian troops, Gunga Din model.

With every drink men are required to take one or two five-grain salt tablets to preserve their saline balance against excessive loss of salt through perspiration. Sweat-patches on clothing are alway rimmed with a salt deposit.

Kept In Purdah

Women of the household of the Nizam of Hyderabad, reputedly the wealthiest man in the world, are kept in purdah. Three Moslem members of the viceroy's council keep their wives in purdah. They are Sir Sultan Ahmed, member for information and broadcasting; Sir Mohommed Usman, posts and air minister, and Feroz Khan Noon, defense minister.

They entertain mixed gatherings, but their own wives remain out of sight.

Among the bitterest opponents of efforts to abolish purdah are some women living within purdah. The word "purdah" simply means "screen," and many women like to live quiet lives screened from outside male associations.

met both Lady Shafti and her granddaughter at the convention, held in an open grain field under a huge Mogul-type tent open on four sides. "Granny," was obviously enjoying such mingling in earthy politics, despite her generations of patrician upbringing. We sat together on the ground for dinner while she related her own fight with the purdah system.

She recalled that one of her ancestors some three hundred years ago had given land to the great Mogul emperor, Shah Jahan, upon which he built the famous Shalimar Gardens. He was the same emperor who built the Taj Mahal, tomb of his wife.

But purdah is not restricted to

It is climbing steadily higher as the lava piles up. The force within is so terrific that the first crater at the summit proved insufficient, and another has opened on the side.

Scientists consider Paricutin the best volcanological laboratory in the world because of its accessibility, its incessant fury, and the manner of its birth.

Sightseers, too are beating a path to the cone in the state of Michoacan, 325 miles west of Mexico City.

The earth trembles around Paricutin, and loud booms accompany the volleys. The aspect is that of a super-gun in action.

Hundreds of Thousands of Women in India Still Hide Behind Purdah Veil, But Custom Is Fading Fast

Historic 'Rebellions' Have Been Staged Against Medieval Practice.

By PRESTON GROVER

NEW DELHI—(AP) Hundreds of thousands of Indian women are still kept in the secluded confines of "purdah" where no man but their husbands may see them — but agitation to end this medieval custom has worked so fast that the practice is approaching extinction.

But so garish are its more outward aspects that to the thousands of Americans now in India it appears like something out of the Arabian Nights. There are hosts of explanations for the custom. It was doubtless introduced by the Mohammedans from Arabia, but its wide practice in India in olden times began when the invading Mohammedan warriors began looking around for Hindu wives. The Indians started keeping their wives and daughters concealed in their houses, or in shrouded palanquins when traveling. By a strange shift however, purdah is now more common among Mohammedans than among Hindus.

Under this practice a girl is secluded at an early age. She sees her father and sometimes her brothers, but never cousins nor male friends of the family. She may never see her prospective husband until the hour of the marriage, nor he her. Both take the assurances of relatives and friends that the match is acceptable.

...ther have been some historic "rebellions." One was by Lady Mohammed Shafti of Lehore. She and her husband are Mohammedans, descendants of wealthy land owners in the Punjab. Sir Mohammed was education minister in the viceroy's cabinet immediately after the last war, and he supported his wife's rebellion.

She dared not attempt it in Lahore, where her mother and her mother's mothers for generations had lived in purdah. But her husband took her to Calcutta, and she threw aside the veil. It caused an India-wide scandal and her husband's political future was jeopardized.

Returning to Lahore, she went back into purdah for a short time, then she threw off all restraint and rode down the main street of the city. Stones were thrown at her carriage and she was noisily abused. But she had broken the ice, and never again went back.

She is now 66. She contributes to political movements. Her daughter, Begum Shah Nawaz, is a member of the Punjab legislature and an active organizer for the national war front. In turn, Begum Mumtaz Shah Nawaz, daughter of Begum Shah Nawaz, has strong socialist leanings and was one of the leaders of a recent peasant's convention whose organization was sponsored by Communist agencies directly associated with Moscow. I the rich. Remnants of it continue to exist throughout the social structure. Peasants usually ignore it, for their wives have to work.

My bearer—everybody in India has a bearer—keeps his wife in strict purdah.

"Sometimes I take her out for a walk in the dark," he told me. But even then she must wear that hideous "burqa," a sort of Ku Klux Klan garment hiding her from head to foot. She must peer through a thin net in front of her eyes. In summer such a costume is murderously hot.

MEXICAN VOLCANO BUILDS MOUNTAIN

Indian, Owner of Ground, Thought World Was Coming to End.

By THEODORE A. EDIGER

URUAPAN, Mexico (AP)—Paricutin, Mexico's new volcano, belching red lava continuously, has built itself into a mountain more than 1,000 feet high and a mile at the base since it first erupted five months ago in an Indian's ploughed field near here.

JUL 18 1943

An entire town has been destroyed, and trees for miles around have been ruined. Ash-gray deserts now cover the farmers' fields.

The 800 inhabitants of the abandoned town of Particutin are being relocated by the government at another town, Caltzontzin, 25 miles away.

His 125 acres of fertile corn and alnd have become national property, but the Indian, 68-year-old Dionisio Pulido, homesick though he is for his native town, bears no malice.

Imagine His Surprise

Seated in a dark cafe in Caltzontzin, Pulido told his story in soft, quaint Spanish:

"That Saturday (February 20) I was in the field with my wife, Pabla Rangel, and our 10-year-old son, Cresencio, who were guarding our little lambs. I was preparing the field to plant corn.

"As I walked along, I heard the ground in front of me snort. I looked, and there was smoke issuing from the earth. I was greatly frightened, but stopped and admired the scene for about five minutes.

"I thought the world had caught fire. I thought it was the end of the world. I thought the world was burning up.

"The ground thundered loudly for about ten minutes, and I said 'Ave Maria Purisima.' Soon water seemed to be running beneath me. I thought perhaps all the noise I had heard was merely the sound of the water below.

"Phuyee! a snort came from the ground, like steam escaping from a boiler."

EXILED BRAINS HELPING IN WAR, POST-WAR PLANS

JUL 18 1943

83 of Best Minds in Europe Have New York Headquarters.

By SIGRID ARNE

NEW YORK, July 17.—(AP) Years ago I remember a deeply wise man telling me to remember this one thing: "there is no geography to an idea."

Not even a hod-carrier would argue that today. He's seen the idea of dictatorship wipe out the old map of Europe. His son probably is in the war because of it.

But the rule works both ways. The poisonous notion of dictatorship spread outward from Munich. Now the idea of democracy is rehopping the hedges.

Little GHQ's for democracy are collecting in spots all over the world. But certainly the headquarters here, on West 12th Street, just off Fifth Avenue, must be unique.

In two buildings are collected 83 men who represent the best brains of Europe.

They're German, French, Belgian, Italian, Austrian.

They earn their livings as teachers in the New School for Social Research: in the two buildings on West 12th.

They helped lay the plans for the invasion of Africa. They're smoothing the way for the invasion of Europe. Their knowledge of Europe is being used in postwar plans.

Scholars Hitler Fired

The story behind the coming to America goes back to 1933 when Alvin Johnson, director of the New School, saw a list of famous German scholars whom Hitler had just fired.

Johnson knew the high calibre of the men on the list. He saw the horrors ahead, and determined to rescue the best of Europe's brains for the sole purpose of saving their knowledge for the world at large.

He figured he could do it for $60,000 a year, for two years. He would bring the men here, and [illegible] them into a graduate school teach American leaders to think in world terms: the type of thinking he believed we would need both for the war, and the peace to come.

In a week he had $12,000 pledged. Then the lightning struck. He had a phone call from Hiram Halle, of New York, president of the Universal Oil Products Co. Johnson [illegible] never met Halle, but Halle quickly promised that he'd make up the $120,000 needed for the two years.

Johnson quickly made out a list of the men to bring over. He circulated it to outstanding American universities to get the opinion of American scholars in the same fields: literature, economics, law, the social sciences.

The First Group

The first group to arrive included eight Germans and one Italian. The school now has saved 167 European scholars.

In return, the refugees have turned out 200 exhaustive reports which have been used by 23 different war agencies in Washington.

Take tall, energetic Dr. Ernst Kris, who used to teach at the Institute of Psychoanalysis in Vienna. He went to London when the war was just starting. The generals had to know what the German radio was saying on special beams to the neutral countries. Kris organized the monitoring system, and worked out a way to classify the arguments put out by the Nazis.

We entered the war, and Kris came over here to help set up our monitoring service. He's now training, in his classes at the New School, men and women to do the actual monitoring in Washington.

Take scholarly Boris Mirkine-Guetzevitch. Born in Russia, he became a French citizen and lectured on law in half the capitols of Europe.

He's giving us help with Latin American relations. This fall he'll publish a book—the first ever compiled—of the constitutions and laws of the South American countries. It should be a tremendous help to all western hemisphere trade. Up until now any one who planned to work in any South American country had to go there to find out how the country's law would affect his plans.

There's a Spaniard on the New School staff who must be giving Spain's Franco nightmares. He's Don Fernando De Los Rios, the Spanish republic's last ambassador to the United States. He also has been Spain's minister of justice, education and foreign affairs.

U. S. Now Cultural Center

De Los Rios is a leader in democratic thinking among Latin-American peoples. Last year, on a round of visits to capitols below the equator, so many people insisted on seeing him that hundreds stood outside of homes where he was being entertained. Obviously Franco wasn't too high in popular favor.

The calibre of these refugee scholars is spectacular.

They've been summed up most unequivocally in an editorial in the New York Times, which never has been known for superlatives. The editorial said, "as a result of the New School's pioneering lead in bringing these prominent scholars to our shores, the United States has become the intellectual and cultural center of the world."

JUL 18 1943

GIVING FURTHER INFORMATION ON THURSDAY NIGHT'S RAID WHEN ELECTRICAL TARGETS FIRST WERE ATTACKED IN NORTHERN ITALY, FROM HEIGHTS OF LESS THAN 1,000 FEET, THE AIR MINISTRY SAID THREE OR FOUR TRANSFORMERS HIT WERE NEAR BOLOGNA, THROUGH WHICH RUNS THE RAILWAY TO MUNICH. THE OTHER ATTACK WAS 20 MILES NORTH OF GENOA.

LAST NIGHT, THE MINISTRY SAID, SIMILAR TARGETS WERE ATTACKED AT BRUGHERIO, CISLAGO, NEAR MILAN AND AGAIN AT BOLOGNA.

BRIG.GEN.ROBERT C.CANDEE, COMMANDER OF U.S. GROUND SUPPORT AIR FORCES IN BRITAIN, SAID YESTERDAY'S DOUBLE ATTACK BY AMERICAN MEDIUM BOMBERS ON THE RAILWAY CENTER OF ABBEVILLE, FRANCE, WAS "JUST THE BEGINNING OF CONTINUOUS OPERATION."

ALTHOUGH HIS COMMAND NORMALLY OPERATES IN SUPPORT OF TROOPS, CANDEE SAID FRIDAY'S MISSION WAS "CONTRIBUTORY TO STRATEGIC BOMBING."

"WE HOPE TO CONDUCT OPERATIONS WHEN THE FORTRESSES CAN'T," HE ADDED.

FRIDAY'S ATTACK ON THE ABBEVILLE FREIGHT YARDS WAS CARRIED OUT WITHOUT THE LOSS OF A PLANE AND THE CREWS WERE COMPLETELY OUTFITTED WITH ARMORED CLOTHES. IT WAS THE FIRST RAID BY THE MEDIUM BOMBERS OF THIS COMMAND.

THIS EXPRESSION CAME AS LONDON CONTINUED TO HAIL YESTERDAY'S JOINT STATEMENT BY PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT AND PRIME MINISTER WINSTON CHURCHILL TO ITALY AS GENEROUS AND HUMANE. LONDONERS WERE FIRM, HOWEVER, IN THEIR INSISTENCE THAT THERE BE NO BARGAINING.

"WE CAN HAVE NO DEALINGS WHATEVER WITH MUSSOLINI AND HIS FASCIST GANGSTERS," SINCLAIR SAID IN A SPEECH FOR THE LIBERAL PARTY CONFERENCE. "BUT FOR THE ITALIAN PEOPLE WE HAVE NO ENMITY. LET THEM PURGE THEMSELVES OF FASCISM AND REVIVE THOSE TRADITIONS OF FREEDOM AND DEMOCRACY WHICH WERE ONCE THEIR PRIDE. THEN THEY WILL REGAIN THEIR RIGHTFUL PLACE IN THE COMMUNITY OF EUROPEAN NATIONS."

By Leo Branham

At a U.S. Bomber Station in England, July 17-(AP)-Lieut. Armand F. Burch, 27, of Grand Rapids, Mich., has had tamm to many flying fortresses shot up over Europe that they have nicknamed the repair hangar at this station "Burch's Barn."

NOT once has the tall, affable pilot returned from 17 raids without his ship having to undergo repairs.

JUL 18 1943

Three times his skilfully-skippered, shell-splintered bombers came back from the blazing continental air lanes so badly wrecked that they became "hangar queens." In air force parlance that means that a bomber is so badly damaged that its parts are salvaged to patch up other planes.

From the Antwerp raid April 5, Burch glided home across the English channel on one engine with three wounded crewmen. On June 11 the same ship was knocked out completely in an attack on Wilhelmshaven.

From Kiel two days later he brought another battered fortress home with two wounded crew members.

Several times he has failed to get back to his own base, having force-landed crippled bombers as soon as he reached the English coast.

JUL 18 1943

Burch himself has emerged unscathed except for a tiny flak scratch on his right cheek.

"Like a bad penny I've always managed to turn up back here," he said, crossing his fingers. "And I hope I always do while I sweat out the remainder of my combat mission."

Burch is reputed to be one of the best pilots at this station. He and his co-pilot, Lieut. Bert J. Cardwell, 22, of Salt Lake City, Utah, -- sometimes referred to as the "gold dust twins" -- have flown together since their training days and are known as the "perfect team."

JUL 18 1943

But somehow Burch always catches plenty of enemy fire. "Well, I've got another one for you, ~~Sam~~ Chuch," is the way he usually greets Capt. Charles R. Lewis of Chicago, base engineer, on ~~his~~ his return from a mission.

JUL 18 1943

Lewis said Burch has had as many as three damaged ~~plan~~ planes undergoing repair in the hangar at the same time. His crew ~~has~~ has flown in so many different fortresses that they've never had an ~~opportu~~ opportunity to get really ~~attach~~ attached to a particular one.

They christened their last ship, "Sons of Burch's," but the painters only had time to trace the first word on the bomber's ~~nose~~ nose before they took off for Villecoublay, near Paris, last Wednesday.

On that raid, the bombardier, Lieut. R.L. Rohrlich, 24, of New York City, was wounded ~~fat~~ fatally as the fortress limped back to Britain, bearing 50 gaping flak holes. He was the only member of the crew hit.

Before Burch reached the target a flak burst tore away half of the bombardier's face. Another ripped away part of the electrically heated flying jacket worn by ~~Staff~~ Sergt. R.M. Cooney, 19, of Los Angeles, the left waist-gunner. A third missed Lieut. John D. Noblin, 28, of Jackson, Miss., the navigator, by inches. Three engines were hit

The power was so reduced that the bomber lagged behind the formation, losing altitude rapidly. Turning back toward home, the bomber soon picked up a spitfire escort which drove off pursuing fighters.

"The bombardier's oxygen mask was torn off by the blast," Burch related. "Noblin took off his mask and put it on Rohrlich and asked me to get ~~him~~ down to lower altitude as soon as possible. You know a man can't live very long up there without oxygen.

"Our radio operator (Sergt. George W. Ashworth, 25, of Oriskany, N.Y.) managed to repair the radio and we told the base of our situation."

When Burch put the ship down on an RAF field near the English coast

JUL 18 1943

30.24 - 6237

despite one flat tire and unworkable brakes, Rehrlich still was conscious. He was rushed to a hospital but died several hours later.

Other members of the crew were Sergeants Benjamin Barlow, 29, of Fort Morgan, Colo., top turret gunner; Louis P. Bourdon, 20, of Chicago, ball turret gunner; Delvyn Smith, 25, of Melvin, Ill., right waist-gunner; and Anthony Bednarchuck, 23, of Woonsocket, R.I., tail gunner.

JUL 18 1943

Hard luck has dogged the Burch's crew since they first sighted Europe. They brought over the first fortress to leave the United States for England in 1943, taking off when the new year was only two hours old. Near Britain they encountered stormy weather and headwinds which forced the fortress off its course.

"Finally we dropped through the clouds and found ourselves over land at 12,000 feet," said Burch. "At first we thought it was England but then i noted the automobile traffic moving on the right hand side of the street in a town below us. Then I knew it was France. About that time flak guns opened up on us and we ducked the hell out of there fast. Fortunately we were NOT hit."

JUL 18 1943

The bomber arrived in England with only five minutes' gasoline left. Breaking out of an overcast, Burch found the only possible spot for a landing was on a golf course atop a cliff on a peninsula jutting out into the channel. He made a successful belly landing, although part of one wing was torn off when the bomber struck some treetops. None of the crew was injured.

"It seems like I've had a hell of a lot narrower escapes since I landed here," mused Burch who is a shipping clerk in civilian life. "And to think I had the chance of getting into the quartermaster corps."

(A VICHY BROADCAST SAID THE AMERICANS HAD STORMED INTO AGRIGENTO, IMPORTANT AXIS TROOP CENTER ABOUT 25 MILES NORTHWEST OF LICATA.)

ALMOST ALL THE GERMAN DEFENDERS OF SICILY WERE REPORTED MASSING ON THE CATANIA PLAIN, WHICH LIES ACROSS THE EIGHTH ARMY'S NORTHWARD DRIVE TO CATANIA AND MESSINA AND EXTENDS WEST TO GERBINI, AROUND WHICH THE AXIS STILL HOLDS EIGHT SATELLITE AIRPORTS.

THE EIGHTH ARMY ENCOUNTERED UNITS OF THE CRACK HERMAN GOERING ARMORED DIVISION NORTH OF LENTINI YESTERDAY AND HURLED IT BACK, ALTHOUGH THE NAZIS, UNSUPPORTED BY THEIR UNITS, WERE REPORTED TO HAVE FOUGHT DOGGEDLY. THE 15TH GERMAN ARMORED DIVISION, SAID TO BE A COLLECTION OF UNITS ORIGINALLY DESTINED FOR TUNISIA, WAS REPORTED HELD IN RESERVE ON THE PLAIN.

OBSERVERS WERE CONFIDENT THE ALLIED TANK STRENGTH WAS SUFFICIENT TO OVERCOME ANY OPPOSITION.

OTHER OBSERVERS EMPHASIZED THE DEVELOPING BATTLE AS THE HARDEST

AS THE GROUND CONFLICTS GREW IN INTENSITY, ALLIED AIRMEN WERE ROVING WITH INCREASING FREEDOM OVER SICILY AND THE ITALIAN MAINLAND.

MESSINA, CHIEF SICILIAN PORT OF ENTRY FOR REINFORCEMENTS AND SUPPLIES FROM THE MAINLAND, WAS BELIEVED TO HAVE BEEN KNOCKED OUT BY ALLIED BOMBERS WHICH GOUGED OUT A STRIP TWO MILES WIDE AND A MILE LONG FROM THE HEART OF ITS HARBOR SECTION.

NAPLES, ITALY'S CHIEF MAINLAND PORT AND FAMED FOR ITS BEAUTY, WAS TURNED INTO A BLAZING INFERNO THURSDAY BY THOUSANDS OF EXPLOSIVES AND INCENDIARIES FROM FLYING FORTRESSES WHICH SHATTERED THE ROYAL ARMORY AND GUTTED ACRES OF HARBOR AND INDUSTRIAL INSTALLATIONS. THE DAYLIGHT BLOW FELL WHILE FIRES WERE STILL BLAZING FROM A NIGHT ATTACK BY RAF BOMBERS.

THE GERMAN AIR FORCE WAS REPORTED MAKING VIRTUALLY NO ATTEMPT TO PROTECT ITALIAN TOWNS FROM THIS OVERWHELMING ONSLAUGHT.

IN PAST SEVEN DAYS, AMERICAN BRITISH, CANADIAN AND SOUTH AFRICAN FLIERS SHOT 163 AXIS PLANES OUT OF THE AIR AND KNOCKED OUT HUNDREDS OF OTHERS BEFORE THEY HAD A CHANCE TO LEAVE THE GROUND. THE COST TO THE ALLIES WAS 69 PLANES, NEARLY HALF OF THEM ON THE FIRST DAY OF THE INVASION.

AMERICAN WARHAWKS, OPERATING OVER THE COAST, SANK FIVE OR SIX SMALL BOATS AND SHOT UP RADIO INSTALLATIONS AT THE EASTERN END OF THE ISLAND.

COASTAL COMMAND PLANES COUNTED FIVE ENEMY MERCHANT SHIPS SUNK AND FOUR DESTROYERS AND A TANKER HEAVILY DAMAGED AS THEIR CONTRIBUTION TO THE WEEK'S AERIAL SUCCESSES.

BADOGLIO, THEY THOUGHT, OUGHT TO BE ACCEPTABLE TO THE ALLIES BECAUSE HE HAS ALL ALONG BEEN ANTI-MUSSOLINI AND WAS SAID TO HAVE OFFERED TO CRUSH IL DUCE'S MARCH ON ROME IN 1922 IF THE KING HAD LET HIM. AT AN INVASION CENTER IN NORTH AFRICA-(DELAYED)-(AP)-THE FIGHTING EIGHTY-SECOND OF WORLD WAR ONE RENOWN--THE DIVISION MADE FAMOUS A QUARTER OF A CENTURY AGO BY THE INDIVIDUAL HEROISM OF TENNEE'S ALVIN YORK--HAS GONE INTO ACTION AGAIN.

JUL 18 1943

BUT THIS TIME THE TROOPS DIDN'T SLOG INTO THE LINE AS THEY DID IN THE ARGONNE FOREST DRIVE OF 1918, THE DRIVE THAT FINALLY BROKE THE BACK OF THE KAISER'S ARMY. THIS TIME THEY RODE INTO BATTLE ON WINGS. THEY POURED OUT OF THE SKIES IN PARACHUTES AND GLIDERS IN A BOLD, SAVAGE INVASION THRUST AT THE ENEMY, GAMBLING EVERYTHING ON THEIR COURAGE, THEIR TRAINING, THEIR FINE PHYSICAL CONDITION AND THE ELEMENT OF SURPRISE.

THEY SWARMED DOWN ON THEIR OBJECTIVE FROM AN ARMADA OF TRANSPORT PLANES AND GLIDERS WHICH SWEPT IN ACROSS THE SEA FROM NORTH AFRICA AND DISGORGED ARMED MEN, GUNS, AMMUNITION, EQUIPMENT AND FOOD SUPPLIES WITH BREATHTAKING SWIFTNESS.

DIRECTING THE HISTORIC RE-ENTRY OF THE EIGHTY-SECOND INTO COMBAT WAS HANDSOME, STRONG-JAWED MAJOR GENERAL MATTHEW B.RIDGWAY, WHO TOOK OVER COMMAND OF THE DIVISION IN JUNE 1942.

"THEY'RE THE FINEST BUNCH OF MEN IN THE ARMY," RIDGWAY SAID OF HIS DIVISION. "I BELIEVE IN THEM AND I'M PROUD OF THEM. THEY HAVE EVERYTHING BUT EXPERIENCE AND THEIR SPIRIT IS MAGNIFICENT."

JUL 18 1943

30.24 - 6245

RIDGWAY SECRETLY ASSEMBLED HIS DIVISION FOR THE MOVE AT THIS STRATEGIC INVASION POINT ON THE SOUTHERN COAST OF THE MEDITERRANEAN WHILE ALLIED FIGHTER PATROLS SWEPT THE SKIES TO KEEP ENEMY RECONNAISSANCE PLANES FROM SPYING ON THE MOVEMENTS, FOR MUCH OF THE SUCCESS OF THE AIRBORNE MOVE DEPENDED ON A SURPRISE BLOW.

THIS WAS THE CLIMAX TO MORE THAN 10 MONTHS OF INTENSIVE TRAINING, THE FINAL PHASES CARRIED OUT UNDER THE BLAZING AFRICAN SUN AT A SECRET AIRFIELD OVER WHICH EVEN AMERICAN FIGHTER PLANES WERE FORBIDDEN TO FLY.

OVER AND OVER THE TROOPS REHEARSED THEIR MISSION, A STRANGE CONTRAST TO THE OPERATIONS OF THE OLD EIGHTY-SECOND INFANTRY DIVISION WHICH FIRST SAW ACTION IN OCTOBER, 1918, IN THE ARGONNE FOREST DRIVE. ALVIN YORK, ACCLAIMED BY GENERAL PERSHING AS THE GREAT HERO OF THE LAST WAR, WOULD NEVER RECOGNIZE HIS OLD OUTFIT WITH ITS MODERN BATTLE DRESS AND STREAMLINED BATTLE TACTICS.

JUL 18 1943

THE PREDECESSOR OF THIS AIRBORNE DIVISION WAS ASSEMBLED IN AUGUST, 1917, AT CAMP GORDON NEAR ATLANTA WITH THE FIRST DRAFTED PERSONNEL DRAWN FROM ALABAMA, FLORIDA AND GEORGIA. THEY SAILED FOR ENGLAND IN APRIL, 1918--AND 25 YEARS LATER ALMOST TO THE DAY THIS NEWLY RE-CREATED DIVISION SAILED FOR AFRICA.

THE 82ND WAS RE-ACTIVATED AS AN AIRBORNE DIVISION EARLY IN 1942.

IN AFRICA IN THE FINAL TRAINING, AT DIVISION, REGIMENTAL, BATTALION AND COMPANY HEADQUARTERS, THE OBJECTIVE AND THE SURROUNDING TERRAIN FOR ATTACK OPERATIONS WERE REPRODUCED IN MINUTE DETAIL IN SAND TABLES AND STUDIED SO THAT WHEN THE TROOPS LANDED THEY COULD RECOGNIZE LANDMARKS AND ORIENT THEMSELVES QUICKLY EVEN AT NIGHT. THE MEN WERE TRAINED IN WHAT TO DO FROM THE TIME THEY LEFT THEIR BASE UNTIL THEY REACHED THEIR OBJECTIVE.

LANDMARKS AND ORIENT THEMSELVES QUICKLY EVEN AT NIGHT. THE MEN WERE TRAINED IN WHAT TO DO FROM THE TIME THEY LEFT THEIR BASE UNTIL THEY REACHED THEIR OBJECTIVE.

THE AIRBORNE TROOPS CARRIED A TERRIFIC WALLOP IN FIREPOWER WITH THEM ON THEIR MISSION. THE EXACT NUMBERS OF GUNS CANNOT BE GIVEN HERE, BUT THEY INCLUDED TOMMYGUNS, LIGHT MACHINE GUNS, HEAVY MACHINE GUNS, M-ONE RIFLES, MORTARS, ANTI-TANK GUNS, AND HAND GRENADES.

JUL 18 1943

AND THE MEN WHO CARRIED OR MANNED THOSE WEAPONS WERE PICKED FROM THE TOP BRACKETS OF AMERICAN YOUTH. IN ALL THE MONTHS I HAVE BEEN IN THE MIDDLE EAST AND NORTH AFRICA LIVING WITH TROOPS AND WATCHING THEM IN BATTLE, I HAVE NEVER SEEN A DIVISION WITH SUCH MAGNIFICENT LOOKING MEN OR WITH HIGHER MORALE THAN THE EIGHTY-SECOND AIRBORNE DIVISION

IT'S TRUE THAT A DIVISION MUST BE MEASURED BY RESULTS IN COMBAT AND NOT BY PARADE GROUND EXCELLENCE, BUT FROM THE TIME THE EIGHTY-SECOND STREAMED OUT OF TRANSPORTS IN AFRICA IN EARLY MAY UNTIL THEY BOARDED PLANES AND GLIDERS FOR THE INVASION MOVE, THE OFFICERS AND MEN HAD A DEVIL-MAY-CARE SPIRIT OF CONFIDENCE AND DETERMINATION THAT MADE YOU WANT TO FOLLOW THEM FROM HELL TO BREAKFAST. THEY SEEMED TO HAVE A SPECIAL STAMP ON THEM, THESE YOUNG FELLOWS GATHERED FROM THE WHEAT FIELDS OF KANSAS, THE CORNFIELDS OF IOWA, THE MILLS OF NEW ENGLAND, THE COAL MINES OF PENNSYLVANIA, THE COTTON FIELDS OF THE SOUTH, AND THE PLAINS OF TEXAS.

Allied force command post in north africa, July 17-(ap)- a pair of famous fighter groups -- one of which was the first american fighter unit ever to engage the luftwaffe and the other the first ever based in tunisia to battle the axis-- was disclosed today as the first united states air combat outfits to operate from sicilian airdromes.

the ground crews who followed close behind the invading armies began reconditioning air fields immediately after their capture and within a few days spitfires of the group commanded by colonel fred m. dean of st. petersburg, fla., and a P-40 warhawk group led by colonel william W. Momyer of seattle, wash., arrived.

the two veteran outfits were well chosen for the task of maintaining an umbrella air cover over the american forces.

Dean's Spitfire group first saw action over Dieppe aug. 19, 1942, where he got his first victim, a focke-wulf-190. Subsequently it was the first american fighter group to land in north africa Nov. 8, 1942. On that occasion the pilots scored three victories even before the spitfires touched african soil--shooting down three dewoitine fighters which attacked as when the spitfires arrived over an airfield near oran.

JUL 18 1943

Momyer's group pioneered the way for the american air corps in tunisia by beginning operations from an isolated field early in december. the warhawks soon proved themselves so effective that the luftwaffe made repeated and determined efforts to knock them out of action. at one time the germans bombed and strafed the field for eight consectuive days and gave up only when the warhawks scored a grand slam by shooting down all ten junkers-88s in one formation which bombed the airbase.
Last month the group was the first to land on Pantelleria and begin combat opeations from that island. END

Allied Forces command post in North Africa, July 17 -(ap)-

It was good luck for both victor and victim when a spitfire patrol chanced to spot a dinghy floating in the mediterranean and sent for an air sea rescue walrus amphibian.

the action saved the german pilot and enabled flight officer louis m. weynandt, 24, of louise, texas, american spitfire pilot, to claim his first triumph.

JUL 18 1943.

weynandt and lieut. irwin gottlieb, 27, of Brooklyn, N.y., (street address unavailable), engaged two messerschmitt 109s at 26,000 feet while on coastal/patrol.

gottlieb shot up one and saw it crash into the sea but weynandt's guns jammed after he damaged the other and he was unable to claim a victim.

the next day, however, some of his fellow pilots spotted the dinghy and the german pilot's account of the action showed that he was weynandt's opponent.

weynandt and gottlieb are members of a group led by Lieut. Col. James S. Coward of Knoxville, Tenn., which scored its 100th victory several weeks ago.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN SICILY, JULY 14-(DELAYED)-AMERICAN ANTI-TANK GUNS CAN KNOCK OUT THE GERMANS' TOUGHEST AND BIGGEST TANK--THE MARK VI TIGER. TODAY I SAW HOW IT WAS DONE. I WAS NOT THERE TO SEE THE ACTUAL KILL BUT REACHED THE SPOT IN TIME TO FEEL THE QUIVERING SIDES OF A DYING TANK, STILL HOT AND PANTING ITS LAST BREATH.

HIGH ON A HILLSIDE LAY CONCEALED A SINGLE AMERICAN GUN. PRESENTLY AROUND A CORNER IN A ROAD CAME A TIGER, ITS HUGE SNOUT STICKING OUT BLACKLY, ITS 27-INCH CATERPILLAR TREADS SMOOTHLY CARRYING ITS VAST BULK OVER THE ASPHALT. IT PRESENTED ITS FLANK.

THAT WAS FATAL. ONE SHOT PENETRATED ONE OF ITS RUBBER TIRED "BOOGIE" WHEELS WHICH RUN UPON ITS CATERPILLARS. THE TANK STOPPED. TWO MORE SHOTS STRUCK THE TURRET AND BOUNCED BACK AFTER PENETRATING THREE INCHES.

THE TANK BEGAN TO BURN. EVIDENTLY THE FIRST SHOT HAD REACHED THE GASOLINE CONTAINER. AS SMOKE SWIRLED UP AND FLAMES BURST FROM ALL ITS CREVICES THE TURRET TOP FLEW OPEN AND THE TANK CREW SCRAMBLED OUT. TWO, THREE OR FOUR FIGURES COULD BE SEEN BUT SMOKE CONCEALED THEIR

I WENT DOWN WITH THE GUN CREW AND INSPECTED THE BOOTY. PRIVATE FIRST CLASS EDWARD STENGEL, 25, OF 1535 SOUTH PEARL STREET, MILWAUKEE, WIS., WAS THE PROUD LAD WHO PULLED THE TRIGGER ON THIS TROPHY. HIS PAL, SERGEANT ROBERT SPENCER, 22, OF RICHLAND, NEW YORK, WAS IN CHARGE OF THE GUN. WITHIN 24 HOURS THE BATTERY TO WHICH THESE BOYS BELONG KNOCKED OUT FOUR TIGERS.

NOW THERE IS NO WEAPON OF THE ENEMY WHICH THE AMERICANS HAVE NOT MET AND MASTERED.

EVERYTHING JUST NOW CONSPIRES TO LIFT OUR SPIRITS. WE HAD HARDLY LEFT THE SMOKING CORPSE OF THE TIGER WHEN OVERHEAD APPEARED A FLIGHT OF GERMAN ME-109F'S, MEANING THE LATEST MODEL OF MESSERSCHMITTS. THEY FLEW BRAZENLY INTO A CRASHING BARRAGE OF OUR ACK-ACK AND WITHIN FIVE MINUTES THREE OF THEM FELL BLAZING INTO SEA.

THE LAST ONE STAGED A SPECTACULAR FINISH. ITS DEATH SHOT EXPLODED IT LIKE DETONATING SHELL ABOUT 4,000 FEET UP. A TINY STREAMLINED SILVER SHIP BLEW OUT INTO A BALLOON OF FIRE WHICH SEEMED TO PAUSE IN THE SKY AND THEN DROPPED WITH EVER-INCREASING SPEED UNTIL IT HIT THE GLASSY SURFACE OF THE OCEAN LIKE A FALLING METEOR, LEAVING BEHIND A LONG CREPE-LIKE STREAM OF GREASY BLACK SMOKE. IT COULD BE SEEN FROM A RADIUS OF MANY MILES AND ALL OVER THIS SECTOR TROOPS CHEERED.

ALL WAY AROUND SICILY FROM NORTH OF SYRACUSE, WHERE THE BRITISH HAVE WON A TRIUMPHANT VICTORY, TO WEST OF LICATA, THERE IS POURING INTO THIS ISLAND AN UNPRECEDENTED FLOW OF MEN AND MATERIALS.

ONE ITALIAN SAID TO ME, HALF AWE-STRUCK, HALF SCOFFINGLY, "OF COURSE YOU AMERICANS CAN WIN WITH SUCH MATERIALS. ANYBODY COULD WIN WITH EQUIPMENT LIKE THAT."

HE WAS GAZING WITH ASTONISHMENT, FEAR AND SELF-PROTECTIVE DISDAIN AT A LINE OF SEVERAL SCORE "DUCKS" SPEEDING ALONG AT A QUITE UNDUCKLIKE GAIT AFTER THEY HAD SWUM FROM BEACH TO SHIP AND BACK AGAIN WITH A FULL LOAD TO THE BEACH--THENCE TO CARRY THEIR CARGO DIRECTLY TO ITS ALLOTTED DUMP.

JUL 18 1943

THESE TWO AND A HALF TON AMPHIBIOUS TRUCKS ARE THE WONDERMENT NOT ONLY OF THE NATIVES BUT OF MANY AMERICANS WHO HAD NEVER SEEN THEM BEFORE. THEY ARE BEGINNING TO RANK IN THE ARMY'S EYES WITH THE JEEP AS ONE OF OUR MOST USEFUL NEW INSTRUMENTS OF WAR.

THIS MORNING WE JEEPED OUT TO WHERE ONE OF OUR COMBAT TEAMS WAS ADVANCING TO TAKE HIGH GROUND AROUND PONTE OLIVO AIRPORT. THEIR ARMORED VEHICLES WERE JUST PASSING THE RUINS OF A MEDIAEVAL CASTLE AT LEAST 1,000 YEARS OLD. ITS STILL PROUD SKELETON, BLEACHED WHITE BY TEN CENTURIES OF SICILIAN SUN, STOOD HARSHLY OUT AGAINST THE GLARING MEDITERRANEAN SKY AND MADE US FEEL HOW TRANSITORY WAS THIS LITTLE QUARREL IN WHICH WE WERE ENGAGED.

SOME TIME LATER WE PASSED A MILE-LONG COLUMN OF MARCHING AMERICAN TROOPS, FRESHLY ARRIVED, COVERED WITH DUST, STANDING NOW AND

I LOOKED CLOSER. LIPSTICK. "NURSES," SOMEONE SHOUTED. SURE ENOUGH HALF A HUNDRED LIPSTICKED SMILES WERE TURNED UPON US AND REVEALED AS MANY CHEERFUL YOUNG AMERICAN GIRLS SWEATING IT OUT WITH THE TOUGHEST OF THEIR MALE COLLEAGUES, TRUDGING FOR MILES TO THEIR FIRST CAMP ON SICILIAN SOIL.

LAST NIGHT WAS OUR FINAL BIVOUAC ON THE CREST OF A HILL OVERLOOKING A HARBOR. THE STARS WERE PARTICULARLY BRIGHT. ACK-ACK BURST OCCASIONALLY INTO CLUSTERS OF BRILLIANT CRIMSON FLOWERS. GREAT AMERICAN 155S IN THE VICINITY ROARED REGULARLY THEIR SHATTERING LULLABY.

NEXT MORNING WE FORSOOK OUR LEMON, APPLE AND APRICOT GROVE AND ITS VINEYARD WITH YOUNG CABBAGES AND TOOK UP QUARTERS IN AN ALMOND ORCHARD. THE YOUNG GREEN ALMONDS WERE JUST RIGHT FOR A SKILLFUL POCKETKNIFE TO RIFLE. SOON OUR GENERALS AND STAFF WERE BUSY BETWEEN THOUGHTS AND PLANS OF STRATEGY AND TACTICS AND DIGGING OUT THE SUCCULENT WHITE MEAT OF TENDER ALMONDS AND THEREBY CONSERVING RATIONS BY LIVING OFF THE COUNTRY.

HE RECEIVED SHRAPNEL WOUNDS IN THE NECK, RIGHT WRIST AND LEGS, BUT BEYOND THE FACT HE HAS SOME DIFFICULTY USING HIS RIGHT HAND, HE'S FIT AS A FIDDLE AND READY TO SNAP HIS LENS AT THE DROP OF A SHELL OR FIRE OF A MACHINE GUN.

ARMY PHYSICIANS, REALLY CONCERNED ABOUT STEARN'S WOUNDS, OFFERED

STEARN CAME ASHORE WITH ME ON THE FIRST ASSAULT BOAT OFF OUR NAVY TRANSPORT. IN A MATTER OF MINUTES I HE COVERED THE ENTIRE BEACH AREA WITH SHOTS FROM HIS CAMERA. HIS BUNNY HAIR LITERALLY STANDS ON END WHEN HE IS FILLED WITH EXCITEMENT, WHICH IS JUST ABOUT 24 HOURS A DAY.

TWO DAYS LATER HE SHOWED UP, LOADED DOWN WITH BETTER THAN 100 PICTURES AND A STORY OF BEING CAUGHT IN THE BATTLE FOR THE HUGE COMISO AIRDROME.

"THEY TOLD ME THE FIELD WAS ALREADY IN OUR HANDS, BUT WHEN I GOT THERE I FOUND OUT--NEARLY TOO LATE--THAT THE ITALIANS AND GERMANS WERE QUESTIONING OUR RIGHT TO THE OWNERSHIP," HE SAID. "THERE I WAS IN A TANK DESTROYER WHICH WAS GOING LOOKING FOR TANKS, WHILE I WAS JUST LOOKING FOR PICTURES. THERE WAS NOTHING FOR ME TO DO BUT STAY WITH THE BOYS, SO I STAYED.

"I SLEPT OUT IN THE OPEN, BUT JUSTZ AS SOON AS THE FIELD WAS PARTLY IN OUR HANDS I SAID GOOD-BYE--THAT WAS NO PLACE FOR A MAN WITH ONLY A CAMERA AND A BAD RIGHT ARM."

THE FULL STORY OF THEIR HEROIC DESCENT UPON SICILY'S SOUTHWEST COAST FRIDAY NIGHT, THREE TO FIVE HOURS BEFORE THE SEABORNE INVASION BEGAN IS YET TO BE TOLD.

THESE AIR-ATTACK SOLDIERS, ALONG WITH THE RANGERS, HAD THE MOST DESPERATE FIGHTING OF ANY UNITS OF THE SEVENTH ARMY.

THE SECOND ARMORED DIVISION UNDER MAJ.GEN.HUGH J.GAFFEY FURNISHED THE STEEL FIST FOR SMASHING AXIS RESISTANCE IN SICILY'S INTERIOR HIGHLANDS. THIS DIVISION PARTICIPATED IN THE CASABLANCA LANDINGS IN NOVEMBER BUT AFTERWARD REMAINED IN THE TRAINING AREAS OF THE FIFTH ARMY UNTIL IT WAS SHIPPED ACROSS THE MEDITERRANEAN.

ALL AMERICAN TANKS ENGAGED IN THE TUNISIAN CAMPAIGN WERE FROM THE FIRST ARMORED DIVISION, WHICH WAS NOT AMONG THE UNITS IDENTIFIED OFFICIALLY IN SICILY.

THE THIRD INFANTRY DIVISION UNDER MAJ.GEN.LUCIAN K.TRUSCOTT, JR., WHOSE FIFTEENTH REGIMENT WAS ONCE COMMANDED BY GEN.DWIGHT D.EISENHOWER, GOT ITS FIRST TASTE OF FIGHTING ALONGSIDE THE SECOND ARMORED DIVISION IN THE CASABLANCA OPERATIONS LAST WINTER.

IT WAS SENT TO TUNISIA FOR THE FINAL OFFENSIVE BUT ARRIVED 48 HOURS AFTER THE VICTORIOUS DRIVES ON BIZERTE AND TUNIS WERE UNDERWAY AND IT MAINLY HELPED IN MOPPING UP EAST OF MATEUR.

EISENHOWER GAVE THIS DIVISION'S PROUD TROOPS A SPECIAL INSPECTION BEFORE THEY WERE SMBARKED FOR SICILY AND SAID HE WOULD SOON BE WITH THEM ON A NEW BATTLEFRONT.

THE ANNOUNCEMENT THAT LIEUT.GEN.OMAR N.BRADLEY, WHO SUCCEEDED PATTON IN COMMAND OF THE SECOND CORPS FOR THE MARCH ON BIZERTE, COMMANDS ONE OF THE CORPS IN THE SEVENTH ARMY FAILED TO STATE WHO HAS COMMAND OF THE REMAINDER OF THE FIELD FORCES.

THE WHEREABOUTS OF THE NINTH AND 34TH DIVISIONS WHICH FOUGHT BRILLIANTLY IN TUNISIA HAS NOT BEEN OFFICIALLY RELEASED.

BUT THE TOTAL OF FIVE INFANTRY, ONE AIR-BORNE AND TWO ARMORED AMERICAN DIVISIONS OFFICIALLY IN THE MEDITERRANEAN THEATER IS A FORCE

THE FIRST INFANTRY DIVISION, REGULAR ARMY, WAS NICKNAMED THE "FIGHTING FIRST" FOR ITS RECORD IN THE FIRST WORLD WAR. IT WAS THE FIRST DIVISION OF AMERICAN TROOPS IN FRANCE; FIRST TO FIRE ON THE GERMANS; FIRST TO SUFFER CASUALTIES.

ORIGINALLY THE 82ND, WHICH TRAINED FOR AIRBORNE WARFARE AT CAMP CLAIBORNE, LA., WAS MADE UP OF ORGANIZED RESERVES FROM GEORGIA, ALABAMA, AND TENNESSEE. OTHER UNITS PROBABLY HAVE BEEN ADDED.

THE SECOND ARMORED DIVISION GAVE THE FIRST DEMONSTRATION IN MAY,

CHICAGO TRIBUNE CORRESPONDENT REPRESENTING THE COMBINED AMERICAN PRESS (DISTRIBUTED BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS)

WITH THE SEVENTH ARMY IN SICILY JULY 17.-THE AMERICAN INVASION OF SOUTHERN SICILY HAS BEEN ACCOMPLISHED WITH A SURPRISINGLY SMALL COST OF LIVES LOST DESPITE THE WILD CLAIMS OF PRO-AXIS RADIOS.

ALTHOUGH OFFICIAL FIGURES HAVE NOT BEEN RELEASED YET, IT WAS APPARENT FROM OBSERVATIONS THIS CORRESPONDENT MADE ALONG THE FRONT THAT TOTAL CASUALTIES FOR GROUND TROOPS, AIR-BORNE AND AIR FORCES LAST SATURDAY WERE FAR LOWER THAN HAD BEEN EXPECTED.

HOSPITALS SET UP IN THE REAR OF AREAS HERE AS WELL AS IN NORTH AFRICA TO CARE FOR LARGE NUMBERS OF WOUNDED MEN HAVE BEEN UNABLE TO KEEP THEIR STAFFS OCCUPIED, ALTHOUGH CASUALTIES FROM FIGHTING INLAND ARE NOW BEGINNING TO FILL THE BEDS AS AMBULANCES ROLL BACK FROM THE FRONT.

SOME OF THE WOUNDED HAVE ALREADY BEEN EVACUATED AND ARE STILL BEING EVACUATED BY SEA AND AIR.

WHEN OFFICIAL FIGURES ARE RELEASED, THIS CORRESPONDENT EXPECTS THE LOSSES WILL BE MUCH LESS THAN EXPECTED FOR THAT FIRST DAY IN THE AIR, ON THE GROUND AND IN THE WATER.

JUL 18 1943

THERE ARE MANY FACTORS TO ACCOUNT FOR THIS. WORKING OVER THE BEACH DEFENSES, AS WELL AS THOSE INLAND, AND ON THE AIRDROMES, USAAF AND RAF PLANES DID MUCH TO SOFTEN RESISTANCE. NAVAL GUNFIRE WAS DEADLY AND DEVASTATING, BLASTING COASTAL GUNS AND FORTIFICATIONS AS WELL AS BEING USED LATER AGAINST TANK CONCENTRATIONS AND ENEMY STRONGPOINTS.

AND THE GUERRILLA-LIKE WARFARE CARRIED ON BEHIND THE ENEMY LINES BY OUR THOUSANDS OF PARATROOPERS DISORGANIZED COMMUNICATIONS, ROAD NETWORKS AND INTERIOR STRONGPOINTS SO THAT ENEMY INTELLIGENCE PEOPLE OBVIOUSLY DID NOT KNOW WHAT WAS HAPPENING.

STILL ANOTHER FACTOR WAS INVOLVED, NAMELY THE MORALE AND STAMINA OF THE ITALIAN TROOPS. WHILE MANY FOUGHT HARD AND FEROCIOUSLY DURING THE INITIAL STAGES, MANY HUNDREDS HAD ABSOLUTELY NO HEART IN THEIR FIGHT AND IN SOME CASES TOLD US THEY HAD BEEN WAITING FOR WEEKS FOR US TO ARRIVE SO THEY COULD SURRENDER AND COME TO THE UNITED STATES.

SOME HAD THEIR THREADBARE IMITATION LEATHER SUITCASES PACKED. OTHERS RAN UP WHITE FLAGS AS SOON AS OUR MEN OPENED FIRE OR APPEARED IN VIEW. WHILE THIS TYPE OF REACTION WAS SPREAD GENERALLY THROUGHOUT THE AREA, THERE WERE ALSO MANY SPOTS WHERE ITALIANS FOUGHT TENACIOUSLY AND EVEN VICIOUSLY BEFORE BEING KILLED OR SURRENDERING.

WHILE GERMAN TROOPS ENCOUNTERED BY THE YANKS FOUGHT MUCH BETTER IN THE USUAL TRADITION OF THEIR ARMY, THERE WERE INSTANCES THERE, TOO,

JUL 18 1943

LEADING OBSERVERS TO BELIEVE THAT THE NAZI SOLDIERS WERE NOT IN HERE WITH THE OLD COLLEGE TRY. IT WASN'T LIKE THE EXPECTED CALIBER OF THE OPPOSITION JUDGING FROM PAST EXPERIENCE, FOR GERMAN SOLDIERS WE DEFEATED NORTHWEST OF VITTORIA IN A PARATROOP BATTLE SUNDAY TO FLEE PELL MELL ABANDONING VALUABLE EQUIPMENT INCLUDING THEIR MORTARS.

SOME PRISONERS EXPRESSED RESENTMENT AGAINST THE ITALIANS AND THEIR OWN POSITION AND OFTEN SAID THAT MOST GERMANS ON THE ISLAND HAD LITTLE STOMACH FOR LOSING THEIR LIVES TO DEFEND ITALIAN SOIL.

SOMEWHAT SIMILAR REACTIONS WERE ENCOUNTERED AMONG NATIVES. AS PARATROOPS PASSED THROUGH THE COUNTRYSIDE, PEASANTS STOOD BY THEIR HOUSES SMILING, CLAPPING THEIR HANDS, SHOUTING "VIVA," AND EVEN GIVING THE FASCIST SALUTE AS A WELCOME. OFTEN THEY RAN OUT WITH BOTTLES OF DELICIOUS SICILIAN WINE, BREAD, OR WATER.

JUL 18 1943

IT WAS NOT UNCOMMON TO FIND SOME WHO SPOKE A FEW WORDS OF ENGLISH AND WHO MENTIONED RELATIVES IN THE UNITED STATES. OCCASIONALLY WE WOULD COME ACROSS SOME EXCITED PEASANT RUSHING PELL MELL ACROSS HIS FIELD TO SHAKE OUR HANDS AND CRY "WHERE HAVE YOU BEEN. WE HAVE BEEN WAITING FOR YOU," WHICH MIGHT INDICATE THAT SICILY, AS HAS OFTEN BEEN STATED, WAS NEVER THOROUGHLY ITALIANIZED.

SGT.PHILIP STEARN, 802 WEST 119TH ST., NEW YORK, "STARS AND STRIPES" PHOTOGRAPHER WHO CAME ASHORE WITH THE SOUTHERN FLANKING FORCE, HAD BEEN POLISHING UP HIS ITALIAN FROM A SMALL PHRASE BOOK. MEETING HIS FIRST SICILIAN, STERN GRANDILOQUENTLY TOSSED OFF THE ACCUSTOMED GREETING "BON GIORNO."

"HI'YA KID," REPLIED THE NATIVE. THE SICILIAN TURNED OUT TO BE ONE TOM ADAMO, WHO'D PRESSED LADIES DRESSES IN BROOKLYN FOR 15 YEARS UNTIL HE MADE ENOUGH MONEY TO RETURN HOME. TOM SAID HE WISHED HE'D STAYED IN

30.24 - 6253

AMERICA.

IN THE CITIES THERE WAS OUTWARD EVIDENCE OF FRIENDLINESS AMONG MANY, OTHERS SEEMINGLY INDIFFERENT AND ANOTHER GROUP DEFINITELY HOSTILE. DURING THE FIRST SEVERAL DAYS THERE WAS CONSIDERABLE SNIPING IN THE STREETS AS THERE HAD BEEN UPON THE ORIGINAL LANDING IN NORTH AFRICA LAST NOVEMBER.

JUL 18 1943

BUT IT WAS EQUALLY COMMON FOR A SOLDIER TO BE STOPPED BY SOME SICILIAN TO INQUIRE IF THE YANK KNEW HIS RELATIVES IN CHICAGO. AND IT IS NOW BECOMING A COMMON SIGHT TO SEE HOUSEWIVES SWEEPING PICTURES OF MUSSOLINI INTO THE STREET WITH MANY A HEARTFELT SWEEP OF THE BROOM AS THE DUCE'S FACE WENT DOWN THE GUTTER.

AN ADVANCED BOMBER BASE IN NORTH AFRICA, JULY 16-(DELAYED)-THE BATTLE OF SICILY IS ALL SMOKE AND FIRE WHEN VIEWED FROM MORE THAN 10,000 FEET UP.IN THE SKY IN A B-25 GRANDSTAND SEAT.

ANXIOUS TO SEE HOW AN INVASION LOOKS FROM THE AIR, I RODE WITH A GROUP OF "WILD WILLIES" ON THE WAY TO BLAST TARGETS NOT SO FAR AHEAD OF AMERICAN TROOPS.

"ALLEY CAT II," A SHIP FORMERLY PILOTED BY CAPT.JOHN BURNS OF BERKELEY, CALIF., TOOK ME UP BUT LIEUT.DAN MCDUFF OF EAGLE PASS, TEX., WAS AT THE CONTROLS.

IT WAS EXACTLY 13 MONTHS AGO TODAY THAT MCDUFF WAS MARRIED BUT HE SAID HE IS NOT SUPERSTITIOUS.

JUL 18 1943

THE NAVIGATOR, LIEUT.ARNOLD BODINE OF NUNDA, N.Y., OFFERED ME

THE EARPHONES AND I HEARD THE BBC ANNOUNCING THE LATEST TOWNS THE GI'S AND BRITISH CAPTURED.

OVER THE MEDITERRANEAN MCDUFF POINTED DOWNWARD, SHOUTING: "CONVOY." AND SURE ENOUGH THERE WERE DOZENS OF BOATS OF ALL SIZES, DARTING IN MANY DIRECTIONS AND TRAILING WHITE FOAM.

MORE AND MORE BOATS WERE OBSERVED AS WE APPROACHED THE SICILIAN COAST. THEY BELONGED TO THE BIGGER ONES.

THE CO-PILOT, LIEUT.JOHN SHOLUND OF DULUTH, MINN., TURNED AND TOLD ME TO "PUT ON YOUR 'CHUTE BEFORE WE GET OVER THE TARGET."

IN FRONT OF US BLACK DOTS FELL AWAY FROM THE PLANES AS WE PASSED OVER THE TARGET. SUDDENLY THE BOMBARDIER, LIEUT.JOE BOYLE OF MANHATTAN, KAS., ANNOUNCED THAT WE HAD DROPPED OURS.

ANGRY CLOUDS OF DARK SMOKE SWIRLED UPWARD AND WITH GOOD REASON. THE OFFICIAL REPORT LATER SAID LACONICALLY "THE TARGET WAS WELL COVERED."

JUL 18 1943

FAR BELOW ONE ENEMY FIGHTER WAS OBSERVED IN A FIELD NEAR THE TARGET BUT I COULDN'T BLAME THE PILOT'S RELUCTANCE TO TAKE TO THE AIR.

NOT WITH THOSE SWARMS OF P-38S BUZZING AROUND US ON ALL SIDES.

TWICE DURING THE TRIP WE SAW FIGHTERS APPROACHING. THE FIRST GROUP TURNED OUT TO BE P-40S. THE SECOND WERE SPITFIRES.

WE DIDN'T SEE A SINGLE ENEMY PLANE IN THE AIR.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, JULY 17-(AP)-IT WAS JULY 13 AND THE 13TH RAID FOR LIEUT.ALVIN L.SIMEONSON OF BARRE, MASS., PILOT OF A MUSTANG FIGHTER-BOMBER.

THE LAST HIS FLYING BUDDY, LIEUT.JOSEPH J.CARPARELLI, 95 PARK AVE., HARRISON, N.Y., SAW OF HIM, SIMEONSON HAD FIVE ITALIAN FIGHTERS ON HIS TAIL IN THE HEART OF SICILY.

JUL 18 1943

AND THE LAST SIMEONSON SAW OF CARPARELLI "JOE WAS DIVING TOWARD THE GROUND OBVIOUSLY HIT, WITH AN ITALIAN RIGHT BEHIND HIM."

BUT TODAY AT AN ALLIED AIR BASE THEY HAD A REUNION--SAFE AND SOUND AND WITH ONE VICTORY AND ONE PROBABLE TO THEIR CREDIT.

"WE HAD BEEN ON A MISSION AGAINST SOME RAILROAD YARDS IN CENTRAL SICILY, SCORING WELL WITH OUR BOMBS. BUT WHEN WE PULLED OUT OF OUR DIVE, WE SAW OUR FORMATION TOO FAR AHEAD, SO JUST THE TWO OF US HEADED HOME AT TREE-TOP LEVEL," SIMEONSON RELATED.

"SUDDENLY JOE SAW SEVEN MACCHI 202'S BEARING DOWN ON US. I DON'T KNOW HOW MANY HIT-AND-RUN PASSES THEY MADE AT US, BUT ON ONE I FILLED AN ITALIAN WITH LEAD AND SAW HIM GO DOWN SMOKING. I DIDN'T SEE HIM HIT. SO IT'S ONLY A PROBABLE. I SAW JOE GET ONE AND WATCHED IT CRASH AND THE NEXT THING I KNEW JOE HIMSELF WAS DIVING IN TROUBLE.

"I TURNED INTO A MACCHI, MADE HIM BREAK OFF AND TURN TOWARDS ME SO SHARPLY WE BARELY MISSED COLLIDING.

"HE GOT A LUCKY BURST INTO MY ENGINE AND I KNEW I'D NEVER GET THE A-36 BACK TO TUNISIA.

"I JUST SPOTTED A PLACE NEAR CATANIA AND WAS GLIDING AT 1,000 FEET WHEN SMOKE AND FLAMES FROM THE ENGINE SUDDENLY CAME INTO THE COCKPIT. I JUMPED IN A HURRY."

INSTEAD OF COMING DOWN IN ENEMY TERRITORY, AS HE FEARED, SIMEONSON LANDED BEHIND THE FAR ADVANCED BRITISH LINE. TROOPS RUSHED UP THINKING HE WAS A GERMAN, BUT HIS NEW ENGLAND ACCENT BUT THEM RIGHT.

CARPARELLI SAID:

JUL 18 1943

30.24-6255

"I WAS SURPRISED TO SEE AL AGAIN. HE HAD FIVE FIGHTERS ON HIS TAIL AND I WAS TOO BUSY TO WATCH THE REST OF THE ACTION BECAUSE A MACCHI WAS BEHIND ME. WHEN I SHOOK OFF THAT ONE, TWO MORE FOLLOWED ME FIVE MILES OUT TO SEA. I'D BEEN HIT IN THE WING AND THE ENGINE, BUT I FLEW AS FAST AS I COULD UNTIL THEY STOPPED SHOOTING AND LEFT.

"I THOUGHT I WAS HOPELESSLY LOST OVER THE WATER BUT THE RADIO GOT ME HOME OKAY."

AN ALLIED FORCE COMMAND POST IN NORTH AFRICA, JULY 16-(DELAYED)-(AP)-A GERMAN SOLDIER WITH PERHAPS THE LOWEST MORALE IN THE NORTH AFRICAN-SICILIAN CAMPAIGN WAS CAPTURED THE FIRST DAY OF THE INVASION.

AN ANTI-AIRCRAFT GUNNER, HE HAD RETURNED RECENTLY FROM LEAVE IN THE MUCH-BOMBED CITY OF ESSEN IN GERMANY. WHILE HE WAS THERE ONE OF HIS FAMILY WAS KILLED IN AN AIR RAID WHICH ALSO INFLICTED PARTICULARLY HEAVY DAMAGE TO THE KRUPP WORKS. MANUFACTURE OF MUNITIONS STOPPED IMMEDIATELY, HE SAID, SO THAT ALL AVAILABLE WORKMEN COULD CLEAR UP THE DEBRIS.

JUL 18 1943

AFTER A FURLOUGH HE WAS SENT TO SICILY WHERE HE FOUND THAT MANY OF HIS FRIENDS HAD BEEN SENT TO TUNISIA AND SUBSEQUENTLY CAPTURED.

THE SITUATION THOROUGHLY DISHEARTENED HIM, HE SAID, PARTICULARLY BECAUSE THE ITALIANS HAD NEITHER THE SKILL NOR DESIRE TO PROGRESS. BUT HE WAS BACK ONLY TWO DAYS WHEN HE WAS CAPTURED BY THE BRITISH AND SAID THAT AS FAR AS HE WAS CONCERNED HE'D JUST AS SOON HAVE IT THAT WAY.

A DIRECT HIT ON ONE HANGAR RESULTED IN A LARGE FIRE, THE BULLETIN SAID. DISPERSAL AREAS AND RUNWAYS WERE REPORTED WELL COVERED WITH HITS. FOUR PARKED AIRCRAFT WERE SEEN BURNING ON THE GROUND.

"HEAVY FIGHTER OPPOSITION REAPPEARED," THE COMMUNIQUE DECLARED, LISTING 11 ENEMY PLANES AS DESTROYED, SEVEN OTHERS AS PROBABLY DESTROYED AND TWO MORE AS DAMAGED. THREE OF THE FOUR-ENGINED LIBERATORS WERE LOST IN THE RAID.

JUL 18 1943

A BRITISH MIDDLE EAST COMMUNIQUE SAID THE AIRDROME AT CROTONE IN SOUTHERN ITALY WAS BOMBED BY LIBERATORS AND RAF HALIFAXES THURSDAY NIGHT IN AN ATTACK THAT LEFT HANGARS ABLAZE AND THE ENTIRE BUILDING AREA OF THE AIRDROME BURNING.

THE THURSDAY NIGHT ATTACK APPARENTLY WAS CARRIED OUT WITHOUT LOSS TO THE ALLIES. THE BRITISH BULLETIN REPORTED THREE PLANES MISSING FROM BOTH THE BARI AND CROTONE RAIDS AND THE AMERICANS ANNOUNCED THAT FIGURE AS YESTERDAY'S LIBERATOR LOSS.

THE ISLAND WHERE THEY WERE MAROONED WAS NOT IDENTIFIED.

(THE HELENA WENT DOWN IN THE DARKNESS OF JULY 5-6 DURING A NAVY BATTLE IN WHICH AT LEAST NINE JAPANESE CRUISERS AND DESTROYERS WERE SUNK.

(PREVIOUS DISPATCHES HAVE DISCLOSED THAT AFTER THE HELENA WAS WOUNDED MORTIALLY BY A TORPEDO, MOST OF THE MORE THAN 1,000 MEN ABOARD HER, INCLUDING HER CAPTAIN, CHARLES P.CECIL, OF FLAT ROCK, N.C., WERE SAVED.

(SOME EYEWITNESS STORIES POINTED OUT THAT SOME OF THE RAFTS TO WHICH SURVIVORS WERE CLINGING WERE SEENDRIFTING NORTH WHICH WOULD CARRY THEM TOWARD THE JAPANESE-HELD ISLAND OF KOLOMBANGARA.

GUADALCANAL, JULY 16-(DELAYED)-(AP)-A YOUNG MARINE AND A YOUNG U.S. ARMY PILOT SHARED TOP HONORS WITH FOUR PLANES EACH IN THE AMERICAN AIR VICTORY OVER THE JAPANESE YESTERDAY WHEN 45 ENEMY BOMBERS AND ZEROS WERE SHOT DOWN NORTH OF RENDOVA ISLAND WITH THE LOSS OF BUT THREE OF OUR PLANES.

IT WAS THE SECOND 15 TO ONE AIR VICTORY MVER THE JAPANESE IN A MONTH.

(GENERAL MACARTHUR'S COMMUNIQUE SAID OF THE BATTLE: "OUR FIGHERS INTERCEPTED AND DISPERSED AN ENEMY FORMATION OF 27 BOMBERS AND 50 TO 60 ZEROS SHORTLY AFTER NOON, SHOOTING DOWN 15 BOMBERS AND 30 FIGHTERS. THREE OF OUR PLANES FAILED TO RETURN.")

FIRST LIEUT. ERNEST A. POWELL, 26, OF 212 EAST PARK WAY, NORTH, MEMPHIS, TENN., MARINE CORSAIR PILOT, SHOT DOWN TWO MITSUBISHI BOMBERS AND TWO ZEROS DURING THE 20 MINUTE ENGAGEMENT.

THREE BOMBERS AND ONE ZERO WERE DESTROYED BY FIRST LIEUT. JOE LESICKA, 23, WESTMORLAND, CALIF., 13TH U.S. ARMY AIRFORCE, FLYING A P-40.

JUL 18 1943

DURING THE BATTLE, WHICH REPULSED AN ENEMY ATTEMPT TO BLAST RENDOVA'S SUPPLIES AND SHIPPING FOR OUR TROOPS INVADING NEARBY NEW GEORGIA ISLAND, MARINE CORSAIRS BAGGED 16 ZEROS AND 13 1/2 MEDIUM BOMBERS. SIX P-40S WERE CREDITED WITH SHOOTING DOWN 12 ZEROS AND HALF THE CREDIT FOR A DESTROYED BOMBER. NAVY GRUMMAN WILDCATS CLAIMED THREE ZEROS IN THE BIGGEST SOLOMON ISLANDS DOG-FIGHT SINCE THE NEW SOUTHWEST PACIFIC OFFENSE STARTED JUNE 30.

A RENDOVA AIR OFFICER WHO REPORTED THE JAPANESE BOMBING RESULTS AS NEGLIGIBLE, DECLARED:

"IT WAS RAINING BOMBERS AND ZEROS UP THERE."

IN THE JAPS' LAST ATTEMPTED AIR ASSAULT ON GUADALCANAL JUNE 16, THE ENEMY LOST 94 PLANS. ONLY SIX U.S. PLANES WERE SHOT DOWN AND FOUR OF THESE PILOTS WERE RESCUED.

WHEN THE NEW GEORGIA OFFENSIVE WAS LAUNCHED JUNE 30, AMERICAN FIGHTERS SHOT DOWN 103 JAPANESE AIRCRAFT WITH A LOSS OF BUT ELEVEN OF OUR PLANES.

POWELL SAID HE HAD PLANNED TO GO AFTER THE BOMBERS BUT SAW AN AMERICAN PLANE COME BY WITH A ZERO ON ITS TAIL.

"I POURED A LONG BURST INTO THE ZERO. HE BURST INTO FLAMES AND WENT STRAIGHT DOWN," POWELL SAID.

POWELL PICKED OFF A BOMBER AT 15,000 FEET.

GUADALCANAL, JULY 14-(DELAYED)-(AP)-TWIN-ENGINED MITCHELL BOMBERS OF THE THIRTEENTH U.S.ARMY AIR FORCE BLASTED TWO SMALL JAPANESE CARGO SHIPS TO BITS TODAY AFTER A STRONG FORCE OF LIBERATORS AND FLYING FORTRESS HEAVY BOMBERS HIT LAST NIGHT AT THE ENEMY'S THREE REMAINING OPERATIVE AIRFIELDS IN THE SOLOMON ISLANDS.

AN INITIAL FLIGHT OF MITCHELLS FOUND THE FIRST CARGO VESSEL EARLY THIS MORNING IN BLACKETT STRAIT SOUTH OF KOLOMBANGARA ISLAND. THE SHIP WAS SET AFIRE BY BOMBING AND STRAFING RUNS.

THE SAME FLIGHT LOCATED THE SECOND SHIP OFF BAGA, A SMALL ISLAND WEST OF VELLA LAVELLA, WHICH LIES ABOVE KOLOMBANGARA. THIS VESSEL ALSO WAS LEFT BURNING.

ONE RESULT OF THE VISIT TO OTTAWA BY GEN. HENRI GIRAUD YESTERDAY WAS THE ASSIGNMENT FOR FRENCH AIR CADETS FROM NORTH AFRICA TO RECEIVE TRAINING IN CANADA'S JOINT AIR TRAINING PLAN UNDER THE MUTUAL AID LEGISLATION RECENTLY ADOPTED, KING TOLD THE COMMONS.

KING SAID CANADIAN AIRMEN IN RAF AND RCAF SQUADRONS HAD A LARGE SHARE IN SOFTENING UP SICILY, BY AIR ATTACKS AFTER THE CLOSE OF THE TUNISIAN CAMPAIGN.

"IT IS KNOWN THAT MANY MEMBERS OF THE RCAF ARE AMONG THE AIR CREWS WHICH NOW ARE OPERATING FROM CAPTURED AIRDROMES ON THE ISLAND," SAID KING, ADDING THAT IT WAS SAFE TO ASSUME THAT THERE WERE FEW, IF ANY, RAF SQUADRONS OPERATING AMONG THE FORCES AGAINST SICILY WHICH DID NOT INCLUDE CANADIANS.

(ADVANCE)--TORONTO, JULY 17-(AP)-THE STORY OF A 25-YEAR-OLD U.S. OFFICER WHO IS RUNNING A SICILIAN TOWN OF 20,000 PERSONS WITH THE ASSISTANCE OF A U.S. PARATROOPER WAS TOLD IN A DISPATCH RECEIVED HERE TODAY FROM PETER STURSBERG, CANADIAN BROADCASTING CORPORATION WAR CORRESPONDENT IN SICILY.

JUL 18 1943

THE OFFICER IS LIEUT. CHARLES PAPALARDO OF NEW YORK, WHO LANDED ON SICILY WITH A BRITISH UNIT AND SOON FOUND HIMSELF [illegible]

THE CAPTURED TOWN--WHICH WAS NOT NAMED--BECAUSE HE SPOKE SICILIAN, HIS PARENTS HAVING COME FROM THE CATANIA REGION. THE ASSISTANT IS PRIVATE HANK LOKOWSKY, WHO WAS DROPPED IN THE WRONG PLACE BY HIS PLANE WHEN HE CAME OVER SICILY WITH THE PARATROOPERS.

STURSBERG SAID PAPALARDO WAS WORRYING IN CASE THE PARATROOPERS WANTED LOKOWSKY BACK, WHICH WOULD LEAVE HIM TO CARRY ON ALONE IN THE TOWN WHERE HIS CHIEF PROBLEM IS TO FEED THE POPULATION.

PAPALARDO HAS ALSO ENLISTED THE ASSISTANCE OF THE LOCAL POLICE AND WHEREVER HE GOES THERE IS ONE OF THE FORCE AT HIS SHOULDER.

STURSBERG SAID HE AND FLYING OFFICER BOB FRANCIS OF VANCOUVER, FORMER MEMBER OF THE EDITORIAL STAFF OF THE CANADIAN PRESS AT OTTAWA AND NOW A PUBLIC RELATIONS OFFICER WITH THE RCAF VISITED THE TOWN TOGETHER.

JUL 18 1943

"WE HAD SUPPER WITH THE LIEUTENANT AND THE PARATROOPER," SAID STURSBERG. "SUPPER WAS A THREE-COURSE MEAL CONSISTING OF MACARONI, CUCUMBER SALAD AND FRIED POTATOES--AND THAT WAS THE BEST MEAL THE TOWN'S RESOURCES COULD MUSTER FOR THE COMMANDANTE."

THE WAR TODAY

JUL 18 1943

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE

DIVERS ELEMENTS GO TO MAKE UP THE VICTORY WHICH THE UNITED NATIONS ARE FORGING FROM WHITE-HOT STEEL, AND THE MASTERFUL MANNER IN WHICH THE SICILIAN STRONGHOLD HAS BEEN INVADED EMPHASIZES AGAIN THAT UNPRECEDENTEDLY UNSELFISH ALLIED COOPERATION IS THE RANKING REASON FOR SUCCESS.

NOW PLEASE DON'T START WRITING TO TELL ME OF WAR THEATERS WHERE AMERICANS AND BRITISH LOOK DOWN THEIR NOSES AT EACH OTHER. I KNOW ABOUT THAT FROM FIRST-HAND OBSERVATION, AND THINK IT'S TOO BAD. BUT THOSE CASES SEEM TO ME TO BE EXCEPTIONS TO THE RULE, ALTHOUGH I'M NOT SO NAIVE AS TO THINK ALL THE SPOTS OF BOTHER BETWEEN OUR TWO COUNTRIES HAVE BEEN RUBBED OUT.

JUL 18 1943

TAKING IT BY AND LARGE, THERE EXISTS BETWEEN THE ALLIES A CORDIALITY--AND IN MANY CASES A REAL COMRADERY--WHICH WASN'T EVEN DREAMED OF IN WORLD WAR ONE.

LOOKING BACK AT THE LAST FONCLICT, I RECALL TURNING MY BACK ON A BRITISG GENERAL AND LEAVING THE ROOM, BECAUSE HE MADE A BITTERLY DEROGATORY REMARK ABOUT A PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES. ON THE OTHER HAND, AS AN AMERICAN CORRESPONDENT AT BRITISH GENERAL HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE I SHALL NOT SOON FORGET THE CONSTERNATION CAUSED WHEN SOME AMERICAN OFFICERS, FRESH FROM THE UNITED STATES WITH NEWLY ARRIVED TROOPS, ANNOUNCED IN SO MANY WORDS THAT THEY KNEW HOW TO MAKE WAR AND DIDN'T WANT ANY ADVICE FROM THE BRITISH.

THAT SORT OF THING WENT ON, WITH AMERICANS, BRITISH, FRENCH AND OTHER ALLIES ALL CONTRIBUTING THEIR SHARE TO THE MESS. THE FEELING RAN FROM THE LOWEST TO THE HIGHEST PLACES, EVEN RESULTING IN SHOCKING JEALOUSIES AS TO WHICH ALLY SHOULD HAVE SUPREME COMMAND IN COMBINED OPERATIONS.

AND THE CIVILIAN POPULATIONS TOOK A HAND IN IT. AMERICANS GOT MAD BECAUSE BRITONS CALLED "ELEVATORS" "LIFTS," DOG GONE IT, AND THE ENGLISH MADE SNOOTY REMARKS ABOUT THAT AWFUL YANKEE NASAL TWANG.

WHAT A CHANGE NOW! WE ARE SWAPPING OUR RESOURCES AND OUR HOSPITALITY. THERE'S NO LIMIT TO THE EXCHANGE; THE LID IS OFF. ON THE BATTLE-FRONTS IT'S SHARE AND SHARE ALIKE, AND THE GREATEST SOLDPERS OF ONE COUNTRY ARE HAPPY TO SUBORDINATE THEMSELVES TO THE COMMAND OF A COLLEAGUE FROM ANOTHER NATION--IF THAT'S BEST FOR THE CAUSE.

THE REASON FOR THIS REMARKABLE CHANGE? WELL, LET'S NOT GET SENTIMENTAL BUT JUST CALL IT A HORSE-SENSE TRUCE.

JUL 18 1943

PERHAPS THE MOST POTENT FACTOR IN DRAWING US TOGETHER WAS THE MORTAL DANGER THE ALLIES WERE IN. WE FOUND OURSELVES FIGHTING FOR OUR VERY SURVIVAL AGAINST A BARBARIC ENEMY WHO HAD THE INITIAL ADVANTAGE. THEN, TOO, WE HAVE BEEN SMART ENOUGH TO PROFIT BY THE MISTAKES AND BICKERINGS OF THE LAST WAR.

NEVER BEFORE HAS THERE BEEN SUCH ALLIED COOPERATION, AND CONSEQUENT COORDINATION OF EFFORT, IN MAJOR MILITARY AND NAVAL OPERATIONS. NOT ONLY IS THERE COORDINATION OF THE THREE FIGHTING ARMS--AIR, LAND AND SEA--AMONG THE FORCES OF THE INDIVIDUAL NATIONS, BUT THIS COORDINATION EXTENDS TO THE COMBINED ALLIED FORCES. THAT IS TO SAY, ALL THE SERVICES OF EACH COUNTRY IN A GIVEN THEATRE ARE AT THE CALL OF THE COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF, TO INTERMINGLE AS HE CHOOSES. IT'S ONE FOR ALL AND ALL FOR ONE.

IT WAS THAT WILLING UNITY WHICH GAVE THE ALLIES THEIR VICTORY IN NORTH AFRICA. IT'S THE MAINSPRING OF THAT GREATEST OF ALL AMPHIBIOUS OPERATIONS WHICH IS BEING CARRIED OUT IN SICILY.

THE FAIR PROGENY OF THIS COOPERATION ARE MANY. ONE OF THE MOST STRIKING DEVELOPMENTS OF THE WAR IS THE SPECIALIZED TRAINING OF THE VARIOUS BRANCHES LIKE THE COMMANDOS AND PARATROOPS--IN MANY CASES A JOINT EFFORT. HISTORY NEVER HAS SEEN SUCH WELL PREPARED FORCES GO INTO BATTLE AS NOW ARE TAKING THE FIELD.

JUL 18 1943

MANY OF THE AMERICAN, ENGLISH, CANADIAN AND FRENCH SOLDIERS WHO FOUGHT THEIR WAY UP THE BEACHES OF SICILY FROM THE LANDING BARGES, UNDERWENT MONTHS--AND SOME OF THEM YEARS--OF TERRIFIC TRAINING WHICH WAS FAR MORE STRENUOUS THAN THE ACTUAL BATTLE EXPERIENCES. THEY NOT ONLY ARE PHYSICALLY PERFECT, BUT THEY KNOW THEIR JOBS THE WAY A PIANIST KNOWS HIS KEYS. THOUSANDS OF THESE SPECIALISTS RECEIVED THEIR TRAINING IN AN ALLIED CAMP.

THE ANTITHESIS OF THIS COOPERATION AND COORDINATION IS THE AXIS IMBROGLIO IN SICILY. THERE ITALIANS IN SOME PLACES ARE SURRENDERING RATHER THAN FIGHT FOR THE HATED BOCHE, AAA AAA A AAA AE REPORTED SHOOTING THEIR OWN ALLIES.

British Warship Shells Catania for Half Hour at Five-Mile Range.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 18—(AP) British Eighth army troops, driving deep across the plain toward Catania, have seized a vital position protecting the great seaport after the heaviest fighting to date in Sicily, reports relayed from an Allied command post announced tonight.

American troops, meanwhile, were battling 22 miles inland in central Sicily, rolling up a conquest which already has given the Allies one-third of Sicily.

The British made river crossings on to the flat plain, throwing infantry, tanks and anti-tank guns across a bridge seized by parachute troops Thursday, Associated Press correspondent Noland Norgaard reported from the advanced command post.

Mr. Norgaard said that the British, advancing all along the line, took one of the most important defense positions protecting Catania, taking numbers of German prisoners and leaving many German dead on the battlefield.

Catania, halfway along the east coast of Sicily, is the heart of Sicily's eastern defenses.

(Reuters said one of Britain "well-known battleships" bombarded the city from a five-mile range for half an hour at dusk Saturday.)

Thorough Plans Pay Dividends

In fighting against the bitterest type of opposition from the Germans on the difficult plain country near the coast, the British already were cashing in to the utmost on thorough planning and quick execution. They were unloading supporting arms for the first assault forces, particularly artillery and armor.

The American and Canadian forces to the west and in the center, respectively, were encountering only scattered and sporadic resistance in their steady drive into the interior of the island. There was nothing yet to indicate that the entire German-Italian garrison of Sicily was ready for a determined final stand.

The Canadians forces have advanced more than 30 miles from the south coast area where they made their initial landings.

The American Seventh army lunging northward broke a German counter-attack near Barrafranca, and apparently stood poised for a drive to the communications city of Caltanissetta.

Enna is 14 miles northeast of Barrafranca, and Caltanissetta lies 11 miles northwest.

Half Way Along South Coast

Other Seventh army units pushed westward after taking Agrigento and Porto Empdocle, big cities marking an advance more than halfway along the south coast of Sicily.

Thirty thousand prisoners have been captured in eight days, 20,000 of them by the Americans.

The crack British Eighth Army was battering against "especially strong" enemy resistance in closing upon Catania, today's communique said, and the British were officially reported to be seven miles from the burning city, torn by shell and bomb.

The attack of overwhelming power continued in the air, and Allied planes shattered Naples yesterday on the Italian mainland in the greatest raid yet witnessed in the Mediterranean theater.

Reach Catania Suburbs

Reports reaching here said British tanks already had pentrated Catania's suburbs after a combined land, sea and air bombardment, and that the enemy was regrouping at the base of Mt. Etna rising north of the city. These were not confirmed, however.

Other Allied units were pushing inland from the east coast, and observers said the Gerbini airbase network 12 miles west of Catania might be occupied soon. The Gerbini field with its nine satellites is one of Sicily's most important airdromes.

Axis defenders of Catania were suffering heavy losses in killed and captured, Allied headquarters declared.

A river bridge seven miles south of the city was saved from destruction by the enemy by British parachute troops landing ahead of the Eighth army.

In eight days of alternating swift advances and hard, slow fighting, Allied troops have overrun 3,300 square miles of Sicily, one-third the area of the mountainous bastion island.

(Four thousand prisoners were captured at Agrigento, including two Italian generals and their staffs, the British radio reported, and this presumably increased the total to 34,000.)

Agrigento was won after sharp fighting, and American artillery men played a major share in the victory, blasting out the Axis defenders with accurate fire and breaking up Italian attempts to counter-attack. U. S. Rangers seized Porto Empedocle.

Renewed U. S. Power

The capture of these two places sent the Yankee assault spreading inland with renewed power despite steady enemy opposition. Porto Empedocle is the terminus of the only mainline railroad running due north across the waist of Sicily to the northern port of Palermo.

Among prisoners falling to the American advance was General Laveronte of the 207th coastal division, the third Italian general captured in the first week of invasion. Italian morale was described as "typically low." Three of Mussolini's defending divisions have been officially put out of action since the campaign began.

Carrying the assault to the Italian mainland, more than 500 Allied bombers—Flying Fortresses, Wellingtons, Mitchells and Marauders from North Africa and Liberators from the Middle East—subjected the ravaged port of Naples to the heaviest aerial blow ever delivered in the Mediterranean.

Supply Line Shattered

This, the second major raid on Naples within three days, was believed to have virtually knocked out the enemy's chief supply line for the defense of southern Italy and Sicily. With Lightning fighters buzzing overhead and fighting off enemy interception, the Allied bombers made a fiery holocaust of the Naples dock area, the railroad yards, the royal arsenal and a torpedo factory.

Forty enemy planes were reported knocked down in yesterday's operations against a loss of 13 Allied craft. Gunners of the Liberators from the Middle East claimed 22 victims over Naples.

Paterno, 10 miles northwest of Catania, was heavily damaged by American Mitchells in a night attack.

General Montgomery has thrown some of his finest veteran forces into the struggle for Catania. With his right flank secured by the Allied navy, he is shoving forward in typical determined Montgomery fashion against the surviving elements of an original German force of 60,000 troops.

When British parachute troops seized the Primsola bridge seven miles south of Catania on Thursday they found it heavily mined, but removed the charges and British infantry soon gained complete possession of the area. It was the second time British parachute troops had saved a vital highway bridge in the drive up Sicily's east coast.

Nazis Stand Firm

Despite wholesale changes of corps and divisional commanders, the Italian army was reported still fighting poorly, but dispatches from the Catania front said the Germans there were making a genuine last-ditch struggle to hold the city, which is only 55 miles from Messina, across from the toe of the Italian mainland.

American Rangers seized Porto Empedocle, one of the few good harbors in southern Sicily, yesterday after nearby, Agrigento had fallen the previous night. The heights of Agrigento overlook and command the port, whose fall was a foregone conclusion once the Americans hauled their 155-millimeter "Long Toms" into position.

Deadly fire of the Long Toms was given principal credit for the capture of Agrigento, a city of 28,000 which had been heavily fortified by gun emplacements and concrete pillboxes. While guns of the Allied fleet shelled Agrigento itself, the Long Toms, pulled into position by Sicilian mules, laid down a devastating barrage that disrupted enemy defenses and made it impossible for reinforcements to reach the city. The fall of Favara had enabled the American artillery to concentrate on Agrigento.

Palermo—U. S. Goal

In throwing back an armored German counter-attack near Barrafranca, General Patton's forces were reported to have destroyed two of the enemy's 16 tanks. The American inland drive, with its spearhead now 22 miles from the coast, appeared designed to thrust directly across Sicily northward to Palermo and to cut the island's defenses in half.

The Allies have captured a number of six barreled smoke mortars from the Germans, a type first used against the British Eighth army in Africa and nicknamed at that time "Hitler's secret flop." Nazi propaganda had claimed that the mortar, fired from compressed air, shells, would blast out a soldier's lungs at 1,000 yards range. Actually it has been found ineffective at much closer range.

The Italian units reported completely wiped out since the fighting began were the 204th, 206th and 207th Italian coastal divisions and the 10th Bersaglierie regiment. The German Hermann Goering armored division has suffered extremely heavy losses, first against the Americans at Gela a week ago and now against the Eighth army at Catania.

Allied Losses Negligible

Allied losses have been far lighter than was anticipated, to the extent that much of the elaborate arrangements made for taking care of the wounded have not been needed. One British division actually landed without having a single man killed or seriously wounded.

At the end of the first week fewer than 100 seriously wounded had been flown to hospitals in North Africa, which had been prepared to receive between 10,000 and 20,000 wounded. Proportionately fewer Americans had been injured than British and Canadians, with the greatest number of killed, wounded and missing being among the airborne troops.

"You can say that, fortunately, all our estimates went astray," said a medical source.

NEW PHASE NEARS IN SICILIAN DRIVE

JUL 19 1943

Germans May Seek to Make Stand at Foot of Mount Etna.

By RELMAN MORIN

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 18—(AP) It has been eight days since the Allied invasion of Sicily began and for Fascists everywhere it has been an eight days that shook the world.

In a little over a week American, British, Canadian and French army troops have—Occupied 3,300 square miles of Sicily, roughly a third of the whole island.

Cleared more than 200 miles of coastline.

Taken more than 30,000 prisoners and inflicted terrible losses in killed and wounded on the German and Italian defenders so that three complete Italian divisions have been put out of action with their commanding generals and staffs captured intact.

Blown nearly 200 enemy aircraft out of the sky and destroyed or captured an even larger number on the ground.

Captured seven airdromes and a seaplane base, some of which already are harboring Allied planes.

Punched holes in the powerful defenses of central Sicily where Americans and Canadians have driven inland an average depth of about 23 miles.

Executed a powerful end run up the east coast for more than 50 miles, where the British are within seven miles of Catania, cornerstone of defense for a huge part of the island.

Badly manhandled, two blueribbon German armored divisions, the Hermann Goering and the 15th.

Cautious military operations headquarters will not admit it, but the fact remains that the moment the British take Catania the Sicilian campaign moves into another phase.

North of Catania, like a knot on a slab of wood, stands Mount Etna.

No roads run through that mountain area and the high ground around it. Some circle the region, but for 20 miles northward through the area there is no main artery big enough for an army.

That means that if the Axis attempts to fight a delaying action as the British Eighth army presses northward—and some observers believe the Germans will fight—the enemy's forces will be compressed into a narrow strip of land between the mountain walls and the sea.

The enemy's supplies must flow southward over that constricted area, and overhead there have been many hundreds of Allied bombers and fighter-bombers.

They can lay such a blanket of steel over a single roadway that a mouse could hardly run along it and live.

That probably is no place between Catania and Messina where Axis armies could make a stand. That is why the battle ranging at Catania may be the decisive action of the campaign.

The Axis armies may be able to fight at the front of Mount Etna, after giving up Catania, as long as they retain control of the main highway circling the seaward side of the mountain area or the road circling it on the inland side.

But they cannot live long there if either connection is cut with their main supply artery along the northern coast.

If they retire to Messina the whole island will resemble one of those goatskins Spanish peasants use for carrying wine. There is only one outlet and all the Italians and Germans in the central and northwestern parts of the island will have to hurry to get through it.

FASCIST SETUP ENDED IN SICILY BY ALLIED ORDER

JUL 19 1943

General Alexander, Military Governor, Issues Proclamation.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 18 — (AP) Gen. Sir Harold Alexander, in his first proclamation to the people of Sicily as Allied military governor of that island, today ordered all Fascist party organizations dissolved.

At the same time it was announced that Charles Poletti, a former Governor of New York who replaced Herbert Lehmann, is in Sicily in a general executive capacity with the Allied military government of occupied territory.

In addition to Mr. Poletti, other AMGOT leaders in Sicily include Major Henry T. Bowell of Stamford, Conn., who headed the AMGOT special school.

General Alexander's proclamation told Sicilians that all personal and property rights would be respected, ordered discriminatory laws annulled, and warned the people to refrain from acts of violence.

Eight Injunctions

It declared the purpose of the Allies was to deliver the people from the Fascist regime and restore Italy as a land of free people. Then it posted eight injunctions:

1—All governmental powers and jurisdiction in occupied territory were vested in himself as military governor, and in AMGOT (Allied Military Government of Occupied Territory.)

2—Exercise of the power of the crown of Italy shall be suspended during the period of military occupation.

3—All civilians must obey promptly any orders given by the Allied military government.

Respect Property Rights

4—Your existing personal and property rights will be fully respected and your existing laws will remain in force and effect except insofar as it may be necessary for me in the discharge of my duties to change or supersede them by proclamation."

5—The Fascist party will be dissolved and all discriminatory decrees and laws will be annulled.

6—"All administrative and judicial officials of provinces and communities and all other government and municipal functionaries and employes, and all officers and employes of state, municipal or other public services except such officials and political leaders as are removed by me are required to continue in performance of their duties subject to my direction."

7—Further proclamations will be issued as necessity warrants.

8—"So long as you remain peaceable and comply with my orders you will be subject to no greater interference than may be inevitable in view of military exigencies, and may go about your normal vocations without fear."

Allies Order Sicilians To Toss Out Fascism

Allied HQ., North Africa, July 18 (AP).—Gen. Sir Harold Alexander, in his first proclamation to the people of Sicily as Allied military governor of the island, today ordered all Fascist party organizations dissolved.

It was announced that Charles Poletti, who replaced Herbert Lehman as governor of New York, is in Sicily in a general executive capacity with the Allied military government of occupied territory.

William C. Chanler

Alexander's proclamation told Sicilans that all personal and property rights would be respected, ordered discriminatory laws annulled, and warned the people to refrain from acts of violence.

It declared that the purpose of the Allies was to deliver the people from the Fascist regime and restore Italy as a land of free people.

Besides Poletti, other AMGOT leaders now in Sicily or preparing include:

Lieut. Col. William C. Chanler, former corporation counsel of New York City, who heads the legal section.

Lieut. Col. Bernard Bernstein, former assistant counsel of the U. S. Treasury, assistant to the British Director for Public Welfare.

Lieut. Col. C. M. Spofford, former New York lawyer, an organizer of AMGOT, who is serving in a general capacity.

Col. Samuel Bowles, well-known former Yakima, Wash., criminal investigator, who heads the public safety division.

Col. Edgar Hume, Frankford, Ky., chief American health officer.

Col. John F. R. Seitz, Wilmington, Del., heading the division of civilian supply and resources.

Major Henry T. Rowell, Stamford, Conn., who headed the AMGOT special school.

Chanler Quit Job For Army Service

Lieut. Col. William C. Chanler, heading the legal section of AMGOT, left his post as Corporation Counsel of New York last Dec. 7 for active service in the Army. Chanler saw service in the last World War. Graduated from the Army Service School at Leavenworth, Kans., in 1917, he was commissioned a second lieutenant.

POTENT FIGHTER PLANE IS NAMED 'INVADER'

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 18—(AP) As far as American pilots are concerned, that powerful new fighter-bomber of theirs is neither the Mustang nor the P-51.

It's the "Invader."

"Of course we can't make an official request of anything," said Lieut. Col. John D. Stevenson of Laramie, Wyo., commanding the first A-36 unit in action in the Mediterranean, "but the boys already have taken up that name 'Invader' and we hope it sticks."

The A-36 was adopted from the well known P-51 Mustang fighter by the addition of dive brakes, bomb racks and slight changes in the engine. It can dive-bomb, glide-bomb or strafe. Since it was first used in the invasion of Pantelleria and later in Sicily, the pilots think it should have its own special name.

500 Bombers Blast Naples In Dawn to Dusk Air Attack

Hundreds of Tons of Explosives Rock Italian Mainland Port.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 18—(AP) More than 500 Allied bombers blasted the vital Italian port of Naples from dawn to dusk yesterday in the most shattering aerial attack ever carried out in the Mediterranean war theater.

Great fleets of heavy and medium bombers—most of them American—from bases in both North Africa and the Middle East rained hundreds of tons of high explosives on the important Tyrrhenian harbor, bringing to a thundering climax a 'round-the-clock assault on which blockbuster-carrying Wellingtons of the R.A.F. raised the curtain the previous night.

Paterno Raided

During this unprecedented offensive against Mussolini's mainland, other American daylight raiders attacked Paterno in Sicily ahead of the armies advancing toward the north coast. Paterno, northwest of the network of rivers running into the Catania plain, was punished with nearly 50 tons of explosives by Mitchell bombers which braved intense anti-aircraft fire to get to their targets.

Still other Allied bombers struck a heavy night blow at Catania, Sicily's principal eastern port and one of the keys to the entire Allied conquest of the island, while fighters and fighter-bombers continued their non-stop battering of troop concentrations, transport and communications behind the enemy lines.

Four-engined Flying Fortresses followed the night-flying Wellingtons over Naples to open the mammoth daylight assault. Then came Mitchell and Marauder medium bombers from North Africa and heavy Liberators from the Middle East.

Wave after wave of the terrifying bombers roared over the city, dropping blockbusters and 1,000-pounders which spread a carpet of flames over docks, rail yards, air fields and industrial areas. The Flying Fortresses returned twice to deluge their targets.

The major portion of the day-long assault was packed into less than two hours. Fires started throughout the industrial sections of the city by the saturation bombing caused smoke which rose to a height of 12,000 feet.

Fierce anti-aircraft fire met the first waves of attackers but enemy fighter planes were caught flat-footed until the Mitchells and Marauders, escorted by formations of Lightnings, reached the scene of destruction.

The Lightnings shot down several of the planes in the weak defense furnished by Field Marshal Gen. Albert Kesselring's Italian-German air forces.

A 9th U. S. air force headquarters communique said more than 75 four-engined Liberators participated in the Naples attack and dropped over 325,000 pounds of high explosives which caused extensive damage.

22 Enemy Planes Downed

"Concerted and prolonged attacks by large formations of enemy fighters were vigorously repelled, 22 enemy aircraft being destroyed with seven others recorded as probably destroyed," the Cairo bulletin declared. That battle brought to 40 the total enemy aircraft destroyed as announced in Allied communiques today. One of the Liberators failed to return.

The communique reported that a heavy concentration of hits covered the target area, that a number of very large explosions were followed by sheets of flame and that considerable damage was done to railroad tracks.

"Bursts were seen in the vicinity of the Royal arsenal, gas works, railroad stores, depot, roundhouse and locomotive repair shops and many fires were started," the bulletin added.

The Allied headquarters communique described the formations striking Naples from North Africa as "the strongest force of heavy and medium bombers ever to attack the Italian mainland."

All day and night operations by Allied planes from North African and island bases resulted in the destruction of 18 enemy aircraft, 13 by night fighters, against the loss of 12 Allied planes, the headquarters bulletin announced.

HOTTEST ASSIGNMENT WENT TO 1ST DIVISION

Veteran U. S. Unit Tackled Goering Tanks in Sicily

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 18 (AP)—Maj. Gen. Terry Allen's First Infantry Division, spearhead of the American thrust into Gafsa and Bizerte in Tunisia, had perhaps the hottest assignment of the American sector in the invasion of Sicily, it was permitted by censorship to be disclosed tonight.

The First Division tackled the beaches at Gela with Rangers in the vanguard, and for a few hours it seemed certain they'd be surrounded on three sides and driven back to the sea, but naval gunnery, a few field pieces and infantry bayonets saved the situation against the crack German Goering Division.

The Third Infantry Division had Licata and the near-by airfields as its immediate objectives on the American left flank. The Forty-fifth Division, on the other flank, moved in and fought right through to Vittoria, twelve miles from the coast.

It was in the center, where the First Infantry clashed with the Goering panzers, that the fighting was toughest before the First got its own tanks and cannon company equipment unloaded. They faced German Tiger and Mark IV tanks. They staved off the Nazis through Sunday, July 11, and early Monday, with their tanks and guns finally ashore, they slashed out and regained their farthest positions inland.

Three-Day Artillery Duel With Navy Joining In, Precedes Its Surrender to Americans

AGRIGENTO, Sicily, July 16 (Delayed) (AP)—Agrigento, key city of southern Sicily and one of the oldest towns in Europe, fell to the American Seventh Army early tonight, with the United States Navy and a regiment of long-faced Sicilian mules sharing in the victory.

The Fleet's guns bombarded the high-towered old town, which has seen many invasions through the centuries, and hundreds of mules were drafted from the surrounding countryside and put to work packing food and ammunition boxes across the hills to crews of 155-mm. "Long Tom" rifles that broke up a last-minute attempt by the Italians to bring up reinforcements for a counter-attack.

The defending Axis garrison found the cross-fire from the sea and land batteries too hot and capitulated. Enemy troops surrendered by the thousands as creeping artillery barrages smoked them out of their defenses.

In a melodramatic effort to retain control of the city, which is a main road and communications center, the Italian commander rushed into the battle zone two battalions of reinforced infantry from Aragona, northeast of Agrigento.

"Long Toms" Too Much for Foe

Our "Long Toms" promptly took them under fire as they were getting out of their trucks. Heavy shells rained into the area exploding with terrific power. No enemy troops in North Africa had been able to stand up against the battling might of this long-mouthed gun and neither could these Italians. Remnants of the units jumped back into the trucks and sped away toward Aragona without firing a shot.

Success of the 155-mm. batteries in breaking up the enemy's reinforcement battalions brought to a climax a three-day artillery duel in which the Italians were taught lesson No. 1 in a branch of warfare at which they are acknowledged to be no slouches.

The seizing of Agrigento, a city of 28,000 population whose crumbling gray buildings are perched on a great hill and protected on three sides by cliffs, assured Allied control of Porto Empedocle, one of the few good harbors in southern Sicily. The heights of Agrigento overlook and command the port.

A United States cruiser and two destroyers began the shelling of the ancient city, now shrunken from its former glory in the Roman Empire. It was a tough nut to crack because of the huge number of gun emplacements and concrete pillboxes along the coastal road from Licata to the east.

The American general in command shrewdly abandoned this natural route and after an enveloping action began to drive from the north. The town of Favara fell last night and with this hurdle out of the way the artillery was able to concentrate on Agrigento itself.

City's Defense Points Strong

The city was heavily defended with pillboxes emplaced in the mountainous approaches and a number of mobile artillery batteries. It was suicidal to attempt to storm these barriers head-on. The infantry wedged through as the American artillery systematically blasted the Italian strong points one after the other.

By mid-afternoon more than 600 Italians, the majority of whom were artillerymen, straggled back from the front as prisoners of a single regiment. As dusk fell the engagement became a rout and the attackers embraced the city, where those residents who had not fled to the hills had lived in terror for three days.

Driving toward the front line along the Naro-Favara road in a jeep, we passed a convoy of sixteen Italian trucks and 400 Italian prisoners, dirty, weary and unshaven.

"They had been in pillboxes and gun positions for more than a day and a half without water when we captured them, and when we led them to the creek they quarreled for places and sank down on their knees and drank like animals," said Sgt. E. L. Henson of San José, Calif., who, with Privates B. Smith of Gardner, Mass., and Edwin Rodrigues of San Francisco, was guarding the prisoners.

At a command post between Favara and Agrigento, Lieut. Abner Kuperstein of San Francisco said that most of the trouble came from Italian batteries; that the Americans were meeting comparatively few enemy infantry and had captured 200 who tried to make a stand with a few machine guns and an anti-tank gun by a broken bridge down the road.

Within two hours the entire Italian front ringing Agrigento broke and a reinforced infantry regiment took the city.

Sicilian Farmers Cooperate country through which even the jeeps were unable to force a trail.

"The Sicilian farmers have been cooperating wonderfully in rounding us up mules and horses," he said. "They know that they can trust the American Army to treat them right. Without the pack trains it would be almost impossible to get ammunition and food to some of our boys in those hills."

Many of the invading United States troops have relatives here and a number of the boys have been able to visit them already. Their knowledge of the language and customs in many cases has helped smooth the way of the occupying forces. There have been few troublesome incidents.

Sicilians did not blow up bridges or burn fields to delay the invader as did the Russians when the Germans attacked. The Sicilians never liked the war and never made any bones about it. Within two days after the landings their railroads were carrying American military supplies along the coast.

guns and heavy machinegun posts along the low saddle of the hillside. You could drive as far as a certain factory in perfect safety. But once you got beyond that you were as good as dead. They had every inch of the shallow valley covered.

The American troops had sidled around to the northeast and north of the town seeking another entry. So by devious country lanes inches deep in dust we made our way round after them.

In remoter villages children were still shouting enthusiastically after us in the streets and men and women had still not gotten beyond the stage of giving every Allied soldier a "V" for victory sign.

As we got near the front again we found the wreckage of an Italian motor transport column at least two miles long.

Each truck stood in a little circle of blackened roadway, with every non-metal part burned away. There were huge bomb craters nearby, but most of the damage seemed to have been done by machinegun fire. At one point a

Confused Battle Marks Fall Of Agrigento to Americans

Italians Give Up After Delaying Yank Troops One Day.

WITH AMERICAN FORCES AT AGRIGENTO, Sicily, July 17—(Delayed) Agrigento, principal city of southern Sicily, fell in the cool of the evening after a day of confused battle.

It was a hot, still day. The rattle of machineguns was sometimes almost drowned by the clamor of corncrakes (railbirds) in the fields. But sometimes the fighting surged up to a greater intensity than had yet been experienced on the American left wing front.

Guns Well Placed

At breakfast time Italian guns firing from cunningly-placed positions around the city began to rake the countryside in a tentative, spasmodic barrage. Some of the shells set afire the dry stubble in the cornfields and the parched scrub on the mountainside.

The way into the city along the coast was blocked by anti-tank vineyard ... ring the road was heaped w... boxes of live shells which had been rescued from some burning truck.

500 Prisoners March Along

Then we met about 500 Italian infantrymen trudging wearily back into captivity. There isn't enough transport ashore yet to spare any for prisoners and they must go on foot like our own infantry has been doing.

The guns were firing steadily now from the almond orchards an olive groves all around Agrigento. Their shells were dropping on that line of resistance down by the coast. Every now and then someone down by the sulphur works would poke up his tin hat on the end of a stick to see whether the Italians were still firing. Each time a burst of machinegun fire came singing over.

Near where I lay a mule and donkey yoked together were going around in endless circles treading out corn. Girls were walking down to the well with earthenware pitchers carried on their heads. Two peasants were haggling with an American sergeant who was requisitioning mules to take food and ammunition up to the remote batteries. In country so rocky and hilly pack animals often are essential.

Suddenly the shelling stopped and the mortars began to fire. Then the Italians gave up. They came out of their positions waving white underwear in token of surrender. A party was sent off to round up the prisoners.

The way up to Agrigento was free.

Last Defense Fails

But there was one more interruption. From the village of Aragana up to the north two battalions of Italian infantry came down in trucks. At a certain point in the road they started to form up for a counterattack.

Swiftly, American guns were swiveled around. Shells whistled across the steep valley where the country folk still were busy with crops. The Italians after a few moments of chaos got back into their trucks and drove away.

So the hilltop city of Agrigento fell. The sun was setting and the air was growing cool when the infantry started to climb into the steep, cobbled streets. Some 4,000 Italians surrendered.

And the peasants came back from their fields as though nothing had happened.

PARATROOPS SAVE BRIDGE TO CATANIA

Drop From Sky Around Span 7 Miles South of City and Remove Axis Mines

CLING TO IT MANY HOURS

Finally, Outnumbered 10 to 1, Ammunition Gone, Retire—But 8th Army Arrives, Crosses

By NED RUSSELL
For the combined American Press

LENTINI, Sicily, July 17 (Delayed)—Small forces of the British and Axis armies struggled savagely today for the 420-foot bridge spanning a deep, turbulent river cutting across the middle of the great Catania Plain while both sides rushed guns, tanks and infantry onto the plain for a pitched battle.

This congested little village overlooking the Catania Plain fell late yesterday. Its fall, however, was outshone by the furious hand-to-hand struggle ... by a small band of fewer than ... wo hundred British paratroops ... o for long hours held off forces ten times their number and secured the bridge, which is the key to the whole plain.

The paratroops dropped around the bridge, seven miles south of Catania and removed mines with which the Germans planned to demolish the bridge.

The paratroops were soon discovered as the regular British infantry were storming through the tough, preciptous mountains protecting Lentini from the south.

While the battle for Lentini was raging in the mountains heavily superior Italian forces swarmed onto the paratroops and fought them all day long under a hot sun.

Finally last night as Lentini's last defenses were battered to flaming ruin and the British infantry rushed to relieve the paratroops the Italians seized the bridge. The paratroops had been compelled to retreat because they had only four rounds of ammunition left in the whole force.

But two hours later British infantry from Lentini reached the bridge after several light but furious moonlight skirmishes along the main coastal road as the Germans fought a series of running rearguard battles. The British infantry clung desperately to the bridge's southern end until about dawn when the assault was renewed.

The British were near collapse from exhaustion but after a bloody struggle two companies forced their way across the bridge and fought to tighten their grip on it for others to cross it.

The Germans, however, counterattacked quickly, realizing the great strategic importance of the bridge and sent the weary British infantry back.

In a few moments of German control of the bridge, the Germans placed an aerial torpedo in the middle of the span and exploded it from fuse on the northern side, blasting a big hole.

The bridge still could be crossed by infantry but not until repaired, by tanks and vehicles.

The bridge became a sort of no man's land with German and British infantry hiding around the two ends sniping at each other.

British Hold Bridge South of Catania 24 Hours, Fall Back With 4 Bullets Left

By Ned Russell (U.P.)

LENTINI, Sicily, July 15 (Delayed).—British and Axis troops fought today under a blistering sun, choked by dust and raked by bombs and artillery shells, for the 420-foot Primosole Bridge, south of Catania, which 200 British parachutists had held for nearly twenty-four hours—until they had only four bullets left—against 2,000 Germans and Italians.

The parachutists almost brought it off. They were dropped Tuesday night about ten miles south of Catania with orders to seize and hold the bridge. But, with their ammunition gone, they had to retreat just as a small force of British infantry arrived to reinforce them. But the enemy attacked strongly. The British troops were forced back and the fight has gone on since then.

[British reinforcements brough up from south of the Primosol Bridge finally forced a way acros the span, according to dispatche from North Africa on Sunday.]

The Primosole Bridge, spannin the confluence of three turbulen rivers, cuts across the middle o the great Catania plain and is th key to it.

Both the British and the Axi forces rushed guns, tanks and in fantry to the plain for a battl while the smaller forces on eithe side of the bridge exchanged fir

As soon as the parachutists wer dropped Tuesday night they re moved the demolition charges wit which German troops had planne to blow up the bridge.

The parachutists were soon dis covered. For hours, throughou Tuesday night and Wednesday, th parachutists fought on again constantly increasing numbers o enemy troops.

Two Hours Too Late

This congested little village, overlooking the plain, fell Wednesday to a three-pronged attack by British infantrymen who stormed it, hitting headlong at its main defenses, while the parachutists to the north fought desperately.

On Wednesday night the last defenses of Lentini were battered down and the British troops entered amid billowing smoke and dust clouds.

Without pausing for food or rest troops in the advanced British forces hurried on to the relief o the parachutists. They were about two hours too late. They fought mile by mile in the moonlight against the Germans in their path who put up a series of running rear-guard actions.

The paths through the sun baked rock mountains were littered with burned and smoking wrecks of guns and Bren gun carriers. Black, charred bodies lay grotesquely on the battlefield.

The British infantrymen finally reached the bridge. They held its southern end until about dawn. They were almost exhausted, but they attacked. Two companies of them, after a fight, forced their way across the bridge and attempted to extend their bridgehead so that troops behind them might cross.

But the Germans counter-attacked in strength and the British troops were forced back again.

Nazis Blast Hole in Bridge

The minute they fought their way out onto the bridge, the Germans placed an aerial torpedo in the middle of it. They exploded it with a fuse extended from the northern side and blasted a big hole in the structure. Now the bridge can still be crossed by infantry but not by vehicles.

The bridge now is a sort of no man's-land. German and British infantrymen, hiding behind rocks or in holes in either side of the river, are sniping at each other, maintaining fire while shells and bombs crack down on them and low-flying planes machine-gun them.

The British are hurrying up their guns. German planes are flying over the British lines so low that the British anti-aircraft guns are firing almost without elevation.

Somewhere north of the river, according to reconnaissance reports, 100 truckloads of German infantry and numerous tanks are converging on the plain from the mountains west of Catania. Behind Lentini sweating infantrymen are plodding up toward the town and the bridge.

Allied Losses in Invasion Far Lighter Than Feared

First Week Saw 100 Flown to Hospitals, Ready for 10,000

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 18 (AP).—Allied losses in Sicily have been far lighter than was expected, to the extent that much of the elaborate arrangements made for taking care of the wounded have not been needed, it was reported here today. One British division landed without having a single man killed or seriously wounded.

At the end of the first week fewer than 100 seriously wounded had been flown to hospitals in North Africa, which had been prepared to receive between 10,000 and 20,000 wounded. Proportionately fewer Americans had been injured than British and Canadians, with the greatest number of killed, wounded and missing being among the air-borne troops.

"You can say that, fortunately, all our estimates went astray," said a medical source.

Kin in Sicily Greet Yanks

With the American Seventh Army in Southern Sicily, July 13 (Delayed) (AP).—The spreading American and British forces are mushrooming out through Sicily, and many of the invading Yank troops have already been able to visit relatives here. Their knowledge of the language and customs has helped smooth the way for the occupation forces.

Sicilians did not blow up bridges or burn fields to delay the invader as the Russians did when the Germans attacked. The Sicilians never liked the war. Within two days after the landing, their railroads were carrying American supplies along the coast.

Fascist Leader Admits Italy's Peril Is Grave

Scorza Orders Soldiers and Civilians to Fight to End; 4 Classes in Labor Draft

LONDON, July 18 (AP).—Acknowledging that Italy's "condition is very grave," Carlo Scorza, the Fascist party's new secretary-general, told Italian soldiers and civilians today that they must resist to the end or suffer "the most severe penalties."

The talk to the garrisons defending Sicily and to those on the mainland was in the form of a Rome radio broadcast and came as a reply to last week's Allied ultimatum to the Italians.

An earlier Rome broadcast said Italy had swung her economy over to a complete war footing and had drafted thousands of persons for labor service in preparation for an invasion of her mainland.

Stores and establishments not connected with the war effort have been closed and four age groups have been called up for labor duty in new emergency measures, said the broadcast, which was recorded by The Associated Press.

The Rome radio announced that the 1922, 1923, 1924 and 1925 age groups (persons born in those years) had been called up for work wherever war production or air-raid protection services required. The call presumably referred to members of those age classes who had not been drafted for military duty. Wherever possible, women are to be substituted for male workers between eighteen and forty-five years old.

Road construction and road installation in Italy were ordered halted instantly where such works were not vital for the conduct of war.

"Resist Is Order of the Day"

Scorza said the Fascists could "justify this war" and that "neutrality for Italy was impossible." He contended that he was "explaining, not justifying."

"Resist and continue to resist is the order of the day for every one," he declared.

"For two years," he said, "Italy has fought against the most powerful fleet in the world. For only ten months Britain, with the help of America, has been able to take the Mediterranean initiative.

"The Italians know this is a war of continents. The Italians know this is a war of race, with the British and Americans as the vanguards of the inferior hordes.

"Two empires—the richest in the world—now are bearing down upon Italy. For all Italians without distinction who want to live as free Italians there is only one faith—Italy.

"Now that we have been obliged to take the defensive, should we then despair any more than the enemy has despaired? All of us at this moment are on our feet, one mass ready to do our duty, whatever happens."

Hint of Withdrawal Seen

"We do not hesitate to proclaim that the occupied territories are of only relative importance," said Scorza, who was hinting, perhaps, at the need of withdrawing Italian garrisons from such areas as France and the Balkans.

"The most severe penalties must fall upon those who do not resist and who are not willing to die at their posts," he asserted.

"Our faith in victory is unbroken. Italians have no reason to turn against their government.

"Italy is morally strong enough to withstand the setbacks of her African empire. We can justify this war. It was necessary for strategical, economic and political reasons.

"Today we defend our ideals, traditions and Catholic faith against Bolshevism and Anglo-Saxon chaos. The entire nation, from Il Duce to the last Black Shirt, is determined to hold fast."

A Berlin broadcast heard here by The Associated Press quoted "Il Popolo D'Italia," Rome newspaper, as saying that the Allies had offered Italy "loss of her national honor, thousand-fold destruction and humiliation, thousand-fold robbery, the insult of French Army occupation consisting of Moroccan and Senegalese detachments, hunger and slavery and a United States police force of Europe, ruin of war conducted on Italian soil and, ultimately, Italian renunciation of all historical opportunities."

Rome continued to tell the nation it need not expect reinforcements from the Nazis because "it is no accident" that the German General Jacob in charge of fortifications at present is inspecting defenses of Greece, Crete and the Dodecanese.

A Wilhelmstrasse spokesman in these dispatches said that the appeal came "too early" because the Allies still have not made sufficient progress in Sicily, and asserted that the use of Sicily as an immediate background for the appeal for surrender was "laughable" because Axis defense on Sicily was stiffening.

This report was intended for use only abroad, because the German press has not yet mentioned the ultimatum.

ALLIED WARNING TO ITALY BECOMES MAJOR WAR STROKE

War of Nerves Proves Important Parallel to Sicilian Drive.

JUL 19 1943

BERN, Switzerland, July 18. — (AP) The appeal of President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill for the people of Italy to capitulate had become today the chief weapon of a major offensive in a war of nerves—a parallel to the battle of arms in Sicily and of equally vital importance.

European reaction generally was that it was well-timed but that the result would not become fully apparent until fighting in Sicily ended.

Quick victory there, as now seems likely, could create a physical shock to enhance greatly the Allied invitation to the people to give up; it would have such "political and moral importance that one justly can consider it as marking the turning of the history of the war," the Lausanne Tribune declared.

Gained Advantage

The appeal already had attained one decisive victory: it was so generally distributed by Allied radio leaflets that it compelled distribution and publication by the Fascist press. Despite accompanying Fascist attacks against the text, it gained the advantage of being made known to all the people.

"The Allies have been aided by the regime they would overthrow," wrote Rene Baume, leading editorialist of Lau Suisse.

The difficulties of actual revolt by the Italian people admittedly were great in the face of the army, Fascist militia and secret police, plus lack of arms (unless the army itself joined).

European commentators nevertheless saw the possibility of two closely linked results of the appeal that could achieve the military aim of the Allies:

1. It placed in sharp relief the question of prestige of leaders "whereon the morale of the nation depends in a large measure," in the view of the Lausanne Tribune. Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill told the Italians their position militarily was in effect hopeless. Mussolini said in 1937 that Sicily never could be invaded. He has said repeatedly since then that the European fortress could not be invaded successfully, the last time June 24.

Paralysis Possible

2. Granting that the Fascist military police could prevent an outright revolt, if the appeal inspired increasing interior discontent and demonstrations, "the conduct of the war soon could be paralyzed in Italy and the Allies could set foot there without too great loss," concluded Rene Baum.

3. An element which may be of greater importance than any word or military action by the Allies insofar as morale is concerned is the apparent lack of large and speedily-sent German reinforcements. The Fascist press itself served to foster this feeling that its big Axis partner was too busy in Russia to be of much help to the Italians, despite the alliance, concluded May 22, 1939, to "work side by side with our united help."

WAVE OF ARRESTS SWEEPING FRANCE

JUL 19 1943

Vichy Police and Nazi Troops Imprison All Suspected Likely to Aid Allies

200 HELD IN HAUTE SAVOIE

Laval's Paper Derides United Nations' Invasion Plans, Says We Lack Means

BERNE, Switzerland, July 1 (AP)—The Vichy police and Germa occupation troops in France ha started sweeping raids against emies of Pierre Laval's Gove ment and those considered l join a popula prising in the even of Allied invasion, dispatches t Switzerland disclosed tonight.

Two hundred persons were ar rested in the huge police drive i Haute Savoie Province, adjoinin Switzerland, a dispatch to th newspaper Suisse reported. Man Italian troops are moving out o this area, being replaced with Ger mans. The Nazi occupation force also made arrests independent o the Vichy clean-up.

"The operations are creating considerable commotion among the people," the Suisse said.

Those arrested included suspected de Gaullists, Socialists and Communists, and others politically active before the war.

At least twelve persons, warned in advance, fled to the hills. It was said, too, that the police made no effort to halt those who escaped, refusing to fire on them.

It was not known how many persons had been arrested by Axis troops, but the dispatch indicated that the raids were more widespread than last winter's drive to force Frenchmen to work in Germany.

Two reasons were apparent—the Nazis fear sabotage hindering their own feverish anti-invasion preparations, and Chief of Government Laval fears a partisan war if France is invaded.

Deat Rebukes Laval

M. Laval recently wrote to the German-controlled Paris newspaper Petit Parisien of his concern that an Allied invasion would bring a "fatal crisis"—a popular uprising that would increase the number of assassinations occurring in the country. He appealed to the opposition not to bring these "terrible consequences" upon France and then once more added his belief that Germany was invincible and any invasion would be "doomed to failure."

Marcel Deat, a political opponent of M. Laval and ardently pro-Axis, realistically declared in his newspaper that civil war could be expected in France and blamed M. Laval for failure to prevent the assassination of occupation troops by pro-Allied Frenchmen, sabotage, resistance to labor service and aid given those patriots fleeing the country.

M. Deat also urged a swifter development of a French militia, declaring it was the only hope for "the protection of collaborationists" once underground opposition breaks out in full force.

RUSSIANS BLAST FOUR-MILE BREACH IN OREL DEFENSES

5,000 Nazi Troops Wiped Out in Counter-Offensive, Many Towns Taken.

98 TANKS SMASHED

Reds Take Heavy Toll of Enemy Equipment in Two Days.

JUL 19 1943

LONDON, Monday, July 19 — (AP) The Red army punched another four-mile hole in Germany's strong hedgehog defenses around Orel yesterday, capturing a number of villages and wiping out 5,000 enemy troops in its first successful summer counter-offensive, it was announced early today in Moscow.

German reserves rushed into action on the rain-swept front failed to stop the Red army avalanche converging on Orel from the north, east, and south. In a week the Russians have gained from 26 to 50 miles in the huge wheeling movement which already is threatening the vital Orel - Bryansk railway northwest of the city.

A special communique announced that 78 German tanks and 20 armored cars had been knocked out and 137 planes destroyed during Saturday. A midnight bulletin issued later said 5,000 Germans had fallen Sunday as the Red army overran several more villages.

20 Tanks Smashed in Day

Approximately 20 German tanks, 61 guns, 25 mortars, and 133 machine-guns were destroyed during Sunday's fighting, but full details on the toll of Nazi equipment during the day will not be available until later.

The Germans lost an entire battalion vainly trying to hold one strongly fortified village, said the midnight bulletin, recorded by the Soviet monitor. They also failed to prevent Russian capture of several warehouse stocked with arms and foodstuffs.

Three thousand Germans were slain in another area.

Altogether the Russians gained from two to four miles yesterday, but the communique did not specify the localities. Two days ago the Russians had been reported less than 25 miles from Orel and even closer to the Bryansk railway behind the city.

(A London radio report recorded by CBS said the Russians were only 10 miles north of the main highway and railroad between Orel and Bryansk, and that "supply trains between the two towns already have come under fire from forward Soviet reconnaissance troops.")

Strenuous Nazi Efforts

Fighting in the Caucasus northeast of Novorossisk continued, the communique said, and in one action the Germans lost 300 troops and eight tanks. The enemy "made strenuous attempts to regain positions lost by him in the last few days," it added.

A German submarine also was sunk in the Black Sea, Moscow said while in the Barents sea one coastal vessel and a transport were sunk and two other ships were damaged.

Foreign military observers in Moscow were impressed by the immense strength of the Red army, and its ability to spring a counter-offensive after absorbing the heavy initial German offensive which began July 5 and petered out in less than a week.

The losses announced today by the Russians raised the reported toll of Nazi equipment to approximately 3,500 tanks and 2,005 planes since July 5. German casualties were believed nearing the 50,000 mark.

Soviet Losses Heavy

Russian losses also apparently were heavy, but dispatches have stressed the fact that the Russians, through their own arsenals and those of the United States and Britain, now are stronger than ever while Germany's output is declining.

The Russian air force —now considered equal or superior to Germany's — again attacked Orel's rail yards Saturday night, Moscow said. Karachev, 50 miles northwest of Orel on the railway to Bryansk, and Navlya, 25 miles south of Bryansk, also were hammered to check the flow of German reinforcements to threatened Orel.

A large number of parked enemy planes also were destroyed or damaged in a series of raids on German rear airdromes, the broadcast said. Three Russian planes were lost.

The special communique reported "active reconnaissance" today around Belgorod to the south of Orel.

Moscow Press Warns Nazis Will Be Punished for Atrocities

LONDON, Monday, July 19 (AP) —Before a crowd of 30,000 who cheered as they watched, eight Russian quislings were hanged Sunday in the city square of Krasnodar in the Caucasus, the Moscow radio announced today.

Thousands of farmers in the area came to see the executions, said the broadcast, recorded by the Soviet monitor, and "the reading of the sentence was met with prolonged applause."

The eight were convicted Saturday of high treason in aiding the Germans, who occupied Krasnodar last fall and were driven out during the winter. Three others convicted with them were sentenced to twenty years' imprisonment at hard labor.

Hoover, Bullitt Also Assailed for Plans 'Hostile' to Russia

MOSCOW, July 18 (AP)—The Soviet trade union magazine, War and the Working Classes, today criticized the Hearst newspapers, former President Herbert Hoover and William C. Bullitt, former Ambassador to Russia, for promoting post-war reconstruction plans which it termed "hostile to the U.S.S.R."

It declared the persons it criticized, as well as some British publications, were "Nineteenth Century," but said "the isolationists and the Munich clique fail to speak for the democratic masses."

Particular objection was mode to what was described as a Polish plan for an east European federation consisting of a bloc of small and medium-sized nations.

"It is not difficult to see that while the plan presumably is directed against future German aggression, it is no less directed against the Soviet Union," the magazine said.

LONDON, July 19 (Monday) (AP). — British bombers and fighter planes attacked enemy airport facilities in France and shipping off the Dutch coast last night for the second time in twenty-four hours, the Air Ministry announced early today.

Typhoon bombers supported by fighters destroyed two enemy aircraft at the Abbeville airfield in occupied France, while coastal command Beaufighters escorted by Spitfires and Typhoons attacked an enemy convoy off the Netherlands coast, damaging two ships. Four enemy fighter planes were destroyed.

Mustangs on patrol off the Dutch coast shot down two enemy planes Eight British planes were missing after Sunday's operations.

British fighter planes, on Saturday night, made widespread sweeps over France, Holland and Belgium, ripping into railway targets as well as airfields and shipping, at a cost of one British plane. An enemy bomber which approached the south coast of England Saturday night was shot down.

The Berlin radio declared ten Allied bombers were shot down in the American raid on Amsterdam yesterday, although the 8th United States Army Air Force announced the loss of but two. Another German broadcast declared that two enemy planes were destroyed during "several nuisance flights" over Germany last night.

The British announced that more than 1,000 acres of the German industrial city of Cologne were devastated, many Nazi war plants blown to pieces and scores of others damaged by the latest three heavy attacks on that key Rhineland production center. An Air Ministry report said reconnaissance photographs showed that two factories owned by Humboldt-Deutz, second largest producers of submarine Diesel engines in the Reich, were among those severely damaged.

The Air Ministry said so much smoke hung over the city after the raids of June 28 and July 3 that it was difficult to get a detailed picture of the full damage. A reconnaissance flight more than a week after the latest raid, July 8, showed fires still burning in stores of the I. G. Farben chemical works at Leverkusen. Other plants destroyed or badly damaged included the Nippes railway workshop, Gas Fabrik, L. Mellamanns works and Franz Clouth rubber factory.

Photographic evidence also confirmed that heavy damage was done to two foundries, a machine shop and a joinery workshop of the Peugeot motor works at Montbeliard, in eastern France, which was hit by Halifaxes Thursday night.

Berlin Tells of Naval Clash

LONDON, July 18 (AP).—The Berlin radio, in a broadcast by D. N. B., the German official news agency, recorded by The Associated Press, said that light German naval units were attacked by enemy speed boats off the Dutch coast early this morning.

POLISH PILOT WINS D. F. C.

Receives U. S. Decoration for Escorting 'Fortressses'

LONDON, July 18 (AP)—Squadron Leader Teddy, a Polish Spitfire pilot who has battled Germans in the skies over three nations since September, 1939, today wore a brand new red, white and blue medal and ribbon given him by his latest comrades-in-arms, the Americans.

The first Polish Air Force pilot to be decorated by the USAAF in Great Britain, he received the Distinguished Flying Cross from Maj. Gen. Ira C. Eaker, commanding the United States Eighth Air Force, Saturday in ceremonies at air force headquarters.

A citation said the medal was given "for extraordinary achievement while leading his squadron as an escort for United States Army Air Force bombers on a bombing raid over enemy-occupied territory."

His full name is kept secret because his family is still in Poland.

During nine months as leader of the Deblin Squadron, one of the famous Polish fighter wing, he probably escorted Fortresses to the Continent more often than any other man. He did not remember how many times.

Churchill Dares Not Tell How Well Allies Advance

LONDON, July 18 — (AP) Prime Minister Churchill told a private meeting of Conservative members of Parliament last week that the war is going so well that "I am almost afraid to say how well," one member disclosed today.

J. H. Weston-Davies, member for Heywood and Radcliffe, in a speech yesterday at Radcliffe said Mr. Churchill looked tired but "I have never seen him in such an optimistic mood. He left no doubt in our minds that the Allied armies are marching forward as a victorious army."

He added that he expected the Prime Minister to make a public statement on the Sicilian campaign in the near future.

Franco Pledges Workers Fair Share of the Wealth

Tells 75,000 in the Falange 'Property Has Duties'

MADRID, July 18 (AP).—Making his second speech in two days, Generalissimo Francisco Franco told 75,000 workmen of the Falange (Spanish Fascist) party syndicate today that his regime would achieve in time "a just distribution of earnings and profits."

"We defend the rights of property, but we also proclaim that property has its duties to perform," Franco said at a mass meeting in the plaza at Madrid before the royal palace.

He said that his regime "recognized the lack of equality among men which is reflected in differences in intellectual gifts and aptitudes," but that it also asks that "Spaniards at least may have a worthy and human existence."

Speaking yesterday to the Supreme Council of the Falange, Franco said that "it is my duty to see that no one interferes with the unity of our nation," and declared that "the liberalist-capitalist system in Spain is dead forever."

FRANCO BARS OPPOSITION

MADRID, July 18 — (AP) General Francisco Franco's speech last night to the Phalangist National council was a frank warning to wealthy monarchists and "foreign propagandists" that he would tolerate no opposition to the party movement he heads. Any eventual restoration of a monarchy, he said, would be possible only on condition that it worked with the Phalangist movement.

STOCKHOLM, July 18 — (AP) Sweden stood at the peak of military preparedness today as the government distributed a primer for civilians on how to conduct themselves in case of war and considered a new press campaign against German troop-transport privileges.

From day to day new call-ups are being made under a recent order by the Swedish commander-in-chief, General Olof Thoernell.

Reliable sources said preparations are going far beyond what would be normal for mere summer maneuvers. Some estimated that Sweden has as many men under arms today as during the crucial days of the Nazi invasion of Norway in April, 1940, when probably 200,000 men were summoned almost overnight.

600,000 Men Ready

In case of war Sweden could mobolize at least 600,000 well-trained men. Most of those called up now have already had previous training and with two or three weeks of army life and freshener courses would be ready for any eventuality. The army is summoning as few as possible from the provinces because the vital harvest is due soon.

A 16-page booklet called "If War Comes" is being sent by mail to every Swedish householder. It entails an estimated 1,500,000 to 2,000,000 copies.

The theme of the pamphlet, which mainly is intended to frustrate fifth columnism, stresses the necessity that Sweden fight to the last man.

"Sweden is willing to defend itself, it is able to do so and will do so," the Dagens Nyheter said in a headline over the story.

Commenting editorially, it said that what the Swedish people want now is a statement by their prime minister not only on the booklet but on the whole situation.

"And what the people want to hear is that transit traffic will stop," the Dagens Nyheter continued. "This would not be a political step but a purely military one," the newspaper added in explaining why it could be taken.

Oppose Nazi Traffic

A heavy Swedish press campaign demanding cessation of Nazi transit and military traffic to Norway, because of the risk "which German transports involve to our railways and districts through which these transports pass," has been in progress for several days. It coincides with reliable reports that Sweden intends to take such action because of the changed situation in Norway

The Swedish press also pointed to the possibility that invasion may strike in Norway "now that the era of invasions has been begun" by the Allies.

Both possibilities would explain the extreme precautions Sweden is undertaking.

Plans for the booklet were announced by Premier Per Albin Hansson several weeks ago in Parliament. It opens with an order signed by the King to the State Information board directing it to publish a guide of general knowledge for civilians in case of war.

In the main it follows orders already given by the army, namely that resistance must be offered the invader in all situations and every report that resistance is to cease should be regarded as false. It emphasizes that these instructions are intended to block the chances of fifth columnists spreading false and confusing rumors designed to weaken the defense.

Resistance Ordered

The booklet directs that in all Swedish communications citizens resist in case of a hostile act, saying that such resistance is "by all means permitted" under international law. It then defines the international code.

"Everyone should take care not to be captured because the defense needs every Swedish man," the pamphlet said.

There must be passive resistance to the invader, the booklet continues, in explaining what is expected of each Swede. It suggests that civilians volunteer their services immediately in the event of war, form a free corps under responsible commanders, wear uniforms and carry weapons openly. Sweden already has organized a home guard.

Other guidance: Everyone is to remain where he is, obey, help the military resist under all circumstances, discourage panic, guard against spreading rumors and be cautious because of spies.

The booklet said evacuations would be effected "only to the extent that authorities deem advisable for defense. Everyone must be prepared to stay in their homes even if bombed, and inside the fighting fronts."

In instructions on sabotage, civilians are advised against allowing means of transport or other useful implements to fall into enemy hands undamaged. One of the sternest orders requests that civilians disobey every new regulation published by Swedish officials in districts occupied by the enemy because they would be regarded as false. Resistance to such regulations must be carried through even in the face of reprisal threats.

The booklet closes with a review of Sweden's wartime laws, especially espionage, and an explanation of air raid alarms.

Budapest Protest Reported

Crowds Said To Have Demanded That Hungary Quit War

ISTANBUL, Turkey, July 18 (AP). —Crowds demonstrated in front of the offices of the Premier of Hungary at Budapest Thursday in protest against further Hungarian participation in the war on the side of the Axis, an informed Balkan source reported here tonight.

A delegation demanded that Hungary withdraw completely from the fighting and adopt the role of spectator, this informant said. An oral manifesto was submitted to the government stating that the Allied invasion of Sicily places all the Danubian countries in the direct line of Allied advance, it was reported.

Munda Airport Area Attacked By U. S. Troops

Japanese Destroyer Groups Blasted by Americans, One Ship Believed Sunk

By The Associated Press

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, July 19 (Monday).—Allied planes and warships smashed heavily at Japanese sea power in the southeast Pacific on Sunday as American troops attacked positions near Munda, enemy air base on New Georgia Island.

Two separate formations of Japanese destroyers, one of six ships, the other of three, were intercepted by Allied surface forces off the west coast of Kolombangara Island. Hits were scored on all ships in the smaller group and one was believed to have been sunk, a communique from General Douglas MacArthur's headquarters said.

A torpedo hit was scored on one of the ships in the larger group. The others turned back. The communique said the Allied units sustained no damage in the engagement with the smaller enemy force and it made no reference to any Allied loss in the second.

No details were given concerning the ground action around Munda, which is the enemy's chief base in the central Solomons. The communique said: "Our forward elements are attacking enemy prepared positions near the airdrome." Torpedo and dive-bomber planes dropped forty-four tons of explosives on enemy positions in the area.

Two destroyers and a cargo ship were damaged and another merchantman sunk in a raid by torpedo and dive-bomber planes on the Buin-Faisi area in the northern Solomons. The attack, the communique said, was directed against "remnants of enemy shipping" in the harbor area there, where Allied warplanes on Saturday sank seven ships, including a light cruiser, two destroyers and a submarine chaser. Thirteen intercepting enemy fighters were shot down. Four Allied planes failed to return.

Aerial action flamed briefly over the Salamaua area of New Guinea. An unspecified number of Allied fighters intercepted a numerically superior force of fifty enemy aircraft north of Salamaua. Two of the enemy were shot down and four others probably were destroyed. The others were dispersed. The Allies suffered no losses.

A large enemy barge was attacked and destroyed by Allied surface units in the Huon Gulf.

U.S. Destroyers Save 150 Sailors Marooned on Japanese-Held Isle

Daring Rescue of Survivors of the Cruiser Helena in Kula Gulf Battle Is Revealed; Stranded a Week, Men Never Lost Spirit

JUL 19 1943

By The Associated Press

SOUTH PACIFIC HEADQUARTERS, July 18.—About 150 American sailors who passed a week on a Japanese-occupied island in the New Georgia group of the central Solomons after their ship, the 9,700-ton American cruiser Helena, was sunk in the first battle of the Kula Gulf have been taken off safely in a daring rescue by American destroyers, the headquarters of Admiral William F. Halsey jr., South Pacific commander, disclosed today.

The island where the men were marooned was not identified.

The Helena was torpedoed and sunk during the night of July 5-6 in a battle in which at least nine Japanese cruisers and destroyers were sunk. Most of the more than 1,000 men on board her, including her captain, Charles P. Cecil, of Flat Rock, N. C., were saved at the time.

[Eyewitness stories pointed out that some of the rafts to which survivors clung were seen drifting north in a direction which would carry them toward the Japanese-held island of Kolombangara. In the area of the sinking, between Kolombangara and New Georgia Islands, there are many small islands at the western entrance to the Kula Gulf.]

TWO U.S. FLIERS BAG FOUR PLANES APIECE IN PACIFIC

Marine, Army Pilots Share Top Honors in Victory Over Jap Raiders.

GUADALCANAL, July 16 — (Delayed) — (AP) A young Marine and a young U. S. Army pilot shared top honors with four planes each in the American air victory over the Japanese yesterday when 45 enemy bombers and Zeros were shot down north of Rendova island with the loss of but three of our planes.

It was the second 15 to one air victory over the Japanese in a month.

(General MacArthur's communique said of the battle: "Our fighters intercepted and dispersed an enemy formation of 27 bombers and 50 to 60 Zeros shortly afternoon, shooting down 15 bombers and 30 fighters. Three of our planes failed to return.")

Corsair Pilot Scores

First Lieut. Ernest A. Powell, 26, of Memphis, Tenn., Marine Corsair pilot, shot down two Mitsubishi bombers and two Zeros during the 20-minute engagement.

Three bombers and one Zero were destroyed by First Lieut. Joe Lesicka, 23, Westmorland, Calif., 13th U. S. Army airforce, flying a P-40.

During the battle, which repulsed an enemy attempt to blast Rendova's supplies and shipping for our troops invading nearby New Georgia island, Marine Corsairs bagged 16 Zeros and 13 1-2 medium bombers. Six P-40s were credited with shooting down 12 Zeros and half the credit for a destroyed bomber. Navy Grumman Wildcats claimed three Zeros in the biggest Solomon islands dog-fight since the new southwest Pacific offense started June 30.

Rained Zeros

A Rendova air officer who reported the Japanese bombing results as negligible, declared:

"It was raining bombers and Zeros up there."

In the Japs' last attempted air assault on Guadalcanal June 16, the enemy lost 94 planes. Only six U. S. planes were shot down and four of these pilots were rescued.

When the New Georgia offensive was launched June 30, American fighters shot down 103 Japanese aircraft with a loss of but eleven of our planes.

Lieut. Powell related that his Corsair flight intercepted part of a Japanese force of 25 bombers and 50 Zeros at 23,000 feet over Kolombangara island yesterday trying to break through the regularly maintained fighter cover protecting the American Rendova positions.

Lieut. Powell said he had planned to go after the bombers but saw an American plane come by with a Zero on its tail.

"I poured a long burst into the Zero. He burst into flames and went straight down," Lieut. Powell said.

Lieut. Powell picked off a bomber at 15,000 feet.

One Burst Did Trick

"My chief job that afternoon seemed to be keeping Zeros off my mates' tails," Lieut. Powell related. "I found another Zero on somebody's tail and one burst was enough to send him down in flames.

"By this time I was down to 8,000 feet chasing bombers back to where they came from. I overtook one finally and gave him a burst that just blew him apart."

Lieut. Lesicka related that he picked off his first Zero as the enemy fighters came down from higher positions with the bombers. Then he shot down a bomber.

"I took two more Zeros off the tails of P-40s," he said. "When I hit the last one I only had one gun left."

With the ammunition all gone, Lieut. Lesicka stayed in the fight, bluffing Japanese fliers with fake passes and chasing them home.

SOMEWHERE IN THE SOUTH PACIFIC (Delayed) — A prediction that the Olympic games would be bigger and better than ever and would help bring about a better understanding among peoples was made here today by Lord David Burghley, England's famed amateur athlete and winner of the 400-meter hurdles race at the 1928 Olympic games.

Lord Burghley stopped here during a tour of the British commonwealth of nations in his official capacity as controller of supplies and repairs in the British ministry of aircraft production.

During his three-day stay, Lord Burghley took time out from his official duties to attend a collegiate rugby match and gave out an interview. "After the war," said Lord Burghley, "sports will be a great factor in bringing people together again. Sports will continue as before, for the principles behind athletic competition remains the same."

The Olympic games, according to Lord Burghley, held the people of the world together for a long spell and they will be instrumental in holding them together after the war. He intimated that the code of the four freedoms was much the same as those of the Olympic games, where men of all creeds and colors may compete on an equal basis.

M'NIDER OFFERED AS DARK HORSE BY SENATOR NYE

General Described as 'Ideal Candidate' Who Could Answer Democrats.

WASHINGTON, July 13 — (AP) The name of Hanford MacNider was injected today into speculation over possible "dark horse" entries for the Republican presidential nomination.

Senator Nye (R-ND) advanced the suggestion that if the choice had to be made at this time General MacNidder, with his military record, would make "an ideal candidate." He suggested, however, that even with the type of candidate the Republicans should pick "must await developments along the war and the home fronts."

"If I could name a candidate today," Senator Nye told a reporter, "I'd name MacNider, a veteran of the last World war and a man up to his ears in the present one."

Now a brigadier general, MacNider is on active army duty in an undisclosed assignment.

Could Provide Answer

Senator Nye said General MacNider would "answer any attempt of the Democrats to make prosecution of the war an issue in the forthcoming campaign." In that respect, Senator Nye classed him with General Douglas MacArthur and Captain Eddie Rickenbacker.

General MacNider, 54, served on the Mexican border in 1916 and 1917, and won the Distinguished Service Cross and numerous other medals in World War One, rising to the rank of lieutenant colonel. Later he served as assistant Secretary of War (1925-28) and as minister to Canada (1930-32).

A former national commander of the American Legion, General MacNider was a "favorite son" candidate for the presidency at Philadelphia in 1940. He is from Mason City Iowa.

"If the war is still in progress, it may be desirable to pick a military man," Senator Nye said in discussing the outlook for 1944.

"Whoever is picked, however, should not be wedded to a set post-war program or wedded against one.

Ideas by Fall

"The coming fall may give us a picture of the man we want. I have a hunch congressmen returning from the summer recess and talks with the home folks may have some pretty definite ideas of what the people want."

Senator Nye long an oppenent of Administration foreign policy, added:

"We've got to get a candidate behind whom all the party and the American people generally, will unite. MacNider would be such a man."

NAURU SMASHED BY NAVY BOMBERS

Heavy Attack Staged on Phosphate Mining Center.

WASHINGTON, July 18 — (AP) Hitting hard at Nauru where phosphate deposits help keep Japan's munitions industry operating, American bombers ignited large fires in a raid on that central Pacific base, the Navy reported today.

Big Navy Catalina patrol bombers carried out the attack, and presumably loosed their bombs at enemy shipping in the harbors at Naurau as well as shore installations.

However, beyond the statement that "numerous fires were started" the Navy gave no indication in a communique of the extent of damage to the island so highly important to the enemy's war machine. The island has been bombed on several previous occasions.

All of the U. S. planes returned from the raid without being damaged, indicating either that there was no opposition, or that it was ineffective.

U.S. to Dispatch Director to Run Sicily Economy

Civilian Chief Will Operate Under State Department;

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 18.—The government is preparing to send a civilian director of economic activity to Sicily when that island has been completely occupied by the Allied forces, it was indicated in official quarters today.

Provision for such an official, who would serve under the Allied military administration, was made in the creation of an Office of Foreign Economic Co-ordination in the state department.

The head of this office, set up by Secretary Cordell Hull on June 24 at the direction of President Roosevelt, is to unify American economic activities in liberated

Invasion Reinforcements Crossed Atlantic Safely

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 18—Invasion forces to join American troops in North Africa in preparation for attacking Sicily were moved across the Atlantic without the loss of a man, the Navy reported today.

"During the eight months intervening between the invasions of French Morocco and Sicily," the Navy reported, "ships under Admiral Royal E. Ingersoll, Commander in Chief of the Atlantic Fleet, shuttled back and forth across the ocean, moving troops of the United States Army to Africa."

The Navy also reported the assignment of American warships to the British Mediterranean Fleet of Sir Andrew Browne Cunningham, Commander of Allied naval forces in the invasion operations.

"These large United States units," the Navy said, "took part in the bombardment of enemy shore installations under the direct command of Vice Admiral H. K. Hewitt, who commands the United States naval forces in North African waters."

SICILY TO RECEIVE AMERICAN SHOES

Footwear Not Purchased Under Rationing Destined for Liberated Areas.

WASHINGTON, July 18 — (AP) Most of the shoes for which Americans won't spend ration stamps are going to follow General Eisenhower's army into Sicily as they did into Africa, it was learned today.

Herbert Lehman's Foreign Relief administration, a spokesman reported, has sent out through the Treasury a broadside order to buy up all the "distressed stocks" of shoes in the country in order to provide a supply for destitute civilians liberated by the Allied armies, wherever they go.

The order is limited to sturdy, serviceable shoes.

The action resulted partly from the fact that, under shoe rationing in this country, many consumers who customarily bought cheap but serviceable shoes switched to more costly footwear. With money more plentiful than ever before in history but shoe purchases limited to three pairs a year, these people often decided to buy the best shoes in sight.

This left manufacturers, wholesalers and dealers stuck with piles of perfectly good shoes which Americans didn't want but would be ideal for destitute foreigners.

It was upon this basis recently that Mr. Lehman's office sent out the "buy" order for "distressed stocks." A similar order is in negotiation for Mexican huaraches.

Navy Reveals 15 Casualties

WASHINGTON, July 18 (U.P.)—The Navy today made public the names of fifteen more Navy, Marine and Coast Guard personnel dead or missing in action, bringing total casualties since Pearl Harbor to 27,159. ATTACK IN FORCE ON JAPAN NOW HELD GRAVE ERROR

Hugh Byas, Ex-Tokyo Correspondent, Urges Concentration on Hitler.

NEW HAVEN, July 18—(AP) Hugh Byas, author and Yale university lecturer, asserting that for the United States to leave Hitler now for an attack in force on Japan would achieve for the United Nations "less than total victory," forecast tonight the possibility that "10 or 20 years from now" the new democratic world order would find in a new Japan one of its supporters.

"The main argument for reversal of the strategy already decided is that while United Nations forces are engaged elsewhere, the Japanese are digging themselves in,' declared Mr. Byas, foreign area studies lecturer on Japan, on the universitys weekly forum.

"They are using the oil of the Dutch East Indies, the rubber and tin of Malaya and the raw materials of China to build up their supplies, and they are fortifying the places they have captured, so that the difficulties we encountered in Attu and Guadalcanal will be multiplied when the day comes.

No Doubt of Attitude

"Therefore, it is argued that instead of holding Japan while we defeat Hitler, we should switch around, and leave Russia and Britain to hold Hitler while the United States turns its full force against Japan. There can be no doubt that a swift, vigorous, determined attack on Japan would give considerable satisfaction to many people here.

x x x Let us put ourselves in the place of the Japanese and see how such a change of policy would seem to them. Borrow General Tojo's spectacles and look at Japan's problem through them.

"As he studies his reports and his maps, General Tojo can see what he needs. He wants a German victory in Europe, not because he cares anything for Germany, but because a German victory in Europe will cut off at one stroke half of Japan's enemies. Russia will be out, Britain will be out, Holland will be out, and the British and Dutch colonies will become the possessions of the Japanese emperor. More important than any colonies, the British fleet and air force would be out of the war; Japan would have one enemy, the United States, instead of the United Nations.

Division Sought

"General Tojo is no fool and he may realize that a German victory now is past praying for so long as the democracies are united. But if half of his enemies cannot be rubbed out by German victory in Europe, might not the same result be obtained if those enemies could be divided? From the Japanese point of view, a policy which divided the American and British forces would be the next best thing to a German victory.

"A tragedy which would have the United States attack Japan now and leave Hitler until Japan was finished off would present our enemies with the situation they have so far failed to bring about, a situation in which we would fight them with divided forces. To divide your enemies, if you can, is elementary in warfare.

"Now, no one would say that the United States could not single-handed defeat Japan. But if the war in the Pacific is to be fought single-handed it will be a longer, harder job than if the full strength of America and the British commonwealth can be turned on Japan, together with the immense moral effect that will follow the collapse x x x.

Most Important Result

"The moral effect of defeat upon the Japanese mind will be, in the long run, the most important result of the Pacific war x x x."

"The Japanese army will have inflicted upon its own country the most colossal loss of national face ever endured by an Asiatic nation, and the people may turn back to the policy they pursued successfully in the early years of the modern Japanese empire—a policy of friendship with the democratic powers.

"That is a prediction, or in plain language, a guess, and it may be mistaken, but when Japan changes, she changes quickly and goes far. I should not be surprised if, ten or twenty years from now, the new democratic order of the world found in a new Japan one of its supporters. Modern Japan is still a very young country, and we should not despair of its eventual reform."

What's Behind The War News

By HAMILTON W. FARON

Almost overlooked in the more spectacular news of American capture of Agrigento, the nearby coastal town of Porto Empedocle may be the major factor in determining how soon Sicily will be conquered.

Since the Allied forces leaped onto the Sicilian beaches American troops have faced the problem of maintaining supply lines without adequate port facilities.

But Port Empedocle provides the answer to that problem. Unquestionably the best port on the southwestern coast of Sicily, it opens the way for the shipment of American heavy equipment, field pieces, tanks and other supplies heretofore landed only with great difficulty at beachhead points.

Such equipment certainly will facilitate the drive northward of the American, British and Canadian troops.

Originally it appeared that the enemy would make a stand in a major battle fought on the plains with Nazi tank units attempting to halt Allied advances. But the vaunted Herman Goering division, in its encounters with Allied nations forces, definitely failed to live up to its reputation.

Indications now are that the great decisive battle — if there is one — will be fought in the interior mountains. There the Axis forces would have the advantage of naturally strong defensive positions and good communications to the north. On the other hand, the forward-driving Allied troops fighting their way through heavily guarded mountain passes would need specialized heavy artillery and other equipment.

Fear Warship Guns

Such a position for a last stand battle possibly was chosen by the Axis deliberately to evade the fire of big guns from United Nations warships that could join in battling closer to the coastlines.

But, if it was deliberate, the opening of a good port to American use defeats that strategy, for through Porto Empedocle can be moved big artillery pieces, half-tracks and other equipment to take over the shelling of enemy strongpoints beyond range of naval guns.

Bombers from the middle eastern campaign, meantime, are heightening the coming problems of evacuation for the Axis when final defeat comes to German and Italian troops on Sicily. Battering at Naples on the western coast of Italy, the bombers are accomplishing a dual aim. They are immobilizing that port as a point from which reinforcements can be rushed to northern shores of Sicily. And they are making it less useful as the debarkation point for Axis troops if evacuation should be attempted.

That Naples would be used in any steps to salvage defeated Axis armies from Sicily is certain in view of the vulnerability of the ferry route from Messina, in northeastern Sicily, to the mainland. Messina and Reggio Calabria on the two shores of the strait already have been subjected to heavy and repeated bombings.

BOMBED

Washington, D. C., July 19 (AP).—The bombing of military objectives in Rome by heavy and medium bombers of the Mediterranean Air Command was announced today by the War Department.

JUL 20 1943

The Marshalling yard, railroad center for troop movements, was the principal target.

The brief announcement from the war department said:

"Headquarters of the Allied forces in North Africa has issued the following communique:

"Military objectives in Rome and its vicinity have been bombed today by heavy bombers and medium bombers of the Mediterranean Air Command. The marshalling yard was the principal target. It is of greatest importance to the Axis war effort and in particular for the movement of German troops. Leaflets were also dropped over the city during the raid.

"Pilots and bombardiers employed on this mission were particularly instructed to avoid damaging religious and cultural monuments.

This was the first time since the start of the war that Allied air forces had attacked targets within the Italian capital itself.

The presence there of great cultural and religious treasures, including the Vatican, has been a question for some time. Officials said recently that Rome would be attacked if military requirements made it seem necessary.

JUL 20 1943

In connection with the attack, it was recalled that President Roosevelt recently addressed a message to Pope Pius XII assuring him that the Allied force attacking Sicily and Italy would do all in their power to avoid damage to the Vatican and domains of the Roman Catholic Church in Italy.

HITTING AT THE STRATEGY OF THE ALLIED ULTIMATUM, HE SAID:

"WE HAVE NO NEED TO INCITE OUR ENEMY'S PEOPLES TO REVOLT AGAINST THEIR RULERS. THE ENEMY MUST BE HATED AND FOUGHT HARSHLY, NOT DISPARAGED AND SCORNED."

LATER ON HE ANSWERED HIS OWN QUESTION, "IF THE ENEMY WERE TO WIN, WHAT WILL BE OUR DESTINY?"

"OUR NATION WOULD BE DISARTICULATED," HE SAID, "OUR PEOPLE REDUCED TO A HERD OF SERVANTS, OF WHICH THE MOST FIT WILL GO TO WORK IN THE MINES OF THE URALS. MUSEUMS WILL BE LOOTED, PORTS WILL BE EMPTY OF OUR TONNAGE."

A STOCKHOLM DISPATCH, QUOTING BERLIN REPORTS TO THE SWEDISH PRESS, SAID THE SURRENDER DEMAND MUST BE MET "WITH AN UNYIELDING 'NO.'"

ROME MEANWHILE CONTINUED TO TELL THE NATION IT NEED NOT EXPECT REINFORCEMENTS FROM THE NAZIS BECAUSE "IT IS NO ACCIDENT" THAT THE GERMAN "GENERAL JACOB IN CHARGE OF FORTIFICATIONS AT PRESENT IS INSPECTING DEFENSES OF GREECE, CRETE AND THE DODECANESE."

THE GERMAN RADIO QUOTED A ROME ANNOUNCEMENT AS SAYING THAT BETWEEN JULY 8 AND 17, AXIS AIRPLANES HAD SUNK 20 ALLIED SHIPS IN THE MEDITERRANEAN AND DAMAGED "75 BIG SHIPS AND A CONSIDERABLE NUMBER OF SMALLER SHIPS." BETWEEN JULY 10 AND 17, 205 ALLIED PLANES WERE SHOT DOWN, THE BROADCAST ADDED.

LONDON, JULY 18-(AP)-RUSSIAN SHOCK TROOPS BATTERING DOWN POWERFUL GERMAN DEFENSES BEFORE OREL SURGED FORWARD ANOTHER TWO-AND-A-HALF TO FOUR MILES TODAY, MOSCOW ANNOUNCED IN A SPECIAL BULLETIN, TO COMPLETE WEEK-LONG GAINS OF 26 TO 50 MILES.

IN FURIOUS FIGHTING AROUND THE GERMAN STRONGHOLD, THE MIGHTY SOVIET COUNTEROFFENSIVE ~~TODAY~~ Saturday ALONE DESTROYED OR DAMAGED 78 GERMAN TANKS AND 20 ARMORED CARS, AND RED ARMY AIRPLANES AND GROUND GUNNERS SHOT DOWN 137 ENEMY PLANES, SAID THE COMMUNIQUE RECORDED BY THE SOVIET MONITOR.

THE BRIEF ANNOUNCEMENT DID NOT INDICATE WHETHER TODAY'S ADVANCES WERE MADE BY THE SOVIET COLUMN CLOSING IN UPON OREL FROM THE SOUTH, THE EAST, OR THE NORTH, OR REPRESENTED A TOTAL OF GAINS BY ALL THREE DRIVES.

JUL 20 1943

THE STRONG GERMAN PILLBOXES WERE CRUMBLING ONE BY ONE DESPITE HEAVY NAZI COUNTERASSAULTS AND HEAVY RAINS.

MOSCOW REPORTED ADVANCES OF SIX TO EIGHT MILES SATURDAY IN THIS VITAL SECTOR, SIX TO 10 MILES ON FRIDAY, AND 12 TO 28 MILES IN THE PREVIOUS THREE DAYS' FIGHTING. AT LEAST TWO OF THE SPEARHEADS CLOSING IN ON OREL WERE WITHIN HEAVY ARTILLERY RANGE OF THE CITY.

The reported
~~TODAY'S~~ LOSSES RAISED THE REPORTED TOLL OF NAZI TANKS TO 3,427 AND MOSCOW HAS LISTED 2,005 GERMAN PLANES DESTROYED SINCE THE INVADERS FIRST ATTACKED ON THE CENTRAL SECTOR EARLIER IN THE MONTH.

THE SPECIAL COMMUNIQUE REPORTED "ACTIVE RECONNAISSANCE" TODAY AROUND BELGOROD TO THE SOUTH OF OREL.

BERN, JULY 18-(AP)-THE GERMAN PRESS OPENED UP WITH A BIG DISPLAY OF ARTICLES SUNDAY TO TRY TO GIVE COMFORT TO THE PEOPLE ON WHAT IS HAPPENING IN SICILY BY TELLING THEM THAT IT WOULD BE MUCH MORE DIFFICULT FOR THE ALLIES TO LAND ON THE CONTINENT THAN ON SICILY.

THE PEOPLE WERE GIVEN MORE WORDS THAN AT ANY TIME SINCE THE SICILIAN CAMPAIGN BEGAN, BUT THEY GOT NO DETAILS ON THE FIGHTING BEYOND WHAT WERE CONTAINED IN THE OFFICIAL COMMUNIQUES.

THE GERMANS WERE TOLD THAT "AFTER ALL, SICILY IS ONLY THE FORE FIELD OF EUROPE," AND THE ALLIES ENCOUNTERED ONLY THE PROBLEM OF "SETTING SEVERAL DIVISIONS ON LAND." SICILY ALWAYS HAS BEEN "A SENSITIVE SPOT," THE ARGUMENT RAN, BECAUSE OF LIMITED FORTIFICATIONS AND THE SUPERIORITY OF THE ALLIED FLEET. THUS IN THE AXIS' STRATEGIC PLANNING SICILY WAS CONSIDERED ONLY A "FORWARD INSULAR POSITION."

JUL 20 1943

THE GERMANS WERE TOLD THAT THE ALLIED LANDING TOOK A GREAT EXPENDITURE OF SHIPPING, MEN AND MATERIAL, THUS TYING UP AND DELAYING AN ATTACK ON THE CONTINENT. NOW MUCH MORE OF THESE ESSENTIALS WOULD BE NEEDED FOR THE "MAIN ATTACK," ONE PAPER WROTE.

SICILY WAS EASY FOR THE ALLIES, SAID THE HAMBURGER FREMDENBLATT, "WITH ARMIES COLLECTED ON AFRICAN SOIL, A STRONG AIR FORCE AND A CLEVER BATTLE FLEET." BUT A SURPRISE WOULD COME IF THE CONTINENT SHOULD BE ATTACKED, THE PAPER SAID.

THESE WORDS TO THE GERMAN PUBLIC ARE REMINISCENT OF WHAT THE GERMANS WERE TOLD WHEN THE AXIS LOST AFRICA TO THE ALLIES.

BUT MILITARY CIRCLES GAVE A MORE REALISTIC PICTURE TO NEUTRAL CORRESPONDENTS, WHO WERE TOLD THAT BERLIN'S ARMY MEN ACCEPT THAT THERE MAY BE IMPORTANT CONSEQUENCES OF THE ALLIED OPERATIONS IN SICILY, AND THAT THEY ARE COUNTING ON INVASIONS OF THE BALKANS AND ELSEWHERE.

STOCKHOLM, JULY 18-(AP)-A REGULAR GERMAN MILITARY TRANSIT TRAIN FAILED TO PASS THROUGH SWEDEN SATURDAY, THE NEWSPAPER ALLEHANDA REPORTED FROM GOTEBORG.

GOTEBORG NEWSPAPERS WERE IMMEDIATELY SWAMPED WITH TELEPHONE CALLS INQUIRING ABOUT REPORTS THAT TRANSIT TRAFFIC WOULD BE STOPPED.

THE FOREIGN OFFICE SAID THAT FOR "TECHNICAL REASONS," SUCH AS A STOPPAGE FROM DENMARK OR GERMANY, TRANSIT TRAINS OCCASIONALLAY FAILED TO RUN.

RELIABLE POLITICAL QUARTERS HAVE PREDICTED IN RECENT WEEKS THAT TRANSIT TRAFFIC, WHICH LAID SWEDEN OPEN TO FREQUENT ATTACKS ON ITS NEUTRALITY BOTH ABROAD AND AT HOME, WOULD BE ABOLISHED.

CAPT. FRANCIS GABRESKI OF OIL CITY, PA., FIRST AMERICAN OFFICER TO FLY WITH THE POLISH AIR FORCE IN BRITAIN, SERVED WITH THE SQUADRON AND AFTER GAINING OPERATIONAL EXPERIENCE WAS PROMOTED TO MAJOR AND GIVEN HIS OWN AMERICAN FIGHTER SQUADRON.

JUST OUT OF SCHOOL IN WARSAW, "TEDDY" JOINED THE POLISH AIR FORCE IN 1932. WHEN THE GERMANS OVERRAN THE COUNTRY IN 1939 HE FOUGHT IN THE DEFENSE OF WARSAW FOR SEVERAL DAYS UNTIL THE CITY WAS ENCIRCLED. AFTER THE POLISH AIR FORCE WAS ORDERED TO EVACUATE HE LED REMNANTS OF HIS SQUADRON INTO RUMANIA, WHERE THEY WERE INTERNED. FROM THEN UNTIL JULY, 1940 HE WANDERED ACROSS EUROPE AND NORTH AFRICA LIKE A PIED PIPER, COLLECTING YOUNG PILOTS TO FIGHT FOR THE POLES.

FIRST HE LED FIVE FRIENDS IN AN ESCAPE FROM A RUMANIAN CONCENTRATION CAMP AND WENT TO FRANCE TO FIGHT THE GERMANS A SECOND TIME, HAVING ONLY A BRIEF HOUR OF BATTLE. WHEN FRANCE COLLAPSED, HE LED NINE OTHER MEN ACROSS THE MEDITERRANEAN TO ALGIERS ON THE FIRST OVERWATER FLIGHT ANY OF THEM EVER ATTEMPTED. FROM ALGIERS THE PILOTS MADE THEIR WAY TO BRITAIN.

WITH THE AMERICAN SEVENTH ARMY IN SOUTHERN SICILY, JULY 13-(DELAYED) (AP)-THE SPREADING AMERICAN AND BRITISH FORCES ARE MUSHROOMING OUT LIKE A FAN THROUGH SICILY AND IT TAKES NO ORACLE TO SEE THAT THIS MEDITERRANEAN ISLAND, WHICH MUSSOLINI IN FRANTIC APPEALS TO STAND FIRM HAS DESCRIBED AS THE "FRONTIER OF ITALY" SOON WILL BE IN ALLIED

HANDS.

THIS COMING CONQUEST IS LESS SIGNIFICANT IN ITSELF, HOWEVER, THAN WHAT IT PORTENDS. CRACKS IN THE AXIS ARMOR ARE BEGINNING TO SHOW CLEARLY.

TODAY SEVERAL CORRESPONDENTS DROVE 18 MILES FROM GELA TO LICATA TO GET FOLLOW UP STORIES ON THE PROGRESS MADE BY THE AMERICAN UNIT WHICH LANDED THERE AND SEIZED MORE THAN 500 SQUARE MILES OF SICILY IN THREE DAYS.

JUL 20 1943

THE WAY ALONG THE COAST AND THE FULL EXTENT OF AXIS FORTIFICATIONS AGAINST INVASION COULD BE SEEN. FOR TWO YEARS THE ITALIAN ARMY HAD LABORED TO SAFEGUARD THESE BEACHES. EXTENSIVE TANK TRAPS BORDERED THE HIGHWAY AT SEVERAL POINTS. PILLBOXES STOOD ON EVERY HILL AND HUMMOCK. UNDERGROUND SHELTERS WERE DUG BEHIND THE RIDGES. COASTAL BATTERIES WERE CUNNINGLY PLACED FOR THE BEST POSSIBLE SWEEP OF THE SEA, AND BARBED WIRE GREW AS THICK AS GRASS. GUNS GUARDED EVERY ROAD. THEIR STEEL MUZZLES LURKED IN SCORES OF INNOCENT-LOOKING COTTAGES WHICH IN REALITY WERE CAMOUFLAGED MILITARY STRONG POINTS.

THE FORTIFICATIONS WERE EXTENSIVE, DENSE AND IN DEPTH. THEY LOOKED STRONG ENOUGH FOR A COMPARATIVE HANDFUL OF DETERMINED MEN TO HOLD OFF A SEA-BORNE FORCE OF ALMOST ANY SIZE. THE ITALIANS THEMSELVES WERE CONFIDENT THEIR DEFENSIVE SYSTEM WAS IMPREGNABLE, AND SOME OF THE OFFICERS TAKEN PRISONER CLAIMED THEY EVEN KNEW IN ADVANCE THE DAY AND POINTS AT WHICH THE ALLIED INVASION WOULD BE LAUNCHED.

YET WHEN THE DAY DID COME AND SWARMING AMERICAN AMPHIBIOUS COMBAT TROOPS STORMED THROUGH THE SURF THEY BREACHED THESE FORTIFICATIONS WITH A MINIMUM OF CASUALTIES. NOT ONE STRONG POINT OR PILLBOX IN THE COASTAL DEFENSE CHAIN STOOD UP MORE THAN MOMENTARILY AGAINST YANKEE FIREPOWER. THE CONCRETE SHELLS COULD NOT WITHSTAND THE DETERMINED TROOPS, AND THE FORTIFICATIONS WERE AS HOLLOW AS THE HEART OF THE FASCISM WHICH BUILT THEM.

STANDING NEAR A LANDING CRAFT IN LICATA HARBOR AN AMERICAN ENGINEER-ING MAJOR MARVELED AT THE EASE WITH WHICH THE BRIDGEHEADS HAD BEEN WON. HE HAD INSPECTED THE ITALIAN COASTAL DEFENSES AND KNEW HOW PAINFULLY THOROUGH THEY HAD BEEN.

JUL 20 1943

"THE MORE YOU SEE OF THEM THE MORE YOU WONDER HOW WE GOT THROUGH THEM," HE SAID. "OF COURSE THE BIG PART OF THE ANSWER IS THAT NO KIND OF FORTIFICATION IS WORTH A DAMN UNLESS IT HAS MEN TO MAN IT. THESE DEFENSES DIDN'T HAVE THEM. THAT'S THE REASON THEY FELL SO EASILY."

THE ODD THING IS THAT WHILE CANADIAN, AND SOME AMERICAN TROOPS WHICH SAW THEIR FIRST FIGHTING IN THE LANDINGS COMPLAIN OF THE TAMENESS OF THE RESISTANCE, CAPTURED ITALIAN PRISONERS BRAG ABOUT HOW BRAVELY AND WELL THEY FOUGHT.

THE ITALIANS POUR OUT A LOT OF SMOKE AND BULLETS FROM THEIR DUG-IN POSITIONS WHILE THE ENEMY IS APPROACHING, BUT WHEN THEY COME UNDER HEAVY BOMBARDMENT OR FEEL THEMSELVES IN GREAT DANGER OF BEING ENVELOPED THEY DROP THEIR GUNS AND COME OUT WITH THEIR HANDS UP AND GRINNING. THEY BEGIN TO DEMAND FOOD FROM THEIR CAPTORS EVEN BEFORE THEY REACH THE PRISONERS' PENS.

THESE WHOLESALE SURRENDERS ARE AFFECTING THE MORALE OF THE GERMAN TROOPS, TOO.

ONE AMERICAN OFFICER SAID 90 GERMANS GAVE THEMSELVES UP, EXPLAINING "WHY SHOULD WE LOSE OUR LIVES FIGHTING TO SAVE THIS COUNTRY IF THE PEOPLE WHO LIVE IN IT WON'T DEFEND IT."

THE GERMAN LINES IN SICILY ARE WATERED WITH ERSATZ SOLDIERS SENT HERE BY THE NAZI COMMAND BECAUSE THEIR POLITICAL VIEWS OR LACK OJGLHVT THE NAZIS

JUL 20 1943

HERE BY THE NAZI COMMAND BECAUSE THEIR POLITICAL VIEWS OR LACK OF WHAT THE NAZIS CALL BACKBONE MIGHT SPREAD DISAFFECTION AMONG THE GERMAN CIVIL POPULATION. HITLER PREFERS TO HAVE SUCH SOLDIERS OUT OF THE REICH IN CASE THE GOING GETS TOUGH AT HOME.

EVEN WHEN THEY WERE UNDERGOING THE HEAVIEST KIND OF HAMMERING THERE WERE FEW DESRTIONS FROM THE CRACK GERMAN UNITS IN AFRICA. THEY FOUGHT AS AN ARMY AND SURRENDERED AS AN ARMY.

THERE HAS BEEN NO GENERAL SABOTAGE HERE. LICATA, EMPTIED OF MORE THAN TWO-THIRDS OF ITS 30,000 POPULATION, IS BEGINNING TO FILL UP AGAIN AS THE PEOPLE FILTER BACK FROM INLAND FARMS AND HILLS. WOMEN, DRAB IN BLACK DRESSES AND BLAC STOCKINGS, MOVE THEIR CHAIRS OUT ON THE SIDEWALKS AND SIT WITH THEIR CHILDREN WATCHING AMERICAN TROOPS SWING THROUGH THE TOWN. THEY ENJOY IT AS IF IT WERE A PARADE.

SICILIANS ARE ISLANDERS AND HAVE LITTLE PATRIOTIC FEELING TOWARD ITALY. MUSSOLINI DID NOT DARE LEAVE SICILY GUARDED WITH ITS OWN TROOPS FOR FEAR THEY MIGHT TURN AGAINST HIM AND THEY FIGHT ON OTHER FRONTS. THE ITALIAN SOLDIERS FIGHTING IN SICILY ARE FROM THE MAINLAND.

"WE ARE GLAD YOU HAVE COME," ONE OLD MAN SAID.

ASKED WHY, HE REPLIED, "AT LEAST WE WILL GET SOME FOOD AND SOME RELIEF FROM HEAVY TAXES."

JUL 20 1943

HE SAID ITALIAN GOVERNMENT EXACTIONS HAVE BEEN RESPONSIBLE FOR THE EXTREME POVERTY AND FOOD SHORTAGES IN SICILY WHICH IS AGRICULTURALLY RICH AND PRODUCTIVE.

THE WHEAT CROPS STAND HIGH IN THE FIELDS NOW AND EVERY HILLSIDE IS GREEN WITH RIPENING GRAPES.

BUT IN RECENT YEARS A PRIME SOURCE OF INCOME HAS BEEN REMITTANCES FROM THE UNITED STATES WHERE PROSPEROUS IMMIGRANTS REMEMBER THE FOLKS BACK HOME.

MANY OF THE INVADING UNITED STATES TROOPS HAVE RELATIVES HERE AND A NUMBER OF THE BOYS HAVE BEEN ABLE TO VISIT THEM ALREADY. THEIR KNOWLEDGE OF THE LANGUAGE AND CUSTOMS IN MANY CASES HAS HELPED SMOOTH THE WAY OF THE OCCUPYING FORCES. THERE HAVE BEEN FEW TROUBLESOME INCIDENTS.

SICILIANS DID NOT BLOW UP BRIDGES OR BURN FIELDS TO DELAY THE INVADER AS DID THE RUSSIANS WHEN THE GERMANS ATTACKED. THE SICILIANS NEVER LIKED THE WAR AND NEVER MADE ANY BONES ABOUT IT. WITHIN TWO DAYS AFTER THE LANDINGS THEIR RAILROADS WERE CARRYING AMERICAN MILITARY SUPPLIES ALONG THE COAST. THE FARMERS GLADLY SELL THEIR TOMATOES, VEGETABLES AND MELONS TO THE HUNGRY TOOPS SEEKING TO VARY THEIR DIET OF CANNED RATIONS.

THOSE WITH A SURPLUS OF WINE STAND BY THE HIGHWAY HAWKING BOTTLES JUST AS THE ARABAS SOLD THEIR EGGS BY THE ROADSIDE IN AFRICA.

ITALIAN AND GERMAN TROOPS STILL FIGHT INLAND, BUT IN THE COASTAL BELT THE POPULATION ALREADY HAS GIVEN UP THE AXIS CAUSE AS LOST. MEN HALT THE ALLIED TROOPS IN THE STREETS AND ASK "HAVE YOU TAKEN THE REST OF THE ISLAND YET."

THEY JUST ACCEPT IT AS A FACT THAT THE REST WILL BE TAKEN.

THE BATTLE SLOGANS OF IL DUCE WHICH LEAP FROM EVERY WALL HAVE HAD NO EFFECT. THE FASCISTS HAVE FAILED TO LEGISLATE MILITANCY INTO THE PEOPLE.

AGRIGENTO, JULY 16-(DELAYED)-SITTING ATOP A HIGH HILL WITH AN ARTILLERY OBSERVATION POST OFFICER, MAJOR GEORGE QUARLES OF LEAVENWORTH, KAS., I WATCHED DOUGHBOYS SWEEP INTO AGRIGENTO LATE TODAY AFTER A BITTER DAYLONG STRUGGLE IN WHICH THE ITALIANS FELL BY THE HUNDREDS BEFORE OUR EYES.

QUARLES HAD SET UP HIS BATTERY OF 155'S JUST BEHIND OUR HILL AT 3 A.M. AND ALL DAY LONG PUMPED SHELLS AT ITALIAN BATTERIES OPPOSITE US AS WELL AS ENEMY TRUCKS ATTEMPTING TO BRING UP REINFORCEMENTS AND AMMUNITION.

BEFORE US AGRIGENTO STANDS ON A HIGH HILL, SILHOUETTED AGAINST THE SKY LIKE A HUGE MEDIEVAL CASTLE. FAR TO OUR LEFT A COUPLE MILES OFFSHORE A BIG AMERICAN CRUISER IS POURING A HAIL OF SHELLS INTO PORTO EMPEDOCLE, WHICH THE DOUGHBOYS CALL "OAKLE DOCLE" BECAUSE THEY CAN'T PRONOUNCE THE NAME.

BETWEEN US AND THE SEA WE COULD SEE DOUGHBOYS SCRAMBLING UP AND DOWN THE HILL, KEEPING AWAY FROM MAIN ROADS WHICH THE ENEMY HAVE UNDER INTERDICTION FIRE UNTIL OUR ARTILLERY IS ABLE TO SPOT THEM AND KNOCK THEM OUT.

AT 4 P.M. WE SPOTTED A COLUMN OF 20 ENEMY TRUCKS MOVING ALONG A DIRT ROAD NORTHWEST OF THE TOWN AND MAJOR QUARLES ORDERED HIS BATTERIES TO TAKE THEM UNDER FIRE. OUR FIRST ROUND LANDED SQUARE IN THE MIDDLE OF THE TRUCK COLUMN, BLEW THREE OF THEM HIGH INTO THE AIR, AND SPLATTERED SHRAPNEL INTO THE REST OF THEM, SETTING THEM AFIRE. THEY BURNED FIERCELY FOR HOURS, OFTENTIMES BLOWING UP WHEN AMMUNITION CAUGHT FIRE.

JUL 20 1943

NO SOONER HAD OUR ARTILLERY CEASED FOR A MOMENT THAN A-36 FIGHTER-BOMBERS CAME OVER THE ENEMY COLUMN, COMPLETING THE DESTRUCTION.

BY NOW GUNS FROM THE CRUISER WERE BLASTING HEAVIER AND HEAVIER INTO PORTO EMPEDOCLE, WITH DOUGHBOYS AND A NAVAL SHORE PARTY ADVANCING UNDER THE GUNS.

THE ENEMY HAD PLENTY OF ARTILLERY SOUTHEAST OF AGRIGENTO, BUT THEIR FIRING WAS PRETTY FEEBLE COMPARED WITH OURS.

"THEIR ARTILLERY IS SORT OF A HIT-AND-RUN TYPE," SAID QUARLES. "HERE WE ARE SITTING ON TOP OF THEM AND THEY ARE MAKING NO ATTEMPT TO START A COUNTER-BARRAGE. YOU CAN SEE THEY ARE JUST TRYING TO INTERDICT THE ROADS.

"JUST DOWN THE HILL HERE WE GOT A WHOLE ARTILLERY BATTERY CONSISTING OF FOUR 105-MM. GUNS COMPLETE WITH AMMUNITION. THOSE GUNS HAD NEVER BEEN FIRED."

THE MAJOR'S ASSISTANT, PVT.JAMES SITTERSON, WHO COMES FROM PLYMOUTH, S.C., BUT WHOSE WIFE NOW LIVES IN SANTA ANA, TEX., IS DOING OUR SPOTTING. SITTERSON, WHO USED TO BE A PROFESSIONAL BOXER AND ENLISTED IN THE ARMY A COUPLE YEARS AGO, "CAPTURED" TWO PRISONERS FOR MY BENEFIT. THE TWO PRISONERS WALKED INTO THE OBSERVATION POST.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN SICILY-(DELAYED)-THE VILLAGE OF LENTINI, GUARDING THE SOUTHERN APPROACHES TO THE IMPORTANT CATANIA PLAIN, FELL TODAY TO A BOLD THREE-PRONGED ATTACK BY INFANTRY STRIKING HEADLONG AGAINST THE TOWN'S DEFENSES AND LANDING BEHIND THEM FROM AIR.

(EDITORS--THIS DISPATCH CARRIED NO DATE AND DID NOT GIVE THE DATE FOR THE FALL OF LENTINI, WHICH WAS ANNOUNCED OFFICIALLY ON JULY 17.)

JUL 20 1943

ON THE BASIS OF MEAGER REPORTS THE TACTICS APPEARED TONIGHT TO HAVE SUCCEEDED.

THE FALL OF LENTINI COINCIDED WITH BITTER SKIRMISHES FOR THE MOUNTAIN VILLAGE OF VIZZINI, 25 MILES WEST OF SYRACUSE. VIZZINI, SMUGGLING IN A RUGGED MOUNTAIN, CHANGED HANDS SEVERAL TIMES TODAY BUT BY NIGHTFALL THE BRITISH SEIZED IT AND BEGAN A THRUST DEEPER TOWARD THE CENTER OF THE ISLAND.

VIZZINI WAS DEFENDED BY SOME UNITS FROM THE FAMOUS HERMANN GOERING DIVISION. IT WAS FORMED HERE FROM UNITS WHICH WERE SCHEDULED TO REINFORCE THE ORIGINAL DIVISION IN TUNISIA AND NOW IS BELIEVED TO BE ROUGHLY A FULL-STRENGTH DIVISION.

THE GERMANS ARE COMPARATIVELY FEW ON SICILY--TO BOLSTER THE ITALIANS AND SICILIANS WHO ARE SHOWING NO PARTICULAR FIGHT--BUT THEY ARE FIGHTING HARD.

WHILE THE ALLIES ARE THRUSTING STEADILY DEEPER INTO THE ISLAND AND THREATENING THE CATANIA PLAIN WITH ITS NUMEROUS AIRDROMES AND LANDING GROUNDS, THEY ARE RUSHING THEM DESPERATELY EASTWARD TO TRY TO BOLSTER THE FRONT THERE.

LENTINI ITSELF WAS NOT A VERY FORMIDABLE OBSTACLE IN THE BRITISH ADVANCE. BUT THE CATANIA PLAIN BEHIND IT IS CRISS-CROSSED BY NUMEROUS RIVERS WHICH ARE DIFFICULT TO FORD. THAT IS WHY PARACHUTISTS WERE FLUNG INTO THE BATTLE.

JUL 20 1943

PARACHUTISTS WERE DROPPED LAST NIGHT NEAR A BRIDGE ABOUT TEN MILES NORTH OF LENTINI--HALFWAY TO CATANIA--CROSSING A WIDE, DEEP RIVER.

THE AIR FIELDS ON THE CATANIA PLAIN, INCLUDING THE FAMOUS SEVEN GERBINI FIELDS, HAVE BEEN UNUSABLE FOR SEVERAL DAYS BECAUSE OF VIOLENT ALLIED AIR ATTACKS SUCH AS HAVE BEEN THROWN DOWN ALMOST HOURLY ON ALL AIR BASES IN SICILY.

MUSSOLINI'S TROOPS HERE, BOTH ITALIANS AND SICILIANS, SIMPLY ARE NOT FIGHTING ON ANY APPRECIABLE SCALE. IT APPEARS THAT THE GERMANS, WHO ARE SCATTERED THINLY AMONG THEM, ARE PREVENTING MASS SURRENDERS.

THEY ARE SURRENDERING IN BATCHES OF 50 TO A COUPLE OF HUNDRED. TODAY I SAW SEVERAL SUCH BATCHES AND IN MOST OF THEM WERE HALF A DOZEN TO A DOZEN GERMANS WHO APPARENTLY HAD NO ALTERNATIVE WHEN THEIR ITALIAN COMRADES THREW UP THEIR HANDS.

ON THE ROAD FROM SYRACUSE INLAND TOWARD PALAZZOLO I SAW EVIDENCE OF SKIRMISHES WHERE THE AXIS' SEEMINGLY PERFECT DEFENSIVE POSITIONS WHICH EITHER WERE POUNDED INTO SUBMISSION OR ABANDONED.

ON THIS ROAD I BUMPED INTO ONE OF THESE SKIRMISHES YESTERDAY WHILE DRIVING TOWARD SYRACUSE, BELIEVING THE WAY CLEAR BECAUSE THE BRITISH

JUL 20 1943

HAD DRIVEN SALIENTS NORTH OF THE ROAD FROM SYRACUSE AND PALAZZOLO. SEVERAL BURSTS OF MACHINEGUN FIRE AND SHELL FIRE WERE DANGEROUSLY CLOSE BUT I WAS HIDDEN IN THE HILLS ON EITHER SIDE OF ME AND THE SIGHT OF A SMALL ITALIAN INFANTRY PATROL ADVANCING MENACINGLY TOWARD ME AND MY COMPANIONS SENT US RETREATING TO THE SAFETY OF THE ALLIED LINES.

TODAY THE CHARRED AND TWISTED WRECKAGES OF GUNS, A DOZEN FRENCH-BUILT TANKS AND TRUCKS, AMMUNITION DUMPS AND A COUPLE OF DEAD ITALIANS SPRAWLED AT THE ROADSIDE MARKED THE BATTLEFIELD.

A COUPLE OF MILES BEFORE I REACHED IT I SAW A COLUMN OF ABOUT 200 ITALIAN AND HALF A DOZEN GERMAN PRISONERS FROM THE BATTLE BEING HERDED IN THE DIRECTION OF SYRACUSE BY TWO BRITISH TOMMIES.

WITH THE AMERICAN SEVENTH ARMY IN SICILY, JULY 16-(DELAYED)-THE CITY OF AGRIGENTO AND ITS FORTIFIED APPROACHES WERE SHELLED BY AMERICAN FORCES FROM DAWN TO DUSK TODAY WITH THOUSANDS OF ROUNDS POURING INTO THE OBJECTIVES.

THE DEVASTATING ASSAULT AGAINST ENEMY DEFENSE POSITIONS WAS COMPLETED BY LONG-RANGE GROUND ARTILLERY IN AN ALMOST UNINTERRUPTED DAY-LONG ENCOUNTER. THE BATTERY WORK PICKED OFF ONE ENEMY GUN AFTER ANOTHER WITH DEADLY PRECISION.

THE ONSLAUGHT BY THE ARMY AND NAVY SET AFLAME ENEMY PETROL DEPOSITS, PILES OF WHEAT STRAW AND HUGE FIELDS OF WHEAT ON A FIVE-MILE LONG PLAIN SOUTHEAST OF THE CITY UNTIL BY LATE AFTERNOON THE ENTIRE AREA WAS ONE GIANT CONFLAGRATION.

TOO LATE, ENEMY TROOPS REALIZED THE SPOT THEY WERE IN AND TRIED DESPERATELY TO BREAK THROUGH SHEETS OF FLAME AND COLUMNS OF SMOKE IN AN EFFORT TO RETREAT OR SURRENDER. FEW SUCCEEDED IN DOING EITHER.

THE RESISTANCE BY THE ENEMY HAS BEEN THE STRONGEST THUS FAR ON THIS EXTREME WESTERN FLANK. HOWEVER, BY NIGHTFALL AGRIGENTO WAS JUST ABOUT AS QUIET AS DEATH ITSELF AND SEEMED RIPE FOR PICKING.

THE ENEMY REAR GUARD WAS CLOSELY CONTACTED ALL DAY BY OUR ADVANCED INFANTRY ELEMENTS AND ARMORED UNITS UNDERWENT THE FIRST ENEMY COUNTER-ATTACK IN THIS SECTOR AT DELIA SHORTLY AFTER MIDNIGHT.

THE GOING WAS HOT AND HEAVY FOR THREE OR FOUR HOURS BUT THE ENEMY AROUND DAWN APPARENTLY HAD PLENTY AND FLED IN THE DIRECTION OF CALTANISSETTA, THE ENEMY DEFENSE CENTER FROM WHERE THEY CAME.

SINCE THE DAY OF THE LANDING SOME DOUGHBOYS HAVE BEEN FIGHTING AROUND THE CLOCK BUT NOW FRESH FORCES HAVE ARRIVED AFTER AN UNDISTURBED MEDITERRANEAN CROSSING. THESE SOLDIERS, GRINNING BROADLY, DECLARED, "WE SURE ARE GLAD TO BE HERE," AND BEGAN THROWING THEIR WEIGHT AGAINST THE ENEMY.

WITH THE AMERICANS HAVING DEFINITELY CONSOLIDATED A BEACHHEAD AND SOME AIR FIELDS ON THE ISLAND NOW IN ALLIED HANDS, FIGHTER PLANES NOW ARE IN OPERATION FROM THEM IN EVER GROWING NUMBERS, THUS KEEPING THE AXIS RAIDERS FROM OUR LINES AT A FASTER PACE THAN WAS EXPECTED TO DEVELOP.

WITH THE BRITISH EIGHTH ARMY, JULY 15-(DELAYED)-OUR TROOPS HAD THEIR FIRST REAL TASTE TODAY OF THE PLEASURES OF LIBERATING A TOWN FROM AXIS DOMINATION.

JUL 20 1943

HITHERTO THEY HAD PASSED THROUGH POLITICALLY UNCONSCIOUS AREAS WHERE THE APATHETIC, LARGELY ILLITERATE POPULATION WAS NEITHER HOSTILE NOR WELCOMING AND TO WHOM THE ALLIED TROOPS MEANT LITTLE MORE THAN THE ITALIAN AND GERMAN FORCES.

BUT A SMALL TOWN THIS AFTERNOON PROVIDED A SAMPLE OF THE RECEPTION AND DEMONSTRATION AWAITING THE TROOPS OF THE UNITED NATIONS ON THE MAINLAND OF EUROPE.

THE POPULATION FROM CHILDREN TO THE AGED LINED THE NARROW STREETS AND CLAPPED, CHEERED, SMILED AND WAVED HANDKERCHIEFS AS THE BRITISH CONTINUED THE CHASE OF THE FAST RETIRING GERMANS TOWARDS CATANIA.

THERE WAS NOTHING SHAM ABOUT THE WELCOME. THIS WAS NOT FEIGNED JOY.

THE PEOPLE SMILED THROUGH TEARS AND SHOUTED "VIVA INGLESE" WITH EMOTION IN THEIR CHOKED VOICES.

IT WAS A WELCOME WHICH AMAZED TO A SILENCE THE ARRIVING TROOPS. A GREEK VILLAGE, A DUTCH TOWN--ANY AREA IN OCCUPIED EUROPE--COULD NOT HAVE SHOWN GREATER DELIGHT OR HAVE BEEN MORE VOCIFEROUS.

I HAD THE EXTREME PLEASURE IN PARTICIPATING IN THE RELEASE OF SOME OF THE FIRST POLITICAL PRISONERS TO REGAIN THEIR FREEDOM IN EUROPE.

THE CROWD LED US TO A FORBIDDING LOOKING BUILDING, THE CUSTODIAN OF WHICH HAD ANTICIPATED A KNOCK--HE WAS DOUBTLESS INTIMIDATED BY THE ATTITUDE OF THE CROWD--AND OPENED THE DOOR. INSIDE, CONFINED IN SMALL CELLS--SEVERAL IN EACH--WERE ABOUT 30 MEN WHOSE AGES VARIED BETWEEN 18 AND 60. THEY HAD BEEN LOCKED UP IN THESE WRETCHED CONDITIONS FOR SEVERAL MONTHS AND WHIMPERED LIKE UNLEASHED DOGS. WHEN FREED, THEY BURST INTO TEARS AND GRABBED AND KISSED OUR HANDS.

THE DEMONSTRATION BY THE CROWD OUTSIDE AS EACH LEFT THE BUILDING WAS HIGHLY EMOTIONAL. EACH MAN WAS SEIZED BY RELATIVES AND EMBRACED FIERCELY AMID GREAT SHOUTS FROM FRIENDS. ONE ELDERLY WOMAN FAINTED WITH EMOTION.

THOUGH CALLED POLITICAL PRISONERS THEY ARE BETTER DESCRIBED AS HUNGER RIOTERS. IT APPEARED THEY HAD COMPLAINED OF SMALL FOOD RATIONS WITH INCREASING VIGOR AND FINALLY OVERSTEPPED THE LINE. THIS MADE THEM POLITICAL OFFENDERS, WHEREUPON THEY HAD BEEN ORDERED TO CLOSE INCARCERATION.

"FAME" (HUNGRY) WAS A FREQUENT WORD UPON THE LIPS OF THE CROWD. THE CREW OF A PASSING TANK THREW OUT BARS OF CHOCOLATE--THE SOLDIERS' OWN RATIONS--WHICH WERE MADLY SCRAMBLED FOR.

BEFORE WE PUSHED ON EVERY CIGARET IN THE CAR HAD BEEN HANDED OUT, INCLUDING A TIN OF 50 WHICH I HAD SECRETED IN A WINDOW BLIND AGAINST THE DAY WHEN SUPPLIES WITH WHICH WE LANDED WOULD BE EXHAUSTED.

THE CLIMAX TO THE CROWD'S FEELING WAS SHOWN BY A YOUNG AND PRETTY GIRL WHO WITH TEARS IN HER EYES STRETCHED HER ARMS THROUGH THE CAR WINDOW, ENCIRCLED THE NECK OF AN OBSERVER OFFICER, AND PRESSED

WITH THE BRITISH NORTH OF SCORDIA, SICILY, JULY 15-(DELAYED)-THE GERMANS MADE A DESPERATE ATTEMPT TO HOLD UP ADVANCING BRITISH TROOPS TUESDAY NIGHT BY DROPPING REINFORCEMENTS BY PARACHUTE.

THIS MANEUVER FAILED COMPLETELY. A ONE DAY PAUSE ONLY WAS IMPOSED ON THE INVADERS WHILE STRENGTH CAME UP. THEN, SEEMINGLY, THE GERMANS REALIZED THEY WERE TOO LATE, FOR AS WE MOVED IN FOR THE KILL AT VIZZINI AND FRANCOFONTE ON WEDNESDAY NIGHT THE ENEMY PULLED OUT.

AFTER A DAY-LONG CHASE IN WHICH WE COVERED OVER 15 MILES WE WERE UNABLE TO COMPEL THE ENEMY TO TURN AND FIGHT AND BY NIGHTFALL CATANIA ITSELF WAS ENDANGERED.

ATTACKS IN THE OREL REGION.

THE RUSSIAN COUNTEROFFENSIVE BEGAN SUCCESSFULLY WITH THE AID OF SURPRISE TACTICS AND EXCEPTIONAL CAMOUFLAGE. ONE REGIMENT, MOVED INTO POSITION AND AWAITING BATTLE, WAS SO PERFECTLY CAMOUFLAGED THAT WHEN A RUSSIAN PILOT WAS SENT OUT TO INSPECT THE AREA OF DEPLOYMENT HE RETURNED TO REPORT THAT THE REGIMENT HAD NOT YET ARRIVED.

DISPATCHES ALSO SAID THAT THE RUSSIANS MANAGED TO BIG PASSAGES UNDER THE VERY NOSE OF THE ENEMY EXTENDING DEEP INTO THE ENEMY REAR.

RED ARMY UNITS ON ONE SECTOR HAVE PLUNGED SIX TO EIGHT MILES DEEPER INTO THE STUBBORN GERMAN DEFENSE LINES AROUND OREL, LATEST BATTLE-FRONT REPORTS SAID, BUT IT WAS NOT SPECIFIED WHETHER THIS GAIN WAS MADE BY THE SPEARHEAD CLOSING IN FROM THE NORTH, THE EAST OR THE SOUTH.

(THE GERMAN HIGH COMMAND REPORTED BATTLES SPREADING VIOLENTLY ALONG THE GREAT FRONT TO THE SOUTH, WITH RUSSIAN ATTACKS UPON THE NAZI BRIDGEHEAD IN THE CAUCASUS, AND ON THE DONETS FRONT. IN THE DONETS AREA BELOW KHARKOV, BERLIN SAID THE HEAVY TANK AND INFANTRY ATTACKS MADE LOCAL PENETRATIONS, AND THAT THE GERMANS NOW WERE COUNTER-ATTACKING TO REGAIN LOST GROUND.

(IN THE OREL SECTOR "THE FIERCE DEFENSIVE BATTLE IS CONTINUING WITH UNBROKEN VIOLENCE" WITH GERMAN PLANES THROWN IN IN GREAT WEIGHT. THE HIGH COMMAND REPORTED 415 RUSSIAN TANKS AND 127 PLANES WERE SMASHED)

MOSCOW SAID RUSSIAN TROOPS CROSSED AN UNIDENTIFIED RIVER NEAR OREL AT TWO PLACES YESTERDAY, AND WIPED OUT A COMPLETE GERMAN REGIMENT AT ONE POINT.

ONE SOVIET COLUMN OVERCOMING DESPERATE GERMAN COUNTER-BLOWS PROGRESSED SOME DISTANCE TO REGAIN A LINE HELD ON THE NORTHERN END OF THE KURKS SALIENT, BELOW OREL, WHEN THE GERMANS LAUNCHED THEIR DRIVE ON JULY 5, THE RUSSIANS REPORTED, WHILE IN THE CAUCASUS THE RED ARMY WAS SAID TO HAVE SEIZED A STRATEGIC HILL.

GREAT AIR AND LAND BATTLES WERE BEING FOUGHT IN A PERSISTENT DOWNPOUR WHICH INCREASED THE DIFFICULTIES. FRONT DISPATCHES SAID THAT AERIAL FIGHTING REMAINED ON A LARGE SCALE DESPITE THE RAIN, AND THAT THE REINFORCED GERMAN AIR FORCE HAD AGAIN FAILED IN EFFORTS TO WIN SUPREMACY IN THE SKIES.

LARGE FORMATIONS OF ENEMY FIGHTERS MADE "CONCERTED AND PROLONGED" ATTACKS ON THE LIBERATORS AND WERE "VIGOROUSLY REPELLED," THE COMMUNIQUE SAID. IN ADDITION TO THE 22 AXIS CRAFT KNOWN TO HAVE BEEN DESTROYED ANOTHER SEVEN WERE LISTED AS "PROBABLES." ONE BOMBER FAILED TO RETURN.

THE ISLAND WHERE THEY WERE MAROONED WAS NOT IDENTIFIED.

(THE HELENA WENT DOWN IN THE DARKNESS OF JULY 5-6 DURING A NAVY BATTLE IN WHICH AT LEAST NINE JAPANESE CRUISERS AND DESTROYERS WERE SUNK.

(PREVIOUS DISPATCHES HAVE DISCLOSED THAT AFTER THE HELENA WAS WOUNDED MORTIALLY BY A TORPEDO, MOST OF THE MORE THAN 1,000 MEN ABOARD HER, INCLUDING HER CAPTAIN, CHARLES P.CECIL, OF FLAT ROCK, N.C., WERE SAVED.

(SOME EYEWITNESS STORIES POINTED OUT THAT SOME OF THE RAFTS TO WHICH SURVIVORS WERE CLINGING WERE SEENDRIFTING NORTH WHICH

JUL 20 1943

THAT IS HOW THE NAVAL BATTLE IN THE SOLOMONS JULY 13 WAS SUMMED UP BY COMMANDER KENNETH D.RINGLE, CHIEF OF STAFF OF THE ALLIED TASK FORCE WHICH SANK A CRUISER AND TWO DESTROYERS, PROBABLY PUT TWO MORE UNDER WATER, AND DAMAGED ANOTHER GROUP OF DESTROYERS.

THIS ENGAGEMENT IS POPULARLY CALLED THE SECOND BATTLE OF KULA GULF, BUT RINGLE'S ADMIRAL PREFERS TO CALL IT THE BATTLE OF KOLOMBANGARA BECAUSE IT WAS NORTH OF THE ISLAND OF THAT NAME AND WAS NOT FOUGHT IN THE GULF AT ALL.

BY SLOT MACHINE THE COMMANDER MEANT ANY NAVAL FORCE ASSIGNED TO THE JOB OF OPERATING THROUGH THE BIG SLOT BETWEEN NEW GEORGIAS AND SANTA ISABEL ISLAND.

IT WAS REPORTED EARLIER THAT OUR FORCE SURPRISED THE JAPANESE JUST AS IN THE BATTLE OF KULA GULF A WEEK BEFORE, BUT RINGLE ASSERTED THE JAPANESE OPENED UP FIRST, AS THE OPPOSING FORCES STEAMED TOWARDS EACH OTHER. DESPITE THE FACT THAT THEY WERE FIRED ON FIRST, OUR CRUISERS AND DESTROYERS OPENED WITH A SHATTERING FIRE ON SIX TARGETS THAT SHOWED AS VAGUE OUTLINES IN THE MOONLIGHT AND IN FIVE OR SIX MINUTES HAD MOST OF THEM DEAD IN THE WATER. THE ADMIRAL REVERSED COURSE AND PRACTICALLY FINISHED OFF WHAT REMAINED. AS OUR FORCE PURSUED THE REMNANTS OF THE JAPANESE NAVAL FORCE, THEY DISAPPEARED INTO A RAIN SQUALL--AND IT IS BELIEVED POSSIBLE THAT TWO DESTROYERS ESCAPED UNTOUCHED.

FROM THE BRIDGE OF THE FLAGSHIP, RINGLE OBSERVED THE WAKES OF "SIX OR EIGHT BIG FISH (TORPEDOES)" AND THE VESSEL "WRITHED LIKE A SNAKE IN DODGING THEM."

AS THE JAPANESE TURNED TAIL, THEY PUT 15 OR 20 TORPEDOES INTO THE WATER AND ONE HIT THE DESTROYER GWIN WHICH "WAS DOING HER STUFF NOBLY. ANOTHER DESTROYER TOOK OFF ALL THE GWIN PERSONNEL AND TOOK THE VESSEL IN TOW BUT SHE WAS SO BADLY HOLED, SHE SANK ABOUT FIVE HOURS LATER.

WHEN THE BATTLE OPENED, THE JAPANESE FORCE WAS STEAMING SOUTH-EASTWARD DOWN THE SLOT--HADN'T HAD TIME TO GET INTO KULA GULF AND DELIVER REINFORCEMENTS--AND OUR FORCE CROSSED ITS BOWS AT ABOUT A 45 DEGREE ANGLE.

JUL 20 1943

RINGLE SAID "THE MOST STRIKING THING ABOUT THE WHOLE BATTLE WAS HEARING THE CHATTER OF JAPANESE VOICES ON A RADIO FREQUENCY WHICH HAPPENED TO COINCIDE WITH ONE OF OURS. I WAS LISTENING ON THE EARPHONES AND AS FIRING CONTINUED, HEARD THE VOICES DIE OUT ONE BY ONE. AT LEAST ONLY ONE WAS LEFT, AND THEN HE, TOO, WENT SILENT."

RINGLE SAID OUR DESTROYERS ATTEMPTED TO SAVE JAPANESE CASUALTIES FROM DROWNING, BUT THEY PUSHED THE SHIP LINES AWAY AND REFUSED TO BE RESCUED.

SOUTH PACIFIC HEADQUARTERS, JULY 18-(AP)-IN THE NEAREST THING TO A BLITZ YET RECORDED BY AIRFORCES IN THIS AREA, UNITED STATES AIR-PLANES SWARMED ON SHIPPING IN KAHILI HARBOR YESTERDAY MORNING AND FOUGHT OFF A HORDE OF DEFENDING ZEROS.

THE HIGHLY SUCCESSFUL RAID STARTED AT 9 A.M.AND LASTED ABOUT HALF AN HOUR.

NAVY AND MARINE BOMBERS AND DIVE BOMBERS, COVERED BY ARMY, NAVY AND MARINE FIGHTER PLANES, SANK SEVEN JAPANESE SHIPS, BEACHED ANOTHER AND SHOT DOWN 49 ZEROS, FIVE OF WHICH WERE EQUIPPED WITH FLOATS.

GENERAL DOUGLAS MACARTHUR'S COMMUNIQUE ANNOUNCING THE BATTLE SAID SIX OF OUR PLANES WERE MISSING BUT THAT FIGURE WAS WHITTLED

JUL 20 1943

DOWN TO FIVE LATER.

ALL OF OUR PLANES WERE LAND BASED.

NAVY DAUNTLESS DIVE BOMBERS AND AVENGER TORPEDO PLANES WERE USED IN THE MORNING ATTACK AFTER ARMY AND NAVY HEAVY BOMBERS HAD STRUCK THE KAHILI-BUIN AREA PRACTICALLY ALL NIGHT LONG IN SEVERAL WAVES. KAHILI HARBOR AND ITS ADJACENT SYSTEM OF AIRDROMES CONSTITUTED THE STRONGEST JAPANESE BASE IN THE SOLOMON ISLANDS.

THE NIGHT BOMBERS CONCENTRATED THEIR LOADS ON SHORE FACILITIES.

IN THE EIGHTEEN DAYS--JUNE 30 THROUGH JULY 17--SINCE THE ASSAULT ON THE NEW GEORGIA ISLANDS BEGAN, THE COMMAND OF VICE ADMIRAL WILLIAM F.HALSEY, CHIEF OF THE SOUTH PACIFIC FORCE, HAS SUNK 25 JAPANESE SHIPS--FOURTEEN IN SURFACE ENGAGEMENTS AND ELEVEN BY AIR ATTACK--AND HAS DESTROYED 297 AIRPLANES INCLUDING 181 ZEROS, 25 FLOAT ZEROS AND 91 BOMBERS.

JUL 20 1943

ADDITIONALLY, DURING THE SAME PERIOD, TWO DESTROYERS WERE PROBABLY SUNK AND TWO DESTROYERS, ONE CARGO VESSEL AND ONE UNIDENTIFIED VESSEL WERE DAMAGED.

AMONG THE SHIPS SUNK WERE TWO NOT COMPLETELY IDENTIFIED, WHICH MIGHT HAVE BEEN LIGHT CRUISERS, DESTROYER LEADERS OR DESTROYERS; SIX CARGO VESSELS, FIVE DESTROYERS, ONE PATROL SHIP, ONE TANKER AND ONE VESSEL OF AN UNIDENTIFIED TYPE.

A HEADQUARTERS SPOKESMAN SAID OUR AIRMEN ARE DEFEATING THE JAPANESE ABOUT SIX TO ONE IN COMBAT--AS COMPARED WITH AN EIGHT TO ONE RATIO HE REPORTED JULY 15. THE SCORE FOR OUR SURFACE SHIPS IN THIS LATEST OFFENSIVE ALSO WAS ABOUT SIX TO ONE--THE JAPANESE LOST 25 VESSELS AND THE SPOKESMAN SAID OUR FOUR ANNOUNCED LOSSES--THE TRANSPORT MCCAWLEY, THE LIGHT CRUISER HELENA, AND THE DESTROYERS STRONG AND GWIN--ARE ALL WE'VE LOST.

(NY) THE NATION'S SHIPYARDS ADDED AT LEAST NINE MAJOR UNITS TO THE NAVY AND MERCHANT MARINE FLEETS IN THE PAST THREE DAYS, INCLUDING A POWERFUL NEW CRUISER, A LARGE TROOPSHIP AND SEVEN LIBERTY SHIPS.

JUL 20 1943

THE VINCENNES, A CRUISER, THIRD U.S. NAVAL VESSEL TO BEAR THE NAME, WAS LAUNCHED AT THE FORE RIVER YARD OF THE BETHLEHEM STEEL COMPANY. IT WAS BUILT WITH $24,500,000 IN FUNDS RAISED IN A WAR BOND CAMPAIGN AMONG INDIANA RESIDENTS.

THE SHIP, ORIGINALLY PLANNED AS THE FLINT, WAS RE-DESIGNATED SHORTLY AFTER ITS PREDECESSOR OF THE SAME NAME AND TWO OTHER AMERICAN CRUISERS--THE ASTORIA AND THE QUINCY--WERE SUNK BY JAP WARSHIPS IN AUGUST, 1942, DURING AN EARLY PHASE OF THE SOLOMONS OPERATION.

THE GENERAL MANN, DESIGNED FOR SERVICE AS A TROOPSHIP, SLID DOWN THE WAYS AT THE FEDERAL SHIPBUILDING AND DRY DOCK COMPANY YARDS IN KEARNY, N.J. THIRD TRANSPORT OF ITS TYPE LAUNCHED AT THE KEARNY YARDS, THE VESSEL HONORS GENERAL WILLIAM A.MANN, ORGANIZER AND FIRST COMMANDER OF THE 42ND (RAINBOW) DIVISION IN THE WORLD WAR.

FROM THE BETHLEHEM-FAIRFIELD SHIPYARDS, BALTIMORE, MD., CAME THREE LIBERTY SHIPS--THE ROBERT EDEN, NAMED FOR MARYLAND'S LAST PROVINCIAL GOVERNOR AND ANCESTOR OF BRITISH FOREIGN SECRETARY ANTHONY EDEN; THE JOSE MARTI, HONORING A CUBAN PATRIOT; AND THE GEORGE W.CHILDS, BEARING THE NAME OF THE FOUNDER OF THE PHILADELPHIA PUBLIC LEDGER.

TO DATE THE BALTIMORE YARDS HAVE CONSTRUCTED 168 LIBERTY SHIPS.

JUL 20 1943

THE NEW ENGLAND SHIPBUILDING CORPORATION SHIPYARD AT SOUTH PORTLAND, ME., TURNED OUT ITS 60TH AND 61ST VESSEL FOR THE MERCHANT MARINE FLEET, THE ROBERT JORDAN AND ROBERT ROGERS, BOTH LIBERTY SHIPS. SPONSORS OF THE SHIPS WERE SELECTED BY YARD EMPLOYES CHOSEN BY A LABOR-MANAGEMENT PRODUCTION COMMITTEE FOR OUTSTANDING CONTRIBUTION TO THE WAR EFFORT.

JUL 20 1943

THE JORDAN WAS NAMED FOR A 17TH CENTURY WESTERN MAINE CLERGYMAN AND THE ROGERS FOR THE LEADER OF FRENCH AND INDIAN WAR RANGERS.

ANOTHER LIBERTY SHIP, NAMED AFTER DR.JOHN EVANS, FOUNDER OF NORTHWESTERN UNIVERSITY AND CO-FOUNDER OF THE UNIVERSITY OF DENVER, WAS CHRISTENED AT A LAUNCHING IN RICHMOND, CALIF.

CRITICISM OF LOOSE TREATMENT QUIETED

BY J.F.MCEVOY

(ADVANCE) BUENOS AIRES-(AP)-OBSERVERS SEEKING CLUES TO THE FUTURE OF ARGENTINE FOREIGN POLICY ARE WATCHING THE NEW GOVERNMENT'S HANDLING OF THE GRAF SPEE INTERNMENT PROBLEM, WHICH AT TIMES TAXED THE ELASTICITY OF EX-PRESIDENT CASTILLO'S PRUDENT NEUTRALITY."

NEARLY FOUR YEARS OF CARING FOR THE CREW, WHICH SENT THE POCKET BATTLESHIP TO THE BOTTOM AFTER SHE WAS WORSTED IN BATTLE WITH THE BRITISH OFF THE RIVER PLATE, HAS BROUGHT ARGENTINA A HANDFUL OF TROUBLE.

CASTILLO WAS ASSAILED AT HOME AND ABROAD FOR WHAT CRITICS CALLED HIS BENEVOLENT INDIFFERENCE TO THE ACTIONS OF THE THOUSANDINTERNEES.

THE ARGENTINE PRESS IS NOT SAYING ANYTHING NOW. NEIGHBOR NATIONS ARE FOLLOWING A POLICY OF "WAIT AND SEE" IN ORDER TO GIVE PRESIDENT RAMIREZ A FAIR CHANCE TO WORK OUT HIS OWN PROGRAM. BUT INTEREST IN THE QUESTION IS MOUNTING IN VIEW OF THE GOVERNMENT'S PROMISE OF "PRACTICAL PANAMERICANISM."

AND "PRACTICAL PANAMERICANISM," IN THE EYES OF THE INTERAMERICAN COMMITTEE FOR POLITICAL DEFENSE, CALLS FOR CLOSE VIGILANCE OVER ALL AXIS ALIENS.

THERE HAS BEEN NO ANNOUNCED CHANGE IN THE INTERNMENT SYSTEM, BUT INFORMED SOURCES DECLARE THE QUESTION IS GETTING MUCH ATTENTION. ONE SAID THAT THE NAVY MINISTRY WAS STUDYING A PLAN FOR MORE RIGOROUS CONTROL OVER THE GERMAN SAILORS AND THE MANNER IN WHICH THEY SPEND THEIR WAGES. ALSO UNDER CONSIDERATION, IT WAS SAID, IS A PLAN TO PUT THEM ALL IN TWO OR THREE BIG CAMPS. NOW THEY ARE SCATTERED THROUGH THE INTERIOR.

DURING HIS LAST MONTHS IN OFFICE DR.CASTILLO PAID NO HEED TO CONGRESSIONAL REPORTS THAT GERMAN OFFICERS WHO ESCAPED FROM ARGENTINA WERE OPERATING SUBMARINES IN THE SOUTH ATLANTIC.

ALTHOUGH MOST OF THE 130-ODD SAILORS WHO ESCAPED DID SO IN THE FIRST YEAR OF THEIR INTERNMENT, MOST OF THE CRITICISM FELL ON

CASTILLO'S MINISTER OF INTERIOR, MIGUEL J.CUALACIATI, WHO WAS NOT THEN A MEMBER OF THE GOVERNMENT. IT ROSE IN RATIO TO ALLIED MILITARY SUCCESSES AND WAS NOT APPEASED BY THE WITHDRAWAL OF THE GERMAN NAVAL ATTACHE, DIETRICH NIEBUHR, WHO WAS CREDITED WITH ENGINEERING THE ESCAPES. CUALCIATI ONCE AGREED TO TAKE THE GERMAN SAILORS AWAY FROM THE SEMI-LIBERTY OF VARIOUS INTERNMENT CENTERS AND PLACE THEM IN A SINGLE WELL-GUARDED ENCAMPMENT, BUT HE NEVER DID.

CHARGES OF NEGLIGENCE WERE BASED NOT ONLY ON THE WHOLESALE ESCAPES BUT ALSO ON REPORTS THAT THE SAILORS WHO REMAINED WERE VIOLATING ARGENTINE LAWS BY PARTICIPATING IN NAZI ACTIVITIES.

CERTAINLY, ON THE BASIS OF WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR, GERMANY CHOSE WISELY WHEN SHE ELECTED ARGENTINA AS THE PLACE TO INTER THE GRAF SPEE CREWMEN. CAPTAIN HANS LANGSDORFF, ARRIVED HERE DI

CREWMEN. CAPTAIN HANS LANGSDORFF, ARRIVED HERE DECEMBER 18, 1939, ACCOMPANIED BY 38 COMMISSIONED OFFICERS, 47 WARRANT OFFICERS AND 969 MEN--A TOTAL OF 1,054. IN URUGUAY THERE REMAINED ABOUT 46 OFFICERS AND MEN, NOT COUNTING 38 BATTLE VICTIMS BURIED IN A MONTEVIDEO CEMETERY.

LANGSDORFF COMMITTED SUICIDE, LEAVING IN COMMAND CAPTAIN WALTHER MAY. THE EPIDEMIC OF ESCAPES BEGAN SHORTLY AFTER. MOST OF THEM WERE OFFICERS, INCLUDING SIX FULL COMMANDERS, FIVE LIEUTENANT COMMANDERS AND SEVENTEEN LIEUTENANTS. IT IS BELIEVED MOST OF THEM GOT BACK TO GERMANY TO FIGHT AGAIN. MANY WENT ON JAPANESE SHIPS, WHILE OTHERS FILTERED THROUGH OTHER SOUTH AMERICAN COUNTRIES TO SPANISH BOATS BOUND FOR EUROPE. SOME TOOK THE NOW-DEFUNCT CONDOR AND LATI AIRLINES. MOST OF THIS WAS BEFORE THE UNITED STATES ENTERED THE WAR.

LAST YEAR, WHEN THE CHAMBER OF DEPUTIES ADOPTED A RESOLUTION ASKING THE EXPULSION OF CAPTAIN NIEBUHR, THE INVESTIGATING COMMITTEE SAID:

JUL 20 1943

"OFFICIALS OR AGENTS OF THE THIRD REICH IN THIS COUNTRY INTERVENED DIRECTLY IN THE FLIGHT OF OFFICERS SINCE IT IS IMPOSSIBLE THAT THE FUGITIVES BY THEMSELVES COULD HAVE OBTAINED THE NECESSARY DOCUMENTS TO TRAVEL THROUGH SEVERAL COUNTRIES."

THE COMMITTEE CITED THE CASE OF LIEUTENANT COMMANDER JURGEN WATTENBERG, CREDITED IN A BERLIN BROADCAST WITH COMMANDING A SUBMARINE WHICH SUNK THE BRAZILIAN FREIGHTER PARANAHYBA.

UNDER THE HAGUE CONVENTION, ARGENTINA MUST BEAR THE COST OF MAINTAINING THE GERMAN SAILORS UNTIL THE END OF THE WAR. IT ALSO ASSUMES THE RESPONSIBILITY OF KEEPING THEM HERE. THE GOVERNMENT OFFERED TO PLACE OFFICERS ON PAROLE, BUT THIS WAS REFUSED, ALTHOUGH FEW HAVE ESCAPED SINCE 1942. GERMANY, UNDER INTERNATIONAL LAW, MUST EVENTUALLY REPAY ARGENTINA FOR FEEDING, PAYING AND GUARDING THE INTERNEES--A BILL WHICH ALREADY IS ESTIMATED TO EXCEED A MILLION DOLLARS.

SPREADING THE INTERNEES THROUGHOUT THE INTERIOR WAS INTENDED TO LIGHTEN THE BURDEN OF CARING FOR THEM, BUT DID NOT WORK. THERE HAVE BEEN FREQUENT BRUSHES WITH THE LAW, AND ON ONE OCCASION THREE SPEE

JUL 20 1943

GERMEN WHO MARRIED ARGENTINE WOMEN COMPLAINED TO THE CASTILLO GOVERNMENT THAT THEY WERE BEING ABUSED BY THEIR OFFICERS BECAUSE THEY WANTED TO LIVE HERE AT PEACE AND ABANDON NAZIISM. CULACIATI RULED THEY WERE NOT SUBJECT TO THE REGULATIONS OF THE GERMAN NAVY AND HAD FULL RIGHT TO MARRY.

GERMAN SAILORS WERE ACCUSED BY THE INVESTIGATING COMMITTEE OF MAKING DISPARAGING REMARKS ABOUT THIS COUNTRY, AND QUOTED A LETTER WRITTEN TO A FRIEND IN GERMANY BY SEAMAN RODOLF GOLDSCHMIDT WHICH SAID "THE ONLY REASONABLE COURSE IS FOR GERMANY TO INVADE ARGENTINA AND ESTABLISH A NEW STATE," ADDING THE ARGENTINE PEOPLE "ARE SO LOUSY (SIC) THAT THE COUNTRY SHOULD BE CAPTURED INSIDE OF AN HOUR."

OTHER DOCUMENTS INCLUDED LETTERS ADDRESSED TO NIEBUHR BY INTERNEES REQUESTING FALSIFIED PAPERS TO AID THEIR ESCAPE, AS WELL AS STATEMENTS FROM OTHERS APPREHENDED IN FLIGHT SAYING THEY ACTED ON 'SUPERIOR ORDERS FROM NIEBUHR.'

IN CRITICA'S RECENT SURVEY OF CONDITIONS IN ONE CAMP LOCATED IN HEAVILY GERMAN-POPULATED CORDOBA PROVINCE, IT SAID:

"HEAVY FINES ARE IMPOSED BY THE GERMAN OFFICERS FOR SLIGHT VIOLATIONS OF CAMP DISCIPLINE, BEING ASSIGNED TO A CAMP FUND WHICH INCLUDES COMPULSORY MONTHLY CONTRIBUTIONS TO THE GERMAN RED CROSS. WE DON'T KNOW IF THIS MONEY, IN PART ARGENTINE, GOES TO GERMANY OR IS ASSIGNED TO THE GERMAN EMBASSY FOR NAZI ESPIONAGE IN ARGENTINA."

THE NEWSPAPER'S REPRESENTATIVE SAID THAT THE NAZIS HAVE THEIR OWN SPY SYSTEM AND THEIR SAILORS, WHEN GIVEN LEAVE WHICH IS NOT DIFFICULT TO OBTAIN, ARE PERMITTED TO GO ONLY TO PLACES OPERATED BY NAZI SYMPATHIZERS. HE SAID ARGENTINE RESIDENTS O THE VICINITY WERE FREQUENTLY SUBJECT TO "DISRESPECTFUL AND DISPARAGING REMARKS" OF GERMAN SAILORS.

ON THE STRENGTH OF ITS INVESTIGATION, CRITICA RECOMMENDED IMMEDIATE DISSOLUTION OF SEPARATE CAMPS; ESTABLISHMENT OF STRICT VIGILANCE TO SEPARATE EACH MAN FROM ALL NAZI ACTIVITY; THE GRANTING TO THOSE SAILORS WHO WANT IT THE OPPORTUNITY TO LIVE THEIR LIVES UNDER ARGENTINE LAW BACKED BY SECURITIES WHICH ENABLE THEM TO ABANDON ALL TIES WITH THE HITLER GOVERNMENT.

"THE TRUTH IS," SUMMARIZED CRITICA, "THAT THESE MEN WHO ARRIVED HERE IN 1939 HAVE GIVEN US ENOUGH HEADACHES. THIS IS THE TIME TO PUT THEM IN THEIR PROPER PLACE AND OBLIGE THEM TO RESPECT THE COUNTRY."

THE UNSTEADY FOOTING OF GERMANY'S TRANSPORTATION SYSTEMUJ WHICH MUST HANDLE THE DISTRIBUTION OF FOODSTUFFS, IS ACKNOWLEDGED IN A STORY IN THE GERMAN NEWSPAPER DER ANGRIFE, WHICH WARNED THE FRUIT GROWERS TO GUARD AGAINST SHIPPING FRUIT NEAR THE OVER-RIPE STAGE BECAUSE THE RAILROADS NO LONGER COULD TRANSPORT CONSIGNMENTS WITH NORMAL SPEED.

HOUSEWIVES IN MANY GERMAN CITIES WERE UNABLE TO GET VEGETABLES FROM MAY TO JULY. THE SHORTAGE WAS ATTRIBUTED TO TRANSPORT TROUBLES WHICH PREVENTED IMPORTATION OF 1,750,000 TONS OF VEGETABLES FROM OCCUPIED COUNTRIES.

GERMANY'S OWN VEGETABLE ACREAGE INCREASED GREATLY IN THE PAST THREE(JEGRD-BUT2RRDUCTFQURO);

A MILLION GERMAM FRUIT TREES WERE KILLED BY SEVERE COLD WINTERS IN 1940-41 AND 1941-42.

THE LACK OF FERTILIZERS, MECHANICAL EQUIPMENT AND HORSES PREVENTED GERMANY FROM CULTIVATING A RECORD CROP THIS SEASON. FARMERS ARE USING OXEN AND COWS INSTEAD OF HORSES, WHICH ARE NEEDED AT THE FRONTS. TRACTORS LIE RUSTY AND IDLE DUE TO THE SCARCIT OF FUEL AND THE LACK OF SPARE PARTS.

SUDDENLY, FALSE RATION CARDS CAME SHOWERING DOWN FROM THE SKIES --DELIVERED BY THE ROYAL AIR FORC. THAT CREATED GREAT CONFUSION. A MAN AND A WOMAN WERE ARRESTED ON CHARGES OF PRINTING COUNTERFEITS.

THE TRIAL COURT SAID:

NEW RAILWAY AND

"THE GATEWAY" (900)

BY WILLIAM L.WORDEN

JUL 20 1943

(ADVANCE) WHITTIER, ALASKA--(AP)--THIS IS THE TALE OF A TOWN STILL NOT ON THE MAP AND OF ANOTHER TOWN WHICH IS AFRAID IT WON'T BE.

THE FIRST IS WHITTIER, THE OTHER SEWARD. THE ADVOCATES OF EACH ARE NOW ENGAGED IN A TUG-OF-WAR FOR WHICH THE PRIZE IS THE HONOR AND THE VERY REAL FINANCIAL ADVANTAGE OF BEING THE RAILROAD GATEWAY TO ALASKA.

SEWARD HAS BEEN THAT GATEWAY, PROFITING FROM COMMERCE AND TOURISTS, EVER SINCE THE ALASKA RAILROAD WAS CONSTRUCTED 25 YEARS AGO. THEN, WITH THE WAR, THE TOWN BECAME A HIGHLY STRATEGIC SPOT, BECAUSE BY TAKING IT AN ENEMY COULD STRANGLE MOST OF THE TERRITORY, STARVING OUT SUCH OTHER TOWNS AS ANCHORAGE, TALKEETNA AND FAIRBANKS.

THE RAILROAD BEGAN THERE, RUNNING ALMOST 500 MILES NORTH INTO THE INTERIOR. IT WAS VIRTUALLY THE ONLY SUPPLY LINE FOR TOWNS NOT REACHABLE BY WATER, WHICH MEANS MOST OF THE IMPORTANT CENTRAL ALASKA TOWNS. EVEN ANCHORAGE [illegible] IT HAS A PORT, IS CLOSED BY ICE MUCH OF THE YEAR. NOME, TOO, ON THE RAILROAD, IS CUT OFF EXCEPT FOR AERIAL TRANSPORTATION SOME EIGHT MONTHS EACH YEAR.

SEWARD WAS SELECTED AS THE SOUTHERN TERMINAL FOR THE RAILROAD FOR SEVERAL REASONS. IT HAD THE ONE GREAT ADVANTAGE OF A LARGE, PROTECTED HARBOR, ICE-FREE THE YEAR ROUND AND IN ADDITION ONE OF THE BEAUTY SPOTS OF THE ENTIRE TERRITORY. THE TOURISTS BOUGHT FLAMBOUYANT EDITIONS OF THE SEWARD "GATEWAY." THEY STAYED AT THE LEADING HOTELS, RUSHED TO BUY TRINKETS WHICH SEWARD MERCHANTS HAD CAREFULLY PROVIDED FROM ALL PARTS OF THE TERRITORY--AND, OCCASIONALLY, FROM THE FACTORIES OF CHICAGO OR TOKYO, WHERE EXCELLENT IMITATIONS OF INDIAN GOODS WERE PRODUCED.

JUL 20 1943

THE BEGINNING OF THE WAR ENDED THIS PART OF SEWARD'S COMMERCE BUT GAVE IT ENOUGH ADDITIONAL MILITARY BUSINESS TO CAUSE A BOOM.

BUT THE END WAS IN SIGHT. THE ARMY FUMED AT FREIGHT DELAYS, AT INSUFFICIENT DOCKS, MOST OF ALL AT THE VICIOUS MOUNTAINS OVER WHICH THE RAILROAD TRACK WOUND IN ITS 100-MILE ROUTE ACROSS THE KENAI PENINSULA. THAT FIRST HUNDRED MILES NORTH OF SEWARD IS A FREIGHT MAN'S NIGHTMARE. THE TRACK HAS GRADES WHICH RAISE IT 125 FEET TO THE MILE. GLACIERS PEER DOWN AT IT AND FREQUENTLY DROP ROCKS ON IT. THE TRACK SKIRTS GORGES, RUNS AROUND THE CORNERS OF MOUNTAINS AND FINALLY, IN ORDER TO GET OVER A DIVIDE, GOES COMPLETELY CRAZY WITH TRESTLES HUNDREDS OF FEET HIGH, SNOW SHEDS, TUNNELS, ALMOST COMPLETE CIRCLES AND ONE TURN THAT BRINGS IT UNDER ITSELF ON THE WAY DOWN HILL. THEN IT TRAVERSES SIX TUNNELS IN SOMETHING UNDER THREE MILES AND SETTLES DOWN TO BEING MORE OR LESS A NORMAL MOUNTAIN RAILROAD. ALL THIS IN TERRITORY SO COLD THAT THE SIMPLEST REPAIRS BECOME MAJOR PROBLEMS. GETTING EVEN MODERATE TRAINS OVER THIS STRETCH REQUIRES ENDLESS DOUBLING FOR THE HILLS AND SNAIL-SLOW SPEED FOR THE CURVES.

SO THE GOVERNMENT BUILT TWO MORE TUNNELS BETWEEN ANCHORAAGE AND THE COAST AT A COST WHICH, EXCEPT FOR THE WAR, WOULD HAVE BEEN PROHIBITIVE.

THOSE TUNNELS START ALMOST A HUNDRED MILES NORTH OF SEWARD AND GO STRAIGHT THROUGH MOUNTAINS AND UNDER GLACIERS FOR A TOTAL OF 18 MILES, INCLUDING OPEN TRACK, TO WHAT IS NOW THIS PORT OF WHITTIER. THEY WERE COMPLETED LAST NOVEMBER, ALMOST SIMULTANEOUSLY WITH THE OPENING OF THE ALCAN HIGHWAY AND THE CONNECTING CHICKALOON HIGHWAY WHICH ENDED THE DAYS OF THE ALASKA RAILROAD AS THE ONLY SURFACE SUPPLY LINE FOR INTERIOR ALASKA. THE HIGHWAY MEANT THAT FREIGHT COULD MOVE FROM ANCHORAGE TO FAIRBANKS BY TRUCK AND--MORE IMPORTANT -- THAT IT COULD ON OCCASION MOVE FROM CHICAGO TO FAIRBANKS BY HIGHWAY.

THE TUNNELS MEAN THAT FREIGHT CAN REACH THE INTERIOR BY RAILROAD WITHOUT EVER GOING THROUGH SEWARD, AVOIDING AT ONCE NEARLY 100 MILES OF THE WORST FREIGHT HAUL THAT A RAILROAD ENGINEER COULD DREAM UP.

JUL 20 1943

SEWARD WAS GROGGY. THE NEW ROUTES LESSENED MILITARY TRAFFIC THROUGH THE TOWN, AMERICAN SUCCESSES IN THE ALEUTIANS LESSENED THE NECESSITY FOR HEAVY DEFENSES. A HEAVY FIRE BURNED OUT A LARGE PORTION OF ITS BUSINESS SECTION. THE TOWN'S NEWSPAPER AND SOME OTHER CONCERNS QUIETLY QUIT BUSINESS. WIVES AND CHILDREN HAD BEEN EVACUATED TO THE COMPARATIVE SAFELY OF THE WEST COAST DURING THE EARLY DAYS OF THE WAR. AS THE NEW RAILROAD LINE WENT INTO OPERATION, FEWER TRAIN CREWS STAYED AT SEWARD, FEWER EMPLOYES WERE NECESSARY IN THE YARDS.

JUL 20 1943

3024-6297

30.24-6297

HERE IN WHITTIER, EVERYONE ACTS ON THE THEORY THAT IT IS ALL OVER FOR SEWARD. A TOWNSITE HAS BEEN LAID OUT UNDER GOVERNMENT CONTROL TO PREVENT LAND SPECULATION. DEPOTS HAVE BEEN BUILT FOR PASSENGERS WHO MAY COME AFTER THE WAR. DOCKS ALREADY ARE IN OPERATION AND THE RAILROAD YARDS ARE BEING EXPANDED. FREIGHT HANDLING FACILITIES ARE ALREADY THE EQUAL OF THOSE AT SEWARD; AND PLANS ARE ON PAPER FOR MORE.

NOT ONLY IS THE WHITTIER LINE AN 18-MILE TRIP COMPARED TO ABOUT 100 MILES ON THE SEWARD LINE, BUT THE HAUL FROM WHITTIER IS VIRTUALLY LEVEL ALL THE WAY TO ANCHORAGE.

JUL 20 1943

UNFORTUNATELY FOR SEWARD, THE HARBOR AT WHITTIER, WHICH LIES AT THE HEAD OF A LONG NATURAL CANAL, IS JUST ABOUT AS BREATH-TAKING AS SEWARD'S RESURRECTION BAY. THERE IS NOT AS MUCH ROOM FOR SHIPS TO ANCHOR, BUT THERE IS ENOUGH FOR NORMAL TRAFFIC.

ON THE FACE OF IT, SEWARD SEEMS TO BE IN A BAD FIX. HOWEVER, THERE ARE TWO FACTORS ON THE OTHER SIDE OF THE PICTURE. MILITARY MEN WHO A YEAR AGO WERE IN RECURRENT COLD SWEATS FOR FEAR SABOTEURS MIGHT BLOCK SOME OF THE SEWARD LINE TUNNELS AND THEREBY TIE UP THE TERRITORY'S ENTIRE RAILROAD TRANSPORTATION SYSTEM ARE NOT LIKELY TO DO ANYTHING TO DISCOURAGE THE MAINTENANCE OF MORE OR LESS DUPLICATING TERMINALS. AND IT IS A FACT THAT TRAFFIC AT TIMES CAN KEEP BOTH SEWARD AND WHITTIER DOCKS AND YARDS BUSY.

THE SECOND FACTOR IS THAT OF THE TOURIST BUSINESS. SEWARD AND WHITTIER ARE AT A STANDOFF SO FAR AS BEAUTY OF THE PORTS THEMSELVES IS CONCERNED, BUT THE SEWARD TO PORTAGE SECTION STILL IS THE PRINCIPAL SCENIC SECTION OF THE ENTIRE ALASKA RAILROAD. ANYONE WOULD HESITATE TO ROUTE A TOURIST THROUGH THIS SECTION WITHOUT INCLUDING THE CURVES, TRESTLES AND TUNNELS, AND THE GLACIERS WHICH LOOK SO MUCH LIKE WHAT GLACIERS LOOK LIKE IN THE GUIDEBOOKS.

SEWARD RESIDENTS, AFTER THE FIRST SHOCK OF WHITTIER'S CREATION AND OF THEIR OWN DISASTROUS FIRE, ARE REVIVING FAITH IN THE FUTURE OF THEIR TOWN. MUCH OF THE BURNED SECTION WAS REBUILT. SOME CLOSED STORES REOPENED AND OTHERS WHICH STAYED OPEN HAVE FOUND THEIR BUSINESS CONTINUING AT ABOUT THE PRE-WHITTIER LEVEL. SOME NEW CIVILIAN HOUSES HAVE BEEN BUILT, SOME SEWARD FAMILIES HAVE RETURNED. ALMOST TO A MAN, SEWARD RESIDENTS ARE WILLING TO ADMIT THAT WHITTIER HAS AN EDGE BUT ARE READY TOFIGHT AT ANY SUGGESTION THAT THEIR OWN TOWN IS FINISHED.

(ADVANCE) MEXICO CITY--(AP)--THE UNITED STATES AND SOME OF HER SOUTHERN NEIGHBORS HAVE BEEN PARTNERS IN WAR FOR PERIODS RANGING BACK MORE THAN A YEAR AND A HALF. FOR A CONSIDERABLY GREATER PERIOD THEY HAVE BEEN THE SUBJECT MATERIAL OF AN EXPERIMENT IN INTERNATIONAL UNDERSTANDING SELDOM IF EVER EQUALLED IN THE PAST.

HOW FAR HAS THAT EXPERIMENT ADVANCED? WHAT IS THE FUTURE OF INTER-AMERICAN UNDERSTANDING?

JUL 20 1943

A CAREFUL STUDY, BASED ON CONTACTS WITH PEOPLE OF ALL CLASSES REPRESENTING MOST OF THE COUNTRIES CONCERNED, AND ON A THOROUGH INVESTIGATION OF POPULAR AND OFFICIAL REACTIONS, LEADS TO THE GENERAL CONCLUSION THAT DISTINCT PROGRESS HAS BEEN MADE.

IN THIS CONCLUSION THE GREAT MAJORITY OF COMPETENT OBSERVERS AGREE. DIPLOMATS, BUSINESSMEN, ENGINEERS, NEWSPAPERMEN AND STATESMEN WHO WERE CONSULTED WERE ALMOST ALL OF THAT OPINION. A GREAT MANY WERE CAUTIOUS, HOWEVER, PARTICULARLY IN THE SENSE THAT IT IS TOO MUCH TO EXPECT DEEPLY IMBEDDED DIFFERENCES SUCH AS HAVE EXISTED FOR SO MANY YEARS TO BE ERADICATED OVERNIGHT.

IT IS A GREAT THING, THESE OBSERVERS POINTED OUT, THAT 20 OF THE 21 AMERICAN REPUBLICS HAVE JOINED IN BREAKING RELATIONS WITH THE AXIS AND THAT 11 OF THEM ARE PLEDGED TOGETHER IN AN ACTUAL STATE OF WAR. THIS IS CONSIDERED A DEFINITE EXAMPLE OF SOLIDARITY AND A DEFINITE AUGURY. IT IS COMPARED NOT MERELY TO PAST RELATIONS BETWEEN LATIN AMERICA AND THE UNITED STATES BUT ALSO TO PAST RELATIONS AMONG THE LATIN AMERICAN COUNTRIES THEMSELVES.

SHADES OF THE CHACO WAR BETWEEN BOLIVIA AND PARAGUAY, THE BOUNDARY FIGHTING BETWEEN PERU AND ECUADOR, VARIOUS OTHER BORDER DISPUTES AND INTERNATIONAL DIFFERENCES, STACK UP IN THE NOT DISTANT PAST AS REMINDERS OF THE FACTORS THAT HAVE OBSTRUCTED INTER-AMERICAN UNITY AND UNDERSTANDING.

BY JOSEPH E.DYNAN

CAYENNE, FRENCH GUIANA--(AP)--WHILE THE RIVALRY BETWEEN GENERAL DE GAULLE AND GENERAL GIRAUD CONTINUES FOR CONTROL OF THE FIGHTING FRENCH FORCES, NATIVES OF THIS FRENCH COLONY IN SOUTH AMERICA LEAVES NO DOUBT OF THEIR SYMPATHIES IN THIS INTERNAL FRENCH STRUGGLE.

THEY ARE FOR GENERAL DE GAULLE. NOT PERHAPS AS A PERSON, BECAUSE A FEW KNOW MUCH ABOUT HIM, BUT AS THE SYMBOL OF THE

JUL 20 1943

3024- 6299

30.24-6299

FRANCE THAT REFUSED TO BE BEATEN.

FOR ALMOST THREE YEARS, CHARLES DE GAULLE WAS THE ONLY HOPEFUL SYMBOL THESE FRENCHMEN HAD AND THEY FLOCKED TO IT.

THEY ARE FOR DE GAULLE DESPITE THE APPARENTLY STRONG BACKING GIVEN GIRAUD BY THE UNITED STATES. THEY ARE FOR DE GAULLE DESPITE THE FACT THEIR OWN NEW REGIME IS HEADED BY GOVERNOR JEAN RAPENNE, A GIRAUD APPOINTEE WHOM THEY LIKE, AND THE FACT THAT VIRTUALLY ALL THE WHITE FRENCHMEN HERE FAVOR GIRAUD.

JUL 20 1943

AT THE SAME TIME THEY DESIRE EARNESTLY THAT THE TWO FRENCH LEADERS COME TO AN AGREEMENT, FOR THEY REALIZE THAT ONLY IN UNITY CAN THE FRENCH EMPIRE RECOUP ITS PLACE IN WORLD AFFAIRS. STILL, IF THE ISSUE IS TO BE DRAWN, THEY WOULD PREFER DE GAULLE.

SOME OF THIS SENTIMENT IS GENUINE, AND SOME OF IT, OBSERVERS ON THE SPOT REPORT, IS THE WORK OF A CLEVER NATIVE LEADER WHO SEES IN THE CURRENT FERMENT BETWEEN DE GAULLE AND GIRAUD A CHANCE FOR THE COLONY TO ASSERT MORE LOCAL AUTONOMY, AND A CHANCE FOR HIMSELF TO ACQUIRE MORE PRESTIGE, PERHAPS MORE POWER.

THUS, IN THE MAY 15 CELEBRATION OF THE FALL OF TUNIS AND BIZERTE, HUNDREDS OF THE NATIVES, MOSTLY MULATTOS OR NEGROES FROM MARTINIQUE OR GUADELOUPE STOCK, PARADED THROUGH CAYENNE'S STREETS TO THE AMERICAN CONSULATE AND THE GOVERNOR'S PALACE SHOUTING "VIVE DE GAULLE!"

SOME OF THE GIRAUDISTS IN RAPENNE'S ENTOURAGE WERE VISIBLY UPSET.

SEVERAL NIGHTS LATER I VISITED A MEETING OF SOME OF THESE NATIVE LEADERS. TO A MAN THEY ALL WANTED TO KNOW WHY AMERICA WAS BACKING GIRAUD, WHY AMERICA "HAD INSISTED" UPON A GIRAUDIST BEING INSTALLED AS GOVERNOR IN FRENCH GUIANA INSTEAD OF A DE GAULLIST.

WHEN THIS CORRESPONDENT PROFESSED HIS IGNORANCE OF AMERICA'S [redacted] OR SENTIMENTS, ONE OF THE NATIVE NEGROES VOLUNTEERED:

APS3

"PERHAPS THE AMERICAN PEOPLE, THEY LIKE GENERAL DE GAULLE, ??? .A. HULL, HE LIKES GENERAL GIRAUD."

THIS

JUL 20 1943

APS3

"PERHAPS THE AMERICAN PEOPLE, THEY LIKE GENERAL DE GAULLE, BUT MR. HULL, HE LIKES GENERAL GIRAUD."

THIS SENTIMENT IS MORE IMPORTANT THAN IT SEEMS ON THE SURFACE BECAUSE, IN THE "REVOLT" OF MARCH 17 WHICH TURNED OUT THE VICHY REGIME, ONLY THE INTERVENTION OF ONE MAN PREVENTED THE PRO-ALLIED DEMONSTRATION FROM DEVELOPING INTO AN ANTI-COLONIAL MOVEMENT ALONG RACIAL LINES.

THIS OFFICIAL, WHOSE IDENTITY MUST BE CONCEALED TO PROTECT HIS RELATIVES IN OCCUPIED TERRITORY, ACTED AS GO-BETWEEN FOR THE NATIVES AND THE COMMANDING OFFICERS OF THE WHITE FRENCH GARRISON, AND OBTAINED THE CO-OPERATION OF BOTH ELEMENTS. ONLY BECAUSE THIS OFFICIAL ENJOYED THE CONFIDENCE OF THE NATIVE NEGROES WAS HE ABLE TO PERFORM THIS SERVICE.

WITH A FOOT IN EACH CAMP, SO TO SPEAK, THIS OFFICIAL KNEW THAT THE NEGROES [redacted] LONG BEEN FEARFUL OF THE RESULT OF NAZI RACE THEORIES ON THE COLONY, AND KNEW THAT WHITE OFFICERS LONG FEARED

JUL 20 1943

THE RESULT OF VICHY'S POLICIES UPON FRANCE'S INTERNATIONAL POSI[illegible].

THE NATIVES WANTED TO ADHERE TO DE GAULLE, AND THE YOUNG WHITE OFFICERS WANTED TO ADHERE TO GIRAUD. THEY COMPROMISED BY ADHERING TO BOTH, SENDING DUPLICATE MESSAGES BY CABLE TO ALGIERS AND LONDON. SOMEHOW THE MESSAGE TO ALGIERS WAS DELIVERED FIRST AND THE GIRAUD MEN--FIRST COLONEL LABEL FROM WASHINGTON AND LATER GOVERNOR RAPENNE--ARRIVED FIRST, TOOK OVER.

JUL 20 1943

THE NATIVES STILL RESENT THE FACT GIRAUD'S MESSAGE WENT OUT FIRST, AND BELIEVE THAT IF DE GAULLE WERE GIVEN CONTROL OF GUIANA THEY COULD DEMAND AND OBTAIN A GREATER SHARE OF CONTROL IN LOCAL GOVERNMENT.

THIS, SO OBSERVERS ON THE SPOT BELIEVE, IS THE PURPOSE BEHIND THE CLEVER LOCAL LEADER, ALBERT DARNAL, FORMER ASSISTANT MAYOR AND PRESENT HEAD OF THE CAYENNE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE. DARNAL, THEY SAI, IS NOT ONLY DE GAULLIST, BUT VERY AMBITIOUS.

SOMEWHAT SIMILAR CONDITIONS PREVAIL ON MARTINIQUE AND GUADELOUPE BUT WITH ONE IMPORTANT DIFFERENCE. THE ISLAND NATIVES HAVE NO ARMS. GUIANA BEING A FRONTIER COUNTRY, MOST EVERY MAN HAS A GUN.
THAT IS WHAT COUNTS, EVEN IN A PEACEFUL REVOLUTION.

BY JOESPH E.DYNAN

(ADVANCE) SAN JUAN, P.R. (AP)-THE NATIVE POPULATIONS OF THE BRITISH TERRITORIES IN THE CARIBBEAN AREA ARE WATCHING PUERTO RICO FOR AN INDICATION AS TO WHAT THEY MAY EXPECT FROM THEIR OWN HOME GOVERNMENT IN THE WAY OF GREATER AUTONOMY.

PUERTO RICO IS TO THEM THE BAROMETER OF FUTURE AMERICAN POLICY TOWARD THE UNDERDEVELOPED REGIONS OF THE WORLD. THEY DEDUCE THAT WHAT AMERICA DOES FOR THE PUERTO RICANS, THE BRITISH WILL DO, OR CAN BE PERSUADED TO DO, IN THEIR CASE. BRITAIN HAS ALREADY LIBERALIZED THE GOVERNMENTS IN TRINIDAD, JAMAICA, AND GUINA, AND RESIDENTS OF THESE COLONIES WONDER WHAT THEY CAN GET NEXT.

MANY LEADERS IN BRITISH COLONIES AS WELL AS IN PUERTO RICO, ESPECIALLY THOSE WHO FEEL THEY HAVE BEEN "EXPLOITED," REGARDED THE ATLANTIC CHARTER AND ALL ITS PLEDGES, SPECIFIC OR IMPLIED, WITH GREAT SERIOUSNESS. THEY FORESEE AN AREA OF MORE SELF-DETERMINATION, MORE EQUALITY FOR COLONIAL PEOPLES.

JUL 20 1943

IN BRIEF, THE OUTSTANDING IMPRESSION FROM ANY JOURNEY INTO THE BRITISH COLONIES OF THIS AREA, IS THAT THE PROBLEM OF PUERTO RICO, WHICH HAS PLAGUED THE UNITED STATES FOR MORE THAN 40 YEARS, IS NO ISOLATED QUESTION. IT IS DIFFICULT FOR MOST POLITICIANS IN PUERTO RICO TO REALIZE THIS, BUT ISSUES IN PUERTO RICO, FROM A NEW WORLD PERSPECTIVE, MUST BE DECIDED IN CONJUNCTION WITH ISSUES OF THE ENTIRE CARIBBEAN.

ALREADY, IN A CERTAIN POLITICAL SENSE, THE CARIBBEAN HAS BECOME INTEGRATED. WHAT APPLIES TO BRITISH DOMAINS IS LIKEWISE MORE OR

RESIDENTS OF TRINIDAD OR BRITISH GUIANA, AND EVEN OF DUTCH GUIANA, ARE QUITE CURIOUS ABOUT EVENTS IN PUERTO RICO. THEY DO NOT SEEM PARTICULARLY WELL-INFORMED, BUT THEY ARE INDEED INTERESTED.

JUL 1943

ONE COLONIAL EDITOR, FOR EXAMPLE, KNEW SOMETHING ABOUT THE "TUGWELL PROGRAM," AND ASKED PROBING QUESTIONS AS TO ITS OPERATION. BUT HE KNEW LITTLE OR NOTHING OF THE AUTHOR OF THAT PROGRAM, LUIS MUNOZ-MARIN, PRESIDENT OF THE PUERTO RICAN SENATE, HEAD OF THE POPULAR PARTY, EASILY THE OUTSTANDING POLITICAL LEADER OF THIS ISLAND TERRITORY.

MANY LEADERS IN CONTINENTAL TERRITORIES FEEL THAT THEIR FUTURE IS BOUND UP WITH THAT OF JAMAICA, PUERTO RICO AND THE ANTILLES IN GENERAL. THEY CAN MAKE A GOOD CASE.

THEY CONTRAST THE CROWDED POPULATIONS AND RELATIVELY MEAGER FOOD PRODUCTION OF THE ISLANDS WITH THEIR OWN YAWNING INTERIOR, THE FERTILE JUNGLE SAVANNAHS, AND THEIR AMPLE CROPS OF BEANS, RICE AND PLANTAINS, WHICH ARE STAPLES FOR THE ISLANDERS. THEY CONTRAST THE ISLANDS' OVERPOPULATION AND UNEMPLOYMENT PROBLEMS WITH THEIR OWN URGENT NEED OF MANPOWER FOR PROPER DEVELOPMENT OF VACANT LANDS AND UNTOUCHED RESOURCES OF IRON, BAUXITE, TIMBER AND GOLD.

THEY POINT TO THE SIMILARITY OF THE POPULATIONS OF MANY OF THE ISLANDS AND IN THE GUIANAS. IN THE GUIANAS, THE NATIVES ARE MOSTLY NEGROID, MULATTO, OR JAVANESE OR EAST INDIAN, WITH SOME CHINESE. THE POPULATION OF TRINIDAD IS LARGELY COMPOSED OF JUST SUCH ELEMENTS. MOST OF THE ISLANDS ARE INHABITED BY PERSONS OF NEGRO STOCK. IN THE GUIANAS ALREADY THERE ARE MANY PERSONS WHOSE FAMILIES EMIGRATED FROM MARTINIQUE, BARBADOES, ST.LUCIA OR JAMAICA.

THE ATTITUDE OF THESE LEADERS, THEN, IS THAT THESE ISLANDS AND THE NORTHERN FRINGE OF THE SOUTH AMERICAN CONTINENT HAVE RESOURCES BOTH HUMAN AND MATERIAL, WHICH ARE COMPLIMENTARY.

RESIDENTS OF THESE COLONIES HAVE HAILED THE ADVENT OF AMERICAN BASES AS A GOOD OMEN FOR THEIR FUTURE DEVELOPMENT, WITH THE AMERICAN AND BRITISH GOVERNMENTS "MIXED UP," AS CHURCHILL SAID, IN THEIR RELATIONS FOR MANY YEARS, IF NOT PERMANENTLY.

THEY SEE IN THE ANGLO-AMERICAN CARIBBEAN COMMISSION A SHAPE OF THE THINGS TO COME, AND THEY ARE KEEPING AN EYE PEELED TO PUERTO RICO FOR OTHER INDICATIONS OF THEIR FUTURE STATUS. THEY NOTE THAT A PUERTO RICAN, JUDGE MARTIN TRAVIESO, WAS THE ONLY "WEST INDIAN" TO ATTAIN MEMBERSHIP ON THIS JOINT COMMISSION, AND THEY EXPECT PUERTO RICO WILL LEAD THEM IN THEIR MARCH TOWARD GREATER SELF-GOVERNMENT.

Rome Rocked in All-American Air Raid, Only War Targets Blasted in First Attack; Axis Defenses Tottering in Central Sicily

JUL 20 1943

Eternal City Raided by Flyers Specially Trained for Delicate Mission--- Historic Edifices Avoided.

JUL 20 1943

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, July 19 (A. P.).—An All-American force of Flying Fortresses, Liberators, Mitchells and Marauders carried out the war's first bombing of Rome, it was disclosed tonight. The flyers concentrated on military targets in the Eternal City.

The San Lorenzo marshaling yard, one of the targets, lies four miles from Vatican City.

The Flying Fortresses led the way, and while they were attacking the San Lorenzo yards Liberators bombed the Littorio railway freight yards.

Simultaneously hundreds of Marauders and Mitchells, escorted by Lightnings, began a lengthy attack on the Campino airdrome.

The flyers struck at the very heart of Fascist Italy in an emphatic follow-up to the Churchill-Roosevelt surrender demand.

The crews were specially trained to carry home a precision attack, pinpointing targets which supposedly were protected by their proximity to some of the most sacred symbols and monuments of Christianity.

[Liberators based in the Middle East took part in the raid and dropped 350 tons of bombs, it was announced in Cairo. They remained over the target area for an hour and a quarter, striking heavily at the Littorio marshalling yards.]

The San Lorenzo marshaling yards was the closest target to the Vatican. Forty-five minutes after the first attack another wave of Flying Fortresses laid a new pattern of bombs over the same yards.

All the crews were carefully instructed to avoid historical and religious points by means of large aerial photographs on which such places as Vatican City, St. John Lateran and others were outlined in red, with the legend near by: "Must on no account be damaged."

[The Rome radio said today that many residences were left aflame from the bombing of Rome but made no assertion that any damage had been done to church, cultural or historical structures.]

Railroad Yards Jammed With Traffic.

The city's railroad yards recently have been filled to overflowing with vast shipments of war material and detachments of troops probably bound for Sicily to reinforce Axis armies there.

Although recent Allied raids on Naples are known to have disrupted rail communications on that line, the Rome route is an even more vital link in the Italian military supply system. The principal center of Italian aircraft construction and repair also is located in Rome.

Prior to the falling of the bombs went leaflets telling Italians why the Eternal City had to be attacked—because the Fascists capitalizing on hallowed precincts, had systematically concentrated their war machinery there and funneled German troops as well as their own through Roman railways.

Bombs were away—dropped on their targets—in broad daylight at 11:13 A. M. (5:13 A. M., Eastern war time).

[The bombing was announced by the War Department in Washington at 5:29 A. M. before the bombers had time to return. An Algiers radio broadcast at 2 P. M. (8 A. M., Eastern war time) said the returning planes were just then coming back.]

It was the first time in this war that a report on a bombing was released before the attack actually started. Correspondents were given the information at 11 A. M. The bomb bay doors were opened in the lead flight of the Allied planes thirteen minutes later and the radio operators on the flight informed headquarters instantly.

The reason was to forestall or discount a flood of Axis propaganda claiming Rome had been bombed indiscriminately, with lurid and fantastic tales flashed to Catholic countries over the world.

Rome is barely 350 miles from advanced Allied air bases, and Mussolini and his Fascist chieftains are reported to have lived in terror of a bombing of their capital since the turn in the fortunes of war in the Mediterranean. The Fascist chieftain is reported to have had several different headquarters arranged in various parts of Italy, but his main office remained in the capital.

Hand-picked Crews on Raid.

Thousands of Italians had flocked to the capital, believing it would be safe from bombing.

The pilots, navigators and bombardiers who made the attack were hand-picked from among thousands, selected for special qualities in which their military efficiency was only one, and then went through intensive weeks of training by Allied intelligence experts who had lived for years in Rome.

They memorized a large map of Rome to be sure of their targets. They had to take all these precautions because Mussolini had built up a big war machine virtually in the shadow of Vatican City.

The Pope's residence is only about five miles from the big Rome railway freight yards where bombs were planted, and the Roman Forum is even closer, about three miles.

Avoid Historic Landmarks.

The raid was announced in a brief communique from Allied headquarters, which said especial care was taken not to damage religious or cultural monuments. This was in line with a communication which President Roosevelt sent to Pope Pius XII recently, assuring him that the Allies, in attacking Sicily and Italy, would do all in their power to avoid damage to the Vatican and property of the Roman Catholic Church in Italy.

Railway Yards Main Target.

The communique declared that the principal target of the raid was the railway marshaling yard in the capital, which, it said, "is of the greatest importance to the Axis war effort and in particular for the movement of German troops."

Allied headquarters emphasized that Rome is one of four focal points of railway transportation in Italy. Naples, Bologna and Foggia—the other three—have already been bombed heavily on scores of occasions. To prevent Axis military supplies from going through the supposedly safe Rome route, the capital was attacked.

Warn of Axis Tricks.

The most profound warnings were given to the Italians to forestall possible Axis attempts to stage fake "bomb explosions" around non-military objectives and attribute them to an Allied air attack.

The leaflets reminded the Italians that "over a period of years Mussolini designedly brought more and more war plants and arsenals to Rome" where weapons are built to kill Allied soldiers."

The war's initial attack on Rome followed closely the greatest aerial assault ever carried out in the Mediterranean theater—a daylight raid by more than 500 Allied bombers Saturday on Naples, Italy's largest port and most important base for sending supplies and reinforcements to Sicily.

Naples Hit Hard.

Wave after wave of heavy and medium bombers principally American from bases in North Africa and the Middle East poured hundreds of tons of explosives on Naples following up a night attack on the same objective by blockbuster-carrying Wellingtons of the R. A. F.

Although the terrific pounding which started in the pre-dawn hours was continued until late afternoon most of the daylight bombing was packed into less than two hours. Blockbusters and 1,000-pound bombs were showered on docks, rail yards, air fields and industrial areas, spreading a carpet of flames which sent smoke rising to a height of 12,000 feet.

Flying Fortresses led the way in the daylight portion of the devasting assault. Followed by Mitchell and Marauder medium bombers from North African bases and American four-engined Liberators from the Middle East. The Fortresses returned twice to batter their targets.

Hundreds of American Planes Blast Eternal City in Daylight Attack.

ALLIES SEND WARNING

People Told in Advance of Plans to Blast War Installations.

JUL 20 1943

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 19.—(AP) Specially trained American precision airmen dropped hundreds of tons of bombs on rail and airfield installations at Rome today in the first attack of the war on the Eternal city.

The first "bombs away" call of Flying Fortress bombardiers came at 11:13 a. m. (5:13 a. m. E.W.T.).

Leaflets first were dropped, advising the inhabitants why certain sections of the city were military objectives.

Four Miles From Vatican

Tons of explosives then smashed the San Lorenzo railway yards four miles east of Vatican City. That was the target nearest to the Vatican. The yards are those in which Axis troop trains are made up for dispatch southward to Sicily and the southern mainland. The Littorio yards farther east and the Ciampino airfield also were bombed heavily by airmen using the highly accurate American bombsight.

Fortresses, Mitchells and Marauders from the North African command were joined by four-engined Liberators from the Middle East. Their crews had trained for weeks for this delicate task and carried large aerial photographs on which such places as Vatican City, and the churches, St. John Lateran and Santa Maria Maggiore, were marked in red and labeled:

"Must on no account be damaged."

No Report of Losses

Up to a late hour tonight there were no reports of any American planes being lost although hundreds participated. Many airmen of the Catholic faith, as many as possible, were chosen for the military expedition to counter any Axis propaganda moves evoked by history's first aerial assault on Rome.

3024-6303

The Romans had been told Sunday and early Monday by leaflets to take shelter, that an attack was coming.

Interspersed among the raiders today were planes carrying more leaflets repeating the Roosevelt-Churchill demand that Italians overthrow the Fascist ringleaders who led them into war.

The importance of the military objectives was apparent in the fact that the Littorio rail yards alone handle 3,000 carloads of freight daily.

The Liberators from the Middle East blasted the yard with 350 tons of bombs for nearly 75 minutes, meeting almost no fighter opposition.

Tell of Raid Quickly

Allied leaders, in anticipation of an immediate flood of Axis propaganda decrying alleged "desecration" of Christendom's symbols and shrines in ancient Rome, released the news of the raid before it was over.

"Military objectives in Rome and its vicinity have been bombed today by heavy bombers and medium bombers of the Mediterranean air command," the brief comunique said. "The marshalling yards was the principal target. It is of the greatest importance to the Axis war effort and in particular for the movement of German troops.

"Leaflets also were dropped over the city during the raid. Pilots and bombardiers employed on this mission were particularly instructed to avoid damaging religious and cultural monuments."

The bombing was an emphatic answer to Premier Mussolini's Fascists who apparently long had believed that their headquarters and military installations would be immune because of their construction close to the Holy See and amid the cultural treasures prized by the entire western world.

Shattering Blow to Italians

It was a shattering blow also to an over-populated city jammed by war-weary refugees who thought it was safe from attack. So strong has been that belief among the Fascists themselves that air-raid shelters are far from sufficient to accommodate the people.

While the heavy bombers were tearing up the rail yards to create a bottleneck in Axis troop communications, hundreds of Mitchells and Marauders escorted by Lightning fighters struck the Ciampino airdrome, nine miles from the center of Rome.

Forty-five minutes later a second wave of Flying Fortresses assaulted the rail yards so vital to the Italian war effort.

One electric and one steam train service enters Rome from the north, two lines enter from the northeast, one from the south and two from the southeast, making Rome the hub for trans-shipment and re-routing throughout southern Italy.

The principal center of Italian aircraft construction and repair also is located in Rome, whose normal population of about 1,000,000 persons now may be twice that figure.

Leaflets Dropped

The leaflets dropped by American airmen bluntly told Rome's citizens that their city was being attacked in daylight so that they could see for themselves that military targets were the sole objectives.

"The Fascist government, who have consistently concealed from you the facts about the war," said we are trying to destroy those cultural monuments which are the glory not only of Rome but the civilized world.

"It is possible, moreover, in order to lend plausibility to their lying statements, the Fascist government or their German associates will themselves arrange that bombs will be dropped on the center of Rome or even on Vatican City.

"We leave it to your intelligence to decide whether it is likely that we should waste our efforts on targets whose destruction is useless for our purpose.

"We have declared, and we repeat, that we shall be aiming at military objectives — communications, war industries, military installations and airports, all of which are being used for the sole interest of the Germans."

The message made it clear that it was not always possible to avoid some destruction of civilian buildings, but "it is our intention to reduce this destruction to a minimum."

"Since our attack will be in daylight you will be able to see for yourselves that these statements are true."

Announce Raid in Advance

The Allies took "unusual risks" in tipping the Italians in advance that the capital would be raided by daylight. But this precaution and the elaborate instructions given the airmen were in line with a communication which President Roosevelt sent to Pope Pius XII recently assuring him that the Allies would do all in their power to avoid damage to the Vatican and Roman Catholic church property in Italy.

Allied officials disclosed that Fascist authorities had built a number of high-powered generating plants so close to religious shrines that their vibrations can be felt within the holy precincts. These power plants are considered legitimate military targets.

Big Daylight Raid Spearheaded by U. S. Planes

JUL 20 1943

By the Associated Press.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 19.—Allied heavy and medium bombers blasted military objectives in Rome for the first time in the war today, striking at the very heart of Fascist Italy in a follow-up to the Churchill-Roosevelt ultimatum demanding that Italians remove their country from the war.

A headquarters communique announcing the raid said:

"Military objectives in Rome and its vicinity have been bombed today by heavy bombers and medium bombers of the Mediterranean Air Command. The railroad marshalling yard was the principal target. It is of the greatest importance to the Axis war effort and in particular for the movement of German troops."

Industrial sectors of Mussolini's war machine also came under attack from the powerful air fleet.

The city's railroad yards recently have been filled to overflowing with vast shipments of war material and detachments of troops probably bound for Sicily to reinforce Axis armies.

Although recent Allied raids on Naples are known to have disrupted rail communications on that line, the Rome route is an even more vital link in the Italian military supply system. The principal center of Italian aircraft construction and repair also is located in Rome.

Specially trained Allied crews carried home a precision attack, pinpointing targets which supposedly were protected by their proximity to some of the most sacred symbols and monuments of Christianity.

A strong force of American heavy bombers spearheaded the attack.

A terrific force of explosives burst in Rome.

Leaflets Dropped.

Prior to the bombing leaflets were dropped telling Italians why Rome had to be attacked—because the Fascists, capitalizing on hallowed precincts, had systematically concentrated their war machinery there and funneled German troops, as well as their own, through Roman railways.

"It is from this war engine that weapons to kill our soldiers have been coming," the Allied message said.

Bombs were away—dropped on their targets—in broad daylight at 11:13 a.m. (5:13 a.m., Eastern war time).

(The bombing was announced by the War Department in Washington at 5:29 a.m. before the bombers had time to return.

Pope's Residence 5 Miles Away.

The residence of Pope Pius XII is only about 5 miles from the big Rome railway freight yards where bombs were planted, and the Roman Forum is even closer, about 3 miles.

The Fascist government offices are located only about 1,500 yards from the railroad center.

The Allied air forces also struck at mainland airfields of Italy at Monte Corvino and Pomigliano Saturday night, dropping explosives in strings across runways and buildings, it was announced, in direct support of the British 8th Army driving up the Sicilian east coast, other fleets of aircraft blasted at Catania and Randazzo, a key communications center across Mount Etna from Catania.

Across the strait from these objectives the Middle East force of RAF four-engined Halifaxes and American Liberators hurled tons of explosives on Reggio Calabria's rail and port facilities early yesterday.

The communique telling of the raid and saying special care was taken not to harm cultural and religious target structures was in line with a communication which President Roosevelt sent to the Pope recently assuring him that the Allies, in attacking Sicily and Italy, would do all in their power to avoid damage to the Vatican and property of the Roman Catholic Church in Italy.

Allied headquarters emphasized that Rome is one of four focal points of railway transportation in Italy. Naples, Bologna and Foggia—the other three—already have been bombed heavily on scores of occasions.

(The Algiers radio, in a broadcast recorded by the Associated Press in London, quoted a Rome broadcast as saying the raid was heavy and concentrated.)

Text of Leaflets Dropped on Rome Explaining Raid on Eternal City

JUL 20 1943

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, July 19 (A. P.).—Following is the English translation of the text of leaflets which were dropped over Rome by Allied airplanes today:

To the Citizens of Rome:

You have already been warned that military objectives in the vicinity of Rome are liable to be bombed by the Allied air force.

When this occurs, the Fascist Government, who have consistently concealed from you the facts about the war, will pretend that we are trying to destroy those cultural monuments which are the glory not only of Rome but the civilized world.

It is possible, moreover, in order to lend plausibility to their lying statements, the Fascist Government or their German associates will themselves arrange that bombs will be dropped on the center of Rome or even on Vatican City.

We leave it to your intelligence to decide whether it is likely that we should waste our efforts on targets whose destruction is useless for our purpose.

We have declared, and we repeat, that we shall be aiming at military objectives—communications, war industries, military installations and airports, all of which are being used for the sole interest of the Germans.

These objectives have been carefully chosen and our pilots have been especially trained in accurate bombing. It is, however, impossible while aiming at military objectives to avoid some destruction of civilian buildings. It is our intention to reduce this destruction to a minimum.

Since our attack will be in daylight you will be able to see for yourselves that these statements are true.

You can therefore conclude that when any bombs drop far outside the target area it will be the work of the Fascist Government in a deliberate attempt to deceive you.

RAID ON ROME WAS PLANNED BY TEDDER

JUL 20 1943

Marshal Visited Most Of Squadrons Personally Before Takeoff

"Why Shouldn't We Bomb It?" Sicilian-Born Flyer Asks

[By the Associated Press]

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, July 19—The raid on Rome was planned by Air Chief Marshal Tedder, commander in chief of the Allied air forces in the Mediterranean, and he personally visited most of the squadrons before they took off, it was disclosed tonight.

American bombers were selected for the raid chiefly because of their special qualifications for that type of daylight raid. Had it been done under different conditions, the RAF would have carried it out.

The number of bombers participating was not announced but it is known that it was large.

Fighter opposition over Rome was non-existent. The American airmen agreed that they saw a few Axis interceptors but said the enemy planes did not intercept anything. Flak was medium to heavy in spots and not accurate, they said.

Easy To Find

As for the accuracy of the bombing, they said they had no difficulty finding their targets in the clear weather and they were sure they hit what they were aiming at, namely, the San Lorenzo and Littorio rail marshalling yards and communications through Rome in general.

The target nearest to Vatican City was the San Lorenzo railway yard, four miles away.

Fires were raging after the first Fortress assault. Succeeding waves went in to spread and increase the fires.

Fortresses came in four separate waves from ten to fifteen minutes apart. The first bomb fell from a ship piloted by Col. Sam Gormley, of Alhambra, Cal. The first wave skirted the eastern edge of the city coming up from Civita Vecchia.

Sicilian-Born Bombardier

A Sicilian-born American bombardier was one of those who released his projectiles on the target.

He was Second Lieutenant Anthony S. Mastropalo, of Tyrone, Pa., and he said he felt no conscientious scruples in bombing Rome.

"In fact, I was very much disappointed when I found my name had been left off the list at first," Mastropalo said. "Later that was changed. I consider Rome as much a military target as any of the cities we've been kicking around. Why shouldn't we bomb it?"

Sergt. Edward Doolan, of St. Joseph, Mo., said: "Right on the target. No trouble at all. Flak and enemy fighters almost nil."

Summarized Reaction

That summarized the reaction of most of the American airmen.

Two American flyers finished their fiftieth mission with the Rome raid, and are ready for a trip home now. They were Lieut. John M. Kelso, of Montgomery, Ala., and Lieut. Marion D. Jones, of Memphis, Tenn.

Kelso said: "This mission was a 'beaut' to wind up with. One group of Forts was just ahead of us on the bomb run. Their bombs mushroomed all over the area so we just let our pills roll on top of theirs. As we were leaving the coast we saw some B-24s lugging their loads in. The panning we gave them was pitiful."

Saw Vatican City

Jones added: "We thought we'd have to be very careful to hit only military objectives but there was nothing to it. We saw Vatican City about five miles across the river from the railroads and industrial regions."

Lieut. S. D. McFadden, Long Beach, Cal., declared: "Frankly it was much better than I expected. It was a good raid. It seems there never had been much protection for Rome. The resistance was negligible."

New York, July 19 (AP)—The London radio said more than 500 American planes took part in the raid on Rome today. The broadcast, recorded by NBC and CBS, quoted a report from Allied headquarters in North Africa.

JUL 20 1943

Stockholm, Tuesday, July 20 (AP)—Fires were still burning in Rome early today following the American raid on military targets there, and all of the population of the Italian capital not essential to its activity has been urged to evacuate the city, Rome dispatches to the Swedish press said.

Reporter Sees Rome Blasted By 2 Veterans of Tokio Raid

JUL 20 1943

Flying in a Marauder, He Watches Flames Billow From Railroad Yards and Airport, Says No Bomb Fell Within 4 Miles of Vatican City

By Joseph Morton

WITH AMERICAN BOMBERS OVER ROME, July 19 (AP).—I was over Rome today in a Martin Marauder plane with two flyers who helped bomb Tokio in April of 1942. Our plane was near the tail end of the last echelon, and we went in at the uncomfortable height of 10,000 feet to unload our bombs with deadly accuracy on a group of grounded airplanes.

If the Axis can produce proof that our bombers destroyed anything but military objectives today I shall be very much surprised. We remained in the vicinity of the grounded planes long enough to permit a good look around. We observed nothing from the air to give the slightest hint that any bomb fell within four miles of Vatican City. I could see fires in three legitimate military targets—two railway switching yards and an airport.

Ahead of us had been Flying Fortresses, Liberators and Mitchells, and they obviously had done a good job. We were the last to come and to go. Heavy explosions and anti-aircraft shells interfered with our view as we left, but otherwise there was nothing to mar the picture of imperial Rome stretching below us.

So far as the bombers in this flight were concerned, enemy fighters were fiddling around while three militarily strategic areas burned. Not a single enemy fighter plane challenged us.

Captain Jack A. Sims, of Kalamazoo, Mich., a veteran of the Tokio bombing and the pilot of my plane, said he thought the anti-aircraft gunners at the Japanese capital "had a little more on the ball." He described the ground fire today as "about as heavy," but said the Italians obviously were out of practice.

Another Tokio veteran was on board. He was Captain James H. Macia jr., of Tucson, Ariz., who was a navigator-bombardier. He was more interested in the effects of the bombing than anything else.

"I had been studying the target chart of this layout for some time and I knew exactly where to look to observe the results," Captain Macia said.

"The fires were localized at the spots they were supposed to be. The only other smokes visible from the air were far westward of the city, between Rome and the sea. The first arose in the shape of an oval, and it looked like the Italians were trying to throw a smoke-screen over an airport. The second was a small isolated blaze that might have been caused by a bomb jettisoned by some one on the way home.

"Our individual target was grounded aircraft at Ciampino Airport, fifteen miles southeast of the city. I watched through the open bomb bay as our bombs fell, and I followed them with my eyes all the way down to the ground.

"When they struck they flashed flame and then kicked up tremendous clouds of smoke. As we moved across the target our explosives plowed a neat furrow along our line of flight. The furrow advanced straight across the dispersal area of the airport, knifing through at least a dozen revetments covering enemy planes.

"On our maps marked not to be bombed at any cost were such points as Vatican City, Santa Maria Maggiore, the St. Paul Basilica, the Ancient Forum, the Coliseum, the National Museum and the Michael Angelo Monument.

"They were marked as not to be bombed, and they weren't."

Prior to the raid the Ciampino Airport had been described to me by a general officer as the most important in the Rome area. In approaching the city, smoke from demolition charges dropped by Mitchell planes ahead of us was sufficient to serve as a perfect signpost, even when we were some distance at sea.

Our fragmentation bombs were designed to burst with devastating effect on the planes on the ground. The view was perfect. It seemed to me very unlikely that the airport would be of much use for some time.

With a specially prepared target chart before me, it was very easy to locate the Littorio and San Lorenzo marshaling yards and other objectives. I also could look across the River Tiber to where the Vatican City basked under the warm afternoon sun, well out of the danger zone.

I caught a glimpse of the Church of St. John Lateran, but lost it as we banked around to turn homeward. A thin haze, possibly a mixture of dust and smoke, appeared to be drifting across the city proper, making it impossible to identify other points of religious and cultural significance.

London Views Rome Raid As First of Many Attacks

Bombing of Fascist Capital Necessary to Shorten War, Press Declares.

LONDON, July 19 — (AP) With grim satisfaction, but not exultation, much-bombed London accepted the first aerial attack on Rome today as the start of a series that can end only when Italy quits the war.

Press and individual opinion seemed agreed that the time had come when the bombing of the Fascist capital was necessary to shorten the battle of Italy and to save Axis as well as Allied lives on the fighting front.

Hours after the raid, the Rome radio asserted that a church had been damaged.

Pope Visits Church

It said Pope Pius had visited the basilica of St. Lorenzo Fuori le Mura (outside the wall) which had been "devastated this morning by bombs dropped by Anglo-Saxon aviators." The Pope made a private visit to the basilica at 6 p. m., returning to the Vatican an hour later, said the broadcast recorded by the Associated Press.

This church lies about 1,000 yards northeast of the San Lorenzo railway marshalling yards, one of the main targets of the attack. There was no report from other sources that the church had been damaged. Rome a little earlier had reported that many homes were set afire.

The unusual procedure of issuing a communique as soon as the bombing had started gave the United Nations the jump in the inevitable battle of opinion by putting the Allies' case up to the world before the Axis could broadcast extravagant claims.

Not until late afternoon did the German propaganda machine get into gear, putting out a broadcast under a "Vatican City" dateline.

It asserted that "Vatican and all clerical circles are greatly astounded at and disgusted with the enemy's attack on Rome Monday which, contrary to all assurances given by the United States and Britain, has destroyed many residential houses in Rom.."

It said the church had sent officials to investigate the damage, and the "the Pope felt considerable disappointment in the attitude of the Allies when he observed fires in the city." There was no independent confirmation of this version.

Allies Offset Propagandists

The Allied pamphlets warning of the coming raid, and inviting Romans to check the accuracy of Allied bomb aim, apparently caught the Axis propagandists unprepared.

The Italian communique acknowledged the raid but gave no details. Later a Berlin broadcast, also recorded by the Associated Press, quoting comment of the Roman newspaper Piccolo, said Rome stood up to the raid "with the same calmness and manly deliberation as other Italian towns have done."

Military circles waited anxiously for announcement of the Allied bomber losses, fearful that they might be heavy in view of the advance warning given and the extra care taken to find the right targets.

The German overseas radio reported that the planes arrived in waves during a period of two and a half hours. This was seen as a possible indication that the defenses were wholly inadequate to break up a prolonged attack.

Reflecting the conviction that this was no stunt, The Evening Standard in an editorial said that Mussolini's capital had received the first in "what will be a succession of aerial attacks," and The London Star said military targets in Rome "will be attacked again and again until Mussolini and his gang capitulate."

The Evening News, anticipating charges of vandalism, wrote that "It is no more vandalism than is any other necessary act of war."

Military Necessity Cited

Refusing to defend the bombing on the obvious grounds of retribution, The Evening Standard summed up: "The plain fact is that the bombing of Rome is a military necessity. It is confined to military objectives.

"Their complete obliteration will save the lives of many Allied soldiers, encourage such elements of revolt as may exist inside the Italian capital, and shorten the battle for the liberation of the Italian homeland. To pull our punches now would be a crime and a blunder x x x The sooner the knockout the more certain will be the world's hope for the restoration of the glory that was Rome."

Joseph Cardinal Macrory, archbishop of Armagh and Roman Catholic primate of Ireland, said in Belfast that the bombing "is very serious news and I am sorry to hear it."

It was expected that Prime Minister Churchill might discuss the bombing soon in Parliament. Military observers said the Allies apparently believed that the military advantages or necessities outweighed the protests that seemed sure to come from Axis and neutral sources.

BERN, July 19.—Declaring that Italy would be dismembered, her people enslaved and her treasures looted if she yielded, Carlo Scorza, new secretary of the Fascist party, broadcast from Rome last night a frantic appeal for last-ditch resistance to the Allies.

The speech, obviously a reply to the Roosevelt-Churchill unconditional surrender demand which last week was conveyed to the Italian people by radio and leaflets dropped from planes, acknowledged, however, that the plight of Italy is desperate.

Italy, Scorza said, is "as never before, in mortal danger." He pictured her as "a little group of men" standing out against the two richest powers in the world who, he asserted, as "most avid to gorge and wishing to destroy her territorial and political unity and abolish her rights."

"War of Continents."

"The Italians know that this is a war of continents," he said. "The Italians know that this is a war of race, with the British and Americans as the vanguards of the inferior hordes."

Although he made no direct reference to the Allied ultimatum, he held that only through continued resistance could the Italian nation survive. Recounting the nation's gains under 23 years of Fascist rule, he painted a stark picture of the fate in store for Italy in surrender.

"Resist! Resist! Resist!" he exhorted. "If the enemy should be victorious, what fate would befall us? The nation would be broken up; the people would be reduced to a mass of serfs and most of them would fall under the Russian whip. The stronger would be sent to toil in the Ural mines and on the Steppes; the less strong would raise flowers for the ladies or would sketch ceramics for English baronets. The sacked museum, the schools subjected to the whims of the conquerors; the idle arsenals, the ports deserted of our ships; the closed factories, the abandoned fields would bear witness."

Predicts Counterblows.

The speech also hinted at even more drastic regimentation for the already bomb-shocked population, and declared that although the Allies now held the initiative, the Axis would bide its time and seize the first slackening in the attack as the moment for a counterblow.

"The most severe sanctions will be applied immediately and publicly against those who eventually might not observe the order to die at the battle station or work bench," he said.

Scorza elaborated on the theme that Italy had had no alternative but to enter the war on the side of the Axis, because she could expect nothing from the Allies.

This was intended to dispel any hopes that the Italians might have of a liberal peace following unconditional surrender, in the opinion of Swiss newspaper commentaries.

One Rome dispatch appearing in a Swiss newspaper declared President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill "promise absolutely nothing" and said the ultimatum threatens that the people must bear the consequences of their own choice although they really have no choice but "simply must endure what the fury of war sends them."

Leaders Concerned.

Die Tat insisted that the idea of unconditional surrender was not suited to winning the Axis nations toward peace. "It constantly shows itself as a serious psychological error in Allied policy toward Europe," the paper said.

It was generally agreed by most of the press that Scorza's speech could be taken as Fascism's answer to the unconditional surrender demand, but it also was seen as an indication that Fascist leaders are deeply concerned over the situation within Italy.

[The Rome radio reported that King Victor Emmanuel III and Queen Elena inspected the bomb damage in Rome, and later the Queen visited hospitals to talk with the injured.

[The Berlin radio broadcast a Rome dispatch quoting the Rome newspaper "Il Piccolo" as saying that Rome met its first air raid "with the same calmness . . . with which all other Italian towns have responded to such attacks," and that "the British and Americans will have to convince themselves that Italy is determined to offer resistance to the utmost.

There is no difference between north, south and central Italy." The broadcast was recorded by The Associated Press.]

Rome Charges Destruction of Famed Church

Says San Lorenzo Basilica Is Razed, Fails to Mention Near-By Freight Yards

JUL 20 1943

By The Associated Press

BERN, Switzerland, July 19 (AP).—The Italian propaganda agency, Stefani, giving the first Axis version of the American air attack today on military objectives at Rome, said tonight that it caused "numerous victims" and destroyed the Basilica of San Lorenzo fuori le Mura, but made no mention of what damage was done to the San Lorenzo freight yards near that church.

A Swiss Telegraphic Agency dispatch from Rome which cleared the Italian censorship said that the attack, "of great violence," began at 11:15 a. m., the planes flying over in successive waves.

The San Lorenzo Church is on the Via Tiburtino, near the Termini station of the San Lorenzo Railroad yards, and on a street where military barracks are located.

The San Lorenzo Church was built in the fourth century by the Emperor Constantine and contains papal tombs, including that of Piux IX. Stefani said the tomb of Pius IX was intact, but that all the columns of the church had fallen except two.

The Campo Verano Cemetery, near the church, also was said to have suffered heavily, and bombs fell in University City and damaged a public hospital.

Many War Targets in Area

All these places are in an area studded with military objectives. The Termini station in the heart of Rome is less than 1,000 yards from the church. The Vicinali rail station also is not far distant, as well as the Ferdinand di Savoia Barracks, an artillery practice field and freight stations.

The Via Tiburtino runs alongside the barracks and into the Termini station, but neither the Swiss agency nor Stefani mentioned these facts. The Portonaccio station, about a half mile from Termini, also was not mentioned in reports coming from Rome. It was believed to have been one of the main Allied targets.

Fear Of Outbreak In Event Of Invasion Behind Decrees, Bern Hears

New Measures Ordered Against Sabotage And Anti-Government Activity

[By the Associated Press]

Bern, Switzerland, July 19—Pierre Laval, Vichy Chief of Government, has ordered new measures against sabotage and subversive anti-Government activity in an effort to guard against outbreak in the event of an Allied invasion, it was reported today.

Plans to further a sweeping police campaign were made by Laval today at a Paris conferenec with regional prefects of police and gendarmes of the northern zones, a Paris dispatch said, adding that the police were given instructions "relative to the maintenance of public order."

Conscription Order

A degree published in the official gazette revealed, furthermore, that Laval had ordered the prefects to conscript persons of either sex between 18 and 65 to carry out any measures desired by occupation troops in the former Vichy zone.

Either Frenchmen or foreigners are liable by the decree to do any work the Nazi authorities might demand, refusal to draw punishment ranging up to five years—double that for the second offense.

It was said that the decree was made retroactive to November 11, 1942, permitting retroactive punishment.

Most Likely Victims

The Vichy correspondent for the Gazette de Lausanne said the main reason was to catch those refusing to help guard railways or those who have abandoned such duties. Rail- are a favorite saboteurs' target.

...ially Vichy sources, he said, asserted that Nationals of countries having conventions with France probably would not be affected, while foreigners without such protection might become the main victims.

The correspondent said the Swiss had been doing railway guarding until their consulate protested.

Meanwhile, violence continued. One instance was the fatal shooting of a physician out making a call near Argentat. Havos, French news agency, said he was involved in politics. His assassin escaped.

Crews Warned Targets Were Near Sacred And Historic Structures

[By the Associated Press]

Cairo, July 19—American airmen, including those of the Catholic faith, from Libyan bases bombed the Littorio freight yards in Rome for seventy-five minutes today without any fighter opposition, and up to a late hour tonight not a single Liberator had been reported lost on the successful expedition.

A few planes had landed at other than their home bases, however, after dropping 350 tons of bombs on their target.

As many Catholics as possible were chosen for the raid on the military objectives in Rome in order to counter any possible Axis propaganda lies, it was disclosed here.

"Take Your Time" Is Order

"Now remember," said an officer who gave his men a final briefing before they took off, "these military objectives are sandwiched between some of the most sacred and historically important spots in the world."

"Fly low, if you must, and engage enemy fighters to the best of your ability. Regardless of what you find over that target area, take your time and bomb accurately."

The men, who had been given special instructions daily for a week, were then required to point out their targets on an unmarked map as a final test of their schooling.

U.S. FLIERS REPORT NO AIR OPPOSITION DURING ROME RAID

Bombers Encountered Heavy Anti-Aircraft Fire Over Eternal City.

CAIRO, July 19—(AP) The bombardier on the first Liberator bomber to touch down at its home base in Libya after the bombing of objectives in Rome reported tonight that while his section of a great attacking formation ran into heavy anti-aircraft fire, it did not encounter a single enemy fighter plane.

FENWICK

The bombardier, First Lieut. Frank P. Sandwick of Washington, D. C., said "The only fighters we saw on the entire trip were R.A.F. Spittires p... in the Malta vicinity."

Railroad Yards Hit

A member of the crew of "Washes Tub," Lieut. Sandwick said all of his bombs fell in marshalling yards in Rome, and that as they struck the earth seemed to vomit up flashes of smoke and dust.

"Washes Tub" was piloted by First Lieut. William McCain of California.

The pilots who brought the raiders over the Eternal city declared when they returned to their North African base that they had no trouble locating their military targets. The morning was clear and sunny. In addition, they are aided by the large number of landmarks dotting the Italian capital.

The pilots swept over to the snake-like Tiber river outside of Rome and thundered along it right into the city.

Warned on Targets

Briefing of the crews had been intense. Large-scale photographs of their targets were displayed to them. And they were warned not to damage religious and cultural shrines.

They reported that they found evidence that the Italians had taken anticipatory steps—to protect some of the great city's historic monuments. Columns of the Rajan arch of Titus and the handsome Cascades ornamented by the sculptures of Bernini had been encased in thick concrete, they said.

News of the pounding of Rome electrified Cairo today. Throngs gathered in street cafes to listen to the latest bulletins from London. Newspapers caried the first brief reports in solid black type under banner headlines.

The daring raid came nearly a year after the Cairo area was visited by enemy aircraft. Although little damage was done by the enemy—none to the city itself—there had been undeniable disappointment among the Egyptian peoples when Rome was not immediately attacked by Allied air forces.

PILOTS FIND ROME TARGETS EASILY

Cairo, July 19 (A. P.).—Pilots who bombed Rome today said after returning to their North African bases that they had no difficulty in finding their military targets in the clear morning sunshine because of the unusually large number of landmarks which dot the Italian capital, according to first reports reaching Cairo. They picked up the snake-like Tiber River outside Rome and followed it into the city.

The pilots said they saw evidence that the Italians already had taken steps to protect some of Rome's historic monuments. Columns of the Trajan Arch of Titus and the beautiful Cascades ornamented by the sculptures of Bernini had been encased in thick concrete, they said.

Attack on Capital Followed Warnings on Concentrations

Many Military Objectives Were in City; Blasting May Affect Supplies for Sicily

By the Associated Press

JUL 20 1943

LONDON, July 19.—The bombing of Rome today suggested to observers here that the Allies finally had decided military considerations outweighed cries of protest sure to come from Axis and possibly from neutral sources.

It was expected that Prime Minister Churchill, who has not yet made a statement in Parliament on the Sicilian campaign, would take an early opportunity in the House of Commons to set forth the Allies' reason for the attack.

Rome, in its usual daily communique, said only that "enemy air formations dropped numerous bombs over Rome, causing damage not yet ascertained."

The raid, which an Allied communique said was concentrated on military targets, gave an answer at long last to arguments which have flourished in the British press and in the House of Commons concerning the possibility of bombing the Eternal City.

Warned by Eden.

The last official statement on the question was given by Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden on June 30, when he told Commons:

"We would not hesitate to bomb Rome to the best of our ability and as heavily as possible if the course of the war should render such action necessary."

The decision to bomb Rome was taken in London to mean that Allied authorities had decided military considerations of the attack would outweigh inevitable reaction from Axis and neutral sources.

It was pointed out that Axis propaganda, which has been trying desperately to build up international sympathy for victims of the Ruhr bombings, would be intensified by what undoubtedly will be called "desecration" of Rome.

Apparently, however, Allied authorities decided the bombing—in Mr. Eden's phrase—now would be both "convenient and helpful."

The Allied headquarters announcement of the bombing declared the plane crews were given instructions to avoid historic and religious targets, but advocates of the bombing of Rome long have contended there are an ample number of other legitimate targets in the capital city of the Fascist regime.

In addition to housing German and Italian troops Rome is an important center for railways which transport troops and supplies from the northern area to the defense lines south of Rome.

There are also numerous industrial targets in the city's outskirts and on the Campagna Romana, the plain which surrounds the city for a radius of 20 miles. Mention of "the vicinity" of Rome apparently meant the attack was directed against these outlying targets.

This outer industrial ring includes a number of minor aircraft factories, chemical works, rayon factories and gas and water works. Six big railway stations and a railway repair shop are located in the center of Rome. Large military barracks are ranged along both sides of the Tiber.
